

Gandhi's Gang: India's Very Own 'Watergate'

NEW DELHI (AP) - Following the time-tested sleuthing technique of following the money, Indian investigators claim to be unravelling an intricate pattern of alleged embezzlement, fraud, extortion and abuse of authority by the inner circle of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

In the past two weeks, authorities have arrested two of Mrs. Gandhi's former Cabinet ministers, her former private secretary and one of her family's most trusted aides on charges of official corruption.

Mrs. Gandhi's 30-year-old son Sanjay, whose political and financial dealings are under investigation by a special government commission, has already been implicated in at least a half dozen cases, but so far he has not been arrested. Investigators acknowledge the cases filed against Sanjay to date are relatively minor.

Government sources say the investigation by a special government commission, has already been implicated in at least a half dozen legal cases, but so far he has not been arrested. Investigators acknowledge the cases filed against Sanjay to date are relatively minor.

Government sources say the investigations have also touched Mrs. Gandhi herself, but no charges have been formally lodged against the 59-year-old Mrs. Gandhi who governed India for 11 years.

"The cases against Mrs. Gandhi and Sanjay have got to be ironclad," one highly placed government source said. "There can be no mistake."

The Indian press, by and large, has been giving sober front-page coverage to the investigations and to the continuing revelations about what happened during Mrs. Gandhi's 21-month authoritarian "national emergency" when the press was under rigid censorship.

Mrs. Gandhi, Sanjay, and her Congress party all allege that the investigations are part of a political vendetta by Prime Minister Morarji Desai's new government and call the charges baseless.

In an interview after the Gandhis and the Congress party were routed in elections last March, Sanjay denied widespread allegations about improper business dealings.

"The Congress party ruled this country for 30 years," Sanjay said. "Now we've lost. Obviously the new government will drum up charges against us, that's politics. But I have done nothing wrong."

Mrs. Gandhi and other members of the Congress high command recently charged in a resolution that the new government had resorted to "barbaric, third-degree methods of torture" to extract confessions and fabricate evidence against party members. The resolution cited no evidence to substantiate the charges.

Prime Minister Desai, Home Minister Charan Singh, who heads the investigations, and most of the new Cabinet ministers spent time in jail along with about 100,000 other political prisoners during Mrs. Gandhi's "national emergency."

They were detained without trial or stated charges and without recourse through the courts under a preventive detention law called the Maintenance of Internal Security Act (MISA).

Here is a brief summary of formal action taken to date by Indian investigators:

Sanjay Gandhi has been accused of conspiring to destroy a Hindi film satirizing power-crazed politicians. He has been accused of using improper influence to sell defective water treatment chemicals to the federally controlled Delhi municipal corporation.

Sanjay also has been named in a series of cases brought by former political prisoners claiming they were illegally detained. And he has been named in a land extortion case in Uttar Pradesh, his family's home state and the bedrock of his political power.

Sanjay has been granted anticipatory bail in the most significant case filed to date, involving the alleged embezzlement of the equivalent in rupees of $7 million from political funds of the Congress party.

In at least two other cases Sanjay has also been granted anticipatory bail, a provision of Indian law enabling persons under investigation to apply for bail before arrest.

Bansi Lal, former defense minister and once one of India's most feared political bosses, was arrested last Tuesday on charges of embezzling $60,000 from the Youth Congress, a Congress party young people's organization which Sanjay headed during the emergency.

Former Information Minister Vidya Charan Shukla, the chief architect of the emergency's censorship campaign, has been named with Sanjay in the case of the destroyed Hindi film. He has not been

Lance 'Technically' Violated Law

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if you always tell the truth, you don't have to be careful what you tell someone else.

Hate is a slow and painful way of committing suicide.

THE TEMPO of community life, and business, always seem to speed up about this time of the year. School is underway again, vacation season is on, and everyone is getting back into their routine.

The season's first high school football game is next Friday at Pampa, and that signals the start of the Brand's highly popular football contest. The annual contest will begin in Tuesday's paper, offering higher weekly cash prizes this season and continuing the added attraction of big cash awards to the season-long winners.

Be sure to watch for the contest pages each Tuesday, follow the easy rules and get your entry into The Brand office each week.

ONE OF THE primary reasons Texas has an Open Meetings and Open Records law is to assure the people's right to know what their governmental representatives are doing. The law is for the people, not for newspapers.

However, the newspaper's responsibility is to keep people informed and most citizens rely on the paper to cover these meetings and report the actions and activities of the governmental bodies.

We frequently hear complaints from people about their government about various levels of government from local to federal, but many times we suspect those who complain the loudest are the same people who are conspicuously absent at elections, public meetings, and budget hearings.

The fact that none of you showed up at the county, school or hospital budget hearings must indicate a remarkable faith in your elected representatives, which may be justified or more likely, a remarkable complacency about the conduct of your government. And, it all starts at the local level.

Even though The Brand reports the budget studies and proposed expenditures, it would seem some of the taxpayers ought to be concerned enough about increases in budgets to show up at the public hearings and question some of the expenditures.

Or, when we headlined the fact the school board was going to lower the tax rate this year, it would not have been improper for some one to show up and express appreciation to the board for its action. We think the trustees are to be commended for providing property tax relief. This was the intention of the WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter placed undiminished confidence in Bert Lance despite the disclosure that the budget director pledged the same stock as collateral on two separate loans, according to press secretary Jody Powell.

But Powell acknowledges that despite administration efforts at explanation in two White House briefings Friday, "How he acted and how he responded... is still a question that remains to be settled and will have to be dealt with."

In fact, during the day, an aide to Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said that the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which is planning early September hearings on Lance's financial affairs, would add the latest disclosure to its agenda.

The two briefings in one day, an occurrence seen fewer than a handful of times since the Carter administration took office, were devoted almost entirely to questions and answers about Lance.

Powell himself said in an interview Friday evening that some of Lance's dealings represented "technical violations of law." He was not more specific about what these were.

Both briefings offered Powell a chance to restate the president's support for Lance's efforts to remain as director of the Office of Management and Budget as the weeks-old, widespread inquiry into his financial dealings as a Georgia banker continues to occupy attention. Powell did not volunteer any such reaffirmation of Carter's support and was not specifically asked to do so by reporters.

Powell said Carter had not discussed the matter with Lance and "doesn't see any reason to."

Powell had begun the day by saying he didn't have much factual information about the Lance transactions, despite the fact that bank documents outlining them had been made public by the comptroller of the currency more than a week before.

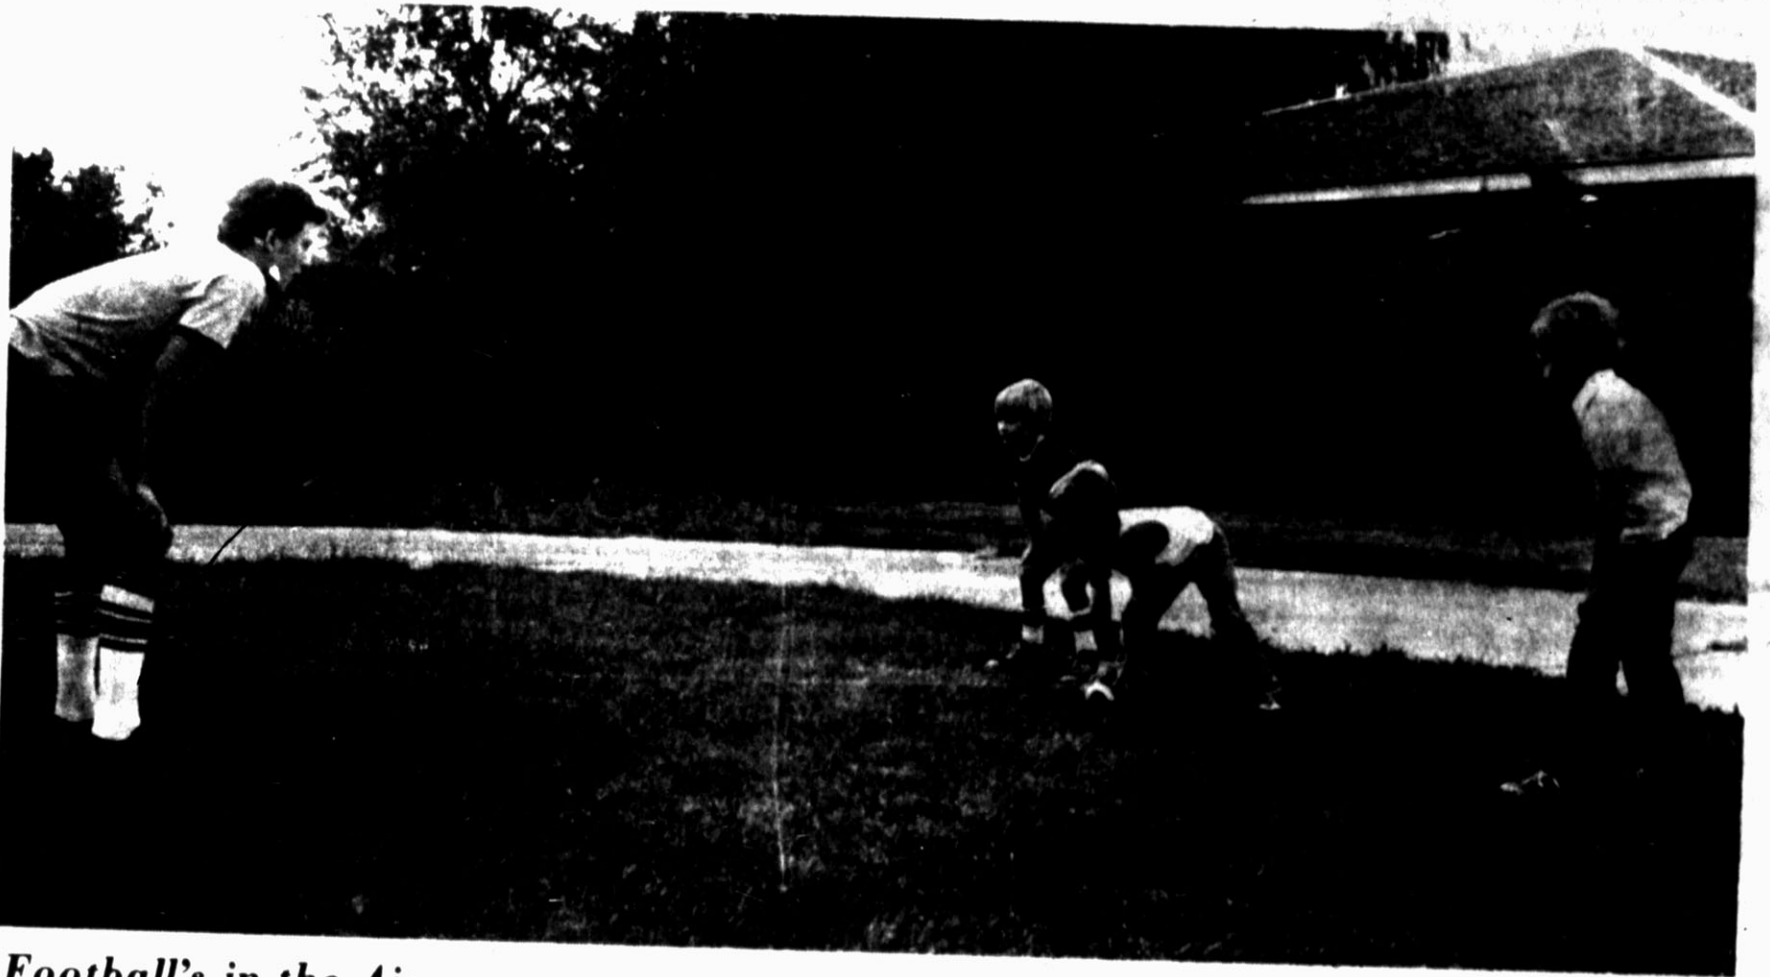

After discussing the matter with Lance during the day, Powell summoned reporters to the White House briefing room in late afternoon for another session. This time, he said, "Here is a guy that has clearly pledged the same collateral on two different loans. I'm saying he didn't intend to do so."

Powell told reporters that he did not consider Lance's actions unethical nor a sign of incompetence on Lance's part. He denied there had been any discussion at the White House during the Lance matter of asking him to resign his post as overseer of the federal budget.

The Associated Press reported Friday that documents released by the comptroller showed Lance broke a pledge he made to a New York bank.

He had agreed "to forthwith deliver" to Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. as collateral any stock he received as a dividend on National Bank of Georgia stock already held by the bank as collateral on a $2,625,000 loan to Lance.

Football's in the Air

To even things up, three young gridders challenged one to a game of tackle Saturday afternoon, signalling the start of football fever in Hereford. Snapping the ball is 6-year-old Carl DeLozier of 301 Stadium. His teammates are 8-year-old Craig Arnwine, left of Carl, and Rickie Vogel, 8, of 305 Stadium. Craig is the son of former Hereford basketball coach Barry Arnwine, now coaching at Amarillo High. The trio's opponent is Don DeLozier, 13, Carl's brother. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

Approval of Cleanup Work Marks Breakthrough for San Jose Area

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Individuals from the San Jose community just south of Hereford will be interviewed this week for employment in a special cleanup project in their area.

The project is being funded through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, and will involve five San Jose residents as workers and a sixth member of that community as a project foreman, according to Paul Catoe, counselor-coordinator for the Community Action Agency.

The special cleanup project marks the first fruit of a major effort by county officials to obtain assistance for the San Jose area, and offers new incentive for the residents of the community who have been attempting to improve their village late in May.

In Jose residents formed a non-profit organization and named a steering committee to look into the possibility of using grants for water and sewer lines in mid-June.

That time, periodic volunteer projects have been conducted by residents themselves, while the committee has committed itself to obtain grants.

According to Catoe, the individuals involved in the special cleanup project would be paid through the Panhandle Employment Training Alliance.

County Officials Responsible
County Judge Sam Morgan and his commissioners are responsible for this breakthrough in aid to the San Jose community," said Catoe. "They helped get the project approved by the Panhandle Employment Training Alliance of County Judges," he added.

According to Catoe, individuals from the camp will be interviewed for the project jobs during the coming week, and could begin their project by the end of the week, provided the interviews go well.

Their work will consist of cleaning up the San Jose community," Catoe explained. "The work involved will include the clearing of streets and alleys, cutting weeds, hauling away trash, and cleaning up the lakebed at the south end of the community to permit its conversion to a park," he continued.

Catoe added that the purpose of the project is to enhance the sanitation and beauty of the San Jose community.

Housing Work Continues

Commenting on this initial breakthrough in aid for San Jose, County Judge Sam Morgan stated, "We are pleased that we have been able to obtain this help for San Jose. The county commissioners have already indicated to me that they are willing to do whatever they can to be of assistance. We are now working to improve the housing conditions out there, and are looking into the availability of loans for home improvement and other projects. Our great concern has been that the people of San Jose remain totally involved in the improvement work. I think the people have already proven their involvement, as evidenced by the work they have already done in their community."

Elation over the funding of the cleanup project was also evident among members of the San Jose steering committee.

Robert Gallegos, a member of the committee and organizer of initial volunteer cleanups at the community reported that the cleanup project should bolster community spirits.

Committee Member Elated

"You would have to say that I feel great about this. I had about given up on getting the work approved, and then we heard the other day that they were going to start interviewing people at the Old Central School this week," said Gallegos. "I think the people of San Jose are still pretty enthused about the whole idea of improving their community and obtaining a water and sewer system. Everyone is still working hard at cleaning up his own property and one resident even offered a small tractor and plow for use in cleaning up the alleys," he added.

While the coming week may mark the first major breakthrough toward self-improvement by the San Jose community, the slow and sometimes frustrating process of laying groundwork to obtain a grant for a water system continues.

Joe Vasquez of the Texas Department of Health Resources office in Canyon is pursuing assistance for the water system.

Vasquez played a key role in helping San Jose organize a non-profit organization and prompted community residents to remove livestock from their living area.

He also encouraged the community dwellers to seek a replacement for their present water system, which failed in May and forced over 100 families to haul their own water for several days.

Water Organization Prepared
"Right now we are in the middle of working up a water system organization," Vasquez reported in a telephone interview.

"We may be able to go through the Department of Housing and Urban Development to obtain a block grant. We don't have all the loose ends tied down yet, but the people from HUD have come down and looked the situation over and they think they can qualify San Jose for some sort of grant, due to the imminent threat to community health posed by a poor water system," he explained.

Vasquez pointed out that although HUD may provide an alternative for the

1976 County Economy Boosted

Deaf Smith County's economy picked up momentum last year, according to a national survey of business activity released last week.

The added strength, evidenced by the volume of business done by local retail stores, reflected a relatively high level of income and a freer spending attitude on the part of consumers.

The evidence is based upon a nationwide survey prepared and released by the Marketing Economics Institute in New York. Its copyrighted report gives comparable data on income and spending for communities in all parts of the country.

The business picture in Deaf Smith County reflects the strong purchasing power of the local population. With a considerable amount of spendable money in the form of disposable income and a backlog of savings, most families were able to spend more than before.

The survey shows that disposable income in the year, after deduction for personal taxes, amounted to $92,245,000, compared to $78,602,000 in 1975.

This was equivalent, in terms of the individual family, to a net of $15,635 per local household. In 1975, the average was $13,790 per household.

Elsewhere in the west south central state the 1976 average was $15,085.

1976 was a good year for most retail merchants in Deaf Smith County, who chalked up a sales volume of $58,233,000, topping the previous year's $44,329,000.

Although there is government concern that the inflation rate might soar again, resulting in a slowdown in consumer spending, the general consensus among economists is that Deaf Smith County's economy has remained in good shape this year.

Voyager Problem Corrected Friday

PASADENA Calif (AP) Scientists controlling Voyager 2 designed to explore nearby planets and carry human artifacts to other solar systems say the trouble-plagued space probe appears to be fixed.

A spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said photographs beamed from Voyager Friday night showed that a balky data-gathering boom apparently was where it should be fully extended.

The problem that sent scientists into an all night brainstorming session, said a spokesman.

One of the grimmest possibilities is that the boom might not be locked in place—that it might be moving," he said.

South Africa Stops Plans for Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) A series of very rapidly conducted diplomatic discussions headed off a move by South Africa to conduct its first nuclear test, a

Carter administration official revealed. The official said the discussions involved South Africa, the United States and several other nations after word leaked last week that the South Africans were preparing a nuclear test.

"We made a very sustained effort...to deal with the possible entry of South Africa into nuclear club," the official said Friday.

Under the ground rules of the discussion on general foreign policy developments, the official could not be identified by name.

Young, Owen Meet With Rhodesians

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) Ambassador Andrew Young and British Foreign Secretary David Owen met with militant Rhodesian nationalists Saturday for some "tough talking" to sell their plan to bring black majority rule to Rhodesia.

At the same time, the leaders of southern Africa's white minority governments, Prime Ministers John Vorster of South Africa and Ian Smith of Rhodesia met in Pretoria to study the plan. They declined to make any comment pending their meetings next week with Young and Owen.

Overdose of Salt Blamed in Boy's Death

CLEVELAND (AP) An overdose of salt has been blamed for the death of a 6-year-old boy, who "always salted his water, milk, pop, Koolaid and every other liquid," as well as his food, according to his foster parents.

Cuyahoga County Deputy Coroner Charles S. Hirsch ruled Friday that Robert W. Arnold's death on Tuesday was a homicide because he died as a result of "something that should not have been done."

Facts in the case will be presented to a county grand jury Sept. 6.

Hirsch said that the salt overdose caused the heart of the 36-pound boy to stop, a rare occurrence for someone so young. The boy had a "grossly excessive amount of salt in his last meal on Tuesday," the deputy coroner said.

Police Report

Pablo Villereal Friday reported to police that somebody broke into his house recently and stole an electric shaver and a pellet gun.

Some money was also reportedly taken from the residence at 618 Ave. F.

water system, the much needed sewer system is another matter.

"Sewer lines must tie into a treatment plant, and the most likely solution would be to tie into the city of Hereford's sewer system. But Hereford's system is operating at close to capacity right now and might not be capable of taking on that much extra effluent. The people of San Jose may have to go ahead and build their own sewage treatment system, but that is way, way down the line. A water system is out first priority right now," Vasquez commented.

Well Still Functioning

Vasquez indicated that the community's well is currently handling requirements, but chlorination of the water supply is a problem.

Speaking on general health conditions at San Jose at present, Vasquez was quick to point out that elimination of the livestock within the area has reduced the fly problem considerably.

The work of ridding the community of unsanitary sewer systems still remains to be accomplished.

"We haven't forgotten about the San Jose community by any means," said Vasquez. "You just don't see any really visible results on what we're working at right now, but there is progress being made. It will simply take a little more time and patience. People are working on everything from engineering considerations to a charter, and once we get the whole thing set and tied together, it will start rolling. I guess you could say we are making an attempt at constructive bureaucracy, if there is such a thing, he concluded.

THINGS WE WOULDN'T know if we didn't read our mail. According to two Texas businessmen, navel lint has almost become a thing of the past because of the widespread use of synthetic materials in the manufacturing of clothing. They propose to solve the problem by packaging and selling a substance under the name "Belly Button Fuzz."

It reminds us of the "pet rock" fad that caught on about a year ago and made someone rich, which is most assuredly the goal of these two Austin men. They sent us a sample in the mail, along with a small booklet which outlines the origin of Belly Button Fuzz, how to tell what "size" your fuzz is, the uses of fuzz, and the care of your fuzz.

The box also contained a cellophane package with a piece of fuzz in it, and a bumper strip which cautions that "Belly Button Fuzz is an endangered species."

arrested.

Government sources say further charges of a more serious nature are expected against Shukla, who with Bansil Lal and Sanjay were considered the major forces behind Mrs. Gandhi during the emergency.

R.K. Dhawan, Mrs. Gandhi's former private secretary, was arrested Aug. 15 in connection with the alleged embezzlement of Congress funds through a system of bogus businesses.

Lance

Comptroller John Heismann did not discuss this in his report accompanying the documents, and his spokesman said this part of Lance's finances was beyond his purview.

The pledge, a standard item in large loan notes and familiar to bankers throughout the nation, was contained in an agreement signed by Lance and his wife, LaBelle, on July 30, 1976, while he was president of the National Bank of Georgia.

Such a dividend, in the firm of 14,811 shares for Lance, was declared on Dec. 31, 1975. Instead of forwarding it to Manufacturers, Lance pledged it as collateral on a $150,000 loan he got from the Chemical Bank in New York. A Chemical Bank document, dated May 27, 1976, confirms that bank's receipt of the shares.

Manufacturers wrote Lance on July 2 and again on Nov. 5 seeking to have him deliver the shares, but a Manufacturers spokesman said the bank never got them. Lance paid off the Manufacturers loan in January 1977.

Area TSTA Leaders To Attend Workshop

AMARILLO--District and local leaders of the Texas State Teachers Association in a 26-county area have been invited to attend the TSTA District XVI fall workshop Tuesday evening, Sept. 6, at Amarillo High School.

The workshop will run from 5 p.m. registration until adjournment at 9:15 p.m. and will include a dinner meeting.

Teachers are expected from the 33 TSTA local associations in District XVI, which includes the counties of Armstrong, Briscoe, Carson, Castro, Childress, Collingsworth, Dallam, Deaf Smith, Donley, Gray, Hall, Hansford, Hartley, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Moore, Ochiltree, Oldham, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Roberts, Sherman, Swisher and Wheeler.

Local leaders will receive information, ideas and materials and will provide input for the 1977-78 programs of TSTA.

Jack Sharp, a teacher at Tulia High School and president of TSTA District XVI, will be in charge. He will be assisted by other district leaders.

State President Elect Virginia Stacey of San Antonio (Lackland ISD) will be a featured speaker.

TSTA staff members who will provide information are Earl Cantrell and Tom Lewellyn of the Austin office and Bill Potts of the Plainview regional office.

Welfare Department Has Name Changed

The State Department of Public Welfare will have a new name Monday, but it will be doing the same job.

A bill passed during the regular session of the 65th Legislature goes into effect Monday, changing the name of the agency to the Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR).

As the Department of Human Resources, the agency will continue to offer the same services as it did as the welfare department. Public assistance in Texas is provided to the needy aged, disabled and dependent children.

Publications of the agency carrying the old welfare will be used until supplies are exhausted, then will be reprinted with the Department of Human Resources name.

Northwest Slates Open House Night

Hershey Bar Sign of Times

PHILADELPHIA (AP) Like women's bathing suits, candy bars are getting skimpier and more expensive. Take the Hershey bar, the granddaddy of chocolate confectionery. It costs twice as much as it did in 1950 and is almost half the size.

In the past nine months, the Hershey bar has shrunk from 1.35 ounces to 1.2 ounces to 1.05 ounces, while the "common retail price" has remained at 20 cents. As late as 1965, a two-ounce Hershey bar was only a dime.

The culprit, of course, is the mounting cost of everything for chocolate bars, especially the costs of cocoa and sugar. In 1971, the average New York spot price of cocoa beans grown in Ghana, the world's largest producer, was 27 cents a pound. It's now around $2.70 a pound. Anyone with a sweet tooth knows about sugar prices.

The effect of changes in price and size on Americans' taste for sweets is hard to measure. A recent Commerce Department survey showed consumption of candy increasing from 1975 to 1976, from 16.3 pounds for each man, woman and child to 16.7 per person.

Around the turn of the century, Milton Hershey built a chocolate factory on a southeastern Pennsylvania cornfield, then a town called Hershey. Hershey started making chocolate in 1894, marketing both a 2-cent bar and nine-sixteenths of an ounce and a 3-cent bar and fifteen-sixteenths of an ounce by 1908. Old records; at best sketchy show a 5-cent, one-ounce bar sold in 1921.

In World War II, GIs carried Hershey bars like ammunition. It was the universal language of barter and for many European kids their first taste of chocolate.

In 1949, Hershey's 5-cent standard milk chocolate bar weighed an ounce. By May of 1968 it had shrunk to three quarters of an ounce. It was discontinued a year later.

A 10-cent, two-ounce bar was introduced in 1950 as a companion to the nickel bar. It bowed out at a skinny 1.26 ounces in 1974.

The 15-cent bar, weighing 1.4 ounces was introduced in January of that year. It shrunk twice, being replaced by the 1.35-ounce, 20-cent bar three years later.

And prices today vary from place to place. The people at Hershey say they realize taste is all-important. Tampering with the quality of ingredients in an attempt to cut costs can alter flavor and thus turn off untold numbers of salivary glands.

Reducing the sizes makes more sense, they claim, especially considering the candy taste we form as children usually sticks.

Home Imprisoned Disabled Patients

WHARTON, Tex. (AP) - A "rest home" in a quiet rural area was really a prison for 13 mentally disabled persons, according to investigators who said some of the "patients" were found locked in a garage without sanitary facilities.

"There were five of them in the garage. No air conditioning. No windows. No nothing," investigator Jack Kemp said.

The five men used a single gallon can for a sanitary facility, he said.

Elmer Arnold Tompkins, 34, of Van Nuys, Calif., was being held in the Wharton County jail on 12 counts of false imprisonment. Bond was set at $60,000.

Officials are looking for Lillian Gobert, 35, also of Van Nuys, who is charged with seven counts of false imprisonment.

Kemp said 13 "patients" were at the home when investigators working on a tip went to the three-bedroom house in the Spanish Camp community.

"You'd think it was just an average home just to look at it," Kemp said. "But inside it was dirty and unkept and these people were suffering from malnutrition."

He said the patients were held prisoner in the home while Mrs. Gobert administered their disability and pension checks.

Officials became aware of problems at the home when a patient was taken away from the facility by a family friend.

1st Coast-to-Coast Flight Celebrated this Week

WASHINGTON (AP) - There they sat, 8,000 feet in the air, clutching a mail bag in one hand and a sack lunch in the other, with the wind tugging at their parachute straps.

That's how one journal described the first passengers to fly coast to coast in the United States 50 years ago this week, on Sept. 1, 1927.

Each flight was an adventure, as small single-engine planes carried one or two passengers, squeezed among the mail sacks, from New York to San Francisco. Along the way there were 15 stops and the passage took 32 1/2 hours.

That's a far cry from today's jet planes, which cover the same route nonstop in five hours, with the big jumbos hauling as many as 342 passengers.

Transcontinental service began in 1927 when two airlines linked their East and West services in Chicago. National Air Transport (NAT) ferried between New York and Chicago, and Boeing Air Transport (BAT) flew from Chicago to San Francisco.

They later merged and joined with two other small airlines to form United Airlines, today the largest air carrier in the western world.

NAT's aircraft had room for one passenger, who paid $200 for the 724-mile New York-Chicago leg. But mail was the main cargo, and tickets were sold with the understanding that if the plane became overloaded with mail, the passenger had to wait for the next flight.

If the passenger got aboard, he rode in the same compartment with the mail sacks. Boeing could fit two passengers, separate from the mail, in its Boeing 40A aircraft, and if they purchased tickets they were assured of a seat. They paid $204 for the 2,000-mile trip from Chicago to the West Coast. Total price for someone making the full trip was $404.

NAT introduced "luxury service" in 1928 by permitting the passenger to sit on top of the mail in the forward compartment of a modified version of the M4.

The traveler had to bring his own meal, or do without, although the airline provided a vacuum bottle of cold water on hot summer days.

There were three stops on the eastern leg: Bellefonte, Pa., and Bryan and Cleveland, Ohio. On the western leg, the plane stopped in Iowa City and Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha and North Platte, Neb.; Cheyenne and Rock Springs, Wyo.; Salt Lake City; Elko and Reno, Nev.; and Sacramento and Oakland, Calif.

By 1929, the passenger compartments were enclosed, and one of the carriers provided this description:

"The enclosed cabin with its wicker chairs and sliding windows for open ventilation is very comfortable. The fact that the cabin is enclosed makes conversation possible in an ordinary tone of voice."

In the mid-1830s, with the introduction of the durable Douglas DC3 aircraft, the transcontinental trip could be made in 15 hours, with a minimum of three stops. The plane had a kitchen, and this became known as the "fried chicken era" because the pre-cooked chicken was easy to heat and maintained its moisture at high altitudes.

The DC 3 carried 23 passengers, and provided overnight sleepers for some. The introduction of the Douglas DC6 in the 1940s increased the passenger roster to 56 and cut the coast-to-coast transit time to 9 1/2 hours, with one stop.

Nonstop service began in 1954 with the DC7, which made the trip in under eight hours. That also was the year when the airlines began serving complimentary liquor.

The trip was cut to five hours in the 1960s with the advent of the Boeing 707 and Douglas DC8, each of which could handle more than 120 passengers.

The 1970s introduced the jumbo and wide-body jets, the Boeing 747, the Lockheed L1011 and McDonnell Douglas DC10. They carry 242 and 342 passengers in walk-around comfort at 550 miles an hour.

Throughout the 50 years, the prices of the aircrafts have risen dramatically. The Douglas M4 of 1927 cost $12,900. The priciest on a Boeing, 747 is more than $23 million.

But it costs less today to fly coast-to-coast. The original passengers paid $404 for a one-way ticket. A New York-San Francisco coach ticket today costs $206, with night coach fares as low as $165.

In that first year, 168 passengers donned flying suits, helmets, goggles and parachutes to fly on the New York-Chicago leg, while 445 flew between Chicago and San Francisco. Today, the number is measured in the millions.

US, Cubans Moving Closer in Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and Cuba plan to open diplomatic "interest sections" in each other's capital on Sept. 1. It will be the first formal contact between them since diplomatic relations were severed in 1961.

In preparation, an advance party of Cubans is refurbishing the old Cuban Embassy in the northwest section of Washington.

In Cuba, Americans are working on the U.S. Chancery and the ambassador's residence. Career diplomat Lyle F. Lane will head a 10-member U.S. diplomatic mission in Havana. The Americans will live in apartments that already have been leased in the Cubanacan section, considered the best location in Havana.

The following, based on State Department sources, attempts to answer some questions about the current state of U.S.-Cuban relations.

Q. -What is the purpose of the interest sections?

A. -They are an effort to improve communications between the two countries. It's much easier to address Cuba-American problems by direct contact than through third parties.

The interest sections will devote themselves largely to such matters as cultural and sports exchanges. They will not be capable of dealing with the substantive issues which divide the two countries.

Q. -How far away are full diplomatic relations?

A. -With the opening of the interest sections, relations probably have reached a plateau which may remain unchanged for quite a while. This excludes the unlikely possibility of a sudden Cuban retreat on issues of concern to the United States, such as Cuba's military role in Africa and its demands for independence for Puerto Rico. If there is progress on these issues and confrontation is avoided in other areas, the normalization process could move forward quickly.

Q. -What is the administration policy on the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo, the issue of primary concern to the Cubans?

A. -The policy is to continue the embargo until normalization has proceeded further. This is not rigid policy, but generally the administration favors its retention until Cuba adopts a less interventionist policy toward Africa and until there is progress in other areas.

Q. -Why has Fidel Castro changed his mind about direct diplomatic contacts with the United States after 16 years without them?

A. -Castro apparently wants more leeway in his international dealings. He is now totally dependant on the Soviet Union, which could wreck the Cuban economy in time by withholding oil and credits and refusing to buy sugar. Cuba is more dependent on Russia now than it was on the United States in 1958, the year before the revolution.

Q. -Given the Soviet Union's stake in Cuba, how does it view Cuban-American detente?

A. -The best speculation is that Russia sees better relations between the United States and Cuba as a constructive development, consistent with East-West detente. But Soviets can't help but be nervous about what will happen to their close ties with Cuba 5 or 10 years from now.

Economically, Moscow may hope that closer Cuban-American links could reduce the burden that Cuba represents. Cuba is costing the Soviets more than $1 billion a year. They are purchasing Cuban sugar at three to four times the world market price and they sell oil to Cuba at half the market price.

But the Soviets don't have the same degree of political control over Cuba as they have over Warsaw Pact countries. If Cuba decided to embark on an independent course, there is not much the Soviets could do about it.

Q. -When Castro recently decided to let the Cuban families of 80 American citizens living in Cuba emigrate to the United States, why did he deal with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, rather than wait a few weeks and use the interest section channel?

A. -The pattern has been for Castro to make gestures through members of Congress, thinking that would have greater impact than if he dealt with the executive branch. It's hard to assess how this strategy has worked.

Congressional attitudes toward Cuba, concerning such issues as the trade embargo, are still fuzzy because there has been no full-scale debate in Congress on Cuba policy.

Q. -Why is Castro so anxious to woo Congress? It's the administration which will decide on the future course of relations.

A. -It is true that the trade embargo may be lifted order. But an administration usually acts in accordance with the mood of Congress at any given time.

Carter Says ERA At Critical Point

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter said Friday the proposed Equal Rights Amendment is at a crucial point and he urged everyone to press for its ratification.

"Equal rights for women are an inseparable part of human rights for all," Carter told leaders of thousands of women planning to march down Pennsylvania Avenue to emphasize their demands for equal rights.

When women tried a similar march 34 years ago, they were met with jeers and heckling. This time their leaders were invited to the White House for Carter signing of a Women's Equality Day proclamation.

"This is a crucial point in the struggle to achieve full equality for women under the law," Carter told more than 100 women and men in a Rose Garden ceremony.

The proposed amendment has been approved by 35 states. It must win endorsement from 38 by early 1979 to become law. Three states have asked to rescind their ratification but this is subject to legal challenge.

Carter also announced he was ordering all federal agencies to re-examine their personnel policies and laws to root out discrimination against women. He noted that the Civil Rights Commission recently said that more than 3,000 government laws contain some discriminatory concepts that hurt women.

Virginia Allen, former deputy assistant secretary of state, asked Carter to lend his political force to the ERA battle.

She noted that the crusade against the ERA seems stalemated and said unless the amendment passes, not only women but men will be prevented full equality in coming generations.

Mrs. Allen asked Carter to visit the 15 states that have not ratified the ERA, to speak with state legislators "and to let them know why this nation needs the ERA," she said.

Carter made no agreement for such visits but did say that his daughter-in-law Judy Carter is in California right now working on a strategy to get the ERA passed in Western states.

He said the country still has a long way to go in assuring its women equality although he said it is not as dangerous to speak out for equal opportunity as it was in 1917 when Alice Paul and other suffragettes were jailed repeatedly and forced fed in prisons as they campaigned for the vote.

The sole survivor of the suffragettes who followed Alice Paul in the daily vigils at the White House apparently is Hazel Hunkins Hallinan, 87, who came from London for the Women's Equality Day march and was at Carter's side at the Rose Garden ceremony.

About 350 million years ago, the first amphibians developed. They were followed 50 million years later by reptiles.

In 1976, Americans bought 25 million cans of soft drinks and beer.

API, House Disagree

HOUSTON (AP) - The American Petroleum Institute contends studies by a federal agency underscores shortcomings of President Carter's energy program.

Oil's largest trade group says the House-approved energy bill would do nothing to stimulate domestic petroleum production. But studies by governmental groups, the Institute adds, indicate that with the right kind of economic and political climate, the United States could produce more oil and gas in the future than in all prior years.

Studies made by the U.S. Geological Survey figure prominently in a 25-page background paper prepared by the Institute after the final House vote.

"Figures based on studies of potential reserves by the U.S. Geological Survey indicate this country could continue present rates of oil and gas production for almost a half century, or of course, increase the rate of production in order to reduce imports," the background paper states.

"Those figures led to the conclusion that with a continuation of recent technological trends and if prices keep up with costs, the nation's recoverable resources of crude oil and natural gas liquids can be as much as 170 billion barrels. The estimate for natural gas is 900 trillion cubic feet."

Domestic crude oil production last year exceeded 2.8 billion barrels and proved reserves as year-end were estimated at 30.9 billion. Natural gas production exceeded 19.5 trillion cubic feet, leaving an estimated 216 trillion cubic feet of reserves at the end of the year.

The Institute said some of the future supplies indicated in the studies could become available by forcing additional petroleum out of new fields and some could be found through additional drilling in known fields.

The Geological Survey also reports, the Institute said, that future technological advances and sustained higher price-cost ratios could result in production of large additional amounts of oil and gas.

"The agency adds that when it becomes economic to make use of oil shale, tar sands, heavy oils, gas locked in tight formations, gas occluded in coal, and oil and gas in offshore waters deeper than 200 meters, the nation's energy resource base will be expanded enormously," the background paper said.

"But the energy bill approved by the house would maintain, and multiply, the existing obstacles to finding and developing this petroleum."

The Institute said studies by the Federal Energy Administration, Energy Research and Development Administration, American Gas Association, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and others conclude that higher prices for oil and gas would stimulate more drilling and more production.

"Heavy commitment of funds and effort will be necessary to find and produce these additional oil and gas supplies," the Institute said.

"Unfortunately, the House-passed energy bill does nothing to encourage that commitment."

The background paper said the House rejected the surest way to erase one of the nation's most serious energy problems, natural gas shortages, when it rejected attempts to free the wellhead price of new gas from federal regulation.

"The House bill would result in a significantly lower level of natural gas production," the paper added. "In fact, the bill would have the effect of extending the natural gas shortages to intrastate markets, where more realistic prices have developed new supplies and helped provide orderly economic growth."

Extending federal controls to the intrastate markets, the paper continued, would force producers in the leading natural gas-producing states to sell their new gas for less than the currently prevailing price, thus reducing revenues to producing companies, overall, from current levels.

"These rollbacks would assuredly discourage exploration and new production," the Institute said.

"Natural gas shortages can be expected to be the rule, rather than the exception, in future winters. Some years, the shortages may be less severe; other years, more severe, depending on the relative coldness of the winter."

The "St. Valentine's Day Massacre" took place in Chicago in 1928. Seven gangsters were gunned down by rivals.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - A Punch and Judy theater made in Coney Island around 1845, life-size wooden carousel animals and a poster advertising one of the first performances of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" around the turn of the century are among objects in a new exhibit at the University of Rochester.

The exhibit, entitled "Step Right Up! Show Business at the Turn of the Century," opened in June at the Memorial Art Gallery at the university here. It was created by the staff of the Margaret Woodbury Strong Museum.

Circuses, vaudeville acts, amusement parks, traveling carnivals, opera houses and theaters provided the artifacts from which the exhibit was assembled. The exhibit will run through Sept. 25.

Sooners Top Preseason Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Oklahoma Sooners have been tabbed as the preseason choice in The Associated Press college football poll to capture their third national championship in four years.

In nationwide balloting by a panel of 62 sports writers and sportscasters, Oklahoma received 23 first-place votes and 1,068 of a possible 1,224 to succeed Pittsburgh as the No. 1 team in the nation.

The Sooners, who won the national championship in 1974 and 1975, finished fifth a year ago with a 9-2-1 record in their unsuccessful bid to become the first team ever to win three crowns in a row. They easily outdistanced Michigan in the preseason balloting.

The Wolverines, 10-2 last year, received 19 first-place votes and 1,020 points. Michigan and Oklahoma were the only teams named on every ballot.

Notre Dame was third, followed by Southern California, Ohio State, Alabama, Pitt, Texas Tech, Texas A&M and Maryland.

Notre Dame received 10 first-place votes and 948 points as the top nine teams in the balloting all received at least one first-place vote.

Last season's final Top Ten consisted of Pitt, Southern Cal, Michigan, Houston, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Texas A&M, Maryland, Nebraska and Georgia.

The 1977 preseason Second Ten includes UCLA, Colorado, Penn State, Houston, Nebraska, Mississippi State, Arizona State and Florida tied for 17th, followed by Georgia and Oklahoma State.

The final 1976 Second Ten was Alabama, Notre Dame, Texas Tech, Oklahoma State, UCLA, Colorado, Rutgers, Kentucky, Iowa State and Mississippi State.

Arizona State, which slipped to a 4-7 record after finishing second to Oklahoma in the final 1975 AP poll, was the only team coming off a losing season to crack the preseason Top Twenty.

Irwin Retains Big Lead in Fame Golf

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin, apparently headed for a rout, slashed and chopped his way to a double bogey six on the final hole but, with a two-under-par 69, still retained an imposing five-shot lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

Despite his troubles on the 18th, which took place moments after the national television cameras had ended their coverage for the day, Irwin still posted a 54-hole total of 196, a distant 17 strokes below par on the pine-studded, 7,007-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

His three-round total, built on scores of 65, 62 and 69, matches the lowest of the season on the tour and put him in a commanding lead in the tournament he must win to gain a spot in next week's important World Series of Golf.

Rebels Win Scrimmage

By BOB NIGH
Brand Sports Editor

The Tascosa Rebels proved that the Hereford Whitefaces have a long way to go this year to get ready for tough area competition as they overcame a slow start to hand the Herd a 5-1 setback in the two teams' scrimmage held in Vega Friday evening.

"Our first impression was that it wasn't very good," Hereford head coach Fred Upshaw said Saturday morning while taking a short break for reviewing the film of the scrimmage. "We've got a long way to go to get ready."

The coaching staff's impressions may have improved somewhat after completing the viewing of the film, but it's doubtful since the Herd enjoyed most of its success at the beginning of the two-hour workout.

Tascosa found the Herd defense tough going at the first with only three yards picked up on three plays as the scrimmage began. Alex Arrango, Jim Fish, and Daniel Olson led the HHS charge at that point.

Three plays later the Rebel fans were on their feet, however, as Tascosa put together a 54-yard scoring play on an option around left end. The play followed two similar calls which had again been stopped short by the "Faces."

On the next two Rebel possessions the Herd again stiffened, stopping their opponent from making a first down. The Rebels did make one other first down before the Whitefaces took over an offense, and that on a nine-yard pass play.

Kelly Kitchens directed the HHS offense and three first downs went up on the board before Kitchens finally knotted the score at 1-1 with a 17-yard scoring pass to tight end Greg Brockman. That series was the virtually the only success the Herd had on offense all night, however.

The Rebels scored twice on their next series of possessions as both teams substituted freely with first units hardly distinguished from third teamers. Tascosa added another score on their final possession as the night ended on a shifty 30-yard play which saw one Rebel back lateral the ball to another as he was closed in on. The second Tascosa ball handler crossed the goal untouched.

In a review of the night's action Tascosa gathered 20 first downs out of 31 possessions while Herd was good on 10 of 26 tries. The scrimmage was run on the format of three downs for a first with the ball moved up automatically whether the offensive team had gained the first down or not.

The two teams open the regular season this Friday night with the Rebels traveling to Midland and the Whitefaces on the road at Pampa. Hereford's first home contest comes one week later when the Palo Duro Dons come to town September 9.

Bob Nigh Panel Prattle

Brazenly hoisting the flag of distaff supremacy Joyce Shipp, Deaf Smith County Home Demonstration Agent, has joined the Brand's panel of Fearless Forecasters for the year 1977, replacing Irene McKinster, who fell short in her bid in 1976 to outguess her male counterparts through the grid season.

"All I can say is, Guys, this is one Shipp that won't sink," the confident addition to the panel commented as she was prompted in the background by her "secret advisor" as she talked to this reporter on the phone.

Ms. Shipp has reason to be confident, having been $35 richer following the conclusion of last year's football contest sponsored by the Brand. She finished second in the contest with a 246-92 record.

However, she will be facing four alleged experts on the football scene as she attempts to claim the panel title. Brand staff members Speedy Nieman and Bob Nigh will return to the panel from last year as the only holdovers, and they will be joined by Paul Sims and Craig Nieman this time around.

Gone from this year's edition are Ms. McKinster, ex-Brand news editor Bobby Templeton and KPAN sports director Tom Simons, who waltzed away the winner last year with a 230-108 mark.

Publisher Speedy Nieman, a runner-up to Simons with a 228-110 record last year after holding the lead more than halfway through the season, is aiming high this year.

"I won't slump this time around and let my lead disintegrate," Nieman avowed. The long-time Panhandle resident will be aiming at his second panel title in three years this time around after having won the crown in 1976 with a shining 239-99 mark.

Sims, a relative newcomer to Hereford after having replaced Templeton earlier this year, has nonetheless an appropriate background for competing on the panel. He was sports editor at Pampa for four years after one-year stints at the Plainview Herald and Amarillo Globe-News.

"With my extensive sports background I can see no way the competition will be able to keep up with me," Sims stated matter of factly.

The younger Nieman represents the neophyte on the panel. A 1975 graduate of HHS, he participated in both basketball and baseball on the varsity level in high school. He ruled out his non-grid background in high school as a deterrent, however.

"It won't make any difference since kids are smarter nowadays anyway," he declared. "And, I've always welcomed the chance to beat my dad at anything."

In an exclusive interview with

Nigh it was learned that he is planning to walk softly and carry a big stick as far as making any rash promises goes. "I'll let my record stand for itself when the year is over," the personable sports editor claimed.

[Now that that's over I know how hard it is to get a quote from ones self, while trying to keep some semblance of journalistic style.]

No matter who comes out on top among the panelists, they will probably have a hard time beating the contest winner, who usually posts a far better record than the "experts."

A point in case is last year when Derrell Dirks won the $100 contest prize with a 249-89 record, ahead of Simons' mark by 19 guesses.

The Fearless Forecasters Panel's predictions will run in each Thursday's issue over the grid campaign. Thankfully that will be after most entrants have their weekly guesses turned into the office. The first contest will appear in Tuesday's issue, and will contain mainly high school games since most colleges and universities don't begin their seasons until a week later.

Sherman Tops Poll; Plainsmen Fourth

Sherman in Class 4A, Mount Pleasant in 3A, Yoakum in 2A Poth in A and Wheeler in B-all stopped short of the championship circle a year ago - are the early choices to go all the way this year in The Associated Press Schoolboy Pre-Season Football Poll.

After earning the No. 1 positions on paper, they'll have to prove themselves on the field this weekend when the massive Texas schoolboy football schedule gets under way.

Sherman has 22 lettermen and seven starters returning this season from a 10-0-2 record in hopes of completing a journey to the finals that ended in the regionals in 1976 in a 26-26 deadlock with eventual finalist Temple.

Temple scored twice in the waning minutes to tie the game and advance on penetrations.

Challenging the Bearcats for the top position are the Bryan Vikings of Coach Merrill Green. With Curtis Dickey playing across town at Texas A&M last year, the Vikings dropped off to a 7-3 record and only a share of the district title. They should be back in form this season.

Austin Reagan, regaining its strength after the school district was split three years ago, gets the pre-season nod for third place followed by Midland Lee and state semifinalist Port Neches-Groves.

Mount Pleasant, with 20 returning lettermen from a 9-2 1976 team, and Gregory-Portland, who lost in the semifinals last year to eventual champion Beaumont Hebert, are expected to battle for the Class 3A crown. Andrews, Cuero and Humble round out the top five.

A mere two points separates first place Yoakum, runnerup Bellville, and No. 3 Jacksboro in the early Class 2A race. Kermit, 6-4 last year and Spearman, 9-2, complete the top five.

Poth, which lost out in the quarterfinals to eventual state champion Barber's Hill last year, took solid command of Class A getting nine of 16 first place votes. De-Leon, which lost in the championship finals last year, is second by a 138-105 margin.

Wheeler got five first place votes to earn the No. 1 spot in Class B while defending State champion Gorman finished second with three first place picks.

Here is The Associated Press Pre-Season Schoolboy Football poll with first place votes in parentheses, last years records and total points:

Flag Football Starts Sept. 17

It's that time of the year again, and the Hereford YMCA is busy preparing for its second season of flag football. Youth program director Weldon Knabe will head up the league this year, which tentatively will contain 18 teams in two separate divisions.

A brochure prepared by Y director Claude Huard will be circulated in local schools tomorrow, and registration for the league will begin that afternoon. Registration will close Saturday.

"We had some kids come late last year and they had to be turned away because we have only 12 shirts per team, and can handle only that number," Huard said. "They can register any time during this week, but I urge them to come early since we do have the limited enrollment."

The YMCA will be open from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturday, September 3 for final enrollment into the program despite information in the brochure which lists the deadline as September 1.

"The pushing back of school one week has forced us to move our times back also," Huard explained for the difference.

The league this year will have two divisions, a "Colt" division for 3rd and 4th grade players, and a "Mustang" division for 5th and 6th graders. League play will begin September 17.

"If we don't get enough players to form two separate divisions, we will combine all the teams into one," Huard said.

Cost of registration is $6 for YMCA members and $10 for non members. The price includes a shirt which the player gets to keep. Also, adult supervision, instruction, insurance, awards, and use of equipment are covered by the registration fee.

All league games will be played at Northwest and Tierra Blanca Elementary Schools on Saturdays. All players will be assigned to a team on Wednesday, September 7.

"We will have a coaches' meeting at 7:15 p.m. on that date and will assign players. The coaches will then contact the players," Huard added.

The director said that coaches, as well as assistant coaches and officials are needed for the league this year.

Oiler Line Better

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oiler offensive line last season was often a minor irritation for opposing defensive linemen en route to pilfering the Oiler backfield.

Houston's rushing attack was among the most anemic in the National Football League, finishing 27th among the 28 NFL teams. The offensive line got much of the credit for Houston's running success - most of it deserved.

But that was last year and the San Francisco 49ers likely will find more resistance Monday night when they meet the Oilers in the Astro dome in an NFL exhibition game.

Source of the improvement this preseason can be traced to new offensive line coach Joe Bugel, who made a couple of position switches, threw in a street-fighter rookie and provided generous doses of encouragement.

"We needed to get our offensive line together, to freshen their enthusiasm," said Bugel, who came here from Detroit with new offensive coordinator Ken Shipp. "We picked up a couple of young puppies from the draft and really tried to incorporate a hard-hitting line."

"Those guys were beat and battered. Their pride was almost taken away from them so we just rebuilt as far as pride relationships in our line."

Rookie running back hopeful Horace Belton, who rushed 60 yards on 10 carries against Chicago, was very appreciative of the offensive line.

"Some of those holes were so big I wanted to stop and look at them awhile," he said.

Although the Oilers still are looking for their first preseason victory in two years, the

The game will be another meeting between prize first round quarterback picks of 1971, Dan Pastorini of the Oilers and Jim Plunkett of the 49ers. Kickoff is at 8 p.m.

The Minnesota Vikings not only have lost all four Super Bowl games they have played in but have never been ahead in one.

Texas Uses Homers To Squash Yankees

By The Associated Press

It was a good day for the long-ball hitters Saturday.

The Texas Rangers slammed five home runs, including two by Bump Wills, to support Bert Blyleven's six-hitter and defeat the New York Yankees 8-2 Saturday.

Two of Texas' round-trippers were consecutive inside-the-park shots. Toby Harrah lifted a fly ball to deep right field with two men on in the seventh. Yankees right fielder Lou Piniella crashed into the wall attempting to catch the ball, which bounced halfway back to the infield. Harrah circled the bases before the ball was retrieved.

Wills, who slammed a Mike Torrez delivery into the upper deck in the fourth, then belted a drive to deep center field which bounced off Mickey Rivers' glove and rolled all the way to the fence. Wills scored easily for his ninth homer of the year.

Mike Hargrove led off the game with his 13th homer and ninth in his last 17 games for Texas and Bert Campaneris swatted one leading off the fifth. Craig Nettles hit his 31st homer of the year for New York tying him with George Scott and Bobby Bonds for the American League lead.

The loss snapped Torrez seven-game winning streak and was Blyleven's 12th win in 23 decisions.

Boston crept within two games of first-place New York in the AL East with a 7-5 triumph over Minnesota. Home runs by Scott, Tommy Helms, Butch Hobson and Rob Montgomery provided much of Boston's offense.

The Red Sox tied the major league record for back-to-back homers during a season with 15 as Helms and Hobson hit consecutive home runs in the third inning.

Detroit edged California 7-6 as Milt May hit a pair of home runs, his second blast providing the winning run in the eighth inning. Jason Thompson also homered for Detroit and Tony Solaita hit one out for California.

The Oakland A's defeated Toronto 9-8 as Billy North led an 18-hit, six-stolen-base assault with three hits and two steals. The A's, who collected a hit in every inning, won their fourth game in a row.

In National League day games, Cincinnati edged Philadelphia 6-5 on two-out ninth-inning home runs by Dan Diessen, an inside-the-park job, and Johnny Bench. Morgan had his 20th home run for Cincinnati while Mike Schmidt hit his third for Philadelphia.

Bob Knepper pitched a three-hitter and Jack Clark drove in three runs as San Francisco defeated Chicago 7-1.

In night action, Seattle was at Cleveland, Kansas City visited Baltimore and Milwaukee opposed Chicago in the American League and New York was at Atlanta and Montreal played Houston in the National League.

In late games on the West Coast, Pittsburgh played San Diego and Los Angeles hosted St. Louis.

Chinese Take Win

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Pitcher Chiaing Chen-jung, whose .833 batting average set a new tournament record, drove in two runs with three singles and fired a four-hitter Saturday to lead Li-Teh Little League of Taiwan to a 7-2 victory over Western Little League of El Cajon, Calif., in the championship game of the 31st annual Little League World Series.

The title was the ninth in the last 11 years for a Far East representative to the tournament.

The 5-foot-5, 143-pound Chen-jung, who batted 10-for-12 with 10 RBI in three games in the tourney, hit a two-run single in the first inning after a pair of walks and a wild pitch.

The Taiwan team added another run on an error to take a 3-0 first-inning lead they never relinquished.

Penn State, Rutgers Top College Openers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Tony Dorsett is gone. Darrell Royal is gone. Frank Broyles is gone.

College football is back. With eight more teams newly classified as major football schools by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, bringing the total to 144, the 1977 season gets underway next weekend with a modest slate of 19 games, only two of which feature any sort of pretender to the national championship.

Penn State, long the dominant team in the East until unseated by Pitt last year, and upstart Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak is the longest in the major college ranks, kick things off Friday night at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

On Saturday, Mississippi State, another highly rated club, entertains North Texas State.

Of the 144 major schools, no fewer than 25 — including defending national champion Pitt — have new head coaches. Johnny Majors, the miracle worker who led Pitt to glory, albeit with some assistance from Tony Dorsett & Co., has moved on and will try to restore Tennessee, his alma mater, to some of its past prestige.

Replacing Majors at Pitt is Jackie Sherrill, who was Majors' top aide until he went off to become head coach at Washington State for one year.

Other prominent coaching changes find Fred Akers, who led Wyoming to a share of the Western Athletic Conference crown and a berth in the Fiesta Bowl, replacing the ultra-successful Royal at Texas. Lou Holtz, who discovered pro life with the New York Jets wasn't to his liking, returns to the college ranks at Arkansas. Both Royal and Broyles remain on at their respective institutions as athletic directors.

Lou Saban, another former pro coach, is back with the undergraduates at Miami, Fla. In addition, Bob Blackman, who couldn't crack the Big Ten domination of Ohio State and Michigan in six years at Illinois after a celebrated career at Dartmouth, returns to the Ivy League with Cornell. His successor at Illinois is Gary Moeller, a former member of the Michigan staff.

Besides the moves made by Majors and Sherrill, the game of musical coaching chairs finds Tony Mason going from Cincinnati to Arizona, Jim Young from Arizona to Purdue, Wayne Howard from Long Beach to Utah and F.A. Dry from Tulsa to Texas Christian.

Other new head coaches are Denny Stolz at Bowling Green, Ralph Staub of Cincinnati, Charley Pell at Clemson, Chuch Shelton at Drake, Dick Tomey at Hawaii, Charlie Cowdrey at Illinois State, Dave Currey at Long Beach State, Rich Brooks at Oregon, Bill Michael at Texas - El Paso, Chuck Stobart at Toledo, John Cooper at Tulsa, Warren Powers at Washington State, Bill Yung at West Texas State and Bill Lewis at Wyoming.

The eight new major college teams are Alcorn State, Grambling State, Jackson State, Southern University, Tennessee - Chattanooga, Tennessee State, Texas Southern and Western Carolina: UT - Chattanooga and Western Carolina are new members of the Southern Conference, along with Marshall, while the others belong to the predominantly black Southwestern Athletic Conference.

The rest of next Saturday's schedule includes Wofford at The Citadel, Alabama State at Jackson State, Western Carolina at Jacksonville State, Memphis State vs. Mississippi at Jackson, Miss., East Carolina at North Carolina State, Texas-Arlington at Northwestern Louisiana and Appalachian State at South Carolina.

Also, Tulsa at Southwestern Louisiana, Middle Tennessee at Tennessee State, Southern Mississippi vs. Troy State at Montgomery, Ala., Norfolk State at William & Mary, Alcorn State at Central Michigan, Eastern Illinois at Illinois State, Dayton at Miami of Ohio, Eastern Michigan at Northern Illinois, West Texas State at Wichita State and Southern Illinois at New Mexico State.

Ever wonder who pays for all those lawsuits you've been reading about?

The right to sue is basic to the American legal system. But lately there's been an enormous increase in the number of liability claims. For example, medical malpractice claims have been soaring, and a similar trend is now appearing in products liability.

And not only has the number of claims been escalating, but the amount of money involved has been increasing dramatically, too.

These are some of the reasons why you and every one who buys liability insurance must pay higher premiums.

Insurance, after all, is simply a means of spreading risk. Insurance companies collect premiums from many people and compensate those who have losses.

The price of insurance must reflect the rising cost of paying for those losses and the expense of handling them. That's why your insurance premiums have been going up.

No one likes higher prices. But we're telling it straight.

San Quentin Warden Hopes To Control Inmates, Problems

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) - Bury "Big George" Sumner, warden of San Quentin Prison, glared across the shiny conference table and spit out the words like they were tough meat: "We will be in control!"

Despite all the authority the 6-foot-3, 250-pound prison boss put into the statement, it remains more hope than fact. For San Quentin, in the 125th anniversary of its tempestuous existence on a sunny hook of land jutting into San Francisco Bay, is a prison in crisis.

In July, gang-inspired racial battles left three convicts dead. Now, nearly a third of the cons are "locked down" in the east block - 600 men penned in their cells all day under maximum security.

Another 100, hardened gang leaders and members, are isolated under the gun in the north block with little likelihood of ever returning to the main population. The rest go about their business within the walls in an uneasy peace. Sumner prays will stick. Officers scan this last group for "underground" gang members who face the north block if found.

"I don't have any reason to believe the same thing would not happen again," Sumner admitted ruefully of the day of violence.

His main complaints is one shared in varying degrees by most of the men who have held the warden's post at one of the world's most notorious penitentiaries.

In short, trouble brews when hard cases are mixed with peaceful inmates who are unable to defend themselves against hate-filled crazies whose solution to disputes is sudden death at the end of a filed-down spoon.

"I think the great, great majority of inmates want to have a peaceful, tranquil place," he said in an interview. "But we've been at the mercy of gangs for some time. We were controlled."

"If they decided they wanted to kill somebody, we weren't in a position to do a heck of a lot about it."

On July 12, the decision came. Sumner said it was little consolation that the bloody explosions were the result of a "mistake" that pitted the normally peaceful Black Muslims against the Nazi-type whites of the American National Socialists and Satan's Few motorcyclists.

As Sumner told it, the whites mistakenly killed a Muslim in the morning, thinking he was a member of the Black Guerrilla Family. The Muslims, who profess to be law-abiding and aloof from the troublemakers, backed up a standing threat to retaliate when one of their members is hurt.

Nine hours later, the warring factions clashed with clubs and knives, turning prison corridors into a bloody battlefield. When it was over another two inmates, whites, were dead, including a man who was hurled from a third-story tier.

Within a few percentage points, the racial mix at 2,200-inmate San Quentin is fairly representative of the statewide prison population: White, 41.9 per cent; black, 39.7; Mexican-American, 16.7; other 1.7. The average age at Q is about 30.

Sumner says there are signs peace may return to the old bastille now that the gangs are isolated from the mainline. The warden guesses the "really hopeless bad guys" make up no more than 2 or 3 per cent of all inmates, and "the guys that belong to the gangs and have to do what the gangs decide at between 15 and 20 per cent at most."

The segregation, says Sumner, has brought hope to the peaceful inmates who could not stand up to the killers.

"Now that most of the gang guys are out of the population, the peaceful prisoners are expressing opinions that it's a good thing," he said. "It's my intention to keep the gang guys completely separate from the rest of the prison."

In the same vein, Sumner plans to create a number of small "prisons within a prison," in the face of the legislature's rejection this year of an administration proposal for $92 million to build at least two new flexible-security prisons in California.

"I'm trying to divide San Quentin up into small sections...It's impossible to work with masses of people," Sumner said.

Even in the hard-bitten north block, swarming with hostility, Sumner entertains hopes of spiritual reconstruction.

"I think some of the gangs can be dissolved, if we can work with these people as individuals and have them make individual decisions." Then Sumner sets his jaw again:

"As far as the gangs go, we have to be in control - and I'm going to do so. And they know it."

He admits to much anxiety about the crowded east block, calling it a "large, unmanageable situation," and the inmates there "600 question marks." He adds wistfully:

"It's hard to really know inmates...It's difficult to determine when to let them out. I don't have any reason to believe the same thing repeat violence would not happen."

Sumner is unhappy with the lockdown because "it's unfair. When lockdowns occur, many who aren't guilty of anything are locked up with the bad ones."

He noted with profound disappointment that feelings guided his release of a lockdown prior to the July killings.

He said he had met with gang leaders "and impressed on them my intention of having a peaceful prison here. They assured me they would work together in harmony. They made truces with each other...then they went out and broke them."

The gang members, he said in a voice that almost trailed to a whisper, "trusted each other, but it didn't come about...They were inundated by their own hatred for each other."

Governors of Southern States Asked To Okay Gas Phasing

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Governors of Southern states meeting this week in San Antonio are being asked to approve "phased" deregulation of recently produced natural gas.

Another proposed resolution likely to stir discussion at the 43rd annual meeting is one opposing any treaty that alters or removes the existing control over the Panama Canal.

Seven policy statements and resolutions to be considered by the governors have been pre-filed with the Southern Governors Conference.

Conference action on the resolutions will come when the resolutions committee reports Tuesday.

The proposed energy policy statement was prefilled by Oklahoma Gov. David L. Boren, chairman of the conference energy committee.

A similar stand on deregulation of natural gas was adopted recently at a meeting of Mid-western governors. Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Southern Governors' Conference chairman, said at the time that he hoped the Southern governors would follow with a stand on "phased" deregulation.

The policy statement sent to Southern governors for pre-conference study includes the specific recommendation that "federal legislation should be enacted which would remove wellhead price controls on new natural gas. The legislation should also contain provisions designed to limit or eliminate windfall profits. The deregulation should be phased into effect to mitigate its impact on consumers."

The policy statement on energy also calls for "maximum efforts" to develop all outer Continental Shelf areas including the Atlantic seaboard; for a maximum but reasonable time to replace natural gas with coal as a boiler fuel; for a study to see if the federal government should "oversee" renovation of railroad beds for long-haul coal transportation, at no cost to the taxpayer, and for federal support of both nuclear fission and fusion for future energy.

The Panama Canal resolution, submitted by Louisiana Gov. Edwin E. Edwards said the proximity of the canal to the Southern states "makes its continued control and operation under terms of the existing treaty imperative."

Other policy statements and resolutions to be considered by the Southern governors include:

- A statement submitted by North Carolina Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. urging the states and federal government to recognize the needs of the nation's smaller cities along with metropolitan areas for a "national balanced growth policy."

- A statement proposed by Georgia Gov. George Busbee urging Congress to reserve for American businessmen all the advantages, "morally and economically equitable," in multi-national markets competition.

- A resolution by South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards in support of the Southern States Water Council.

- A resolution asking the federal government to put Puerto Rico under the jurisdiction of Federal Region IV with headquarters in Atlanta.

- A resolution supporting a pending congressional act (HR7200) that would extend the Supplemental Security Income Program to the Virgin Islands and other off-shore areas.

UFO Conference Draws Believers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - At one table, "UFO Magazine" and "Flying Saucer Digest" were selling next to "The Zeta Reticuli Incident." Sales of "UFOs - Myth and Mystery" were, well, astronomical.

A few feet away, a man named Alpha hawked "UFO kits" stuffed with star maps between snatches of conversation with a man wearing a moon pendant and a lightning-bolt T-shirt.

The gathering of zanies and serious students of the extra-terrestrial was the 14th annual National UFO - Unidentified Flying Object - Conference. It came complete with brainy-looking kids behind inch-thick glasses, young mothers bouncing babies on their knees and tweedy scientific types.

About 500 fans of the far-out packed the hotel ballroom to hear speeches, trade UFO stories and speculate about why more and more little green men seem to be touching down on Planet Earth.

The conference was keynoted by Stanton Friedman, a self-described "Ralph Nader of the UFO world" and nuclear physicist who has made a career of contradicting government reports debunking UFOs.

"The government's investigation of UFOs has been completely inadequate," he said. "Sightings by military people, like pilots, are reported to the Air Force's Air Defense Command, where they slap an immediate security clamp on the information."

After years of working for government space contractors and seeing what secrets the government keeps, Friedman came to believe flying saucers are real and the government knows it - but is keeping its mouth shut.

"They're out there all right, and the government is aware of it. But even if you've seen the saucers, wait'll you see the drivers," he said.

In the 1950s, when he worked on nuclear powered aircraft-engines, Friedman said he thought the whole idea of gleaming saucers running cars off country roads and aliens in the neighborhood was crazy.

Then, in 1955, he read Project Bluebook's Report 14.

Project Bluebook was a 20-year-long investigation by the Air Force of reported UFO sightings by military personnel, especially fighter pilots.

In its heyday, Friedman said,

Project Bluebook consisted of a major, a desk sergeant and a couple of filing cabinets. He said much evidence documenting the existence of saucers was intentionally covered up and will never surface.

It Sims to Me...

Show-Biz Congress

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Remember 25-cent movies? I don't. When I was a kid—which probably wasn't as long ago as most of the readers of the editorial page—the only shows that cost a quarter were Saturday morning kiddie matinees.

The good entertainment cost 50 cents. That doesn't sound anything like a quarter but it's still a far cry from the 3 bucks I spend to view a movie in Amarillo.

Note to Bob Ostercamp, manager of Hereford's Star Theatre—I mentioned Amarillo because I was a kid there. I am not too avid a movie fan these days but I must say you are doing a service for charging just $1.75.

Inflation has similarly affected haircuts (I remember the times I painfully endured a 75-cent burr), shoes (a pair of Keds used to cost me 2 bucks) and, come to think of it, everything else.

And when inflation causes the business to raise its prices, who pays? We—the folks who once had to drain our porcelain pigs for a quarter to watch something like "Lassie Meets the Creature from Outer Space" on Saturday morning—that's who.

It's a fact of life—the business raises its prices and the consumer pays.

A hospital is a business in a way. It provides a service. The major difference is a hospital operates not to make a profit but to provide that service while staying reasonably within a fixed budget.

Still—the hospital raises its prices and the consumer pays.

To keep hospital costs at an affordable level, Congress seems sure to pass a law limiting yearly cost increases to 9 per cent. Sounds good, doesn't it?

Not when you consider another law certain to be passed—an escalating minimum wage which will start next year at $2.65.

John C. Gavras, the executive director of the Dallas Hospital Council, wrote to Senator Lloyd Bentsen and other members of the Texas congressional delegation about these two laws, which when combined will mean disaster for some, if not most, hospitals.

The letter, in part, read:

"Dear Senator Bentsen:
"It appears Congress with the one hand is ready to pass a minimum wage bill and with the other hand requires hospitals to contain cost. The statistics below should illustrate what kind of impact the increase in minimum wage will have on Dallas hospitals."

Dallas area hospitals had total payroll expenses in 1976 of about $141,000,000. If the minimum wage is upped from $2.30 to $2.65, the new payroll would total $162,361,000, a 15.2 per cent increase. Total hospital expenses would increase exactly 8 per cent.

Most economists expect inflation to continue in the 5-7 per cent range for a few more years, at least. If the minimum wage legislation raises hospital costs by 8 per cent and inflation adds another 6 per cent and President Carter gets his law limiting hospital rate increases to 9 per cent a year, the effect is obvious.

It doesn't take an economist to see that under those conditions, hospitals would be losing money.

"Hospitals throughout the state feel the same way," says Ron Welty, administrator of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

"There's an inconsistent approach being taken toward hospitals. It limits our cost increases and, on the other hand, the are legislating cost increases.

"If they tie this to an escalation of the minimum wage, that would take it to $2.69 in the next year. So it would not only have that type of impact next year, but the next year and the year after that.

"Hospitals aren't miracle workers. We are expected to purchase our goods or services—nobody gives them to us. If we have legislative cost increases, we HAVE to pass it along to our patients.

"It's this simple—a hospital has to recover its cost or close its doors."

Hospitals will try different ways to recover their costs. It is obvious that employees will lose jobs. Gavras said, "The hospital industry makes every effort to employ our young people. This legislation is going to make it more difficult to continue this practice and the 'escalation' provision will surely see its demise."

Asked whether the legislation could affect summer-relief help at Deaf Smith General, Welty said, "It certainly could."

There is another cruel, but sometimes unavoidable, fact of life—if a business goes out of business, everyone's job is lost.

A law designed to help employees may cost employees their jobs.

Gas: Tax Dilemma

A recent Harris poll confirms something we knew already: Gasoline prices are going to have to rise a lot higher before Americans reduce their consumption by any substantial degree.

The opinion samplers found that if gasoline went to 75 cents a gallon, 43 per cent of car owners said they would cut back on their pleasure driving; at $1 a gallon, 64 per cent would; and at the European level of $2 a gallon, 78 per cent would.

What the latest figure means is that even if the current average price of gasoline tripled, about one in four Americans would still drive as usual.

As for those who drive to work, at $2 a gallon only a slight majority—54 per cent—said they would think about car pooling or using public transportation.

But since Congress rejected President Carter's proposal to raise the federal tax to 50 cents a gallon (from its present four cents) by 1985, and since OPEC is not likely to quadruple its crude oil prices again at one fell swoop (which doubled U.S. gasoline prices), how then are we to achieve any meaningful gains in conservation?

Taxation, which is ineffective at low levels and unfair at high levels, is out—except insofar as the billions in added revenue from a four or five-cent increase could be used to encourage public transportation.

Nor are we ready to endorse rationing, with all the opportunity for boondoggling and corruption that would entail.

That leaves us with what we are doing now—arm-twisting the automakers to produce more efficient cars and exhorting the public to obey the 55 m.p.h. limit and reduce all nonessential driving.

Penultimate Word

Of all the handy things in this world, what do you think is the handiest?

There is an old saying about being as handy as a pocket on a shirt. A pocket on a shirt is handy but now it is hard to find a shirt that has a pocket.

I guess the handiest thing in the world is God. Anytime we need someone to blame something on He is handier than a pocket on a shirt.

Case in point. Con Ed has a blackout in New York City. Millions of dollars in losses result. Lawsuits could last for years. In the nick of time Con Ed says, "It was an act of God." Don't blame us, don't sue us, don't even be mad at us. He did it." Trouble is you can't sue God.

This somehow hits me rather funny. Since when is Con Ed so religious? Since when did they ever indicate they even believed in a being called God? Why not an act of nature? Why not the work of the Devil? Why not the gremlins of World War II? Nope, God zapped us with lightning.

Richard Lesh:

No Right To Strike

WASHINGTON—Did you see those pictures of the people in Dayton, Ohio, watching their homes going up in flames, while the union firemen stood by on strike? One man's home was destroyed when the Dayton firefighters not only refused to do their duty, but also threatened firefighters from nearby towns who were trying to help him.

I don't know of a better illustration of the danger to society posed by public employee unions.

An arsonist who caused property damage and perhaps even loss of life would be thrown in jail for a long term. A businessman whose negligence caused similar trouble would face civic suits. But the union member gets a raise and more time off. A 6.2 per cent raise in the Dayton case, plus other benefits.

What is it about banding together to extort money from the taxpayers that confers immunity from the law? The final paragraph of the New York Times August 11 story on the Dayton debacle reports: "Despite the existence of a state law prohibiting strikes by public employees, city officials indicated that they would take no disciplinary action..." This outcome is rather sadly typical of the way many public officials uphold their responsibilities when confronted by a militant union.

In a curiously worded editorial in the same edition, the Times appears to rationalize such behavior: "Studies have shown that whether strikes are legal is not the decisive question in keeping order. The threat of injunction and punishment are tools in negotiation...In the end, labor negotiations are contests for public

So, OK, God did it. All I am requesting is that He be given equal time for His good side. How come He is only acknowledged when something bad happens?

Fourteen feet of snow in Buffalo is an act of God. Beautiful sunshine and mild days are brought to you by the Chamber of Commerce.

Killer tornadoes are an act of God. Gentle rains come from the weatherman on T.V.

I keep wanting to tell Con Ed, "If you are going to call the disaster an act of God, how about a commercial like: 'We are happy to announce that there were no blackouts today. We do not claim any credit for this. It is the benevolence of God that kept the juices flowing. We are so grateful for this we are giving a tenth of today's income to the poor.'

It seems only fair that if He is to blame when the stuff goes off, He must be somewhat in charge when the stuff stays on!! Make sense??

Warm fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Talk Of Texas

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY—San Antonio is Texas' oldest planned municipality.

Its is not the oldest settlement. That is claimed by Ysleta (now a part of El Paso) where the Tigua Indians settled in 1680 and built a mission church in 1682. San Augustine, in East Texas, traces its origins to 1716 when the first Spanish mission was built there. San Antonio, which had been an Indian village for many years, didn't get its first mission until 1718.

In 1722, the King of Spain, impatient at the slow progress of colonization in Texas under the mission system, decided to create a municipality. He picked the mission San Antonio de Valero as the site and announced that he would dispatch 400 families from the Canary Islands to populate the new city.

There was not great rush by the Canary Islanders to accept the king's invitation, however. To encourage immigration, the Spanish government in 1729 ordered every ship leaving Havana to carry at least ten to 12 families headed for Texas. By the end of that year, the first group of Canary Island colonists were in Mexico and bound for Texas.

In March 1731, the first 15 families arrived at the presidio of San Antonio de Bexar and its mission, San Antonio de Valero (now the Alamo). As the first settlers, the viceroy of Mexico conferred on them the title of "Hijos Dalgos," or "hidalgos" as we term it today. From their number, the new settlers were instructed to establish a government and elect officials to run it.

The new settlers laid out a townsite on the west bank of the San Antonio River and each family was given a block of land 240 feet square on which to build a home. Thus was born the first planned city in Texas.

ALL IN THE FAMILY—The William P. Hobbys are not the only father-son team to hold high elective office in Texas.

George T. Jester of Corsicana was lieutenant governor of Texas from 1894 to 1898. In 1946, his son, Bessford, was elected governor of the state and was reelected in 1948. He died the next year, the only Texas governor to die in office.

William P. Hobby, Sr., was lieutenant governor in 1917 and moved into the governor's office when James E. Ferguson was impeached. His son was elected lieutenant governor in 1973.

IT'S THE LAW—Texas is one of the few states where it's perfectly legal to drink while driving.

Although sipping a cocktail or a beer while tottling the expressway is acceptable behavior driving while drunk is not. Even drinking a can of beer while touring in a legally dry area can mean a trip to the calaboose.

Bootleg Philosopher:

Country Banking

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm gets in pretty deep this week discussing finances.

Dear Editor:
In examining the tangled financial affairs of Director Bert Lance of the Office of Budget and Management, one Washington expert complained about "sloppy country banking."

As I understand this, he means there's a difference between country banking and city banking, with the implication that city banking is superior.

What I want to know is where can I get hold of a list of some of those superior banks? For example, one of the biggest banks in Atlanta has just discontinued paying stockholders any dividend because it has lost too much money on bad loans. It's a shame to get in on that, but if that Washington expert will let me in on the names of other big city banks in the business of making bad loans, I'd like to get in line. All the country banks around here believe in making only good loans.

As I understand Mr. Lance's situation, he borrowed money from one city bank to buy stock in another city bank, then when the first bank's

Runaway Wives

Runaway wives constitute an increasing social phenomenon. This is not about that—exactly.

Resiliveness to "get away from it all" if only for a while—heretofore an escape from boredom mostly for males—now motivates increasingly independent women.

This is about one of them.

Sabina Shalom is 47. British by birth. More recently a resident, with her husband, of Miami, Fla. Stocky, middle-aged mother of two.

She had everything she wanted, was agonizingly bored.

Says she was "rotting away," doing nothing productive, growing grossly fat.

So when a letter from a friend in Australia invited her to visit there, she asked for sabbatical from her 25-year marriage.

To her husband of 25 years she said, "Our sons are grown now—22 and 24—and I'm doing nothing but cooking and washing dishes."

She said, "You'd give any household servant a day off each week. In 25 years I'm due three years vacation with pay; I'll settle for one note came due he borrowed from a third bank to meet that note. Washington experts try to make this sound complicated. Mr. Lance's problem is simple: he ran out of banks.

Now there are some people who're saying, when they learned that about everything Mr. Lance has, is mortgaged to the hilt, that he shouldn't be in charge of managing the government's financial affairs when he's having so much trouble managing his own. This should not be put to a popular vote. He'd win hands down if he got the votes of everybody in America whose house, boat, both cars, lawnmower, television set, washing machine, dish washer, etc., are owed on.

I know a man who, fighting to pay his bills, sat down one day and figured up all the monthly payments he's signed up for and discovered they came to more than his monthly income.

I don't know of any country bank interested in interviewing him for a job. He'd do better to apply to some superior city bank or, if that fails, try the government job.

Yours faithfully,

"What'll I do about food?" her pragmatic husband asked.

She suggested a season ticket at the local delicatessen. He agreed.

Mrs. Shalom says, "Midst a lot of chaos, my husband is pure gold."

She strapped a pack on her back and set out to see the world.

There were some hairy encounters. There was a lecherous photographer in Tahiti.

The mudmen of New Guinea spoke to high heaven.

Roads were often hazardous and sometimes upsetting.

And a couple of remarks indicate that her adventure might have a less than happy ending.

Was her runaway the result of middle-age fidgets or, a bold declaration of independence? She says she has never felt the need to be liberated.

But then she adds, "I may return to my husband."

This escapable inference was the same as not.

The Lighter Side

CONCORN, N.H. (AP) - The New Hampshire Senate, trying to find a way to keep the money-short state government operating after Oct. 20 without enacting new taxes, has had to seek professional help.

Interrupting a debate on the need for mental health centers and programs for the retarded, the senators last week watched a magician saw his wife in half in the Senate chamber.

The magician, a Laconia man known as "Nasciemento," said he wanted "to show them how to cut the budget without drawing blood."

New Hampshire, the only state without a general sales or income tax, is operating on a temporary budget until Oct. 20. The lawmakers have been unable all summer to agree on how to reconcile dwindling revenues from other sources with the escalating costs of state government despite three attempts to come up with a balanced budget.

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Public sympathy for two Navy enlisted women who were photographed shoeless at a Navy dress formation apparently has persuaded the service to abandon plans to court martial the women.

Photographs of the women standing at the rear of a formation of hundreds of North Island Naval Air Station sailors appeared recently in a San Diego newspaper, leading to a Navy announcement Monday that the women were being placed on report for being out of uniform.

Other Navy women standing under a hot sun at the lengthy change-of-command ceremony also had removed their high heel pumps, but since they were not in the photograph the Navy said it was unable to identify them. The names of the two it did identify have not been released.

But Thursday, after receiving a flood of protests from women around the country, both civilian and military, the Navy said it had decided not to subject the women to trials and, if convicted, up to 30 days at hard labor.

Instead, the women got a simple warning not to repeat the offense, according to Capt. David Harlow, commander of North Island.

SEATTLE (AP) - The sign read "Wanted: Browsers. Experience Helpful But Not Necessary."

Roxan Jantz and Sam Clemens of Seattle decided to find out how serious the owners of the Different Drummer book store were by staging a "browse-in."

They fell eight hours short of their goal Thursday when they finally called it quits 160 hours after the first book was picked up, but the pair claim they have set a record in bookstore browsing.

Manager Bud Tinsley said the store was kept open 24 hours a day while Ms. Jantz and Clemens, both 25, picked their way from the science fiction section through comic books and poetry, with only two, 2-hour breaks a day for sleep.

Once an hour, someone would check to make sure the eyelids were still open and the pages still flipping.

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) - The federal government will clamp down this week on use of a potent pesticide linked to sterility among men who helped make the product at Dow Chemical Co. The chemical also caused cancer in laboratory animals.

Dow, headquartered here, has asked its 250 worldwide distributors to return supplies of DBCP - dibromochloropropane - until it can determine what went wrong.

In Washington, the U.S. Labor Department said Thursday it would issue temporary emergency standards for the chemical to limit the public's exposure. The labor department urged chemical companies to protect workers who use it.

The Environmental Protection Agency also said Thursday it is working with the Food and Drug Administration to see if any DBCP residues remain in food crops that might pose a danger to the public.

It also said its regional offices are testing soil and water near major DBCP manufacturing and formulation plants.

Federal officials stopped short of banning the sale of pesticides containing DBCP, however, as at least one consumer group had asked.

Dow officials said their action was precautionary. There is no evidence the chemical, marketed by Dow under the trade name Fumazone, poses a hazard to farmers who handle it only occasionally.

It is used mainly by fruit farmers in California and Hawaii and soybean farmers in the Midwest to kill microscopic worms that nibble roots and stunt crops.

The federal action will temporarily reduce the amount of DBCP that can be included in pesticides that use it as a base. That standard will be in effect while data on the pesticide is reviewed and a permanent standard is set. That could take six months to a year.

The labor department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration OSHA also urged pesticide processors who use DBCP to reduce airborne concentrations of the chemical as much as possible and to test workers for adverse effects.

Dow and Shell Oil Co., the only other domestic producer of DBCP, both halted production of the pesticide after tests on workers at Dow's Magnolia, Ark., plant showed several men with abnormally low sperm counts or no sperm at all. Further tests on 75 workers showed half with sterility problems.

Shell sold its product as Nemagon Soil Fumigant. Ten workers who handled Dow-produced DBCP at the Occidental Chemical Corp., in a Lathrop, Calif., also showed no sperm or extremely low levels.

The company also stopped producing DBCP products.

An important message to our customers.

The House of Representatives has just voted to raise the price of your electricity! And the Senate is looking at the same Legislation. These bills are going to cost you plenty - nearly $50,000,000 a year for the next ten years. That's almost half a billion dollars!

Who cares? Of course you care. And we care. That's the reason we want you to know what's happening in Washington.

Not only did the House vote to raise your electric bill, there's a strong chance you'll get less reliable service, too. The Government is trying to take over regulation of your electric company. That's right! A Washington bureaucrat will decide who gets electric power and how much instead of your state and local officials.

That means your electric company will lose control over how we operate our own power transmission lines and facilities. We might not be able to give you - our customers - first priority. The Federal Government could use some of the money you pay for your electric service to make your electric company build a transmission line for a government-subsidized utility. You pay twice that way - in your electric bill and in your taxes. And you don't even get to use the line.

Let's not beat around the bush. The cost of doing business is going up. It costs you more for your electric service than it used to. But now when you pay your electric bill, you pay only what it costs to serve you, plus a controlled profit, so that we can keep updating our generation facilities and our technology to keep serving you better.

Well, if some Congressmen have their way, some people will pay less than their fair share of the electricity cost. Who will decide who gets the special rates? You can bet it won't be you... or us... or our state and local government who know our needs best.

It will be some government official in Washington! There's a whole lot more bad news in this legislation that has passed the House and is now being considered in the Senate. It's all part of Senate Bill 1469, Part E... and... Now for more bad news... Senate Bill 1472!

That's a dandy. It's the one that taxes you because some of your electricity is generated with natural gas. The gas users' tax is a case of the Government telling us to build coal-fired power plants faster than you can afford them.

It's as though the folks in Washington just woke up one day and decided there was an energy crisis and decided to try to right all the wrongs over night. The facts are that your electric company has been doing something about our diminishing natural gas reserves for more than six years. We haven't planned or constructed a gas-fired generation facility since 1971. And since that same time we've been planning to use coal as our primary generation fuel. We've just completed and put into operation Harrington Station - a coal-fired Generation plant near Amarillo.

But we need the opportunity to phase out the gas-fired facilities at a savings economical to you, our customers. New power plants cost money... cost you money, because you are our only source of money. We have a program that makes it possible for us to stop using natural gas to make electricity by 1995 at the latest.

It's a program you can afford. It's a program that will help alleviate rising costs. Sure, you'll pay more for electricity in the future. You'll be paying more for everything, but under our plan you'll pay a lot less than you'll have to pay if Senate Bill 1472 passes. $423,000,000 less between 1983 and 1990.

Why? Because Senate Bill 1472 says that even though we are building coal-fired power plants as fast as you can afford them, you're still going to be penalized, by almost a half billion dollars. Just because some staff member in Congress thinks you should build them faster. And remember it is your money that builds these new plants.

The Good News in all this is that your Congressmen voted against raising your electric bill, voted against giving you poor service... but he was out-voted. Now what you can do is write your United States Senator (His name and address are printed below for your convenience) and tell him to vote against Part E in Senate Bill 1469 and against the gas users' tax in Senate Bill 1472. Why? BECAUSE YOU CAN'T AFFORD THESE BILLS. And that's a darn good reason. Let the people in Washington know that YOU CARE what they're doing with YOUR MONEY!

Thank you

Thursday Opening Day For 1977 Dove Season

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Outdoors Writer
Panhandle-area scattergunners will be unlimbering their shotguns Thursday for the opening day of the 1977 mourning dove season. DOVE SEASON traditionally marks the transition period from summer doldrums to hot action for local wingshooting enthusiasts who have waterfowl, quail and pheasant seasons to look forward to later in the fall and winter.

Deaf Smith County hunters may have to travel south in order to find an abundance of the speed-burning doves as the season opens this year.

Chuck Cosper, Hereford-based Texas Parks & Wildlife Department game warden commented on the local dove outlook, saying, "There are a lot of doves in the local area right now, but we'll probably have a cold snap coming through before very long and they'll be driven away."

Cosper was referring to the dove's decided dislike for cold weather.

AT THE first hint of chilly weather, doves often migrate southward, and in the far northern portions of the Panhandle, may be present for only a small portion of the season.

Many area hunters who want to bag their share of the popular little gamebirds drive "off the cap", descending the Caprock into outstanding dove habitat.

Motley and Briscoe counties are particularly good dove hunting areas, and a gunner is set for fine shooting if he can locate a feeding field, watering hole or flyway.

There have been some notable changes in the regulations affecting dove hunters in the North Zone this year, particularly a provision for all-day dove hunting.

LEGAL SHOOTING hours this year will be from 30 minutes before sunrise until sunset during the Sept. 1-Oct. 30 North Zone season.

Bag limit is 10 birds and possession limit is 20.

Doves are among America's most popular gamebirds, with up to 40 million being harvested by hunters in recent years.

There is an incredibly high mortality rate among the dove population and the number taken by hunters is only a small portion of the number which perish due to natural causes each year.

A HIGH reproductive capacity allows the dove population to withstand such drastic population turnovers.

Hunters expend an average of four shells per bird bagged, and may polish up their wingshooting skills on doves for the bigger gamebirds to be hunted later in the season.

Local sportsmen will have an opportunity to hunt yet another small and speedy gamebird only a few short days after the opening of dove season as the state once again conducts its special early teal season.

The early season gives local gunners an opportunity to bag blue-winged teal during their migration to the rice growing areas along the Texas coast.

BLUEWINGS ARE among the earliest waterfowl to migrate each year, and the special season was established to allow sportsmen to take advantage of this wildlife resource.

The early season has become a big favorite with a number of local hunters in recent years.

The 1977 early teal season has been set for Sept. 10-18, with shooting hours from sunrise to sunset.

The later starting time is to allow ample light for identification of waterfowl species.

TEAL BAG limit will be four birds, and hunters will be in violation of state game laws should they kill any waterfowl species other than teal.

Hunters are required to have their guns plugged to three shell capacity to hunt both doves and teal, and may use guns no larger than 10 gauge.

Hunters are reminded to purchase their hunting license before going afield to enjoy the pursuit of these game species.

OPEN SEASONS

MOURNING DOVES: North Zone - Sept. 1-Oct. 30, 1977, and South Zone - Sept. 24-Nov. 4, 1977 and Oct. 31, 1977-Jan. 15, 1978, and in the shaded counties of the South Zone, mourning doves may be taken on Sept. 3, 4, 10 and 11 during fall dove season for mourning doves will close Nov. 2.

WHITE-WINGED DOVES: Shaded area - North and South Zone - Sept. 3, 4, 10 and 11, 1977.

SPECIAL NOTES

Any freshly killed migratory birds given to another person, except at the residence of either the person giving or receiving the birds, must have a tag attached signed by the hunter who took the birds stating his address, total number of birds of each species and the date birds were taken.

The following limitations apply to game refuge, state and federal parks, game reserves or from public roads or road rights of way.

These counties having a white-winged dove season when both mourning and white-winged doves may be taken. This requirement also applies when doves are imported from Mexico or any foreign country. Doves must be placed immediately in the shell capacity and may not be larger than 10-gauge. Hunting doves with rifles prohibited.

A White-winged Dove Stamp for a $3.00 fee is required of all persons who hunt doves.

A valid importation permit (see $1.00) is required for the importation of wild game birds for sale from the Republic of Mexico. Each permit is valid for a maximum of 30 days from the date of issue. Permits are available from all Parks and Wildlife Department district offices and wherever hunting and fishing licenses are sold in the Rio Grande Valley Area.

Commission to Set Waterfowl Season

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission will take up a number of items of interest to local sportsmen and outdoor enthusiasts at a meeting to be held in Austin Tuesday and Wednesday.

Prominent among the items to be considered will be the adoption of waterfowl hunting regulations for the 1977-78 season.

The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service has recommended an abbreviated season on some duck species, and these guidelines could be a factor in the length of the season set by the commission.

Also to be considered is the establishment of mandatory steel shot waterfowl hunting zones for 1978.

The use of steel shot is being mandated throughout portions of the major flyways, due to the problem of waterfowl ingesting lead shot while feeding in heavily gunned waters.

The steel shot regulations should deal primarily with the state's coastal areas.

Also of interest in the local area will be a telephone easement request for Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

NEW YORK (AP) — Government will play a bigger role than ever in the economic plans of the future, says Professor Geoffrey Barraclough in "Management Review," a publication of the American Management Associations.

Barraclough, historian and member of the International Social Science Council, says government clout will increase despite political sentiment against growing federal controls.

This will happen, he argues, because the private capital market can no longer satisfy all of society's investment needs. For example, meeting food and energy demands will soon require extensive government planning.

Whitewing Numbers Down

EDINBURG--As of the middle of August white-winged doves counts still were being conducted in the Lower Rio Grande Valley but first indications are of at least 50 per cent fewer birds than last year at this time.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department whitewing project leader Gary Waggoner has checked birds in major locations throughout the Lower Valley with noticeable declines in the number of doves found.

"Concentration of birds in Texas roosting areas is running behind last year," said Waggoner.

Birds also were slow to build up last year but there was a large influx the week prior to opening of the season.

Waggoner was hopeful much the same could happen this year before the September 3, 4, 10 and 11 season.

"During the latter part of August," he said, "birds begin to concentrate in limited areas and become more visible. As grain plots are harvested and stubble plowed under doves are forced to move to remaining food supplies."

Range in Mexico which normally provides the bulk of food for birds roosting in Texas has not diminished this year; therefore, no large flights of doves have started forming along the border.

Archery Hunt Forms Being Taken

AUSTIN--Applications still are being taken for a white-tailed deer bow hunt on the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Engling Wildlife Management Area, October 22-30.

P&WD officials said response is light so far for the 350 permits to be issued for the hunts.

Deadline for receiving applications at the P&WD's Austin headquarters is 5 p.m. Monday.

A public drawing to select archers will be held September 1 at 10 a.m. at the Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin.

A $20 fee will be charged each bow hunter selected to help defray costs of conducting the two-day hunts.

The Engling Wildlife Management Area is in Anderson County northwest of Palestine and contains 10,941 acres.

Although most starfish have five rays, some have six or more, and 12-armed species have been taken in the Gulf of Mexico.

Forty-one of the 50 United States are larger than Switzerland, a country in which linguists have listed more than 70 dialects.

Fishing Above Thermoclines Productive

AUSTIN—Lakes often are described as having turned over, but the correct term for this phenomenon is thermocline. Simply defined, it is a layer of water which tends to separate a warmer mass of water near the surface from a cooler mass in the depths.

While the fishing below the thermocline generally is not very productive, the Texas Parks and Wildlife department advises the area just above it often yields the best fishing.

A basic understanding of how a thermocline works can mean the difference between a hefty stringer of fish or none at all. The thermocline acts as a lid which traps gases and oxygen-depleted water beneath a specific depth, making water below that area "dead."

This process is natural and occurs in late spring and summer when the sun raises a lake's temperature. As the warmer temperatures reach deeper into the lake, a point is reached where the temperature changes more than one degree centigrade in one meter of depth.

This causes the water to stratify or separate into layers of warm on top decreasing to cold below. Because of this, the only recirculation of oxygen in the water occurs above the thermocline.

Down below, the debris on the lake bottom begins to decompose, using up the available dissolved oxygen in the water. Naturally, this oxygen cannot be replaced.

A thermocline condition generally remains stable until cooler weather begins to equalize the extreme temperatures. When this happens, usually the thermocline disappears and the trapped gases escape to the surface. This is what prompts fishermen to say the lake turned over.

To make the most of a thermocline, the angler needs to locate it and fish above it. Live minnows are an excellent way to test depths and oxygen levels because they die beneath the thermocline.

According to P&WD biologists an average depth above a thermocline is 25 to 30 feet. Anglers should keep in mind that certain lakes have more pronounced stratification than others and some have no thermocline.

Where's It Coming From?

Buffalo Lake Has $2 Million On Way

Brand Outdoors Writer

Buffalo Lake, the mecca of Panhandle-area water sports activities in former years is due to receive approximately $2 million in funds over the next two decades, although no one seems to know just where the money is coming from.

ACCORDING TO LAKE Manager Paul Ferguson, the money is apparently coming due to the passage of the Bicentennial Land Heritage Act, but that particular piece of legislation never got off the ground.

The bill failed to get out of committee last year and no similar legislation has been introduced or passed since that time.

Ferguson, who also oversees the sprawling Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge near Muleshoe reported that he began receiving funds for the Muleshoe facility earlier this month nonetheless.

Funds for Buffalo Lake are expected to begin arriving soon, and the money, which will be used for a number of improvements at the lake, will continue arriving at the local facility during the next fiscal year.

IMPROVEMENT WORK WILL include installation of new fences and other facilities within the refuge, which is located just south of Umberger.

One of the major projects on tap is revamping of the dam at the lake site.

Little or no water has been held at the lake's dam site over the past decade, but the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers claimed that the dam poses a threat to the city of Canyon due to its weakness.

Despite the recommendation by the Corps, the majority of the lake remains dry and only a small trickle of water reaches it via the Tierra Blanca Creek watershed, even after heavy rains upstream.

PLANS ALSO CALL for a dike system and a lagoon at the lake's southern end, to provide a wintering area for waterfowl.

Some diking work was done at the lake only a few years ago, and the existing dike system helps hold the small amount of water which draws waterfowl to the refuge.

Ferguson explained that an extensive lagoon system would allow some water to be diverted to the northern end of the lake, near the dam, and shore fishing might one day be possible.

Other improvement plans call for the drilling of a well on the lake's south side, to provide water for the waterfowl and fishing lagoons.

FERGUSON EXPLAINED THAT the well would be used only during periods of low evaporation, and would be used to supplement natural water sources.

He added that the well could be powered by solar energy.

Buffalo Lake was constructed by the WPA in the 1930's, and its primary purpose has been to serve as a refuge for migratory waterfowl since that time.

The lake received favorable runoff for many years from the Tierra Blanca Creek, but the advent of widespread irrigation and the erection of check dams along the creek drastically reduced the inflow of fresh water to the lake.

The lake became polluted in the 1960's, and attempts to restore the lake fishery since that time have all met with failure.

THE LAKE WAS completely drained in the spring of 1973, after the small amount of water left near the dam became stagnant.

A program was then launched to sow crops in the lakebed to remove excess nutrients from the soil.

Later, the present dike system was erected on the lake's southern end.

While the refuge offers no water sports or fishing today, it still provides a recreational area for picnicking and nature study.

FERGUSON POINTED OUT that the new funds could help to improve these activities, in addition to opening a small area of the lake to fishing once again.

Although Randall County commissioners criticized the additional funding for the lake last winter, a survey conducted by students at West Texas State University revealed that Panhandle residents want Buffalo Lake to be maintained as a wildlife area.

View From The Plains

BY J. D. PEER

DOVE HOURS INCREASED

LUBBOCK—All-day shooting for mourning doves has been approved by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department with the season running from Sept. 1, 1977 - Oct. 31, 1977.

The daily bag limit of 10 birds and a possession limit of 20 birds is the same as last year and should furnish hunters with plenty of chances to bag the fast-flying dove with shooting hours from 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset.

Most counties of northwest Texas are reporting good populations of doves with Andrews county in the southwest corner of the South Plains, Scurry and Mitchell counties in the Southeast corner of the South Plains and Wheeler county in the Eastern Panhandle reporting excellent populations of doves. Only Hale, Motley and Deaf Smith counties are reporting poor populations of birds for the coming season but, cool weather could affect all these areas.

The passage of cold fronts in late August and early September through Texas has as much affect on the local dove population as any one factor. An increase in the sunflower acreage in some counties should help to hold the birds a little longer than normal.

Sportsmen are reminded that only shotguns not larger than 10-gauge plugged to hold no more than three shells in the magazine and chamber combined are legal. No rifles or pistols of any type are legal for dove hunting.

No hunting will be permitted in game refuges, state and federal parks, game reserves, or from any public road of road right-of-way. Citations issued by Texas game wardens in 1976 included many for shooting from the road.

Sportsmen are required by law to get permission to hunt from the landowner prior to the hunt. A violation of the landowner's property rights will only result in a possible citation and more no-hunting or no-trespassing signs next year.

Sportsmen can help improve the relationship between the landowner and the hunter by being courteous, considerate, capable and, most of all, careful. These sportsmen will have an excellent chance at being invited back to hunt next year.

More information is available on dove hunting regulations and other P&WD rules by contacting the nearest Texas game warden or P&WD personnel in your county. More details are available to sportsmen by calling Abilene 915/673-3333, Amarillo 806/355-9246 or Lubbock 806/744-0213.

Boat Titling Fee Increased

AUSTIN—Texas boating enthusiasts will have to pay a little more for their boat and motor titles after August 29. The 65th Legislature this year authorized the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to increase the fee on that date from $2 to $3.50.

This will apply to all boat titling transactions, including the original certificate of title, a certified copy of the original, or a corrected copy.

Another change also was authorized. Duplicates of the validation decals, or stickers reflecting expiration date of the TX registration number, in the past have been issued free when originals were lost or damaged.

A charge of $1 now will be made for such duplicates.

Since January 1, 1976, an amendment to the Texas Water Safety Act requires a certificate of title from the P&WD for motorboats in excess of 14 feet and for any outboard engine of 12 or more horsepower.

Although no title is necessary for motorboats under 14 feet, registration still is required on all motorboats regardless of length and the registration numbers must be affixed to either side of the bow. Sailboats and canoes are exempt from the registration requirement unless they have auxiliary motors.

A good handbook Dixon recommends is Conant's Field Guide to Reptiles and Amphibians of North America. It's available in inexpensive paperback and pictures the different varieties of snakes and points out identifying characteristics.

Another good source of information is to check with your County Extension Agent for MP-1194, Poisonous Snakes of Texas.

Learning About Snakes Could Save A Life

More than 90 percent of snakes in Texas are non-poisonous and quite useful to man, according to a noted herpetologist at Texas A&M University.

And even the poisonous ones help keep down the population of rodents and other pests, says Dr. James R. Dixon who is engaged in research on snakes for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Hunting Leases Should Be Written

AUSTIN—Like everything else in the world, the price of hunting leases climbs each year. And yet, demand still is increasing and many hunters are willing to pay more for the right to hunt on another's land.

With higher prices it's in the best interest of both hunter and landowner to set down in writing exact terms of the lease. A hunting lease is an agreement between landowner and hunter whereby the right to trespass to hunt on a specified piece of property is granted for a certain time and fee.

Generally there are four different types of lease agreements: year-round, season, day-hunting and hunts which guarantee a kill.

Year-round leases usually include hunting privileges for all legal species and often have camping and fishing rights during off seasons. These leases are made by a small group of hunters.

Leases of limited duration vary from an entire season to one week within a season.

Day hunting accommodates large numbers of hunters and is most useful in areas which can stand high hunting pressure.

Guaranteed hunts usually specialize in exotic game and may include native species.

Whatever the lease it should state in writing what is leased with the name and address of the landowner or his authorized agent. A description of the tract, size and boundaries should be included. Maps are helpful.

A hunting lease should spell out payments, terms and deadlines for payment.

In detail, the lease should specify number of hunters allowed on the property, and in some cases the names of hunters. The landowner may wish to reserve some hunting privileges for his family or friends. This should be in the agreement.

Be sure to spell out any provisions if hunting is limited to certain species, or if the bag is restricted to less than that of current laws.

In some instances, such as year-round leases, the landowner may furnish extras such as cabins, utilities, vehicles, hunting blinds or guides. This should be in the contract.

Vows Spoken Saturday By Miss Hill, Livers

Swags of greenery and white ribbon dressed the candelabra Saturday evening for the marriage of Miss Terri Louann Hill and James Phillip Livers in First Baptist Church. Officiating was the Rev. Doug Manning, pastor.

Additional greenery accented the Unity candle, lighted at the altar by the couple as a symbol of their marriage. Assorted palm arrangements completed the scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alvina Hill, 318 Star St., and Lawrence R. Hill of Houston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Livers, 237 Greenwood.

Miss Judy Hill served her sister as maid of honor and Greg Hennington was the best man.

Also appearing in the procession were the following bridesmaids, Misses Lori Steinkruger, Kathy Wilson and Teresa Livers, sister of the bridegroom.

Groomsmen included Barry Acton, Randy Stevens and Daniel Olson.

Guests were ushered by Mike Culp and Mike O'Rand.

The bride's cousin, Valerie Holt was the flower girl during the ceremony. She is the daughter of Mrs. Almona Holt.

Carrying the wedding bands was Randy Robbins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Robbins.

Michael Hill, brother of the bride, and Matt Collier lighted the tapers at the altar.

Miss Sabra Hacker vocalized the couple's chosen musical selections, including "More," "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer." Accompaniment was offered by Miss Lynette Andrews, pianist, and Mrs. Marvin Hall, organist.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a slipper-length gown of candlelight silk organza over bridal taffeta, designed with fitted empire bodice and Victorian neckline. Chantilly lace formed the V-line yoke and was applied on the sheer bishop sleeves, which ended in deep, fitted cuffs.

A deep flounce of organza ruffles edged the hemline of her full skirt, also trimmed with Chantilly lace, sweeping into a Chapel train. A matching Camelot coil, encrusted with pearls, held her veil of bridal illusion, edged in lace and extending over the full-length of the gown.

She carried a cascade of white daisies with white silk roses and blue statice.

The bridesmaids were gowned in powder blue, unpolished satin, fashioned with A-line skirts and empire bodices. Completing their ensembles were picture hats and nosegays of daisies and blue statice.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hill wore a floor-length dress of powder blue fabric, styled with long sleeves. The bridegroom's mother chose an evening gown of beige color. Each wore corsages of daisies and statice.

After the nuptial service, guests were invited to a reception in the church Fellowship Hall, where refreshments were served by Miss Kyla Poteet, Miss Donna Stafford of Pampa, Teresa Stout and Miss Brenda Holt, the bride's cousin.

Securing the signatures of guests were Miss Sonya Hacker and Miss Kyla Poteet.

Fresh daisies and statice trimmed the three-tiered wedding cake, set atop a lace tablecloth, bordered by a blue skirt.

For her going-away costume, the bride wore a beige dress with brown stitching. The couple will be at home after Sept. 8 in Amarillo, where he will be attending Texas State Technical Institute this fall.

The bride attended Hereford High School, where she was active in Drill Team, Leon Club and Student Council. Livers is a spring graduate of HHS.

Prenuptial parties included a bridesmaids dinner Wednesday at K-Bob's Steak House and the rehearsal dinner Friday at Caison Steak House.

Out-of-town guests at the recent ceremony included the bridegroom's godfather, Kinch Livers of St. Louis, Mo.; Lex Hill and Terri Grammel, both of Houston; Mrs. Loveta Thomason and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Skaggs, all of Hobbs, N.M.

Mr. and Mrs. Carson Watt and Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Dyenkle, all of Pampa; Mrs. Wesley Bartles of Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Carl Patton of St. Louis, Mo.; Jan Gentry, Amarillo; and Mrs. Beale Queen and Mrs. Oleta Sawyer, both of Earth.

Farewells Expressed

Best wishes were extended to Mrs. Bruce Brown, who will soon be moving from Hereford, by her fellow members of Bud to Blossom Garden Club during a coffee Friday morning in the Sam Long home. From left are Mrs. W.H. Gentry, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Jess Robinson. Mrs. Gentry and Mrs. Robinson were co-hostesses for the courtesy. (Brand Staff Photo)

Elks Continue Carnival Work

Hereford Elks are still accepting contributions of cash and merchandise for the Muscular Dystrophy Carnival Sept. 4, Labor Day, in Dameron Park.

All carnival proceeds will be given to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Items can be contributed for the carnival by telephoning 364-1468, 364-4771, or 364-6721.

All contributions will be receipted and are tax deductible.

A number of activities are planned during the carnival, including a dunking board (with City Police to serve as victims), cake walk, bingo, dart games, penny pitch, frisby throw, grab bag, hoop shoot and others. A concession stand will be open and clowns will entertain the expected crowd.

A special attraction will be the auctioning of merchandise donated by local businesses. The variety of auction items will be wide, with a number of bargains to be featured. Jackie Andrews and Mort McCullough will be auctioneers.

Carnival chairmen are Kenny and Karren Ruland.

A growing number of companies are subscribing to private weather services. One reason: U.S. industries valued at $270 billion are directly affected by the weather, according to a Conference Board analysis.

Mrs. Brown Honored By Fellow Gardeners

In order to honor a departing member, Mrs. Bruce Brown, members of Bud to Blossom Garden Club called a special meeting Friday morning in the home of Mrs. Sam Long with Mrs. W.H. Gentry and Mrs. Jess Robinson acting as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Robert Betzen, club president, conducted a brief business session; first one of the new meeting season. Mrs. Robinson reviewed the club's plans for the ensuing year, as outlined in the new club yearbooks.

Members agreed to participate in a district project involving each club's donation of $10 to the Gladys Manjoet Scholarship Fund for horticulture students at Texas Tech University. The late Mrs. Manjoet was an honorary member of Bud to Blossom.

Club members also agreed to support state and national garden projects, as well as their own local plans.

Mrs. Billy Wayne Sisson, chairman of the club's annual flower show, reviewed the schedule of the Dec. 2 show. Jennie Phillips and Mrs. Truman Hazlerigg were welcomed as guests during the morning coffee.

The club's next meeting is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 16 in the home of Mrs. Sisson.

Other members present Friday were Mmes. Gaylon Bryant and Ray Polan.

Wedding Solemnized In Fort Worth Church

A Fort Worth couple, Miss Mary Eileen Shields and Anthony "Tony" Q. Ohlig, exchanged nuptial vows Saturday afternoon in St. Bartholomew Catholic Church, Fort Worth.

The ceremony was read by Rev. Gerald T. Cooney, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Shields Jr., Fort Worth. The bridegroom, who is a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ohlig, 409 Blevins.

Adorning the altar for the marriage was a large white arrangement of gladiolas, carnations and pompon chrysanthemums.

Miss Kathleen M. Shields of Lubbock, served as her sister's honor attendant and Bill Ohlig of Tulsa, Okla. was his brother's best man.

Also attending the bride were Miss Pam McLaughlin of Dallas, Mrs. Tom Weaver of Fort. Worth, Miss Sandy Reynolds of Fort Worth, and Miss Vicki Hammond of Lubbock.

Serving as groomsmen were Dean Allen of Hereford, Ronnie Ohlig, brother of the bridegroom, Richard Schlabs, Hereford, and Pat Shields of Houston, brother of the bride.

The bridegroom's brothers, Wade and John Ohlig, were ushers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk organza and Venise lace, designed in Victorian concept. Edged by ruffles, a lace bib adorned the bodice, embroidered with an intricate design of seed pearls.

Bands of pearls trimmed her long, tapered sleeves of lace which formed ruffles at the cuffs. Pearl and lace appliques trimmed her princess skirt, which fell to a deep flounce of lace. The back of the gown swept to back fullness forming a Chapel train.

Completing the effect was a train-length lace-edged veil of illusion, drifting from a cap of lace and pearls.

She carried a fresh white orchid with white and yellow roses nestled in her mother's feathered bouquet.

The bridal attendants were clad in a rainbow of colors of frothy organza gowns, styled with long, full sleeves. Ruffles edging their cameo necklines continued down the back of the gown, creating a bustle effect, accented by a large, fabric rose.

A deep flounce encircled the hemline of each dress.

They carried colonial bouquets of spring blossoms.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Shields chose an aqua-colored floor-length dress of quiana, patterned with long, tapered sleeves and empire waistline. A portrait drape forming a rose covered her shoulders.

The bridegroom's mother was gowned in a two-piece formal length dress of mint green chiffon and lace, fashioned with gored skirt and long sleeves.

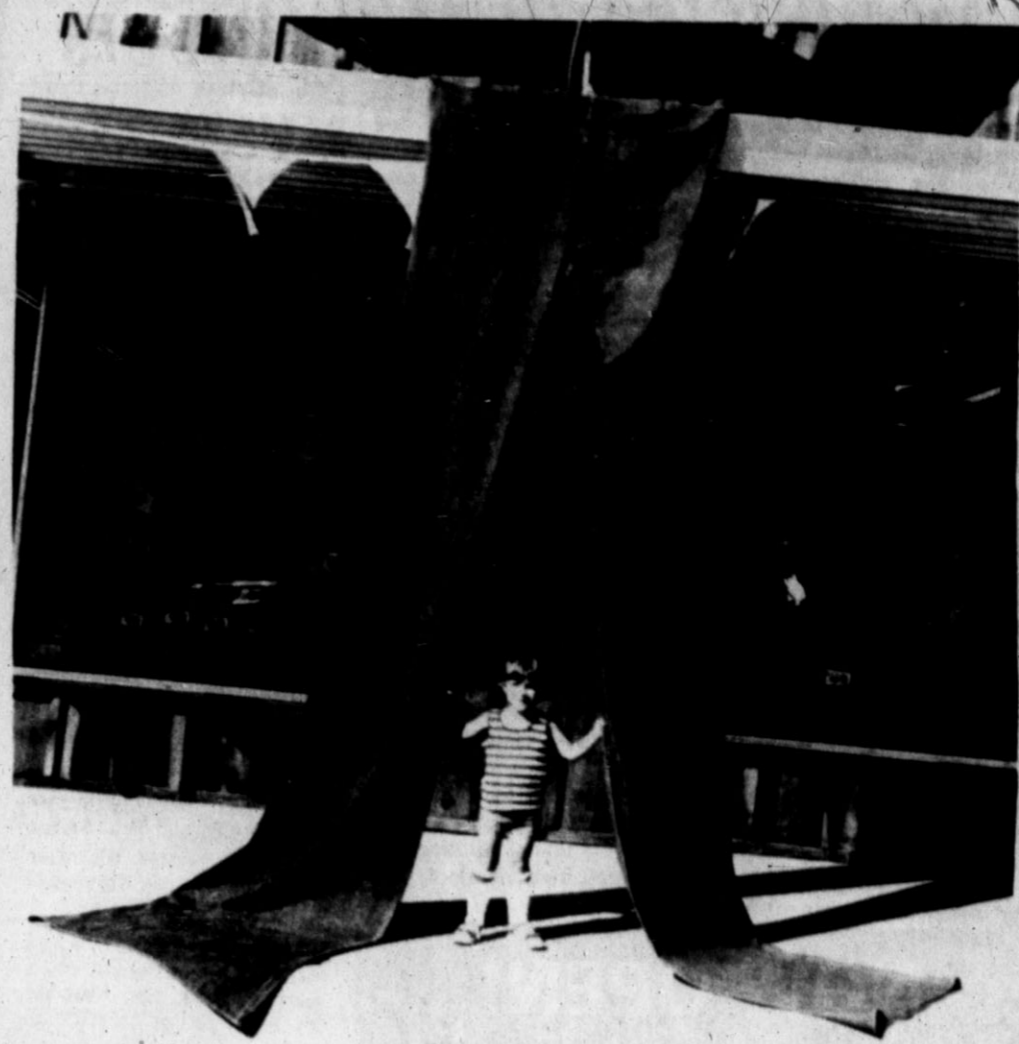

Wedding guests were invited to the bride's parents' home immediately afterwards for a reception. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Frances Sawin of Fort Worth and Mrs. Jeanne Snyder, Seymour. Presiding at the guest registry was Miss Anne Golden, Dallas.

Pastel flowers, coordinated with the rainbow colors worn by the bridal attendants, garnished the three-tiered wedding cake, which was designed with miniature Grecian columns separating each layer. Topping the cake was an oval-shaped bouquet of spring flowers.

For a honeymoon trip to several cities in Southeast Texas, Mrs. Ohlig wore a melon-colored suit with beige quiana blouse and tie. The couple will be at home after Sept. 3 at Fort Worth, where he will begin nursing school in January. The bride is employed as an assistant buyer by Stripling's at Fort Worth. Ohlig is employed by Medical Plaza Hospital, Fort Worth.

The bride graduated from Texas Tech University in 1976 with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology. The recent bridegroom graduated from Operating Room Technician School at Lubbock.

Special out-of-town guests in attendance included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. C.A. Barker of Omaha, Neb. and the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C.A. Barker, Austin.

Minstrels, Ballet, Pianists Headline CCA Attractions

The New Christy Minstrels, the Hungarian Folk Ballet and a British version of Ferrante and Teicher are all coming to perform in Hereford.

But, only members of the Community Concert Association, which has scheduled its annual membership drive Sept. 5-17, will have the opportunity to attend these three local performances and seven additional concerts. Season tickets will be available during the two-week drive from any CCA volunteer or at drive headquarters, the Chamber of Commerce office, 701 N. Main St.

Season tickets entitle the bearer to attend concerts in Hereford, Lubbock and Clovis, N.M. and possibly one more area city. The cost of one-year CCA membership is $12 for adults, $6 for students and a cut-rate of $30 for a family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walden and Mrs. Virginia Holmes are directing the membership drive and emphasize that memberships will be sold just once this year, during the designated two weeks. Persons who are not CCA members are not admitted to the specially-contracted performances.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Panciera will be working in the CCA president capacity, to be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Fisher, vice president; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Alston, secretary; Judge and Mrs.

Wesley Guiley, publicity chairman; and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Allen, treasurer. Further information concerning the Community Concert Association may be obtained during the campaign by telephoning the Chamber office, 364-3333. Office hours maintained by the CCA volunteers will be from 9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m.

3-F Dinner Attracts 34

A singing quartette entertained members of Fun-Food-Fellowship Club Wednesday at First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall during a salad luncheon.

Vocalists included in the quartette were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Boyer, J.B. Noland and Homer Garrison. After the program, Dr. Jordan Grooms, pastor, delivered the invocation.

This was the first 3-F luncheon in two months and 34 attended. Mrs. Oretta Wilhelm is president and Mrs. John Heard is vice president.

The next luncheon meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m. Sept. 28 in the church Fellowship Hall.

Coed's Friends Invited Today

Friends of Sandee Finley are invited to say goodbye to her at 2 p.m. this afternoon in her home, 14 Ave. I. She is scheduled to leave Hereford soon to take her basic training in the U.S. Air Force.

Miss Finley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Finley, is a spring graduate of Hereford High School.

AARP Plans Dinner Here Thursday

Members of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 1, for a covered dish dinner at Hereford Community Center. AARP members are urged to attend.

Pay a lawyer to write your will, suggests Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. "Homemade documents are sometimes not legal," the specialist warns.

Dalhart Newlyweds On Honeymoon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Elliott Pigman are honeymooning in Orlando, Fla., after their marriage two weeks ago in Central Methodist Church of Dalhart. The Rev. J.B. Sharp of Dalhart officiated.

A former resident of Hereford, the bride was Beverly Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Brown, Dalhart. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Pigman, also of Dalhart.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Phil Berend of Hereford was the matron of honor and Mike Paulk of Dalhart was best man.

Also attending the couple were Miss Ginny Bates, Dalhart, and the bridegroom's brother, Randy Pigman of Munich, Germany.

Mark Brown of Dalhart and Tim Heishel of Amarillo were ushers.

"Twelfth of Never" and "Wedding Song" were performed during the ceremony by Charles Stephens of Amarillo, with accompaniment provided by Danny Cummings, Dalhart.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal-length wedding gown of nylon organza and re-embroidered Venise lace over taffeta. The gown was designed with high rounded neckline, empire waistline, long, Camelot sleeves and bell skirt.

Inserts of lace trimmed the gown, which featured a wide ruffle of organza on her skirt, sweeping to a Chapel train. Her veil of imported illusion fell from a lace coif and she carried a cascade of white carnations and peach-colored roses.

A reception was held afterwards in the church hall. Lesa Lovelady, Lesa Lofton and Yvonne Johnson offered refreshments to guests, who were registered by Maggie Paulk.

The couple will be at home in Amarillo, where she will be employed by First Federal Savings and Loan. She was formerly employed by that firm's branch office at Dalhart.

The bride attended Hereford schools and is a spring graduate of Dalhart High School, where the bridegroom graduated in 1976.

Former Mailman Still Deals With Words

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "Poetry can be fun," says an ex-mailman who decided it would be more fun to write greeting cards than to deliver them.

Fun, in fact, is an essential ingredient in his poetic recipe, says 37-year-old Edward Cunningham, who likes to laugh at life and, accordingly, doesn't take himself too seriously.

"When people think of poetry, they think of something weighty and cryptic," he says. "Poetry to most people is something you have to ponder for days. It doesn't have to be. Poetry can have meaning without fracturing your mind."

Cunningham, who started with the company as a greeting card writer after working as a soda jerk, cook and postman, now writes for Hallmark books. He has written or collaborated on some 50 books, which have sold nearly three million copies in card shops.

The son of an Irish immigrant, he likes to sing the hundreds of Irish ballads he knows but admits he can't carry a tune. As a kid, he says, he was no better at sports. A confirmed benchwarmer, he played only two downs in two years for his high school football team.

"I was sent into one game and was so excited I ran over the guy I was replacing. He had to be helped off the field," relates Cunningham, whose ironic view of his brief football career is reflected in his poem, "Sports Fans."

He writes most of his poems with his wife, Gail, in mind. One, "An Accidental Valentine," is based on an actual incident.

"Noticing the note on your desk top that began 'Dear Mom and Dad' and was plainly none of my business

I carefully devoured every syllable discovered certain rave reviews about myself too flattering to repeat and hoped your folks would enjoy hearing from you as much as I had."

Butch-Fry Marriage Conducted at Dallas

The marriage of Miss Beckie Matje Butch of Ducanville and Stanley Alan Fry Jr. was solemnized during a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening in St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church at Dallas. The Rev. Robert Johnson, pastor of Holy Spirit Catholic Church at Ducanville, conducted the nuptial Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Butch of Ducanville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Alan Fry Sr., 118 Ave. E. Spiral candelabra and baskets brimming with gladiolas decorated the sanctuary for the service.

Mrs. Ronald Eby of Beeville was the bride's honor attendant and Danny Collins of Hereford was best man.

Also serving the bride were her sisters, Miss Kellie Marie Butch and Miss Patti Ann Butch, both of Ducanville. Groomsmen were Edward Fry of Hereford, brother of the bridegroom and Ray Bryant of Dallas.

The bride's brothers, Bryan and Joe Butch of Ducanville, ushered guests to their seats in the church.

Shirley Lyn King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. King, Ducanville, was the flower girl. A Ducanville resident Karen Birtchet rendered traditional wedding music for the ceremony.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of ivory chiffon over satin with matching Chapel train. The fitted, contour bodice was trimmed with French lace, edging the raised waistline and portrait neckline. Her long sleeves were of bishop styling.

The A-line skirt was encircled at the hemline by matching lace. The bride's trousseau was handmade by her mother.

A lace and satin Juliet cap, jeweled with pearls, held her tiered veil of bridal illusion. She carried an ivory orchid surrounded by rose buds and babybreath.

The handkerchief which she clasped had been carried by the bridegroom's mother as a bride. Her necklace was made by Mrs. Peter Butch, her grandmother, who also fashioned necklaces for the bridesmaids.

The bride's attendants wore evening gowns of powder blue chiffon over matching satin, complemented by caplets trimmed in ivory satin ribbon.

The flared skirts were edged at the hemline with ivory and brown satin ribbon.

A three-tiered wedding cake with pastel blue accents was served to guests during a reception afterwards. Cake was served by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Gary Stretcher of Big Spring, and Miss Cindy Haase of Ducanville while punch was ladled by Miss Kim Burden, Ducanville. The serving table was laid with an ivory tablecloth, trimmed in blue and brown.

Miss Sandy Smith of Parker registered reception guests.

The newlywed couple will be at home at Commerce, where each is a student at East Texas State University. She is a junior majoring in home economics and he is also a junior studying pre-dental medicine.

The bride graduated from Plano High School in 1975, the same year that the bridegroom graduated from Hereford High School.

Kings Manor News

A large group of the ladies and children of the Palo Duro Baptist Church came as the hostesses for the August birthday party. The honorees for August were: Dorothy Coombes, Lola Jane Hughes, Ardis Stamer, Bonnie Wilson, Mary Campbell and Carrie Lillard.

The party was a gay affair with a beautiful birthday cake, homemade ice cream and clever favors for each honoree. A trio of young ladies gave a program of good listening music with old favorite tunes.

Thursday morning the leads the group in a sing song. The residents enjoys Paula's greetings to each one as well as her singing and playing.

Another faithful one is Mrs. Cecil Boyer that comes each Tuesday to play for the group to sing. With her comes either J.B. Noland, Cecil Boyer or Homer Garrison, and some weeks all the men come and this gives the residents a good listening of Quartet numbers.

The sunshine cart comes every Thursday morning and the ladies that help with the shopping do a great job.

May we remind you of a poem that so many of our Volunteers most know by heart.

"I shall pass through this world but once.

Any good therefore that I can do, or kindness that I can show to any human being Let me do it now. Let me not defer it or neglect it. For I shall not pass this way again".

An old-timer can recall when they waited till after Labor Day to put Christmas merchandise on display.

Fall is the time when there's a nip in the air, and a nip in the hair, too, if the kid fancies a jar or two of the sauce.

Fall is the time when the corn is ripe, and the harvest is gathered in during the hours the new TV shows air.

Fall is the time when there's a haze in the air — from the old boots burning in the neighbor's incinerator.

We have had some talented people to come and help with our programs this month. They have been Craig McChristian singing all types of music from Country Western to Sacred. Accompanied by his father Lewis McChristian. Quinto Renfro another talented young man has been out this summer to entertain with some piano solos.

Mrs. Coombes and Mrs. McMeans have given their time and talents on the piano.

We were well entertained with a duet composed of Mrs. Johnny Cloud, Mrs. Eugene Zinser accompanied by Mrs. Tom Betzen last Friday afternoon.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, Aug. 28th, the 240th day of 1977. There are 125 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1609, the English navigator, Henry Hudson, discovered Delaware Bay.

On this date: In 1828, the Russian writer, Leo Tolstoy, was born in the province of Tula.

In 1833, the British Parliament banned slavery throughout the British Empire.

In 1913, the Palace of Peace — a gift of the American industrialist Andrew Carnegie — was dedicated at the Hague in Holland.

In 1916, Germany declared war on Romania.

In 1917, 10 suffragettes were arrested as they picketed the White House in Washington.

In 1963, about 200,000 people — blacks and whites — joined in a peaceful civil rights rally in Washington.

Ten years ago: There was a shakeup in the British cabinet to help and join in with the fun; they have been Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hershey, Mrs. R.L. Ethridge, Mrs. Bell Hromas, Mrs. Art Lewis, Mrs. O.H. Culpepper, Mrs. Jack Brown and Lyle. Many thanks to all interested people in the welfare of the residents at Westgate. There are people like, Ms. Gladys Legg, Mrs. Billie Johnson, Mrs. Eleanor Huds-

Senior Citizens Offer New Datebooks for Sale

Hereford Senior Citizens are conducting a fund-raising project, the sale of personal planner books for $2.50 each. Proceeds will be used in local programs for senior citizens.

These books are on display at several city locations, including the Senior Citizens Center. The datebooks include a day-by-day calendar with ample writing space. They are suggested for gifts, as well as personal use. Purchase can be made by telephoning 364-5681.

The Senior Citizens held a social Thursday evening. After the meal, the group played games of bridge and "42". Nick Uli of California was a guest.

Hereford Senior Citizens Center is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and all senior citizens are welcome. Quilting sessions are held each Tuesday and Friday.

Take a vacation. You deserve it, says Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

Skelton Trusts Self

SEATTLE (AP) - Red Skelton, who brought Freddie the Freeloader and Clem Kadiddlehopper into the homes of millions, travels alone these days, shunning associates he claims used him and trusting only "God, my wife and myself."

The rubber-faced funnyman says those old business associates have profited while he has lost $6 million in bad business deals over the years.

Fans who spot him on the street win quick waves, giggling greetings and coy one-liners. But off-stage, Skelton speaks harshly of those associates, television, and his public.

"I trust God, my wife and myself," Skelton declared in an interview last week. "People take kindness for weakness, and generosity has the form of a sucker."

Skelton, 64, left television after 20 years. And although he's seen less these days, he still plays to sell-out audiences.

He said he has an engagement every three days through next year.

"I don't have anybody around me. When someone makes a mistake now, it's either my wife: myself or my granddaughter, Sabrina. She's only 7," Skelton wisecracked, "so she can't hurt me too much."

He was divorced from his first wife, Georgia, know as "Little Red," in 1973. She has since died. His only son died 19 years ago of leukemia at the age of 9.

His daughter, Valentina, 30, lives in California with her husband and Sabrina.

Skelton writes daily love letters to his new wife, Lothain, 36.

When I write my autobiography like they they'll see a love story like they never knew before.

Love doesn't come easy to comedians, he said. "If you tell a woman she is beautiful, she thinks it's part of the routine and waits for a joke," he said.

"You sense it right away, so you don't follow through. I could never walk up to anyone and be rejected in any way, because if I was, then inside I die."

The late Groucho Marx was a respected friend. "He was the first man to tear down the dignity of a man and then let it stand," Skelton said.

Skelton, at 6-foot-3 and 196 pounds, says he is in good health, but "the only exercise I get is acting as pallbearer for my friends who exercise a lot."

"I don't let it bother me. I don't know enough about life to worry about death."

Skelton criticized the medium that made him famous.

"Television gets worse every year - and it's 10 years ahead of its time," he said. "If they can create fear with violence, you'll stay home and watch the commercials and television will sell more products."

About 70 per cent of the people in the United States live in 2 per cent of the total land area of the country.

Home Decorating News

By Imogene McGee

Although all the furniture pieces and accessories you use are obviously important to the overall look of any room, the fact is that the sofa usually serves as the one key piece in the living room or den because of its dominance, its use, and the way the rest of the furniture is placed around it.

Therefore, it's important that you take into account all the many different considerations. For instance, in choosing a sofa, aside from those two basics—its beauty and its comfort—be sure it has the right size and shape for the rest of your room. Texture is another consideration. Add be sure to consider the color of the sofa in relation to your overall color scheme. Another thing to think about is the fabric. There are so many wonderful choices in fabrics today that can do so much for both the looks of your sofa and its wearability.

All these things are important, and remember we're here to assist you, and help you get a sofa you'll be happy with. Also remember in today's decorating, sofas can make a comfortable bed and serve another purpose. Stop in anytime and test the comfort of our sofas and sofa sleepers. Make yourself "at home."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You'll never print this because it doesn't happen to fit in with your philosophy, but I hope you'll get some word to that 15-year-old. It just might help him. He signed himself, "Wasting The School's Money."

I am 19 and female. Two years ago I decided I, too, was wasting the school's money as well as my time. So I quit. Today I own a new car and have a very promising job as a secretary.

I'd like to tell all the kids out there who feel as I did, DON'T quit school just to bum around—even that gets to be a drag after a while. Get a job and start to make a future for yourself. You are the only one who can do it.—Succeeding In Connecticut.

DEAR CONN: You didn't say anything about secretarial school. Did you go or are you self-taught? Unless a student is willing to go to trade school or take additional training in a special field, I say it is best to stay in high school and get that diploma.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I asked you to rerun one of my favorite columns last year and you did it. I hate to impose on you again so soon but I ran across another column I would love to see reprinted. I found it in my brother's wallet. He was accidentally drowned ten days ago. The column was dated Nov. 23, 1969. My brother was 26 years old when he died and had been your reader since his teens.

Please, Ann, it would mean a lot to me.—Bob's Brother.

DEAR FRIEND: Please accept my deep sympathy for your loss. Here is the column:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The other day I ran across a very old clipping. It was timeworn and in small print. I found a magnifying glass and read it. It is one of the loveliest expressions of humanity I have ever seen. I hope you will consider it worthy of your column (P.S. It gave no hint of the author.)

On This Day—
Mend a quarrel.
Dismiss a suspicion and replace it with trust.
Write a letter to someone who misses you.

Encourage a youth who has lost faith.
Keep a promise.
Forget an old grudge.

CONFIDENTIAL to Miss Fourteen in Upstate: You sound too "popular" for your own good. Doesn't all that traffic wear out the rugs in your house? Where's your mother anyway?

At Wits End
BY ERMA BOMBECK

My neighbor, Wanda Weird, was complaining to me the other day about her son. "That kid is going to drive me crazy," she said. "Everytime I turn around he wants to be paid for what he does. Do you know what he had the nerve to give me last Mother's Day? He gave me a chintzy little plaque made out of library paste and toothpicks that he made himself."

"I think that's rather sweet," I said.

"From a 19-year-old boy?"

I know how Wanda feels. Our son's middle name is, "Do I have to use my own money?" Some years ago, in a burst of parental insanity, we initiated the "allowance" system at our house. We thought it would be an incentive to do a good job, instill a firsthand working knowledge of how our free enterprise system works, and give him a feeling of financial independence. We didn't know then he was saving up for a downpayment to buy Nevada.

What do we get for our $2 a week?

We get the table cleared whether we are still eating or not. I have had my coffee cup snatched from my mouth while my lips were still blistering.

We get a decision-maker who decides that the remains of a $6 sirloin should be tossed down the disposer while a peach seer floating in a bowl of syrup should be saved in the refrigerator.

We get a garbage hustler whose open lid policy has attracted dogs and have taken buses to get to our garbage can smorgashbord each night.

Every week, his money goes into the bank, giving life to a new adage. "It is better to receive than to give." Whether it's gum, a movie, a poster, a record, there is always the perennial, "Do I have to use my own money?"

Yesterday, we stopped in front of an ice cream parlor and I could just anticipate his next question. So I said to him, "I do not think you realize that it costs parents $147,154 to raise just one child. That includes education, health expenses, clothes, housing, food, and the potential salary of a mother who might have worked but stayed at home to raise the child. There is some sacrifice involved. Of course, we wouldn't have it any other way. But think about it. Imagine that in a lifetime your father and I will have coughed up $147,154 on your behalf."

He was silent for a moment, then got out of the car and went in for the ice cream. When he returned, he handed me a cone and said, "I only got one dip each for us. I didn't think you could afford two dips each."

Between 1910 and 1930, nearly two million Mexicans emigrated permanently to the United States.

Denim Debate: Cotton vs. Blend

NEW YORK (AP) — Calling it the first big improvement in years, most of the nation's denim manufacturers are gearing up to go blended, and some even think the days of 100 per cent cotton denim are numbered.

The new product, a combination of cotton and polyester called a minblend, takes dye like cotton, looks like cotton, fades like cotton but doesn't shrink like it, according to the Denim News Service.

"In making this blend we found we could accomplish what our customers wanted us to accomplish," said Larry Addison of Swift Textiles which, he says, will be producing only blended denim by the end of the year. "The advantage," he says, "is that if you buy a size 7, it will stay a size 7."

Blended denim has stirred up a small controversy with the cotton growers, and Cotton Inc. has mounted an advertising campaign against adding synthetics to denim, noting that it takes five or six times more energy to make a pound of polyester, which is petroleum-based, than to make a pound of cotton.

Polyester advocates counter that if you have to weed it or feed it, the fiber costs too much.

There will be an extensive TV and radio campaign addressed to the consumer, starting during the back-to-school buying period, supporting the "virtues of 100 per cent cotton as the true denim," according to Don Kleckner, vice president, marketing services, of Cotton Inc.

"Cotton Inc. is telling people to look at the label," he says. "That's what they've been getting, been satisfied with and if they want the traditional type of denim jeans or new neat look, they can get them in regular 100 per cent cotton or the new 100 per cent cotton with the new shrink reduction finish, 'Sanforset,' that overcomes shrinkage."

Although some mills have been making a synthetic denim for years, it has only been in the last 18 months that they have developed a mixture they consider suitable, industry sources say. "In the early days we couldn't get total dyeabil-ity," noted Ben Sampson of Cone Mills.

In the new fabric, which is 65 per cent cotton and 35 per cent polyester, the cotton is forced to the outside of the yarn when it is spun so that the finished product takes dye and feels like cotton, the manufacturers explain.

"We didn't want to lose any of the esthetics of cotton," said Sampson, adding that the day may come when all denim will be polyester blended.

Although all of the seven top mills are now experimenting with blended fabrics, some are still cautious about its acceptance. "I doubt if we ever will go entirely to the blend," said Brian Clarke of Burlington Industries. "There are still a lot of people who want cotton."

Canton Textiles is continuing to make only cotton denim, although it is now running blend samples. "If the market demands blends, we can make them," said spokesman Jim Wheeler.

Both Burlington and Canton are using similar chemical processes to give cotton denim an easy-care finish and to reduce shrinkage, but they admit this is more costly than going synthetic.

"The consumer will ultimately decide," said Sampson. "Only when he comes back for the second pair will we really know."

Women Strengthen Position In Washington Structure

WASHINGTON (AP) - Carol calls Betsy. Betsy calls Jane. Jane calls...

It's the good ol' girl counterpart to the good ol' boy network that's been running this town for years.

And though they're far from taking over the male-dominated power spots of business and government, women professionals have an open-toed shoe in the door.

On Friday, which President Carter has designated "Women's Equality Day," many of them marched in front of the White House to dramatize support for the Equal Rights Amendment. The day marks the 57th anniversary of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the vote.

Carter supports the embattled ERA, which must be ratified by three more states before the 1979 deadline.

Since Carter has made a point of appointing more women to government positions, the good ol' girl network has grown. It now consists of several dozen professional women with middle-to upper-level jobs in the capital and an interest in helping other women to find good positions.

Such women as Carol Foreman, assistant-secretary for food and consumer services at the Agriculture Department; Betsy Godley, associated director of presidential personnel at the White House; and Jane McMichael, an official of the National Women's Political Caucus.

Many are lawyers in their mid-30s and 40s who have known each other since the days when there simply weren't as many women in law or any other profession as there are today.

"What the old Harvard eating clubs were for men is what the Woman's National Democratic Club was for us," said Mrs. Foreman, who at 39 holds the No. 1 consumer job at the Agriculture Department. "That's where many of us met."

"It didn't occur to me that the day would come when so many women I knew personally would end up in government jobs. I always thought we'd be outsiders."

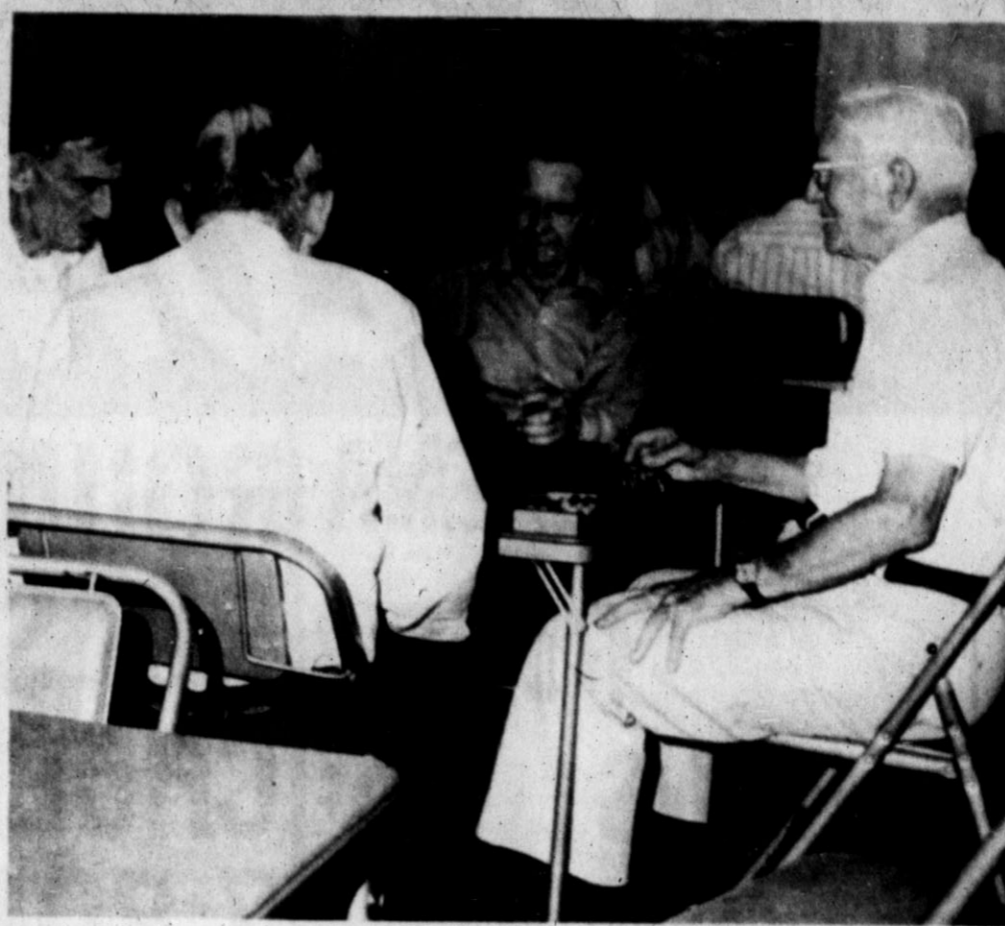

The Woman's National Democratic Club, which now has over 2,000 members nationwide, was organized in 1922, two years after women won the vote. Its Washington headquarters has a reputation for well-prepared lunches and interesting speakers.

Mrs. Foreman said she tries to fill any job openings she has with women. Also, she doesn't want other women to have to overcome some of the same professional obstacles that she faced.

"The first time I was pregnant and working, there was an effort to get me to quit," she said. "My boss was uncomfortable having a pregnant woman in the office, a woman who wouldn't be staying at home all day with her baby. I can't think of any reason why other women should have to go through that."

As well as giving each other moral support, the women often exchange information about job openings, salaries and legislation affecting women. If they're married and mothers, there's another great equalizer - child care.

a music teacher in the Midlothian Schools previous to her move to Hereford.

After graduating from Cooper High School, Abilene, Sara attended college at Texas Tech, Western Texas College, Snyder, and received her B.S. in music education at TWU, Denton. She is presently working on her master's at WTSU.

Sara holds memberships in TSTA-NEA, Texas Library Association, Alpha Lambda Delta Music Sorority, Chamber Singers, and First Methodist Church. Music, crafts and reading are activities she enjoys.

"Love and patience are essential to teaching. The basic of education are tremendously important. We should all try to instill pride, self-respect, and consideration for others, in each child. I feel that each is terribly important for successful living," states Sara in thought about teaching and education.

HEALTH FAIR IS COMING

A free health fair, open to the public will be conducted in Hereford, Tuesday, September 13, at the Bull Barn. The event will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude by 6 p.m. Health related agencies and organizations will set up displays and exhibits. Free resource materials will be available.

Live demonstrations and films will be included in the day's activities. Several free tests will be run on each individual who so desires. Some of the tests include: diabetic screening, tuberculin skin test, blood pressure, blood type, glaucoma screening, and height and weight.

The Blood Bank Mobile will be in operation during the day. They are coming the 13th in lieu of their regular day in Hereford for the month of September.

The following have agreed to participate in the Health Fair: Lung Assoc., Texas Dept. of Health Resources, Amarillo Regional Hearing and Speech Foundation, Inc., American Diabetics, March of Dimes, American Heart Assoc., Epilepsy, Muscular Dystrophy, Blood Bank, Early Childhood Development, TAP, YMCA, King's Manor, Eye Bank, American Cancer Society, Red Cross, Cowbelle's, Drug Display, AA, Arthritis, Hospital Auxiliary, TOPS, and Extension.

FAMILY MEDICAL RECORDS

Any family's most vital history is medical.

Medical records are important when children enter school, when booster shots are in question, and as reminders of past illnesses and treatments.

A medical record can also be a reminder for periodical medical exams, eye examinations, and dental check-ups.

Include in any family medical record:

- Basic Identification
  1. Names of all family members, social security numbers, birthdates, and birth weights.
  2. The names of family physician, dentist, ophthalmologist, or optometrist plus addresses and telephone numbers.
  3. Life, health, and disability insurance policies and their numbers.
  4. Blood type and rh factor.
- Medical History
  1. Immunizations.
  2. History of any infectious diseases, such as chicken pox, rubella, hepatitis, measles, mumps, scarlet fever.
  3. Laboratory tests, including the date and type of test and results. Examples would be blood chemistry, EKG, glaucoma test, pap test, urine analysis.
  4. History of accidents, including cause, type of accident, treatment and physician.

5. Hospital experiences including operations and pregnancies. List the reason for entering the hospital, the name of the hospital, and the name of the attending physician.

6. Allergies, such as asthma, hay fever, and food allergies.

7. Drug allergies, including information about any reactions.

8. A list of medications taken regularly.

9. Special problems such as a bleeding tendency of transfusion reaction.

10. Prescriptions for eyeglasses or contacts plus history of eye examinations.

11. History of dental health including dates and type of fillings, crowns, and any special treatments.

12. Include space for reports from periodical physical examinations, such as height, weight, blood pressure, and results of routine tests.

Miscellaneous Information.

1. History of relatives, especially those who have had diseases such as cancer, diabetes, heart disease, hypertension, and stroke. Include dates and causes of deaths.

2. Maintain a list of any travel outside of the USA, including dates and locations.

3. Record dates of blood donations (whole blood or plasma). It would also be helpful to record blood pressure.

Although this may look like a long list of information to keep, you can never be sure when this information may save time, money, or problems.

Request: Oldtime Chowchow

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My grandmother made a relish she called chowchow. I know she put green tomato, cabbage, green pepper and onion in it because I remember helping her prepare those vegetables for it. I would love to duplicate her chowchow but her recipe was "in her head" and those I've found under the name of chowchow use a different combination of vegetables. Do you have a recipe for my Grandma's kind? - YOUNG COOK.

DEAR YOUNG COOK: Indeed I do. Your Grandma's chowchow happens to be the sort I grew up on and I have some in my preserve closet right now. Webster defines chowchow as "a spicy relish of chopped, mixed pickles in mustard sauce." Apparently cooks have been using various ingredients in this relish from the time chowchow began. By the way, the word "chowchow" is pidgin English and is derived from the Chinese. Sometimes chowchow is called piccalilli and you may find recipes of the sort you like under that head. One of my helpers praises my rule - it follows - because it does not have a superabundance of liquid. - C. B.

CHOWCHOW OR PICCALILLI

- 1 1/4 pounds green tomatoes, thinly sliced (3 cups)
- 5/8 cups loosely packed chopped (medium-fine) green cabbage (1 medium-small head)
- 1 quart chopped (medium-fine) green peppers (6 to 8 medium)
- 1 1/2 cups chopped (medium-fine) onions (3 medium)
- 2 tablespoons coarse salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon yellow mustard seed
- 1 tablespoon celery seed
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon ground turmeric

In a large bowl stir together the tomato, cabbage, pepper, onion and salt; cover and refrigerate overnight. Turn into a strainer (by batches if necessary) and allow to drain well. In a 4 or 5-quart saucepot stir together the remaining ingredients; bring to a boil, stirring until the sugar dissolves; simmer for 20 minutes. Add the vegetables; bring to a boil; simmer for 20 minutes. Ladle into clean hot 1/2-pint wide-mouth canning jars, making sure the liquid covers the vegetables and leaving 1/4-inch headspace; wipe jar edges with a damp cloth. Seal, following jar manufacturer's directions. Place jars in a water bath canner or on a rack in a large saucepot. Add hot water to cover jars by at least 1 inch. Bring water to a boil, then keep at a gentle steady boil to process for 10 minutes. Remove jars to a wire rack to cool. Store in a cool dark place. Makes seven 1/2-pint jars.

DO-IT-YOURSELF SANDAL COURSE

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) - Classes in sandal making are being offered this summer at The Museums at Stony Brook Craft Center, with Fred Patterson, a master leather craftsman for more than 30 years, as instructor. After tracing the foot on paper to get a pattern, the students will cut out insoles, slots, trim, and heels where needed. Students should be able to craft a pair of sturdy sandals in nine hours once they have completed the course.

Habe Das Will Travel

A haberdasher is basically a dealer in accessories - shirts, ties, socks. Peddlers in Germany would cry their wares by calling "Habe das" - in English - "I have that." When the sellers settled in stores they kept their traveling name - haberdasher.

New treatment for leather and suede now being tested may soon make them dry-cleanable by ordinary methods, announces Margret Ann Vanderpoorten, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON

The Good Neighbor

Local: We were unable to start the Water Safety class this week due to a variety of reasons. We are planning to have another class in the spring as soon after an Advanced Lifesaving class as possible.

The Uniformed Volunteers will be meeting for their regular covered dish luncheon meeting September 8 at the home of Chairman Mrs. Nell Culpepper. They will be planning the Health Fair and the clothing room. We are still in need of good children's clothing, dishes and linens. Call the office and we will make arrangements to pick up items.

Amarillo Great Chapter will be hosting a Service to the Military Workshop Friday the 23rd of September. If you are interested in helping with the program and would like to attend this meeting, call the office for reservations. Red Cross assistance to flood victims in Johnstown and surrounding areas of western Pennsylvania has passed $1,400,000 and 320 people are still in Red Cross shelters. Reports indicate that a total of 7,794 families suffered loss; Seventy-two are known to have died and 2,696 people have been injured, and the cost of relief operation will be well over $2 million.

The Red Cross is an enduring expression of our great democratic tradition of volunteer humanitarian relief - a tradition by which people have freely joined together to meet imperative human needs through common action. Help the Red Cross help.

COOKING IS FUN

SUNDAY DINNER
Rare Roast Beef Potatoes
Green Peas Mushroom Salad
Blueberry Pie Beverage
ANN'S RARE ROAST BEEF

We've been asked to give this recipe.

2-rib roast of beef minus short ribs (4 1/2 to 5 pounds)
Flour
Salt
Coarsely cracked black pepper

Place the refrigerator-cold beef in a shallow roasting pan. Rub with a little flour and sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Place a tent of foil loosely over the top of the meat. Roast in a preheated 500-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Turn off heat but do not open oven door. Allow the roast to remain in the oven for at least 1 hour, or until the oven is lukewarm, which occurs in about 2 hours. The roast will retain a crunchy outside, and an internal heat suitable for serving for as long as 4 hours. Adapted from "Good Food and How to Cook It" by Ann Seranne (Morrow).

"Let's talk dry cleaning"

BY RICK BLASKE

Today I would like to get just a little bit personal with the ladies. I want to talk about deodorants and perfumes. We are bombarded with advertising from television, radio and newspapers for deodorants, perfumes and anti-perspirants. Now I will admit that all these products do give us a sweeter smelling world. And, I will also admit that a whiff of perfume can turn a man's head in a hurry.

I think you should use these products, especially if you are like most of us and tend to perspire a bit, especially in hot weather. But, when you do use them, there are a few precautions you should take to protect your lovely clothes. Most of these products, and even perspiration can damage fabric or leave stains that are almost impossible to remove.

So remember these simple rules. Let anti-perspirants and deodorants dry before dressing. Wear dress shields to protect your clothes. And, when you add that final touch of perfume, be sure to keep it off your clothes.

If you will follow these simple rules, your clothes will last much longer, and you will not be risking stains that may never come out.

Remember, good home care of your clothes goes hand in hand with expert dry cleaning care. For more value of your clothing dollar, be sure to have your clothes cleaned regularly.

Farmers Second-Guessing On Set-Aside Policy

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Local farmers are finding themselves in a bind as they prepare to sow their winter wheat crop.

Many have good soil moisture available at the present time, but a slow-moving Department of Agriculture has failed to notify them just how much—if any—of the nation's wheat acreage will be placed in a set-aside program for the coming year.

So farmers must choose between moving ahead with their planting, at the risk of being forced to plow up a portion of their crop later, or waiting and almost certainly losing the precious soil moisture now available.

John Fuston, Deaf Smith County ASCS executive director, can sympathize with the plight of area agriculturalists.

Confused farmers have kept the phone ringing off the wall at the Hereford ASCS office in recent days, hoping to get some clarification on just what's pending in Washington.

No Second-Guesser

"I have said I don't know to more questions in the last few days than I have at any other time in my life," commented Fuston. "I'm not having any more luck second-guessing the USDA and the Secretary of Agriculture than anybody else around here," he added.

A verdict is expected to be handed down by the Agriculture Department, possibly this week, on just what type of wheat program will be adopted.

But local farmers have already been waiting for what seems an intolerably long time, and every extra day of delay adds to the tension on the farm scene.

"We just don't have any information to give a man right now so that he can make a management decision," said Fuston, a note of resignation in his voice. "We have farmers who are already planting."

More Sorghum Next Year

While confusion reigns over the wheat program, Fuston is already predicting that corn, the Cinderella crop of the Panhandle over the past decade, may fall by the wayside next year to be replaced by grain sorghum.

"The grain sorghum target price is a big topic of conversation among farmers right now," Fuston explained. "It looks like the target price will be set at $3.75 per cwt. for this year's crop. That is higher than corn, which will be set at $3.57 for this year. The grain sorghum target is based on the cost of production, while corn is evidently being based on a figure selected by Congress. We are hearing a lot of complaints over this from the corn boys, and I think this target price situation will be a big factor that will prompt the planting of a lot more milo in this country next year, unless something is changed."

Energy A Factor

Fuston feels that energy considerations could have been a factor in the more favorable target price for grain sorghum.

"We can process milo using very little energy, because a lot of drying isn't required, like it is with corn. And milo requires less irrigation than corn, which again would cut the energy requirements for powering irrigation engines. These sort of considerations could possibly be part of an energy package," he pointed out.

Fuston said he looks for some type of diversion program on milo, corn and cotton, although he has no idea what type of acreage factor would be involved with any of the commodities.

"The figures on any of these crops will be at the discretion of Secretary of Agriculture Bergland. He will be delivering the set-aside figures," said Fuston.

Government May Get Grain
Although farmers are opposed to commodities being owned by the government, and the government has indicated its reluctance to own grain, Fuston expects a considerable quantity of corn to be passed into government hands.

"With the loan prices it appears that the majority of our corn will be placed in the loan. If the farm bill passes, and we think it will, our loan price on corn will be $3.57 per cwt. It looks like after 11 months of storage, a man could net approximately $3.20 per cwt. if he forfeited his corn to Commodity Credit Corporation," Fuston commented.

"The big problem, if farmers do forfeit, is that grain is placed in the hands of the government, and this isn't good for farmers in the future. Any time the government has grain, it can control the markets. From all indications, the government doesn't want to see this happen any more than the farmer does, but it seems inevitable," he added.

Exports Only Out

The ASCS director explained that exports are the only apparent out for American agriculture in this current crisis, but even this market offers little hope in view of bumper grain crops worldwide this year.

"We will have grain in government hands unless we get a lot of export markets fast, or a major disaster. It is awful that we have to hope for a big disaster for someone else to help our market, but if something like this doesn't occur, there's going to be a lot of grain going to Commodity Credit Corporation," he stated.

Fuston pointed out that local corn producers will have yet another factor to contend with this year as corn yields will be down as much as 20-30 per cent here this fall, due to extremely hot and dry weather in July.

"Farmers were hard-pressed to get water to their corn crops and a lot of the corn just didn't pollinate like it should. Farmers were also unable to control spider mites with any effectiveness locally, and these insects also did some damage," he related.

Sugar Policy No Thriller

As if problems with the grain crops were not enough, farmers in the local area are also saddled with concern over the outlook for the sorely-pressed domestic sugar industry.

The administration has displayed little inclination to assist the domestic industry, which is being hit hard by foreign sugar imports and high production costs.

Title IX of the "Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 dealing with sugar states:

"The price of the 1977 and 1978 crops of sugar beets and sugar cane to be supported through loans and purchases at a level not more than 65 per cent of parity nor less than 52.5 per cent of parity, but not less than 13.5 cents per pound raw sugar equivalent. The Secretary of Agriculture would be authorized to suspend operations of the provision at such time as he determines there is an International Sugar Agreement in effect which would maintain a U.S. raw sugar price of at least 13.5 cents per pound."

Fuston admits that the proposed sugar legislation has generated little excitement among local beet growers.

"No, farmers aren't excited over the sugar provision. It might be a little help to them, but it's about like giving a kid a sucker and letting him have one lick before taking it away from him," Fuston opined.

In A Fix

County ASCS Executive Director John Fuston is in a difficult position these days, much like the county's wheat farmers. Local agriculturalists have plenty of questions about what's forthcoming in the way of a set-aside policy on wheat, but Fuston is a bit shy on answers, thanks to a delay in announcing a set-aside program by the USDA. "I've said I don't know to a whole lot of questions lately, and it would be a whole lot better if I could give our farmers some kind of an answer to base a management decision on," said Fuston. Some local farmers are already planting their winter wheat crop, although there is a chance they might have to plow up a portion of their acreage if a set-aside program is announced. ## Grain harvest is coming.

The facilities of Pitman Grain Company are now open and ready for corn and milo harvest.

Post Office Box 1937, Hereford, Texas 79045

GRADE REQUIREMENTS FOR GOVERNMENT CORN LOAN ELIGIBILITY:

Moisture-maximum.....	15.0%
(Higher moisture requires supplemental certificate)
Broken corn and foreign material-maximum .....	4.0%
Heat damage-maximum .....	0.5%
Total damage-maximum .....	7.0%

We want you, our customers, to know our situation for the upcoming corn harvest. The only dryer we have is at our main elevator in Hereford which limits us on the amount of high moisture corn we will be able to dry and store. Due to this limitation, we will be forced to acid treat the high moisture corn received at our country stations—Westway, Summerfield, Center Point, Milo Center and Sims. Acid treating corn automatically makes it ineligible for the government loan. We know this puts a restriction on the corn you bring us but with our present facilities for handling corn we have no other way to handle this crop.

If you have any questions, please contact us.

Sincerely,
Pitman Grain Company

Planning Completed For Agribusiness Exposition

LUBBOCK—Officials of the High Plains Agribusiness Exposition here have announced that plans have been completed for the three-day educational symposium to be held in conjunction with the show, September 8, 9, and 10 in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Four topics will be covered in the half-day sessions, employing a panel of experts in various phases of each field, a moderator selected by cooperating organizations and a question and answer session led by members of the Exposition's Producer Advisory Board. Topics include Marketing, Estate Planning and Water and Energy Development.

Panelists for the Marketing Symposium which will begin at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, September 8, include Tom Duffy, Dr. Willard F. "Doc" Williams, Dalton Gandy and Frank Morris. Moderator for the session will be Mike Stevens, vice-president and manager of the Lubbock office of Conti-Commodities. The Producer Advisory Board member will be Jerry Harris.

Duffy is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade and floor manager for Conti Commodities. His background includes 11 years of experience in merchandising cash grain and managing facilities for Continental Grain Co. He holds a BS in Agricultural Economics from the University of Illinois and specializes in assisting commercials with their hedging operations.

Dr. Williams is a Professor of Agricultural Economics at Texas Tech University and President of TARA, Inc., a Lubbock-based consultation, research and advisory firm. He is currently conducting courses in marketing commodities across the High Plains.

A distinguished educator and research specialist, Dr. Williams has held positions as economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco and the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C. He has also served on the staff of the National Commission on Food Marketing and has been a consultant to many public and private agencies.

Gandy is President of the International Sunflower Association, Memphis, Tenn., a member of the executive committee of the International Sunflower Conference and a consultant of the USDA southern Regional Task Force on New Crops and Oil Seeds. He holds a BS in Agriculture from Louisiana State University where he has done extensive graduate work. Retired as head of research for the National Cottonseed Products Association, Gandy is currently employed as Sunflower Public Relations Co-ordinator for RBA Seed Co.

Lubbock Sunflower Seed Producers have declared September 9 as Sunflower Day at The High Plains Agribusiness Exposition, in honor of Gandy's visit to Lubbock.

Frank Morris is manager of marketing planning for the Dallas Agriculture Equipment Co. A graduate of Memphis State University, Morris joined International Harvester in 1963 and has served as area sales manager, marketing planning manager and manager of personnel and planning in Memphis before accepting his present position in Dallas.

The Estate Planning portion of the symposium will begin at 2:30 p.m. Thursday with Clarence P. Brazill, Jr. leading a panel of attorneys from the firm of McCleskey, Harringer, Brazill and Graf of Lubbock.

Before joining the Lubbock firm, Brazill worked as a tax trial attorney for the Internal Revenue Service Regional Council's office in New York from 1955-1961. He holds a BS from the University of Pittsburgh, a JD from Southern Methodist and LL.M. Taxation from New York University. Brazill will be joined on the panel by John A. Freels and Gary A. Ward, both associates with the firm of McCleskey, Harringer Brazill and Graf.

Producer Advisory Board member for the Estate Planning Session will be Joe Unfred.

Friday, September 9 is set for the Energy Development Symposium at 2:30 p.m. Speakers for that session include Alvin C. Askew, governor's administrative assistant for Energy Resources, Austin, Texas; Edmund Nichols, special assistant to the Deputy Secretary of Agriculture in Washington, D.C. and Richard J. Kenyon, manager of the Fertilizer and Chemical Division of Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla.

Askew holds a Doctor of Jurisprudence from the University of Texas at Austin and a BS in Engineering Sciences from the U.S. Air Force Academy. In addition to his present position in Austin, Askew has served as Energy Resources Coordinator State/Federal Relations in Washington, D.C.; administrator of the Texas Emergency Fuel Allocation Office and engineer and legal examiner for the Texas Railroad Commission.

Edmund Nichols joined the staff of Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White in 1955 and was appointed in 1965 to be Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture. In assisting in overseeing general operations of the Texas Department of Agriculture, Nichols was frequently called upon to represent Commissioner White and Texas in councils of government and industry throughout the country.

His work has also involved several special foreign assignments including participation on Japan-Texas Association Conferences in Tokyo in 1972 and 1975.

Nichols joined the USDA in March of this year as Special Assistant to Deputy Secretary White. He works in a supportive role with the Deputy Secretary in overall department concerns and is a key official in agricultural energy policy development and coordination.

Kenyon is a member of the board of directors and Vice-President of Phillips Pacific Chemical Co. and American Fertilizer and Chemical Co. and a member of the Board of Directors of Fertilizer Institute. A graduate of Syracuse University, Kenyon is past president of the Agricultural Ammonia Institute and has been with Phillips for thirty years. Leading the question and answer session will be Producer Advisory Board members Larry Haygood and Carl King.

The final session of the symposium, Water Development, will begin at 10:00 a.m., Saturday, September 10. Speakers will be Dr. Herbert Grubb, director of planning for the Texas Water Development Board; John Saxton, director of Soil and Water Resources Division of the Arkansas Department of Commerce, and State Senator Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Dr. Grubb directed the planning work for the update and revision of the Texas Water Development Plan in March of 1976. As a faculty member of Texas Tech, in 1968 he was contracted to the governor's office to develop input/output models of the Texas economy for use in evaluating water resources development. He currently serves on the Federal Power Commission and the National Governors Conference Energy Study Committees, in addition to responsibilities which include supervision of five major water resources planning and development divisions: Economics of water requirements and uses; environmental; systems engineering and development; water importation and weather modification and technology.

Dr. Grubb holds a BS in Agriculture Education from Berea College, Berea, Kentucky, a MS in Agriculture Economics from Oklahoma State University and a Ph.D. in Agriculture Economics from North Carolina State University.

John P. Saxton joined the staff of the Arkansas Soil and Water Conservation Commission in May 1972 and was appointed director of the Commission and the Department of Commerce, Division of Soil and Water Resources. He is a graduate of Mississippi State University and holds BS and MS Degrees in soils.

Hance, a Lubbock lawyer, was elected to the State Senate in 1974. He is presently chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Water and a member of the Natural Resources Committee, the State Affairs Committee and the Senate Finance Committee. He is a 1965 graduate of Texas Tech University and holds a Law Degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

Before his election to public office, Senator Hance served on the Board of Regent of West Texas State University, the Texas Citizens Water Advisory Council, and was named one of the five outstanding professors at Texas Tech University.

Moderator for the Water session will be George McKleskey, and Producer Advisory Board member, Frank Gray will lead the question and answer session. A special address by United States Senator John Tower at 2:30 p.m. will round out the symposium on Saturday.

The High Plains Agribusiness Exposition officials noted that with approximately 150 companies exhibiting agricultural equipment, goods and services from 10:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. all three days, persons attending the symposium events will have a unique opportunity to become aware of the most current information available in the agriculture field today.

The admission price of $2.00 per person will include admission to all exhibit areas, one day's session of the symposium and other daily special events, which include a microwave demonstration, home decorating seminar, natural fiber fashion show and a special presentation by Cotton Inc. titled "News in Cotton."

Offices of The High Plains Agribusiness Exposition are located at 526 Court Place in Lubbock, 79401. Persons who need additional information on any portion are encouraged to contact it's director, Danny J. Cunyus at 806-763-3851.

Prochemco Earnings Up

Prochemco, Inc. today reported earnings of $731,000 ($5.2 a share) on revenues of $42,316,000 for the nine months ended July 31, 1977. This compared with earnings of $533,000 ($3.7 a share) on revenues of $29,594,000 for the comparable nine months of the prior year.

For the third quarter, earnings of $216,000 ($1.5 a share) were reported on revenues of $14,809,000 as compared with earnings of $81,000 ($0.6 a share) on revenues of $8,033,000 in the third quarter of fiscal 1976.

Feed yard occupancies have averaged 72 per cent for the year and currently stand at approximately 70 per cent. This compared with a nine month occupancy level of approximately 59 per cent in fiscal 1976.

Prochemco, Inc. recently elected two new directors: Carroll L. Wilson, Professor at the Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and William L. Holt, Vice President of Stronac Investments Ltd. of Toronto Canada. They filled vacancies created by the resignations of Frank K. Calhoun and E.R. Thomas, Jr.

The Board also designated Maurice F. Strong, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Company, Strong is President of Stronac Investments Ltd. and Chairman of the Board of Petro-Canada. Stronac recently acquired over 300,000 shares of the Company's common stock in two private transactions with stockholders, and now owns 31.7 per cent of the outstanding shares. Stronac has announced its decision not to proceed with a proposed tender offer for Prochemco shares.

Prochemco, Inc. is an Amarillo-based company engaged in custom cattle feeding in Texas and Nebraska and the distribution and manufacture of the Murray and Carter brands of cotton ginning and cotton seed processing equipment from facilities in Texas, Massachusetts and Tennessee.

Tour Set For Test Plot On Corn Smut

Over 100 varieties of commercial corn will be on display at the George Sides farm west of Dimmitt Monday, presenting area corn growers an opportunity to evaluate the varieties for smut and other diseases.

The field day will get underway at 1:30 p.m., according to Charles Hottel, Castro County agent.

The smut test is being conducted at the Sides farm for the second consecutive year by Dr. Raymond Berry, Extension Pathologist.

Last year's smut demonstration plot brought smut to the attention of corn growers throughout the Panhandle, and many seed firms began concentration of their efforts on varieties which showed resistance to smut.

This year's varieties were planted in April and evaluated for smut on Aug. 18. They were also evaluated for mite damage on Aug. 23.

Varieties were also evaluated for maize dwarf mosaic and stalk rot.

The Sides farm is located 8 miles west of Dimmitt on Highway 86, two miles north and one mile west.

A jellyfish pulled from the sea and left on the beach will shrivel and die, but its poison survives. An unsuspecting bather who steps on the dead animal on the beach is likely to suffer a painful sting, says National Geographic.

On The Turnrow

By Jim Steiert

Brand Farm Editor

We were a bit surprised by the recent elections on hail suppression in a number of Panhandle and South Plains counties.

We knew there was a good deal of opposition to cloud-seeding activities in some localities, but it was almost astonishing to see the overwhelming sentiment against the practice which was made evident at the polls.

During the course of the weather modification elections, we made an effort to give both the pro and con sides of the issue, and tried not to formulate our own opinions.

As things went along however, it was hard not to form some opinions in our own mind.

In the final analysis, I must say that I don't think it was right for this procedure to be carried out over such an extensive area because of the notions of a few individuals in a specific area not particularly when all of the farmers in the counties involved were not consulted.

The will of a few shouldn't override the desires of the majority.

Judging from the election results, this is exactly what a lot of folks felt was happening.

The thing that really turned my head, however, was when a spokesman for one of the weather modification firms commented that he didn't care what opinion people expressed at the polls, their votes didn't mean anything anyway.

An official from one of the counties involved in weather modification went so far as to call the elections "straw votes."

Proponents of weather modification claimed they had proven their case in a number of hearings, and opponents claimed to have evidence to refute anything the opponents could come up with.

But in the end, it seemed to all boil down to one man's words and beliefs against another's.

—And ultimately, one man's vote against another's.

The crying shame in this whole affair is that so many of the fine farmers of the Texas Panhandle and South Plains were at one another's throats arguing over an issue which has little scientific data to support either viewpoint.

Only a couple of years ago, an extensive study of weather modification and its effects was undertaken.

In the analysis of the study, scientists revealed that no conclusions could be drawn because of lack of data on rain and hailfall in the area involved.

There were simply not enough rain gauges scattered over the counties involved to give reliable data.

I have nothing against the areas which support cloud seeding. In fact, I can appreciate their concern for what Mother Nature can do to crops and property in a hailstorm.

At the same time, I have no argument with the dryland farmers and ranchers who feel they have seen too many rain-bearing clouds broken up by flares emitting from planes up there.

But I cannot appreciate the desires of a few being pushed off on a majority who oppose those views.

With the intense emotions involved in this whole matter, I don't suppose we could have expected anything but a real dogfight, and an overwhelming vote one way or another.

I hope the in-fighting is over now though.

Today's farmers have enough problems to face without bickering among themselves.

Beef Prices Expected To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) - Higher farm prices for animals are pushing up what consumers pay for beef and pork and probably will continue to do so the rest of this year.

Retail beef prices, computed by the Agriculture Department for all cuts, rose to more than $1.38 a pound in July, up about a penny from June. Pork prices jumped to more than $1.32 a pound last month, up 6.4 cents.

The prices were included in a monthly report on price spreads for farm-produced food. Compared with a year ago, the retail beef price was about the same, but pork was down sharply, averaging 10 cents a pound below what consumers paid in July 1976.

Officials said the market price of choice-grade steers sold by farmers averaged $40.30 per 100 pounds in July, compared with $39.74 in June. Hogs were $45.76 per 100 pounds, compared with $43.86 in June.

A year ago steers sold for $37.92 per 100 pounds and hogs for $48.26 a hundredweight.

Another analysis by USDA livestock experts said retail beef prices are "expected to rise gradually through the remainder of 1977" and that pork prices, which normally decline seasonally in the fall as production increases, probably will hold steady.

The report on price spreads - the difference between what farmers get for their raw products and what consumers pay for food - showed that the "farm value" of beef last month was 81.3 cents a pound, compared with 79.9 cents in June, reflecting the increase in live cattle prices.

But that is not what farmers get for live cattle since it takes nearly 2.3 pounds of steer on-the-hoof to make one pound of supermarket beef. It is, however, the cattle producer's share of what consumers pay for beef.

The middleman's spread for transporting, processing and selling beef in July was 57 cents a pound, down half a cent from June, meaning that the price margin was squeezed by that much as cattle prices rose. Put another way, middlemen absorbed half a cent of the 1.4-cent increase in the farm value of beef during the month, with the result that the average retail price rose less than one cent a pound.

Pork included a farm value of 82 cents in July, up a full four cents from June. The middleman's share also increased to 50.1 cents from 47.7 cents in June, thus accounting for the boost of 6.4 cents in the retail price from June to July.

Overall, a 65-item market basket of a U.S. farm-produced food used in the monthly analysis registered an increase of one-tenth of 1 per cent in middleman charges from June to July, after increasing 2 per cent from May to June. The spread was up 4.1 per cent from July 1976.

Returns to farmers for the market basket were up 1.5 per cent overall from June, the report said.

"Farm values increased sharply for eggs, poultry and fresh fruits and vegetables, while farm values for oilseed products dropped substantially," the report said. "But compared with last July, farmers got 1 per cent less as their share of the market basket.

Computed another way, farmers in July received 38.8 cents of each dollar consumers spent for food in the market basket, compared with 38.5 cents in June and 40.1 cents a year ago.

Scabies Breaks Out In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - There's an outbreak of scabies among about 40,000 cattle in two feedlots in Monterey County, California officials say. The Department of Food and Agriculture said about 30,000 of the cattle will be dipped twice in chemical-filled vats under a program supervised by the department.

The other 10,000 will be slaughtered for market, said Dr. Harry Page, coordinator of the department's Bureau of Animal Health.

The dippings will be 10 days apart to kill both the mites which cause the scabies and their eggs, Page said.

Page said there were about three outbreaks of scabies last year in the Bakersfield and Imperial Valley areas.

California waged big campaigns to eradicate scabies in the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s, Page said.

Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico have had the scabies problem "right along, mainly the Texas Panhandle."

Animals from those states must be treated before entering California.

Now! What you pay to lease a Zimmatic depends on the price of corn.

Here's another first from Lindsay... the Zimmatic Corn Crop Lease. Instead of a fixed lease payment, you pay for your Zimmatic based on the price of corn. If corn prices plunge, so does your lease payment.

By offering this new lease, Lindsay is sharing some of the same risks that you face every year. Corn prices fluctuate, which affects your profit picture. That's why Lindsay developed the exclusive Zimmatic Corn Crop Lease... a revolutionary program that tailors your lease payments to the changing price of corn, from one year to the next!

The Zimmatic Corn Crop Lease is designed so you can lease a Zimmatic without using your normal operating credit sources... your Zimmatic pays its own way by turning on your production.

The number of Zimmatics available under this program and the time period of this offer are limited so come in soon and get all the details on the Corn Crop Lease and other exclusive leasing programs available only through Lindsay Credit Corp.

Take advantage of a program that has never been offered in the industry before... it's the lease we can do for you.

Hot Weather Can Stress Stock

COLLEGE STATION—Hot summer temperatures can put cattle in stress if they are not managed properly, says a beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

With proper management, cattlemen should not lose any cattle or suffer production losses during hot weather, believes Dr. Larry L. Boleman.

"When outside temperatures range from 90-100 degrees F., cattle should be left alone as much as possible," contends Boleman. "Avoid movement, crowding and handling of cattle because exercise and excitement increase body temperature. When the animal's physiological mechanism are already trying to reduce body temperature during hot weather, any extra physical trauma may result in permanent damage or death to the animal.

The specialist also recommends delaying surgery such as dehorning and castration since excessive bleeding may occur due to the animal's increased blood flow during hot weather.

If cattle must be moved on foot or transported during heat stress periods, this should be done during the early morning, at night or in late afternoon when temperatures are cooler. If cattle must be worked, they should be moved to a holding trap in late evening and worked early the next morning.

"Although wind movement from fans can increase feed intake, daily gains and improved feed conversion for feedlot cattle, shade is about the only economical means for cow-calf operators to change the environment. Research has shown that during periods of 90 degrees F. weather with a relative humidity of 63 per cent, cattle under shade gained weight while those without shade lost weight," points out Boleman.

"To improve management practices, producers must first understand the physiological mechanisms that beef cattle use to control body heat created by increased environmental temperatures," contends Boleman. "Animals seek to remove excessive heat by increasing blood flow, water is added to the blood and there is a greater rate of respiration and sweating. All cattle possess the ability to maintain body temperatures under heat stress. Studies have shown that Brahman and Brahman cross cattle maintain lower body temperatures and respiration rates due to a lower heat production when compared to other breeds."

It is important to the life processes of the animal that a normal temperature be maintained, emphasizes Boleman. The normal body temperature of cattle taken rectally averages 101.5 degrees F. and has a range of 100.4-102.8 degrees F. It is lower in cold weather, in older animals and at night. Rising environmental temperatures as well as excitement, exercise and infection increase this body temperature along with the pulse and respiration rates.

The pulse rate indicates the rapidity of heart action. It can be taken either on the outside of the jaw just above its lower border, or the soft area immediately above the inner dewclaw, or just above the hock joint. The normal pulse rate is 60-70 per minute.

To determine the respiration rate, place the hand on the flank or observe the rise and fall of the flanks. The normal respiration rate is 10-30 per minute.

"With proper care during hot weather, cattle can continue to function efficiently," adds Boleman. "The key is to keep their rate of activity down."

ART AWARDS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Painters James Hayward and Margit Omar of Venice, Calif., and sculptor John Okulick of San Pedro, Calif., have been given the 1977 New Talent Awards by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The three artists, who were chosen from 80 local candidates, were awarded $2,000 and the opportunity to present an example of their work to the museum some time in the next six years, museum officials said. This year's awards bring to 39 the number of artists whose works have been displayed through the program, which was established in 1963.

High Plains Beef Carcass Show Entry Deadline is September 5

AMARILLO, TX.—Custom cattle feeders from throughout the High Plains area will be competing in the ninth annual High Plains Fed Beef Carcass Show Sept. 13-15 at Iowa Beef Processors in Amarillo.

This year's show features $3,000 in prize money, with a top prize of $1,000 going to the feedyard manager exhibiting the champion pen. Entry deadline is Sept. 5. Capping the competition will be the presentation of awards at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Big Texan Steak ranch during the quarterly Southwestern T-Bone Club dinner.

One pen of five commercial-fed steers may be entered by a company, corporation, feedlot, partnership or individual. There is a limit of 30 pen entries, which will be accepted on a first come, first serve basis. Entry fee for the cattle, to be delivered to the Tri-State Fairgrounds between 11:00 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Sept. 13, is $25 per pen.

Dr. Ted Montgomery, carcass show superintendent, said the live evaluation of cattle will be at 3:00 p.m. at the fairgrounds. Carcass evaluation will be at IBP at 6:00 a.m. Sept. 15. Primal cuts from the winners will be on display at the Tri-State Fair, Sept. 19-24.

Entry blanks for the carcass show are available from the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. Additional contest information can be obtained from Dr. Ted Montgomery, head of the animal science department at West Texas State University.

Each commercial feedlot entering the competition may enter as many pens as desired but each pen must belong to a different owner.

Deadline for entries and fees to be submitted to the Chamber of Commerce is 5 p.m., Tuesday, September 6. The entries may be mailed or brought to the Chamber offices, 301 S. Polk.

New Mexico, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle will be represented by about 30 different commercial feedlots.

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association will award $1,000 to the feedlot manager producing the Grand Champion pen of five beefs. The individual owner of the winning pen will receive $500.

A $200 award will be given to the owner of the Grand Champion Carcass. The feedlot manager and owner producing the second place pen will also receive awards as will the second place carcass.

The awards banquet will be sponsored by the Southwest T-Bone Club, Sept. 15 at the Big Texan Steak Ranch in Amarillo.

Ceremonies will begin with a social hour 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. Reservations are $10 per person and may be made at the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce offices also.

The Texas Cowbelles have made arrangements to exhibit the champion carcass in a booth at the Tri-State Fair, September 19-24 at the fairgrounds, according to Montgomery.

Other sponsors of the annual event are Swift and Company, Missouri Beef (MBPXL Corp.) and Amarillo Packing Company.

Etter Field Day to Feature Limited Corn Irrigation Test

ETTER: "Limited irrigation research" on corn and grain sorghum will highlight the Field Day at the North Plains Research Field at Etter on Tuesday, September 6, beginning at 1:30 p.m. The Research Field is located one mile east and one-half mile north of Etter. The announcement of the event and invitation to the public was made by Dr. John Shipley, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station research leader from Amarillo.

consist of a tour of current irrigation research being conducted at the Field Station. Scientists from the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center at Amarillo and the USDA Center at Bushland will be presented to answer questions visitors may have regarding various phases of crop production of the High Plains of Texas. Tour stops will include skip-row planting and limited irrigation of grain sorghum, variable row spacing and limited irrigation of corn, seeding rate and irrigation yield response study of soybeans and grain performance trials of numerous grain sorghum and corn hybrids.

The total quantity of irrigation water applied under limited irrigation ranges from 4.4 to 13 acre inches for grain sorghum and from 4.4 to 26 acre inches for corn. Soybeans were planted at 20, 40 and 60 pounds per acre and irrigated at various stages of growth. Total irrigation water applied varies from 4 to 24 acre inches.

The tour includes a Regional Performance test of 11 grain sorghum hybrids and 81 corn hybrids for grain production.

The Field Day is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the North Plains Water District. "Energy and irrigation costs continue to increase", Dr. Shipley said, "I think farmers will be especially interested in our limited irrigation research on grain sorghum and corn."

It was a Monday the Pilgrims stepped ashore after 66 days at sea when the women set up tubs on the beach and scrubbed their way through the trip's accumulation of dirty clothes - starting a 350-year old tradition of Monday washdays.

Holly Omits Dividend

COLORADO SPRINGS-The Board of Directors of Holly Sugar Corporation today voted to omit the regular quarterly dividend that would have been paid September 30, 1977.

Board chairman John B. Bunker explained that the action was taken in view of the continuation of depressed refined sugar selling prices which result from persistent dumping in the United States of surplus foreign sugar at prices below the cost of production.

The company had previously announced a $413,000 net loss for the first quarter ended June 30, 1977.

"We see no real likelihood of improvement in these price levels in the near future," Bunker stated. "To protect the company's future under these conditions, a careful and guarded course must be followed in all areas of operation, including dividends," he said.

At the same time, the company announced plans to diversify its operations into both corn sweetener production and cane sugar refining.

Holly has entered into an agreement to construct a corn wet milling plant at its Tracy, California, factory. The plant will have a grinding capacity when completed of approximately 16,000 bushels of corn per day and will begin high fructose corn syrup production in mid-1978.

In addition, the corporation will modify its Santa Ana, California, sugarbeet factory in order to process raw cane sugar. The conversion will require approximately eight months and will result in a refining capacity of 400 tons of raw sugar per day.

"These steps reflect the changing economics and demands of the nutritive sweetener market and are vital to the company's future operations," Bunker concluded.

The cost of the projects was not announced.

War of 1812

The War of 1812, coming 30 years after the United States had achieved independence from Great Britain, had three major causes: 1) British warships blockading Napoleonic France seized American trading ships; 2) Britain, refusing to recognize naturalized American sailors, seized and impressed thousands into British service; 3) Britain armed Indians who raided the U.S. western borders.

A gold mine near Johnsville, Calif., may have been the home of America's first ski lift. In the 1860s, skiers skied down the mountain slope there on Sundays, riding up again aboard the mine's chain line of ore buckets.

Before operating any equipment, study the operator's manual thoroughly.

Check the immediate area carefully before starting up machinery.

There are four separate religious quarters within the one-square mile, walled, old city of Jerusalem - Christian, Armenian, Jewish and Moslem.

Higher Poultry Prices Predicted By Ag Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Shoppers may see holiday turkeys cost about a nickel a pound more this year, according to new government forecasts.

Broiler chickens also will cost more this fall but egg prices will be down from a year ago, the forecast says. The Agriculture Department says that somewhat higher prices for beef and pork will help boost prices of poultry.

The department's Outlook and Situation Board said in a preliminary report that wholesale prices of turkeys may average 53 to 55 cents a pound in the fourth quarter of the year, up from 49 cents in the last three months of 1976.

"Turkey output through June was the same as in 1976," the report said. "Fewer birds were marketed but weights were heavier. Output will be down this summer but may about match a year ago during October-December."

Depending on the outcome of this fall's grain harvests, feed costs are expected to decline and thus trigger some expansion in turkey production in the first half of next year, officials said.

Wholesale prices of broiler-fryers are expected to average 38 to 40 cents a pound in the fourth quarter, compared with 35.5 cents a year ago. However, this will mean a seasonal decline from this summer's broiler prices of around 43 cents a pound "as people shift to other meats for the holidays," the report said.

Looking at the first quarter of 1978, the board said that broilers may average around 40.9 cents a pound during the first three months of this year.

Egg production has lagged behind 1976 so far this year but may step up this fall and continue increasing in 1978, the report said. Unusually hot weather this summer in many key areas has helped reduce egg output.

Even so, egg prices have been well below year-ago levels, according to the report.

Wholesale prices in the fourth quarter are forecast at 67 to 71 cents a dozen, up from around 63 cents this summer but down from the average of 78.4 cents in the last three months of 1976.

"Retail prices for Grade A large eggs this fall may average a nickel or so below the 90 cents a dozen paid during October-December 1976," the report said.

Per capita consumption of poultry has risen steadily in recent years. In 1976, according to other USDA reports, consumers ate an average of 43.3 pounds of broiler chicken on a ready-to-cook basis, up from 40.3 in 1975. Turkey consumption was 9.2 pounds per capita, up from 8.6 in 1975.

But egg consumption had dropped, averaging 276 eggs per capita last year against 279 in 1975.

The Hawaiian Islands were originally named the Sandwich Islands in 1778 by their discoverer, Capt. James Cook, in honor of his sponsor.

Natural gas was first used for illumination. In 1821, it was piped to homes and shops in Fredonia, N.Y., lighting a grand total of 30 lamps.

Benefit Roping Set For Sept. 3

A team roping will be held September 3 at the Old Abilene Town Arena in Abilene to benefit the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

The team roping will start at 11 a.m. and go until finished. Entry fee for this roping is $50 for three head (fast back on third). Books close at 10 a.m. September 3.

First place team will receive a pair of handmade saddles; second place team will get buckles; third place team will receive spurs, and fourth place team will get bits.

Admission to the roping is $2 per person. All proceeds from this roping will go to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

For more information on the roping, contact Danny Isbell or Sonny Dillard at (915) 692-2811.

High Court Ruling Hinders TDA Consumer Protection

WEIGHT WATCHER-Texas Department of Agriculture Weights and Measures inspectors always have their eyes on the scales. But it's not because they are worried about being overweight. They make sure consumers get packages of the exact weights as they pay for. However, this important function has been hampered recently by a Supreme Court decision, which supports more lenient federal standards.

AUSTIN—Most people won't get too upset if the one-pound package of meat they buy only contains 14 ounces, but Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown thinks Texas consumers should get exactly what they pay for.

But, says Brown, because of a recent decision by the U.S. Supreme Court the Texas Department of Agriculture's Weights and Measures Division can no longer assure consumers that losses caused by short-weighting will not be passed on to them. The decision upheld a California district court ruling that a state cannot establish more stringent weight labeling standards than those created by the federal government.

"Federal laws allow a 'reasonable' variation in weight due to moisture loss in transport," Brown said, "while our state standards basically call for the packager to make sure the package contains enough to offset this loss.

"These standards were challenged in the suit, but we think it is the right of every consumer to get exactly as much bacon, flour or any other product covered under this decision as they pay for," Brown stated.

Brown said he encourages Texas consumers to back the U.S. Senate Bill 727.

Samaritans May Get Respite From Free-Fall to Oblivion

TEL AVIV (AP) — Since Joseph begat Ephraim and Manasseh, history has been an ingrate to the Samaritans, caught in a free-fall toward oblivion. The hint of a respite from the dark line downward is appearing only now.

The descendants of the sons of Joseph and the Biblical Good Samaritan, who Jesus revered for his rescue of a wounded man ignored by priests and Levites, have barely managed to set up camp on this side of extinction.

One hundred twenty-six generations ago, according to their chronicles, there were 750,000 Samaritans in what is modern Israel. Today, four families, the Danfis, Cohens, Marchives and Tsedakas, 470 people in all, maintain the sect's rites and traditions, half of them living in a grubby Tel Aviv suburb called Holon and the others in Nablus, near the Samaritan holy site of Mount Gerizim where Joshua blessed his people.

Nablus is in occupied Jordan and in the 10 years since the Six Day War, the Samaritans have fallen on the windfall of free passage between the formerly separated communities to meet, marry and beget. Since the war, 102 Samaritan children have been born, increasing the world's Samaritan population by almost a quarter. But for the sect's historian, the births are barely a jot on a graph of precariousness 20 centuries long.

Benjamin Tsedaka, a 125th generation descendant of Manasseh who runs a bi-weekly Samaritan newspaper, takes the development without much excitement. "We shall see," he says, a man with little trust in stability.

"It took about 19 centuries for the Christians to get interested in what had happened to us," he said, referring to a British consul in Palestine who tried to assist the Samaritan community when it numbered 146 near the turn of the century.

"The good Samaritan story never did us a bit of good. Between the fourth and sixth centuries the area was under Byzantine Christian rule. "They wanted us to become Christians and we were destroyed. Then there was pressure to convert to Islam.

"More died. Many more. It is not a story that builds your trust in anything."

Tsedaka maintains that the Samaritan Community, described by a chief rabbi in Jerusalem as a "branch of the Jewish people", was equal in size to the Jews — descendants of the tribe of Judah for the Samaritans — at the time of Jesus.

He interprets Jesus' fondness for the Samaritans as based on similar differences with the Jews on matters of law and religion. The Samaritans assisted Jesus in Samaria, Tsedaka said, "but Jesus' disciples didn't understand the situation, thinking he wanted us to be Christians. We wanted to remain ourselves and they turned against us."

The Samaritans believe in one God and the prophet Moses, but differ from the Jews in considering Holy writ to be composed of only the first five books of Moses. Talmudic law is excluded and Mt. Gerizim rather than Jerusalem is the central holy place.

Certification Required of Applicators

COLLEGE STATION—Pesticide applicators who use or supervise the use of restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides will be required to become certified, effective Oct. 21, 1977, barring further changes in federal or state laws.

This certification of applicators is required by the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) as amended in 1972 and 1975.

Persons who own or manage a pesticide application business engaged in the application of restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides to the land of another (commercial applicators) are required to be certified and hold a license. Additionally, a person or government agency or department which wants to use restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides or have the authority to demonstrate restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides (noncommercial applicator), and who do not qualify as a private applicator must do likewise. These requirements are part of the Texas Pesticide Control Law.

Persons will be licensed by the appropriate state agency as either certified commercial or noncommercial applicators. Certification is based on a written examination administered by the designated state agency. Four state agencies have been identified to certify applicators concerned with four major control areas—agricultural pests, animal pests, aquatic and health-related pests.

A number of categories of commercial and noncommercial applicators have been established by regulations set forth by the Texas Pesticide Control Law.

If you qualify as a commercial or noncommercial applicator and anticipate that you will use restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides, you will want to contact the appropriate state agency to obtain additional information regarding the requirements and your obligations under the new laws.

Applicators working with agricultural pest control should contact Davis Ivie, Director, Agricultural and Environmental Sciences Division, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711. The telephone is (512) 475-4457.

For applicators working with animal pest control, the agency contact is Carl R. Watson, DVM, Texas Animal Health Commission, 1020 Sam Houston Building, Austin, Texas 78701. The telephone is (512) 475-4111.

Applicators working with aquatic pest control should contact Davis Barker, Texas Water Quality Board, P.O. Box 13246, Austin, Texas 78711. The telephone is (512) 475-5695.

Health-related pest control applicators should contact Bobby L. Davis, Health Program Specialist, General Sanitation Division, Texas Department of Health Resources, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756. The telephone is (512) 458-7111. (This agency will become the Texas Department of Health on Sept. 1.)

Although training is not a requirement for certification, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service—as the educational arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture—is conducting workshops for persons who may seek a training opportunity as they prepare for the written examination. These Extension workshops are being conducted over the state and are publicized through mass media by district Extension committees located at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Centers and by local county Extension offices.

Applicators who have questions concerning the Extension Service training workshops—such as dates, location, and categories in which training is to be offered—may wish to contact the local county Extension agent. The Extension Service office is generally located in the county courthouse or country agricultural building, and is a part of the Texas A&M University System.

Soil Research to Be Featured at Field Day

LUBBOCK—How to correct nitrogen, phosphorous, iron and zinc deficiencies in sorghum and cotton will be discussed among scientists, farmers and agribusinessmen during activities of the 68th Annual Field Day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Tuesday September 13.

Soil research is one of several featured research highlights singled out for review during the afternoon events. An estimated 1,200 or more persons are expected with field tours, machinery displays and other attractions scheduled.

Field day chairman Dr. Bill Lyle says the special occasion will be at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, north of the Lubbock Regional Airport on Farm Market Road 1294.

Cooperating agencies hosting the field day with the Experiment Station include the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Agricultural Research Service, USDA, National Weather Service and High Plains Research Foundation.

Tractor-drawn trailers will take guests through the 300-acre research plot area. They'll be given a close look at studies ranging from cotton variety and disease tests to weed control and water-use efficiency experiments.

Dr. Art Onken, Associate Professor, working in soil and fertilizer research will lead discussions on soil studies. Special emphasis, he says, will be on foliar application of fertilizer and how to correct plant nutrient deficiencies.

"The application of fertilizer materials is a huge economic investment," he says. "Growers can easily apply too much or too little and at the wrong time. Errors in judgement often are extremely costly to the grower, and he should manage fertilizer use in a way that he has a reasonable chance of obtaining an acceptable return on his investment."

Onken says that farmers should assess their fertilizer needs carefully. Research being conducted at the Lubbock Experiment Station is aimed at helping producers not only in methods of assessing their fertilizer needs but in the application of soil nutrients as well.

Scientists, he adds, are looking closer at plant tissue analysis as a method of determining when plants need certain nutrients and at what growth stages. This is a measurement technique using plant leaves to reveal rates of nutrient uptake which when correlated with fertilizer use data can help the grower calculate which nutrient should be applied at a given growth stage.

The soil researcher says every tool and bit of information available should be used by growers in making fertilizer use decisions. Soil research studies, he adds, are designed to help in this important test.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Butter inventories, reflecting increased dairy production, have soared in the last year, says the Agriculture Department.

As of July 31, nearly 205.3 million pounds of butter were held in the nation's cold storage facilities, and increase of 247 per cent from the 82.9 million pounds on hand a year ago.

Cheese inventories also have risen, although not as rapidly as butter. Stockpiles total about 589.2 million pounds against 508.9 million on July 31 of last year, the department said.

French Grain Production Rebounds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain production in France, a keystone of European Common Market agriculture, has rebounded sharply from drought-reduced harvests of 1976.

The Agriculture Department says that French corn output, for example, is estimated at 8.4 million metric tons, up from 5.5 million tons in 1976. Exports are expected to be 2.5 million tons against only 500,000 last year. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Wheat production is forecast at 18.8 million tons, up from 16.2 million last year. Exports are projected at 8.9 million tons against 1976 shipments of 6.7 million, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said.

Tobacco Support To Be Reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is setting up a special task force to review the government's tobacco price support program and to develop recommendations for changes.

At the same time, Bergland gave his endorsement to the concept of tobacco programs. Critics have said it is inconsistent for the Agriculture Department, on the one hand, to provide tobacco aid to farmers while the U.S. Surgeon General, on the other, claims that smoking is harmful to health.

"By act of Congress, tobacco is classified as a basic U.S. agricultural product," Bergland said in announcing his task force. "It provides a major source of income for about 600,000 farm families in 16 states, many of whom are small farmers for whom tobacco often is the only cash crop."

Also, he said, tobacco is a $1.4 billion export item and plays "an important role in helping offset the billions we are spending for oil imports." Federal, state and local governments also get about $6.1 billion from tobacco excise taxes.

"For these reasons a modest, modernized program to maintain economic stability for tobacco producers and tobacco-producing areas and to continue earning U.S. dollars abroad from this source is in the best interest of the country," Bergland said.

INTRODUCING FIESTA. IMPORTED FROM GERMANY BY FORD.

Fiesta with Decor Group

The Ford Fiesta. It's outsold every new car nameplate ever introduced in Europe, based on sales in the first six months, even surpassing the most popular cars from Volkswagen, Renault and Fiat. Behind that success is Fiesta's dramatic level of automotive performance.

ADVANCED EUROPEAN ENGINEERING

Fiesta is assembled by Ford in Germany, where its competition included some of the world's finest performance sedans. It was engineered for stability on Europe's high-speed autobahns. Yet for all its performance, Fiesta is engineered to be a simple, easy to service car.

FRONT-WHEEL DRIVE TRACTION

Fiesta has front-wheel drive, which helps give the car good drive wheel traction—even on snow and ice. This, in addition to Fiesta's MacPherson front suspension, rack and pinion steering, and Michelin radial tires, contributes to a solid feeling of controlled action.

QUICK AND MANEUVERABLE

Fiesta responds. In Ford tests it did 0-50 MPH in an average of 8.8 seconds (9.1 seconds for California emissions equipped models). And its front disc brakes brought Fiesta from 50-0 MPH in an average of 3.3 seconds.

EASY TO SERVICE

Fiesta was engineered to be simple and easy to service. Owners will appreciate its highly accessible transverse mounted engine. And see-through containers that allow "sight check" of fluid levels in battery, cooling system, brake and windshield washer reservoirs. In addition, Fiesta has self-adjusting clutch and brakes, and suspension and steering system that require no scheduled maintenance.

A SURPRISE INSIDE

Fiesta's 4-passenger design has created more back seat legroom than any other imported or domestic car of its kind. In addition, Fiesta has excellent luggage space, and a convenient floor-to-roof rear hatch door.

Fiesta is available from more than 5,000 authorized Ford Dealers across America, thousands more than any other import.

A single test drive can show you why Fiesta is Europe's most successful new car in history.

And Fiesta handles, with a precise rack and pinion steering system that gives it excellent control in tight corners and traffic maneuvers.

"Good ol' Charlie Brown"
by SCHULZ

IF YOU DON'T TELL ME THAT YOU LOVE ME, YOU KNOW WHAT I'M GOING TO DO?

I'M GOING TO HOLD MY BREATH UNTIL I PASS OUT!

BREATH-HOLDING IN CHILDREN IS AN INTERESTING PHENOMENON...IT COULD INDICATE A METABOLIC DISORDER...

A FORTY-MILLIGRAM DOSE OF VITAMIN B6 TWICE A DAY MIGHT BE HELPFUL...

I THINK THAT'S PROBABLY IT... YOU NEED VITAMIN B6... YOU MIGHT ALSO CONSIDER EATING MORE BANANAS, AVOCADOS AND BEEF LIVER...

*SIGH* I ASK FOR LOVE, AND ALL I GET IS BEEF LIVER!

beetle
by mort walker

HE'S GAINING ON YOU, BEETLE!!

I'M NOT WORRIED!

GOTCHA! NO, YOU DON'T!

DARN! HA! HA!

SLIPPED AWAY AGAIN!

WADD! I'LL GET YOU! BETTER DO IT QUICK!

OOF!

IT'S OUR ANNUAL "CATCH-A-GREASED-BEETLE RACE" FINISH LINE

THE BORN LOSER

WHERE DO YOU THINK YOU'RE GOING, WILBERFORCE?

DOWN TO TH' BASEMENT T'PLAY FROGMAN!

GET UP HERE, YOUNG MAN!

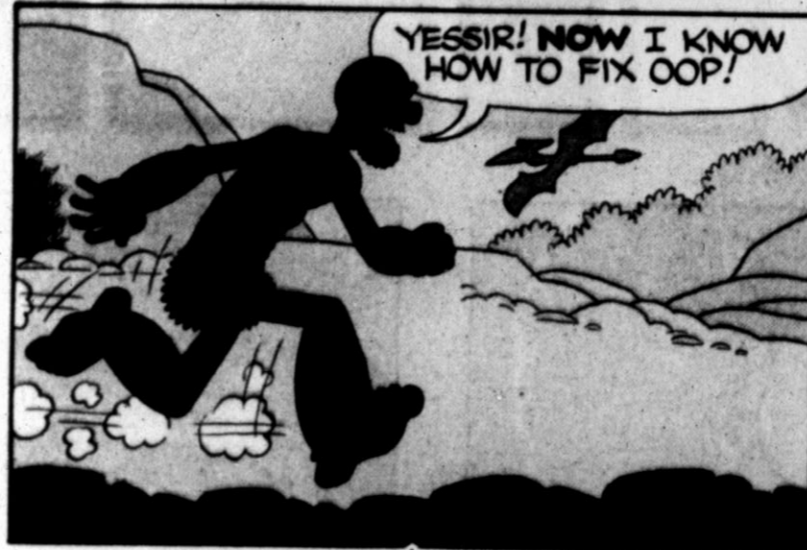

I FORBID YOU TO PLAY DOWN THERE WITH NO CLOTHES ON! I AIN'T PLAYIN', LADY...

BY THE MIND OF KING LUTHERY
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: GALAN THREADS HIS WAY THROUGH THE DIM CREVASSE AND ARRIVES AT THE ENTRANCE JUST IN TIME TO SEE A MOUNTED TROOP APPROACHING. HE DRAWS BACK HOPING HE HAS NOT BEEN SEEN.

FLATTENED AGAINST THE WALL, HE TREMBLES AS THE HOOFBEATS NEAR. BUT FIRST TO PASS THE ENTRANCE IS HIS FATHER!

GALAN CANNOT UNDERSTAND HIS FATHER... HE WOULD GO OFF ON A QUEST FOR MONTHS AT A TIME AND NOT WORRY, BUT IF HIS MOTHER IS MISSING A FEW DAYS HIS FATHER IS ALMOST FRANTIC!

SO YOUNG PRINCE GALAN HAS FOUND VAL'S ARMY AND GUIDES IT SAFELY THROUGH THE SPLIT MOUNTAIN...

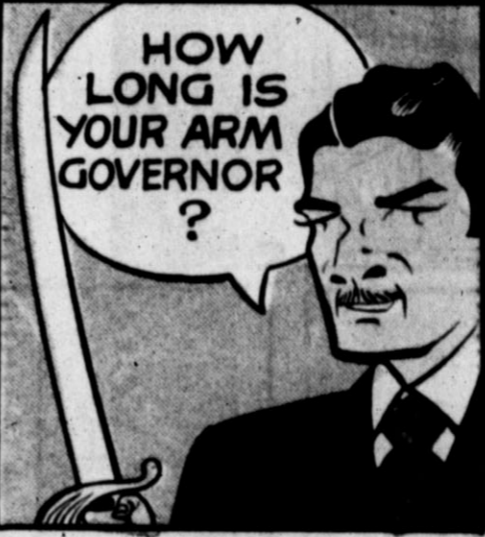

... AND, AT THE END OF THE PASSAGE, POINTS OUT THE CITY AND THE CANALS...

THEN LEADS THEM TO THE ROAD THROUGH THE IRRIGATED FIELDS TO THE CITY GATES. AFTER THAT HE TURNS THE RESPONSIBILITY OVER TO HIS SIRE.

FOR A BRIEF MOMENT VAL HAS FORGOTTEN THE EXUBERANT MANNER OF QUEEN ALETA'S GREETINGS, AND REMEMBERS TOO LATE WHEN A SCENTED BUNDLE HURLS HIM LAUGHING TO THE FLOOR.
NEXT WEEK - Aleta's Greeting

DICK TRACY

by Chester Gould

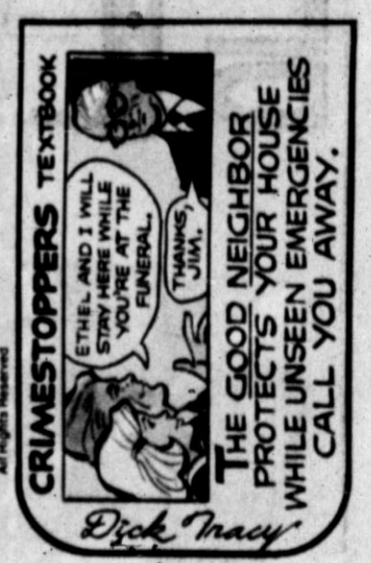

YES, TRACY, I ACCIDENTALLY STABBED MYSELF IN THE SIDE. I WAS GOING TO HAVE THE SWORDS POLISHED.

IN LOOKING FOR A BETTER DISPLAY AREA, I BACKED INTO THE STAIRS AND FELL, CLUTCHING THE SWORD.

HOW LONG IS YOUR ARM GOVERNOR?

HMM!

I'D LIKE TO HAVE A WORD WITH YOUR WIFE.

OH, SHE'S IN SHOCK AT THE MANSION, TRACY, AND SEEING NO ONE.

at the MANSION

ONE MORE, MARIE.

AND THE MYSTERY TODAY IS, WHO SLASHED THE GOVERNOR'S WIFE'S GOWN AND WHO STABBED THE GOVERNOR?

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

BUSAN TAYLOR OF MT. PLEASANT, TX, ASKS:
"WHY DO STARS TWINKLE?"

THE STARS THEMSELVES DON'T TWINKLE. THEY SEEM TO TWINKLE BECAUSE WE SEE THEM THROUGH THE AIR THAT COVERS THE EARTH. AS THE LIGHT FROM A STAR SHINES DOWN ON EARTH, IT PASSES THROUGH UNSTEADY LAYERS OF COLD AND WARM AIR. THE DIFFERENT LAYERS OF SHIMMERING AIR BEND THE STARLIGHT IN DIFFERENT WAYS SO THAT IT SEEMS TO CHANGE IN BRIGHTNESS, AND THE STAR APPEARS TO TWINKLE.

Boys and Girls.
Win one of these valuable prizes for the question answered here each week. Send your age and question to:

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — If the pan you want to use has no lid, a cover made of aluminum foil will serve the purpose well. — JOANNE.

© 1977 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — We all prefer different types of pantyhose and find that some wear better than others. In order to become my own best research consumer I sew a small scrap of material stencilled with the brand name to the inside waistline of my pantyhose. Next time I know what brand to buy when I need them. — AILEEN.

Send your helpful hints to Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — Mine is an energy-saving Pointer. Upon arising in the morning I open all drapes that face the sun. In this way the sun helps heat my house and I do not have to turn up the thermostat to keep warm. — KATHRYN.

DEAR POLLY — I use those pretty flowered facial tissue boxes to store the plastic bags that come with fresh vegetables and bakery items. Remove the plastic on each side of the hole in the box and put the bags in one at a time and a bag will pop up when you remove one. I keep this box on the top of the refrigerator where it is handy. — SUSAN.

DEAR POLLY — Save and use the lids of plastic margarine tubs. Roll out a ball of hamburger the size and thickness desired, pat the ball out on such a lid. All the meat can be so used, with a patty on each lid. Put in plastic bags or containers and freeze. To use, take out and run a knife blade under each patty and they will come out nicely. — RUTH.

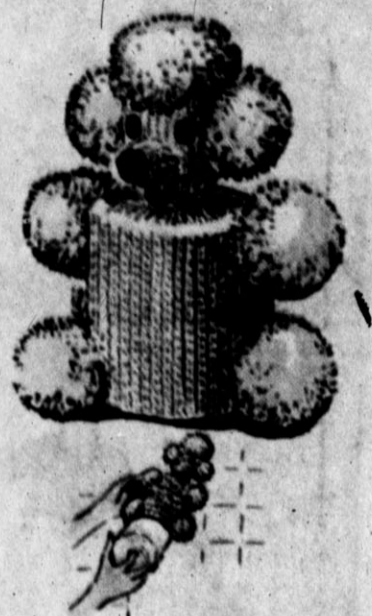

DEAR POLLY — I save all the bags my groceries come in as they are useful for so many things. They stay neatly stacked on a shelf when folded flat then secured with a strong rubber band. Take little space, too. — THELMA.

DEAR POLLY — Due to lack of space I hung a folding wire rack on the bathroom wall and rolled towels to go in the spaces intended for bottles. In the kitchen I hung a mug rack on which I hang dish towels. — DONNA.

DEAR POLLY — The car's visors do not come down low enough to keep out the late afternoon sun. I tried everywhere to buy those plastic extensions but no one had them, so I made my own. I opened each end of a 9x12-inch envelope, took the end flaps off and slipped this over the visor and it is just the right depth to keep the sun out. The flaps can be left on to make it longer on the open ends for shorter people. — MARY G.

There Is A Place

THIS LOOKS LIKE A NICE SPOT ALICE

THIS IS A GOOD SPOT

LOOKING FOR ANTS

WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME YOU WANTED AN'S... I COULD'VE BROUGHT

HEY, THERE'S A CREEPY DOWN HERE!

THERE'S A LOT LITTLE FISHES IN IT.

DON'T WANDER OFF, WE'RE GETTING LATE, PRETTY SOON.

DON'T MOM, LIKE NATURE?

SHE LIKES TO KEEP IT IN ITS PLACE, DENNIS.

WHAZZAT?

IT'S A GIANT THING! WITH HORNS!!

SHORT

LOOK OUT, MOM!

QUICK... CLIMB THAT TREE, ALICE!

OH NO!

YOU ARE A NICE COW BUT YOU'RE NOT WANTED HERE... SO GIT!!

YOU SURE LIKE TO KEEP STUFF IN ITS PLACE, MOM.
