

Priscilla Goes Before Prosecution for 8th Time

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) - With twin courtroom coups behind them, prosecutors summoned Priscilla Davis back to the stand today in the capital murder trial of her estranged husband, Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis.

The blonde Fort Worth socialite was to resume redirect examination by the state, marking her eighth appearance since testimony began Aug. 22.

She is the key witness for the prosecution in its bid to convict Davis for the slaying last summer of her daughter Andrea, 12.

Mrs. Davis was critically wounded and her boyfriend Stan Farr was slain in the Aug. 2 shooting spree at the ultramodern Davis mansion in Fort Worth.

Although she spent only a short time on the stand Tuesday, it was her sworn and unsworn statements that struck the biggest blows by the prosecution to date.

State attorneys overrode a multitude of defense objections and read into evidence first a sworn statement and then an interview Mrs. Davis gave investigators several days after the shootings.

In the unsworn interview, Mrs. Davis said she immediately recognized Davis as the "man in black" despite the shoulder-length woman's wig she said he wore.

"I could not believe he was really going to kill me," she said in the interview.

"Was there any doubt in your mind that it was Cullen...?" she was asked.

"Oh, no," she replied. "I lived with him. I could spot Cullen in a crowd three miles away."

She referred twice to the "silly wig" the gunman wore and said that when confronted that at the mansion, "I went to his eyes, you know. I recognized him immediately."

She was also quoted as saying, "I couldn't believe what he had done." And, "It was really strange he hadn't shot me again."

In the sworn statement, taken two days after the interview in her hospital room Aug. 10, 1976, she recounted in vivid detail the events of that fateful night.

The statement supported her earlier testimony and was introduced to clear up inconsistencies in a prior interview that the defense had used to discredit her story.

The statement referred to her returning to the mansion with Farr that night, spotting bloody handprints on a wall and door and crying out in alarm.

"About that time Cullen stepped around the corner like out of the laundry room and said, 'Hi.' My first picture of him was Cullen standing there with a shoulder-length black wig on," she said in the statement. "He was dressed all in black. He had a plastic bag wrapped around his hand, then he shot me."

She recalled Davis shooting through a door apparently hitting Farr and that she lay there watching the two men struggle.

Cullen jerked away from Stan and shot him. Stan stood there for a moment and turned around and then he fell forward toward me on his stomach," she said. "He was lying there on the floor on his chin looking at me. He was breathing very strangely. Cullen was standing at his feet and shot him twice."

"Stan looked at me and laid his head down and died. Cullen stood there a moment and I remember wondering if he was going to shoot me again."

She said she watched Davis drag Farr into the kitchen, then fled through a sliding door into the courtyard and ran down a walkway.

"All of sudden Cullen was after me and I turned around and fell down and started crying and saying, 'Cullen, I loved you. I never loved anyone else, why are you doing this?'" the statement continued.

"He grabbed my left arm and started dragging me. He was trying to hold his wig on with his right hand. I could see the gun barrel at that time."

"I said, 'Please, stop, just a minute.' Cullen just said, 'come on, come on' in a soft natural kind of voice."

"Cullen got me to the back door and he started to pick me up. I screamed out, 'don't move me. You're hurting me', and he let go. He went past me into the house and disappeared."

She told then of hiding in the bushes as the gunman emerged moments later from (See DAVIS TRIAL, Page 2)

Hurricane Anita Heads for Gulf Coast

Fire Hazard

Rueben McGilvary of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department examines weeds taller than he is in the alley between Hickory and Greenwood. According to McGilvary and Jay Spain, fire marshal, alley weeds will become a fire hazard after the first frost. "People need to know this and mow the weeds down. A match will start a big fire if they don't," Spain said, adding that recent rainfall has caused weeds in Hereford to grow at an usually fast rate for August. A city ordinance requires residents to mow weeds. (Brand photo by Paul Sims)

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) - Anita, the first hurricane of the season, gathered strength this morning loitering on the Gulf about 375 miles off the lower coast while coastal residents boarded homes and made preparations for possible evacuation.

Anita was drifting very slowly in a westerly direction after shifting to the south Tuesday afternoon. Early this morning it was located near latitude 26.2 north and longitude 91.5.

Brownsville is near latitude 26.

John Dorian of the National Weather Service in Brownsville said Anita, with winds of up to 90 miles per hour, was still a Class One of the weakest class of hurricanes. A hurricane with winds of 156 miles per hour is Class Five.

Dorian said Anita was expected to keep its westerly course and may drift south because of low pressure areas along the lower coast and northern Mexico. He said a high pressure ridge north of the hurricane will keep it from turning north "unless the ridge breaks up."

Residents along the lower coast from Corpus Christi to Brownsville were mostly going about their business but, keeping an eye on Anita, they stocked up on non-perishable edibles and items such as masking tape, lantern fuel, candles and plywood to board up windows.

National Weather Service spokesmen said Anita posed a "definite threat" to the Texas coast.

The Port Lavaca shrimp fleet came to port late Tuesday and boats were being secured early today.

Late Tuesday resident of Brazoria, Chambers, Galveston, Harris and Matagorda counties were warned to be alert to advisories and be prepared to move.

But after Anita veered slightly south, the Weather Service warned early today that residents along the lower coast, especially those five feet below sea level, should make preliminary preparations for possible evacuation later in the day.

Some had already begun trickling out of Corpus Christi, which bore the brunt of Celia's wrath. Celia, the last hurricane to hit Texas, reduced Corpus Christi to "shambles" and killed a total of 31 persons - 12 in Texas.

Merchants reported long lines at stores and gas stations as coastal residents stocked up in anticipation of Anita's withering winds.

"People remember Hurricane Celia," said one plywood merchant in Corpus Christi. "They seem to know what to do."

The storm, with winds clocked at 90 miles per hour late Tuesday, chased more than 9,000 offshore oil workers and beachfront residents inland.

The American Red Cross moved disaster relief specialists and mobile emergency first aid units into positions along the Gulf Coast from Mississippi to Texas.

Relief staging areas were set up in Beaumont, San Antonio, Houston, Victoria and Corpus Christi, the Red Cross said in Washington.

Dave Benton, meteorologist in charge of the Galveston weather station, said the storm would force mass evacuations in some of the Texas Coast areas although he did not expect Anita to become a major storm.

He defined this as one with winds of more than 100 miles per hour and tides of 10 feet or more.

While Texas civil defense and disaster officials said late Tuesday they felt it was too early to be alarmed about the storm, they warned those in low lying areas to be ready to move.

Civil defense officials in Baytown opened a storm shelter for Brownwood subdivision residents and notified those living in areas lower than five feet above sea level to prepare to evacuate.

Benton said the initial evacuation (See ANITA, Page 2)

Southern Governors Order Deregulation

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Governors of 10 southern and border states have sent Congress a message: Deregulate the price of natural gas.

The energy resolution, adopted 10-2 Tuesday by the Southern Governors Conference is similar to one that Gov. David Boren of Oklahoma guided through the Midwestern Governors Conference.

Only Govs. James Hunt of North Carolina and John D. Rockefeller IV of West Virginia voted against the resolution. Hunt said he believed free market pricing of gas would increase the inflation rate.

Does anybody pay attention to the Southern Governors Conference resolution?

"Apparently there is some interest in the administration in the Panama Canal resolution, to the extent of contacting some of the governors. I would hope that would also indicate an interest in the energy resolution and that the administration would look at the energy resolution," said Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, conference chairman.

A resolution opposing the proposed treaty that would gradually transfer control over the Panama Canal to Panama fizzes when Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana decided not to push for a vote. A 3-3 tie in the resolutions committee had stalled the Edwards resolution.

Debate on the 14-page energy resolution focused on a provision asking Congress to remove wellhead price controls on new natural gas, with a requirement that windfall profits be reinvested in the search for more gas. The governors asked for gradual deregulation "to mitigate its impact on consumers."

"There are good reasons for continuing to regulate the price of natural gas as we do for other public utilities. We do that because there is no competition. You can't go out and shop for it," said Hunt.

He said that if gas prices rose to $2.50 per 1,000 cubic feet at the wellhead instead of the $1.75 regulated price recommended by President Carter and approved by the House, the inflation rate would rise another 1.6 per cent.

"It would put us back in the inflationary situation that had a lot to do with the recent and severe recession we just experienced," Hunt said.

Boren said Hunt overestimated the effect of deregulation and asserted that "the impact on consumers would not be anywhere near as great as increased dependence on foreign sources."

Gov. Pierre duPont IV of Delaware agreed with Boren and said gas regulation had been a failure.

"In Delaware last winter, we ran out," duPont said.

The governors also heard appeals from a conference agency, the Southern Growth Policies Board, for more money to lobby against efforts to drain federal funds from the South to the North.

"There are seven north eastern lobbying coalitions currently at work in Washington, and we in the South are going to be eaten alive if we don't wake up and react," said Georgia Gov. George Busbee, incoming chairman of the board.

WDB Requests Cloud Seeding Maps

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Water Development Board officials have requested maps of precincts in 12 Panhandle counties so they can determine the outcome of elections on cloud seeding to suppress hail.

County clerks failed to send along the maps with the vote totals, says Bruce Bigelow, board general counsel.

Bigelow said the vote in the so-called operational areas of two proposals for cloud seeding have run as high as 100 to 1 against them.

The operational area is eight miles outside the target area on all sides. Theoretically, only the target area is affected by the silver iodide seeding, which may be performed in the operational area when calculations indicate a storm front will carry it into the target area.

The elections on each proposal are held in certain precincts of more than one county, and the total vote of all those precincts determines the outcome.

A precinct that is partially or wholly in an operational area may opt out of a proposal on a negative vote. If it is wholly within a target area, it cannot opt out even if it votes overwhelmingly against cloud seeding.

Precincts in Briscoe County have opted out, Bigelow said. No part of the county is within the target area of the proposal submitted by Plains Weather Improvement Corp. of Plainview that also included precincts in Hale, Hockley, Lubbock, Castro, Crosby, Lamb and Swisher counties.

Lamb County wholly within the target area of both proposals, voted 57 per cent approval, Bigelow said, but without maps of other precincts in the proposals the final outcome cannot be determined, he said.

Final approval also depends on a favorable vote of the Water Resources Department, successor to the Water Development Board, he said.

And any permit granted would expire Oct. 31, he said.

Hale County failed to hold its election, and a provision in the election law prevents a new election until November, after the expiration of any permit issued, he said.

The other proposal was submitted by Atmospherics, Inc., a California firm. The seeding actually would be done under contract by Better Weather, Inc., of Littlefield.

The counties with precincts in the second proposal are Deaf Smith, Randall, Palmer, Castro, Swisher, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Hockley and Lubbock.

WT Nelson Concert Ticket Sales Lag

CANYON Ticket sales for Sunday's six-hour outdoor Willie Nelson concert at West Texas State University have reached about 3,000, indicating a possible slump in the total sales once projected to top 40,000.

The slow ticket sales have caused the concert sponsors (WTSU, Buffalo Club and Feyline Productions) to tone down expected attendance figures to as little as 25,000.

The concert was planned to help offset the WT Athletic Department's projected 1977-78 deficit of $308,000. If Sunday's concert, being held at Kimbrough Memorial Stadium, were completely sold out, the athletic department stands to earn profits exceeding $100,000.

Though security is the only expense for which the Buffalo Club is responsible, the slow ticket sales and high promotional costs could cause a problem in the booster organization meeting the expense.

Before the Buffalo Club can make any profit, $170,000 in promotional costs and talent fees must be paid out of ticket and concession sales to Feyline Production. Another $7,000 will be needed for security expenses before a tangible profit is made.

Thus far, only about $30,000 has been collected through advance ticket sales.

Feyline Productions is "a bit concerned" now after keeping a close watch on ticket sales for the last three weeks, said WT athletic director Dick Dietl.

But, Buffalo Club president Larry Wright said that a loss "is always possible, but we don't think it will happen." According to Wright, the club plans to make a large profit off concession sales, from which the Buffalo Club and Feyline each will draw 17 per cent.

Since there are no reserved seats, Wright expects a large gate turnout. He said that calls from around the state indicate busloads of students will attend the concert.

Carter Seeks Peace In Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) The British and Irish governments welcomed President Carter's appeal for peace in Northern Ireland today. Protestant politicians in the province brushed it off, and there was no reaction from the Roman Catholic and Protestant guerrillas.

Carter in a statement issued Tuesday after consultation with the British government urged an end to the eight-year war that has taken at least 1,776 lives. He called for a "just solution" protecting human rights and guaranteeing freedom from discrimination and expressed support for a form of government commanding "widespread acceptance" among both the Protestant majority and Catholic minority.

Controversial Pact Discussed by Governors

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton predicted Tuesday that the proposal to have Southern governors oppose the proposed Panama Canal treaty was a "dead horse" issue even if it is revived before the 13 governors.

Meanwhile Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, chairman of the Southern Governors Conference, said the conference furor over the resolution had attracted White House attention.

Apparently there is some interest by the administration in the Panama Canal resolution, to the extent of contacting some of the governors," Briscoe told reporters. He declined to name any of those contacted.

Blanton told a news conference he had heard reports of other governors being called by the White House.

Berkowitz Found Mentally Incompetent

NEW YORK (AP) In the first of a series of psychiatric examinations, David Berkowitz, accused as the "Son of Sam" killer, has been found unfit to be tried, but one prosecutor says further tests will clear the way for a trial.

In a report unsealed Tuesday, court-appointed psychiatrists said the 24-year-old former postal employe was suffering from paranoia, delusions of persecution or grandeur. His chances of recovery were described as "guarded," meaning they do not know whether his mental condition will ever improve.

Bell Attorneys Produce Letter

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) Former Southwestern Bell executive James H. Ashley once claimed to own controlling interest in a San Antonio printing firm that did business with the telephone company, court testimony shows.

Ashley, who is suing his former employer for $29 million, wrote a letter in 1972 for his brother to a title company which was processing a home loan application for the brother.

In the letter, which was put into evidence Tuesday in the state court trial of the suit, Ashley claimed he owned the printing firm and his brother was president.

The letter went on to explain the income Ashley's brother would derive from the business.

Bell attorneys entered the letter into evidence as part of their defense in the suit.

Police Report

Manuel Sambrano, 18, of 604 Union was charged with aggravated assault Tuesday for the stabbing of 17-year-old Terry Parks.

Parks was stabbed twice in the back Monday and taken to the intensive care unit of Deaf Smith General Hospital. His condition, reported as serious Tuesday, was not known this morning.

Sambrano posted $500 bond after his arrest by Vernon Hope Hereford Police Department detective. According to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office, the bond should have been $1,000 since aggravated assault is a felony. Sambrano will have to post another $500 according to the sheriff's office.

Felita Quiroz, 307 Ave. B, reported to police that somebody pried a lock hasp off the front of his house and stole a stereo system late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

Rose Delacruz, Route 3, Austin Road, reported the theft of a 1964 Buick from 205 Irving between noon Monday and 7 p.m. Tuesday. The battery on the car was dead according to Ms. Delacruz, and the keys were not left in the vehicle.

Improve Their Homes County Homeowners

Deaf Smith County homeowners are putting more and more money into alterations, improvements and additions to their properties these days.

How much are they spending per year in that direction?

Owner-occupants of one-family homes in the United States spent a total of $18.9 billion in 1974 for upkeep and improvement. That was about 39 percent more than the $13.6 billion expended in 1974 when a similar survey was conducted.

Much of the increase is attributed to the higher cost of labor and materials.

In Deaf Smith County, an estimated $2,700,000 was spent for such renovations in the past year, based upon a survey of residential properties in its regional area.

That was at the average rate of $477 per local housing unit. It compares with the $360 per unit in 1974.

Not included in these figures are normal, every-day, household operational expenses.

The findings are based upon regional data compiled by the Department of Commerce through a sampling survey covering all sections of the country and upon statistics from other sources.

For homeowners who went in for major alterations and improvements, the outlay ran much higher than average. Others, who may have done considerable overhauling a year or two before, did less this time.

In general, according to a breakdown of the overall figures, about 72 percent of the expenditures were for additions, alterations and major replacement.

The other 28 percent was for maintenance and repairs. The biggest item in this category was painting, followed by plumbing and roofing.

Much of the $2,700,000 spent in Deaf Smith County went to local merchants selling building supplies and equipment as homeowners-to-keep-down costs undertook many of the repair and remodeling jobs themselves.

Such storms have hit other places in the Gulf Coast, however," he said. "And this is not to say it is not possible for Anita to turn into a major storm."

Globe-Trotting Grandmother Lectures to Benefit CARE

NEW YORK, AP—A gift of cash and a free trip around the world in 86 days started Louise H. Morse, 72-year-old grandmother, on her annual trek to remote areas of the world.

For the past 20 years, the Newbury, Mass., woman has traveled by air, ship, dog sled, moped, horse and foot to help the poor and sick.

And when her return each year she has given over a hundred dollars to CARE, the international aid and development agency, was one of them.

I went home and the phone was ringing," Mrs. Morse relates. "I said I'd come if the club would send a contribution to CARE." After she had done several such benefit shows, someone from the Boston CARE office called her and said, "We were wondering who you were. We keep getting letters about you with donations."

That encouraged her to continue her shows, she says, but soon she found she was running out of material.

Just about then some dear friends offered me, as my legacy, in advance, a free trip around the world if I continued my programs for CARE," she says. "This would give me new material, so I asked another friend to try to line up some bookings. When I returned, she had 12 dates all set. That's when I started billing myself. Mrs. Nobody goes. Somewhere."

Years before the layered look became fashionable, the handsome, statuesque Mrs. Morse was literally wearing layers of clothing on her plane trips. This enabled her to use 30 of the 44 permitted pounds of luggage to carry baby clothes, which she hand-delivers to needy mothers.

More than 1,000 audiences have heard this remarkable woman recount tales of her travels in a witty, homespun vernacular and report on aid projects she has visited, says Frank L. Goffio, executive director of CARE, for which she has raised over $300,000. But counting repeat contributions from groups and individuals she has reached the donations she has inspired are estimated at more than a million dollars, he added.

Recently CARE presented Mrs. Morse, whose travels expenses are covered by a portion of her lecture fees, with a special citation as Volunteer Extraordinary.

The money she has raised has fed thousands of malnourished children and built schools, clinics, roads, water and irrigation systems in some of the poorest countries around the world, says Goffio.

Ms. husband is a stay-at-home man, says Mrs. Morse, married for more than 56 years to Charles Morse, retired president of a Newbury bank. But he helps by reading up on where I'm going and briefing me.

Residents See No Way to Fight Evacuation

Coal Firm Threatens to Level Town

ACME Wyoming—NEA—There was a time when the residents of this tiny village would have grouped together to fight the adversity. That was early in the century, when the community was somewhat united, when neighbors knew one another as friends, and when people had a natural proclivity to defend the common purpose.

It was decent here then, say the Acme residents. Homes were kept in repair. Picket fences were painted to keep the puppies out of the flower beds. On summer evenings the men and women would visit under the big awnings, and the children would chase each other between the homes. There were 500 residents then. Acme fairly thrived.

But all that changed with the years. First the Depression devastated the community's security, then the loss of the mines robbed the town of its population. Finally, perhaps television and transportation buried the Acme social life. By the beginning of 1977 only 40 families remained here, most of them transients in mobile homes.

So it was that when the trouble came the town was all but defenseless. A coal company suddenly bought the unincorporated community in January, and then in May announced that all residents would have to move out by September. Residents were stunned of course, but individuals, not collectively, attempted to fight was even considered.

Some took did make halting inquiries. Postmistress Mary Long asked the coal company for a clarification. A teacher at the Acme school wrote a few letters. Also 64-year-old Pearl McCarthy and 25-year-old Debra Bogart attended a public meeting in nearby Sheridan to ask if the county would help Acme residents if they would.

That was the extent of the community action. No formal complaint was lodged, no neighborhood strategy session was held. There are no leaders here, explains Debra Bogart, and there is no local government. Even when the coal company announced that it had no obligation to help people relocate, the citizens were humble and still.

Not that the citizens weren't angry. They wondered bitterly why the coal company did not meet with the townspeople to try to create alternatives to wholesale condemnation. Villagers say the company owns numerous other sites where it could build new facilities without forcing people to abandon their homes and their roots.

But the anger was contained in private tortures. It was never given the opportunity to form into public consensus. Some residents say now that they thought of calling the community together yet were persuaded otherwise by the lack of precedent. Besides, as Pearl McCarthy says, "You can't fight a big outfit that has money."

Many people here agree with McCarthy's reasoning. They point out that Big Horn Coal Company is a subsidiary of Wyoming's largest construction corporation, Peter Kiewit and Sons. Kiewit's payroll and tax returns are enormous. It gives money to schools and libraries. Against this influence says McCarthy, "people are usually very vulnerable."

Some people in Acme are vulnerable to the influence in more ways than one. Debra Bogart reminds that half the men in the community are employed by Big Horn, and they won't protest for fear of losing their jobs. Apparently this fear is not imaginary, other residents say they've been told by Big Horn to keep quiet and don't make waves.

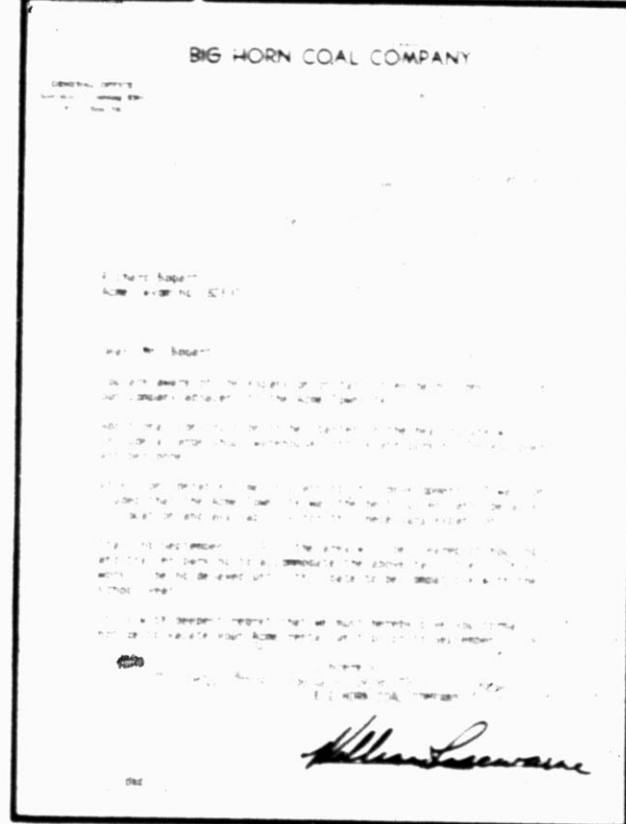

Yet even verbal strongarming has not moved the people of Acme to defend themselves. And the reason, says Tom Sidlosky, a carpenter, is that we don't feel we are entitled. Sidlosky says that property ownership is respected in Wyoming regardless of the issue involved. Hence, Big Horn has the right to do what it pleases.

And so it is, now with the September deadline almost here that residents of Acme are obediently moving out. Pearl McCarthy is considering an old folks home in South Dakota. Debra and Richard Bogart will move their trailer to Sheridan. Postmistress Long hopes Big Horn will find a place for her in the reconstructed site.

Now and then one of the residents will forget himself and cry out in frustration against the evictions. Tom Sidlosky for one says he has a month old baby and will not force it to endure any hardship. "If I can't find a good home I'll stay right here until I can. If they try to kick me out, I'll protect myself and my family."

And too there are some dark whispers about revenge. Pearl McCarthy says a few residents have talked about getting explosives and blowing Big Horn's new office to kingdom come. Others say they may gather their rifles on the tops of nearby hills and then plink away at the tires on the cars of incoming company executives.

Yet by and large no one seriously expects any trouble. "We will all go quietly," says Debra Bogart. The lights will wink off, the water will be cut, the bulldozers will swarm in and the village will be leveled. It can't be otherwise here. Some towns in the West have been too tough to die. Acme Wyoming is too weak to live.

THIS IS a copy of a letter sent to one resident of Acme, Wyo. by the Big Horn Coal Company, informing him that he must evacuate his home by Sept. 1.

A Hawaiian will normally pronounce "Merry Christmas" as "Mele Kalikimaka."

Medals Awarded To Parish Girls

Thirteen young members of St. Anthony's parish completed a series of spiritual projects to merit medals in the "I live in faith" program, offered through the Camp Fire Girl Association.

Designated as the official recognition program of the Catholic Church offered for girls aged 9-11, the program "enables them to grow in their faith and to take their places as active and responsible members of their family, parish group and community."

The girls received their medals recently following the evening Mass, during which they participated in the offertory procession, the readings, the petitions and song leading. The Rev. Bernard McGorry, pastor, cited "the faith and trust in God these young women are striving to attain" in a prayer taken from the medal program.

The medal is to serve as a reminder of the recipient's experiences while working in the program and as "a symbol of the commitment to live one's faith daily through prayer, service to others and responsible participation in the community."

Also attending the Mass were Nita Lea and Betty Drake, whose daughters received medals.

Thespian Confusion

Laughter, secrets, hilarious plots and counter-plots race for center stage when spotlights go on "Take a Number, Darling," current production at Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner Theatre. Renda Lowe, Arthur Smith and Jane Taylor add merriment to the evening's merriment. The comedy is being presented Tuesday through Saturday at the dinner theater located at I-40 and Lakeside, south entrance of Hilton Inn. Closing performance will be Sept. 24. Dinner service begins at 6:30 p.m.; pre-show Country Rogue entertainment at 8 p.m.; show time is 8:30 p.m. Reservations are advisable as seating is limited.

Upcoming Carnival To Benefit MD

Patients suffering from muscular dystrophy will benefit from a Muscular Dystrophy Association Carnival to be staged by Hereford Elks Monday in Dameron Park. The carnival is being held in conjunction with the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

A number of attractions are planned, including an auction of donated merchandise and gift certificates. Jackie Andrews and Mort McCullough will serve as auctioneers.

Other activities open to the public will be a dunking board manned by local police, cake walk, bingo, dart games, penny pitch, frisbee throw, grab bag, hoop shoot and others.

chairmen of this year's MD carnival, announced that the Elks are still accepting contributions of cash and merchandise for Monday's festivities. Donations, which are tax deductible, may be made by telephoning 364-1468, 364-4771 or 364-6721.

Pageant Talent Out If Board Approves

Talent will no longer be a criterion for the selection of Miss Hereford, it was proposed by the pageant's steering committee during a meeting Monday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce office.

A final decision concerning the change rests with the board of directors of the Chamber Women's Division, who will consider the matter Tuesday.

After lengthy comparisons, members of the committee unanimously agreed to send the winner of the local pageant to the Miss Texas Universe finals instead of the Miss Texas - Miss America route. Hereford has been represented in the latter pageant for the past six years.

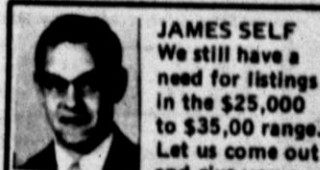

The proposal was founded largely upon recommendations made by the current Miss Hereford Dee Anne Caison, she competed in both state pageants this summer. It was the first time for a Hereford coed to enter the Miss Texas Universe Pageant, held for the third year in El Paso.

Celebrity judges select a Miss Texas Universe on the basis of beauty, poise and personality. Miss Hereford of 1978 will be chosen by the same standards, in hopes that more local young women will enter the contest since talent will no longer be a factor, if the proposal is approved. In routine business, the committee accepted the resignation of a fellow member, Kathy Johnson, who will be replaced by Linda McDowell, Nancy Hall and Georgia Sparks will fill the vacancies left by Lucy Rogers and Lavon Nieman, who have completed their required two-year terms. The post held on the committee by Women's Division president Donna VanderZee will be taken by the 1978 WD proxy.

The committee will elect a new chairman and instigate plans for the 1978 pageant during the next meeting. In attendance at the recent session were Mrs. Rogers,

Ann Landers

Women Rapists

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Quite some time ago you said in your column it would not be possible for a woman to rape a man for "biological reasons" or something like that. (Sorry I didn't save the clipping.)

Well, I just read where the police in Dallas are looking for two "neatly dressed, foul-mouthed females" who did exactly what you said could not be done.

A police department spokesman said the victim was a 37-year-old accountant who was working late in his office one evening. These middle-aged women knocked on his door, said their car had broken down and asked if they could use his telephone.

When he let them in his office one of the women pulled a gun. They then shoved him out the door to a nearby parking lot where they forced him to have sex with them. At first he resisted but decided to cooperate when one of the women struck him over the head with a pistol.

After they finished with him they warned that he would be killed if he mentioned the incident to anyone. They then drove off in a ten-year-old, cream-colored sedan.

Now what do you have to say about that, Ann Landers?—A Person With A Good Memory

DEAR PERSON: Apparently the accountant felt his life was at stake and figured he'd better rise to the occasion.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: That column concerning the man quoting the ideals of fatherhood struck a nerve.

I, too, am a father who had great plans for my children, but it seems as though I will not be able to carry them out because I am a victim of a sour divorce and a judge who thinks all kids are "better off" with their mother.

Three court-appointed agencies judged me fit to raise my children alone. The judge, however, did not think so. Now I am forced to take a sideline seat while my ex-wife and my children are living with her lover.

I know you are going to say "get another lawyer," but I'm not a high-paid businessman, and it's going to take two years for me to pay the one I had. I sought help from my minister. All he could say was, "You're not the only one with the problem but you can't fight city hall."

I probably can't fight city hall, but I can ask you to print this letter so perhaps some other judge might think twice before he sentences other children to this same fate. Incidentally, my children are just as unhappy as I am.

A lot is written about the mother who has to go it alone because she has been deserted or the husband isn't interested enough to keep up his responsibilities. How about the father who works hard to keep up his support payments and spends as much time as possible with his children, but is forced to accept the fact that his children have to watch their mother live with another man without benefit of marriage?—Weekend Father

DEAR DAD: Here's your letter and I hope thousands of judges see it and remember you when they make future decisions.

Maddox's Struggle Ended by Chiefs

By The Associated Press

Involuntary retirement came to hundreds of players in the National Football League on yesterday Tuesday, but the unkindest cut of all may have come in Kansas City.

Bob Maddox, a defensive end who had been playing on sheer courage since 1975, was told that the physical pain would finally come to an end. Now, the emotional pain begins.

"They gave me all the chances to do well, so I don't feel badly about anyone," Maddox said in reference to the Chiefs' organization. "But every day was difficult. If I can now just get through this day, I can get through anything."

Maddox, an inspiration to the Chiefs, has been playing on a bum knee described by Dr. Howard Ellfeldt, the team physician, as "the worst knee injury I ever saw."

He and the other doctors said Maddox would be lucky to walk. Maddox proved them wrong, embarking on a tenuous rehabilitation program that brought him off the injured list midway through the 1976 season.

"I don't know of a man who climbed a higher mountain," said Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggins. "Everybody liked him. He's that kind of guy."

"There is an inequality in life. When you put together a final squad of 43, they are not necessarily the ones who tried the hardest."

Maddox was robbed of his career by an injury. Age took its toll with Bill Munson, the 36-year-old quarterback whose experience was no longer a ticket on the Seattle Seahawks.

Munson, a 13-year-veteran, was the fourth wheel on a second-year club going with sophomore quarterbacks Jim Zorn and Steve Meyer and rookie signal caller Sam Adams.

"I knew it was coming," Munson said of the release. "Coach Jack Patera sort of told me the handwriting was on the wall. I asked him to do it now so I would have time to catch on some place else."

Munson, who completed 20 passes in 37 attempts in five games last season with Seattle, had his best seasons with the Detroit Lions. In 1968, he completed 181 of 329 passes for 2,311 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Another veteran cut Tuesday was Jim Cheyanski, a linebacker who was second in tackles for the Baltimore Colts last season. At the age of 32, Cheyanski was told that he wasn't needed on the field, but they could use him on the sidelines.

Cheyanski was offered a coaching job. Other name players cut Tuesday as the NFL clubs sliced their rosters to the legal limit of 52, were Carlos Brown, Green Bay quarterback; Jeff Kinney, a fullback at Buffalo; Harold Hart, a running back at Washington; and Steve Meyer, a placekicker with San Francisco.

In other player shifts, running back Rob Scribner and wide receiver Willie Miller were placed on injured waivers by Los Angeles; running back Woody Green was placed on the injured reserve list by Kansas City; and Washington guard Paul Leaveng retired.

Meanwhile, the New York Giants acquired offensive lineman Gordon Graville - a starter on the offensive line for Pittsburgh's Super Bowl champion team in 1974 and 1975. He was obtained in exchange for a future draft choice.

In other trades, Tampa Bay acquired rookie wide receiver Larry Seivers from Seattle for a draft choice and dealt offensive tackle Steve Yound to Miami for a draft pick; Philadelphia acquired tight end Richard Osborne from the New York Jets for a draft choice, and St. Louis acquired defensive back Carl Allen from Cincinnati.

Roger Carr, the wide receiver who caught passes that netted him 1,112 yards last season, signed a series of one-year contracts with Baltimore, leaving defensive tackle John Dutton as the team's lone holdout.

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Planners of a celebration to salute the national runner-up Little League baseball team from the big suburb of El Cajon say a 24-hour delay will not dim the festivities. El Cajon Western's Little League All-Star team became stalled in airline travel problems Tuesday and failed to arrive for a celebration planned at their home field. The weather was blamed for the delay.

Officials of the team telephoned regrets, saying bad weather in Washington forced postponement of the scheduled Tuesday night arrival.

So this afternoon, a police escort was to rush the team from San Diego airport to El Cajon.

Herd Junior Varsity Hosts Pampa Thursday

By BOB NIGH
Brand Sports Editor

Any team which works out only a couple of hours a week can hardly be expected to end up in the black in the win-loss column when the season is over, but that is exactly what the Herford Junior Varsity is aiming at this year as they look to the season opener at home against Pampa Thursday afternoon.

Actually, the Herd JV is on the field many more hours per week than that, but the majority of them are spent on getting the Herd varsity ready for their next opponent.

"Basically our aim is to learn the fundamentals of the game and to gather a competitive spirit," Herd JV coach Kenny Barnes commented Tuesday afternoon.

For more hours than most of them like to remember the JV players learn the offensive plays and defensive sets of the varsity's next opponent so that they can run them against the apprenticeship in practice.

"We might get from a half-hour to one hour per day to work on our own stuff before we go over the varsity's next opponent's sets," Barnes said.

Still, football is football, and the act of being on the field is a good teacher as running plays against them air. The Herd JV showed that in a scrimmage against Amarillo High last Thursday.

"We were extremely pleased with the effort our players put forth in the scrimmage," Barnes said. "We made some mistakes, but we were competitive."

Amarillo won the regular scrimmage with a 2-0 advantage. The Sandie defense scored once on an interception and the Amarillo offense tallied another time. But, Herford came back to claim an identical edge when the two teams lined up for some goal-line plays.

"We scored twice on them in our five plays at the goal, while they lost five yards against us," Barnes proudly added.

"Kevin Bunch looked good at quarterback and Bud Hughes did well running with the ball," Bunch and Tony Garcia each tallied one time as the JV team evened the score.

Defensively Barnes had optimism when talking about linebackers Joe Mitchum and Steve Sauter, nose guards Max Gonzales and Cory Christie, and tackles Robbie Fish and Larry Pessina.

"Our nose guards looked real good and I thought all our defensive tackles did well, especially Fish and Pessina," Barnes said.

With a fairly strong defense on hand, the coach is most concerned offensively with inconsistency. "We didn't really move the ball well at all against Amarillo High except for our goal-line stuff."

"If we are going to win our backs need to come through; we weren't too bad in the line, but Herford head football coach Fred Upshaw will again conduct informative sessions for mothers of local gridgers and other interested persons this year beginning at 10 a.m. Thursday morning in the fieldhouse.

The sessions are intended to inform the mothers of the fundamentals of the game of football and provide them with an opportunity to ask questions about the various facets of the game.

Coach Upshaw will conduct the informal sessions, which will include occasional viewing of films of Herd action through the season.

All members of the association are urged to attend the meeting.

Kaat, Phillies Crush Atlanta; Stretch Lead

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Jim Kaat of the Philadelphia Phillies knows it takes more than endurance to win 253 games and pitch 4,001 innings. "I threw relaxed, I got ahead of the hitters and had good stuff," he said Tuesday night. "And I also got a lot of runs."

Kaat scattered 10 hits in raising his season record to 6-7 and tying Carl Hubbell for 25th place on the all-time list for career victories. He ranks 25th for number of innings pitched.

"Those are nice honors, but you can't lean on them," the 38-year-old left-hander said.

The Phillies backed Kaat with a 15-hit attack, crushing the Atlanta Braves 11-2 to retain their four-game lead in the National League East race. The Phillies have won 21 of their last 27 games.

Jay Johnstone paced Philadelphia's assault with three hits, scoring three runs, while Garry Maddox added a three-run homer.

In other NL games Tuesday, Cincinnati edged Montreal 4-3, Houston defeated New York 6-2, San Diego stopped St. Louis 7-4, Pittsburgh downed San Francisco 3-1 and Chicago defeated Los Angeles 4-1.

Cubs 4, Dodgers 1
Rick Reuschel became the major league's first 19-game winner, hurling Chicago over Los Angeles. Gene Clines drove in two runs and Jose Cardenal collected three hits to lead the Chicago attack.

Reuschel, 19-5, walked two and struck out four in gaining his fourth consecutive victory. Bruce Satter came on in the ninth to gain his 26th save of the season.

Reds 4, Expos 3
George Foster smashed his 44th home run of the season and drove in three runs, increasing his major league-leading RBI total to 126 and helping Cincinnati beat Montreal.

The Expos made it close at the bottom of the ninth inning when they scored two runs off reliever Pedro Borbon and had the tying run thrown out at the plate to end the game.

Pirates 3, Giants 1
The Pirates equalled the NL season high by beating six bases against San Francisco in support of a four-hitter by John Candelaria, 15-4. Phil Garner swiped three and Frank Taveras two as Pittsburgh recorded only its second victory against the Giants this year. Candelaria was the winning pitcher in the other game, too.

Astros 6, Mets 2
A two-run double by Enol Cabell sparked Houston's four-run outburst in the fifth inning as the Astros defeated New York behind Joe Niekro's 11-hitter. Niekro captured his fourth complete-game victory in four home starts this season and increased Houston's winning streak to six games.

Padres 7, Cardinals 4
George Hendrick and Jerry Turner combined for five hits and five runs batted in to lead San Diego over St. Louis. It was the Cardinals' sixth straight loss.

Rookie left-hander Bob Ojchicko, 7-4, got the victory, his fourth straight over St. Louis this season, with relief help from Dan Spillner.

Rangers Tighten Up AL West Race

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Early in the season, Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas said you could go into a coma waiting for Dave Rozema's fast ball to reach the plate...and that seems to be what happens to the Brewers against Detroit's rookie pitching sensation.

Rozema scattered nine hits Tuesday night for his 15th victory in 20 decisions and beat the Brewers for the fourth time in as many outings.

"I really don't care what they say about my fast ball," Rozema said after the 4-2 triumph. "I've got what I've got. I just use what God gave me, and thank God I've got some other pitches."

Elsewhere in the American League, the West Division tightened up when the Texas Rangers whipped the Kansas City Royals 8-2 and the Chicago White Sox downed the Cleveland Indians 3-1. That left the Royals two games ahead of the White Sox and the idle Minnesota Twins and 2½ in front of the Rangers.

In the East, the New York Yankees edged the Seattle Mariners 6-5 in 11 innings to remain three games ahead of the Boston Red Sox, who trounced the Oakland A's 7-2, and four in front of the Baltimore Orioles, who blasted the California Angels 8-2.

In winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions, Rozema had help from a two-run homer by .194 hitter Aurelio Rodriguez.

Rangers 8, Royals 2
Willie Horton drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly, double and his 12th homer of the season. Seven of Horton's homers have come against the Royals.

Meanwhile, Bert Campaneris delivered four hits, including the 2,000th of his career on a first-inning bunt, Tony Harrah also homered and Gaylord Perry checked Kansas City on four hits.

White Sox 3, Indians 1
Ken Kravec came within one out of his first major league shut out and Lamar Johnson singled home two unearned runs as Chicago handed Wayne Garland his 16th loss against 10 victories. Kravec ended a personal four-game losing streak with his first victory since July 23 but needed relief from Lerrin LaGrow and Dave Hamilton with two out in the ninth.

Yankees 6, Mariners 5
Mickey Rivers homered off Diego Segui in the first pitch in the bottom of the 11th to give the Yankees their 20th victory in the last 23 games. Graig Nettles, the defending AL home run champion, matched his 1976 total of 32 with a three-run smash in the fifth. Relief ace Sparky Lyle posted his 11th triumph in 15 decisions after Seattle came from behind with three runs in the eighth.

The first American League player to have his uniform retired was Lou Gehrig of the Yankees. His No. 4 was honored in 1939.

CBS Energy Special Subject of 3½-Hours

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight, CBS is bumping its usual entertainments for a three-hour news special on a topic many viewers might consider a sure cure for insomnia: The energy crisis.

Competing against ABC reruns and only 1½ hours of first-run frivolities on NBC, the special, anchored by Walter Cronkite, is "Energy: The Facts...The Fears...The Future." It starts at 8 p.m. EDT.

Its inquiries range from the cosmic issues — such as international implications of the energy crisis and President Carter's energy proposals — to questions about windmill power and whether long lines at gas pumps are again in store for us.

"We've done energy stories before, of course, on the evening news and "60 Minutes," and we were preparing a fresh look at it when the Carter energy proposals came out," says CBS' Bill Small.

After the proposal was pondered, added Small, senior vice president at CBS News, "it just seemed the dimensions of it were such that the only way to do it properly was to do it thoroughly."

Still, three hours for a news special, while nothing new still, is mighty long for such a broad subject as energy in one night. Why not air it in one-hour chunks on three consecutive nights?

Well, he replied, "the network asked which is the best way to do it, and the best way seemed to be to do it in one evening. So they made the time available."

Among other things, the show, 11 weeks in the making, did 200 man-in-the-street interviews on whether citizens really feel they face serious energy shortages.

And, Small said, "we found a lot of cynicism on the part of the average person because he or she can't see that crisis."

The aim of the show is to help them see the crisis from various angles, from energy legislation and a covey of Capitol Hill lobbyists trying to influence same to how conservation may ease power woes.

But in trying to help folks understand such a big, seemingly, amorphous subject as the energy crisis, might not three hours of explanation and analysis strike folks as a reason to switch to other things tonight?

"Well, the individual has got an important stake in this," Small said, meaning the item called energy.

"It's true there's going to be viewer apathy. A lot of people are going to want to go out and watch the Dodgers play, or stay at the beach late at night. But one would hope enough of them will find this slow of sufficient interest to watch."

"And if it doesn't get the biggest audience any broadcast ever had, we'll just have to live with it," he added sardonically, aware that news specials aren't exactly known to get king-sized ratings.

"In the news business, we make a mistake if we say we just want to do things that aren't going to be popular and attract big audiences."

"We have to do things that are important...and there's nothing more important at this moment than the energy crisis."

CUDDLESOME CUBS with actress Barbara Carrera may not be everyone's idea of ideal pets — particularly when they grow up to be black leopards. They were part of an exotic animal contingent for the movie, "The Island of Dr. Moreau," in which Barbara costars with Burt Lancaster and Michael York.

Drugs to be Injected in Chair

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Officials at the Texas Department of Corrections here Tuesday said the death injection, approved by the state legislature for condemned prisoners, will be administered in the electric chair which has killed 361 prisoners since 1923.

TDC spokesman Ron Taylor said the procedures will remain the same: The chair will be located in the place it has held for 54 years.

"But instead of electricity passing through his body a chemical will be injected," Taylor said, adding that TDC will not say who will administer the injection.

Yet to be determined is what chemical will be injected. Taylor said that decision will be made by Sept. 12 — one day before murderer Howard Lincoln King, 53, is scheduled to die.

"We've limited it to three substances, sodium thiopental, succinylcholine chloride or sodium cyanide. One or more in some combination will be used," Taylor said.

Two executions are set for Sept. 16 at Huntsville. Scheduled to die that day are Billy Battie, 20, of Tarrant County and James Livingston, 30, of Dallas County. Both have been convicted of capital murder.

There are currently 65 men on Huntsville's death row.

The chemical will be injected into the prisoner's arm through an interavenous catheter.

"It will take a matter of minutes and it is painless. The prisoner will lose consciousness in a matter of seconds," Taylor said.

The policy on witnesses to the execution will not be changed, he added. By state statute witnesses allowed into the death chamber are the executioner, the board of directors of TDC, two physicians, the prisoner's spiritual adviser, TDC chaplains, the Walker County judge and Sheriff, friends or relatives to the prisoner and two wire service reporters.

Plants Can Weather Winter If Proper Precautions Taken

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Summer is almost ended but you can extend it in several ways other than going South, which isn't a bad way either.

First you can dig some flowers from your garden, pot them and bring them indoors before frost so you can enjoy them for weeks. Suitable are strawflowers, begonias, impatiens, small zinnias and marigolds, and herbs, among many others.

A good idea is to pot more than you need, tossing out those that do not recover from transplanting.

Best for transplanting are small, sturdy plants. Carefully lift them from the ground, set them into a pot large enough for the soil ball, and fill around the ball with good garden or plant potting soil. Water generously and keep them outdoors in the shade for a week. Take them indoors when frost threatens.

The reason for leaving them outdoors for a while is to help them become reestablished in better light, humidity and temperature. Of course, if you have a cold frame or greenhouse, use it to help the plants become reestablished.

If the plant tops are too big for the pot, do some trimming to realign the proportions.

Remember also that plants that grew in the garden appreciate bright winter light, such as south window. While begonias like shade, they will flower better in bright indoor light until spring, when they should be exposed to less light.

You can except summer annuals to last all winter, so toss them out as they decline.

Herbs brought indoors want a cool window. Among those that will transplant without much difficulty are rose geranium, thyme, winter savory, rosemary, apple mint and peppermint.

Some plants become too large outdoors to be repotted, but taking cuttings is satisfactory. Geranium and begonia will root in sand, vermiculite or perlite.

Plants brought indoors should be fertilized about every two weeks with a water soluble food. Before you take them into the house make sure they have been cleaned of insects and checked for disease.

This is the time to be looking in your garden and deciding which flowers you can dry to provide winter color for you home.

Because they keep their color best, we suggest dry white, light blue or yellow flowers.

Small flowers may be tied upside down in bunches, hung so that heads are not touching, and stored in a dry, well ventilated attic to dry for about three weeks. You'll have to tie big flowers individually.

Other flowers may be dried with borax or silica gel. Use this treatment with lilies, delphinium, choral bells and pansies, foxglove, petunias, snapdragons or gladioli, which cannot be done upside down. The flowers should be picked just before they reach their prime.

Put them in two inches of borax or silica gel and sprinkle more on until they are covered. In one to three weeks — depending on the flower size — remove, handling gingerly, and blow off residue.

For pressing flowers already flat such as pansies place the flower between two sheets of newspaper and put folded newspaper in a book or magazine with more books on top for weight. Press the bloom open in a natural position. Store in a warm, dry place, the newspaper should be changed twice during the week of drying to absorb the flower moisture. The flowers should become crisp.

Illegal Dove Importation Costs Houston Judge

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A state district court judge from Houston left his Rio Grande Valley city $52.50 poorer after being fined for illegally importing white wing dove into Texas from Mexico.

Judge Jon Nelson Hughes of the 174th State District Court, and five other men were returning from a hunting outing in Ciudad Victoria, Mexico, in a private plane when they stopped in Brownsville Sunday for a customs check.

Officers discovered 199 dead birds aboard the plane but the hunters did not possess the required importation permits. Texas Parks and Wildlife officer Lauro R. Salinas filed a complaint against the six men who were taken to the Cameron County courthouse. The six entered a nolo contendere, or no contest, plea before justice of the peace Alex Perez who fined each man $52.50.

"He told me he was a state district judge but I told him everyone is the same in this court," said Perez.

The 119 birds were confiscated and six flew back for Houston. An importation permit would have cost each man $1.

Hill to Appeal No-Suit Water Quality Ruling

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen John Hill said Tuesday he will appeal a state district court ruling denying him the right to sue the Water Quality Board over the board's separate pollution control orders on the Edwards Aquifer.

Judge Herman Jones ruled late Tuesday morning that Hill cannot sue the board.

"We will, of course, contest the court's ruling," Hill said. "The exact nature and character will be decided after I have had a chance to study the ruling."

When he argued his case before Jones, Hill said he hoped he did not have to go to a higher court to win his point that the attorney general has the power to sue a state agency when it attempts to do an illegal act.

Hill said the board must issue the same order to apply to all counties over the aquifer, which supplies water to more than a million people in South Texas. Making the order for Uvalde Gov. Dolph Briscoe's home county and Kinney less stringent than for the other counties is unlawful, he said, and as chief legal officer of the state he must oppose it.

But the board's private lawyer, James Wilson hired with Hill's approval, argued that the Texas Constitution requires the attorney general to represent all state agencies in court.

In a memorandum, Jones wrote. "The plaintiff Hill asserts that the defendant water board herein may be represented by counsel authorized by the attorney general, but it seems to me that the clear holding of Maud v. Terrell is that the services of such counsel 'are to be rendered in subordination' to the authority of the attorney general.

"Thus, we have a plaintiff represented by the attorney general with the defendant represented by counsel who are subordinate to the attorney general. It is my opinion that the law must not be construed so as to permit such a situation.

"The court is not unmindful that this holding may present an attorney general with much difficulty when he finds action of an administrative agency to be at variance with his views of the applicable law; but this consideration is outweighed by clear mandate of the constitution and statutes of our state that the attorney general, and he exclusively, must represent the administrative agencies."

HEALTH
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

The 'bran treatment'

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have had trouble with diverticulosis since 1976. I have made up my mind that I am going to try the bran treatment. You told a lady you were going to send her two of The Health Letters on this problem, number 2. Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation and 5-6, Diverticulosis. Can you send me those two issues, too?

I am on a low residue diet, but can't use wax beans or tomato puree because they cause gas. I have a good bowel habit as I take a pill after each meal, but I am thinking of cutting this down as I think they are too strong.

DEAR READER—Most people can add bulk to their diet without any special instructions. Just start eating whole wheat bread instead of bread made with white flour, use a bowl of cereal a day that contains bran, either Bran Buds or 40 per cent Bran Flakes, or any other bran cereal.

Some people may find that causes too much gas. They will need to start gradually and perhaps just switch bread first and then gradually add the bran cereals. You should expect some gas problems for at least three weeks after switching to bran.

I am sending the two issues of The Health Letters, numbers 2-1 and 5-6, that you asked for. Others who want these can send 50 cents for each issue, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. The issue on Irritable or Spastic Colon also includes information on bowel training. There is more to it than just eating bran.

I am not sure what kind of pill you are taking three times a day. If it is a chemical laxative, that is not a good idea. Chemical laxatives are very harsh on the colon and result in a laxative habit.

Individuals who must use a laxative would be better off using a simple bulk expander. Metamucil is a good example. Some people who have too much gas or have other problems that make using bran difficult may tolerate bulk substances such as Metamucil. These inert substances simply expand with moisture and form a gel-like substance. The bulk improves colon function in some just as the bulk from cereal fiber does.

Studies that show whether inert bulk laxatives or cereal fiber are better, are hard to come by. There doesn't seem to be all that much difference.

The theory is based on the idea that the tubular colon is lined with muscles. These must contract rhythmically to move the food residue along. If there is not enough bulk in the diet the muscular tube overcontracts, causing spasm. The spasm leads to constipation, irritable or spastic colon and pain. When the bulk that you would get if you ate a natural diet with unrefined cereals is added to the diet, many people develop normal bowel function again.

Diverticulosis (pockets of the colon) are thought by many to be the result of a spastic colon. Increasing the bulk in the diet often helps these people. Since cereal fiber as in bran may irritate the stomach of a person with ulcers, they are sometimes better off using Metamucil.

'Bad Peanut' Wants to Capitalize on Kinship
Carter Nephew Kept in Isolation

By Tom Tiede
SOLEDAD, Calif. — (NEA) — The protective custody division of the Soledad penitentiary is not for the garden variety thug. Political assassin Sirhan Sirhan is in it, as is the notorious mass murderer Juan Corona. Then too, William Spann is a member of the unit; he is the nephew of the president of the United States.

WILLIAM CARTER SPANN, serving five years to life for armed robbery in the Soledad penitentiary, is kept in isolation. Officials fear that, if Spann were to mingle freely with other convicts, he would be vulnerable to kidnap which might put President Carter in a difficult situation.

kinship to the chief executive. He is working with on-freelance writer on undisclosed projects; he has tried to market "Prisoner of Love" earrings, tiny handcuffs of his own design, also, he has written a song, quite naturally called "The Bad Peanut."

Guards say Spann is seldom a problem, perhaps because he is isolated from temptations. He is not a celebrity in the Sirhan Sirhan sense, but "a lot of visitors on the weekends say they'd like to get a glimpse of him." As for his vulnerability to plotting inmates, officers say there have been no incidents nor rumors of any.

To date the president's nephew has served 14 months of his sentence. Because of his long and ugly record, however, observers do not expect his release anytime in the near future. "He's a complexity," says a parole authority, "a real sad case; we'd love to know what the president thinks about him, but I don't suppose we ever will."

No doubt the fears here are warranted. A guard suggests that if Spann was grabbed by other prisoners, the consequences might be severe: "They could hold him for any sort of ransom, like a presidential pardon. I don't think they could get it, but in any event it would be scary, and would put the president on a hell of a spot."

Authorities say the risk regarding Spann is particularly acute because he is particularly vulnerable. The record indicates he is not simply a good boy gone temporarily wrong. At 32 years old Spann is virtually a career criminal, heavily associated with drugs and homosexuals, hence he now must be protected from his own lifestyle excesses.

The excesses began early in Spann's life. Born in Georgia to Jimmy Carter's younger sister Gloria, he was raised in comfortable but unhappy circumstances. His father, William Harvey, did not get on well with the mother, and left by divorce before the boy was a teen. Spann's name was then changed to that of his stepfather, Walter Spann.

The parents do not talk much about their wayward son. But Mrs. Spann has told friends that the boy turned sour while still in junior high school. He was an unimpressive student and indifferent to matters such as church and sports. By the time he was 15 he was considered by Georgia authorities to be "beyond parental control."

Observers in the Carter hometown of Plains say that Mrs. Spann tried to help young William through the use of private schools and special counseling. Nothing worked. Then, urged on by her evangelical sister Ruth, Mrs. Spann reportedly became suddenly religious and "put her son in God's hands." Unfortunately, that didn't work either.

There was also psychology involved along the way. When Spann dropped out of public school, and was refused admittance to several private schools, he was enrolled in a "controlled environment" program run by a Georgia psychologist. He apparently earned the equivalent of a high school education there, but little else.

Though a petty criminal from his teens on, Spann did not get into serious trouble until he moved to California in the late 1960s. Then, according to the record, he spent money from home on narcotics and began frequenting sleazy bars. He has since been arrested on charges that include vehicle theft and parole violations.

His most recent crime was in March of 1976. At that time, accompanied by a friend and a gun, police say he held up a gay bar in San Francisco. No one was hurt, no shots fired, but when Spann appeared in court on the charge he received no mercy. Maximum sentence was imposed due to the defendant's long criminal record.

By the time Spann was sent to prison, his uncle had become the front runner among Democrats bidding for the presidency. Corrections officers say Spann used the family name "to draw attention to himself." At one time he invented a story about being stabbed by a fellow prisoner. He has since been living under protective custody.

Spann lives in a six-by-nine-foot cell in this medium security facility. To the west he can see the Sierra de Salinas mountains, to the east the Gabilan Range. Soledad is a "no wall" prison situated in the midst of some of California's richest agricultural acreage. Rules here are strict but progressive. Spann has his own small television set.

Spann refuses news interviews, but guards say he is intent on capitalizing on his

Arab, PLO Demands Threaten Peace Talks

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Arab insistence on having the Palestine Liberation Organization attend the Middle East peace conference makes it impossible to reconvene the Geneva peace talks, Prime Minister Menahem Begin said Tuesday.

"Now let us deal with the alternatives," Begin told a news conference on his return from a five-day visit to Romania that was marked by a cordial atmosphere but a lack of agreement with his Communist hosts on the key terms for an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Begin rejected a proposal by Syrian President Hafez Assad that the Arab League represent the PLO in Geneva.

"You cannot sign a peace treaty with the Arab League, it is not a state institution at all," he said.

The prime minister said Israel wants the Geneva talks to reconvene with the original participants: Israel, Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

"The Arab states ask the participation of the PLO in the Geneva conference," he continued. "Therefore the Arab states make the reconvening of the Geneva conference impossible."

He proposed instead that Israel hold face-to-face talks with each of its three Arab neighbors or that it hold indirect talks, with U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance or some other mediator shuttling back and forth between Israel and the Arab capitals.

Vance will be meeting with the Israeli and Arab, foreign ministers in the United States in mid-September, and Begin said those meetings would be crucial.

"After that stage we shall observe the situation a do whatever we can to promote the momentum for the peacemaking process," he said.

Clayton Proposes New Oil Royalties

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Speaker Bill Clayton Tuesday proposed building up a 10-year reserve supply of oil by taking oil - rather than money - for some of its oil and gas royalties.

"We might find," he said, "that it would be a better investment to put oil in the ground than the money in the bank."

Clayton's remarks were prepared for delivery at Energy Fiesta Week.

He said Texas has proven reserves of about 9 billion barrels of oil and 65 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Beyond that proven reserve, he said, it is estimated that Texas has about 10 billion barrels of oil and about 85 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Nevertheless, he said, "It is indeed time that the state of Texas consider the danger and high expense of letting our valuable oil and gas reserves dwindle to a dangerously low level.

"Now would be a good time to seriously consider the alternative of taking our oil and gas royalties in kind.

"What I am proposing is establishing for the state of Texas a strategic petroleum reserve, thereby benefitting the state to the extent that we are lengthening our oil and gas supply; insuring Texas against embargo; and potentially enhancing the state's wealth as oil and gas become increasingly expensive.

"We already have in our statutes the legal method by which we could accept these royalties.

"A certain percentage of the royalties could be used to purchase oil each year until a reserve area is built up. This oil could be stored in salt domes in various strategic locations around the state. I feel a certain percentage of oil could be stored each year until the state has a 10-year supply."

Voyager's Troubles Corrected

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Scientists say they have jarringly placed Voyager 2's troublesome camera boom, clearing the way for the craft to gather information from Jupiter and Saturn.

Meanwhile, a Sept. 5 launch date was set Monday for Voyager 2's sister craft, Voyager 1. The launching, originally set for Sept. 1, had been postponed because of Voyager's 2 problems since its takeoff Aug. 20.

Voyager 2's boom was snapped to within 6-100ths of a degree of its fully extended position by a series of small explosions, said Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesman Bill Becker.

But the computer has not confirmed it is locked in place, which explains the slight deviation, Becker said.

However, scientists are as sure as they can be, from 5 million miles away, that there is stable condition," he added.

The space craft's computer was reprogrammed early Monday to obey commands to blow a dust cover off the boom's instrument panel and also turn the ship around. Those two motions - like the cracking of a whip - provided sufficient force to jar the boom into place.

The two Voyagers are designed to take pictures and measure temperatures, radiation, magnetic fields and atmospheres of Saturn, Jupiter and possibly Uranus before hurtling out of the solar system.

Both ships carry human artifacts, including music and literature, which scientists hope will someday be found by other civilizations.

Although Voyager 2 left Earth first, Voyager 1 with its more direct trajectory is expected to reach Jupiter first, sometime in early 1979.

CHICAGO (AP) - The source of a sugar substitute that does not cause tooth decay can be derived from corn husks, wheat straw and peanut hulls, a U.S. Department of Agriculture research chemist said Tuesday.

In an address prepared for the American Chemical Society meeting, Dr. Larry H. Krull of the USDA's Northern Regional Research Center in Peoria, Ill., said commercial success for a substance known as xylitol could make crop residues valuable enough to harvest.

Corn husks, straw and peanut hulls contain 15 to 30 per cent xylose sugar, the source of the sweet alcohol xylitol. Finnish scientists have reported xylitol does not cause tooth decay or require insulin in its metabolism, which could make it of value for diabetics and for control of cavities.

It is widely used in Finland in candy and gum and is the

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 31st, the 243rd day of 1977. There are 122 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1954, Hurricane Carol hit the United States, killing 68 persons and causing many millions of dollars in damage.

On this date: In 1290, Jews were exiled from England by a proclamation of King Edward I.

In 1654, the Rhode Island General Assembly banned the sale of liquor to Indians.

In 1903, a Packard car reached New York after a 52-day trip from San Francisco, becoming the first automobile to cross the continent under its own power.

In 1935, President Franklin Roosevelt signed a neutrality act, prohibiting the export of U.S. arms to belligerents.

In 1944, German forces defeated the Russians in the World War I battle of Tannenberg in Poland.

In 1962, it was disclosed that U.S. Navy planes flying a training mission near Cuba were fired on by two Cuban naval vessels.

Ten years ago: U.S. Steel rejected a plea from President Lyndon Johnson and raised its prices.

Five years ago: American warplanes destroyed a big ammunition depot and damaged three other military targets in North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

One year ago: William and Emily Harris were given sentences of up to life in prison on charges of armed robbery, kidnaping and auto theft stemming from their two-day trip with Patricia Hearst in the Los Angeles area in 1974.

Today's birthdays: Arthur Godfrey of radio and television is 74 years old. Writer William Saroyan is 69.

Thought for today: "America has a great ardor for gain, but also a deep passion for the rights of man." - President Woodrow Wilson.

Hughes' Legal Residence To Be Determined Nov. 14

HOUSTON (AP) - A trial to determine the legal residence of multimillionaire Howard Hughes at the time of his death last year is being postponed until Nov. 14.

Harris County Probate Court Judge Pat Gregory had hoped to start the domicile trial Sept. 12 but said Tuesday a delay is necessary because of another trial now in progress.

Gregory is presiding over a jury trial to determine the validity of a change to the will of millionairess Candace Mossler and expressed doubt the case, now in its second week, can be completed by Sept. 12.

Lawyers for the temporary administrators of the Hughes estate had asked Gregory on Friday to delay the legal residence trial in that numerous matters remained to be investigated.

Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill told Gregory, however, he was prepared to go to trial.

Administrators of the state contend Hughes was a legal resident of Nevada. Texas has an inheritance tax while Nevada does not.

Gregory scheduled an Oct. 24 pretrial conference with lawyers.

The Nov. 14 trial could be the first of three planned by Gregory, who had hoped originally to dispose of all the complex issues of the Hughes case with only one trial. Gregory decided last month, however, the issues are too complex for a single jury and announced the domicile trial would be followed, if needed, by a second trial to determine if a valid will exists and a third to determine legal heirs.

The Hawaiian Islands were settled by Polynesian seafarers from islands 2,000 miles to the south about 700 A.D. The first Europeans arrived at the end of the 18th century, followed in the next century by a heavy influx of Asian settlers. The present population by national descent, according to the 1970 census, is 39.2 per cent Caucasian, 28.3 per cent Japanese and the remainder Hawaiian, Chinese, Filipino, Korean and mixed ancestry.

Detectors Ordered for U.S. Prisons

WASHINGTON (AP) - The director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons is ordering smoke detectors for all federal prisons and sprinkler systems for most of them following a fire which killed five inmates.

Norman A. Carlson took the action after the worst fire in federal prison history broke out July 7 at the facility in Danbury, Conn. In addition to the five inmate deaths, there were 80 firefighters injured in the blaze.

Carlson "has instructed that all institutions have to have smoke detectors and sprinkler systems will be installed in all of the new institutions and where we can, in the old institutions," spokesman Michael Aun said.

"These are things we can do immediately, and there are other things still being studied," Aun added.

The purchase of smoke detectors for 31 of the system's 38 institutions will cost about $600,000, he said.
