Bounces Tough On Merchants, DA Tough On Bouncers

Bad Checks-Topic Of Hot Conversation

Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County's get-touch policy with writers of hot checks lately has meant more prosecutions and collections than in recent years but it hasn't slowed the flow of checks returned unpaid to Hereford businesses by banks.

"Everytime we've gone to the bank, we've had som iot checks," said Joe Perez, assistant manager at Furr's Food

"I imagine we get back one to three checks every day," said Raymond Delorio, manager of M.E. Moses, a department store. "Last year after we opened, I had $2,000 in hot checks come back."

Even Deaf Smith County District Attorney Andy Shuval admits the problem is getting worse.

"We used to get seven or eight hot checks a months when I started seven years ago. We get about 40 a month now," said Shuval, who, with the help of Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson, incorporated a policy in dealing with writers of bad checks two years ago

The policy is actually a crackdown

"We try to file on the check writer within 45 days after the checks gets into our office. We will not discuss the case after we file it just because the person pays the check." Shuval

'They learn after awhile, this is not the place to give hot checks'-Andy Shuval

"He's going to plead guilty and pay a fine and court cost and if he's a repeat offender, go to jail."

Last month, a Hereford man was sentenced to six months in jail and forced to pay, fine after writing several bad checks then leaving town.

"We found him and gave him six months." Shuval said. "The charge was misdemeanor theft.

Under the Shuval program, first used in Houston what they should do to preserve a case. The second phase is the forceful prosecution of the writer.

Every check is not a hot check and the merchant needs to know this." Shuval said. "That's why we educate him on what a hot check is. It's something given for value at the time

For example, if I walk into a clothing store and buy a shirt and give a check and I walk out with the shirt and the check is bad, it's a hot check. If I walk in and take a shirt and charge it and they send me a bill and I pay it with a check, then it's not a hot check. They've given me the shirt already.

According to Shuval and the law, a check must be presented to the bank within five days in the normal course of business for the writer to be prosecuted

The bank will stamp the check should it be hot, stating why it was not honored. The holder then must give notice to the hot check writer to inform him that the check was not honored and why it was not.

A registered or certified letter sent to the address on the check must be used to inform the writer, who then has 10 days from the date he receives the letter to make payments.

If the check is still hot after 10 days, the holder may present it to the district attorney's office. Along with the check, the holder must present a signed postal receipt or the returned unopened letter and a completed "hot check form.

The form requires that the writer be identified through his driver's license number or personal acquaintance.

Shuval, after getting the three requirements from the check's holder, sends a letter to the writer demanding payment within 10 days. If the writer pays, the money goes

Paving Work Due On South Kingwood

Motorists who travel South Kingwood Street-and surveys show there are some 1,500 vehicles a day-will have to take a detour next week.

Austin Rose, county commissioner of Precinct 2, announced Saturday that the road will be closed about the middle of the week to start repairs. The construction project calls for widening and resurfacing the road from W. Park Avenue to Holly Road.

Kingwood is a connecting roadway between Park Avenue and US-60. The repairs will be made from the west side of the cemetery south to Oglesby Equipment Co. Plans call for the narrow road to be widened by seven feet, allowing space for "shoulders" on the Rose estimated the paving project would be completed in about two weeks, weather permitting.

FBI Allegations Say Church Spied

WASHINGTON (AP) - Michael Meisner, disillusioned and frightened by the religion he once embraced, holds the key to FBI allegations that the Church of Scientology carried out a secret spy plot against the government.

Meisner, who remains in protective custody under an assumed name, is being guarded around the clock because he and federal officials fear for his safety.

Based largely on Meisner's statements to federal investigators, the FBI obtained a search warrant and raided Scientology church offices in Washington and Los Angeles on Friday. The recovered hundreds of documents allegedly stolen from government files and seized other evidence

The church promised a court battle against the confiscation of documents but quickly lost the first round when a federal judge denied a request for a temporary restraining order

Church officials responded to the FBI allegations with efforts to discredit Meisner and with a shower of complaints about what they called the government's Gestapo tactics.

Church officials responded to the FBI allegations with efforts to discredit Meisner and with a shower of complaints about what they called the government's Gestapo tactics

The developments escalated a longstanding skirmish between the government and the unorthodox religious sect, and the accounts spun by both dies sounded stranger than the science fiction tales which church founder L. Ron Hubbard once wrote

Hubbard founded the church in 1954 and continues as its highest official. According to church literature, disciples undergo various stages of "pastoral counseling" to cleanse their minds of early traumas

An E-meter, a small transistor-operated box, helps locate traumatic areas by measuring skin reactions, they claim.

In a sworn affidavit, the FBI said, "There is probably cause to believe" that church officials conspired from 1974 through 1976 to plant spies at the Justice Department and Internal Revenue Service, to burglarize government offices repeatedly and to bug a high-level IRS conference.

The allegations were built around

Meisner's statements after he renounced the church and surrendered to federal attorneys in Washington on June 20 to "face criminal charges and cooperate in the on going investigation," the affidavit

According to the government, Meisner had risen to "a high level of responsibility" after joining the church in 1970 and he supervised covert operations against the government.

Church officials claimed Meisner never was more than a middle-level staff member. One church spokesman, Greg Layton, said Meisner was "excommunicated from the church" a year ago.

Other church officials denied the government accusations and responded with their own allegations

According to the church's account, the FBI raids were an "attempt to cover up a massive international narcotics operation known to officials of the U.S. and some foreign government.

Lawmakers To Consider Property-Tax Relief

AUSTIN (AP). Texas lawmakers meet again Monday to argue the nagging problem of public school financing, a critical issue that has had schools in and out of federal courts for several years.

The big question will be whether lawmakers can give local taxpayers property tax relief and at the same time up- grade the money-hungry poorer school districts.

"I am very pleased at the degree of agreement that exists." Gov. Dolph Briscoe told a news conference Friday after talking with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton and representatives of teachers, school administrators and others involved.

"They are closer and stronger than any time that I can remember." Briscoe said.

In making the formal call for the special session-limited to 30 days. Briscoe made it clear he would not open debate to any other subject until public school financing is settled. "The entire effort of the legislature from 10 a.m. Monday will be on public education until it is completed," he said. The governor said he had 210 requests to include other subjects in the session, but "I have made no final decision of what other subjects, if any, will be submitted... No other subjects will be submitted until public education is completed. However, there will be at least one interruption. On Friday, July 15, the House has scheduled a joint session with the Senate on a resolution to remove Associate Justice Don Yarbrough, 36, from the Texas Supreme Court. Yarbrough faces disbarment proceedings over 87 alleged violations of State Bar ethics and has been indicted by the Travis County grand jury on charges of forgery and perjury "It seems to me that is the proper and most expeditious legislative procedure," Briscoe said of the hearing for Yarbrough.

He said if two-thirds of each house votes to instruct Briscoe to remove Yarbrough, he has no choice but to do so. Briscoe declined to say if he thought Yarbrough should be

The governor said there are "some differences" in the House and Senate bills on public school financing "but I think it will be possible to work this out." He said he would have more definite recommendations when he addresses a joint session of the House and Senate after the opening Monday

Briscoe was forced to call the special session because the 140-day regular session ended May 30 without either house taking a final vote on a public school financing compromise bill that was approved by a conference committee just half an hour before the midnight deadline for adjournment.

Briscoe was asked if he had second thoughts about waiting until now to call a special session instead of recalling the lawmakers immediately after the May 30 failure.

"I think, I am convinced, after the discussion today that the legislature is going to do a better job on public school financing this session than the conference report of May 30." he said. "In that case, I think I made the proper decision for the good of public education." Briscoe said he would stick with his previous forecast that the legislature should be able to close out the special session in a week or 10 days. "I would hope so," he told the news conference. "No one would want to make a definite prediction but I am optimistic that will be the case.' The Senate bill, still in the making, would cost $932.7

Referendum Money To Go To Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cattle produces are in the midst of a nationwide referendum to decide whether to support a research and information program aimed at getting consumers to eat more

The voting began July 5 and will continue through Friday at local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service ASCS, an agency of the Agriculture Department.

If at least two-thirds of those voting approve, the plan will raise $30 million to $40 million a year. The money will be administered by a 68-member Beef Board comprised of cattle producers nominated by cattlemen's organizations.

According to O.J. Barron Jr., chairman of a National Beef Development Task Force, the board will invest the money in various projects.

Among the programs, he said, will be human nutrition research; consumer education on nutrition and how to select and prepare beef cuts; new product research and development; production research to lower the cost of producing beef or to increase profits; better market ifnormation for cattlemen; and foreign market development.

We'll take them from Vega, Friona and Dimmitt and places close to here but we won't from Amarillo or Comanche. If they're hot, we've got to send letters and it's too much time and trouble.

Furr's uses the Shuval method in dealing with bad check writers. Moses does not.

"We send people a registred form letter then wait six days and send a second letter. About six days later, we send a final notice. The letters get stronger every time," Delorio said.

"If the check is not picked up within 48 hours after they get the third letter, we turn it over to our legal department out of Dallas. I dont know what happens then; I've never had to go that far. They usually take care of it by the time we send the second letter.

The check writer is stuck with a $3.00 service charge by Moses. That charge often angers the writer.

'But the peculiar thing about it," Delorio said, "is that we are the ones loaning them the money. I have to pay half of those checks andthe company pays the other half." Hereford's two banks also add a service charge to accounts

Another stream of burning oil went through a culvert under the pump station access road and burned out an acre and one-half stand of birch trees.

Earl Beard, a pipeline maintenance foreman, said he was at a small tank farm on a hill overlooking the pump house when the explosion came.

"The building flew apart at the explosion and fire started runing into the woods," said Beard, who was about 200 yards from the pump house. He said he tried to reach a check valve pump station, but that the heat from the burning oil drove him back.

Y Karate Classes To Begin July 19

Brand Sports Editor

If you should happen by the Central School gym in a couple of weeks don't be alarmed if you hear a crescendo of shouts; grunts, and the thud of bodies hitting the floor. It won't be a convention of street fighters, just a group of Herefordites learning the art of self-defense in a YMCA Karate class.

Beginning Tuesday, July 19 the local YMCA will offer Karate classes for both adult and youth groups at the old school's gym. Steve Shepherd, a 19-year-old third-degree black belt, will teach the classes.

More specifically, the type of Karate Shepherd will instruct is called "Tang-Soo-Do Korean Karate." The classes will last eight weeks, with three sessions on Tuesday evenings for adults, and three sessions Saturday mornings for the younger set.

"I'll mainly teach self-confidence, which in turn leads to self-defense," Shepherd commented in describing the classes. Included in the course will be instruction in defense against weapons, take downs, and the "usual" breaking of boards and bricks.

"It's doubtful that the students will advance one belt in the first session," Shepherd average of four months for the White Belts (Novices) to advance to the next degree of Orange Belt.

A veteran of four years on the mats, Shepherd said it takes the average student almost three years to advance to the first degree of black belt, requiring four months each to move from white to orange and from orange to green, and one year each to advance from green to red and from red to black. "It also depends a lot on the closeness to an instructor.' Shepherd said, adding that he learned his art from Byron Walker at the Community Center in Amarillo.

In addition to the mental preparation in the classes. instruction will cover the stance, punch, block, and kick. All the moves in a particular movement, or "Hyung", will be covered.

"To move up a belt a student must perfect three "Hyungs". Shepherd said. "The awarding of a higher belt comes only after an instructor has been satisfied through visual observation that a student has perfected the required moves."

The classes, which according to Shepherd will consist of about 80 per cent kicks and 20 per cent hand techniques, will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesdays for adults said revealling that it takes an and at 9:30 a.m. Saturdays for

No mixed classes will be held, with two men's and two boys' classes scheduled in contrast to one class each for women

The YMCA has set a minimum of 10 students for each class with a maximum of 15. Interested students may go by the Y office in Sugarland Mall for more information and to enroll in the classes.

"We will not register anyone by phone, they must come by the office to sign up," Y director Claude Huard said.

Watson Staves Off Nicklaus For British Open Championship

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) - Just as he did at the Masters, Tom Watson absorbed the best that Jack Nicklaus could offer, responded with a courageous, five-under-par 65 and won the British Open Saturday in one of golf's greatest duels.

" Watson, now offering the greatest challenge ever to Nicklaus' long-time role as the world's premier performer, ecquired his second British Open title and his second major tournament victory of the year with a record 268 total.

. That's 12 below par on Turnberry's Ailsa course, stretching 6,875 yards by the Irish Sea and an incredible eight strokes better than the 276 that ranked as the best previous total in the 106-year history of golf's oldest tournament.

Nicklaus, now a six-time British Open runnerup, went down fighting. He holed an across-the-green birdie putt of 60 feet on the final hole. But it wasn't good enough. Watson had thrown his approach to within 21/2 feet. He boldly rammed it home for a one-stroke decision. It was his third consecutive victory and sixth of the season.

Nicklaus, who played the last two, rounds head-to-head with Watson, didn't make a bogey his round of 66. He finished perhaps the greatest confrontation the game has ever seen with a 269 total. It was simply magnificent. For 36 holes, for two rounds in the rain and wind, storm and sunshine, Nicklaus, the finest player the world has seen and Watson, the man who would supplant him, fought each other with some of the finest golf ever They'd gone through the first two rounds with matching scores of 68 and 70. Playing in the same twosome in Friday's storm-interrupted round, they matched 65s-until this year the tournament record score.

And then Saturday they kept up a pace that seemed impossible. Watson played his last 35 holes in 130, Nicklaus in 131-unbelievable scores.

In the end, Watson's little putt on the 18th decided it.

Nicklaus, trailing by one after Watson had birdied the 17th, missed the fairway badly and was lucky to get his second shot on the green. Watson, who ripped a roaring salute from the throats of the golf-mad Scots

VIEWPOINT

It Sims To Me. . . Voting Rights, A Fairy Tale

Managing Editor

An old Indian fable, forgotten but worth remembering, tells of a log in the forest with a tomahawk stuck deep into it.

A brave-stew hungry and hunting rodents and insects-- stumbled onto the log one mid-summer afternoon. Trying to remove the tomahawk, he found he could not.

His determination was profound, then became frustration when he discovered an inscription on the handle

"Whosoever removes me shall be called chief." The warrior returned to his tribe to relate the incident. Others from the tribe came to the forest to pit their strength against the tomahawk, only to encounter the frustration of the first brave.

Runamuck was a teenage member of the tribe although the others cared not to admit it. Lowly Runamuck had earned the reputation of being quite worthless, an outcast who had failed to develop the basic skills of a warrior such as Trunting and tracking and scalping and war Runmuck was looked at with disdain even by local papooses, who greeted him with a distinct 'ugh' as they passed by, swaying from the backs of their mothers.

The story goes that Runamuck took to the woods, downtrodden and in search of himself. That, he didn't find. He did find, however, the tomahawk and the log.

The only instrument of protection the tribe had ever provided him, for fear he might stick himself, was the dulled horn of a Hereford. Coveting the tomahawk, Runamuck pulled it from the log and a bell tolled.

Noticing the inscription, the gleeful and cowardly brave returned to the others.

Runamuck was adorned with the garb of a chieftain and exalted by the tribe. As you might expect, Chief Runamuck became a mighty warrior and, under his guidance, the tribe grew in stature.

The tomahawk, dubbed "Ex-Scalper" by Chief Runamuck, was hung above the mantle in his tepee, a tribute to his finding himself.

Taletellers of tomorrow probably will speak of another tomahawk of sorts, one with a bureaucratic blade that stuck in the billfolds of 20th Century Americans.

It might be called, "The Voting Rights Act of 1965. More likely, "The Voting Rights Axe.

The story will be about a law requiring political entities in the United States to submit a pre-clearance request with the U.S. attorney general's office prior to changing election

Many of the requests, the storytellers will say, were turned down because the attorney general's office said the changes might be discriminatory to minority groups.

One such request, the story will go, was made by the Hereford Independent School District after it changed from an at-large to place system (of voting) with a majority runoff requirement. Uh-uh, the bureaucrats, said, the change might be .

The school district sued the attorney general, whose name was Griffin Bell, who, in turn, sued six other political entities in Texas for changing election procedures without getting pre-clearance. The seven entities were consolidated and the case

The outcome of the trial wasn't important to taxpayers, or tax-victims as the storytellers will call them, of the 20th Century. The big thing of the whole mess was the tax- victims couldn't win, no matter who won in court.

You see, it cost to have the trial. Attorney's compensation. Tax-victims paid the fees of the entities' lawyers and the salaries of the government's lawyers.

The storytellers classified the Justice Department, in particular the Voting Rights Axe section, as the villain of their tale. If not for the hundreds of rejected pre-clearance requests each year, there would have been no need for lawsuits. And no need to have hired attorneys for the

It especially cost to maintain the bureau in Washington, D.C. that was responsible for turning down hundreds of pre-clearance submissions every year on the grounds the changes MIGHT BE, but possibly aren't, discriminatory.

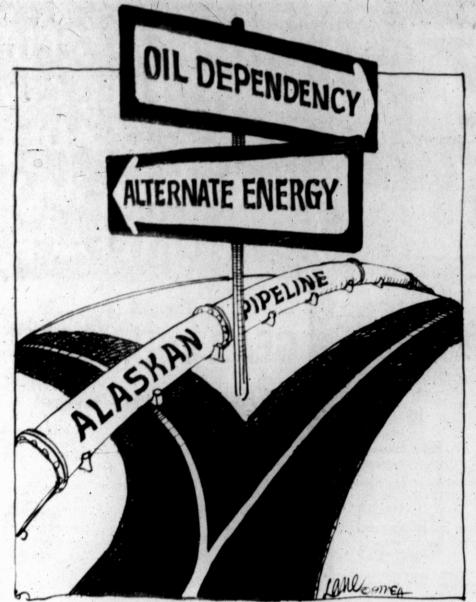

It took a staff of 17 Voting Rights Axe attorneys and 15 para-legals to study the submissions. The nine secretaries who worked in the office brought the total payroll of the Voting Rights Axe section of the Department of Justice to $821,000 in 1977.

The payroll grew larger in later years as there were raises and additional attorneys were hired to handle a growing work load.

So, the people were taxed, the storytellers will relate.

As they shall put it, "The Bell Tolled."

REUNION & HOPE

My high school class finally had a reunion. It is most typical that we would get around to it on the 27th year. We always were weird. I do not know when I have enjoyed an experience more, nor do I remember when I have been more shocked. Some of those folks have aged.

I never have understood the aging process. I still think of myself as being young. There are little hints but I expected big hints. I guess we see what we are looking for but I can't see that I have changed all that much. I think mirrors lie. 1 have not changed how come I had to introduce myself to my old classmates? I know I am aging but it isn't what I expected. It is like the poem:

I can live with my arthritis My dentures fit me fine, I can see through my bifocals

But I sure do miss my mind.

The shocking things about the reunion were not just that I had changed. They were:

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY- The first airplane owned by the U.S. government was assembled in Texas and made its first flight here.

It was manufactured by Wilbur and Orville Wright, who sold it to Uncle Sam for $3,000. It was dismantled and shipped to Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio on a railroad flat car in 1910. The Army Signal Corps ordered it so the first military pilot could learn to

The airplane arrived in 17 boxes. Army mechanics put the contraption together inside a tent since no hangar was available. They utilized large amounts of wire, string and stove bolts to hold it together. Later a shed was built to house the aircraft.

Instruction by the Wrights in how to fly the plane was included in the purchase price. They came to Fort Sam Houston and taught the fundamentals to Lt. Benjamin D. Foulois, a young Army signal officer. On March 2, 1910, he took the plane up for the first flight in military aviation history.

It lasted seven minutes.

Americans, mostly, if given the facts, will act rationally, excusing some people here and there, mostly there, but getting the facts is the hard

I don't have any way of keeping score on this, but I suspect the big news outfits, like the television and radio networks and the wire services and big newspapers, send out about as much misinformation as information. It's not intentional, they just don't know any better. They just report what somebody tells them.

Take the energy shortage. In the last few months I've read or heard on television that: (1) oil and gas will run out in 20 years, (2) they'll run out in 40 years, (3) next winter, and (4) the earth has 1,000 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, enough to last 2,000 years, and un-told barrels of undiscovered oil.

And back when gasoline was selling for 30 cents a gallon and we had a shortage with cars lined up at service stations trying to get a few gallons, I heard a man say that when gasoline goes to 50 cents a gallon plenty of the stuff will show up. It did.

You see, there are two laws of economics most people don't understand: (1) the higher the price of gasoline goes, the more there is, and (2) the lower the price of farm. products goes, the more the farmers produce.

This problem could be solved if we'd put farmers in charge of gasoline and the gasoline people in charge of farming. It's not likely.

The main trouble with the energy problem is that it's hard to get the facts when there aren't any.

The light-truck market is literally exploding, June will make the seventh straight month in which light-truck sales (pickups and vans) will set a record. Light trucks are 90 per cent of the truck market. Chevrolet now sells one light truck for every 1.8 autos. In 1960 this ratio was one for every 6.3 cars.

Auto marketing executives can supply lots of reasons for the sales boom -- some call trucks "adult toys"--but they are stunned by the rapid growth rate. The truck craze began in California where many auto tends start. It happened in the 1960s when young people began converting trucks into personalized rigs and even into homes on wheels. The youth market is still an important factor, but trucks are finding big new markets. elsewhere.

Pickups are hot with those who want to haw snowmobiles and motorcycles. But they are also appealing to urban and suburban families that have no such specific use for them. Japanese mini-pickups control 9 per cent of the light-truck

According to one truck merchandising expert, people are buying pickups and vans partly as a means of avoiding the shrinking size of Detroit's sedans and station wagons. It seems a truck has become socially acceptable. That view is supported by the expensive options that buyers hang on their trucks. Some 90 per cent of the Chevy light-truck buyers now pay extra for power steering, 75 per cent of the buyers add automatic transmissions, and 50 per cent of the buyers go for air conditioning. A Van Nuys, California Dodge dealer says he recently sold a van for $16,000. completely outfitted with a television. "Pong" game and stereo.

All of the auto manufacturers have their van assembly lines working overtime and Saturdays. Chrysler lost 20,000 vans produced during a six-week strike at its St. Louis assembly plant. To challenge the market dominance of Chrysler's Dodge vans, Ford plans to add 50 per cent more van manufacturing capacity, and GM will add about the same of new capacity this year.

Players Prefer College Ball To Minor Leagues

NEW YORK (AP) - For years aspiring baseball players have taken lengthy bus trips through such spots as Gastonia, N.C., Wausau, Wis., and Lodi, Calif., trying to achieve the American dream. But times are changing.

"It's a crime," New York Mets catcher John Stearns says of life in the minor leagues. "You're thrown out in the world at a young age. It's very tough for a kid to be thrown into a harsh world. A lot of times he's not mentally ready to take it."

Stearns, one of a growing number of college graduates in the majors, bypassed the low minor leagues, attended the University of Colorado, then went straight to Double A ball after signing with the Phillies.

"The big thing," explains Minnesota's Mike Cubbage, who went to the University of Virginia, "is maturing and the college education itself. You're better suited to cope with problems. I saw guys at 17 who weren't able to adjust. They were stars in high school and then they were struggling for

"I think college baseball, particularly in a larger school, is excellent," says Dodger pitcher Burt Hooton who attended Texas. "And a guy probably learns more about the game in college than in the low minors. You are drilled in fundamentals every day."

"College is a good place to work on skills," explains Cubbage. "Some colleges have better facilities and coaches than some minor leagues. There's a large schedule in the spring and with summer ball, you wouldn't play much less."

Up here in the bigs you have to know what to do. You can't make stupid plays. It takes a couple of years in the minors to learn that. There's no sense going to school in the north. Four years of college there equals one minor league

Attorney Robert Stephan said that a suit will be filed in two br three weeks seeking an injunction to keep Hunter in school and on the football team.

The one-semester suspension was announced last week following a series of hearings that began when Hunter and five other football player were charged with violating rules regarding visitation by women in the men's dorms.

Stephan said rules published in the school's student handbook and due process of law were not followed in proceedings which resulted in the suspension.

Hunter and the other five players were first cleared in a university judicial hearing, but that ruling was overturned by an appeals board convened by Dean of Students James Roemer, recommending suspension for Hunter alone.

"We object to him (Roemer) serving as prosecutor and chief Ditness in the judicial hearing." Stephan said. "In his role as dean of students, he gathered testimony from alleged witnesses and then testified to it is his own prosecution of the case. That would be unheard of in any court of law.

Hunter, a 5-foot-11, 195pound senior from Greenville, N.C., became the first Irish runner in history to gain 1,000 yards in a single season. He totaled 1,160 yards and scored 13 touchdowns last year as the Irish went 9-3 with a victory over Penn State in the Gator Bowl.

After Hunter left Notre Dame at the end of the semester, the appeals hearing was set for June 1. Hunter returned to South Bend, summoned a student counsel and was found guilty. Stephan then helped Hunter draft an appeal to the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, Notre Dame/president, who declined to overturn the appeals board's recommendation. Stephan said Hunter's suit will be based on the contention that the university violated its own rules and its contract with Hunter, that it violated his due process and civil rights and violated his basic rights as a

Roger Valdiserri, sports information director and assistant athletic director, said the university would have no comment on the suit "until we

Hunter also was one of six players suspended in 1974 following a dormitory incident in which a woman claimed she was raped. No criminal charges were filed in that case and five of the six- including Hunter and current co-captains Ross Browner and Willie Frey- returned to # school after sitting out a year.

Lamaze Prepares Parents For Miracle of Childbirth

BY KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor

The birth of a child can be a poignant, invigorating experience for parents, or it can be a time of anxiety and fear, depending on one element -- the Lamaze method of birth.

Lamaze, named after a French doctor who promoted the technique, is a relatively new program in Hereford, having been taught here for less than two years. However, a growing interest in the "childbirth without pain" experience is helping to strengthen the local roots of Lamaze training.

Fully supported by local doctors and Deaf Smith General Hospital. Lamaze is being taught by two Hereford women, Penny Jessup and Glenda Wells, each of whom gave birth last year through Lamaze. They are currently working towards certification as salaried Lamaze instructors, but, due to the shortage of qualified teachers in this area, they are already conducting the eight-week course for expectant parents of this county

The beginning instructors stress that the Lamaze technique does not intrude into the medical realm. The purpose, as they explained it, is to educate an expectant couple on pregnancy, how it changes the woman's body and what will be involved during actual delivery

"BY EDUCATING A couple on what to expect during the birth of their baby, you eliminate the fear of the unknown," said Mrs. Wells. During the Lamaze training course, the pregnant woman and her husband learn neuromuscular control and rhythmic breathing, view a film of a Lamaze birth and tour the obstetrics ward of the hospital where their baby

The two Lamaze instructors stress the important role of the expectant father, who will serve as his wife's "coach" during

Abraham Lincoln was the only president ever to undergo enemy gunfire. Lincoln faced confederates' bullets at Fort Stevens, where restored ramparts stand today only a few miles from the White House.

Getting Acquainted with Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Urbanczyk, students of the Lamaze course, toured Deaf Smith General Hospital this week so that they will be familiar with the procedures used locally in the delivery of labor. The Lamaze curriculum prepares an expectant father to be present in the delivery room when his child is born. He is encouraged to attend each of the weekly Lamaze classes so that the stages of pregnancy will be "a sharing experience" for the couple

The preparatory exercises which are prescribed for a pregnant women under the Lamaze regimen are specifically designed to ready her for a conscious, relaxed and minimum painless delivery.

Neuromuscular control is the process of learning to relax muscles so that during labor, a woman will not unnecessarily tax her muscles. This "release," allows the uterus, to receive more oxygen, which would otherwise have been needed by tensed muscles,

Another important aspect of the Lamaze teachings is controlled breathing, which reportedly keeps pain to a minimum and allows the mother to remain an active participant during birth. Rhythmic breathing helps to keep the diaphragm from resting on the laboring uterus and it keeps the woman's concentration diverted, so that the pain stimulus is blocked.

"In my many years as a pharmacist, I've seen and tried numerous weight-loss plans, but none have worked as well for me as NaturShim. And NaturSlim is very nutritional too!

After three months, Dan has not regained any of the lost pounds either, as so often happens when "rebounding" from starvation diet plans. He maintains his weight by taking NaturSlim once daily ... and eating normally otherwise.

Dan says, "It was surprisingly easy, too! I didn't have to attend any weigh ins, starve myself or do any special exercises" With the NaturSlim program, there are no shots, drugs or long lists of forbidden foods. In fact, you are encouraged to eat a normal, well-balanced dinner every day.

The next time you are in the St. Charles area, stop by Burger's Drugs and see Dan yourself. He'll tell you personally what he thinks about NaturSlim!

Do you know what the ultimate is in importance?

It's being paged. All my life I've wanted to be seated at the fanciest restaurant in town and have a waiter wander through carrying a plug-in phone and calling my name.

Some people pay no attention to who's being called, but not me. It's just like the flag went by. I not only stop and observe the paper -- I follow him with my eyes until he makes contact

In Las Vegas a few months ago. I had two nickel slot machines smoking when a bellhop called out loudly, "Mark Twain, pick up the nearest phone please. Mark Twain, answer the nearest phone please!" I was standing frozen with my hand unable to release the

A friend of mine in L.A. shares my fascination. She has set aside a handsome sum in her will for a "perpetual page" in the Polo Lounge in the Beverly Hills Hotel where being paged is rated just under witnessing God.

When you think of it, it is the only way of remaining

The only threat I see to the paging system are the little beep beep boxes worn by the medical profession. I asked a starlet whose career was "settling" at an astounding rate if she thought it would ever come to that. She said, "Are you kidding? A beep beep in our profession is a dirty word.'

I agree. I liked it better when the theatre lights would go on, an announcer would walk to center stage and announce dramatically. "If Dr. Leechbed is in the audience, would you please call your service immediately."

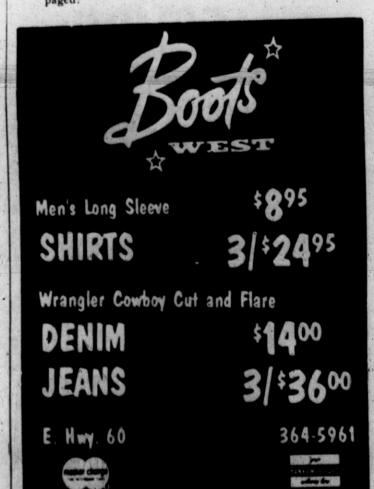

Boy, the drama that announcement used to conjure of a woman in the final seconds of labor, an army of nurses waiting with gloves extended and the fingers blown out and the doctor saying. "Pray God I'm not too late."

. I was sitting next to a doctor at dinner a couple of weeks ago when a beep beep came from his chest. He excused himself and called his service.

'An emergency?" Lasked upon his return.

"No, the babysitter called and wanted to know if the kids coule split a cola before they went to bed. Her instructions had been to cut off their liquids at 7:00.

with its network of affiliate obtained and who can provide it treatment centers and volunteer for themes chapters and representatives provided, in the year ending August 31, 1976, some 485,215 units of approrpitate therapies to 11,726 handicapped children and adults of Texas. This is an increase of 958 disabled citizens served in 1976.

In the 1977 quarter ending in April, the Easter Seal Society had provided 14 units of service to persons in Deaf Smith County.

This growth in needed services requires a concurrent growth in public support. Total income to the Texas Easter Seal Society and its affiliates increased by $668.581. This represented an increase of 125 per cent over the previous year. It is this measure of support, reflecting as it does public confidence in the programs of the Easter Seal Society, which made it possible for the Society to provide service to handicapped Texas Children and adults who needed therapies, equipment and services.

The Easter Seal Action Line program, initiated in June of 1976, provides information, referral, and follow-up services to the disabled of Deaf Smith County and the rest of the state and has proven to be a much . needed and very successful service. Beginning last June with only 22 calls a month, the Action Line is receiving an average of 225 calls today. This service is designed to serve as a link between the handicapped and those services needed. With just a call, persons can receive assistance in locating services

'Acutally, the need to spend additional money in establishing new service programs is not as important as we would suspect. states William E. Russell. Executive Director of the Easter Seal Society, 'but a more. effective use of current budgeted programs is neededthrough a referral service such as the Easter Seal Action Line."

The fact of such increases prompts the Easter Seal Society of Texas to constantly evaluate the needs of the handicapped; to strive not to duplicate existing resources; to advocate for the needs of the disabled; and, to identify unmet needs.

Easter Seal Action Line, a 24 hour, toll-free number (1-800-492-5555), can be used by any disabled person and their families to obtain information regarding help they may need. JELLIES, JAMS, PRESERVES & MARMALADES MADE AT HOME

Jellies, jams, preserves and marmalades are easy to make at home and add variety to family meals. Most of them provide a good way to use fruit not at its best for canning or freezing, the largest or smallest fruits - and berries, and those that are irregular shaped.

Basically these products are much alike. All the fruit that are preserved with sugar and usually are jelled to some extent.

Jelly is made from fruit juice and is clear and firm enough to hold its shape when turned out of the container.

Jams are made from crushed or ground fruit and tends to hold it shape but generally is less firm than jelly.

Preserves are whole fruits or large pieces of fruit in thick syrup, often slightly jellied. Not all fruits have the properties needed for making satisfactory jelled products, but with the commercial pectins now on the market, you need not depend on the jellying quality of the fruit for successful results. Jellies not only make tasty treats for your family, but your friends will love them as gifts. Try the following unusual

Escapees Captured In Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)- Two men who walked away from an Oklahoma prison were in a Portland jail Saturday as prosecutors in at least two states prepared extradition papers stemming from a two-week series of killings and abductions.

FBI agents arrested Earl Van Denton, 27, and Paul Ruiz, 29, in downtown Portland shortly before noon Friday. Agents said they were arrested without incident although one man was armed with a knife and two handguns were found in the car they were driving.

In Oklahoma, meanwhile, the commonlaw wife of Elmer Clayton Finin, who escaped from the McAlester prison with Denton and Ruiz June 23, said she's "holding my breath that he is still alige. The officers... say he went to Louisiana with them, but did not return."

Denton and Ruiz, who both had been serving life prison sentences, are charged in Arkansas with the deaths of a town marshal and a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers ranger.

They also have been linked to the disappearance of two fishermen in. Louisiana and two fishermen in Louisiana and the abduction of an Oklahoma taxi driver whose decomposed body was found

FBI agents said the two were arrested while getting out of a car later identified as a taxi cab owned by James M. Short, the dead taxi driver from Purcell, Okla.

Agents said equipment and signs identifying the vehicle as as cab had been removed and the Oklahoma license plates had been replaced by plates reported stolen in Wichita, Kan.

The FBI in Portland said it received information from agents in New Mexico, where Ruiz reportedly has relatives, that the pair might be in Oregon.

A Portland FBI agent recognized the suspects and called for reinforcements. said arresting agent Paul Hudson.

"After we were set, I moved forward and gave the command to them to freeze.' Hudson said. "One looked like he was ready to run, but he was pretty well surrounded by them. There were guns drawn on them.

A third man, identified as David Cristofferson, 30, of Portland, was with Ruiz and Denton when they were arrested, the FBI said. A spokesman said Cristofferson was picked up by the two escapees while hitchhiking in eastern Oregon. He reported shared a Portland motel room with the two men, whose identify he did not know, agents said. Cristofferson was questioned and released, the FBI said.

An FBI spokesman said Denton and Ruiz were being held on $250,000 bond each on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. He said federal lawyers planned to drop those charges and let Oklahoma and Arkansas try the men.

The spokesman said an extradition hearing was scheduled in Portland Monday before a state judge, but "they indicated to us they would not waive extradition" so additional proceedings are likely.

Portland is more than 1,500 miles from where the escapees were last pinpointed in Oklahoma, the FBI said.

Agents said a file was found sewn into Denton's pants leg and a knife was sewn into the trousers worn by Ruiz. Agents said two pistols- a .357 magnum and a .38-caliber- were found in the car used by the two men.

Denton was serving life for murder. while Ruiz' life term stemmed from an armed robbery conviction.

CB: Your Own Service

WASHINGTON (AP)- People like to talk to other people- almost any time, about almost anything.

At the FCC, we think this is an important reason why CB radio is so popular today and why it will continue to be popular in the future. Every day, thousands of people join the millions of licensed CBers, discovering a world of enjoyable conversations and learning about the very important public service contributions of CB radio.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service. You do not need any technical training to operate a CB radio. You do not have to take any exams to become licensed in the CB radio service. Almost anyone can get a CB license, and the temporary permit allows an applicant to get on the air immediately after he has filed a license application. The rules governing CB radio are minimal, and most of them are intended to make your communications easier and more enjoyable.

You can use CB radio for almost all of your personal or business communication needs. We know that families often use CB radio to keep communications open between their houses and their automobiles.

Small businesses often use hand-held CB units to communicate among employes within an office building. Boats, especially small pleasure craft, are frequently equipped with CB radios to stay in contact with shore-based units in case of emergency. Certainly, CB radio is not without its difficulties. It seems that televsion interference, or TVI, is a problem that will not go away. We know some interference is caused by faulty home entertainment equipment and we are encouraging manufacturers to install proper filters.

We also know that a good deal of TVI is caused by CBers operating with illegal power, and we are dedicating a substantial proportion of our enforcement efforts to fighting the use of linear amplifiers at CB concerned about, especially as we approach the peak of the solar cycle, which is due in 1980. FCC rules prohibit you from deliberately "working skip" because skip can cause intereference to other CB stations. But we know that unwanted distant signals will sometimes show up on your radio. While the FCC is styding this problem very carefully, the solution will not be an easy one to find.

For all of its problems, CB radio is an important component of our society's communications system. We firmly believe that CB radio makes valuable public service contributions every day. Highway monitoring patrols, for instance, have assisted many stranded motorists, reported countless accidents and helped home-ward-bound travelers avoid sticky rush-hour traffic tie-ups. It certainly is nice to know that help, if you should need it, is only as far away as your CB microphone.

There is a nationwide effort to coordinate motorist calls on CB radio for emergency assistance. It is known as National Emergency Aid Radio- NEAR- and it is now being tested in several states. The program, which is being developed state by state, is sponsored by the Department of Transportation.

The goal of NEAR is to coordinate emergency aid teams, including CB volunteer monitors, Red Cross staffs, state and local police and medical personnel so that a CB- equipped motorist, anywhere in the United States, could always reach assistance in case of emergency.

Some communities have set up "citizen watch" programs, in which volunteer participants who happen to see a crime in progress can report its details to a volunteer monitor on CB Channel 9. Monitors immediately relay the report to the police.

The volunteers are trained to note license numbers and facial characteristics. They are also reminded regularly to keep away from the scene of the crime. One "citizen watch" program has been established in Washington, D.C., and we

"Skip" is another problem we are believe that it is making a substantial contribution to the community.

The CB Radio Service is your radio service, and CB radio is what you make it. To be an active supporter of a good CB

1. Follow the CB rules. They are intended to make your radio service better. If you follow the operating rules while you are "on the air." your good example will encourage others to operate legally.

2. Support CB operator training programs in your communities. If new CB operators are trained in good operating practices, they will help to improve your radio service when they begin to use their equipment.

3. Let the FCC know what you are thinking. When we propose changes in the CB rules, send us your opinions. If you have ideas about rules which should be changed or added, we like to hear about that, too.

At the FCC we will try to keep the CB rules simple. Whenever we can, we will make the CB rules clearer and more understandable. Indeed, the commission has already published, through the Government Printing Office, a separate booklet covering only the CB licensing and perating rules. This booklet is small and and less expensive than the former edition.

We are also preparing informational and educational materials on many aspects of CB radio, a material which is available for your use in training classes, at club meetings or for your own information. We are working on a "plain English" rewrite of the CB rules, so you will be able to understand all of the CB regulations, including some of the more complex operating rules. Perhaps most importantly, we are listening to you. As indicated, we want to hear your comments, thoughts, suggestions and criticisms. We want to know how we can better serve you and the cause of good radio communications.

If we work together, we can make CB radio even better than it is today. CB radio is for you, - use it, enjoy it, and take care of one conceivable answer to fulfilling increased demands for electrical power. and the concept has been used successfuly in the states of Kansas and Nebraska for several years.

Load management of electrical power is a program which attempts to shave electric usage during the peak demands of any given summer 24-hour period (11 a.m. to 7 p.m.) and shift this usage to other periods

Until now, no electric supplier in Texas has initiated a power scheduling program, but the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative is seriously considering load management.

2 Changes

Wholesale electric power is sold to co-ops based on two charges. One charge is for actual energy (kilowatt hours of kWh) used by the supplier and the other is a demand charge for maximum power (kilowatts or kW) for a short time period during the year (usually 15 minutes to a hour, based on maximum load). The demand charge is designed to cover fixed costs incurred because all fixed costs for the transmission and generation facilities continue all year, even though the full capacity is not required during most months. In the case of Deaf Smith they are charged by the month of peak power. The entire idea of power management is to add load without increasing peak demand.

The basic problem is the seasonal nature of the irrigation load, which produces a high summertime power demand in rural have had to be curtailed, because of the

Load management of electrical power is areas. The electric co-op must build transmission lines and substations which can handle the increasing peak demands. This capacity will, however, be in excess of the power company's needs for the eight to ten months annually when irrigation pumps are not running. Neither electric co-ops nor their wholesale suppliers can economically justify very high capacity systems which operate at only a small fraction of that capacity most of the time. Must Pay Penalty

Some electric co-ops must pay a penalty to the wholesale supplier when the winter load falls below a specified percentage of the summer peak. The greater the difference between summer and winter loads, the greater the penalty. Adding more summer irrigation increases the summer peak and the penalty. Thus electric co-ops are sometimes willing to add new irrigation customers each year only in proportion to their winter load

Manager James Hull and several of his staff members from the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative recently visited power management districts in Nebraska and studied the situation. While they noted several differences in both general farming and irrigation practices, they were impressed with the success of the power management venture.

members of the Deaf Smith Electric Co-op

rapid growth of the co-op. Their power supplier permits them to grow at an annual pace of 6.5 per cent, and their average annual growth rate in the past few years has been about 14 per cent. In 1976, it was 19 per cent. At this time, Hull noted, the co-op turns down at least one customer daily for service, and he feels there would be more service refuals if the word had not spread about the difficulty in acquring service connections. The co-op does accept customers for new service connections, but refuses those which have another power

If a program of power management were to be initiated, Hull said, the co-op can continue to grow and fulfill increased power demands, without increasing its peak loads more than the allowed 6.5 per

Start On Small Basis

If the Board of Directors of the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative votes to begin a load management program, it will more than likely begin on a fairly small basis, with the intention of enlisting established customers as it grows. Those older customers will hopefully be attracted by the cheaper rates for controlled power. New customers may conceivably be required to join the management program in order to obtain service.

Nebraska farmers have been able to save In recent years, service extensions to up to 25 per cent on their power bills by joining a load management program.

The reason for the reduced savings is that Texas already has relatively low power rates, Hull said.

The advantage to the co-op of a power management program is that it could grow by adding more load at off-peak hours.

For the customer, joining the power management program may assure him of a power source, delay certain retail rate increases (which are inevitable with an energy crisis) and very likely result in lower overall costs for power.

Hull and David Pruitt, area development manager for Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, opined that farmers would become accustomed to a power management program, after they learned to reorganize time and change a few old habits.

A Disadvantage

They noted, however, that one disadvantage to the power control program is a potential negative reaction to the whole idea. Other disadvantages are the large initial capital outlay for equipment, and the unlikely but possible reduced crop yield, if stress occurs.

Voluntary power control can be accomplished through an "honor system". where irrigators agree to turn their systems off and on at prescribed hours or on prescribed says.

Hull said the Deaf Smith Co-op was not considering the voluntary system, because when power control was really needed, the "honor system" simply would not be

If the board of directors of the Deaf Smith Co-op initiate a program of load management, Hull said, they will use a non-voluntary methods such as ripple or radio control. Although the program itself will be a non-voluntary type, joining the power management program will be on a voluntary basis.

The ripple control method, which would probably cost more at the point of origin, is a signal injected into power lines, which travels throughout the power syste. Receivers on electrical equipment such as irrigation motors will receive the signals to either turn on or off. Since the signal would be present in all power lines, a receiver at the farmstead would tell the irrigator when his pump has been shut off or when power has been restored.

Radio System Expensive

The radio control system, which would cost less initially, but would probably be more expensive in the long run, involves the use of a radio network with a two-toned signal transmitted to decoders. A special set of tones would turn the irrigation system off and another set would restore power, so the system could be started. Tone combinations can be transmitted by the radio signal transmitter and can be determined by the radio signal receiver unit selected. The receiver units would be more costly for this type control than for the ripple control receiver.

Hull said the co-op did not have cost figures on the two types of equipment, but estimates that a power management program will cost from $300,000 to $500,000, depending upon the number of wells involved in the program. The cost fo for the system could be borne by the co-op. Hull said, because they could sell more kilowatt hours.

A small volunteer program of power management was tried last summer (1976) by Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative and included eight farmers. Each turned off irrigation motors every other day for eight nours, during the peak hours of 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Only one of the eight farmers reported that the curtailment had resulted in stress damage to his crop. A 750 horsepower reduction resulted from the controlled power, with a returned savings

Little Time Lost

A full-scale management program would not involve that much time in power shut-offs. Hull said. No more than two days. weekly, or 60 hours each month would be lost and this would only include two months of the year. The cut-off time would. however, be during the peak hours of 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The efficiency of irrigation wells has declined due to declining water levels. Hull said, and those farmers who used to be content with less-than-efficient irrigation engines will no longer accept power losses through inefficiency. Electric motors are more efficient than natural-gas-powered engines, and with the future natural gas supplies uncertain, more and more farmers will switch to electricity. Electric co-ops will have to grow. Hull believes, to accommodate the demand for electric

In addition to the power management equipment, the Deaf Smith Co-op will, if the Board of Directors decides to initiate the program, install a load monitoring system. This equipment will determine peak power demands accurately, and can determine when power curtailments are needed. With monitoring, power will not be shut of needlessly.

Rationing Stands By

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has his energy team at work on a standby program of gasoline rationing to be used in case of emergency, a coupon system like the one that drew resentment and results during World War II.

Carter wants a rationing blueprint that would cut consumption by about 25 per cent in any new energy crisis, and plans to submit a proposal to Congress soon.

Learn to read your electric meter. It will let you determine how many kilowatt hours you use in a given period of time . . . an hour, a day, a month or a year. That's how electricity is measured - by kilowatt hours used.

Your residential electric meter will have either 5 or 4 dials

Electric meters are easily read from right to left as you look at the meter. If the pointer on a dial is between two numbers, write down the smaller number. When the pointer is directly on a number such as one (1) (see center dial above) then read it as 1 if the pointer on the next dial immediately to the right has passed zero (0). However, read it as zero (0) if the pointer on that dial to the right has not reached zero.

The dials above read (from left to right): 9-3-1-15. If, however, the pointer on the second dial from the right above was between 9 and zero then the center dial would read as a zero.

Now let's read the same meter 24 hours later

This later reading is 9-3-1-3-8. Subtracting the first reading, 93115, from the new reading of 93138 - the answer is 23. Thus you would have used 23 kilowatt hours in the 24 hour period.

Now you can become a METER MAID and watch your meter like a miser if you choose. ## Terrorists Hold 40 Hostages

KUWAIT (AP)- Nine terrorists, armed with grenades and guns and demanding freedom for 300 prisoners in Arab jails, held nearly 40 persons hostage in Kuwait Airlines jet at the airport here Saturday.

Kuwait radio said the hijackers, identified as Palestinians, ordered the plane refueled to fly them to an undisclosed destination. Kuwait officials were negotiating with the hijackers, but army commandos were nearby.

The Boeing 707 was seized Friday night on a flight from Beirut, Lebanon to Kuwait. Egypt's Middle East News Agency said the hijackers demanded the release of 300 persons from prisons in various Arab countries.

Mohammed Abdu of South Yemen, one of six Arab- nation ambassadors to Kuwait summoned to the airport by the hijackers, said the group's demands concerned "internal matters in the Palestinian guerrilla movement" which he did not specify.

Beirut airport sources said 55 persons -42 Arab and three British passengers and a crew of 10 including seven Britons- zation PLO. were aboard the plane when it was commaneered about 40 minutes out of Kuwait.

Grad Jobs Spiral In Areas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The job market for college graduates has suddenly spiraled in certain areas of Texas, the Bureau of Business Research reports, but other areas look bleak. "Corporate recruiters are on campuses in greater numbers than at any time since the precession period," said Diana Knepper of the Center for the Study of Human Resources in a special report. The report said that during the most painful years of the recession the Texas employment situation continued to look good in state-to-state compari-

"But this picture of the Texas employment situation during the recession and the increasingly optimistic job market statistics of today create an allusion that is far brighter than the realities faced by the bulk of college graduates out looking for their first full-time jobs." said the report.

The definite upswing in private sector hiring has been as specific as it has been dramatic. The school of engineering at the University of Texas at Austin reports that more companies came to recruit their graduates during the 1976-77 term that at any time since the hiring slump of the 1970s began. One official estimated more than 90 per cent of the graduates had jobs before leaving the university.

The report said similar statistics came from placement officials at the University of Houston, Texas Tech and Texas A&M. Petroleum engineers are first, chemical engineers next and the demand for mechanical engineers also high.

"Engineers are not the only new graduates being recruited around Texas in 1977 said the bureau report. "The early spring brought hundreds to the state's largest business schools. At UT-Austin college of business administration there were a record 987 recruiters from 398 companies.

The report noted that many liberal arts graduates and undergraduates had been warned by the 1974 recession and changed their libreral arts majors or minors to business in order to improve their employment chances.

The report said that "for many graduate future projections of demand also look bleak. The Southern Regional Education Board projects Texas graduate areas of oversupply in teaching, communications, architecture, law, optometry and dental hygiene through 1980 They also predict a strong demand for degrees in social work, hospital and health care, hospital administration, physiveterinary medicine. report said.

The sources said several passengers boarded at Beirut without a security check after two men posing as secret police caused a commotion at the departure gate.

Kuwait radio said eight hostages were released during the night at the request of Interior and Defense Minister Sheik Saad al-Abdallah as

The radio also said the hijackers rejected the sheik's offer of safe conduct in return for freeing the remaining hostages. It said one of those still held was Kuwait's ambassador to Beirut, Abdulhid al- Buaijan.

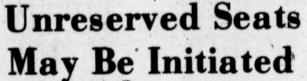

An Information Ministry official said negotiators were trying to arrange a deal under which hostages would be released, the hijackers flown across the Arabian Peninsula to South Yemen and the plane returned to Kuwait.

But, Kuwait officials said PLO chief Yassir Arafat sent several cables to Kuwait from his Beirut headquarters condemning the hijack, and a PLO spokesman said, "We can't say they belong to Fatah or not."

The hijack leader was quoted as telling Kuwait negotiators. "We are not terrorists. We have a cause." He ordered that policemen and reporters be kept away, and threatened to blow up the plane if it were stormed.

opportunities to meet these public figures, especially those who don't usually give interviews," she said. And she wanted to share what they taught her about courage and a very positive attitude towards life, and things of a spiritual nature.

Yes, her name had sweetened the publisher's response to the book. "I've let my name help me in this case, but I've not taken undue advantage of it. You can spend your whole life avoiding things because of your name. But I don't think I'll ever do that, and I believe

I've written a good book.' Yes, she tended to agree with Anne Lindbergh that her husband, Charles, was unjustly reviled during World War II for an anti-war, perhaps anti-Semitic attitude.

"I've read his wartime journals and I don't feel he was a racist," she said.

And, yes, what Mrs Lindbergh said about being a witness was true. "People will always look at me and say, she's Richard Nixon's daughter and depending on how I live my life, I can be a good or bad witness.

Actually, we said, we were thinking more of being a witness for his defense. Wasn't that the statement she was making in the book?

She sat back on the couch impatiently, the muscle over her left eye tensing and said, 'How can you conclude that from one sentence? If that's what comes across in the book, it wasn't a conscious thing, but I don't think you could say the book is a statement on his behalf. It's a statement on my behalf.

Then she became soft and smiling again, saying she wanted to make documentary films some time, that she loved to read everything but westerns and mysteries. How she wished she'd started writing much earlier.

Watching her trying so hard to answer questions, stopping to think, sometimes putting her hand to her forehead, we decided her self-analysis was apt. "I see myself as someone who feels lots of times much older than 28," she'd said.

Mink Makes Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) - Production of mink pelts declined in 1976 but may make a modest comeback this year.

The Agriculture Department says that commercial mink ranches produced 3,021,000 pelts last year. That was down 1 per cent, from 3,067,000 in

However, officials said Thursday surveys indicate that 86,000 female mink have been bred to produce babies - called kits - in 1976, a 6 per cent rise from last year.

Although 1976 pelt output dropped, the skins were worth more to ranchers, the department said. Pelts sold were valued at $87.9 million. compared with $73.9 million in

The average 1976 pelt value was $29.10, against $21.10 in Research Work On Sunflowers 1975, officials said.

Mink ranches also declined in number to 1,015 last year, a drop of 6 per cent from 1,084 in 1975. The three leading states were: Wisconsin, 260 ranches, down 2 per cent; Utah, 168. down 10 per cent; and Minnesota 123, down 16 per

Meat Imports Not Expected To Trigger Strict Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) - Imports of meat subject to a 1964 quota law continue to run below a year ago and so far show no sign of triggering stiff restrictions on the amount that can enter the U.S. market.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, as required by the law, announced Thursday a new estimate of 1977 meat imports. He said that as of July 1 the amount of meat expected to enter the U.S. this calendar year is not enough to trigger quotas.

The imports are being controlled by so-called "voluntary restraint" agreements negotiated with the meat-producing countries. Under these, the countries agree to hold down meat shipments so that strict quotas can be avoided.

Under the 1977 agreements, a total of 1.272 billion pounds of quota-type meat can be shipped to the United States by 15 eligible countries. The meat covered by the law is mostly beef, but includes fresh, chilled or frozen veal, mutton and goat

Australia, the largest supp-lier, shipped 220.7 million pounds during Jenuary-May, a drop of 20 per cent from 276 million pounds in the same five months of last year. New Zealand, with shipments of 102.4 million pounds, was down 10 per cent from 114.7 million a year earlier. Meat imports from Canada. however, rose to 46.6 million pounds, a gain of almost 39 per cent from 33.6 million pounds in the first five months of 1976, according to government inspection reports.

Gamefish Bandits Deprive Fishermen

AUSTIN-Millions of dollars worth of catfish and other native Texas game fish are taken each year by outlaw commercial fishermen using illegal nets and traps, according to Texas Parks enforcement field operations and Wildlife Department law enforcement officials.

"Several hundred thousand pounds of fish are removed yearly from public streams and reservoirs by these outlaws." said Dexter Harris, P&WD law

Park Campsites To Be Reserved

AUSTIN--Reservations will be accepted on weekends for campsites at 17 state parks through September 4.

Texas Parks and Wildlife. Commissioners on June 24 gift of the Lone Star approved a plan for the reservation of 1.624 campsites at 17 state parks scattered about the state:

> Department parks director Paul Schlimper said a $2 non-refundable reservation fee a site may be reserved for the only for use at a specific

Schlimper said the reservation fee was in addition to the usual entrance and facility use

"The reservation system as approved by the Parks and Wildlife Commission." said Schlimper, "is experimental and generally includes thoseparks with heavy demands for campsites on summer weekends. 'Such a reservation system has become necessary because of increased visitation in state parks during the summer. Many visitors to parks drive long distances only to find no campsites available to them when they arrive. A reservation system could prevent them from being turned away and also keep visitation within capacities, wardens had filed 753 violations statewide. Most of the citations were for possessing fish over the allowed limit, or for using illegal methods to take fish.

During fiscal year 1975-76, wardens confiscated more than 47.000 pounds of aquatic products valued in excess of $63,000. The confiscated seafood included illegally taken shrimp as well as native fish species.

During one operation last spring at Lake Livingston. wardens working around the clock for three weeks confiscated more than 36 miles of illegally placed trotlines, 54 fish traps and 2,700 feet of illegal fish nets.

Wardens issued 204 citations during the crackdown, mostly for fishing without a license and for illegal trotlines.

Every time these fish bandits make a haul." said Harris, "they rob every fisherman in the state. These illegal fishermen work as often as they can, even during the winter months when they know wardens are busy with the hunting seasons.

Harris said wholesale removal of game fish can drastically alter overall fish populations in a given reservoir.

Remember these bandits go after game fish, such as catfish. not the so-called trash fish, such as carp and buffalo," he said.

And while there are many such illegal operators, it is important to note that most commercial fishermen are not so unscrupulous. "But these illegals are the ones who give commercial fishermen a bad reputation. I have seen and confiscated fish traps containing more than one ton of catfish. There is no lake that can withstand this kind of fishing pressure and still be expected to provide recreation for the sport fisherman." Harris

A random check of nine Texas lakes showed 19 arrests for illegal harvest of fish, and 16 persons fined a total of $17,300. Additionally, $24,000 fine is pending against three individuals arrested at Lake Tawakoni . for a variety of violations.

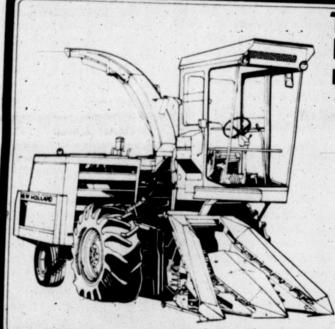

During May, game wardens issued nearly 3,000 fishing citations, for both sport and commercial fish law infractions. By far the most common violation was for not having a fishing license or for using or -possessing illegal trotlines.

"The illegal fisherman should be a concern of all Texans. Only with the public's help can we put them out of business."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House and Senate square off next week over a proposed $200 million computer system that an unpublished General Accounting Office report calls 'risky.

The House wants to give the Veterans Administration the money needed to buy the initial equipment for its "Target" computer system.

But the Senate has voted to hold off, saying the draft GAO report and other investigations suggest the system is bigger than the VA needs and would be too expensive.

Critics charge Target would cost too much, is poorly designed and couldn't protect adequately the personal information it would contain on millions of veterans. The VA says it -needs the system to improve service to veterans.

'Target is a risky venture." said the draft GAO reports on the costs and benefits of the projected system.

A copy of the draft report, requested by Reps. John Moss, D-Calif., and Charles Rose, D-N.C., was obtained by The Associated Press from congressional sources.

The VA has been po Target for more than five years, saying its current system is outmoded and cannot serve adequately the millions of veterans and their dependents who get pensions, disability payments, education benefits and other VA services. But the VA's plans and cost projections for Target have been criticized repeatedly by the GAO and congressional staff investigators, who charge that costs are underestimated and benefit forecasts are overly optimistic.

The VA's latest cost-benefit analysis - the fourth in the project's history - estimated $25.5 million in savings for the 12-year life of the system compared with continuing the present, largely manual system. But the GAO suggested in its draft report that not all the projected savings might occur and another $8.9 million in uncounted costs could hit the project - wiping out all the potential monetary benefits.

There is considerable uncertainty concerning the costs and benefits of the Target system...

Accompany Escapee

WASHINGTON (AP)- A Texas escapee surrendered to the FBI in Washington Friday, accompanied by the 9-year-old daughter who earlier had spent her savings to ask President Carter for help to free her mother.

A spokesman for the FBI said Patricia Gale Boake surrendered about 11 a.m. at FBI headquarters, accompanied by three of her daughters. One of them was Sandy Chandler, who in early June made the fruitless trek to the White House.

Two weeks after Sandy attempted to see the President, Mrs. Boake escaped from the Federal Correctional Institution, a minimum security facility in Fort Worth, Texas.

The FBI spokesman said Mrs. Boake called earlier and told agents to expect her.

Mrs. Boake was to be taken to the District of Columbia jail and handled over to federal marshals, the spokesman said. He said he assumed her daughters would accompany her.

Mrs. Boake last October began serving a three-year sentence for bond-jumping. In June, Sandy withdrew her savings and came to Washington, saying she wanted President Carter's help in getting her mother out of jail.

"But it was all a waste," she said at the time. "The only person I did not see was the President. He was too busy playing tennis."

The National Institute of Drug Abuse, in a report released Wednesday, said cocaine poses moderate health problems. But it also said more serious consequences could arise from the legalization and general distribution of the drug.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, NIDA's director said "...our knowledge of cocaine as a drug. of abuse is still modest."

In its report, NIDA estimated that almost 8 million Americans have experimented with cocaine

DuPont said cocaine is not a safe drug and should not be likened to marijuana.

Cocaine is the principal active ingredient of the coca plant, a shrub found in the Andean Mountains of South America. It was purified and isolated in the 19th century and is used medically as a stimulant and local anesthetic.

Illicit cocaine is sold as a white translucent crystalline power. NIDA said current stret street prices range from $60 to $100 a gram. High price and limited quantities contribute to "status" drug, the agency said.

The NIDA study said cocaine is usually taken by inhaling or 'snorting' it into the nose where it is readily absorbed into the blood from mucous linings. It said cocaine is not physically addicting, but can cause psychological dependence.

While death from cocaine use is rare and unpredictable, the report said, it is a hazard and can result from snorting as well as injection into the blood-

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Police say a suspect in 14 homosexual murders has not been charged because three ces. survivors of his knife attacks, including a "well-known entertainer" and a diplomat, won't "come out of the closet" and testify against him.

For the past year, police have been questioning a young man they call "The Doodler" about the 14 slayings and three assaults that occurred in San Francisco's gay community between January 1974 and September 1975, Inspector Rotea Gilford said.

Interest in the case surfaced again this week after two Redondo Beach, Calif., men were arrested in Riverside for questioning about as many as 28 slayings linked to homosexual encounters.

The suspect here, his name not released, has talked freely with police but has not admitted the slayings, Gilford said.

He said police are "fairly certain" they have the right man, but need the testimony of survivors who may be able to identify "The Doodler." In the attacks, the murderer met other men at a number of after-hours gay clubs and restaurants in San Francisco. He usually sketched the men before having sex with them and then stabbed them. Police believe the man committed the murders after feeling shame over his homosexual experien-

Gilford said the three survivors include the entertainer, the diplomat and a man who left San Francisco and won't answer letters of phone calls at his new address.

"My feeling is they don't want to be exposed," he said.

Harvey Milk, an advocate of homosexual rights, said of the victims who refuse to speak up. "I can understand their position. I respect the pressure society has put on them." .

Milk said many homosexuals may keep their sexual preference a secret because they fear losing their jobs. "They have to stay in the closet," he said.

Another spokesman for the gay community, teacher Hank Wilson, said the case represents society's "double standards" in dealing with crimes involving homosexuals.

"You never hear about the heterosexual murderer who had killed 12 women after raping them," he said.

Whammys A Big Hit

BY JULES LOH AP Special Correspo

NEW YORK (AP)- Hell hath no fury like the sidewalks of New York on a streamy summer day.

East Side, West Side, all around the town, boys and girls cavort under fireplug sprinklers, splash in gutter rivulets, run barefoot from shade to shade on soft asphalt. On 20th Street a block from the East River, they line up at Sam the ice cream man's white pushcart.

Sam Batchoff, a man of good humor, has been selling ice cream at the same corner for 30 years.

"What is Nathan's famous for?" Sam calls out.

"Hot dogs!" chorus the kids gathered around his cart. "What is Sam famous for?"

"Sammy's Whammys!" cry the kids and run away laughing.

A Whammy, for the benefit of all over 12, is a cold confection on a stick and costs 10 pennies, or six, or nine, however many a small fist happens to hold. Sam rarely counts. "What are you going to do," he says, reaching into the cart through a mist of magic vapor, "not give it to them?"

According to one well-placed observer, Joey Varua, a nine-year-old connoisseur of almond bars, "Sam is the popularest guy in the neighborhood." No argument there. Last year on July 2 the neighborhood

DENVER (AP) - It is something like Pogo's plaintive cry from the Okefenokee Swamp: "We have met the enemy, and he is us."

Clinic Tells How Much Exercise

BY DANIEL Q. HANEY Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)- For people who fear their hearts and legs won't stand a round of tennis or a spate of jogging, a group of doctors has started a clinic that decides how much exercise is good for them.

Most of the clients are paunchy, middle-aged office workers, folks who do nothing more strenuous than walk to their garages and slide into their cars. They know they should work out, but don't know how.

The non-profit clinic, called the New England Cardiovascular Health Institute, gives them physicals, watches their heart beats and checks their exercise habits. Then it tells them whether they are fit enough to run the Boston Marathon, pedal a bike or just walk to work.

per cent of the potential exercises were overweight, 7 per cent had high blood pressure and 8 per had irregular heart beats. But only 2 per cent were too sick to walk. The clinic was started because of growing interest in jogging and other forms of exercise. The doctors were afraid people would hurt themselves. Before anybody increased their exercise beyond walking, they should have a medical test," said Dr. J. Alan Herd a professor at Harvard Medical School and a clinic director. The doctors emphasize that good exercise does not have to be grueling work.

'The 50-year-old man who hasn't done anything all his life shouldn't go out and start to run," Herd said. "He'll hurt his legs, if nothing else.'

There are other, more pleasant ways to stay fit, Herd said.

Walking is one of them. "There's too much aspiration to jog," he said. "What pleases most people is the sudden realization that they don't need to run to do themselves some good. They can get exercise while walking the dog or going to work.' Brisk, walks of 20-30 minutes a day, three or four times a week, are all the exercise most people need, Herd said. He defined a brisk walk as "fast enough to make you feel pleasantly tired but not out of breath.

The doctors charge clients about $75. For this, they get a physical and ride an exercise bicycle for 10 minutes while hooked to an electrocardiograph.

A few days later, the patients receive letters telling them. what sort of exercise the can take. They also outline their general health and give other tips for improving it.

WASHINGTON (AP) - What makes for an outstanding high school senior intent on a career in science?

Interviews with the top four winners of the college scholar-ship awards in the 36th annual Science Talent search reveal a number of shared character-

The teen-agers have in com-mon optimism about their ca-reer futures, conviction about the need for a better dialogue between scientists and nonscientists, strong interests stemming from early childhood or elementary school ex-periences, straight "A" averages and a wide range of outdoor and indoor hobbies.

Individual intellectual curiosity, spurred by faculty encouragement, accounted not only for the winning projects but also for the more than 13,000 entries received nationwide, sponsors say. The competition, begun in 1942 to assist students seeking careers in science, is administered by the nonprofit Science Service and is funded by the Westinghouse Electric

"Even before kindergarten, 1 was curious about the nature of things. Rock hunting trips with my father, not a scientist, first stimulated my interest in geology and, later, in other areas of science," he explained.

'Supportive, but not pushy,' is how 17-year-old James Gary Propp, Great Neck, N.Y., described his parents. He won the second prize $8,000 scholarship for his submission relating to advanced number theory, a concept that first evolved when he was on a trip abroad four years ago.

"I just can't remember the time when I wasn't interested in science and mathematics, said Evan Michael Tick, D. Flushing, N.Y. "My parents and teachers always encouraged me."

The recipient of the fourth place $6,000 scholarship, he de-veloped a computer simulator program for modeling rapid transit systems for optim passenger service. It is no being reviewed by New York City's Metropolitan Transit Ab-thority. The idea for the project arose "because I just got fed up with waiting for public transportation."

The winning entries and of reer choices do not necessarily mesh. First-place winner Richard Coin Schirato plans to be a plasma physicist and will attend either Rice University or Cal Tech. Annie Laurie Murray and Evan Michael Tick will study mathematics and electrical engineering at M.I.E. James Gary Propp will pursue dual careers in writing and mathematics at Harvard Col-

Guitars Heard Throughout Land

CHICAGO (AP) — Today's'
Pied Piper doesn't always pipe
— he often strums, and not only children but people of all ages seem to be following him in making music on the guitar, statistics on that instrument indicate.

Of the estimated 39 million amateur musicians in the United States, nearly 11 million are guitarists, according to the Guitar and Accessory Manufacturers' Association here.

"The guitar used to be a youth culture symbol, but now everybody is interested," says Jim Kahlert, who teaches group guitar in an adult learning center in Los Angeles, where he has students ranging in age from 19 to 50. "And the great thing about it is that you can have fun playing even if you never become proficient."

Though the main reasons for the guitar's popularity are musical versatility and ease of playing, the wide accessibility of inexpensive group guitar lessons throughout the country has played a big part in the instrument's growth, the guitar group notes.

Nearly every school or organization that offers continuing education courses for adults offers guitar. Group lessons are offered by music schools, universities, high schools, retail music stores, churches, Ys, park and recreation departments, and county or community adult education programs.

Groups generally meet weekly for one-or two-hour sessions, for a period of six to ten weeks.
The cost averages about $2 per lesson. Guitar rental is usually $10 per month, with the fee applied to the purchase price of the instrument.

"Learning to play the guitar in a group makes a lot of sense," said Helen Hoffman, who has taught the instrument at the Hamilton, Ohio, YWCA for nine years. "It's a social instrument that responds well to a social situation. Also, most of us are used to learning as part of a group, and find comfort in having people around who are making the same mistakes we

In Chicago and Boston, group guitar classes are offered free through the city park and recreation departments.

"What's unusual about the Chicago program is that the teachers, who are mostly student volunteers, are required to teach theory," said park district music supervisor Dean Goldberg. "The classes are meant to be fun, but also to have some sound educational content. We offer beginning, intermediate to and advanced classes to groups from six to 40 in size."

The Boston park and recreation department has guitars on hand for people who don't have their own instruments. That city's program, now in its second year, currently has 70 people in youth, adult and senior citizen classes.

"Most of my adult students are people who never had a chance to study music while they were young," said teacher Dimitri Haitas. "They're enthusiastic and really enjoy the classes. The stress is on the recreational aspects of guitar playing."

At the famous Old Town School of Folk Music in Chicago, 1,000 adults gather each week for group lessons in guitar and banjo.

tar and banjo.
"Many of the school's instructors like to teach only the introductory guitar classes because the students' enthusiasm is so great that it becomes infectious," said teacher Ticia Perenchio.

"They become excited when they learn to play songs in the first lesson, and begin to see what the potentialities of the instrument are. If you take one lesson, we've got you!"

What's the Beef?
Less than half a steer on the hoof ends up as "take home" beef. A 1,000-pound animal dresses out to a 600-pound carcass, which trims down to 162 pounds of fat, bone and waste, leaving 438 pounds of salable who buys bits and pieces of America's past, finds it serves him well.

The self-confessed "pack rat" lives in a world of quick bidding on old baseball cards, vintage Flash Gordon comic books, used beer cans, medallions and just about anything else that appeals to nostalgia lovers. The gain is made when he either adds a prized item to his collection or makes a sale to "the right collector."

Supowit travels with a pair of dealers in gold and silver. They buy the coins, rings, watches and old tooth fillings, that persons want to liquidate, and Supowit buys ... well, he buys whatever comes through the door and strikes his fancy.

On a recent buying trip, his two companions were inspecting a set of old coins when a boy toted a cardboard box of about 35 beer cans into their motel room. Supowit looked the cans over quickly, then asked the boy, "What do you want for them?"

want for them?"
"I don't know," the boy said hesitantly.

"They're opened from the top," Supowit said, lecturing him a bit. "You see, when you collect, you open them from the bottom. Everything here is pretty new. I'll give you $10."

With wide eyes the boy accepted the $10 bill and hurried away. Later, Supowit checked several of the older cans in a catalog listing values of beer cans and found several were worth a few dollars apiece.

"I actually gave him $10 for three or four of them — the rest of them are common," he said. "I'll probably give most of them away to kids in Detroit when I get home.

"But beer can collecting is really catching on," he added.

here in America."

The prices he pays may seem outlandish to the uninitiated. For example. Supowit recently laid down $200 for a baseball card collection, $50 for Flash Gordon Comic No. 10 and $100 for a McKinley-Taft campaign button. A few years ago, he paid $750 for a pixel was a second to the pays of the pays ton. A few years ago, he paid $750 for a single baseball card. But that last item is the prize of Supowit's personal collection. It's a 1910 Honus Wagner — "the rarest baseball card in the world." Currently, the card is valued at $2,000, he says.

It seems the old-time Pittsburgh Pirate star was anti-tobacco, so the cigarette company that had been putting cards in their packs cut off the supply of the Wagner cards. Only 13 are known to exist, according to Supposit exist, according to Supowit.

Supowit doesn't limit his collecting to old relics, however. He's just as interested in merchandise being produced today that could become rare.

"Like this," he said, brandishing a packet of catsup to prove his point. "Fifty years from now, somebody will give you $10 for this. Or sugar-free pop— if they ban that and somebody saves a case of it, they'll make money on it."

Part of the appeal of the memorabilia and trivia of days gone by comes from the fast-paced uncertainty of modern life, Supowit feels

"We're living in an age of future shock," he said. "Everybody wants a piece of the past."

He got into the field after working as a stockbroker for 20 years because he found he could support himself, enlarge his own collection and have fun at the same time. Fringe benefits have included meeting interesting persons — old baseball players, other collectors and famous persons such as Joe DiMaggio and

Gloria Swanson.

There is one little problem, however. Supowit says his home isn't quite large enough to accomodate his "pack rat" lifestyle.

"I've gotta open a museum one of these days — I'm just running out of room." he said. "My main goal is to have a really big place, because I've got so much stuff."

GOING INTO YOUR DANCE means different things in different places and cultures. In the African republic of Dahomey, children dance the frantic "Aguela ye ye," left, to celebrate traditional holidays. In Spain it's the both stately and fiery flamenco. The variations in youthful dance styles around the world are featured on "Big Blue Marble," the award-winning public service children's TV series.

Gill's Legend Of Lindbergh Is A Well-Rounded Account

LINDBERGH ALONE. By Brendan Gill. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 216 Pages. $11 95. "The day after which nothing would ever be the same for him was Friday, May 20, 1927. That morning, alone in a little plane powered by a single engine, Charles A. Lindbergh took off from a muddy runway on the outskirts of New York. His destination was Paris."

That Lindbergh made it, became the first person in history to fly nonstop from New York to Paris, is a matter of historical record. Even now, 50 years after that historic flight and in a time when the flight casually is duplicated many times daily. Lindbergh remains a hero.

In this complex, multilayered book, New Yorker writer Brendan Gill probes deeply into the Lindbergh legend and comes up with a well-rounded, satisfying narrative of just who Lindbergh was and what made him run.

An intensely private person, Lindbergh, who once moved his family overseas in order to avoid invasions of that muchsought-after privacy by both the press and the public, left ample written material behind and Gill has analyzed it, boiled it down and come up with this smooth, well-written personality study.

The son of not happily married parents, Lindbergh ran an aimless course as a youth, doing poorly in school and failing in many of the projects he set out upon. But then he was taken by the flying fever. Flying became his obsession and his delight and his whole life changed The former fadure became the great success.

DEAR POLLY - With a 3-year-old and a 3-month-old, I do have a lot of wash. Instead of pouring out liquid detergents or those expensive sprays for laundry stains, I rinse out an empty shoe polish bottle with an applicator that has a sponge tip. I fill the clean bottle with detergent and rub it on the bad stains. This saves time and detergent. - SUE.

DEAR POLLY - When cleaning wood and there are tight places you cannot get to, spray a little of the furniture cleaner on a cotton swab and it will get the tight spots. -

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY - Here is an improved way to make candy cane cookies. The recipe we have reads Place strips side by side, press gently together and twist like a rope." We have found it easier to place the strips close together and to roll them together. The cookies tend to roll easier, look smoother and do not fall apart so easily. Also, one may add some peppermint extract instead of crushed peppermint candy to add more flavor and make them look more like candy canes. - K.L.

DEAR POLLY - A handy-dandy substitute for a yardstick, ruler or tape is a dollar bill, as it is slightly over six inches long. This works well for approximate measurements. — JANET.

DEAR POLLY - After using the outdoor grill, remove the rack, turn it upside down in the grass and leave all night. The dew will loosen the burned-on residue and it is easily washed off in the morning. -RUTH S.

DEAR POLLY - To keep curtains from wrinkling between ironing and hanging, I now open my shower curtain and clip two clip-type clothespins to the curtain. As each piece is ironed I attach it to a clothespin at each end. All the curtains for a room can be ironed without stopping to hang them individually. Even when ironing just one pair, this is helpful for holding one side while you iron the other.

DEAR POLLY - To extend the life of a coat lining along the sleeve edge, close your hand as you put on the coat, as fingernails are very hard on the lining. - DOROTHY.

DEAR POLLY - When ready to cook canned green beans I alway s wash them before cooking so as to remove that "can" taste. ERNESTINE.

DEAR POLLY - When you find lint or fuzz on blouses use an electric razor brush to remove the lint. Works perfectly. - MRS. V.J.
