

Poor Districts Get Boost With Proposal

AUSTIN (AP)—The closely divided House Public Education Committee gets a look today at a new school finance plan's impact on local districts.

Computer printouts were expected on a proposal by Rep. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, to give poor districts a better break in setting local costs of the Foundation School Program.

The gut issue of the one-day-old special legislative session is how much of the $959.8 million in available money should go toward reducing local fund assignments LFA and how much toward equalizing rich and poor districts.

Jackson would preserve House Speaker Bill Clayton's plan to let districts choose whether their LFAs would be based on market value of taxable property or on generally lower agricultural productivity figures.

But in setting the LFA, he would apply a 17-cent per $100 figure to market value in districts with less than $60,000 in taxable property per child, 18 cents for those with $60,000 to $100,000, and 19 cents for those with $100,000-plus.

If a district chose to use "lag values," Jackson would use tax rates of 19 cents if it had less than $60,000 per child in taxable property, 20 cents if in the $60,000-$100,000 range, and 21 cents if it had $100,000 or more.

"I'm trying to make the reduction in local fund assignment less disqualiing," Jackson said.

Any cut in local fund assignments widens the disparity between rich and poor districts since a rich district receives a bigger reduction.

The Senate, meanwhile, sat as a committee of the whole Monday to analyze a $932.7 million two-year school money bill proposed by Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas.

Mauzy predicted a vote by the full Senate Wednesday. Clayton said the House probably would vote on its version late Wednesday or some time Thursday.

The House Public Education Committee has two bills before it, and appears closely divided in its preferences. Jackson said he would offer his proposal as an amendment, not a separate bill.

Clayton's HB1 would give local districts a $354.8 million break over the next two years, while increasing equalization money by $116.2 million. Its total price tag, counting teacher pay raises, would be $921.6 million.

HB3, sponsored by Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, and a group of urban liberals, would cut LFAs by only $169 million but boost equalization money by $318 million. Total cost would be $960.7 million.

Mauzy's SB1 reduces local foundation program costs by $233 million and provides $210 million in added equalization aid from the state.

Singing Under The Stars

A large crowd spent the evening outdoors Monday as the musical "Texas...Cradle of Giants," a tribute to country music in Texas, was staged in the Hereford Whiteface stadium by city merchants. The free program highlighted Texas music past and present. South Plains College [Levelland] singers and dancers were the show's stars. Hereford businesses sponsored the local premier as part of their "Customer Appreciation Week." [Photo by Diane Banner]

TEXAS LAWMAKERS are in special session to argue that controversial problem of school financing, and all indications seem to point against a quick decision. The people who could not agree during the regular session will probably argue the same points this week.

Part of the problem seems to be in how big city schools want the bill worded as compared to the thinking of rural schools.

The big problem with the school finance bill, of course, is that while everybody agrees there has to be one, too many want a bill that has the other fellow paying the increase in taxes.

Russian Skyjackers Surrender

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—Two Soviet skyjackers surrendered to Finnish authorities early today, ending the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia in 6 1/2 weeks. Finnish officials said the pair would be turned over to the Soviets as soon as possible.

Authorities identified them as Alexander Zabirjak, 19, and Gennady Seluzhko, 22. They commandeered a twin-jet Aeroflot Tupolev 134 Sunday night on a flight between Petrozavodsk and Leningrad.

Interior Minister Eino Uusitalo told an airport news conference Finland had received an extradition request from the Soviet government.

Finnish officials said the men would be returned to the Soviet Union in accordance with a 1974 antihijacking treaty between the two countries. The Soviet Union is the only nation having such a treaty with Finland.

In the Soviet Union they face prison terms of 3 to 15 years and could have been executed if the hijacking had caused any deaths.

An official Finnish communique said the first hijacker gave himself up three hours after the last three hostages managed to escape from the plane early today. He was followed within a half hour by the other hijacker, it said.

Officials said the hijackers had been armed with one hand grenade that, according to preliminary investigation, contained no explosives. During negotiations the two had claimed to be armed with several hand grenades, but communique said.

There was no word on other possible weapons. Earlier an airport spokesman said no weapons were carried by the hijackers when they walked out of the plane and surrendered about 36 hours after seizing the jetliner.

The aim of the government was to avoid bloodshed, Uusitalo said. He said the government withheld information during the negotiations, because "we chose to try a peaceful solution, and we wanted to keep the situation under strict control."

First reports said there had been 79 persons aboard the plane, but later information indicated there were 76.

The hijackers ordered the pilot to fly to Stockholm where the Swedish government gave refuge to another Soviet hijacker on May 26. But a Finnish official said the pilot apparently bluffed them and landed instead at the Finnish capital. The hijackers threatened to blow up the plane if it were not refueled and flown on to Stockholm. But they let four deadlines pass without carrying out the threat.

Sweden announced it would not give "plane landing permission. A Swedish official said his government feared "all dams would burst" if it accepted two more hijackers. A Swedish air force spokesman added "If it comes our way we just can't shoot it down."

The plane was towed to a remote corner of the Helsinki airport and surrounded by heavily armed troops.

Shortly afterward, the seven crew members bolted the cockpit door and escaped through an emergency exit.

The hijackers carried on their negotiations with Finnish officials through an open window. The Finns refused to discuss any concessions until all women and children were freed. Early Monday, 20 women and children were let go, and a few hours later the remaining 20 women were let go, officials said.

The Finnish government then offered to two young men a small twin-engine Cessna to fly to another country, but they refused it.

County To Halt Trash Dumping

In a relatively routine meeting that lasted less than two hours Monday morning, Deal Smith County Commissioners accepted the low bid for a moving unit in Precinct 3, approved a campaign to halt the dumping of trash and dead animals in county barrow ditches, heard a treasurer's report that the treasury sharing book for the past quarter amounted to $89,982, and approved monthly bills.

Alfred Smith, Precinct 1 commissioner, initiated action on the litter problem along county roads, reporting that the dumping of trash and dead animals in barrow ditches had become a real problem in his precinct. He suggested a warning to citizens through the news media, followed by prosecution of violators to solve the problem.

County Judge Sam Morgan pointed out that a state law prohibits such dumping of litter, and the commissioners court passed an order some years ago in connection with the law. Violators can be fined up to $200 for damaging or obstructing a county road, or for dumping trash or litter within 300 feet of a county road.

Commissioners approved the placing of public notices in the newspaper and on the radio in an attempt to stop the practice. Smith was also checking into the possibility of placing signs at certain points to indicate that it is a violation to dump trash or junk in a ditch. He indicated he would file criminal complaints if the practice continued.

Two men, Johnny Jesko and Tom Cunningham appeared at the regular meeting to discuss the bindweed problem in the county. They asked commissioners to consider taking some action to get a bindweed control program started under an agricultural agency.

After a short discussion, commissioners agreed to adopt a resolution asking state legislators and appropriate officials to consider establishing such a program.

Bids were opened on purchasing a mower for Precinct 3. Only two bids were received and the court voted to accept the low bid of $4,900 from White Implement for a John Deere rotary cutter. The other bid was from David Implement for a Bush Hog cutter in the amount of $5,000.

The county had asked for bids on a small house and garage which are to be moved from behind the Black house on W. 3rd St. The old home is being prepared as an adjunct to the county museum. No bids were received on the property and commissioners decided to extend the invitation for bids to the next regular meeting.

An insurance company representative appeared at the session to request permission to contact county employees about a cancer insurance plan. Since the plan is optional with county employees and paid by them, commissioners agreed to let the representative talk to

Sears Enjoys Pastimes, But Banking No. 1

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Jim Sears is a deadly serious, calculating individual, the type of person you would expect to be running a bank.

He isn't the type of person you'd expect to be flying down a Colorado mountainside on a pair of skis or enjoying the sights provided by an airplane jaunt across the country.

Both skiing and flying alleviate some of the pressure associated with Sears' presidency of the First National Bank in Hereford.

"I enjoy skiing and I couldn't tell you exactly why," Sears said from his large office in Hereford's largest bank. "I guess getting outside is one reason. In this job you don't do that too often."

Sears skis to get away for awhile. He flies because it beats driving.

"It's a good way to travel in this part of the country. In a plane, you can see so much more and to keep your mind occupied you've got one more dimension."

Sears, 49 and single, owns a Cessna 210. He has flown for 20 years and has been a licensed pilot for the last 15.

Sears, though his hobbies are important to him, seems more inclined to want to stay occupied with figures, the money kind and banking. His mind seems to be on shop though his conversation is on snow.

Like intelligible figures that you can do something with. Numbers for the sake of numbers don't do much," Sears said of his first love.

"Being president of this bank is as interesting a job as I know because you're dealing with so many different kinds of people with so many different requirements or needs."

Some of the bank's best customers are ranchers and farmers. Sears finds he is able to relate to their needs since he has their same background.

"I was a rancher in Montana. My dad owned interest in a ranch up there and I went up to run it. It helps to talk the same language as the person you're lending money to."

"But a banker doesn't need to be experienced in the businesses of all the people he's dealing with. You've got to have the interest of all your customer's hearts."

Sears, born in Monahans in 1938, came to Hereford in 1939. His father, the late Henry Sears, was in the grain business for many years in Hereford, then assumed the presidency of the First National Bank.

Henry Sears was president from 1959-70. The younger Sears, a graduate of Hereford High School in 1956 and the University of Texas in 1962, worked in the credit department of the bank in 1968 and handled some cattle inspections.

He became a loan officer, then president in 1970.

Amendment Slated For Veto Of Waste

DENVER (AP) Residents of states designated as potential nuclear waste disposal sites should have the right to veto any such plans, Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., says.

Haskell said Monday that he and Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., will offer an amendment in the Senate to let state legislatures, by resolution or a vote of the people, determine whether they want radioactive waste dumped in their state.

The amendment will be offered to this year's authorization bill for the energy Research and Development Administration ERDA, Haskell said in a statement from his Washington office.

If ERDA's plans are as safe as they claim, then there should be no problem convincing a legislature or the voters, Haskell said.

Yarbrough Votes To Remove Bates

AUSTIN (AP) The case presented in the removal of Houston Dist. Judge Garth Bates from office featured taped conversations $59,000 in pay-off money, and Bates apparently unwittingly helping to trigger his own downfall.

Bates' removal was effective Monday and the Texas Supreme Court said it would not grant a rehearing on its review.

One of the nine justices voting to remove Bates was Don Yarbrough, who also faces possible removal.

The supreme court unanimously accepted the recommendation of the state Judicial Qualifications Commission to remove Bates, noting that he had been charged with bribery.

Judge Rips Lawyers For Excess Papers

HOUSTON (AP) The judge who will hear disbarment proceedings against Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough has criticized State Bar of Texas prosecutors for what he calls "flooding the court with papers and making the case almost impossible to try."

Judge Bert Tanks, a retired court of civil appeals judge, made his comments Monday after the state bar filed 11 more charges against Yarbrough facing 100 disbarment counts.

If you need 80 pages the length of the disbarment suit to cover improper conduct that causes one to wonder if there is improper conduct, Tanks told the prosecutors. You may not mean to harass the defendant, but that is the end result.

Protestors Arrested For Not Abandoning

KENT, Ohio (AP) Police carrying nightsticks but no firearms moved through the Kent State University campus today, arresting protesters defying a court order to abandon a tent city on the site where four students were killed seven years ago.

The initial arrests were peaceful. The demonstrators have been protesting the pending construction of a $6 million annex to a gymnasium near the site of the deaths and the wounding of nine others by National Guard troops during an antiwar protest on May 4, 1970.

Members of the families of two of the dead and wounded students were among the first to be arrested.

The arrests by campus police and sheriff deputies began after the 8 a.m. deadline set by a county judge.

Police Report

Hereford police are checking into the theft of 20 pounds of cooked ham, a shoulder of barbecue beef and two 10-pound boxes of polish sausage reportedly stolen from Mama's Pit Barbecue, 226 North 25 Mile Ave., around 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

The total value of the missing meat was $175. Entry was gained by prying open the back door, police said.

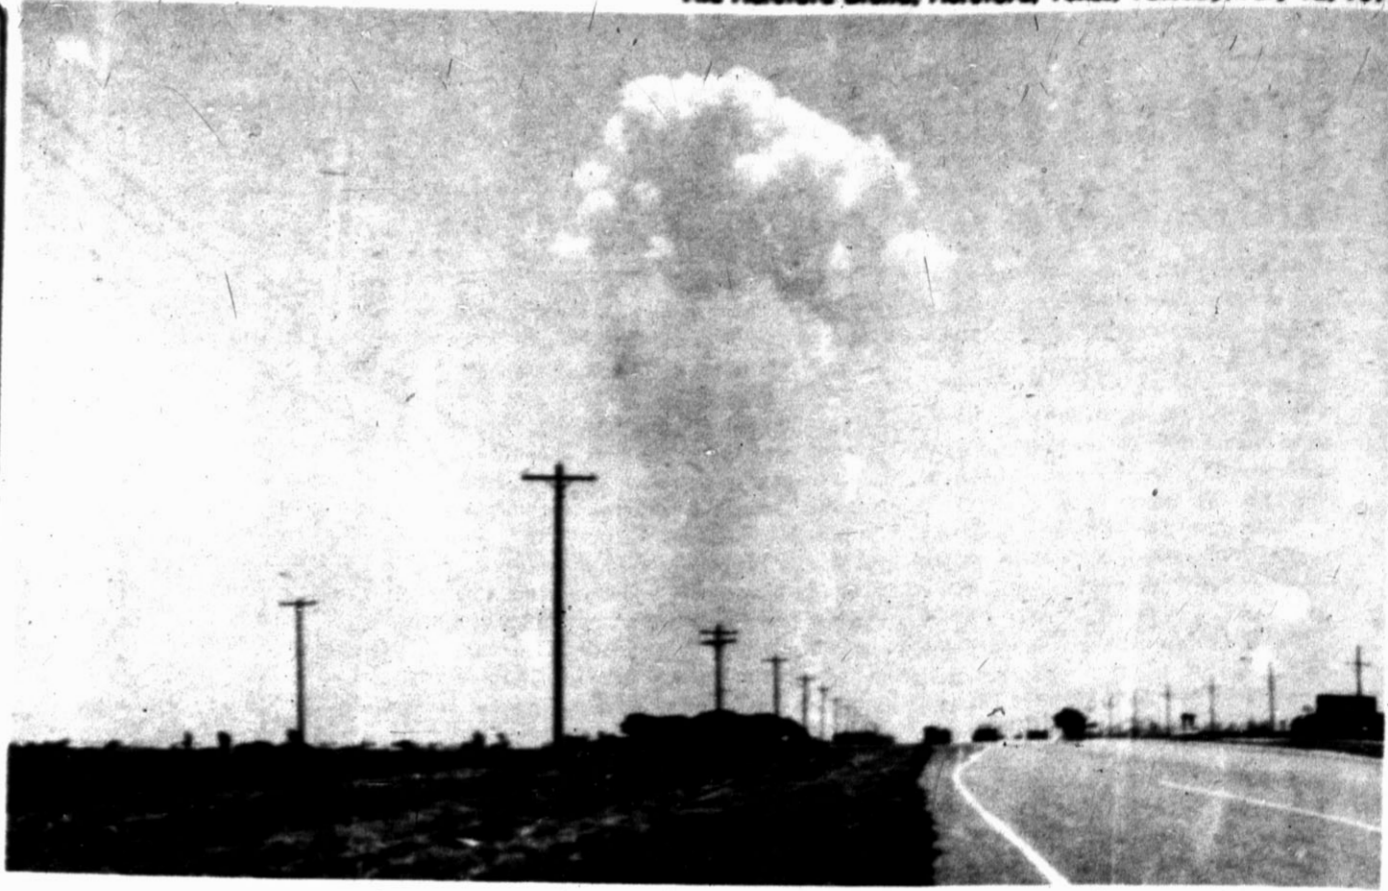

Mrs. Elmer Patterson, 610 E. 5th, reported that a prowler shined a flashlight through a window in her house at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Police also are investigating the theft of five purses Thursday and Friday at the city swimming pool.

The purses taken in the daylight hours on both days, were found outside the pool in Damon Park. Three of the purses were stolen Friday.

Police investigated a minor traffic accident Saturday night in the parking lot of Bowling's Bowl.

A child was struck by a car at 6:25 p.m. Monday at 129 Beach. The child was released from Deaf Smith General Hospital after receiving treatment for bruises and scrapes and burns from the exhaust manifold of the car.

Referendum Enters Final Voting Week

The final week of voting is underway in the national beef referendum as voters who registered during June return to cast ballots at their county ASCS offices.

Some 42,000 cattlemen registered for the referendum election in Texas while 295,000 producers registered across the nation.

In Deaf Smith County, 290 cattle producers registered at the local ASCS office according to John Faston, county executive director.

Voting in the referendum is scheduled to end Friday, at 5 p.m.

If the referendum is passed, cattlemen would assess themselves three tenths of one percent (30 cents per $100 value) for each animal they sell. The money would be passed through at the point of each sale but would be remitted only at the time the animal is slaughtered.

The referendum must be approved by two-thirds of the cattlemen voting, and if a cattlemen registered by fails to vote, this is counted as a negative vote. At least 50 percent of those who registered must vote in order for the referendum to be valid.

Some $30-$40 million could be raised if the referendum is approved. This amount would be used annually for beef research, education, promotion and foreign market development.

Funds would be sent to a national beef board, administered by 66 cattlemen from the major cattle producing states.

Polls are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at ASCS offices during the election.

Chicago 'Killer For Hire'

Chicago is not shockproof. Chicago is still in shock-- from the news that a reputed syndicate gunman-- for all his police records-- and despite witnesses to the murder who identified him as the killer-- goes free.

Trying to shake the shock, Chicagoans are cynically suggesting Harry Aleman advertise in the Yellow Pages-- Killer for hire!

Harry Aleman was accused of being a hired gun for the Chicago underworld-- accused of being a "hit man" whose most recent murder was of a union leader.

It was that murder for which he was brought to trial.

A witness to the killing dared to testify.

Another witness said that she was offered a $10,000 bribe by Aleman if she would lie, and that if she refused, her brother would "get it."

The bribe and the threat were reported to investigators-- but Chicago Judge Frank Wilson refused to allow the woman to testify on those subjects.

Let me explain that Aleman's defense lawyers sought and got a trial by this one judge-- rather than by a jury.

New stories reported that Judge Wilson shortly before this trial, received in the mail a doctored photograph showing members of his own family, their bodies mutilated. Wilson denies it.

State's Attorney Bernard Carey thought he had an airtight case against Aleman, said in his years as a lawman he'd never seen a stronger case.

Yet Aleman is now free and the number-one witness to the killing-- who identified Aleman as the killer-- who spent months in the protective custody of police--now says he's wanting to be killed.

Bobby Lowe says, "I sacrificed my life for nothing."

Chicago homicide commander, Joe Leonard, says, "Without people like Bobby Lowe there is no way we in law enforcement can break up that animalistic organization called the 'crime syndicate.'"

The other witness against Aleman-- a hired killer presently in prison who testified that he drove the getaway car from which he says Aleman shotgunned that union official to death-- That witness cannot expect to survive his prison term.

Aleman-- once described as the most-feared assassin in the underworld-- is being investigated in connection with several other killings, but it is inconceivable that witnesses will witness again.

But any professional journalist on the Chicago police beat has the underworld "who's who" in his head.

After most any Cicero sendoff, the MO points to somebody we know. But proving these things and making charges stick require courageous witnesses, dedicated and capable prosecutors and unimpeachable, incorruptible judges.

This was the kind of case the state waits years for-- the one time when the mouse is complete-- when witnesses are willing--

Chicago will wait a long time for another--

Arabs Hurting For Gas

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) When an Arab sheik puts into a gasoline station in the Persian Gulf emirate of Dubai, he is likely to be driving a big gas guzzler and be proud of it.

But he also may have to wait in line for an hour either because of a shortage of gasoline or station attendants. He may also have to pump his own gas by hand because of frequent blackouts pay U.S. prices to fill up his tank and buy imported motor oil.

Residents of the Persian Gulf states, which produce nearly one-third of the world's petroleum, are largely indifferent to energy conservation. But some Persian Gulf consumers have more trouble getting their fuel than many consumers in the Western countries that don't have plentiful oil.

The reason for this anomaly is that the Gulf states export more than 95 per cent of their petroleum, only recently finding out how much they need of it themselves.

With thousands of big foreign cars being imported every year and booming economic development putting a strain on power sources, fuel shortages and blackouts are common in the Gulf.

But few seem seriously bothered. "Nobody worries about energy in the Gulf," says a resident of Dubai. "Most local Arabs have two large American cars that use a gallon every 12 miles."

Despite daily power blackouts from overloaded electric stations, many foreign workers get their electricity bills paid by their companies and think nothing of leaving on a month-long vacation without switching off their air conditioners.

In most Arab oil-producing countries, the price of domestic gasoline and oil is subsidized and therefore cheap. A gallon of gasoline in Saudi Arabia costs 13 cents, in Kuwait 15 cents and the emirate of Qatar 31 cents, while Americans pay an average price of 65 cents a gallon and Britons $1.46.

But in poorer oil-producing states, such as the northern emirates on the Persian Gulf, gas prices are not subsidized, and it costs an average of 66 cents a gallon.

Dubai, which produces more than 100 million barrels of crude oil each year, has to import nearly two million barrels of refined oil to meet its local needs.

Qatar imports its refined oil and gasoline from European and other foreign refineries.

Because of the increasing cost of supporting oil prices, Qatar is having second thoughts about its subsidy program.

But most Middle East oil-producing countries consider subsidy their duty, and also do not tax motor fuel.

"Oil is a social service in the Gulf countries," said one foreign oil company executive. "Economies don't come into it. Their philosophy is, How can we charge for it when it's coming out of the ground?"

Periodic shortages of gasoline and motor oil in the Gulf come from distribution problems and are neither permanent nor serious. The big energy crisis in the Arab countries comes from a lack of power facilities.

Blackouts are particularly common in the Gulf during the summer when air conditioners are going constantly, more than doubling the power load in homes and offices.

The small emirate of Sharjah, where the temperature tops 100 in the shade and the humidity is more than 90 per cent, is now experiencing eight-hour-long power cuts. This means one district of Sharjah doesn't have any electricity one day, and another area suffers the next day.

Even Iran, blessed with water to run hydroelectric power stations, has launched a blanket public campaign to save energy.

Iranian state television and radio regularly urges citizens not to run their appliances during the peak load hours. Factories have eliminated one of three shifts, shops close early and the clocks have been turned back an hour to reduce daytime.

The wealthy oil producing states also subsidize the price of electricity, but because of the heavy load on power facilities and the failure of public appeals to cut waste, some governments are raising electricity prices.

Dubai has announced it is dropping its subsidy for electricity, which costs the state $25 million last year and would go up to $35 million this year. The new measure means that the average family's electricity bill jumps from $50 a month to $200.

Almost all electric power in the Gulf states is not just mindless extravagance by wealthy sheiks with money to throw around. Residents in the emirates don't like to shut off their air conditioners because the humidity is so thick it can produce a heavy growth of mildew within days without air conditioning.

And the taste of big gas-thirsty cars is not just a matter of prestige but comfort. The big cars have the best air conditioners, and Arabs like to take their entire family along with them on outings.

Newark Hurting Since Riot

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) Ten years ago today, rioting broke out here that left 26 persons dead, $15 million in damaged property and a lasting impression that Newark symbolized everything wrong with urban America.

Since those five days in 1967, changes have been made in the police department and city government. The city has a black mayor, and blacks are better represented in other areas of government.

But the lives of many of those who rioted are not much different.

The city's population has shrunk from 400,000 to 339,000, mostly because whites fled to nearby northern New Jersey suburbs. The proportion of blacks in the general population has risen from about 50 per cent to 64 per cent.

Unemployment is a staggering 17 per cent. Rates of murder, infant mortality, venereal disease and illiteracy are among the highest in the nation.

In 1967 the world's attention focused on this city, as 7,000 state policemen and National Guard troops roamed the streets looking for looters. When it was over, 23 persons had been shot to death and three others had died in riot-related accidents.

Many of the businesses owned by whites in the predominantly black Central Ward were destroyed by looters. Many of the homes were pock-marked with bullets from the automatic weapons of the troops.

Before the riot, the city had rejected community pleas for a civilian review board to investigate several reports of police brutality that summer.

The riots broke out after cab driver John Smith was charged with interfering with policemen who had stopped him for a traffic violation. When Smith was seen being dragged into the Fourth Precinct station, a crowd began throwing rocks, bottles and Molotov cocktails.

More than 250 people were arrested the first day.

On July 13, the rioting became deadly. Fires and looting erupted and the police and National Guard reacted with bullets.

keeps watch over public taxation and spending.

It shows that in the past fiscal year the cost of the assistance exceeded the amount of aid received by some communities. In other communities, it worked out to their advantage. They got back more than they put in.

Of the $5.74 billion in grants and revenue sharing funds that were distributed in the year, $2,602,000,000 went to the State of Texas and its localities, on the basis of figures from the Treasury Department.

A breakdown of the statewide total shows an estimated $4,169,000 earmarked for Deaf Smith County.

The money was designated for such public needs as road building, welfare, urban renewal, job training, health, child care, education and the like.

The funds to pay for these benefits come out of Federal income and excise taxes that are allocated for such purposes.

Deaf Smith County's contribution in the past year came to approximately $5,045,000, it is estimated.

For the entire state, it amounted to $3,148,000,000, exclusive of matching funds.

Thus, $1.00 of Federal aid went to the state and its subdivisions for every $1.21 of cost.

Of the 50 states, 21 got back less than they contributed and 28 got more. One state, Arizona, broke even. Connecticut came out worst in that exchange and Mississippi best.

There is no attempt to keep grants and costs in balance, notes the Tax Foundation. The allotments are determined by local needs and requirements and not on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

Coalition Defuses 2nd 'War Between The States'

By NOEL YANCEY

Associated Press Writer

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP)—A few months ago, an economic "War Between the States" threatened. Southern governors called on a relatively new agency called the Southern Growth Policies Board to help defuse the situation.

The conflict loomed when congressmen, governors and news media in the northeast, concerned over economic decline in their areas, contended that the South was paying less into the federal treasury than other regions while receiving much more in federal benefits.

Some congressmen formed a coalition to protest what they identified as a "hemorrhage of funds from the Northeast and Midwest" to the South.

The Southern Growth Policies Board SGPB, a research agency funded by member states, helped "lay that myth to rest," said SGPB Executive Director Blaine Liner, who mounted a speaking tour and met with the Northeastern Economic Council and several congressional staffs.

"I see signs that we have been effective," he told The Associated Press. "The talk hasn't died down, but I think we have forced some people to take another look at available information, and I think a lot of congressional delegations from the Northeast have modified their early judgement that the South was benefiting at the expense of the Northeast."

Liner, 39, a soft-spoken regional planner, said that in only one category, defense spending, does the South receive more federal funds proportionately than the northeastern and midwestern states, and he attributes that to the climate sought for military bases.

"Outside of defense expenditures you find the southerners are contributing at least a fair share of tax dollars for what they get back," Liner said.

"As a nation we tried to do certain things because of the incidence of poverty and it's where the poor lived that caused those kinds of distributions," he said of other federal spending.

Liner's agency, which was created by the Southern Governors Conference in 1971, does more than rush to the defense of the south.

"The board helps member states anticipate and cope with the forces of change, especially growth," a brochure states. "It serves as a regional forum. It provides research and information for development of growth management policies. It is a combined effort of Southern states to improve the quality of life for the region."

SGPB members include Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. In addition, Delaware, Maryland, Missouri and Texas are eligible to join but have not seen fit to do so. The board is supported financially by the member states.

The board was formed in 1971 at the suggestion of Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now president of Duke University. Past chairmen include President Jimmy Carter, who served while he was governor of Georgia. Liner said Carter helped raise money for the board's first project, a study of "The Future of the South."

Liner said that study has been used by groups in almost every state and "it's often quoted in local and state documents as a rationale for policies and decisions."

"I feel we've made a major impact in the field of economic research, bringing more business people together with elected officials," Liner said. "We've been providing projections and monitoring the economy of the South as it changes."

"Right now we're developing an econometric model of the Southern community which is going to help decision makers as well as researchers," he said. Liner explained that an econometric model is a computer-based simulation of the Southern economy that includes economic data ranging from employment income to value added by manufacture.

"It gives us almost a statistical picture of the regional economy on a quarterly basis," he said. "One of the real virtues is it lets us project the various sections of the economy into the future."

Another current project of the board is to interview 150 of the top leaders of business and industry in the South "to get their assessment of the problems in the southern economy and its direction."

"We'd like to know what they'll like out of state a local government in terms of policies that would help provide a better balance between the quality of growth and the quantity of growth."

Nothing that the urban development of the South should benefit from the earlier mistakes of huge northern and midwestern cities as well as the technology available to planners now, Liner commented: "If we wind up with poor development, we don't have an excuse."

One of the tasks undertaken by the board has been to persuade governmental agencies in southern states to use picture maps made available by the satellite Lansatt, which provides such detailed pictures that the type of crops on a two-acre plot can be identified.

Liner said that with Lansatt's pictures "you can pinpoint pine needle infestation. You can map strip mining but find areas where it can be tolerated better."

He said this program had been so successful it is to be used in other regions of the country.

Liner is an Oklahoma native who studied urban affairs at the University of Oklahoma, city and regional planning at the University of North Carolina and advanced environmental studies at Harvard. He joined the SGPB in 1973 as director of programs and research, and became executive director last year.

Although the board has a permanent staff of only eight, they include an economist, a political scientist, a journalist and "a couple of strong researchers." Three other persons, "who assist us pretty frequently on a year-around basis," Liner said, are involved in political science, urban environmental studies and law.

Liner said the board was the only one of its kind in the nation when it was founded but the Northeast and Midwest "are using it as a model for their organizations."

Asked what he considers the South's major need, Liner said he felt "it needs more attention to metropolitan growth patterns with better assurance that these patterns are financially sound so that we do not end up with the economic hardships so many other cities are facing in other regions, hardships that get directly back to the taxpayer."

"People all over are the same," he said. "They don't like to pay a lot of taxes when they don't like the way it looks and the way it functions. There is the typical New York complaint of being a captive of everything from the police to the garbage worker."

"The South needs to concentrate over and over again on quality in its growth," he said.

Museum Pays Reward

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Secret negotiations to recover a stolen Alexander Calder drawing ended in a crowded theater lobby when a museum official handed over a packet of reward money to a man who carried the drawing under his arm.

In a copyright story, the Minneapolis Tribune said the Walker Art Center recovered the 1932 ink drawing Friday it was taken June 20.

The museum would not give the amount of the reward paid by its insurance company. Museum officials said the picture was in excellent condition and would be reframed and rehung as soon as possible.

The drawing was one of 200 works by the late artist in a show assembled by the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York. It was taken on a Monday when the museum was closed.

On loan from a private collection, the drawing was originally valued at $10,000 before Calder's death last November. However, that price was later called inflated.

Museum officials said they had announced the reward only to those who were in the building on the day of the theft.

On Friday a man called the museum, saying he represented a friend who had bought the drawing and afterward recognized it as stolen. He said he was interested in being reimbursed for the cost of buying it.

After lengthy negotiations, the man agreed to meet with a museum official in the lobby of the Center, which is jointly shared with the Guthrie Theatre. The meeting took place while the lobby was crowded with people attending a play at the Guthrie and a film showing at the art center.

Donald Borrman, business manager at the art center, said the man carried the drawing under his arm without trying to hide it. He exchanged the drawing for money and left.

'Roots' Impact Still Noticed As Thousands Trace Information

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Six months ago "Roots" held the nation enthralled for eight days. Prime-time television, public libraries and Alex Haley won't ever be the same.

The 12-hour miniseries, from Haley's book on his slave ancestors, not only made television history but sent thousands of people in search of their own roots. Genealogical libraries and historical repositories have been swamped since January by people tracing their own origins.

"One of the biggest things among black people is that they no longer see their slave ancestors with shame but with sense of pride," said Haley.

"Other people of every ethnic background seem to relate to this as if it's their own family. It has evoked this universal need of people who want to know who they are and where they came from. The main thing is that the book and the film touched and are touching some pulse. And the results are transcending this country."

The National Archives in Washington and its branches report a huge increase in people searching through old census records for their ancestors. The number of black people visiting the archives has tripled.

"It took a while to build up the public momentum because we told them do some homework first," said Tom Daniels, a spokesman for the library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City, the largest genealogical library in the world.

"Just before 'Roots' we were serving about 2,000 people a day. The first week of April in one day we counted 3,700. We figure a 50 per cent increase since then—and it hasn't tapered off yet."

A sequel, covering the second hundred years of Haley's book, is now being prepared for the 1978-79 season by ABC.

"I'm in the same position as the audience," said producer Stan Margulies. "I didn't feel that stopping in the middle of the stream was a satisfactory ending. I wanted to carry the story to its ending. The only difference is that we now know there's an audience out there for this sort of thing."

Haley, who says his biggest worry now is that the demands of success are keeping him from writing, said people around the country constantly tell him that the film ruined his book. He said, "Never once have I ever uttered an 'Inuendo' or agreement with that. I don't agree with it. I was aware that it was necessary to get the greatest possible audience and to have the greatest possible impact. I am ecstatic with what they've done with it."

Margulies said, "My single hope was to get people to ask one question: 'What would I have done if I had been alive then?' It was not to dump guilt for slavery upon America. I don't see any legislators running to put new laws on the books or people changing their lives, but it has gotten people to start thinking."

"Roots" will also have a tremendous impact on television viewing for years to come. It, along with "Rich Man, Poor Man" the year before, paved the way for the miniseries. This bodes well as long as the airwaves don't become saturated with mediocre efforts that bore viewers.

More than a half dozen miniseries are being prepared for the upcoming season, plus a number of multipart movies.

But the most profound effect has been on its author.

Haley had labored for 55 years in total obscurity, including 20 years in the Coast Guard. Then he became an instant celebrity and a millionaire. Since the series and publication of the book he has been constantly on the lecture circuit.

"At this moment I have 802 requests for me to speak somewhere," he said. "You obviously can't do that, even if you take just the high priority ones."

Haley said he planned to cut off his speaking engagements on July 15 and go back to writing

"My Search for Roots" and working on material for the series sequel.

"It is a fact that my biggest single concern with all this success, quote, unquote, is that I am unable to write," he said. "I haven't written a sentence since 'Roots.' I ache to write again. I've lived the life of a nomad. Since I've been an adult I've been the Chicken George of my immediate family."

"I wish that if I'm now a public figure, as I seem to be, that I could do it just one day a month. I deeply love to write. I'd love to go back to sea. That's where I write best, because I learned to write in the Coast Guard when I was a cook."

He said he could not have possibly anticipated the reaction to "Roots." He said, "I couldn't possibly have dreamed it if I had had been on hashish."

He said he was sustained during the 12 years of research and writing when he was "broke, broke, broke" by feelings he described as spiritual.

"I'm pretty church oriented," he said. "I would feel a sense of being a participant in a living drama while writing—and researching 'Roots.'"

"For instance, I'd been searching for weeks for a little fact and I was convinced it couldn't be found. I was in London and ready to leave the public records office. I reached up for one final book. I didn't find what I was looking for but it did lead me to the source I needed. That was a spiritual experience."

"And in writing I'd feel something that wasn't ordinary and that would spur me on. At least 25 times I wanted to quit. I was broke all the time."

Ann Landers Mom Knows Best

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is to the three 16-year-old girls who spend all their spare time fantasizing. "What if we got pregnant?"

What kind of roulette are you playing, girls? The stakes are higher than you think. Abortion is now considered safer than childbirth, but it is still 100 per cent fatal for the fetus. Do the unborn have a voice in the game?

Releasing a child for adoption may not be your decision alone. Courts are now recognizing the rights of the father. You'd better call in the unlisted players.

If you opt for raising the child alone, can you raise the "bread"? Are you ready to take on the responsibility for the daily care of another human being? Or are you assuming that your family or society will pick up the tab? If so, they too should be consulted. The right to "do your own thing" does not include the right to impose on others.

Marriage may not be the answer either. If you are a minor you would need parental consent in some states. What is your boyfriend's gut reaction?

Have you consulted him? Will he scuttle school and career plans for a menial job to support you and the baby? Or will he be a rabbit and run? If he stays and "takes his punishment," remember that a captive mate often slips the noose when he gets fed up. What will you do then?

There are two ways of ending the gamble: Stay away from sex altogether or learn how to use contraceptives responsibly. Perhaps these should be the topics for your next gab-fest, girls.—Fantasy Child's Mother in Des Moines

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for some sensible advice. I couldn't have done it better myself. In fact, probably not as well.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boyfriend Hal and I just had a fight over something stupid. We have known each other for several years and are now considering marriage.

President Carter stated recently that he might start the "draft" again. Hal says he will not have to go because of his police record. Five years ago he was involved in burglary and grand larceny. Six months ago he was arrested for the possession of an ounce of marijuana.

Please give us the correct information.—Mad In New York

DEAR MAD: At this writing a new draft is being considered but there is no draft law on the books at present. So quit fighting, already. (P.S. Hal sounds like a real winner.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is for "Tomato Face"—the girl who was miserable because the men in the office told off-color jokes and used shocking language—they loved to watch her blush.

Honey, I'm a 33-year-old male who used to be a blusher, too. A friend proved to me that involuntary responses can be controlled. If you will do some programming you can prevent the blush mechanism as I did.

An appropriate message to repeat to yourself might be: "CANCEL THE BLUSH, I WILL NOT PUT ON A SHOW FOR THESE JERKS."—V-8

DEAR V-8: In technical language your suggested approach is called "bio-feedback." If it can lower one's blood pressure (and it can), it certainly should be able to squelch a blush. The technique must be learned from a professional, however. Check with a physician.

Creating the look you like—With lines

Becoming clothes influence the way you look and feel. Visible lines in your clothes create illusions of size and shape, making you look taller, shorter, heavier or thinner. Decide how you want to look, keeping in mind your physical proportions and posture, and create the look you like with the clothes you wear.

Lines in clothes have direction, length and width. They create the silhouette with shape of the skirt, length of a hem or how tightly or loosely a garment fits.

Structural lines give shape to clothes through seams and darts. Some lines are decorative and add to the attractiveness of a garment, such as a contrasting trim or figured, striped or plaid fabrics.

Consider the total effect of the garment's silhouette combined with structural and decorative lines when choosing your clothes.

Simple vertical lines often convey a mood of directness a formality. They usually have a slimming effect and add height to the figure. Simple horizontal lines tend to result in a mood of calmness and restfulness. They usually have a shortening and widening effect on the figure.

Simple diagonal lines frequently create a mood of activity and drama. Depending on their angle, they have an effect similar to either a vertical or horizontal line.

Simple curved lines usually convey a mood of softness, romance, and grace.

When gently curved in a horizontal or vertical direction they have the same effect as the horizontal or vertical line.

Sharply curved lines add extra fullness and weight to the figure.

Line spacing can reverse the principle that vertical lines are slimming and lengthening and horizontal lines are widening and shortening. The eye moves across or up and down evenly spaced lines, similar to the air steps.

Evenly spaced vertical lines add width as well as height while evenly spaced horizontal lines add height as well as decorative or structural formed by several seams, tucks, pleats, rows of buttons, or striped fabrics.

When the distance between two lines is widened, the travels from line to line as well as in the direction of the line.

Two vertical lines close together are more slenderizing and lengthening than two placed farther apart.

Line placement can be used to accent a certain area or detract from others. For example, a dominant horizontal line at the bustline adds emphasis and width in that area. It would be flattering to a figure with a slender bustline and heavier hips.

A vertical line placed to one side of the figure adds height and slenderizes. A side placement is usually considered more interesting than a center placement and often disguises figure faults.

When vertical, horizontal, diagonal or curved lines are combined, the effect varies. When vertical and horizontal lines are combined, they often add height and or width depending upon the dominant line.

Examples include plaid fabrics and a belted shirt-waist dress with a center front closing.

Princess lines combine gentle curves and vertical lines. They are usually flattering, add height and slim the hips. Depending upon the fit of the garment and curve of the princess line, they may slenderize the waist line and or widen or slim the bustline.

The combination of lines creates a pleasing proportion when areas within the garment are divided into sizes that look good together and look good on the person.

For example, unequal division of space are more interesting than equal divisions, such as two-thirds to one third.

When combining separates, notice individual garment shapes and the relationship of each individual garment shapes size to the total outfit. The size of decorative details such as collars, belts, pockets and patterned fabrics also more attractive if in proportion to the size of the wearer.

Large details look best on persons with large body proportions while small persons look best when wearing lines scaled to smaller figures.

Decide on the look you want. If you're short you may not automatically want to look taller or if you're thin, you may not want to look heavier. Consider what silhouette, structural or decorative lines do for you. Your favorite garments are good clues.

Color and texture can minimize or maximize the effect of line through contrast, camouflage or simplicity. For lines to work for you in the way you want, they must be noticeable. It is often impossible for all lines of a garment to be vertical or horizontal or even have the same effect.

The dominant ones with overshadow the others with their effect being the most pronounced on your appearance.

A poorly fitting garment can alter the effect of various lines with obvious diagonal or horizontal wrinkles or vertical folds of extra fabric.

Before adding any garment to your wardrobe, evaluate or visualize its effect on your physical proportions and posture.

Ask yourself if it makes you look taller, thinner, shorter or heavier? Is it the look you want?

Block Party Honors New Residents

Saturday morning a get acquainted tea was held in the home of Mrs. Hardy Benson honoring Mrs. Mike Schumacher and Mrs. Bobby Decker who moved in the Aspen Street neighborhood recently. The latter is from Burleson, and her husband is the new Hereford High School Basketball coach.

At the guest register was Mrs. David Marnell from Friona. Punched was served by Mrs. Pat Woodard from a table covered with off white linen cutwork cloth.

Appointments were in crystal with silver trays holding cinnamon-rolls and doughnut dots. The centerpiece was a watermelon basket filled with melon balls and other fresh fruits.

Corsages of rose buds were worn by the hostess, honorees and servers. Assisting Mrs. Benson in hostess duties were Mmes. Jim Neill, Philip Shook, Tom Simons and F.A. Marnell. A special guest was Mrs. Schumacher's mother, Mrs. Weldon Roberson who lives on Beach Street. Invitations were sent to all lady residents of the first block of Aspen Street.

Lyndon Baines Johnson was born on Aug. 27, 1908, on a farm near Stonewall, Tex. He was the eldest of five children.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I am absolutely paranoid about the commercial where the interviewer stops a housewife in a supermarket and asks if her husband would prefer potatoes or dressing with his dinner.

You know the one I mean. It's where the wife smiles and says, "Potatoes. My husband would definitely prefer potatoes." They place a call to her husband and this turkey says, "Dressing. Definitely, I would prefer dressing."

When the interviewer presses for an answer on why they never have dressing, he spits out the grabber, "She never asks me."

"I don't know a woman alive who has not begged her husband for suggestions for dinner. I don't know of a man alive who hasn't consistently ordered, 'I don't care.'"

"Would you like beef stew this week?"

"I don't care."

"We haven't had stroganoff in awhile. How about that?"

"I don't care."

"On second thought I think I'll have yak breasts with goose liver sauce."

"I don't care."

It seems incongruous to me that my husband wants in on all the big decisions like, "You paid how much for a gallon of gas?" to "We're not upping the milk until those kids drink what's left in the cereal bowls" to "If we saved all those rubber bands from newspapers, we'd never have to buy another rubber band in our lifetime."

However, when we're buying for 1,092 meals a year and spending just under $4,000 annually, he "doesn't care."

The other night he came to the table and surveyed it, "What is all this stuff?" he asked.

"It's what you ordered for dinner. 'I Don't Care.' Here's the menu:

- APPETIZER: Apathetic Celery
 - ENTREE: Pluckless Chicken, Sluggish Sauce
 - VEGETABLES: Indifferent Peas, Uncommitted Beets
 - ROLLS (Served cold and uncommunicative)
 - SALAD: Lethargic lettuce with disinterested dressing
 - DESSERT: Phlegmatic Prunes
- "That's not funny," he said.
- I had been waiting to use this line for 20 years. "I don't care."

Taxing Times

State and local personal income and sales taxes have been swelling during the last decade. Their combined share of the country's total tax take rose from 29 per cent in 1966 to 35 per cent today. While federal income tax collections have been slowing, social security payments have leaped from $17.8 billion to $54.9 billion. The amount of taxes collected per person tripled between 1960 and 1976 — from $278 to $900. And the purchasing power of the dollar has declined to about half its 1960 value. The Conference Board reports.

Terrorist Targets

Twice during the coming week, homegrown American terrorists are likely to attack some U.S. business or government target. For these terrorists, the bomb is a favorite weapon and was used 104 times in this country last year, according to a Conference Board analysis. About 65 per cent of these bombings were directed against business.

The so-called Betsy Ross flag of 13 stars on a blue field and 13 red and white stripes was made in May or June of 1776.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON

The Good Neighbor.

LOCAL: Genevieve Miller is our guest columnist this week. Hereford and Deaf Smith County bids farewell to one of its "best loved" residents this week. Corinne J. Neely is moving to Camarillo, California to make her home with a younger brother Jack H. Jowell.

Corinne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ratliff Jowell, grew up in Hereford and attended Hereford schools. She taught in ranch schools in Deaf Smith County and New Mexico and later taught on the Indian reservation in Arizona.

Returning to Hereford in the early Forties, she worked in the rationing office and later assisted Dyathia Bradley of the Deaf Smith County Red Cross during World War II.

After a stint on the Hereford Brand and another as a librarian at the Deaf Smith Co. Library, Corinne was appointed executive secretary of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

During her tenure in that office, she developed the Water Safety and First Aid programs, initiated the Home Nursing and Mother and Baby Care courses at the Hereford High School, promoted the organization of the Red Cross Youth and organized the Red Cross Gray Ladies (now the uniformed Volunteers).

She retired July 1, 1965 after fifteen years in the Red Cross organization, but continued to give generously of her time and counsel to the Waiting Wives and Mothers during the Vietnam conflict. She served on the Red Cross board of directors as Chairman of Orientation for four years. Altogether Corinne has given of her talents to the Deaf Smith County Chapter for 27 years. Because Corinne epitomized generosity and compassion, her departure leaves Hereford poorer but California will be richer for her presence and we wish her a happy and productive future in Camarillo. So we lovingly say "Good-bye and God Bless you and come back soon, Corinne."

Hearing Slated For Airman Over Discharge

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - U.S. District Court Judge Richard Robinson has issued a temporary restraining order preventing the Air Force from discharging Airman I.C. Bruce Potter from active duty.

The Air Force contends Potter, a native of Allen, Tex., stationed at Offutt Air Force Base, should be discharged because a leg injury hinders his work as a fireman. Potter maintains he should be given other Air Force duties rather than being discharged.

The case was taken to the civilian courts because no evidence was presented on Potter's behalf during military hearings, and there "were only a couple of avenues of appeal left in the military," according to Julianne Dunn, an attorney for Potter.

A July 18 hearing has been scheduled in federal court.

First speaker of the House of Representatives was Frederick A.C. Muhlenberg, a Federalist from Pennsylvania, who served from 1789 to 1791.

Neutron Weapons Get Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter has given tentative approval for the production of neutron weapons, a published report says.

Carter relayed his decision on Monday to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and floor manager of a bill providing funding for the weapons, The Washington Post said in today's editions.

A White House spokesman declined to comment on the report.

Citing administration sources, the newspaper said the President is reserving the right to change his mind on the weapons issue pending completion of a comprehensive interagency study of the subject by mid-August.

Carter's decision apparently was aimed at heading off a possible Senate rejection of funding for the weapons, which is provided for in a section of the fiscal 1978 public works bill covering the Energy Research and Development Administration ERDA. The President's flexibility in making a final decision on the weapons would be limited by a congressional veto of production funds.

The Senate was expected to resume debate on the bill today or Wednesday.

Although the administration approved and sent the ERDA fiscal 1978 budget to Congress in February, the President apparently was unaware of its provisions for production of neutron weapons until news stories disclosed that fact.

Sources said Carter's preliminary approval of the weapons funding was based on an initial

Big Corporations Owe Employees

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's 100 largest industrial corporations owe their employees at least $38 billion more in pensions than the companies have put aside to pay retirement checks.

This massive potential debt is more than the companies' combined profits of $32 billion in 1976, one indication that it could pose a major problem for some companies and for their employees.

The bill collector won't come around next week or even next year to collect his debt. Piece by piece, like a home mortgage, the companies have to pay off the debt.

And if the companies fold or can't pay their pension debts, the government will step in.

Paying off these long-term debt obligations plus funding the pension checks due now is quite a burden already for some companies, since it is a business expense that must be paid out of income and thus lowers profits.

For example, Uniroyal's pension costs of $79.4 million were almost four times its $20.1-million profit. McDonnell-

Douglas, the aircraft company, made a $108.8 million profit in 1976, but that is overshadowed by the $115.6 million it paid for employe pension costs.

Others among the top 100 whose profits were lower than pension costs include Lockheed, Republic Steel, LTV and Litton.

Together the top 100 firms paid $9 billion for pensions last year - both in current costs and paying off the $38 billion liability.

That's up $1.4 billion from 1975 costs, a 20 per cent rise in one year.

These totals come from an Associated Press study of annual reports and other official reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission by the largest 100 industrial corporations, as ranked by sales.

Despite the huge dollar figures, individual workers' pensions generally are not threatened. A semi-government agency, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., now insures pensions for millions of workers, assuring them of retirements benefits up to a certain dollar limit, even if the company is unable to pay the benefits.

The $38 billion figure is the total of the so-called "unfunded liabilities of the pension plans of the top 100 companies. These liabilities are estimates of how much the firm must pay in pensions for all its workers, minus what it already put in the bank and what is plans to put in the bank in the future to pay retirement benefits.

The Panama Canal Zone has a total area of 563 square miles.

Using Their Heads

Members of a newly-formed soccer team in Hereford take turns passing the ball by head shots during warmup exercises Sunday afternoon. Peter Moll, center, of Peru is coaching the team, which

Soccer Team Formed Here

Soccer, the most popular sport in the world, is making a toehold in Hereford with, as can be expected, persons originally from outside the United States leading the way.

Another aim of the team is to "get the people to know the game of soccer and to acquaint them with the rules" according to Moll.

and some teams from WT, including one team made up of Vietnamese.

"The players all have a lot of enthusiasm for the game, and they are learning pretty fast," Moll commented about the team, half of which had never played the game before.

Garvey Tops NL Voting

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball fans may be fickle, but when it comes to choosing the National League All-Star starting team, they're very predictable.

Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion, outfielder George Foster and catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, third baseman Ron Cey of Los Angeles, and outfielders Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies and Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

later in the week by the managers—Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati and Billy Martin of the New York Yankees.

Cey, an All-Star starter in 1974 and 1975, recaptured the third base spot he lost to Cincinnati's Pete Rose last year, receiving 3,102,186 votes.

Mays, Nixon, Gentry Qualify For Regional

James Mays, Beverly Nixon, and Scott Gentry all qualified for the Region IX AAU Track and Field Championships to be held at Gregory Portland July 23 by placing first or second in events at the WT AAU Junior Olympic Track Meet in Borger last Saturday.

Mays won the senior boys 880 (2:00.29), Miss Nixon placed second in both the intermediate girls 100 (11.7) and 440 (64.9) and Gentry won the intermediate boys mile run (5:28.7) to qualify.

Other members of the Hereford AAU Track team competing at Borger included George Arroyos, fourth in the junior boys 880 (2:35.6); Matthew Albracht, third in the bantam boys long jump (11-9); Bruce Clarke, second in the junior boys high jump (5-7) Lori Albracht, third in the junior girls 220 (28.4); David Burfield, sixth in the bantam boys 50 (7.5); Michelle Osborn, sixth in the midge girls 50 (7.0); and the junior girls 440 relay team of Pam Nixon, Laurie High, Albracht, and Joyce High, second (57.2).

Hoover Wins At Abilene

Hereford tennis standout Steve Hoover took a possible giant step toward state ranking Saturday with a victory in the Boys 18 singles division of the Abilene Hwy 80 Major Zone Tournament. Hoover downed Abilene's Joe Snailum 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 in the final.

Americans Rally For Victory

Hoover also downed David Webb of Seminole in the quarterfinals of the Abilene tourney 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. Webb is headed to west Texas on a tennis scholarship.

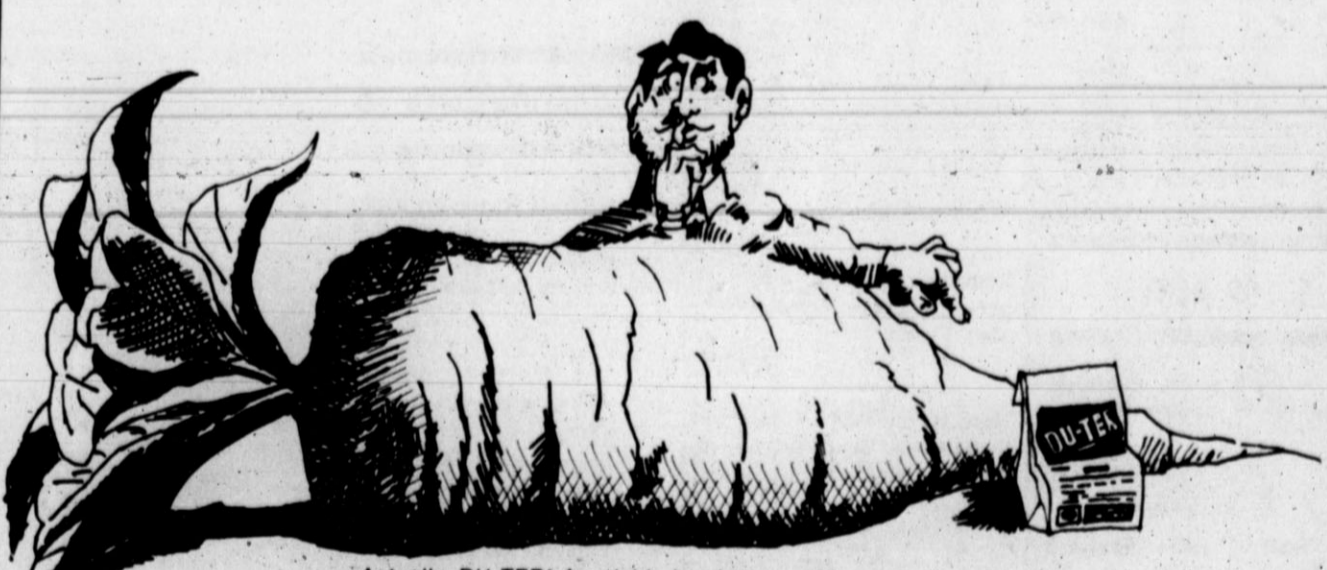

The Pee Wee Boys' American All-Stars completed a come-from-behind win of their All-Star confrontation with the Nationals Monday evening, winning the rubber game of the series 8-7. The Americans had won the second game of the best-two-of-three series Saturday night by a 17-14 count after the Nationals opened the series with a 12-9 win Friday.

Friday. In girls' action the Minor American All-Stars took second in the Dimmitt Tournament after beating the Hereford Nationals 15-14 in the semifinals. Dimmitt won the title match by an 18-13 count.

TORONTO (AP)—Brazil's national junior volleyball team defeated Canada 3-0 in an international exhibition match Monday night.

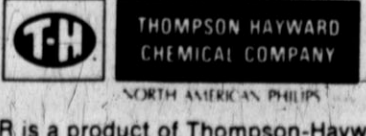

In the Minor League playoffs the Nationals ended that series Saturday with a 19-10 win for a 2-0 sweep of the series. The Nationals took the opener 18-6

THE BEST KEPT SECRET FOR LEAFSPOT CONTROL IN TEXAS

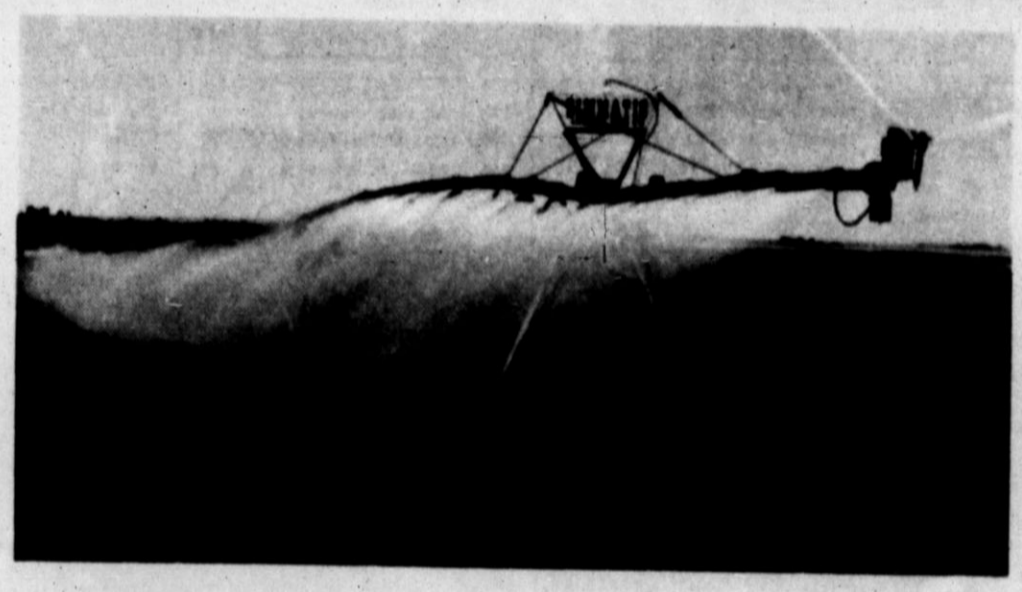

Actually, DU-TER fungicide has been quietly controlling Cercospora leafspot in sugar beets for more than six years and is used in every major sugar beet producing area in the U.S.

With trial results such as those near Hereford, the secret's out in Texas. For higher yields, higher sugar production, and more profit dollars per acre in your sugar beets, consider DU-TER for leafspot control. It works.

Nazi Fuels May Help US Crisis

BY CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—
Scientists in Nazi Germany were able to make synthetic fuels that could be part of an answer to U.S. energy problems, a chemistry professor told the Interstate Oil Compact Commission conference Monday.
The 42-year-old oil and natural gas conservation organization is composed of 36 states that either produce, or have the potential of producing, oil or natural gas.
Dr. Richard Wainerdi, a
Texas A&M chemistry engineering professor, said German scientists devised ways to use soft coal to make substitutes for natural gas, fuel oil and motor fuel.
"You'd be getting the same thing from coal mines as you now get from oil wells," the professor said. "The costs will be in the right range, especially considering that petroleum prices will be on the rise."
Wainerdi predicted that by the mid 1980s, 65 per cent of the nation's fuel will come from coal, with 30 per cent coming from the synthetic systems devised by the Germans in World War II.
He said a small percentage of abstracted information from the 300,000 captured war documents will be put into the Energy Research and Development Administration's computer system later this month.
The information will have to be updated to take into account new technologies, such as computers, developed after 1945, he said.
"No company in the world knows completely how to do this," he said. "Since we're going to be using synthetics, we don't want to repeat the same mistakes."

The Jacobshavn glacier on Concord, Mass.

In 1957, a 20-year-old student at Harvard, Prince Karim, became the Aga Khan and leader of 20 million Ismaili Moslems after the death of his grandfather.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita
Khrushchev said the U.S.
Monroe Doctrine against European interference in Latin America no longer had any meaning.

In 1973, President Richard Nixon entered Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington for treatment of viral pneumonia.

Markets Have Big Bargains

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A promotional campaign by a South Texas supermarket chain has bargain-hunting grocery shoppers jamming stores to buy bread for a nickel a loaf, eggs for 5 cents a dozen and milk for 19 cents a half gallon.

The advertising campaign will continue indefinitely, according to officials of the Handy Andy Supermarkets. San Antonio newspapers are selling every copy they print on Thursdays when the supermarket coupons are printed.

The first advertising insert appeared June 30 and offered bread for a nickel a loaf, eggs for a nickel a dozen and a margarine for 5 cents a tub, with coupon.

Within hours after the newspapers hit the streets, every copy was sold. Extra copies were printed and sold out too.

The next week, coupons hawked milk for 19 cents a half gallon and hot dogs for 10 cents a dozen.

The coupons are good for a week and supposedly are limited to one per family.

Handy Andy officials won't say what's coming this week, but a local newspaper executive says: "We have had the inserts under lock and key to protect them."

"We have had people calling all night long wanting to buy 200 copies of the newspaper before dawn," the executive said. "The callers say they can take the ad inserts and sell them for 50 cents each."

"If you have any doubts about the effectiveness, just go to Handy Andy and watch the milk and hot dogs move out," he added.

One problem for the newspaper is that thefts from coin newspaper boxes have jumped on Thursdays.

Morris Mathieu, vice president for advertising and promotion for Handy Andy, said results of the advertising campaign so far are inconclusive.

"We're trying to increase sales and profits and traffic in our stores," Mathieu said.

Handy Andy has 51 supermarkets in South Texas, with 35 stores in San Antonio and the rest in Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and Kerrville.

The same coupon advertisements are being published in newspapers in other cities where Handy Andy has stores.

Handy Andy's main competitor in this area is H.E.B. Supermarkets, a Corpus Christi-based chain with 142 stores.

Both Handy Andy and H.E.B. are private corporations and neither publishes sales or profit figures.

A spokesman for H.E.B. in Corpus Christi refused to comment on the Handy Andy promotions and would not say whether his chain intends to counter the competition.

H.E.B. promotes "everyday low prices" and has advised potential customers in advertisements not to be misled by low prices on single items.

Postal Service Okays Rates

BY JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Postal Service Monday approved President Carter's two-tier postal rate plan under which individuals would pay 13 cents to mail a first class letter while businesses would pay 16 cents.

Under the proposal, a new "citizen rate" would be established to reflect the current first-class letter rate. First-class business mail would go to 16 cents. Other mail rates also would rise.

The action by the service's board of governors sends the proposed new rates to the Postal Rate Commission, which can hold up to 10 months of hearings on them. This means the new rates cannot go into effect before next May.

Postal officials told the board the 13-cent mail would be sorted after the 16-cent business letters. But they said this would not significantly slow delivery of citizen-rate mail.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said, "I would think the service for all practical purposes would be virtually the same."

As part of the business letter rate, the board approved a two-cent discount to 14 cents for letters given preliminary sorting by mailers before being brought to the post office.

Also approved were discounts for publishers of newspapers and magazines who do preliminary sorting before mailing their publications.

The proposed new rates, extending across all classes of mail, average 22 per cent.

Legion Team Wins Two Over Weekend

The Hereford American Legion Redbirds had a big weekend, picking up a pair of wins to run their record to 3-5 this season. Hereford hosted Borger Saturday to grab a 9-4 win, and then hosted Dumas Sunday in a 13-5 walkover victory.

The Redbirds lashed out for 23 hits in the two victories as 22 runs crossed the plate. Mike Foster topped Hereford batters with a 4 for 6 weekend including a pair of doubles and one triple.

Chris Hill took the mound against Borger Saturday, limiting the losers to but five hits.

SAN DIEGO (AP) - City officials say they are going to try to get back at least some of the $15,000 paid for a commercial that was to run on nationwide television.

The city gave that amount to an advertising agency and the Convention and Visitors Bureau to help prepare a three-minute spot about San Diego that was to have run during Saturday night's World Team Tennis All-Star Match.

The match was carried on the National Broadcasting Co., but the spot wasn't.

Jordan Lansky, a spokesman for the advertising agency, said the agreement with NBC for the spot to be carried was reached with Carl Lindemann, then head of NBC Sports.

while registering nine strikeouts and six walks enroute to his second win on the year. Mike Pittard got the win on Sunday.

A six-run fifth inning provided the winning margin for the "Birds against Borger. Consecutive doubles by John Wagner and Pittard were followed by a triple by Foster, a bunt single by Greg Dement, and a bases-loaded double by Dennis Arthro to score six runs.

Against Dumas Hereford had four runs in the third and six in the sixth added to solo tallies in the first, second, and fifth to romp to a 13-5 win. Foster led the way with a pair of doubles, while Greg Albracht, Dement, and Don Weemes each added a two-bagger.

The Redbirds face Borger again Wednesday in Borger and return home next July 21 against Amarillo High.

Hot Weather Approved By Winning Pitchers

BY HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Hot and humid weather turned the first-place Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox into sweat-soaked Sox Monday night but neither winning pitcher was heard to complain.

"It was so hot and humid out there I'm exhausted, but I feel great," Bob Stanley said after hurling Boston to a five-hit 2-1 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

"Hot weather, I love it; you can sweat and relax," said Chicago's Francisco Barrios, a six-hit, 10-strikeout 4-2 victor over the Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels made Dave Garcia's managerial debut a success with a late rally that produced a 6-5 10-inning triumph over the Minnesota Twins, the Baltimore Orioles edged the New York Yankees 4-3, the Detroit Tigers outslugged the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7 and the Oakland A's whipped the Seattle Mariners 8-1.

Milwaukee and Texas were not scheduled. The only run Cleveland managed off Stanley was Andre Thornton's fifth-inning homer. But by then, the Red Sox had given the rookie all the support he needed with a run in the second inning on Butch Hobson's double and Denny Doyle's single and another in the fourth on singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk and George Scott.

The triumph kept the Red Sox one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the AL East, with the Yankees dropping 1½ back. In the West Division, the surprising White Sox lead Minnesota by 4½ games and Kansas City by five.

Barrios, a 24-year-old Mexican, was in command after the Sox staked him to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on singles by Ralph Garr and Alan Bannister. Jorge Orta's two-run double, an infield out and Chet Lemons's sacrifice fly.

"I pitched last Monday and had six days' rest, so I really felt strong," he said after boosting his record to 9-3 with his sixth consecutive victory. "I set them up with my slider and struck them out with the fast ball. All my strikeouts were on the fast ball."

"He has all the tools. There's no telling what he can do; there's no limit," said Chicago skipper Bob Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher. "If he concentrates, watch out. He's got a three-run lead and was toying around. Then, when Kansas City scored a run, he really got serious."

Angels 6, Twins 5

Dave Chalk scored the winning run on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Minnesota reliever Dave Johnson in the bottom of the 10th inning. Chalk was hit by a pitch to start the 10th and was sacrificed to the second. Ron Jackson and Willie Aikens both walked. Jackson intentionally before Johnson uncorked the wild pitch when he stumbled and literally fell off the mound while delivering the pitch.

Helped by Craig Kusick's homer, the Twins jumped to a 4-0 lead against Frank Tanana. But the Angels scored two runs in the seventh, two more in the eighth and tied it again in the ninth on Bobby Bonds' RBI single after Lyman Bostock's run-scoring single gave the Twins a 5-4 lead in the top of the inning.

Orioles 4, Yankees 3

Rookie Eddie Murray, a hero against New York all season with four game-winning hits, singled home by the tying run in the seventh inning and the winning run in the ninth to give the streaking Orioles their third straight victory over the Yankees. Murray's one-out single over a drawn-in outfield came after the Yankees loaded the bases on two intentional walks following Al Bumbry's leadoff triple.

Mike Flanagan settled down after a ragged start and pitched his fourth straight complete-game victory. He scattered 11 hits, including a pair of solo homers by Grai Nettles.

Tigers 9, Blue Jays 7

Slump-ridden Rusty Staub drove in four runs with a homer and double and scored what proved to be the winning run as Detroit roared from behind after spotting Toronto a 5-0 lead in the first inning. Doug Rader drove in four runs for the Blue Jays - two with a single in the first inning and two with a homer in the fifth.

A's 8, Mariners 1

Marty Perez drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rich McKinney homered, helping Joe Coleman win his first game of the season with help from Bob Lacey in the seventh inning. Lee Stanton homered for Seattle. The A's exploded for six runs off loser Tom House in the fourth inning.

GRANTVILLE, Pa. (AP) - Horsemen racing at Penn National Race Course agreed to end their boycott of the track Monday night, following a meeting with Lt. Gov. Ernest P. Kline.

Slander Trial Opened Monday

BY BILL MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers was wrong to accuse Oakland Raider defensive back George Atkinson of trying to maim Steeler receiver Lynn Swann, a federal court civil jury has been told.

The trial of Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll and the Steelers opened Monday before U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti. It is expected to last two to three weeks.

"George Atkinson will indicate to you that he is no angel and no saint, but also that he is not a criminal element out to maim. He is hurt and embarrassed by Mr. Noll's statement almost on a daily basis," attorney Willie Brown said in an opening argument. "He put a label on Mr. Atkinson that will follow him the rest of his life."

The suit was filed after Noll linked Atkinson with what he called "a criminal element" in the NFL and said Atkinson's hit on Swann "was with intent to maim and not with football in mind."

The comments followed a

Pittsburgh-Oakland game last September.

"The clarity of what occurred is equalled only by its ferocity," Steeler attorney James Martin MacInnis said of the incident. "It was intentional."

MacInnis said Noll spoke the truth and does not apologize for the remarks. He called them "temperate-not at all defamatory of Mr. Atkinson."

Also at issue in the trial is a $1 million counterclaim filed by the Steelers for Swann's injuries inflicted by Atkinson, a nine-year veteran defensive back.

A long list of prominent football players and officials are scheduled to testify at the trial, including NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and a number of Oakland and Pittsburgh coaches and players.

DENVER (AP) - The Denver Broncos have signed center Bill Bryan, their fourth-round selection in the 1977 college draft, to a series of three one-year contracts, the National Football League club announced Monday.

Further terms of the contract with the 6-foot-2, 245-pound center from Duke were not announced.
