Decline Evident in HISD Enrollment Figures

By KEITH RIBNICK
Brand Staff Writer

Though too early to tell for certain, Hereford Independent School District's post-Labor Day enrollment figures indicate a minor decline in this fall's public school enrollment, as compared to figures of a year ago. Tuesday, HISD enrollment totaled 5,534 students, slightly below last year's 5,662 figure.

"It's still a little early to tell if our enrollment will be lower or the same as last year's," said Bill Phillips, HISD assistant superintendent.

2,483 Enroll

According to the HISD report released today, 2,483 elementary school students were enrolled in school Tuesday, compared to 2,613 last year. Hereford's junior high school enrollment increased by 22 students this fall—from 1,447 last year to 1,469. The high school enrollment also increased to 1,101 students from last year's 1,095.

Kindergarten enrollment declined from 479 students last year to 445 this fall. The kindergarten figures include both 4 and 5-year-old classes.

Special education figures jumped to 36 students, up eight students over 1976.

Kindergarten Down

"Grades four, five and six and the junior and senior high school figures were just about what we expected them to be. The 5-year-old kindergarten figures were 80 students below last year's. We don't know if there are fewer children of that age or if parents are not sending them to school since kindergarten is optional. Grades one, two and three figures were a little lower than anticipated," Phillips said.

"Some years, our enrollment increases until the middle of October and last year we reached our peak in the third week of September.

Same as 1975

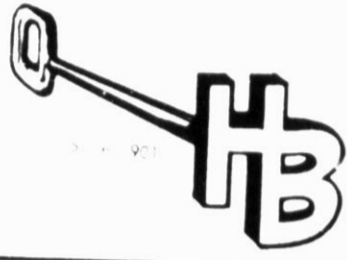

"Last year at this time, we were running 150 to 200 students above the 1975 figures, but then it dropped off by the spring semester. Now, we're about where we were the year before last (1975).

"With our migrant population, the figures can vary from one grade to another and from one year to another. Enrollment will typically vary up to 10 per cent (or 500 students) per year. Many migrants leave for work in the Valley and their departure date has a great deal to do with the variation."

Northwest Elementary led the grade school enrollment with 478 students, followed by West Central (474), Aikman (405), Tierra Blanca (404), Bluebonnet (389) and Shirley (333).

Panama Treaty To Be Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Panamanian head of government Omar Torrijos will sign the Panama Canal treaty tonight, celebrating the finale of a 13-year negotiation in a ceremony witnessed by 19 chiefs of state.

The historic moment also was to be televised to audiences in the United States and most of Latin America. Representatives of 27 nations were on hand for the signing.

The Organization of American States, host for the occasion, has been the scene of many anti-American confrontations in the past. Now it is the forum for a rare display of hemispheric unity.

The treaty has won much more acclaim in Latin America than it has in the U.S. Senate, which could render the festivities an empty exercise by failing to ratify the treaty by the requisite two-thirds majority.

U.S. officials believe Senate defeat of the treaty would trigger guerrilla warfare and mob violence in the Canal Zone.

The treaty calls for phasing out U.S. control over the canal by the year 2000. Panama then would assume full operational control with the United States reserving the permanent right to intervene militarily against any threat to the canal.

But many Americans retain a strong emotional attachment to the canal and wonder whether Panama, with a long record of political instability, could be trusted to run it.

Carter has been holding separate meetings with the visiting dignitaries, taking advantage of their presence to push for his favorite foreign policy themes: human rights, nuclear nonproliferation and cutbacks in weapons purchases.

After an hour-long meeting with Torrijos on Tuesday, Carter met separately with presidents Alfonso Lopez of Colombia, Augusto Pinochet of Chile, Francisco Morales of Peru, Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay and Vice President Adalberto Pereira dos Santos of Brazil.

The marathon round of meetings will conclude Thursday.

Carter was to host a White House dinner Wednesday for the visiting heads of government and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was to do the same at the State Department for visiting foreign ministers.

"We have come to the end of a long road," Ambassador Elsworth Bunker said Tuesday after putting his initials to the treaty.

For Bunker, who has captained the U.S. negotiating effort for the past four years, the agreement marked another milestone in his long career as a diplomatic troubleshooter.

But the man who appointed him to the task in 1973, Richard M. Nixon, will not be present tonight for the ceremony. He was not invited.

FAA, TAC OK Airport In Hereford

Representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency and Texas Aeronautics Commission recommended no changes or areas of improvement to Hereford city officials during a four-county meeting with the two agencies Tuesday in the Deaf Smith County Library.

City officials from Hereford, Friona, Tulia and Vega represented Deaf Smith, Parmer, Swisher, and Oldham counties to discuss airport needs with the two aviation agencies.

The agencies recommended that Friona's privately-owned airport be purchased by either the city or county and that Vega build another runway.

Tulia officials it had been awaiting FAA approval for four years.

Neither aviation group saw any immediate need for the Hereford Municipal Airport. Attending the meeting from Hereford were Dudley Bayne, city manager; Bartley Dowell, mayor; Bob Duckworth, Chamber of Commerce, executive vice-president; John Smith, airport operator; Sam Morgan, Deaf Smith County judge, and Bruce Coleman, county commissioner.

The Hereford airport recently made several changes and improvements, including the addition of 1,000 feet to the runway. The runway also was strengthened to support the weight of larger planes.

The taxi way was overlaid and lengthened and the parking apron strengthened in other improvements. The airport installed a new lighting system, a lighted wind sock, a visual aid approach indicator and a jet fuel system. A fence also was built around the facility.

The state has agreed to build a non-directional beam at the airport within 60 days and pay half the cost. The city will foot the balance.

San Jose Cleanup Work Starts

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Efforts at sanitation and self-improvement began to bear their first visible fruit in the San Jose community just outside of Hereford's southern limits Monday morning when a row of full-time employees began the hard work of clearing alleys in the village.

Residents Are Hired

Four men, all residents of the San Jose area, were put to work on a project being funded through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

The crew includes Sammy Aguilera, 17, foreman, and Juan Sustaita, Pasoval Valles and Jesse Gallan, project workers.

Two additional workers are expected to be hired for the project, possibly this week.

Robert Gallagos, a member of the four-man San Jose steering committee, which was organized to seek aid for the community, announced the beginning of the cleanup work.

Gallagos organized volunteer cleanup projects at the community during the spring and early summer, and all of the men involved in the current cleanup project also participated in those volunteer efforts.

"It's a beautiful thing that we have been able to get this cleanup project okayed, and I'm sure we will be noticing a lot of improvement in our community," Gallagos commented enthusiastically.

Pay Comes Through PETA

The men working on the cleanup crew will be paid through the Panhandle Employment Training Alliance.

Paul Cate, counselor coordinator for the Community Action Agency explained that the cleanup crew will be involved in cutting weeds, clearing streets and alleys, hauling away trash and clearing up the lake bed on the south side of the camp. The lake bed will later be converted to a park.

The primary purpose of the project is to enhance the sanitation of the San Jose community while improving its beauty.

"We decided we would start the work at the outside of the community and proceed across it," Gallagos explained, pointing out that the cleanup crew launched its initial effort Monday in an alley on the community's far eastern side.

Crew Foreman Likes Idea

The crew is led by Sammy Aguilera, a soft-spoken youth of 17, who hopes for better things for his community.

Aguilera is a lifetime resident of the San Jose community, and is of the opinion that the cleanup work is one of the best ideas to come along in the village in a long time.

"I sure hope it works out. I think we have a good chance of being successful. I just hope wet weather doesn't set in too early this fall and keeps us from working."

He commented

Weather was one of the key factors in ending volunteer cleanups at the camp earlier this summer. Volunteers were unable to maneuver trucks into areas to load trash when roads and alleys became muddy.

Alleys Are First

According to Aguilera, his cleanup crew will clear the community's alleys first, and will then assist property owners who are unable to clear their own properties.

"It looks like there's more than enough to keep us busy for a long time," Aguilera concluded.

New Teachers To Be Feted at Banquet

Hereford teachers new to the community will be honored guests at the annual Chamber of Commerce New Teacher Appreciation Banquet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Lamar Garden Room of King's Manor Methodist Home.

"We're expecting 255 people at this year's banquet, with 66 to 68 new teachers in attendance. There will be no featured speaker, just an informative program," said Bob Duckworth of the Hereford Chamber of Commerce.

Duckworth said several changes will apply to the Thursday night banquet. In the past, local merchants sponsored either a married teacher and spouse or a single teacher and a guest. However, this year, single teachers will be paired with local sponsors because of the expected large attendance.

The banquet's format also will be changed, said Duckworth. Instead of the featured speaker concept of past years, the banquet will feature a more informal program. Earnest Langley, a local attorney, will be the evening's emcee and members of the Chamber of Commerce singers will provide musical entertainment.

"We've planned a primarily fun and pleasant evening for all in attendance," said The Reverend Dewitt Seago, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce CARE committee.

Priscilla's Testimony Ends in Husband's Trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Story intact, reputation in shreds, Priscilla Davis faded into the background today as phase II unfolded in the capital murder trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

In a dramatic climax of 11 days of testimony, the cool Mrs. Davis twice Tuesday identified her estranged husband as the triggerman in a murderous shooting spree last summer that left two dead and two wounded.

But she endured a relentless, withering, damaging cross-examination by crafty defense lawyer Richard

"Racehorse" Haynes

The once carefree Mrs. Davis said her husband shot her and killed her lover Stan Farr in the midnight ambush a year ago at the $6 million Davis mansion in Fort Worth.

The wealthy industrialist is on trial for the slaying of Andrea Wilborn, 12, his stepdaughter and the first to die in the Aug. 2, 1976 shooting spree.

Gus Gavrel, 22, a chance visitor to the estate that night, was critically wounded.

Attorneys dismissed Mrs. Davis late Tuesday but told her she was subject to recall and that she might be summoned back to the stand today outside the presence of the jury.

Perhaps sensing an end to her marathon ordeal, she emerged as confident, almost cocky, as the questioning by Haynes droned into the third week Tuesday.

"Did Stan Farr have a large sum of money secreted in the master bedroom that you and Stan shared?" Haynes asked.

Rather mischievously, and flicking her hair, she replied "The money of the bedroom?" She went on to add that "Stan did not have that kind of money."

But during her 11 days on the stand she did admit to two prolonged sexual encounters, addiction to a pain killing drug and friendship with a dubious group of Fort Worth companions.

However, she wound up her testimony denying she ever used, bought, sold or gave away cocaine, heroin, LSD or other hard drugs.

Outside the courtroom Tuesday Mrs. Davis denounced a lawyer as a "half-bred liar."

Mrs. Davis disputed attorney Charles Baldwin's claim that Farr was afraid Horace Cardwell of Fort Worth was out to kill him.

Last week Baldwin produced a mystery pistol and said Farr once told him, "Horace Copeland's out to kill me."

Mrs. Davis asserted that Baldwin is little more than a publicity seeker.

Haynes also questioned Mrs. Davis about her relationship with Beverly Bass, a 19-year-old friend of Mrs. Davis' daughter Dee.

The witness denied speaking to Miss Bass several hours before the shooting and discussing a visit to divorce court.

Haynes had asked Mrs. Davis if she had told Miss Bass that she had "got what she wanted and would tell her about it later."

"No sir, I did not," she replied.

"Miss Bass was at the mansion when Gavrel, her date, was wounded. Prosecutors anticipate the defense will try to infer that Mrs. Davis and Miss Bass conspired to name Davis as the gunman.

October Date Set For Will Hearing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After almost a year of delays, an Oct. 3 date has been set for a trial to determine the validity of the so-called "Mormon will" attributed to the late multi-millionaire Howard Hughes.

The order, entered Tuesday by Clark County District Court Judge Keith Hayes, appears to conflict with the date of a similar trial set by Judge Patrick Gregory of Houston.

Last week, Gregory continued the trial he had set for Nov. 14, but said he would not permit more delays. The trial here is expected to last from two to three months, possibly longer.

The three-page, handwritten will, dated October 1968, was found in the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City about three weeks after Hughes died on April 5, 1976.

Carter Says Nation Needs Urban Improval

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, citing "horrible figures" for unemployment among young blacks, said today the nation needs a comprehensive urban policy and must have more government sponsored employment opportunities.

Carter made these statements, broadly hinting at new administration initiatives to meet mounting criticism from black leaders, at a Cabinet Room meeting with 16 House members who form the Congressional Black Caucus. It was the first such session held since Carter took office.

The President opened the meeting by citing 40 per cent unemployment among teen-age blacks in August and suggested a rise from close to 20 per cent a year ago was largely due to twice as many young blacks as whites entering the work force.

Wallace's Wife Moves from Home

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — Terrorists holding industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer have demanded release of 14 jailed extremists, $650,000 in ransom money and a flight to take the freed prisoners to a country of their choice. West German security sources said today.

A government announcement read on a television news program Tuesday indicated the kidnappers were also demanding a "public statement" by the government.

According to the security sources, the terrorists demanded that 85-year-old German theologian Pastor D. Martin Niemöller and an unnamed United Nations official accompany the flight. But it was unclear whether the kidnappers planned to be on the plane themselves.

Kidnapers Demand Extremists' Release

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace's wife, Cornelia, moved out of the executive mansion Tuesday, saying she can "no longer endure the vulgarity, threats and abuse."

"I have struggled a long time to preserve my marriage," Mrs. Wallace said in a statement.

She said she has instructed her lawyers to "do what is necessary to protect me," but that she has "nothing further to say at this time."

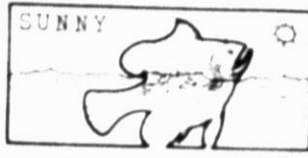

There was no immediate comment from the governor.

Liddy Released Today

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy was released from prison today on parole after serving 52½ months, more time than anyone else convicted in the case.

Liddy, who had been prisoner 25106-145A, walked out of the medium-security Federal Correctional Institution at 9:38 a.m. EDT with his wife, Frances. They headed for a family homecoming at their Oxon Hill, Md., home.

Mrs. Liddy, who has maintained the household on her salary as an elementary schoolteacher while raising the Liddys' five teen-age children, arrived in a brown Ford Pinto subcompact car shortly before 9 a.m. She walked 50 feet past more than 90 reporters and photographers into the prison to greet her husband.

We're just looking forward to having him home," said his wife, Frances, who has maintained the household in Oxon Hill, Md., near Washington, on her salary as an elementary school teacher and raised five teen-agers.

"He's in good spirits, very strong, just the same as always," said Mrs. Liddy.

The one-time counsel to former President Richard Nixon's re-election committee has missed a lot during his prison term. His sentence of six years and eight months to 20 years was lengthened by an additional 18 months for his refusal to testify before the Watergate Committee. But last April, President Carter ordered the sentence shortened to a maximum of eight years, making Liddy eligible for parole.

He has turned 46. His oldest daughter, Sandy, was 13 years old when the aborted burglary at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington took place in 1972. She is now 18, a student at the University of Maryland.

His attorney, Peter Maroulis, said Liddy looked forward to getting home and spending time with his family.

Reporters got a glimpse of Liddy on Tuesday when he was driven in shackles from Danbury by federal marshals to Williamsport, Pa., where he swore at a pre-release pauper's hearing that he was broke and unable to pay immediately a $40,000 fine that was part of his original sentence.

He appeared thinner than when he entered prison on Jan. 30, 1973. A beard he had grown in prison had been shaved, but he still had his moustache. His black hair was combed straight back.

"No comment," he said to a reporter who asked what his plans were.

But at his hearing in Williamsport, he said in a firm voice that he had a number of job offers both within and outside the United States.

He was returned to Danbury for his last night in prison before processing out through several departments.

Three other high-ranking officials in the Nixon administration, H.R. Halde-man, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell, are serving prison terms for their roles in the Watergate cover-up.

Enrollment

La Plata Junior High School had 749 students enrolled there on Tuesday, while Stanton reported 720 students.

Phillips said that another enrollment report will be compiled for next week's school board meeting and for all of the board's subsequent meetings this school year.

"It's just too early to try to say what this year's enrollment will be."

U.S. Quick Food Usage Slows

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

The high prices of 1973 and 1974 which prompted people to cut down the use of convenience foods have left the legacy in the form of continued interest in "kiddie goods" and other "do-it-from-scratch" types of food.

Government statistics show that per capita consumption of wheat flour in the United States declined steadily from 118 pounds in 1960 to 106 pounds in 1974. The trend was reversed in 1975, however, and estimated per capita consumption of wheat flour for 1976 was 111 pounds.

Not all of the increase, of course, is due to more homebaked cakes and breads. A spokesman for the Wheat Flour Institute pointed out that Americans are eating more and more hamburgers every year. More hamburgers means more buns. And more buns means more wheat flour.

It is too soon to tell what the picture for 1977 will show. But some industry sources predict steady interest in home baking and consumers will find that they can save money and time if they learn what types of flours are available and which ones do what.

There are three parts to a kernel of wheat. The inner part, or endosperm, is the part which is ground to make white flour which accounts for more than 90 per cent of the flour milled in the United States.

The other two parts are the bran and outer layer and the germ. The bran which would sprout the part and the germ are removed from white flour, but are left in whole wheat flour. They also are sold separately, usually in breakfast cereal.

Enriched white flour contains vitamins, iron and sometimes calcium which are added to replace nutrients lost when the bran is removed in processing.

Laws in 36 states require that all white flour be enriched.

Bleached flour contains an oxidizing agent which is designed to whiten the flour and improve its baking quality. Food and Drug Administration standards require that a flour be labeled as "bleached" if any oxidizing agent has been used. Here is a guide to some common types of flour on the market.

All-purpose or family flour, available in bleached and unbleached varieties. A blend of hard and soft wheats milled for home use in a variety of products including yeast breads, quick breads, cakes, cookies and pastries.

Cake flour, a finely ground flour made from low protein soft wheat. It is particularly suitable for baking cakes and pastries which require light, fluffy flour. It is not suitable for baking yeast-raised breads.

Hard wheat or bread flour. This is milled from hard, high-protein wheat. It is used chiefly in commercial bread production where doughs must withstand machine handling.

Self-rising flour. This is all-purpose flour with added salt and leavening agents—sodium bicarbonate and one or more acid-reacting substances. This type of flour should not be used for baking yeast-raised products.

Quick or instant-blending flour. A granular flour which disperses easily, even in cold liquids, and requires no sifting. It does not pack down in the package. It may be used in almost all recipes in place of regular flour. It offers convenience, but is usually more expensive.

Pesticide Applicator Workshop is Scheduled training workshop for commercial and noncommercial agricultural applicators of pesticides has been scheduled for Thursday and Friday at the Texas Tech Regional Academic Health Center, Amarillo, Texas, according to County Extension Agent Justin T. McBride.

The educational workshop, though not a part of the official certification process, is being conducted by the Extension Service to train commercial and noncommercial applicators in four categories of agricultural pest control. These are field crop pest control, farm storage pest control, fumigation, and seed treatment.

The first session of the workshop will include general subject matter applicable to all categories of commercial and noncommercial categories. Sessions that follow will deal with category-specific subject matter.

A certification examination is to be conducted on September 9 by the Texas Department of Agriculture at the same location.

Persons planning to attend the workshop must preregister by writing to Carl D. Patrick, Texas Agricultural Extension Service 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West, Amarillo, Texas 79106, or by calling his secretary, Pat Burgess at 806-359-5401, indicating their interest to participate in the workshop. Details will be provided by return mail along with study materials. Physical facilities are limiting and necessitate the handling of preregistration on a first come, first serve basis.

DEAR SEARCHING: Even the experts are sharply divided on whether or not homosexuality is an illness that warrants a psychiatric diagnosis or if it's an alternate lifestyle. They all seem to agree, however, that homosexuality is NOT inherited.

I am with those who believe homosexuality is a psychological disorder caused by one of a number of problems. It could be an excessive attachment to a "smothering" mother or a tyrannical, weak or absent father. To make matters more complicated, some individuals with these very backgrounds may develop into normal heterosexual adults. Finally, glandular factors cannot be entirely ruled out in some cases.

If you cannot accept your son's homosexuality, so be it, but I would ask you, please, don't reject him. Homosexuals do not "choose the lifestyle." It's far more complicated than that.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need some answers and am depending on you for the true facts. Can you tell me a few things about silicone injections to increase the bust size?

1. Are they expensive?
2. Are there any serious side-effects?
3. How long does it take for them to work?
4. Can it be done privately without anyone knowing?
5. Where can I get these shots? -- 18 And Flat As A Pancake

DEAR FLAT: You didn't ask the most important question: Are silicone injections legal? The answer is NO, they are not. They've been proven very dangerous.

Silicone implants ARE legal, however, and they are safe. Your best source of information is your family physician or the county medical society.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please, please tell your readers that vasectomies are not 100 per cent effective. I am 43 years of age (unmarried) and learned a few weeks ago that I am pregnant. My gynecologist says my lover had a botched job or the sperm's normal pathway reformed as a result of a long-term healing process. Please print this as a warning to others. --Bum Break

DEAR B.B.: Six weeks after a vasectomy the male should have his sperm count checked. If it's zero, he is considered permanently sterile. What happened to your friend is most unusual—but it's additional evidence that there are very few things in life one can be absolutely sure of—forever.

Summerfield Revival Begins

Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Summerfield Baptist Church with W. Robert "Bob" Harris of Houston speaking as evangelist.

A former pastor of Avenue Baptist Church here, Rev. Harris is the current minister of Fellowship Baptist Church at Houston. He has been active on the Executive Board of the Baptists General Convention of Texas. Rev. Harris was raised at Lubbock and played football for Texas Tech University.

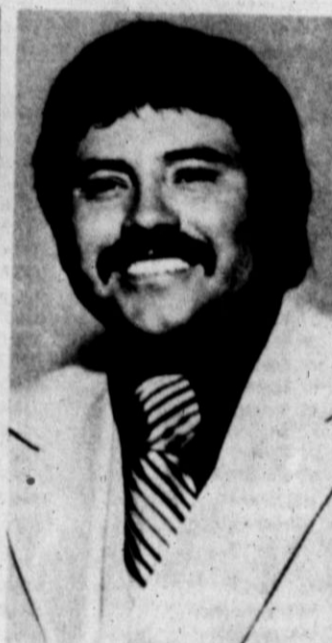

Revival music will be lead by Geary Brogdon and Robert Cuellar, both of Friona.

Brogdon is currently serving as the youth and music minister for Friona's First Baptist Church. He has served in churches in Amarillo, Memphis and Liberal, Kans. Originally from San Angelo, Cuellar is the minister of education and music at Temple Bautista at Friona under sponsorship of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board.

The Summerfield congregation has scheduled revival services at 7 a.m. Thursday and Friday, in addition to the daily services at 7:30 p.m. Services Sunday are planned at 10 a.m. for Bible study, 11 a.m. for morning worship and 6 p.m. for evening worship.

The public is invited and a

Newcomer Tea Arrangements Finalized by Chamber Women

Final plans for a "Welcome Tea", scheduled from 3:30-5:30 p.m. Thursday for new Hereford residents, were discussed by the executive board of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division yesterday at the Country Club.

Donna VanderZee presided. The tea will be given by the Women's Division and Hereford Newcomers Club in the VanderZee home, 132 Liveoak. Chairman of the courtesy is Norma Walden. All newcomers in this community are invited.

In further business, Georgia Sparks presented a recommendation from the Miss Hereford Pageant steering committee, who proposed that the local pageant winner be sent to the Miss Texas Universe finals at El Paso in 1978. This proposal was based on recommendations from Miss Hereford Dec Anne Caison, who competed this summer in the Miss Texas Universe and Miss Texas Scholarship pageants.

The board approved the change, which will alter the requirements of the 1978 Miss Hereford, who will not have to prepare a talent for the Miss Texas Universe contest.

Margaret Formby presented a motion, asking that the Women's Division sponsor a Women's Tennis Tournament during the summer of 1978. This motion passed.

Lynn Carlile was appointed chairman of the committee which selects residential and business Beauty Spots of the Month. This position had been vacant since the death of Gladys Manjeot earlier this year.

It was announced that the Division's nominating committee is considering the candidates for the 1978-79 slate of officers. Mrs. Formby delivered the invocation.

Others present were Bob Duckworth, executive vice president of the Chamber, Sharon Davis and Ruth Black.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) The America's Cup challenge by the 12-meter yacht Australia is in "serious" financial troubles and backers are looking for another $220,000, according to a syndicate spokesman.

Spokesman Bob Hemery said Tuesday the pitch for additional funds started two or three days ago in telephone calls to the top 150 companies in Western Australia.

Hemery said Australia was brought to Newport with a $1 million reserve fund. Half came from businessman Alan Bond and the rest from individual contributors.

Twisters At Home Sunday

The Hereford Twisters, a local soccer team formed here recently, will play a Vietnamese team from Amarillo on the high school band field at 4 p.m. Sunday, September 11.

Peter Moll coaches the team which has forged a 1-4-2 record thus far since its inception earlier this year. "We're improving a lot," Moll said. "The vietnamese have been playing together for years and we played them to a 4-4 tie last Sunday in Amarillo."

The Twisters have dropped three games to the West Texas State team and one to the Vietnamese. They also gained a win and a tie against the Laredo Soccer Club.

NEW YORK - Cincinnati teammates Tom Seaver and George Foster have been named the National League Pitcher and Player of the Month for August, it was announced Tuesday.

Seaver had a 6-0 record for the month, striking out 52 batters in 60 innings and allowing only 16 walks and 40 hits. He had one shutout and posted an earned run average of 2.20.

Foster, the major leagues' home run and runs batted in leader, drilled 12 homers and drove in 28 runs during the month and batted .293. It was the second time this season that Seaver and Foster had won the award. Seaver captured it in April, when he pitched for the New York Mets, and Foster won it in June.

Twins Rip Blyleven

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Bert Blyleven might be more popular with the Minnesota Twins now than when he used to play for them. At least Twins batters enjoy hitting against the Texas curveballer.

The Twins ripped Blyleven for five runs in less than four innings enroute to a 7-4 victory Tuesday night as Dave Goltz recorded his 17th victory of the year.

"The big thing about pitching for this club is you know our guys are gonna score," said Goltz, who fell behind 3-0 in the first inning.

"David didn't get any help right away," said Twins Manager Gene Mauch, referring to a pair of Minnesota errors in the first inning. "I told him not to worry. Maybe we can spot Bert three runs tonight."

Larry Hise's 27th homer of the year, a two-run shot 400-feet into the left field seats, cut the deficit to 3-2 in the bottom of the first inning.

This season against his former teammates, claimed he is still bothered by a groin injury he suffered in June.

"I'm not helping the ball club pitching like this," said Blyleven. "My control has really been off in my last three starts."

In the fourth inning, Blyleven walked in two runs after hitting a batter to load the bases.

"I can't remember walking a guy with the bases loaded and I did it twice," said Blyleven, who dropped to 13-12. "It's frustrating."

Claude Washington and Kurt Bevacqua singled in runs and Bert Campaneris scored on an error by Bob Randall as the Rangers grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first.

loaded to extinguish the Rangers' best scoring threat of the game.

"Two weeks ago we would have gotten a hit instead of two strikeouts," said Hunter. "I haven't thrown in the towel yet, but it's getting closer and closer."

Goltz, who has six starts left this season, boosted his mark to 17-8 and fielded questions about possibly winning 20 games for the first time in his career.

"You have to get 18 and 19 first," said the quiet right-hander. "I just want to win as many as I can and see what happens at the end."

Bevacqua doubled twice and singled against Goltz, who gave up just seven hits.

The Hereford resident is an honorary member of the Hereford Gun Club and has won 65 shooting trophies.

The standard fare will be served according to Payne.

Staubach To Start Thursday

DALLAS (AP) - Quarterback Roger Staubach, sidelined almost three weeks with a pulled hamstring muscle, will start for the Dallas Cowboys in a National Football League preseason game against Pittsburgh Thursday night with strict orders not to run.

The 35-year-old Staubach has lost the soreness in his leg.

"Roger is in good shape but he has to be careful he doesn't sprint on the leg," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He needs some playing time and will probably go at least three quarters."

Landry also announced that million dollar rookie running back Tony Dorsett will play half the game.

"He (Dorsett) needs to learn the offense," said Landry. "He has a bright future...but he doesn't always run it the way it should be run."

Patriots to Challenge Colts for Supremacy

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Eastern Division of the National Football League's American Conference boasts two of the glamour players of the 1970s, but both could be on the sidelines when the 1977 playoffs begin.

One is O.J. Simpson, the consummate running back of the Buffalo Bills, who will be able to polish his budding broadcasting talents in the playoffs after the Bills finish far back in the division.

The other is Bert Jones, the rising quarterback superstar of the Baltimore Colts who would gladly trade his magazine cover-boy status for a shot at the Super Bowl.

Baltimore has won the divisional title in each of the past two seasons, only to be manhandled by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the first round of the playoffs.

But the Colts may not even get that far this season. Standing in the way will be the suddenly formidable New England Patriots.

After playing only one season of .500 ball in the first six years following the merger of the NFL and the American Football League, the Pats improved by eight games last season and made the playoffs with the same 11-3 record as Baltimore.

New England then gave the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders their only real post-season battle before losing 24-21 in the final 10 seconds, following a couple of controversial calls by the officials.

On the strength of the playoff comparisons alone, New England is given a slight edge over Baltimore by most forecasters. A comparison of the 1977 schedules only solidifies the selection of the Pats.

Of the six foes New England must play outside of the division, Cleveland is the only team which had a winning record last year. The Colts must face Denver, Washington, and Pittsburgh.

Behind New England and Baltimore, the remainder of the teams in the AFC East are clearly outclassed.

The Miami Dolphins, decimated by defections, retirements, injuries and court convictions since their second straight Super Bowl championship in 1974, no longer are contenders. Buffalo, struggling even with Simpson, and the New York Jets, rebuilding without Joe Namath, are in even worse shape.

New England's turnaround began when Steve Grogan was installed at quarterback after the trade of Jim Plunkett to San Francisco.

Operating behind a line which allowed only 18 sacks, Grogan passed for 1,903 yards and 18 touchdowns last year and ran for 12 more scores.

Fullback Sam Cunningham gained 824 yards, even though he missed three games because of injury, and his backup, Don Calhoun, ran for another 721.

The offensive line is anchored by tackle Leon Gray and guard John Hannah, both Pro Bowl choices, and hard-hitting tight end Russ Francis.

The Pats improved sharply on defense in 1976 with the addition of cornerback Mike Haynes, the NFL defensive rookie of the year, and free safety Tim Fox, another rookie. New England had three first round picks, two from the trade of Plunkett.

Defense was the chief stumbling block last season for the Colts, who led the NFL with 417 points as Jones passed for 3,104 yards and 24 touchdowns.

The front four "Sack Pack" dropped opposing quarterbacks 56 times, but they couldn't overcome obvious weaknesses in the secondary.

Since then, however, the Colts have signed veteran cornerback Norm Thompson, who played out his option with St. Louis, and linebacker Tom MacLeod has returned healthy after missing the 1976 season with a knee injury.

The offense needs no bolstering. Not with the likes of Jones, running back Lydell Mitchell, and wide receiver Roger Carr.

Mitchell set a Baltimore record with 1,200 yards rushing in 1976 and caught 60 passes for another 555 yards. Carr, who joined the team last week after ending a holdout, caught 43 passes for 1,112 yards, tops in the NFL.

At Miami, Coach Don Shula claims the Dolphins are in need of the same kind of rebuilding job as when he arrived in 1970, with the offensive and defensive lines requiring major revision.

The Dolphins, 6-6 last year, lost defensive tackles Randy Crowder and Don Reese after they pleaded no-contest to charges of attempting to sell cocaine.

In addition, end Bill Stanfill remains out in a grievance procedure over a neck injury, and safety Charlie Babb has a shoulder separation. On offense,

Swab Won't Fowl Up Rice's Offense

HOUSTON (AP) - Sophomore quarterback Jeff Swab doesn't shy away from comparisons to departed All-American Tommy Kramer or learning Coach Homer Rice's triple pocket combination offense.

"Nobody's style is exactly the same," the poised Tulsa, Okla., native said. "There are a lot of things Tommy could do that I can't but I think I have the skills to be a pretty good passer."

Swab, chosen by Rice to start at quarterback for the Owls in Saturday's opener against Idaho, says most comparisons are coming from outside the team.

"As of now, I don't think the coaches or the players are making any comparisons to Tommy," Swab said. "That's coming from outside and it's to be expected."

"I know mistakes will be made this season because that's the way the game is. But I think the team knows what I can do and I know what the team can do."

As for Rice's precise triple pocket offense, Swab was introduced to the complicated procedure long before he came to the Owls. "My high school coach read the book Coach Rice wrote about his offense and that's what we went by," Swab said.

Although Swab has earned the starting position for the first game, he expects to be challenged by freshman Randy Hertel and junior college transfer Mark Snyder to the starting job.

Hertel, whose brother Rob is Southern Cal's starting quarterback, will back up Swab in Saturday's season opener. Snyder is recovering from a leg bruise and possibly could get in the game.

Swab has the advantage of being on hand last season to learn the system although he didn't play in any games.

The boss has never been known to let go of his temper long enough for it to get lost.

Tony Still Battling Image of Smallness

By Murray Olderman

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — (NEA) — The arrangements for the interview were secret enough to accommodate the arrival of a head of state. But was it worth it?

After all, Tony Dorsett has really done nothing more distinguished this year than slug a bartender in Dallas and fling a shot glass that scraped the bar maid — for both of which he faced simple assault charges.

But the Dallas Cowboys football team is gambling a million dollars in present and future payments that Dorsett is the key to a successful campaign on the cleat-scarred battlegrounds of the National Football League.

At the same age, 23, Napoleon was just getting kicked off his native island of Corsica to find fame among the French. Tony Dorsett has already made the cover of Time, Sports Illustrated and whatnot.

He is the most respected, inspected and suspected football player to come out of college since O.J. Simpson.

The respect is for the 6,082 yards he gained running the ball in four brilliant years at the University of Pittsburgh. The inspection relates to his ability to transfer those ground-gaining qualities to the Cowboys, a team of Super Bowl potential that needs only his breakaway potential. He's suspect because, like Napoleon, he's small in a very physical world.

That was immediately apparent when he sauntered in for the secret rendezvous in a dormitory room on the California Lutheran College campus. Not puny. Just short, or relatively so, for his job as running back. Dorsett is 5-10, at the most.

He has always fought the battle of smallness. He flunked the first grade when he was growing up in Aliquippa, Pa., because the teacher thought he was too small. That's why he's a 23-year-old rookie, and that first grade failure still nettles him.

"The worst part," he recalled immediately as he slouched on a dormitory bed, "was what I couldn't say to the other kids I passed. I didn't care too much about school. I was a wild character then. I would fight with other kids. I had a chip on my shoulder. I was quick tempered and a bully."

The young man saying this had an easy smile, and his darkly handsome face was quite relaxed. After a year of intense pressure from all media, fielding strange questions is almost intuitive. But there are times when Tony Dorsett has had to struggle for self-control.

"I straightened out," he admitted, "when my athletic career was in danger. My sophomore year in high school (at Hopewell, Pa.), I had a fight and was put on probation. It was during a basketball game. I had a long feud going with a guy from Beaver, going back to junior high school when he pushed me into a wall. I promised I'd get him some day."

"Every year when we played Beaver a fight broke out. We had a big center, Stan Sligh. Six-ten and weighed 230. This same guy from Beaver was picking on Sligh, so the coach sent me into the game. I slugged him."

Last spring, in a Dallas club, the bartender accused Dorsett of failing to pay for a drink. Dorsett insisted he had. The bartender made a nasty remark with a racial tinge. Dorsett mouthed back. The bartender started to come over the bar at him. One punch, and he was back among the glasses.

TONY DORSETT has always fought the battle of smallness. He flunked the first grade because his teacher thought he was too small. That's why he's a 23-year-old rookie, and that first grade failure still nettles him.

Advance slush fund warning

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Members of the House of Representatives are about to reveal, for the first time, financial details of the "slush funds" maintained by scores of legislators — but don't expect any startling disclosures.

In recent decades, many senators and representatives turned to "office accounts," financed through private contributions from both friends and special interest groups, to pay numerous expenses not covered by official congressional allowances.

By far the most common use of those funds was to finance the printing of newsletters used in mass mailings to the legislators' districts. Other typical items included coffee machines for office employees and flowers for hospitalized constituents.

These expenditures provoked little controversy, but a significant minority of the House membership — reliably estimated at 10 per cent of the 435 representatives — used office accounts as "slush funds" to pay for vacations, personal travel, membership dues in private clubs, liquor and parties.

Those abuses generally were confined to the House, where the funds could be maintained in complete secrecy. The Senate adopted a rule in 1968 requiring disclosure of all money received and spent through office accounts.

The information pertaining to the House also should have been available to the public years ago because in late 1974 Congress passed a law requiring that office account contributions "shall be fully disclosed in accordance with rules promulgated by the (Federal Election) Commission."

But the commission, aware that it was dealing with a political "hot potato," proceeded slowly and cautiously. At one point during its protracted deliberations, a spate of news accounts described the abuses of the office accounts and suggested voluntary disclosure.

Thomas B. Curtis, then chairman of the commission and a former member of the House himself, obliged his nervous erstwhile colleagues with a letter assuring them that they were "under no legal obligation to report until the commission issues its regulations."

The tentative regulations finally were approved by the commission in late July 1975 — more than two years ago — but Congress included in the law establishing the commission a provision giving itself veto power over all proposed rules.

Complaints from the Senate about the tough new guidelines forced the commission to withdraw the initial version, redraft it and submit a revision two months later, at the end of September 1975.

The new approach still didn't satisfy the Senate, which vetoed it in early October. Two months later, the commission sent to Congress a third version, but while it was awaiting approval the Supreme Court ruled that the commission itself had been unconstitutionally established.

Congress didn't get around to legally reconstituting the commission until May 1976. Five days after being reincarnated, the commission again proposed, for the fourth time, its office account regulations. But Congress adjourned for the year before it had a chance to consider the new rules for the requisite 30 "legislative days," thus again delaying implementation.

Early this year, the commission sent the rules to Capitol Hill for a fifth time — and on April 13 they finally attained the force of law. Disclosure forms, due on Oct. 15, will be mailed this month to all members of Congress.

But it really doesn't matter any more. The public reports will only cover transactions since the date the regulations went into effect, and the savvy political operators in Congress have been on notice for more than two years that mandatory disclosure was coming.

"It wasn't just 'handwriting on the wall,' it was a neon sign hung on the side of the Capitol," says one House veteran. "Any fool who didn't have sense to take advantage of the long delay and clean up his office account deserves whatever embarrassment he receives."

Social Security Losing Money, Committee to Consider Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) - Social Security pays benefits to 33.3 million persons and collects taxes from 108 million workers and their employers. It's also running out of money.

But Congress has no intention of letting benefits to the elderly, disabled, widows and dependents be cut off or reduced.

It will start in earnest on the business of finding the needed money Sept. 12, when the House Ways and Means Social Security subcommittee begins putting together new financing legislation.

Witnesses already have described the uneasiness of the retired about the future of the system. Active workers, who in many instances are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income tax - up to $965.25 this year and probably $1,070.85 next year - worry that the load may become back-breaking and still leave them with no assurance of security in old age.

Since 1975 Social Security has been paying out more than it receives from the payroll taxes levied to support it.

It has been drawing down its reserves to keep up the payments. Latest estimates are that, if nothing were done, the trust fund for payments to those who retired for disability would be exhausted by late 1978 or early 1979 and current receipts would be insufficient for payments.

The corresponding fund for those who retired for age, and for their dependents, is not projected to last beyond about 1983 unless replenished.

Everyone agreed Social Security's financial problem is real and serious and that Congress must act quickly during the waning months of its 1977 session. But the agreement stops there.

The lawmakers are faced with what is always one of their most painful decisions: Who will pay?

Any tax increase runs counter to the efforts of President Carter and the Democratic majority to stimulate the lagging economy, while any additional spending not covered by taxes enlarges the deficit, threatens Carter's goal of budget balance by 1981, and may retard the growth of business confidence needed to provide job-building private investment.

Carter sent Congress early this year a package of proposals designed to see Social Security through its immediate financial pinch and make a start toward solving longer range problems that could cause the system even greater difficulties after the year 2000.

But at least one of the major elements in Carter's package is in deep trouble in Congress and no consensus on alternatives is in sight.

The more pressing problem facing Social Security results basically from the unforeseen persistence of high unemployment accompanied by continued inflation since 1974.

In times of unemployment, payroll tax receipts fall below estimates. Disbursements go up because more people retire early, and under existing law inflation automatically boosts the payments.

The trust funds are designed to carry the system over temporary slumps. The long economic woes of the 1970's proved them inadequate.

In 1970 the size of the trust funds were equal to a year's disbursements. By the beginning of this year they had fallen to half that and were continuing to decline.

Additionally, for reasons not fully understood, retirements for disability have outrun projections.

There are two major reasons for Social Security's longer-range problems, that could come to head about 2010 unless corrected. One is the changing age mix of the U.S. population. There are now about three workers to one beneficiary. In the next century the ratio may be two to one, meaning a bigger drain on each wage earner to help support the pensioner.

The other long-range threat to the system, one easier to pinpoint and correct, is a faulty formula for computing the future benefits of persons presently working.

In effect, it compensates twice for inflation. Unless changed, it could permit retirees by the year 2000 to draw benefits higher than their best working-year earnings.

In addition, there are anomalies and inequities in the system that call for reform, especially provisions widely regarded as unfair to women. The courts already have mandated some changes.

Congress certainly will not cure all of Social Security's ills this year or next.

It may well tackle the job in three installments - a quick temporary fix, perhaps involving borrowings among the various trust funds or from the Treasury; more substantial refinancing legislation, perhaps next year; thorough reform left to future congresses.

Carter's package addressed principally Social Security's short-range financing problems.

The administration's most controversial proposal is to transfer over the next three years $14.1 billion of general revenues - essentially the proceeds of the income tax - to the Social Security trust funds.

The shift would be intended to compensate for payroll tax receipts lost because unemployment has remained above 6 per cent since 1975. Whether such transfers would be permanently authorized whenever unemployment exceeded 6 per cent was left open for future study.

In a test vote, the Senate finance committee split 11 to 3 against the proposal.

The proposed transfer came under immediate and heavy fire not only for business groups, Republicans, some former Social Security officials and some economists, but also from the two congressional committee chairmen who will have most to do with the legislation. These are Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., of Ways and Means, and Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance.

The AFL-CIO and major organizations of older Americans generally support the administration package, including the transfer. Some economists agree. Chairman James A. Burke, D-Mass., of the Social Security subcommittee has long advocated a regular contribution of general funds.

Ullman and Long have taken the position that so long as the government as a whole is operating in the red, it is poor policy to cover one deficit by increasing another.

Both have said more revenues will have to be found for Social Security, if not by increasing the payroll tax, then by finding some new source. Both have suggested that a value added tax - a form of national sales tax - may be worth considering.

The argument about using general revenues for part of the cost of Social Security is as old as the system. Most of the other industrialized countries with similar systems do so.

When the U.S. Plan was being developed in President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration, use of general revenue money was considered. The decision, however, was to rely on a payroll tax imposed equally on employers and employees.

Congress generally has held to that principle over the decades. It has increased the tax as the system has expanded to cover more people and provide greater benefits.

General revenues have been added only for special, limited purposes, and for the government's part of the Medicare doctor bill coverage.

The yield of the payroll tax can be enlarged by increasing the rate, raising the ceiling on wages subject to tax, or both.

The rate, now 5.85 per cent each on employees and employers, will go to 6.05 per cent Jan. 1 even if the law is not changed. The maximum wage base, now $16,500, will be increased next year, probably to $17,700.

Boosting the payroll tax yield by raising the ceiling on taxable earnings has appeal in Congress because it does not increase the burden on lower paid employees, while a rate raise hits everyone.

But since only about 15 per cent of workers earn more than the taxable maximum, the Congressional Budget Office estimates, it would take an increase of 63 per cent in the ceiling to raise as much revenue in the next six years as a 1 per cent increase in the combined employer-employee rate.

Carter's package includes some increases in the taxable earnings base, but not immediately.

He would by stages, beginning in 1979, eliminate the ceiling so far as the employer's tax is concerned, so that by 1981 the employer would be paying on his entire payroll.

The ceiling on earnings for the employee's tax would be raised in four steps, beginning in 1979, so that by 1985 the projected ceiling would be $30,300.

Carter's package contains other tax changes.

Present law contemplates an increase in the payroll tax rate of 1 per cent each on employees and employers in the year 2011. The administration would advance the change, putting one quarter of it into effect in 1985 and the other three-quarters in 1990.

The administration also proposed restoring the tax rate on self-employed persons to one and one-half times the employee rate. It has fallen in recent years to about one and one-third times.

The package also includes a new benefit formula to eliminate the double adjustment for inflation. Those already retired would not be affected and those retiring soon only minimally. The principle is unopposed, but there is some disagreement as to the exact formula.

If all its programs are adopted, the administration told Congress, the trust funds will have adequate balances by the end of 1982 and the system will be safely financed well into the next century.

Tomorrow: Raising the standard retirement age.

Moslem Leader Receives Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP)-Hanafi Moslem leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis was sentenced Tuesday to spend 41 to 120 years in prison for his role as leader of a 38-hour bloody siege that gripped this city last March.

Before the sentencing Khaalis said, "I know that whatever happens here will be the will of Allah."

Khaalis would be 97 years old before he is eligible for parole.

A second defendant, convicted of stabbing two men at B'nai B'rith headquarters, received a slightly harsher sentence. Abdul Adam, 31, was sentenced to a total of 44 to 132 years in prison.

Khaalis and Adam were the first sentenced of the 12 Hanafis who were convicted July 23 of seizing three buildings here - the B'nai B'rith building, the Islamic Center and Washington's city hall - and with taking 149 hostages in an incident that began March 9.

Prosecutors had asked D.C. Superior Court Judge Nicholas S. Nunzio Jr. to hand down stiff sentences to show "that those who use terror to victimize persons to do so at the risk of forfeiting their right ever again to be free in society."

Nunzio sentenced Khaalis to five to 15 years in jail on 24 separate counts of armed kidnaping.

However, most will run concurrently. Only those counts dealing with hostages taken at B'nai B'rith Headquarters, where Khaalis and six other

Khaalis also received a term of 20 years to life for the second-degree murder of a young radio reporter killed in

Today In History

Today is Wednesday, September 7th, the 250th day of 1977. There are 115 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1940, German bombers began the World War II raids against London which were to become known as the "London Blitz."

On this date: In 1533, England's Queen Elizabeth I was born. In 1812, the French defeated the Russians in the battle of Borodino, southwest of Moscow.

In 1822, Brazil declared independence from Portugal. In 1825, the French hero of the American Revolution, the Marquis de Lafayette, said his last farewell to President John Adams at the White House.

In 1930, work began on Boulder Dam, now known as Hoover Dam on the Colorado River.

In 1953, the government of South Vietnam had hundreds of students arrested for demonstrations against the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Ten years ago: A White House panel recommended the establishment of a new federal bank to lend money to qualified students for college education, with 30 to 40 years to pay.

Five years ago: An Israeli patrol entered Lebanon in search of Arab marauders after a border clash.

One year ago: A soviet pilot who flew a Russian MIG-25 to Japan was granted political asylum in the United States.

Today's birthdays: Movie stage director Elia Kazan is 68 years old. Actor Peter Lawford is 54.

Thought for today: All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players-William Shakespeare.

With Violence Down and Cops Out, What's New in TV? Variations on a Theme Called S-X

HOLLYWOOD - (NEA) - If they named TV seasons like the Chinese name years, this upcoming one would be called The Year of the Over-Sexed Rabbit.

This is the year when off-color replaces living color, when the double entendre replaces the double play and when Redd Foxx isn't the only thing on TV that's blue.

The whole emphasis of TV programming is shifting, and it is very noticeable when you look down the list of 20 new shows the three networks will be tossing at us this fall. The big thing you notice first is that, of those 20, there is not one cop show.

This hasn't happened since the pre-Dragnet days. Every year has seen at least one new cop show, but not this year. The reaction to TV violence is one obvious explanation, and public boredom to the sameness of the cop shows is another.

With cop shows out, what have the networks turned to to replace them? In a general way, you have to say it's sex.

Sex takes several different forms on TV. There is the out-and-out sexy situation comedy, the kind of show that comes with a built-in leer.

The most publicized of those is ABC's Soap, which is certainly going to attract controversy and probably ratings, at least for a while. Even ABC describes it as "outrageous," and they hope that outrageous is in.

But there are other kinds of sex, not as obvious and heavyhanded as Soap. These are shows that are billed as "family dramas" and they are patterned after the successful Family. These are basically nighttime soap operas, and soap operas have traditionally emphasized kinky sex in their plots.

CBS has The Fitzpatricks, a family-type show dealing with an Irish-Catholic family in the Midwest. NBC has Mulligan's Stew, a show centering around a football coach and his wife and children.

There is also ABC's Love Boat, an hour-long comedy about a cruise ship. The story lines here can go in many different directions, but the chances are that at least one of the sub-plots each week will be sex-oriented. In several pilots of the series, there were more sexual innuendos than you can shake a phallic symbol at. That pattern will undoubtedly continue.

And there are other situation comedies where the chances are excellent that the jokes, the situations and the comedy will mostly revolve around sex. These are following on the platform heels of last season's surprise hit, Three's Company, a one-joke show with the one joke being sexy.

Betty White has her own show on CBS this season, and Miss White is a past mistress of the double entendre and the sly sexy humor. There are two other new CBS sitcoms which could easily go in the sex direction, too, although it's too early to predict positively.

One is On Our Own, dealing with two ambitious girls in New York, working in the advertising industry. The other is We've Got Each Other, about a married couple where the wife goes to work in an office and the husband stays home to do his work. Both of these could conceivably mine the mother lode of sex jokes.

One new situation comedy that is sure to place much emphasis on sex is ABC's

PREMIER sex-situation premiering this season is ABC's Soap, which the network succinctly describes as "outrageous." Featured are, left to right, Richard Mulligan, Cathryn Damon, Robert Guillaume, Katherine Helmond and Robert Mandan.

Operation Petticoat. The gimmick here is that a Navy ship carries a group of Army nurses. You can easily see where this one is headed - particularly with John Astin, who is a fine hand at comedy sex, as the captain.

And ABC also has inherited Redd Foxx. The comedian was given carte blanche at his new network, and elected to go with a variety hour. Foxx, known far and wide as one of the bluest comics ever to play Las Vegas, will probably go as far as he can on his new show, and ABC's censors have been alerted.

Another new variety show this season is on NBC, which has seen fit to give Richard Pryor an hour. Pryor can go many ways with his humor, and he isn't above a little sexy stuff. But that's only one of the strings to his bow.

There are some more conventional offerings on the new schedule, however. Even though there is no new cop show, there is one of each of the other three most-often-seen TV types.

There is one new doctor - CBS' Rafferty, with Patrick McGouhan as that greatest of all TV clichés, the tough, outspoken doctor who is the hospital maverick.

There is one new lawyer - or, more accurately, a pair of them on one show, NBC's Rosetti and Ryan. Tony Roberts and Squire Fridell play the two young and successful criminal lawyers.

And there is one new western - NBC's The Oregon Trail, with Rod Taylor as the head of the family heading west, bound for the good life in the wide open spaces.

And there is also a new science fiction show, for the Trekkies. CBS' Logan's Run is only loosely based on the movie of that name, but it does serve as a chance to trot out fanciful costumes and special effects.

Some of the other new shows don't fall readily into niches, but they probably will eventually.

CBS' Young Dan'l Boone isn't exactly a western, nor exactly a family show, but a little of both, as it tells of Boone's life and adventures as a young man. The network also has a new show for Ed Asner, as Lou Grant, the same character he played on the Mary Tyler Moore Show. Now Grant is a newspaperman in Los Angeles, and the show will be part comedy, part drama. ABC has a sitcom they are tentatively calling Carter Country, which shapes up as a rural copy of Barney Miller, centering on the fun in a country police station. And they have San Pedro Beach Bums, a show that defies comparison with anything else. It concerns a group of young men who own a decrepit fishing boat, and here, too, there will be some comedy and some drama.

NBC has two new hour shows which are unusual in format. One, CHiPs, is an hour-long comedy-drama about a pair of California Highway Patrol motorcycle officers. The other, Big Hawaii, is being shot in Hawaii and is the story of a rich Hawaiian family and their problems.

A few other notes of interest regarding this coming season: NBC will try to continue Sanford & Son, without Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson. They're calling it Sanford Arms this season.

And some of the irregular shows from last season are now regulars - Wonder Woman and The Man From Atlantis.

And, of course, we have some well-publicized replacements - Cheryl Ladd in for Farrah Fawcett-Majors on Charlie's Angels and 12-year-old Gabriel Melgar replacing the late Freddie Prinze on Chico and the Man.

But, most important, we have sex replacing violence.

After Playing Movie President Sheriff Role Suits Andy Griffith

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Think of Andy Griffith and you may think of a good old boy who'd rather loaf than labor. But lately he's been busier than a flute player's upper lip during the William Tell Overture.

Last night, the country boy who sprang to fame as a rustic sheriff on CBS for eight years popped up as President of the United States in the opening stanza of ABC's "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

And last week, he was at MGM, finishing the second of two TV movies—playing Abel Marsh, a gunless sheriff at a California lake resort in what he hopes will become a one-hour weekly series on NBC.

Griffith, 45, a tall, surprisingly intense native of Mt. Airy, N.C., said his new venture is the third version of an idea he's been hot on for several years, a rural cop show featuring both humor and mystery.

He said the first version aired on ABC about three years ago with him in it as a movie called "Winter Kill." He wanted to make it a series but the network didn't.

Despite high ratings, he said, "they chose not to have it on the air as a series because it showed earth instead of asphalt."

"They were afraid because I have a Southern accent and the show was set in a small town—that right away it was 'Green Acres' or 'Petticoat Junction.'"

Things moldered until a writer, Lane Slate, did a similar show about a lake resort sheriff, a James Garner movie called "They Only Kill Their Masters," Griffith said.

Then, he added, he and his long-time partner, Richard O. Linke, consulted with Slate, struck a deal with both Slate and NBC to make two Sheriff Abel Marsh movies, and began filming at Big Bear, Calif.

Griffith spoke of all this while consuming commissary eats with Linke, an MGM press agent and a visiting scribe.

He also discussed with Linke assorted battle plans to publicize his Sept. 20 film, including an appearance on the Dinah Shore show, a five-city tour and 33 telephone interviews in three days. Hope also was expressed a booking on NBC's "Today" show could be arranged.

Griffith, who seemed a bit harried, said all this concentrated drum-beating was necessary. The air date of his first "Abel" had been moved up a month, shortening the time he has to urge folks to watch it.

If a lot of folks watch it, NBC could order it as a series. And a series is definitely what the tall Tarheel wants to do.

The star of the successful "Andy Griffith Show" and unsuccessful "New Andy Griffith Show" grinned when reminded that TV's oldest cliché is that of the exhausted star vowing never to do another series.

"Well, I thought that at one time," conceded the broad-shouldered ex-high school teacher. "But all actors, when they're working real hard, don't want to work."

"But when they're not working, they want to work. We're all that way."

Bus Becomes Traveling Office For Citizen Input to Government

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 12-year-old bus, which until recently carried school children over country roads in Virginia's Rappahannock County, will take to the nation's highways next month in a campaign to involve the voters in making federal law.

The bus, acquired from the rural school district and repainted red, white and blue, has been refitted as a traveling live-in office for Initiative America, an organization formed to promote the idea of letting citizens initiate laws without waiting for their congressmen to act.

Leaders of the organization have succeeded in getting a constitutional amendment intr-duced in Congress. It would enable voters to initiate and then go to the polls and pass federal laws. But supporters concede they have an uphill battle to get it approved.

For one thing, Initiative America is longer on enthusiasm than it is on political clout. The group's national headquarters is at 1316 Independence Avenue S.E. in Washington. That address may sound impressive, but it's really just a desk in Bill Harrington's townhouse.

"It will be a long-range process," says Harrington. He is one of three youthful political strategists, all veterans of environmental, consumer and political reform initiatives at the state level, who form the nucleus of Initiative America.

Harrington, Roger Telschow and John Forster, claim to be getting support from both conservative and liberal groups for what they contend is a nonideological effort.

At least one potent Washington figure, however, already has expressed reservations about the plan.

"The initiative is a safeguard against legislatures that are too beholden to special interest groups and special interest money, but a national initiative right can only work if there is adequate access to the mass media for all viewpoints," said consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

"Otherwise only those viewpoints with the richest pockets will be able to communicate to the public."

Harrington conceded little action is likely on the federal constitutional amendment until the next session of Congress at the earliest.

It has been introduced in the Senate with the backing of three senators, but no hearings have been scheduled. No corresponding measure has been introduced in the House, but Forster said a ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee has agreed to sponsor one.

Meanwhile, the group also plans campaigns on the state level, where 23 states have the right of initiative and others are considering it. A key vote will take place Nov. 8, when voters in Washington, D.C., decide whether to approve a right-of-initiative measure adopted by the City Council. If approved by the voters, it must be ratified by Congress and Initiative America backers hope this will focus attention on the issue.

In the meantime, Initiative America has been selling tickets at $200 each to raise the $20,000 it says is needed to pay the cost of buying the bus, equipping it and operating it. So far, say the organizers, they have sold three tickets.

No Response to Oil Problem

WASHINGTON (AP)—Instead of kicking the habit, the United States is becoming more addicted to costly imported oil, and most Americans apparently don't know it.

More than four months after President Carter's warning that the energy problem could become a national catastrophe, a good many people don't believe there is a real problem.

Carter said the problem should be confronted as the moral equivalent of war, but a public opinion poll ranks energy seventh on the list of national concerns.

According to a CBS News-New York Times survey, the voters don't think energy is the equivalent of inflation, unemployment, crime, health care, education or defense, let alone Carter's hypothetical war.

Those attitudes can hardly be encouraging for the White House team that now must press for approval of Carter's energy legislation in the Senate, where the going is likely to be more difficult than it was in the House.

The Carter program passed the House shorn of one of its stiffest provisions, the standby tax with which Carter proposed to increase the cost of gasoline a nickel a gallon each year the nation's consumption exceeded conservation targets.

Carter got most of what he sought from the House, and James R. Schlesinger, the new secretary of energy, has said he believes Congress will approve the administration package of conservation taxes and conservation incentives without many more changes.

Before he gained the White House, Carter said he meant to use the office as a platform to mobilize the nation to action on persistent national problems. But there is only one platform, and there are many problems.

While the President is campaigning for Senate ratification of new Panama Canal treaties, his aides and lobbyists have some heavy convincing to do on energy.

The new poll, conducted July 27 to 31 among 1,463 adults, supports that view with numbers. Among them:

-Fifty-seven per cent of those surveyed said they don't believe the nation is running out of oil and natural gas, and do not think things are as bad as Carter claims. Only 33 per cent said they believed the President's warnings.

-Forty-nine per cent said they thought Americans were being warned of shortages just so that oil and gas companies can charge higher prices.

-One-third of the people polled believed that the United States produces all the oil it needs, and does not have to rely on imported oil. Forty-eight per cent were aware that oil must be imported, but few of them knew how much.

In fact, the United States buys almost half of its oil abroad, at a price of about $3.8 billion a month. Oil imports have increased by 31 per cent in the past year, according to the Federal Energy Administration.

The administration cites those statistics as evidence that there must be action to cut consumption and thus imports.

Three presidents have been saying that over the past four years, but it isn't happening.

King to Begin Voyage

MADRID (AP)—King Juan Carlos will leave Thursday for Venezuela and Central America on a voyage to spread Spain's new democratic image in many of the nations it ruled nearly three centuries ago.

"The king is not a 20th century conquistador, but he is out to win friends for Spain," said a government official arranging the trip.

"He wants to underscore his monarchy's turn to democracy and try to repair ties with Hispanic America damaged over the past 40 years."

Juan Carlos became head of the state after the death 21 months ago of Spain's longtime dictator Gen. Francisco Franco. Groomed by the rightist general for the job, the king immediately began moving Spain to ward a Western-style democracy after nearly four decades of iron-fisted domestic rule by Franco that also restricted trade and relations with the nation's former colonies.

With Greek-born Queen Sofia, the 39-year-old king plans a goodwill visit to six countries in nine days. The trip will be his first major effort as Latin American diplomacy, backing up earlier visits to the United States, West Germany, France and Italy.

Apart from brief stops in the Dominican Republic en route to Washington and a visit to Colombia last year to mark Columbus Day, the king's visit will be the first time a reigning Spanish monarch has set foot in the former empire.

His largely ceremonial schedule will be the same in Venezuela, Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Panama; talks with each head of state, formal dinners and the laying of wreaths.

But the king also is expected to emphasize the political changes at home and Spain's desire to improve cultural, diplomatic and trade ties, the official said.

Juan Carlos will be back-stopped by Spanish Foreign Minister Marcelino Oreja.

Under Franco, Spain maintained diplomatic relations with all the nations the king will visit but the relationships often were hampered by political differences with the general.

Mexico, whose revolt against Spanish rule led to the independence of Guatemala, Costa Rica, Panama and Honduras in 1821, refused to recognize the Franco government after the end of the Spanish civil war in 1939 and gave the defeated Republican government the right to set up headquarters in Mexico City.

Spain and Mexico re-established diplomatic relations this year to end the feud, and Juan Carlos' Central America trip is seen as a signal of Spain's freshened interest in Latin America before an official visit this fall to Madrid by Mexican president Jose Lopez Portillo.

The king put back his trip one day to Sept. 8 to allow Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez to return from Washington after attending the signing of the U.S.-Panama agreement on the future of the Panama Canal.

The University College at Buckingham, with an enrollment of about 160 students, is Britain's only privately financed university. All others are funded by the government.

Janelle Commissioning, of Trinidad-Tobago, was the first black woman to be crowned Miss Universe. She was given the title in July 1977.

However, there were fewer Mexican visitors and they spent less, the department said.

The statistics show a 37 per cent decline in auto travelers to

Devaluation Effects Tourism

AUSTIN, TEX. (AP)—The impact of Mexico's peso devaluation had a substantial effect on Texas' tourism last year, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation says.

The department reported last week that a record $3.1 billion was spent by out-of-state visitors in Texas during 1976.

However, there were fewer Mexican visitors and they spent less, the department said.

The statistics show a 37 per cent decline in auto travelers to Texas from Mexico, from a high of 1,222,000 persons in 1975, to 770,000 in 1976. These are not daily border crossers but visitors who stayed more than 72 hours in Texas and traveled more than 25 miles from the border.

In dollars, Mexican visitor spending showed a net decline of nearly $150 million, from $392.2 million to $245.2 million.

Despite the declines, Mexican travel parties remained among the most valuable visitors to Texas. During 1976 the average Mexican travel party spent $668 in Texas, while comparable parties from U.S. states spent only $331.

The department's annual tourist analysis, based on information received from the 17.2 million auto visitors from other states, showed that short-term visitors, those who stayed 29 days or less, amounted to 94 per cent of the tourist trade. Long-termers who stayed 30 days or more, usually the so-called "winter Texans," totaled less than six per cent of last year's visitors but their spending topped $800 million and accounted for 26 per cent of all auto traveler expenditures.

The short-term travel parties averaged spending $331 for each trip, while the winter Texan groups left an average of $1,700.

Park Indicted On 36 Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—South Korean businessman Tongsun Park has been indicted on 36 federal charges, including conspiracy, bribery and mail fraud, stemming from the government probe of South Korean influence-buying on Capitol Hill, it was disclosed Tuesday.

An official of the U.S. District Court clerk's office said the indictment was unsealed this morning.

Meantime, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and one of his top assistants scheduled a news conference to announce what they described as a development in the Tongsun Park case.

The indictment of Park, returned by a federal grand jury Aug. 26, was reported by the Washington Post last week. The indictment was kept sealed and no details about the charges have been available.

The clerk's office official said the 36 counts include charges of conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud, racketeering activity, election law violations, and violations of the law requiring foreign agents to register with the government.

The presidential yacht, Sequoia, was sold in June 1977 at the order of President Carter. Thomas Aquinas Malloy of Florida bought it for $286,000.

"The preservation of health is a duty. Few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical morality."

Herbert Spencer 1900
