Carter Called Inept after Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, who says he would do nothing differently in his dealings with Capitol Hill, continues to draw mixed congressional reviews for his style of leadership.

"The waffling bothers me and the effectiveness ratio is going down rapidly," said one liberal northern Democratic senator in describing the performance of the Carter administration.

At his news conference Thursday, Carter said he was criticized at the beginning of his administration for showing too much style and too little substance.

"Lately the criticisms have been that there's too much substance and not enough style," the President said.

But House Republican leader John Rhodes, who last Sunday called the Carter administration "a terrible failure," disagreed. "It's not a matter of style, it's ineptitude," the Arizona congressman said.

Carter also claimed that his slump in the popularity polls resulted from his tackling the tough issues facing the country, and on that he had supporters.

"He hasn't dodged a single tough one," said Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, the House Democratic leader and Rhodes' opposite number. "He may not look effective superficially because the news stories highlight controversy. I think he is effective."

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., who recently locked horns with Carter over the White House role in ending a natural gas filibuster, said Rhodes' criticism was "uncalled for."

"I just think he has more courage than some congressmen are used to," Abourezk said. "The President is right when he says a president should not shy away from settling the nation's problems just because they are controversial."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., also praised Carter's leadership.

"I think the President is right on target," Kennedy said. "He's laying out his goals in domestic and foreign policy in an understandable and comprehensive manner."

But some congressmen complained that Carter is trying to push too many issues at once. He's got too much on the stove now," said one. "There won't be enough burners around here."

And the liberal northern senator, who asked not to be identified, said the charge of ineptitude should be leveled against Carter's entire team.

"I think they have to get their house in order," he said. He added that this does not mean the White House should simply improve its techniques in courting Congress.

"It means not saying one thing on Monday and doing another on Tuesday," he said. "It means not having Carter express optimism on the SALT talks while the secretary of state is expressing pessimism. You can't do that."

At his news conference, Carter noted that one pollster found his approval rating below 50 percent and another put it at 60 percent, but claimed that he was not disturbed.

"I don't know anything I would have done differently," the President said. "The fact that easy solutions have not come forward immediately doesn't concern me, because they are not questions that are resolved easily."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kans., said he agrees Carter's performance has made him temporarily vulnerable to Republican attack, but he added that he's not counting the President out.

"I think he is an able and bright person who is going to get it together one of these days," the 1976 Republican vice presidential nominee said. "I think the administration's performance is going to improve and I think the President is going to improve."

"He tried to win acceptance and get a broader base and push human rights and all the rest," Dole said. "But then he would send the stuff up here and kiss it goodbye."

"I think the overall view is that there is an absence of leadership... It's a bumpy time for the President. I think he's learned that it's a very difficult job."

Carter discussed several of his administration's initiatives at his news conference.

On energy and taxes, he said he will delay a promised tax reform package pending congressional action on a national energy program and revision of the Social Security system.

He renewed his appeal for his energy plan but declined to say if he would veto an energy bill that contained a ceiling on natural gas prices higher than his proposed lid of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet.

On international affairs, Carter said he will support strong sanctions against the sale of weapons to South Africa as retaliation for that country's crackdown on black dissidents and their white supporters.

He also said there is "a fairly good prospect" that nuclear arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union will finish a general outline of an agreement within several weeks.

Turning to the economy, Carter said Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has an honest difference of opinion with the White House on handling of the money supply.

US Backs Embargo Against South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - The United States and its Western allies on the U.N. Security Council have agreed to back an arms embargo against South Africa, but some Third World countries say they want tougher action.

African delegates are unhappy with the Western proposal because it provides only for a six-month embargo, which could be renewed, and because it includes no economic restrictions.

The Africans were trying to decide today whether to back the plan anyway or to press for changes. Any such sanctions against South Africa must be approved by the Security Council where a vote is not expected until Saturday or Monday.

President Carter said Thursday the United States would support a mandatory embargo on arms sales to South Africa's white minority government to demonstrate displeasure with its policies of racial segregation.

A mandatory embargo, if approved by the Security Council, would be binding on United Nations members.

In South Africa, Foreign Minister Roelof Botha accused the United States of being unfair and urged American leaders to reconsider their policy.

"It is quite obvious that we are being singled out for special treatment, not because of the reasons mentioned by the president but because of the demands of a number of countries who have actively conducted a vendetta against us for some years now," Botha said.

"If the maintenance of human rights was indeed the concern of the American government, then certainly America should be pressing for sanctions against more than half of the governments of the nations of the world," he added.

Defense Minister Plesier Botha acknowledged that American support of the U.N. resolution would affect his country, but said: "We will survive President Carter."

The United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada, the Western nations on the Security Council, reached final agreement on a joint embargo proposal Thursday.

The United States has been abiding by voluntary arms embargo decreed by the United Nations in 1963, but the Western powers vetoed a Security Council proposal for a binding embargo in 1975.

Black African states have been calling for tougher international sanctions against South Africa for 14 years. Last week they renewed their demand for a mandatory embargo after South Africa arrested dozens of black dissidents, outlawed most major black organizations and closed two black oriented newspapers.

The African group also sought a resolution calling for a halt to new investment in South Africa. But the only economic items in the Western proposal, sources said, are provisions calling on

Panhandle Farmers Head for Topeka

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

A contingent of farmers from the Texas Panhandle area will travel to Topeka, Kansas this weekend for the Kansas American Agriculture rally.

A number of local farmers are planning to join fellow agriculturalists from Pampa, Tulsa, Dalhart and other area towns on the trip via chartered bus.

According to a spokesman for the Hereford American Agriculture office, the Hereford group may charter its own bus if sufficient interest is shown in the trip.

The spokesman reported that farmers need to notify the local American Ag office by 4 p.m. today if they plan to make the trip.

In the event that a Hereford bus is not chartered, the local group will travel to Amarillo, where they will meet at the Lawson Alford home at South Washington and Hollywood Road, prior to boarding a chartered bus.

Departure time is tentatively scheduled for 4 a.m., and a spokesman from Canyon indicated that four members are advised to bring their own lunch.

The Kansas rally will get underway at 2 p.m. The slate of speakers will include Alvin Jenkins of Campo, Colo., who served as master of ceremonies during the recent strike rally in Amarillo, Stanley Debore of Nebraska, and Charles Sharp of Missouri.

Bill McCormick, mayor of Topeka, will also address the rally audience.

The American Agriculture movement is a grassroots effort by farmers who say they will strike on Dec. 14 unless they receive 100 percent of parity for all of their commodities.

The strike plan was first announced during a meeting between angry farmers and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland in Pueblo, Colo. last month.

Proponents of the strike movement say they will not plant crops or market them, and will refrain from purchasing farm-related items if their demands for parity prices are not met.

Meetings on the American Agriculture movement have been conducted throughout the Panhandle and some 5,000 farmers from Texas and a number of other states turned out for a massive rally Oct. 14 in Amarillo.

Daylight Time Ends Early Sunday Morn

That hour of sleep most folks lost in April can be regained this weekend when clocks are set back an hour to end six months of daylight saving time.

Daylight time ends at 2 a.m. Hereford time Sunday.

Arizona, Hawaii and parts of Indiana are on standard time all year.

Most people who remember to do so will reset their clocks on Saturday night before retiring. But for the few who will turn the hands back at precisely 2 a.m., the new reading will be 1 a.m.

That means the sun will rise Sunday about an hour earlier than it did Saturday. But it also will get dark an hour earlier in the evening.

If you have trouble recalling which way to turn the clock, the catch phrase is: Spring forward, fall back.

Homecoming Festivities Begin With Game Scheduled Tonight

The Hereford Whitefaces, refreshed after a victory plunge last week that ended a five-game string of defeats this season, play host to the Lubbock High Westerners tonight in the HHS Homecoming tilt, which is scheduled to get underway at 7:30 at Whiteface Field.

The Herd, now 3-5 on the year, will also be looking to end a victory drought against the Westerners, who own 10-9 and 15-7 wins over the "Faces the past two years. "They always play us tough whether at home or away," Herd coach Fred Upshaw said earlier this week. "They're just a young ballclub which is getting better and better each week."

While the football game will be the focal point of the night, the evening will be filled with the usual gala events, including the crowning of the Homecoming Queen by Hereford mayor Bartley Dowell.

The game itself is an important one to coach Upshaw, his staff, and the Whitefaces. A win tonight would put them in the position of possibly playing the Monterey Plainsmen for a share of the loop title two weeks from now.

"Our kids realize now that they have something to play for," Upshaw said. "We feel like they'll play with a lot of enthusiasm and give a big effort."

On paper, at least, the Herd looks like a winner against the Westerners, who are 1-5-1 on the season. The Whitefaces are currently the second-best offensive eleven in the district, while Lubbock is at the bottom of the heap. Hereford is averaging 245.9 yards per game offensively as compared to 175.9 by Lubbock.

Defensively Lubbock seemingly has the edge with 264.9 yards given up per game to the Herd's 286.3.

Four of the district's top seven rushers will also be on hand tonight. Hereford's Paul Bell leads the pack with 976 yards, far ahead of runner-up Mark Butler of Coronado's 650. The Whitefaces also have the number five runner in the loop in quarterback Kelly Kitchens, who has 267 yards.

Lubbock's Bobby Mitchell (226) and Larry Dupree (215) rank sixth and seventh on the rushing list, but probably the most dangerous Westerner is tailback Ernest Day, an all-district selection at a safety spot last year. Day has 155 yards on the ground and has passed for 157 more while playing the field general position for LHS earlier this season.

"There's no question he's a quality athlete," Upshaw said of Day, who also handles all the punting and kicking chores for Lubbock. "He's the one we'll have to stop."

Hereford has 17 seniors who will be playing their last game before the home crowd tonight. Those players are Kitchens, Chris Hill, Greg Hennington, Alex Arrango, Daniel Olson, Mitchell George, Randy Marrs, Rick Gonzales, Tommy Clarke, Mark Moten, Greg Brockman, Cory Walden, Warren Cornelius, Gerald Vaughn, Jim Fish, Doug Josseland and Charles Reyna.

Homecoming queen candidates are three seniors, Patti Hendon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Hendon; Rene Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.B. Russell; and Lori Steinkruger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Steinkruger.

Junior attendant is Lee Ann Umsted, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Umsted. Sophomore attendant is Jennifer Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Griffin.

Halftime festivities also will include a special program by the marching band, which captured a 19th consecutive Division I for Hereford High School this week during the University Interscholastic League contest at Canyon.

The marchers, backed by fire-twirling twirlers and the drill team, will perform "Another Opening, Another Show," "Mountain Dew," "Bread Man," "The Sounds of Philadelphia," "Rocky" and "Herd Fight Song" at halftime.

"I think it'll be very entertaining especially since we're featuring the twirlers and the drill team. We'll have the flag corps doing a routine and we'll introduce the members of the flag corps," said Randy Vaughn, HHS band director.

Events scheduled prior to tonight's contest include an afternoon pep rally at the high school and a parade, which will

President Signs Exchange Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed legislation that could bring several hundred Americans now held in Mexican and Canadian jails home in time for Christmas.

Carter, in a White House Rose Garden ceremony, also signed legislation granting permanent resident alien status and continued education benefits to the 150,000 refugees who fled to the United States after the fall of South Vietnam.

He said both bills demonstrated that the American spirit of compassion and concern for human rights still flourished. The prisoner exchange bill sets up the machinery to carry out prisoner exchange treaties between the United States and the governments of Mexico and Canada. They are the first such treaties signed by this country.

The treaties allow U.S. citizens held in Mexico or Canada to choose to serve the remainder of their sentences in U.S. jails. Mexicans and Canadians who wished to return to their countries could also do so.

Policemen Arraigned In Civil Rights Case

HOUSTON (AP) — Four former Houston policemen pleaded innocent to federal charges of violating the civil rights of a young Mexican-American who drowned while in police custody.

U.S. District Court Judge Ross Sterling set a trial date for Dec. 5.

Sterling gave the attorneys 25 days to file motions, one of which is expected to be a request for a change of venue.

The innocent pleas were entered by Terry Dennis, 27; Stephen Orlando, 22; Louis G. Kinney, 27; and Joseph Janish, 22.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury recently on charges of violating the civil rights of Jose Campos Torres, 23.

Skeleton Examined To Determine if Hoffa

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical examiners from two states began checking dental records today to determine if a skeleton found in thick underbrush in northeastern Pennsylvania is that of former Teamsters president Jimmy Hoffa.

The skeleton, with expensive gold dental work that authorities believed might match that of Hoffa, was found on Monday by a hunter near Homestead, Pa. Robert Jennings, owner of Wayne County, where Homestead is located, said he had talked Thursday night with James P. Hoffa, son of the union boss who disappeared in the summer of 1975 as he was mounting a drive to regain control of the Teamsters.

"He was very excited when he heard the age, height and hair color" of the skeleton, Jennings said.

Langdon To Retire As Railroad Commissioner

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jim Langdon announced Thursday he will retire from the railroad commission Dec. 31 to follow a "father's natural desire" — practicing law with his son.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced within the hour that he had appointed a member of his staff, former Rep. John Pomeroy, to succeed Langdon.

Langdon, 62, said he notified Briscoe of his intentions Tuesday, and Briscoe asked if he had suggestions for his successor.

Langdon said he told Briscoe, "No governor, I do not wish to have any part in naming my successor."

Police Report

Offia Torres, of 412 Ave. D, told Hereford police Thursday that some people threatened her and hit and kicked her car at the high school.

Other details on the incident were sketchy in the police report. No charges have been filed.

A 13-year-old boy told police that somebody hit him in the mouth at the golf course Thursday. The youngster did not identify the attacker, according to police.

Police also investigated harassing phone calls at a residence Thursday.

Davis Defense Discredits Gavrel Testimony, Eyes New Targets

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Their siege against Gus Gavrel Jr. perhaps ended, defense lawyers moved on to new targets today in the capital murder trial of millionaire Callen Davis.

But they chiseled gaping holes in Gavrel's testimony that he recognized Davis as the assailant who gunned him down outside the defendant's Fort Worth mansion.

Gavrel, 22, was crippled in the midnight gunfire that left two dead, two wounded, and Davis on trial for his life on a charge of killing his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

The defendant's ex-wife Priscilla, 36, was wounded and her lower leg fractured. She was slain in the Aug. 2, 1976 shooting. The lone unharmed survivor was Gavrel's girlfriend Beverly Bass, 19.

The defense raised an element of doubt about the time sequence of events that night and injected a mystery car into the case. But Gavrel was the focus of attention Thursday.

Before playing their trump card, Davis's attorneys called a Fort Worth policeman and a former ambulance driver to testify that Gavrel told them at the mansion he did not know who shot him.

A nurse then testified she overheard Gavrel say in his hospital room that "he new it was Callen Davis who shot him because he recognized his voice. But he didn't see him because it was too dark."

But it was an unemployed Fort Worth ex-convict who shared the same room in the intensive care unit with Gavrel who provided the most damaging testimony.

Tommy Jourden said he overheard Gavrel tell his father, "It all happened so quick and it was dark, and I didn't know who it was."

According to Jourden, the elder Gavrel replied: "It was Callen that done it. A girl out there said it was. So if anybody asks you, you say it was. Someone is going to pay for doing this."

The witness said that was Aug. 3, the day Gus Gavrel Sr. filed a $3 million damage suit against Davis. That suit since has been upgraded to $13 million.

Jourden said he told Gavrel about his father left. "You know if this rich man shot you, you're going to be a rich man yourself. You can fix suit."

He said Gavrel replied, "You know, I guess you're right. I hadn't thought about that."

Prosecutors contend Gavrel was in shock when he first said he could not identify his assailant and that he was giddy from pain-killing drugs when and if he made the subsequent statements.

State attorneys suggested through their questions that Jourden and his ex-wife LaVonne, volunteered the testimony "for the purpose of bettering themselves financially."

Jourden denied that.

The motorist who stopped and picked up Miss Bass outside the mansion that night testified she did not identify Davis or anyone else as the gunman.

Robert Sawhill said Beverly Bass ran up to his car and cried. "Please help me, my boyfriend's been shot. Will you take me to the police?"

After climbing into the car, he recalled, she said: "Please hurry, my boyfriend's been shot. You know there's a divorce case going on up at the Davis estate."

"Did she ever tell you the owner of that house shut her boyfriend?" a defense lawyer asked.

"No sir," he replied. "Did she ever tell you Callen Davis shot her boyfriend?"

"No sir."

Sawhill said he drove her to a nearby convenience store and twice called police, the second time to summon an ambulance.

The witness estimated the time was 12:20 a.m. when he first saw Miss Bass, 19. But prosecutors suggested it probably was much later and Sawhill said, "I would defer to police records."

The 12th and final witness of the day, John Brutsche, said he spotted a large, late-model, light-colored car entering the mansion driveway shortly before 11 p.m.

But he said he did not recognize the driver and could not say where the car went once it started up toward the mansion.

The Abundant Life

THE GOOD THINGS

BY BOB WEAR

may not be exactly the same for all people, but they are so nearly the same for most people that there is widespread interest in preserving them. In fact, it seems very odd that anyone ever turns away from these good things to the undesirable things. This is never a satisfactory or satisfying personal change.

AS IDEALS, some of the good things cannot be destroyed; but, as practical realities in one's life, they can certainly be suppressed. In fact, they can be lost so far as their being part of a life is concerned.

It is also possible for people to be separated from the good things, from many of the good things. This is happening, in a variety of ways, to great numbers of people. Then, there are some persons who deliberately separate themselves from the good things.

MANY GOOD THINGS are not capable of self-survival in their relationship to individuals. They must have friends, people who see ~~the good things~~ they are who appreciate them; who sincerely ~~desire them~~; who are willing to protect them and know how to protect them.

The Good Things can be lost by carelessness, and neglect; and because of unwillingness to pay the price to preserve them.

BASICALLY, THE GOOD THINGS are constant. They are not one thing today and something else tomorrow, because they are either the established ideals which cannot be destroyed, or they are the by-products of these ideals which cannot be destroyed, or they are the by-products of these ideals which are working in the lives of people. Such things as truth; and love; and honesty; and work; and friends; and health; and family; and church; and school; and community; and many, many spiritual and material blessings are "good things." These are invariable and invaluable.

SHARING THE GOOD THINGS, in whatever way they may be shared, will help preserve them as the practical benefits they are meant to be. They are made to share, and are not diminished in the sharing. Of course, they can be shared only with those who will receive them.

THE WORLD IS FILLED with a mixture of good things and bad things. Obviously, some persons permit the bad things to dominate their lives. They actually turn from the "good" to give themselves to the "bad." This is sad, but there is another strange action. Many people who desire the good things, who seek them, who give themselves to them, spend most of their time thinking and worrying about the bad things. This strange behavior nullifies most benefits to be derived from the "good things."

WE MUST NEVER BECOME so blinded by the usual difficulties of living that we are unable to see and appreciate all of "the good things" which are all around us; even in our own life situation.

Homecoming

start at 3 p.m. The HHS marching band and the bands from Stanton and La Plata Junior High will perform in the parade, scheduled to begin at the high school.

The parade route will be down Union to Ave. F, left on Ave. F to Park, right on Park to Ave. B, left and merging onto Main, right on 2nd St., west past the intersection of 2nd and Miles and past the Miles St. intersection, where the parade will disperse.

Judges' decisions on the floats will be announced at halftime tonight. Judging will take place as the parade is in progress on Main.

Seniors will stage the annual class supper from 5-7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Proceeds will determine which of the three classes in high school will have their representative crowned as Annual Queen.

Embargo

governments to review their economic relations with South Africa and to establish codes of conduct for foreign companies operating there.

Stringent economic sanctions could damage investments by American firms in South Africa, which in 1974 totaled about $1.5 billion. British investment, estimated at $2.2 billion, also would suffer.

Mansour Rashid Kikhia of Libya, one of three American nations on the Security Council, said Carter's announcement was "good, but what's important is the economic side."

"A package not calling for economic sanctions is not possible," said Nigerian Ambassador Leslie Harrison, a leading African spokesman.

Third World diplomats said an embargo would be less effective now because South Africa has built up its arms industry since the early 1960s and can meet most of its own military requirements. Under the proposed resolution, an embargo would be imposed immediately, Western sources said. At the end of six months, the Security Council would have to decide whether to renew it.

The sources said the resolution also would urge South Africa to free those arrested last week and lift the bans on organizations, and to make full judicial inquiry into the deaths of blacks in police detention.

Bensen Defends Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says the natural gas users' tax passed by the Senate Thursday is "not nearly as bad" for Texas consumers as the original tax proposed by President Carter.

Bentsen and Republican John Tower both voted against the tax amendment, which was sponsored by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. It passed, 51-37.

One reason for his opposition, Bentsen said, was the extra $20 per year the Metzenbaum users tax would add to the electricity bills of the average Texas family.

But another reason, and perhaps the more important, was that passage of the tax by the Senate means that a user tax is much more likely to emerge from the House-Senate conference that will write the final version of the energy bill.

The House, back in August, passed a users' tax much like Carter's proposal. It would add $288 per year to the electricity bills of the average Texas family, Bentsen has estimated.

The House version of the tax would add a stiff surcharge to the cost of natural gas and oil used as fuel by industry. The Metzenbaum version would apply the surcharge only to industries which are able to convert their boilers to coal but do not and to industries which construct new gas-fired boilers.

The Metzenbaum version specifically exempts the petrochemical industry. And, it would not affect most Texas utilities, which burn natural gas in boilers.

That is because the industries and utilities designed their boilers only to burn gas or oil. They cannot convert. In other parts of the country, there are industries which started burning coal, converted to oil or gas, and can convert back to coal. They would be affected by the Metzenbaum tax.

The only Texas utilities which would be affected by the Metzenbaum amendment are those which are constructing new, oil-fired boilers for use in meeting peak-period demands, Bentsen said.

But passage of the Metzenbaum amendment "means that our work is cut out for us in the conference committee," Bentsen said.

He will be resisting any effort to split the difference between the House and Senate versions of the users' tax, he said. If a users' tax looks inevitable, Bentsen said he will try to add an exemption for gas and oil used to generate electricity for home consumption.

House Passes Tax Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would put an unprecedented tax bite on the 104 million Americans who have Social Security taxes withheld from their pay checks is heading to the Senate after winning House approval.

A Senate vote on a similar bill could come as early as next week.

On Thursday, the House passed, 275 to 146, its version of legislation increasing the tax for every worker covered by the program, with the heaviest impact falling on upper-income workers. Their employers would also pay more under the House bill.

A decade from now, anyone earning $42,600 would pay over three times as much Social Security tax as is now withheld. The tax would go from $965 this year to $3,025 in 1987.

Someone earning $20,000 would pay $1,420, instead of $965. A worker with a salary of $10,000 would pay $710, up from $385.

Congress will probably enact hefty tax increases this year to keep the Social Security system from going broke. The system has amassed $5.6 billion in deficits since 1975.

Because of population age shifts and such other factors as high unemployment, less money is being taken in by Social Security than it is paying out in benefits.

"We are concerned about keeping the system solvent and this bill will do it," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said after the House approved the bill produced by the ways and means committee, which he heads.

Although some members complained about the major tax increase, most agreed that the financial crisis was severe enough to merit the drastic steps.

However, the House added two amendments that increased the tax rate beyond what the committee called for.

One amendment would remove limits on wages earned by Social Security recipients, phasing out the current maximum of $3,000 on outside earnings by 1982.

Under current law, recipients lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they take in above that amount. Elderly persons could therefore continue to receive a full salary while drawing full Social Security benefits.

The second amendment, approved earlier, continues an exemption for more than 6 million public employees and congressmen, who have separate retirement plans.

The House did not consider any change in the benefits Social Security pays to 33 million people already receiving benefits.

The House-approved bill would also allow recipients to continue receiving benefits even after marrying. Some elderly couples now live together without marrying because they would otherwise lose benefits.

Under the pending Senate bill, employers would for the first time pay more than their employees.

The Social Security tax is now 5.85 percent of wages, with workers earning $16,500 paying the maximum of $965.

Temple Baptist Church Slates Revival Week

A special fall revival is planned for next week at the Temple Baptist Church, featuring evangelist B.G. (Bob) Clements and singer Gayle Bowen.

The revival will begin Sunday morning and meet daily through Friday at the Temple Baptist Church, Forrest and Avenue K.

Clements has pastored at numerous Texas Baptist churches and has spent the last 11 years at the First Baptist Church of Brownsville. Under Clements' pastorate, the Brownsville church has established 10 missions, an orphanage and a medical clinic. He is moderator of the Rio Grande Valley Association and has served on various state committees. Clements is a graduate of the University of Corpus Christi.

Bowen is originally from Post and is a Hardin Simmons University graduate. He also attended the Southwestern Seminary in Ft. Worth. Bowen has served churches in O'Donnell, Muleshoe, Hamlin, Eastland and Sweetwater. He is with the Bacon Heights Baptist Church in Lubbock, where he is minister of education and administration.

The revival will meet each day at noon and 7:30 p.m. at the Temple Baptist Church. All sessions of the revival will be free.

West German Terrorists Buried

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — Three West German terrorists whose prison deaths touched off cross-Europe demonstrations were buried Thursday as several hundred heavily armed police stood by.

There were no incidents as Andreas Baader, 34, Gudrun Ensslin, 37, and Jan-Carl Raspe, 33, were buried in a common grave in the city's Dornahalden cemetery.

Mourners included Miss Ensslin's father, the Rev. Helmut Ensslin, and Baader's mother.

The three, who were serving life terms for murder, were found dead in their maximum security cells Oct. 18 a few hours after an air hijacking staged to force their release was foiled by West German commandos.

Officials said Miss Ensslin hanged herself with a lampcord and the others shot themselves, but there was no explanation how Baader and Raspe obtained weapons. Supporters of the terrorists claim they were murdered.

Government spokesman said the three apparently committed suicide after learning that the hijacking had failed and tried to make their deaths look like murder.

Carter To Postpone Tax Cut Announcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is waiting until next year to unveil his tax cut proposals so Congress can work on his other legislation and he can get a better picture of the economy.

Carter was getting a clue about figure economic activity today with release of the government's monthly index of economic indicators.

The index, a barometer of the economy's movement, went up eight-tenths of 1 percent last month, indicating some moderate growth.

Originally, Carter wanted hearings to start this year on his tax bill. But he told a news conference Thursday, "I prefer to make final decisions after Congress completes its actions" on Social Security and energy bills.

Carter has been considering asking Congress to put the tax cut into effect in 1978 if the economy needs a quick boost and to have the rest of the program go into effect in 1979.

But he said Thursday that proper action on tax reduction and economic stimulation could be determined only after studying the economy. He also said the effect of higher Social Security taxes will have to be examined.

The tax program, he said, "will be a major element in a comprehensive economic program designed to promote a strong economy and to deal further with reducing inflation... and unemployment."

The tax plan, as drafted by the Treasury Department, would cut the tax rate from $1,739 to $1,370 for the average family of four earning $15,000 to $20,000.

It also would cut corporate taxes, but it would restrict deductions, including those for sales taxes, business lunches and capital gains.

Carter said congressional leaders unanimously agreed with him that the plan should be postponed. Some have said the plan is too ambitious to pass in one year.

The President acknowledged that business faces uncertainty because he has so many proposals pending.

He said that despite his disagreements with Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns, he agrees with him that business profits should be increased. He said that will be one of the objectives of his tax bill.

In other economic developments: Carter told a congressional delegation he will not impose imported quotas on steel, but will enforce laws against dumping goods on the U.S. market at below-cost prices.

The House sent a bill to the Senate to improve financing of the Social Security system by increasing taxes on wage-earners and their employers.

The United Mine Workers union suspended its contract talks with coal employers, saying no progress had been made in three weeks of negotiations.

The Labor Department said the productivity of American workers rose 4.9 percent in the third quarter after declining 1.1 percent in the second quarter. Productivity is a measure of output per working hour.

Government economists said U.S. exports reached a record $10.9 billion last month, partly because exporters stepped up their sales in anticipation of an eastern dock strike. The exports reduced the trade deficit from $2.7 billion in August to $1.7 billion in September.

It is believed that Cyprus, off the coast of Turkey, may have received its name from "kypros," the Greek word for copper. The island prospered from copper mines more than 4,000 years ago in the Bronze age.

GIVE ME A CHANCE

The psychologist tells me that any of us can change our lifestyle, alter our behavior pattern, set new goals, and start anew.

In a completely new environment the actions and reactions of the people around me are different from any I've known.

Perhaps there really is the opportunity to learn how to cope with problems and relate to my peers in an appropriate way.

All I've ever known is removal. As a young child I was removed by someone else when a crisis occurred. As a teen-ager, I removed myself-by running. I'm not exactly what you could label as a "runaway", because the people I ran from don't want me anyway.

Surely escape is not the only coping skill I'll ever have available to me!

Please accept me as I am—a human being with a lot to learn about my world. Forget what I've done in the past and help me build a strong self-concept with which to meet my future. Please give me a chance.

Tuesday

Members of the Progressive Extension Club met for a regular business meeting and luncheon in the home of Mrs. M.L. Hershey.

A program on oven meals and slow cookery was given to the club by the hostess.

She explained that there are two kinds of oven meals, one that can be put in the oven and be ready at the same time, or one that each individual dish requires different time periods. The slow cookery was explained to be used for working women and bachelors who can prepare the meal in the morning, let it cook throughout the day and return to a "ready made meal."

Members present were Mmes. Johnnie Townsend, Gerald Townsend, Taft McGee, and H.L. Hershey.

The next meeting for the club will be at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 8th in the home of Mrs. Johnnie Townsend.

By Class

Dolly Hathaway directed an organizational meeting of Dorcas Sunday School Class at Temple Baptist Church earlier this week.

After the opening prayer was given by Pauline Paul, officers were elected and a number of mission projects were discussed with two being selected for completion.

Attending the called meeting were Myrtle Allmon, Laura Jones, Lilly Pearl Townsend, Leola Cook, Roberta Blackburn, Virgie Duncan, Grace Hester and the class teacher Corine Gandy.

Returning to the Community Center, the group had their regular meeting and refreshments.

Members in attendance were Cindy Wilson, Sheila Bryan, Debbie Garza, Anjelica Valdez and Ramona Ortizeros who supplied the refreshments. Leaders present were Susan Gutierrez and Elsa Ramero.

In December of 1976, a local teenager was critically injured as the results of a motorcycle accident. The story of 17-year-old Steve Batenhorst has caught the hearts of many people throughout the Texas panhandle.

Steve has recently been moved to Deaf Smith General Hospital where he is receiving therapy and making progress. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Batenhorst.

Though Steve is unable to talk and feed himself, he does communicate with those who come in contact with him by smiling or blinking his eyes twice for yes and once for no.

There will be a Country Music Festival at 8 p.m. November 12, Saturday, at the Hereford High School Auditorium. Music will be provided by the Monty Sasser Group and the Pollard Brothers.

The public is invited to attend. There will be no charge. All donations will go to the Steve Batenhorst fund.

Ann Landers
Two Sides To Everything

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently a reader asked you, "How can a 120-pound woman throw out a 190-pound bum?" There is a way.

Most women think of the police when they are abused. A police investigation means the use of warrants, which means criminal action in court. Courts hesitate to handle domestic criminal actions because too many women have a change of heart after the bruises heal.

I realize laws differ from state to state and the information I'm giving cannot apply in all places, but it might lead some women to seek such help. A CIVIL action for the woman who seriously wants to get rid of her abusive husband is often the best procedure. North Carolina has laws on "constructive abandonment" (his actions force her to leave and he therefore abandons her); "divorce from bed and board" (not a divorce decree but a means of receiving support); and "alimony without divorce" (which is much the same).

A preliminary hearing is usually held within a week and temporary support orders are given. Legal fees are paid by the losing party.

As you said, there ARE ways to be free of an abusive husband and every woman needs to be educated in this regard. Perhaps you can condense or reword the information in such a way as to pass it on to your readers. Surely North Carolina is not the only state which has civil actions to protect women.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine dropped dead of a heart attack yesterday. He was a terrific person but his wife never cared for me because I am a gambler by profession and loaned him money for gambling purposes.

I saw a lot of this friend behind his wife's back. I really liked him a lot but there was no way he could get his wife to accept me.

My problem is this. I owed this guy $1,500 as his percentage of a hot tip and was going to pay him back next week. I'm afraid if I send the money to his wife it will be like ridding him. Should I give it to charity in his name? Please advise me on this matter. --Undercover Buddy name? Please

DEAR BUDDY: Send the $1,500 to his wife. No detail are necessary. She will assume it was a loan--and that's good enough.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What can I do about a husband who comes home from work and says, "What did you do all day?" When I tell him I washed clothes (for eight people--we have six children) he comes back with, "What do you mean YOU washed clothes? The machine did it." I could wring his neck.

He works in a factory and I know his job isn't easy, but if I were to tell him the machines do the work and all he does is stand around, he'd clobber me.

Do you have a snappy comeback for a husband like mine? I'm not very good with words but you are. --Need Some Answers

DEAR NEED: Forget it. Don't let the big ape get to you. Deep down he knows better. (P.S. I suppose he thinks the six kids were manufactured by machine, too.)

HALLOWEEN SHOWS US SOME MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT FAITH

Everyone knows Halloween as an occasion of fun and mysterious excitement for children, as well as costume parties for all ages. However, few of us are aware of the true religious origin of this October event, and there some confusion reigns because of the similarity of this ancient Druid festival in name and date to the All Hallows' Eve of the Christian tradition. This is but one minor example of the many misconceptions about religion, as well as the commercialism of all our holidays. You and your family should learn the truth about your own faith, including the origin of its customs and proper observance of its holidays; and the best place to separate fact from fantasy is at the Church of your choice, at any time.

Mustangs Stop JV; Sophs Nipped 7-6

By BOB NICH
Brand Sports Editor

The HHS junior varsity found itself outmanned once again Thursday night, losing a 32-6 decision to Lubbock Coronado at Whiteface Field in a game that followed an exciting sophomore encounter in which Hereford got nipped by Dimmitt 7-6.

In games involving other local teams the La Plata 9th graders got whalloped by Plainview 40-0, the Maverick 8th grade team clipped its Plainview foe 33-20, the Stanton 9th graders whipped Canyon 34-12, and the Dogie 8th grade bunch dropped a 22-6, decision to Canyon.

Games Tuesday locally had the La Plata 7th grade lose to Plainview Blue 18-8 as Rudy Martinez scored the sole Maverick touchdown, and the Stanton 7th graders outclassed Canyon White 36-0 as Jay Hodges tallied four TDs and Charlie Garza added another.

"We had 17 players suited up to their 32," Herd JV coach Kenny Barnes said following his team's loss Thursday night. "I'd say our kids played with all they had once again, but we just got worn down toward the end of the first half and they got a couple of scores."

Those two touchdowns erased a 6-6 tie that Hereford had gained when quarterback Kevin Bunch hit James Collier for a 14-yard touchdown pass.

Still, the Longhorn passing game was off according to the coach. "We haven't thrown real well all year," Barnes said. "Once again that hurt us last night although our only touchdown came on a pass."

Effort-wise the coach had nothing but praise for his charges. "These kids are really great," he said. "The last three weeks especially they have played with a tremendous amount of effort. It really hurts them to lose, and the main thing we want them to know is that they are improving each week and we want them not to get their heads down."

Sophomore coach David Ashby saw his team fall in a late comeback bid last night and drop a one-point decision to Dimmitt. "I thought we played real well, but we made some mistakes, and we were hurt with two of our starters being moved to the JV this week due to their depth problem," he said.

The game, as well as the entire season, has been nothing but good for the Shorthorns, who are now 3-2, the coach feels. "Our sophomores didn't have a lot of experience this year, and the fact that they can gain some is what's good about our program," he said. "These kids will now have six games with real good playing experience under their belts that they wouldn't have had if we didn't have the sophomore program."

The Herd JV has two games left (Plainview and Monterey), while the sophs will close out their year November 5 against Levelland at Whiteface Field in a Saturday afternoon contest.

Richard Sainz and Ricky Fuentes each tallied two TDs for the Stanton 9th grade in its big win Thursday, while Harold Terry added a final score. "Our defense played really well," a happy coach Larry Sowers reported. "We made some mistakes, but we stopped them on four downs from the one-foot line once."

Wayne High scooted over right guard for a 60-yard touchdown run in the Dogie 8th grade loss. Their Canyon opponents had too much size and speed, however to gain the 22-6 win.

It was much the same story for the La Plata 9th grade. plainview used superior size and surprising speed to coast to a 40-0 decision.

PERTH, Australia (AP) - Jimmy Connors says Australian Tony Roche is the best bet for the singles title and $8,000 prize in the $46,000 Hitachi Tennis Classic.

Connors, who was forced out of the tournament because of a serious groin injury, said Roche would be toughest to beat.

"Tony has his game together and will be hard to toss," Connors said before leaving Perth Thursday. "His match with Vitas Gerulaitis would be worthy of a final anywhere in the world. I think Tony can do it."

Roche, 32, who was a quarterfinalist in this tournament in 1975, crushed 1975 winner Harold Solomon in straight sets Thursday night. He will play Gerulaitis in the semifinal tonight.

The other semifinal pairs American Hank Pfister and Australian Geoff Masters.

HOUSTON (AP) - Starting Houston Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini continues to rest his bruised back and sprained ankle.

Pastorini did not practice much Thursday and John Hadl remains a possible starter against the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Meanwhile, the Oilers picked up a defensive end and dropped another. They signed Steve Baumgartner, recently waived by New Orleans, and released Al Burton.

Tag Team Match Heads Mat Card

Hereford Lions Club wrestling is serving up a potential pier six brawl in Saturday night's main event at the Bull Barn. A tag team match will highlight the evening's card, as Brute Bernard, the Angel, and manager J.J. Dillon take the measure of Teddy Dibiase and Ricky Romero.

Last week saw Dillon and Bernard barred from the Bull Barn as Dibiase won over the Angel in Texas Death Match action. Dillon and the Angel's partner will seek revenge for their beaten warrior.

The Brute, a 265-pound French-Canadian, once had a pickup truck fall on him, and got up and walked away. The 255-pound Angel is from Bordeaux, France, but was highly successful grappling in the Mid-Atlantic states before coming here. The notorious manager, Dillon, has also been highly rated as a wrestler.

Dibiase, at 245, was originally an all-state footballer in Arizona, and played at West Texas State. Partner Romero, 224, already famed as a matman, is rapidly becoming known to Amarillo citizens as the marathon man. His sweat suited figure is a familiar sight to many as he runs his daily five miles.

In semi-main action, the squat and ape-like Rip Hawk, at 245, will take on Nashville's popular 222-pound Johnny Starr. The opener will newcomer Don Kernodle, 240, try grips with 228-pound Reggie Parks, the highly-conditioned former Canadian now known in mat circles as "The Arizona Crowbar."

In last week's action, main eventer Dibiase made it back to the ring after a crash and double knockout with the Angel. They had been fighting on the floor all over the Bull Barn. Dibiase had his duke raised in The Texas Death Match.

Hawk was disqualified over Kernodle, competent young North Carolina wrestler. Hawk used a jacket on the corner post to choke his opponent after being virtually stopped.

Randy Alls of Dallas was small packaged by Parks, while young Bobby Pico stopped Lobo Hernandez in the opener with one of the hardest dropkicks ever seen at the Bull Barn.

Action at the Bull Barn starts at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Stopping Campbell Key Sloan Feels

By KEN RAPPORT
AP Sports Writer

Earl Campbell is the big wheel in the Texas offense and Steve Sloan knows it.

"I think so much of him," says the Texas Tech coach, "that I went out and bought a truck just like him."

Sloan says the Red Raiders have to put a stop sign in Campbell's way if they hope to beat the nation's top-ranked team.

"Considering that we haven't tackled Campbell in two years, I'd say we're going to have our hands full," Sloan said of the important Southwest Conference game Saturday.

Campbell has been a dashing figure for three years in college football, but only once did he actually wreck the Red Raiders. That was in 1975, when his 150 rushing yards led a 52-15 Longhorns' rout.

But in 1974 and 1976, when Campbell had sub-par games, the Longhorns were losers.

This year, Campbell is en route to his best season, and the powerful Texas running back is coming off the biggest game of his career—a 213-yard performance against SMU.

While the 14th-ranked Red Raiders will be preparing for Campbell, Texas will be doing the same for Texas Tech quarterback Rodney Allison, even if he is a doubtful starter because of injury. Allison's brilliance in last year's game provided Texas Tech with a 38-21 victory.

"Rodney was a little better today," Sloan said Thursday of his star who has been sidelined with a broken leg since Sept. 16. "But he's still not anywhere near full speed. He's throwing pretty well, but he still doesn't run very well."

Along with Texas and Texas Tech, the rest of the Top Twenty teams will see action Saturday. Second-ranked Alabama plays Mississippi State in a Southeastern Conference game at Jackson, Miss. The Crimson Tide is fresh off a 55-6 rout of Louisville.

Wisconsin makes its 18th try to win against third-ranked Ohio State in Ohio Stadium and Badgers Coach John Jardine wants to hear none of that "jinx" talk.

"I don't even like to talk about it because it takes away from what you're concentrating on," said Jardine.

The giant horseshoe stadium was built in 1922, four years after the Badgers last won at Columbus. Wisconsin is 0-15-2 playing in Ohio Stadium.

Three of the country's best linebacksers will be on display when fourth-ranked Oklahoma, the only unbeaten team in Big Eight Conference action, plays at Kansas State.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer suggests that Daryl Hunt and George Cumby might be the best pair the Sooners have ever had. Gary Spani of Kansas State has been closing out a four-year career in brilliant style. He is the second-leading tackler in the league behind Hunt.

Representatives from several bowl games will be on hand when fifth-ranked Notre Dame plays Navy at South Bend, Ind. The Irish are coming off an impressive 49-19 victory over Southern California, and with their 5-1 record, rate a look by bowl scouts.

Navy came within inches of upsetting Notre Dame last season, dropping a 27-21 decision.

Raiders Get Nod In Revenge Game

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Advice to the Oakland Raiders: Don't get mad. Get even.

As they rumble into the emotionally as well as atmospherically Mile-High city of Denver, the Raiders' memories are focused upon the embarrassment of a good of fashioned 30-7 whipping administered by the Broncos two weeks ago.

They might be tempted to rush out and try to demolish Denver from the outset. But Coach John Madden and quarterback Ken Stabler, who saw a few moments of panic in Oakland turn a close game into a runaway, won't let that happen again.

It will be a methodical beating by the Raiders, who know all too well that another loss to the Broncos also will mean only halfway into the National Football League season—a fond farewell to their streak of five straight titles in the American Conference West.

Incidentally, Denver's loss will reduce membership in the "Perfect Record" club to two ... Dallas and Tampa Bay. Each will remain with a zero in the won and lost department, the Cowboys by demolishing Detroit and the Buccaneers by suffering in San Francisco.

Last week's 9-5 mark put the season record at 59-25, .702. This week's picks:

Raiders 24, Broncos 17

No way is Denver going to intercept seven passes. No way is Jim Turner going to do anything with the ball except kick it. No way is that game going to get out of hand the way the last one did. Craig Morton and friends will be running, not for yards, but for their lives.

Cowboys 38, Lions 14

Detroit's offense is, to put it kindly, zilch. The only way it can move the ball is stamp on it and drop it in the nearest mailbox. Time for the Cowboys to rebound from an off-week.

49ers 23, Bucs 10

What can you say about Tampa Bay except ... err ... ahh

Steelers 28, Colts 13

The oddsmakers rate this a tossup with Baltimore getting a narrow nod. But we don't see it that way. Pittsburgh's got the best defense in the league, just ahead of New England. And you know what the Patriots did a week ago.

Cardinals 31, Giants 17

When these two teams get together it's always a good show. Not necessarily good football, mind you, but probably more fun than what the other net-works will be showing next Monday night.

Vikings 14, Falcons 10

Have the Falcons been playing over their heads? Have the Vikings been playing under their heads? In each case the answer is yes-but only slightly. Which is why Minnesota will win-but only slightly.

Browns 17, Chiefs 9

Neither Cleveland nor Kansas City goes very far very often with the ball. But the Browns also keep the other guys from moving it. The Chiefs' 1-5 record is deceptively good.

Bengals 21, Oilers 10

Cincinnati's previously sensational defense has been staggering this year. Nothing could revive it quicker than Houston's offense, last in the AFC.

Rams 27, Saints 6

Los Angeles blows hot and cold. The Rams will make things awfully warm in the Superdome, even with less rest. The Saints have been napping all season.

Seahawks 20, Bills 17

We'd normally call this an Upset Special. But in this case the only upset is going to be that one of these teams is going to come out a winner.

Patriots 20, Jets 14

New York has been scoring a few teams-but New England isn't likely to get shaken up by a mere "boo!"

Redskins 23, Eagles 17

Washington may be playing mediocre football, but the 'Skins still aren't in Philadelphia's class.

Dolphins 24, Chargers 20

The kinds of mistakes San Diego made last week are the kind Miami doesn't make.

ALLEY OOP

COME ON, UNCLE! I'LL SHOW YOU AROUND THE L.A.S.

HAS DOC EVER MENTIONED HIM TO YOU, OSCAR?

YES, HIS NAME'S COME UP ONCE OR TWICE OVER THE YEARS...

...BUT I DON'T THINK DOC LIKES TO ADMIT TO THE RELATIONSHIP SINCE THE OLD BOY IS SOMEWHAT OF A FAMILY CHARACTER!

HA! 'FAMILY CHARACTER' IS PUTTING IT MILDLY!

OUR NEXT GUEST IS MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE! MY CARD SAYS HE'S AN AUTHOR, INVENTOR AND FORMER ADVISOR TO WORLD WAR II GENERALS. DID ANYONE CHECK HIS BREATH?

STOP! FT. JACKIE, YOU'RE KILLIN' ME!

MY WORD, IF HE'S MISUSED BY SUCH CASUAL COMMENTS, MY SOPHISTICATED HUMOR WILL DEVASTATE HIM!

COME ON OVER, MAJOR, AND MEET THE HOST OF THE MIDNIGHT TALK SHOW, WILDCARD JACK!

THAT'S NOT THE WAY IT GOES, MAJOR.

Comedian Insults Black Professor

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) - A black professor at Northwestern University says that comedian Paul Lynde directed a series of "racial insults" at him shortly after Lynde appeared at the school's homecoming ceremonies.

Sociology Prof. James Pitts said that the incident occurred at a fast-food restaurant near the campus on Saturday night and was witnessed by about 10 people.

Pitts, a former Northwestern basketball player, said Lynde referred to "spoiled black people," and made an obscene gesture at him.

Pitts described the incident in a letter published this week in the student newspaper Daily Northwestern. The newspaper also carried a letter from a white student, John Christofersen of Batavia, Ill., giving identical details and deploring Lynde's alleged behavior.

The newspaper also published an article quoting Lynde as denying the incident and saying he did not recall having been in the restaurant Saturday night.

Pitts said in his letter that Lynde, also an alumnus of the university, stood behind him in line at the restaurant and "kept up a steady chatter, most of it racist comments directed at black people in general and at me in particular."

Pitts said Lynde announced that he was scheduled to do a comedy special with "spoiled black people." He quoted Lynde as saying, "Black people are too spoiled. There are going to be all these black people. I'm the only white they're having on the show."

Pitts said the remarks angered him and that he said to the comedian, "Perhaps they particularly wanted you on the show."

To this, he said, Lynde responded, "They wanted Archie Bunker."

Pitts said he wondered as he stood in line "whether a 6-foot 9-inch black NU alumnus and Ph.D. employed by his alma mater can get away with beating hell out of an intoxicated but wealthy and famous white alumnus."

He said Lynde grimaced at him and made an obscene gesture when the counter waitress brought his order.

Businessmen Would Pay, Says Survey

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Most of the nation's business and financial leaders drive to work and would pay up to $2.08 a gallon for gasoline before switching to other transportation, according to a nationwide survey.

And of those who drive to work, nearly one of every five said they would not give up driving to work "at any price," the Vestaur Quarterly Economic & Investment Survey reports.

Vestaur vice president John Dickerson, who prepared the questionnaire and wrote the report, contends the study gives insight into the situation of all American workers.

"My feeling is that it really shows that the average person is forced to drive to work or forced to use a car for a portion of his transportation to work in most cities. His alternative is not getting to work, which is hardly an acceptable alternative," he said in an interview from Vestaur's Denver office.

While conceding the polling group of about 225 people was far from average, with annual incomes averaging $30,000, he insisted the group was just as beholden to the gasoline pump as anyone else.

The $2.08 per gallon figure was an average of what the businessmen said they would be willing to pay to keep driving to work, he said.

"Some guys said $3, some said $1, but the implication here is that public transportation is not available and they would be forced to pay those prices," Dickerson said.

He said those in the polling group were not asked whether they would use public transportation if it was available but that the question would be included in the next quarter's survey.

power plants to help finance the cost of converting to coal.

The House has approved an industrial tax that is broader than the one backed by Metzbaum but not as tough as proposed by Carter. The Senate vote means it is almost certain that the final version of the energy bill will contain some such tax.

The Senate planned a vote later in the day on efforts to trim the tax incentives approved by the Finance Committee. The key question is whether more federal aid will be allowed for the oil and gas industry.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said Wednesday that the Finance Committee bill is a blank check for the oil companies, "drawn on the account of the American consumer."

Instead of the President's tax approach to energy conservation, the committee had approved a $40-billion, eight-year package of tax incentives to reward conservation and increase energy production.

The Metzbaum tax would apply only to the estimated 11 percent of American factories whose boilers can be converted to coal, and to all new boilers installed in the future. The tax of $6 per barrel of oil is double that proposed by Carter, but it would apply to far fewer plants.

However, Metzbaum cited estimates that his tax still would save the equivalent of 1.2 million barrels of oil per day—compared with 1.5 million barrels for Carter's plan—at a far lower cost to the nation's economy.

Some of the $5 billion that the Metzbaum tax would bring in between 1979 and 1985 would be rebated to factories and Modern world production of sesame seed is estimated at 3.4 billion pounds, most of which is turned into oil.

Assembly Votes On Settlements

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - Virtually unanimous censure is shaping up in the U.N. General Assembly for Israel's establishment of Jewish settlements in the occupied Arab territories.

Many diplomats predicted Israel would be the only country to vote against an assembly resolution condemning the settlements. The United States, Israel's chief ally, has not indicated its position. But the Carter administration has called the settlements an obstacle to peace, and American sources said the United States may abstain.

The vote is scheduled today. The nine European Common market countries announced support for the Egyptian resolution Wednesday. Speaking for the bloc, Belgian Ambassador Andre Ernemann said the settlements "aggravate tensions in the area and prejudice future overall negotiations."

"We remain firmly committed to the security of Israel, but every unilateral move could eventually harm Israel's security," he said.

Opening the debate, Egyptian Ambassador A. Esmat Abdel Meguid told the assembly: "The racist regime in Israel is determined to sow the seeds of discrimination in the occupied territories."

Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog defended the settlements and charged the assembly was being asked to endorse "the Nazi racist philosophy of creating an area that is free of Jews."

"It is sad to see nations which suffered from the Nazi yoke and oppression contemplating support for the resurrection of this hated anti-Semitic thesis which brought holocaust and tragedy to this world," he said.

Attacking President Carter without calling him by name, he said: "The statement that Israeli settlement among a million and a quarter Arabs is an obstacle to peace is a lie. To say so is to engage in a cynical falsification of history."

The resolution, which 63 Third World countries are sponsoring, declares that the settlements have no legal validity and constitute a serious obstruction to peace efforts.

It also demands that Israel "desist forthwith from taking any action which would result in changing the legal status, geographical nature or demographic composition of the Arab lands occupied since 1967, including Jerusalem."

BUYING ON SALE

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) - When shopping for clothes on sale, try to learn why the items are marked down, advises Marjorie Baker, Extension clothing specialist at Oklahoma State University.

Colors and styles unbecoming to most people often do not sell well, but if the color is becoming to you the sale garment may be a good buy, she points out.

Search on for Men Behind Carter's Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's probably the Henry Kissinger legacy, but even in this 10th month of the Carter administration there are a lot of smart people around town looking for the secret hand guiding American foreign policy.

The memory of Kissinger's mysterious trips to Paris for Vietnam peace talks and to China to open relations after a quarter-century of icy distance is still too fresh to accept the fact that Jimmy Carter is making most of his own decisions.

Actually, the who's-in-charge here is a little beside the point. However large Kissinger's role as national security adviser and then as secretary of state, the ultimate responsibility rested with the presidents he worked for, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford.

And even when Carter depends on advisers for guidance, he is identified in the public mind, here and abroad, with what the United States does. The policy is his; it bears his mark. He gets the credit and the blame.

This was true of Dwight D. Eisenhower, although John Foster Dulles mapped many of his moves, and it was true of Nixon and Ford in Kissinger's era.

The question hardly arose under John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. They left no doubt who was in charge - although it's not entirely clear how much the Central Intelligence Agency was running a foreign policy all its own.

Personally, Carter is not as vigorous as Johnson, but neither is he as subdued as Eisenhower.

He hasn't traveled as much as Nixon. On the one hand, he has scheduled a back-breaking, 11-day trip to nine countries spread over four continents. On the other, he has said he will call it off if Congress hasn't completed action on his energy program.

The obvious inference: Carter considers globe-trotting useful but not imperative.

In scope, his foreign policy approach is uneven. In some areas, such as the Middle East, the United States is an influential, driving force. In others, China for example, U.S. policy has hardly inched ahead since Carter took office.

But most noticeable about the Carter administration in foreign affairs is that there is no one of Kissinger's dimensions on the scene.

Most pundits had predicted that by now one of the several advisers Carter signed on would have clawed his way to the top. It hasn't worked out that way.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, who reminded some of Kissinger because of his academic and European background, has not parlayed the job of national security assistant to the power Kissinger attained.

Brzezinski helped formulate the early, tough policy Carter followed with the Russians. And he was an early proponent of the Palestinian "homeland" the President endorsed.

But his influence is not even remotely as pervasive as Kissinger's was.

Cyrus R. Vance, the secretary of state who reminded some of William Rogers, has turned out to be stronger and more influential than the fellow Kissinger eventually supplanted.

He has taken on the hard, nuts-and-bolts work of preparing for a Middle East peace conference and was in charge of the strategic arms talks with the Russians in May in Geneva that broke a long impasse on treaty negotiations.

U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young, Vice President Walter F. Mondale and arms control director Paul Warnke have all settled into important but secondary roles.

Young, stirring less controversy after an explosive debut, has had as much to do as anyone with the new atmosphere of conciliation at the United Nations.

Mondale has not been used as much as Carter indicated, and Warnke has quietly performed negotiating duties without setting policy, as some conservatives felt he might be doing.

None has attained the influence - or glamor - of Kissinger.

It's a foreign policy team with Carter at quarterback and without a breakout runner.

300 Agencies Are Using the American 180

Police Forces Snap Up Laser Gun

WASHINGTON (NEA)—At least three federal law enforcement and security forces have quietly been equipped with (1) the world's most lethal rifle, or (2) the world's most humane weapon.

It all depends on how you look at it. The gun is the American 180, a Buck Rogers piece that is aimed by laser beam and fires at the astonishing rate of 30 shells a second. The U.S. Park police have been training on the weapon for more than a year; the Secret Service and FBI are among more than 300 other American police agencies using the rifle.

The gun doesn't look like a new generation of firepower. Its pistol grip stock and barrel cooling fins are reminiscent of the Thompson submachine gun of the 1920s. And its circular cartridge magazine is not unlike that of the Lewis guns which were bolted to the fusilages of a thousand World War I fighter planes.

But under the skin the American 180 is devastatingly new. The laser beam locks it precisely on target, and when activated the gun fires 177 rounds in a scant six seconds. The rifle uses nimble .22 cartridges which contain 40 grains of lead apiece, thus the six second burst contains 7,000 grains, deadly to any living thing.

U.S. Park police sergeant Carl Clipper says the 180's full magazine can be fired into a four-inch bullseye from a distance of 35 yards. The laser keeps it zeroed it, and the weapon's balance all but eliminates barrel climb. Clipper indicates that the foot-pound force of the American 180 could chop a human being in half.

But withering power isn't the only function of the 180. The rifle's developer says it is essentially a humane gun. Charles Goff of the Salt Lake City based American International Corp. says the 180 can be fired without a shot being fired. "Once the laser beam hits a man, he knows he's had it; usually, he'll give up."

Goff says the intimidation aspect of the rifle has had several tests in the three years its been on the police-military market. Guards at Utah state penitentiary, for example, have successfully stopped a potential riot with an unloaded 180. "All they did," says Goff, "was fix the laser beam on the ringleaders; that did it."

The laser beam is a pencil-thin stream of scarlet light. It is flashed from a battery operated unit hooked under the gun's muzzle. On target, the beam appears as a red dot, clearly visible to both the shooter and shooter. Goff says that dot is the electronic equivalent of a bullet hole. "That's why a suspect should quickly surrender."

To insure intimidation, Goff says police forces presently have use the assistance of propaganda. Since the weapon is relatively new, and its reputation as yet confined, criminals must be instructed as to the relationship between the laser dot and death. Goff says police bullhorns are often used to educate fleeing or barricaded felons.

Then too, the laser education can be presented more bluntly. In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Goff says, police recently had to kill one suspect in order to save a second. The suspects were exchanging fire with the cops and would not be intimidated by talk of laser dots; when one man was blown away, however, his sobered companion yielded.

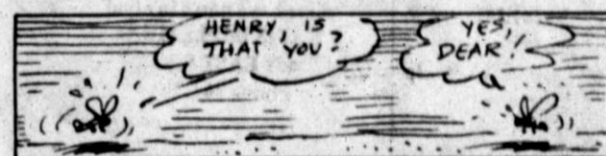

For all of its physical and sociological potential, however, the American 180 has deficiencies as well. An FBI agent says "it takes all day" to load the 177 shells. It is also heavy, 12 pounds with laser. And it is expensive: Goff says the rifle itself sells for $300, and the cost of the laser unit is at least $700 more. Further, the 180 has limited use in daylight. Outside in the sun the laser dot is difficult to see and almost impossible to aim. Carl

Clipper says the gun does have some use indoors during the day. "But it's not a routine weapon, it's good only for special use, and for the most part that means during the hours of darkness."

Still, Clipper adds, the advantages of the 180 are hard to ignore. Particularly, the advantage of accuracy. Sometimes ordinary eye-aimed weapons can not be used for fear of hitting innocent bystanders. Given the 180's laser beam, however, Clipper says thugs and thieves can no longer count on the cover of crowds.

So it is the weapon is apparently gaining in popularity. Goff says the 180 is in demand by military as well as police units. And foreign governments are among the most interested buyers. Goff says the Israeli authorities have purchased the rifle, but he refuses to name others. "Most buyers," he says, "are not interested in publicity."

The secrecy has to do with security. Goff says a police agency in Florida has already been approached by "people dressed as cops" wanting to check out the American 180. Observers say crooks, terrorists and crazy people are desperately trying to get the weapon. Ominously, the FBI believes the Mafia may already have it.

See the monster raise out of his coffin! He is really a friend who is raising money to help needy people.

How Haunted Houses Help

In many cities, groups raise money by opening haunted houses. The men and women and children dress in costumes. They set up spooky things to see. Kids and parents pay to go through. The money raised usually goes to a good cause.

A Haunting We Will Go...

But As What?

See the clown costume at the left. It won a prize in a costume contest.

How does it work?

The hands are really feet with gloves on.

The feet are hands with shoes on.

The head is a round paper-mache ball that is painted. It is attached to a belt.

You can make an easier costume.

Go as a mouse.

Turn a gray sweat suit inside out. Wear a hat with pinned on paper ears or a Mickey Mouse cap. Make a tail by stretching out a coat hanger.

Cover and wrap around a towel and tie with string. Attach hooked end to belt.

Why not go as Raggedy Ann.

Wear yarn braids and a pinafore.

A Powerful Tourist Attraction

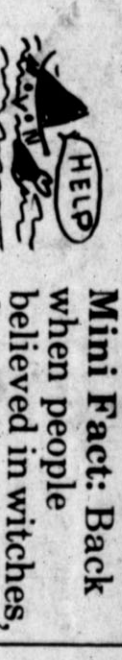

The Witch House in Salem, Mass.

The Witch House in Salem, Massachusetts, is one of the oldest houses in the country. It was built about 1642.

This is the best room in the Witch House where the accused "witches" were asked questions.

Mini Fact: Back when people believed in witches, there was a witch test. The "witch" was tossed into deep water. If she floated, she was a witch. If she drowned, she was not. Do you think that was fair?

Draw a line to the part in the story about this picture.

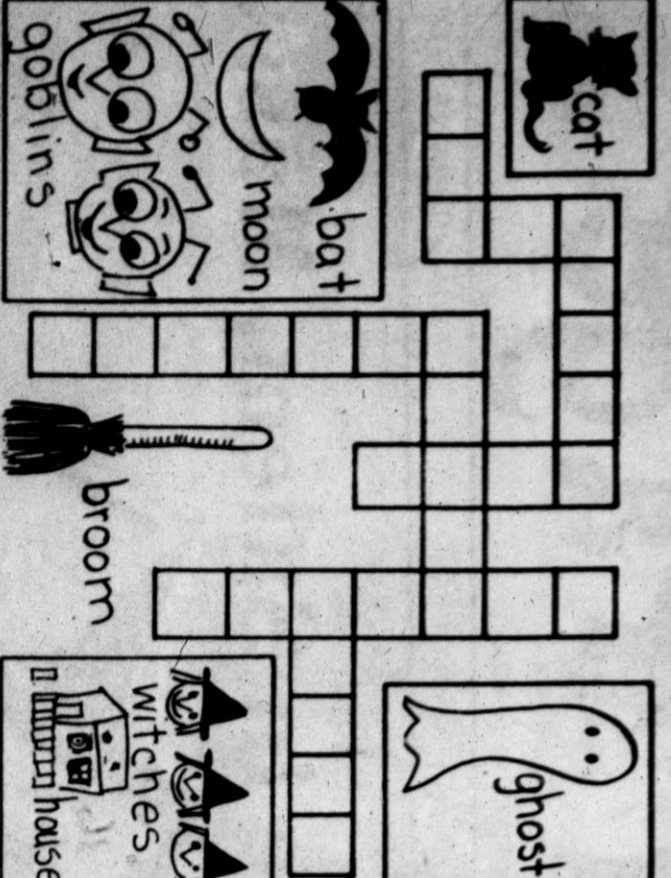

It all started in 1689 when a slave named Tituba was brought to Salem, Mass. She was from the West Indies. She was said to be good at the art of "black magic." Local girls started getting together with her at night. They wanted to learn her tricks. They started acting strangely. The town-folk began to believe they were bewitched. But who had put them under the spell? The witch hunt was on.

The girls began accusing innocent people. During the Salem witch trials in 1692, twenty people were put to death. Then the citizens woke up to the awful thing they were doing. One hundred and fifty people who were waiting to be tried were freed. The Witch House where some of the "witches" were questioned still stands. The house reminds visitors of the bad times when people really believed in witches, evil spirits, devils, goblins and ghosts.

Next week: Oh, Dear... What will the weather be?

Sciencing... The fun of finding out.

PROBLEM: How does light affect the pupil of your eye?

FINDING OUT: Observe the size of the pupil in a friend's eye while in a dimly lit room. Now move out into the bright day. What changes do you observe? Is the pupil larger in bright or dim light?

CLUE: The pupil is really a hole that lets light into the eye. The iris (colored part of the eye) is really a round muscle that helps protect the eye from getting too much light. It gets larger in bright light to make the pupil look smaller.

Super Sport: Gene Littler

Gene Littler is an amazing golfer. Just 16 months after an operation for cancer, he came back to win a golf tournament.

And today, at the age of 47, he is still swinging. During his sparkling career, the mild-mannered star has won 28 pro tour tournaments. He has also won more than one million dollars in prize money. He is known as "Gene The Machine" because of his sometimes excellent play. When he isn't playing golf, he enjoys tinkering with his collection of antique cars. He and his wife and two children live in La Jolla, California.
