Sadat Asks US to Peace Conference

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat Saturday invited Israel and its Arab neighbors, the United States and the Soviet Union to come to his capital next week to prepare for a reconvened peace conference in Geneva.

The invitation was rejected immediately by Syria.

Sadat issued the call in an 80-minute. lectern-pounding address to his parliament in which he also blasted the Soviet Union and assailed the Arab critics of his visit to Jerusalem a week ago. Several

WITH TURKEY DAY behind us, you know the busy Yule season will get underway this week. Actually, a glimpse of Christmas has already been seen on the local scene. Many residents felt the holiday spirit last Sunday after visiting open houses at three local flower shops -Park Avenue Florists, Flowers West, and The Yellow Daisy.

La Madre Mia Study Club will hold its annual Christmas Tour of Homes and Bazaar next Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Project Christmas Cards starts this week. Sponsored by the Medical and Dental Auxiliary, Project Christmas Card is in its 21st year with proceeds again going to purchase additional equipment for Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Another holiday event took place last night as The Brogue and The Vogue held a style show at Hereford Country Club. All of Hereford's merchants are gearing up for the Christmas season this week

While not actually linked to the holiday season, two open houses are scheduled this week. Hi-Plains Savings & Loan will hold an open Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. to show off its new addition and remodeled facilities. Plains Insurance and First Realty will hold open house next Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. in their completely new structure at 201 E. Park Ave.

PUBLICITY SURROUNDING the Cullen Davis murder trial in Amariflo lingered on and on after the verdict. We've got one last thought about the trial. Aside from the guilt or innocence of the defendant, there's something wrong with the judicial system in this country when we lock up private citizens for four months in a jury trial.

No citizen can afford, nor should he be required to serve four months on a jury. That's not a citizen obligation — that's a sentence. If the defendant had not been a millionaire, how long do you think that trial would have lasted? A speedy trial is not only the right of the defendant, but also the jurors.

Chamber Slates Daniel As Speaker

Edward O. Daniel, a businessman educator and comedian, will be the featured speaker for the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet, scheduled Jan. 19 at the Bull Barn.

Donald Hicks, banquet committee chairman and former C of C president, announced Friday that Daniel had been secured as the principal speaker for the banquet. Tickets for the event will be on sale soon, according to Bob Duckworth, executive vice president of the chamber.

Daniel is currenty director of community relations for the Fort Worth office of Bache, Halsey, Stuart, Inc., a brokerage firm. He is a former professor of history at Texas A&M and Howard Payne University. He is a graduate of Howard Payne, and earned his master's degree and Ph. A highight of the banquet will be the presentation of the "Citizen of the "ear" award. New officers and directors will be recognized at the event.

times the emotional legislators broke into the speech with cheers and applause.

A Syrian government spokesman said in Damascus the invitation was a "maneuver to cover up his visit of shame" to Israel. "We shall not allow Sadat to create fresh news events to overshadow the visit and make the Arab people forget it," the spokesman said.

The Israeli government said it would study the invitation after the close of the Sabbath. The U.S. State Department said it would consult with the others invited "to determine their willingness" to go to Syria ridiculed Sadat's speech as an effort to "justify his visit of shame" to Jerusalem last weekend but made no specific response to the invitation to Cairo. There was no immediate reaction from Lebanon and Jordan, the other Arab states neighboring Israel, or from the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"I am proud for having visited Jerusalem," Sadat declared in defense of his historic mission

The Egyptian leader attacked the Arabs - particularly Syria and the Palestinians - who criticized his peace initiative, but he did not offer them any concrete results on substantive issues discussed in Israel.

The tone of his speech, however, indicated Sadat viewed the mission to Israel as an unqualified success. The bigget result, he said, was the elimination of "psychological barriers" that he said nearly dragged the Middle East into another war 10 days earlier.

Pounding the lectern, he told the Egyptian people: "We will not allow any single one of you to be hurt so long as we can make peace. We will destroy the idols of fear and we will be victorious over the enemies of life.

"I will give instructions to the foreign minister of Egypt after this speech to contact the United Nations, the two big powers and the parties to the conflict. including Israel, to tell them that Cairo welcomes them as of next Saturday, to prepare for the Geneva conference."

The conference has not met since a brief opening session in December 1973. The United States, cochairman of the conference with the Soviet Union, has been seeking to reconvene it next month, but the efforts have been snagged primarily on the question of Palestinian representation

Sadat gave no indication of inviting the Palestine Liberation Organization, which

Junior High Art Teacher Sculpts Away from Classroom

Managing Editor Andrew Wilks, who sculpts, describes it like nobody else.

'The foundary is so noisy, it sounds like an air terminal. it makes you build up a lot of anxiety.

"Just before you pour your metal out of the foundary, you turn all the motors off and it's dead quiet. All you hear then it the trickling of metal filling up the molds.

"There's always a little bit of danger with that. At that point, you feel very drained and a little tension. You can tell by the way the metal pours how it's going to come out.

"Then there's the matter of waiting for the metal to cool. We always jump

When you take it out of the mold, there is an emotional release when you look at it and you see that all the hours you worked in preparing for it haven't been for nothing. Then you go home and take a nap.

One of his emotional releases wasn't one of ecstasy. Just the opposite, in fact. A sculpture Wilks worked on for hundreds of hours didn't come out. He had poured the metal when it wasn't hot enough.

"I would say that was one of the most frustrating times I've ever spent in niv life," said Wilks, Stanton Junior High art instructor who has sculpted for five years and has done quite well

His works have their beginning on paper. Wilks draws a rough sketch prior to carving the wax. When he is finished molding and carving the wax, he makes a rubber mold, which can be used to make several models of the same sculpture.

Beef Prices Rise 3 Cents

WASHINGTON (AP) - Retail beef prices in October rose to their highest level in 18 months, and further increased may be on the way.

The Agriculture Department said that retail cuts of choice-grade beef sold last month for an average of almost $1.42 a pound. That is an allcomposite price used to compare meat prices changes.

In September, the retail price of beef was slightly less than $1.39 a pound. According to department records, the $1.42 in October was the most since beef was at that level in May 1976.

Tentative figures also show that beef prices have continued to edge up in November.

Pork prices, however, were down in October as hog slaughter picked up seasonally from September. An outlook for more pork and broiler chicken is expected to help temper beef price gains in the coming months.

But red meat production is down from a year ago. Beef output by slaughter plants in October was down 5 percent, and pork was down 3 percent. Veal, lamb and mutton production also declined from a year ago. The new report said the farm value of beef sold in stores last month was 84.4 cents a pound, up from 80.2 cents in September, reflecting higher cattle prices. That is not what producers get for live cattle, since it takes about 2.3 pounds of live steer to make a pound of beef. But it

"We own these products, we finance them, we grow them on our own land, but we don't have the right to price them." Schroeder complained Friday in a telephone interview.

Earlier in the week, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said he sympathized with the goals of the proposed strike, but he predicted it would fail as have other efforts to organize

Asked about Bergland's remarks, Schroeder commented: "I don't think he's been out to talk to many farmers." On Friday, thousands of farmers, many

September. The middlemen's share dropped to 54.2 cents from 57.1 cents. The report said that market price of choice-grade steers at major markets last month average $41.60 per 100 pounds, up from $39.73 in September. However, hogs dropped to $40.83 per 100 pounds from $41.40 in September. Looking at what happened to prices of farm-produced food as a group last month, the report said that the marketing spread between farmers and consumers decreased six-tenths of 1 percent from Officials said that in addition to beef and pork, middleman spreads also were small for fresh vegetables and oilseed

Ex-Governor To Campaign In Hereford

Smith, associated with West Texas Savings and Loan Association and the Texas Bank, both of Lubbock, was governor from 1969-73.

His political career began as a member of the Texas House from 1945-49. He was a state senator from 1957-63 and was lieutenant governor from 1963-1969.

Smith, a Democratic conservative, was graduate from Texas Tech University. He plans to be in Dimmitt prior to

'It's easier than I thought it would be." In the fall of 1976, the Army conducted a Basic Initial Entry training program in which 875 men and 825 women underwent an eight-week training course under the same performance standards. The experiment was prompted after women in segregated training were found to be less qualified than the men.

The results showed little difference in the relative performances of male and female groups. And Army officials decided to begin the coed basic training program on a full-scale basis this fall.

The regimen is much the same as it is for men in the days of segregated companies, but modifications have been made to accommodate the women. Officers generally consider the changes minor, but some male recruits contend they have caused their training to deteriorate.

The changes are mainly in physical training. And Capt. David A. Georgi admits that the standards - upgraded for women, but lightened for men - are not

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A federal judge has ordered the Anchorage Daily Times to continue publishing the Anchorage Daily News under the first joint publication agreement approved under the Newspaper Preservation Act.

The Times has announced its intention to terminate the agreement Nov. 30, contending a lawsuit against it by the News had made the pact unworkable. The Times also alleged the News had refused to pay $312,000 it owed the Times.

Katherine Fanning, editor and publisher of the News, hailed Friday's decision to require continuation of the agreement, which she said would allow the state's only morning daily newspaper to continue publishing. Robert Atwood, editor and publisher of the Times, said, "I don't know what I can say except that the lawyers are studying the document and figuring out what we do next." He added that "appeal is one of the options that's open to us."

The News filed a lawsuit against the Times last spring, seeking $16.5 million and claiming mismanagement of the agreement by the Times, which handles non-editorial chores for both papers. While the papers maintain separate editorial staffs, the Times handles circulation, advertising and publication.

Israeli National Dies in Plane Wreck

DALLAS (AP) - Three of the four Israeli nations who were critically injured in a New Mesico plane crash Friday, were on classified assignment and working for a Dallas-based electronics firm.

The Israelis, one of whom was killed. were believed to be aboard a small private aircraft that crashed near Carlsbad, N.M. while en route from Dallas to El Paso on a holiday outing.

Preston Kirk, a spokesman for E-Systems Inc., indentified the victim as Osnat Rosenholts, 22 wife of Gabriel Rosenholtz, 28, one of the survivors. Also surviving are Yohanon Lavanon, 44, the pilot, and Davir Kirren, 27

"We're not sure who the plane belonged to," said Kirk. "All the papers in the aircraft were burned up.

Kirk said an Israeli official from New York, Maj. Joseph Ravkaie, had flown to Albuquerque to claim the body and ship it Another E-Systems spokesman, W.L. Thomas, declined to discuss employment details. However, he described Rosenholtz and Kirren as "customer representatives" who serve as liason between the Israeli government and E-Systems at the firm's suburban Greenville plant. Lavanon has been employed by E-Systems about four years, Thomas said.

Actor Carlson Dies In LA Hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Actor Richard Carlson, who appeared on stage and screen but whose best-known role was in the long-running television series "I Led Three Lives," is dead at 65.

A family spokesman said Carlson, who died Friday at Ecino Hospital, suffered a cerebral hemorrage Nov. 15 and never regained consciousness.

Carlson invested his savings in a Minneapolis threater company to gain theatrical experience after earning a master's degree at the University of Minnesota.

He appeared in the films, "Back Street," "King Solomon's Mines," "It Came From Outer Space," and "Creature from the Black Lagoon."

He portrayed counterspy Herbert A. Philbrick in the "I Led Three Lives" television series during the 1950s.

A private service for Carlson, who is survived by his wife, Mona, and two sons, was tentatively scheduled at the Harvard School Sunday.

Brown's survey noted wood which sold for $30 to $35 a cord two years ago, mixed loads of green and dry firewood, now ranges from $60 to $95, with some quoted as high as $120 a cord.

Brown advised wood buyers to be aware of how much wood makes up a legal cord. He said a rick can be a ripoff since there is no legal definition of that measure, and there is no definite number attached to "a pickup load."

A legal cord of wood is a reasonably tight stack of logs measuring four feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long, or 128 cubic feet. Prices vary. In Central Texas, oak is quoted at $60 to $70 a cord. In metropolitan Houston and Dallas, though, oak will cost you $75 to $90 a cord. Mesquite is also bringing $95 to $120 in Houston and Dallas.

The Texas Legislature permanently established the council during the last legislative session in 1977, according to Sherman. One of the council's initial projects in 1974 was to gather information on energy potential in the State of Texas. Two wind energy researchers, Dr. Vaughn Nelson of West Texas State University and Dr. Gilmore Amarillo College were awarded $14,000 to do a study of the power in Texs.

In 1976 the council gave the research team, including WTSU Research Professor Robert Barieau, $17,000 for a feasability study of irrigation pumping by wind energy.

The State of Texas continued its support of the active wind energy research program at West Texas State University during the last session by budgeting the team $170,000 over a two-year period for an expanded research effort.

In addition to giving the Texas Energy Advisory Council permanent status, the legislature has provided it an Energy Development Fund of $1.5 to $5

Sherman and the other approximately 60 members of the Advisory Committee will aid the council in handling the research fund.

Gililland Finishes Enucleation Course

John Gililland, co-owner of Gililland - Watson Funeral Home, recently completed an eve enucleation course in Lubbock to become possibly the only embalmer in the Panhandle qualified to remove a donated eye.

Gililland was certified in enucleation by District 2T2 of the Lions Club, which has the High Plains Eye Bank as one of its major annual projects.

State legisltion passed recently allowed embalmers to remove the eyes of deceased donors. The course lasted a total of

Bob Nigh Let's Talk Sports

Hereford head football coach and athletic director Fred Upshaw consented to a final question and answer interview this week as he prepared to leave his position with the school system. His responses to some personal questions and to questions about the athletic department at HHS were forthright and interesting.

In our opinion coach Upshaw will be missed within the Hereford Independent School System; if not for his coaching ability, of which there is much, for his administrative ability. which did much to help run the athletic department here smoo-

In the interview coach Upshaw also discussed the job he held as athletic director; a job which entailed much more than the casual observer imagined:

Q-Have you had any second thoughts since you announced your resignation?

A-Oh, I don't think so. I had been trying to decide for the last three months about the situation anyway. I finally decided that it was best for me and my family. and I think it'll be better for the school system. I made the final decision about three weeks before the season was over, and so far have had no second thoughts about leaving.

Q-Was there any one reason specifically that prompted your decision to leave?

A-I think it was just a combination of a lot of things. First of all I got a pretty good opportunity in business here. And, it wasn't getting any easier to coach here. I don't have any regrets or hold any grudges, I just felt like it was the right time and a good opportunity.

O-What's in the future for Fred Upshaw?

A-I don't really know exactly what I will be doing. I will be working for Hoerner-Waldorf and Ron Osborn. I've talked to Ron, and we're going to play it by ear at the start. It will probably be some selling at the

Q-Was there any pressure on you from anywhere to resign? A-None at all. In fact, I feel like that if I had wanted to stay there wouldn't have been any problem. There may have been some who wanted me to quit around town, but they never confronted me with it. As far as any school board member or administrative personnel, they never mentioned it.

O-ls this your farewell to coaching?

A-I can't really answer that. If I had to answer that today I would say yes because this job I'm getting is a good opportunity. But, you never know what the future will hold. If this thing doesn't go there's a possibility I might get back into coaching.

Q-What are you going to miss the most?

A-Well, there's no question. The Friday nights...because that's what it's all about. If figured it up one time, and there have been nearly 150 Friday nights in my 13 years in coaching, and it's something you come to expect and try to gear yourself to. It's the competition on Friday nights or game nights that I'll miss....the competition against other schools.

A-I think athletics is on the upswing. There's a good freshman class coming, and the two classes that will be left after this year are good classes. They need some more numbers, but that's always been a problem here at Hereford. But, I think the freshman class coming in will give the numbers a boost. I kinda think we've been down at the lower end, and we're on the way up as far as numbers of people participating.

Q-What were your respon lities as athletic director. A lot of people didn't know just what your job entailed as both head football coach and athletic director.

A-The athletic director has the responsibility of seeing that all sports come off in a smooth manor so to speak. He has to make sure officials are at all games, and also has to make sure that soembody is on hand to keep the gate, run the clock, keep the scoreboard and so on. We have to have police at all high school events, and the AD has to make sure they are there each time. Other things like scheduling and budgeting are his responsibility. He has to do all the purchasing for the athletic department whether it's tennis balls or footballs. So, there's a lot that's connected with the AD job especially with the coming of girls' athletics. You first of all have to be pretty well organized, and then be sure that everything comes off as

Q-Speaking of girls' athle-tics. Has it been hard getting the girls program started here?

A-It hasn't been that difficult because we went to the school board and set out a two-year program working our way into it. The federal government said we had to be UIL sanctioned in girls athletics by 1978, so we set up a two-year plan by which we could do it and feel like we could compete with other schools. We and are playing other schools this season even though it's not UIL, and we will begin our UIL participation next year.

Q-ls there also a nun problem in girls' athletics here? A-No, I think we have a goodly number of girls participating. I don't know the exact number, but we've got 35-40 girls in basketball and 30 or so in both volleyball and track so we've got plenty. And, I think the girls' program is really going to be an asset. It'll take time, but I think it will help the

A-I don't know...you know Hereford has been really good to me. I've enjoyed living here and like the town. We've been here ten years, both of my little girls have been born and raised here, and the school system has been good to me. They've treated me really nice and there have never been any problems along that line. Dr. Holder has helped me with the athletic department, but never tried to come out and run the athletic department, so I wouldn't have anything to say but good things. I don't have any regrets and it was a hard decision to make, but I think we have a super school system, and I don't mind giving them a lot of the credit for the thing I and the people. pest, Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, Sunday in the HOUSTON (AP) - The Astrodome

The struggle to bring the water-bug jaunts of Johnson under control will be a sideshow of the National Football League game which kicks off at 1 p.m.

The limelight issue will be whether the Oilers, with a 5-5 record in the American Football Conference's bumps and bruises Central Division, can remain a contender against the likes of Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

The Chiefs could virtually eliminate the Oilers from play-off hopes with a victory and they'll still have a voice in the Central Division race next week when they host Cincinnati, currently tied with the Oilers with a 5-5 record.

Johnson was leading the league in both punt and kickoff returns until last week when a clipping penalty erased an 87-yard punt return for a touchdown. Johnson dropped back to second in both categories this week but the magic is definitely still there.

'I've been getting real good blocking and teams have been challenging our special teams," Johnson said. "If they keep doing that I think we'll continue to get good returns.

The blocking is always formed in front of me or meeting me at the cut off point.

Baylor Scores 49.0 Rout

WACO, Texas (AP) - Running back Gary Blair scored two touchdowns and a stingy Baylor defense capitalized on Texas Christian errors Saturday as the Bears routed the hapless Horned Frogs 48-9 in a Southwest Conference football

The game was the season finale for both teams and raised Baylor to a 5-6 overall record, including 3-5 in SWC play. TCU, under first year coach F.A. Dry ended 2-9 and 1-7.

The Bears rolled up a 17-3 halftime advantage with a bruising ground attack that covered 175 yards. Blair gained 114 of those before intermission on eight carries.

Blair scored Baylor's first touchdown on a one-yard run that was set up by his 66-yard burst down the middle.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Burly Earl Campbell stampeded for a career high 222 vards, tallied four times and became the country's top rusher and scorer as No. 1-ranked Texas trounced Texas A&M 57-28 Saturday and edged within one game of the national championship.

Campbell carried 27 times and scored on runs of four, six and 23 yards after grabbing a 66-yard bomb from Randy McEachern for the Longhorns' first touchdown.

McEachern, Texas' Cinderella quarterback, tied a school record by throwing four scoring passes, three of them coming as the high-powered Longhorns exploded for five touchdowns in a 14-minute stretch of the first half to take a 33-7 lead.

The convincing victory, which clinched the Southwest Conference title, completed an 11-0 regular season for the rags-toriches Longhorns, who were unranked at the start of the year, and sent them into the Cotton Bowl against fifth-ranked Notre Dame, as college football's only unbeaten team.

Campbell's outburst pushed his 11-game total to 1,744 yards, passing Oklahoma State's Terry Miller, who ended his season last week with 1,680. In addition, Louisiana State's Charles Alexander went into Saturday night's game against Wyoming with 1,455.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - A sports management group here has abandoned its bid for a North American Soccer League franchise and instead has applied for membership in the older but more obscure American Soccer League.

Phil Bryant, president of Sports Management Inc., said Friday he will explain the reasons for the shift when the group is ready to announce plans for the season. In the meantime, the group is awaiting approval from the ASL.

'There's been a lot of specualtion about soccer in Indianapolis and we want to wait until everything is firmed up," said Bryant, who hopes to have a team in operation by the spring of 1978.

The ASL was the nation's first professional soccer league and until recently operated mainly on the East Coast.

Members of the House/Senate Energy Conference Committee must think James M. Collins has a whale of an imagination.

Collins, U.S. representative from Dallas, writes: "As my colleagues in the House/Senate Energy Conference prepare to consider the controversial subject of natural gas deregulation, they would be well advised to put aside the mountains of conflicting studies both sides have done and pause for a moment to consider whale oil's future."

So, let us consider it. In the early part of the development of the American colonies, whaling was big business. At the time of the American Revolution, the American colonies had the biggest share of the industry in the world.

In years to come, the United States, as it was now called, broadened the industry into new areas including the Pacific, and in the 1880's, moved into the Arctic Ocean.

There was an energy crisis then, too. Populations in countries grew and the demand for energy increased. Whalers everywhere moved into other new areas.

Faced with a decreasing number of whales and higher costs for building ships and paying seamen's wages, the price of whale oil began to rise. At one point, consumers paid $2.55 a gallon. In terms of the standard measurement that we use today, whale oil was selling for $107 a barrel.

Kerosene began to compete with whale oil as an energy source. It sold for $1 a gallon.

in 1859, petroleum was discovered in Pennsylvania, and kerosene became an alternate - and quite competitive - energy source. It sold at $1 a gallon, which made it 100 percent cheaper than whale oil. By 1900, America was out of the whaling business and relying on petroleum for its

The conversion from whale oil to petroleum-based products happened smoothly as a result of natural economics.

Suppose now that the government decided that whale oil was rising too fast and it had to be controlled at an artifically low price. Sound familiar?

Despite a rapidly diminishing supply of whales, people would have continued to rely on whale oil. When the whales ran out, no alternative would have been ready to replace them as a source of lighting and industrial oil.

Today, unlike the time when whale oil was important, our main energy source is controlled at an artifically low price. Although we experience shortages of natural gas and home heating oil, 74 percent of all the energy we use still comes from petroleum-based products.

Only the high cost of imported crude oil (45 billion a year) has forced America to begin developing alternative fuels. Through price control, the federal government has succeeded in creating shortages while at the same time stifling natural conversion to other energy sources.

Collins said, and it would be good if others listen, to leave prices alone and let nature take its "History is a marvelous teacher....if you will just give it a chance," he writes.

Costly Congress

One billion minutes ago man had not set foot on the face of the earth. But, one billion dollars ago to our government — was less than a day ago.

The budget of the United States for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1978 calls for spending $463 billion. That's more than 1.25 billion dollars a day for 365 days.

As if that fantastic amount isn't enough to swallow, the budget provides that the federal government will collect only $401 billion from taxpayers - meaning our government will have to borrow almost $62 billion to cover its spending this fiscal year. That will bring the total federal debt to well over $750 billion.

The need for credit is one we all face, whether as individuals or business firms, but we borrow as a temporary means of financial support. The federal government seems to have a different philosophy. Congress seems to believe that the road to popularity and re-election is to say "yes" to every demand for every increase in existing programs and to agree to most demands for new projects with little or no concern for their cost...and, many times, their effectiveness.

Anyone who has tried to balance his own household budget knows that spending more money than you make can not be continued indefinitely. Decisions have to be made on what is really necessary and affordable.

For our sake and for the sake of our children and generations to come, we must insist that our elected representatives bring governmental spending in line with government income. These elected representatives determine our taxes and how our tax money is spent, and they work for us!

They are responsible to taxpayers and voters and they need to hear our views. Take a few minutes writing your representative and senator in the U.S. Congres. Tell them you're not going to vote for them again if they don't cut down governmental spending:

HH Bill a Real Turkey

WASHINGTON - One of the endlessly fascinating variations of the legislative game is to take a bill that is symbolically important, but bad, remove the stuffing, and pass the shell. Thus, the symbol is preserved, the harm that might be done is minimized, and those groups that supported the original bill can devote themselves to putting the stuffing back a piece at a time through future legislation.

The revived Humphrey-Hawkins bill is a perfect illustration of this process.

The original Humphrey-Hawkins bill would have frightened even GOSPLAN, the agency responsible for mismanaging the entire Russian economy. It contemplated central economic planning, wage-price controis, an impossible-to-meet level of 3 percent unemployment, and public service jobs for all who need one, at rates of pay above that available in private industry.

Those goals sound public-spirited enough. But no one knows how to attain them, and the price of trying would probably be the destruction of our economy. There are certain grim tradeoffs that we haven't learned how to avoid. Among them:

-Lowering unemployment below its "normal" level (now believed to be about 5.5 percent) tends to increase inflation, because wages are bid up by employers competing for scarce labor.

-Expensive new government programs, such as public service jobs, either increase inflation or raise taxes. And tax increases tend to cause unemployment, because less money is left in private hands to create new

-Attempts to fight inflation by wage-price controls tend to cause shortages. Eventually, shortages cause unemployment and blackmar-

All of this - and more - was the promise of the original Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

But now there is a new Humphrey-Hawkins bill. It is guaranteed to be milder than any other leading brand, get teeth whiter than white, leave no dulling soap film, and go 30 percent farther on a gallon of gas.

Its unemployment target is 4 percent rather than 3 percent. Its timetable for reaching that level is five years, rather than 18 months. It disavows economic planning and directs the President to draw up an economic plan; it orders him to increase employment and lower inflation simultaneously, but doesn't say how; it favors removing obstacles to capital formation, but does not remove any.

At best, it won't solve the unemployment problem. At worst, it might push inflation into the 10-20 percent range and require tax increases of at least $500 per family. The outcome would depend on two factors: (1) How seriously the President trys to achieve its goal of 4 percent unemployment, and by what means. (2) How successful its proponents are at putting the stuffing back in.

Our unemployment problem is aggravated by three factors. The first is the unprecedented surge of women into the workforce, the second is a very high rate of joblessness among black teenagers, and the third is a series of welfare programs that reduce incentives to be productively employed. Underlying these superficial factors is a bewildering array of government tax and regulatory policies that inhibit capital formation and investment, the ultimate source of all new jobs.

Given a little enlightened help - or even the absence of government interference - the private economy will generate jobs for all who are capable of filling them. Seven million new jobs have been created in the last two-and-a-half years alone.

For those who are not capable or not willing, the answer is job training and welfare reform. It would also help if we didn't increase the minimum wage to levels that price the unskilled out of the market.

As the Washington Post puts it, "The remedy for unemployment is the slow, tedious process of lifting the pace of economic growth. That's doing it the hard way, but there isn't any other way."

Paul Harvey:

Sam the Indian Giver

"Indian Giver!"

That's a name youngsters used to hang on anybody who gave something with one hand and took it away from you with the other.

Uncle Sam is an "Indian Giver." Last year the wages of the average American increased 6.9 percent but it was all gobbled up by the higher cost of living.

The average American is earning $15 a week more than one year ago but it won't buy any more.

What's worse - that increase has forced many Americans into a higher tax bracket and they end up with less spending money than a year ago.

Yet the Administration and Congress continue their "Indian Giving.'

There's been a big tug of war in the Senate over how much of the increased Social Security tax should be paid by employees and how much by employers.

Employers don't pay any taxes; never have, never will.

There is no corporation in existence or contemplated which pays taxes. Every corporation, every business, every employer - passes all taxes along to its customers in the form of higher prices.

Only people pay taxes. One way or the other.

Peop

Yet he is embarrassed by the grotesque abuses of public welfare.

Understand, this is a sometimes militant defender of welfare rights, yet he cannot justify the waste and the fraud and he proposes that welfare recipients might advantageously be employed to police the system.

It is his experience that the legitimate welfare mother most bitterly resents the cheaters.

Rep. Becker says he does not expect any realistic welfare reform because our government would not know what to do with all the unemployed social workers.

He says welfare is industry"...that "poverty is profitable"...not so much for the welfare recipients as for the immense army of bureaucrats thus employed.

He sees college campuses everywhere offering courses in "social welfare" for students who expect this to be a continuing high-pay profession.

So in lieu of any "real reform," Mr. Becker urges that welfare recipients themselves be used to replace social workers in researching case histories, in exposing the underserving.

President Carter made some bold pre-election promises to "put the unemployed to work."

This would be one way.

Bootleg Philosopher:

Just Bad Mathematics?

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm tries to take up for the CIA this week, perhaps.

Dear Editor:

A lot of people, especially farmers, are criticizing the CIA for again missing out on its estimate of the Russian grain crop. It's the second time it's happened. A few years ago, you remember.

Russia had a big drouth, was far short of grain, kept it quiet, and eased its buyers over here and bought up huge amounts of the stuff at low prices before anybody knew what was happening.

Well, this year the CIA looked through its spyglass and reported the Russian grain crop was above normal. As grain prices consequently began falling, the Russians eased in again and began buying American grain, on account of actually their crop was far below normal.

Farmers are saying, why can't the CIA get an accurate report on Russia's grain crop? Don't they know what kind of growing weather they're having over there?

They just don't understand, as pointed out once before, that the CIA has been so busy guessing how many tanks Russia has and opening people's mail and trying to overthrow this or that foreign government that it hasn't had time to train any of its agents in Russia to look out a window and see if it's raining.

Or take the Brazilian coffee crop. Last year it was reported that a killing frost had hit Brazil and ruined half its coffee trees. Consequently the price of coffee shot up out of sight. But when the supply of coffee continued ample on grocery shelves and you could buy all you wanted if you had the money, people began wondering just how bad and widespred that frost really was.

To the day, nobody has gotten an accurate answer, because, in this case, the CIA apparently hadn't trained any of its agents in Brazil to read a thermometer.

Stop jumping won. CIA. Thermometers cost money. Of course some people, even without a thermometer, can walk outside or, a brisk morning and tell whether or not there's been a frost, especially if the sun is glinting off that icy stuff covering everything in sight.

Yours faithfully,

'El Presidente' Runs Norwalk Liquor Store

NORWALK, Calif. (AP) - The mostly Mexican rons of Ski's Liquor Store, just off the Santa Ana Freeway, call the dapper mustachioed man behind the cash register "El Presidente."

Tourists from all over, some of them Vietnam veterans with their families, stop off on the way to Disneyland to shake his hand and coax him outside for a snapshot.

The postman calls twice a day with letters tmarked Ho Chi Minh City and affixed with what now passes for exotic Oriental stamps: happy workers in the communal rice paddy. happy housewives bicycling to market under happy solidarity slogans. Some come simply, starkly addressed: Premier Ky, U.S.A.

"The letters reach me somehow, often by secret ways," said Nguyen Cao Ky, settling back in the red leather upholstery of his late model Fleetwood Cadillac. "Things are bad in Vietnam. People are hungry. Chocolate is a dream. They ask me for help. I do what little I can. There are ways of getting money through to them."

We caught the former premier and air marshal of South Vietnam on his way to the bank from his combined liquor store and delicatessen in this heavily Mexican-American suburb of Los Angeles. He had turned the cash register over to an old Vietnamese air force buddy, a fellow Skyraider pilot from that doughty band that once staged a daring raid over North Vietnam but unfortunately bombed the wrong target.

The last thing I saw the premier he was standing by the cockpit of his new American jet fighter denouncing Henry Cabot Lodge and the U.S. command for giving in to a rabble of Buddhist rioters. He was 35 years old then, dashing and dapper in a black flight suit touched off by a lavender scarf and pearl handled.

Bobby the Shephard Valuable to Couple

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - David and Jerri Conarroe, a handicapped couple, aren't afraid of prowlers anymore. They have a friend in Bobby, their new 80-pound German shepherd.

The Conarroes had spent wo months living in fear of intruders. Their apartment was broken into three times and each had been attacked once. Although they've had him less than a week, Bobby already has sent an intruder crashing through the back door, leaving a tattered shirt

"Now we can sleep without worrying. We don't have to be scared," Conarroe said of their new protector.

Conarroe, 27, is crippled with a spinal disorder and his 25-year-old wife has a speech impediment.

"It's hell. It's so frightening to be defenseless because you're handicapped," Conarroe said. "It's hard to lie on the floor, unable to move because someone so much bigger throws you down and then grabs your wife."

Conarroe suffers from spina bifida, a deformity in which structures of the lower spine do not unite properly. Because of the disease, Conarroe says he is defenseless against an attacker.

"What this essentially means is if I had to defend me or my wife, someone would punch me in the ribs and I'd melt into a pile of oatmeal," he said.

"My wife has a speech impediment and when she gets nervous or scared, she can't hardly speak. When the guy came in our house the first time, she couldn't even scream.

Their worries eased this week, though, when Conarroe's father bought them Bobby - a usually friendly German shepherd who is short-tempered when it comes to intruders.

Monday night the couple went out for a walk with Bobby. When they returned home, they let the dog go into the apartment first.

"Just as I turned on the light I saw this guy standing by the table," Conarroe said. 'Then I saw Bobby lunge over the table after him. I heard this crash; I guess it was the guy falling through the back door.

"By the time I got out the back alley, Bobby had hold of the guy by the skin on his stomach. I gave Bobby the command to retreat and he came back with the guy's shirt."

Police say they have no clues to the break-ins - other than the shirt.

She Grew Tired Of Staying Home

GLENVIEW, III. (AP) - Peggy Hoskins parked her motor home long enough to spend Thanksgiving Day with a daughter, but the 61-year-old widow known to truckers as 'Gadabout Granny' is itching to hit the road again.

"I'll be heading direct to Houston to spend Christmas with my two daughters, she said. "And then, maybe, I'll shoot for my Phonix base camp. After a while I'll head out somewhere again. Haven't figured out where yet." Mrs. Hoskins said that three years ago she got tired of being a stay-at-home widow, sold her house near this Chicago suburb, and since then has been criss-crossing the continent alone in a motor home with bicycle on top and Volkswagen automobile hooked behind.

"I'm blowing all I got for the home on my travels," she said. "At first I didn't know what I wanted to do. Then I began having dreams of seeing all the places I'd never been. And I dreamed of turtles....I went to a pet store and looked at turtles, and a woman said to me: 'Turtles are interesting. Wouldn't you like to take you house with you wherever you

"I got the message. I bought my Winnie Winnebago motor home and started out," said Mrs. Hoskins, a trim, 135-pounder with six children and six grandchildren. "And I always travel with a green, wooden turtle two feet high anchored to the luggage rack on top of the VW.

Mrs. Hoskins has sewn 350 patches of places she has been onto one of her jumpsuits. She has a necklace of 450 silver miniatures of famous things she's seen-like Hoover Dam, a cable car. Pikes Peak, the Golden Gate Bridge. And she has two shoe boxes full of pictures.

The farthest north she's gone is Circle, Alaska. She says her favorite spot is Cuernavaca, Mexico. She's been in every state on the continent except "upper New England and Minnesota and the Dakotas.

'But I'll get to those before I call it quits," she said. "and that will be when I'm broke or bored.

Mrs. Hoskins, who uses the handle 'Gadabout Granny' on her citizens band radio, said she's never gotten a speeding ticket, had an accident, or been robbed.

King Phillip's Remains Found in Greece

SALONICA. Greece (AP) -The remains of King Philip II of Macedon, father of Alexander the Great, have been found in a solid gold chest in a tomb unearthed in northern Greece, an archeologist said last week.

Archeologist Manolis Andronikos of Salonica University said artifacts in the tomb and five carved ivory busts of King Philip, his wife Olympiada, his son Alexander and Philip's parents prove "without a doubt that this is King Philip's tomb."

Philip was assassinated in 336 B.C. while preparing for war in Persia, and was succeeded by Alexander, then 20.

Andronikos led the archeological team that discovered the marble door to the long sought mb earlier this month, buried deep beneath a narrow street in the village of Virginia, 71/2 miles from the town of Veroia. The tomb had remained sealed for 2,300 years. American, British and German archeologists were summoned to the site to assist their Greek colleagues in examining the treasures.

Andronikos, in a press conference at Salonica University Thursday, said the remains of the macedon king were found in an engraved gold chest resting in a marble sarcophagus. The sarcophagus was surrounded by sculptured silver vases and rested in the center of a 17-foot high room in the main chamber of the tomb.

He said other conclusive evidence that it was King Philip's tomb included the presence of the remnants of a royal panoply of blue cloth decorated with feathers, which stood over the marble sarcopha-

Other royal actifacts were also unearthed, including the King's gold trimmed body armor, a shield with the emblem of Macedon kings on it, and the remains of his royal spear.

Archeologists also discovered that all the artifacts found in the tomb dated between 350 and 320 B.C., further bolstering their conviction that they had found the tomb of the warrior-king.

Andronikos said it was the first Macedonian tomb found that had not been broken into and looted.

Among the most precious items discovered was an which was the Macedonian adjustable royal headband made capital. of gold and silver. Macedonian kings of that era, as statues of the time show, always wore this headband.

In the anteroom, Andronikos said, was another marble sarcophagus.

Within it was another gold box containing blue cloth embroidered with gold," he said, adding that the simply

County Residents Gain In Levels of Income

A survey of income levels and income distribution, covering all areas of the country, shows that in Deaf Smith County appreciable gains were made by most families in the past few years.

The progress is attributed, largely, to the fact that more married women are working, bringing home second paychecks. Part of the added cash, however, went to meet the steadily rising cost of living.

The grant includes $34.318 for a weatherization program. and $9,600 for Crisis Intervent tion Program. The grant is effective for a 12-month period which began Oct. 1, 1977, and is funded under Title II of the Head Start, Economic Opport tunity and Community Partners ship Act of 1974.

The weatherization funds are being used to make minor repairs and energy saying improvements on 275 homes of low-income and elderly homeowners.

The Crisis Intervention funds are being used to operate a program which includes grants. loans and fuel vouchers or payment guarantees for those low-income individuals being endangered by a utility shut-off or lack of fuel, and to maintain and provide fuel supplies, warm clothing and blankets in emergency cases during a fuel crisis.

Grant processing and program liaison are through the Economic Opportunity Division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

A D.C. Fairy Tale

WASHINGTON (AP) - This is a Washington fairy tale, but every word is the truth.

Once upon a time - last week, in fact - a nine-year-old girl from La Jolla, Calif., came to Washington to visit her physcian-father who is here doing whatever medical consultants do. She wanted to see the White House.

Her father has a neighbor, reporter Marlene Cimons of the Washington bureau of the Los Angeles Times. Ms. Cimons suggested she could arrange to take the girl to watch President Carter plant a Georgia-raised red maple on the front lawn of the White House. Press Secretary Jody Powell's staff said it would be okay.

That's how Caitlin West, a fifth grader at La Jolla Elementary School, got into the guarded precincts.

Once inside, the California youngster was introduced by the reporter to Rosalynn Carter, who participated in the planting ceremony. When Mrs. Carter heard her first name, she asked if it was the same name as the widow of poet Dylan Thomas, a presidential favorite.

"Yes, that's who I was named after," said Caitlan. Then after Mrs. Carter discovered the young visitor was about the same age as her own daughter Amy, she inquired: "How would you like to come to the White House and play with Amy? She doesn't have anyone to play with tonight. Do 10th anniversary of the American Film Institute."

"Oh, my God," exclaimed Caitlin, "I think I'm going to Properly outfitted, the youngster returned at 6 p.m. and was taken to an elevator that serves the Carters' private living "What floor, please?" asked the operator.

"I don't know," came the replay.

"You're Amy's guest, aren't you?" he suggested, and took her to the second floor, where she was directed to Amy's

In writing about her adventure later for the Times, Caitlin said she was nervous at first but Amy "was very relaxed about the whole thing and friendly, so pretty soon I felt at

After Amy donned her own long dress, the two girls descended to the reception where they chatted with such stars as Henry Fonda, Jane Fonda and Lee Majors.

Later in the evening, Amy and Caitlin went to the family dining room upstairs, where they joined the president and Mrs. Carter for a dinner of filet mignon, succotash, string beans and "some sort of ice_cream with pieces of peanut

Nader Group issues in many ports were delaying voting that would end Hopes To

Stop Plant

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Ralph Nader organization, citing newly obtained CIA documents on an alleged nuclear accident in the Soviet Union, says U.S. nuclear plant construction should be stopped until safety can be studied further.

The Critical Mass Energy Project has made public a series of documents dealing with the incident, which occurred in the southern Ural Mountains in

The group said the documents lend new credence to earlier unsubstantiated accounts of the incident, which reportedly killed scores of people and exposed thousands to radiation.

Robert Pollock, the project director, said the documents should "force this nation to pause and reflect on decisions being made today to accelerate the expansion of nuclear power in this country."

He said Congress should impose a moratorium on nuclear plant construction in the United States until study has determined that this country's nuclear power program is safe. A bill calling for such a moratorium is pending in Congress.

The CIA released the documents as a result of a suit the group brought under the Freedom of Information Act.

Pollock said it was "incredible that the U.S. government decided to suppress information about accidents that related to nuclear power systems in other countries for over 20 years".

Strike Nearing Finish

NEW YORK (AP) - Longshoremen and shippers in Philadelphia and Baltimore have reached tentative agreement on guaranteed income provisions for dock workers, thereby raising hopes that an end to the two-month strike of 39 ports from Maine to Texas is

At the same time, Thomas W. "Teddy" Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, directed locals to vote Tuesday on the new contracts.

Philadelphia ILA locals represent 5,000 dock workers and Baltimore locals have 4,000 longshormen.

The union had been pressing for guaranteed annual income plans to protect dock workers against job losses due to automation.

Tenative master contracts had already been reached but local

The 50,000 members of the ILA employed in the deep-sea ports along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts struck Oct. 1 after their contract expired. The walkout halted nearly all cargo that was being moved in the self-contained, van-size boxes that reduce the need for manual labor. Dock workers in most ports made exceptions for military supplies and perish-

The strike has cost tens of thousands of jobs in other industries and has added $1.3 billion to the nation's balance of payments deficit.

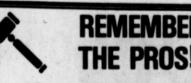

The general strike launched Wednesday in Baltimore with the blessing of Gleason, who hoped to end "employer dilly-dallying," idled 4,000 longshoremen and cost the Maryland economy some 15 million a day.

Even greater economic impact was felt here in the nation's biggest port where 70 percent of the general cargo now moves in containers that lay trapped aboard idle ships and deserted

Along the Gulf, Houston estimated its strike losses as

Besides job and guaranteed income assurances, the proposed three-year contracts provide for wage increased of 80 cents per hour annually, with the first raise dated back to last June 1. This, in effect provides a four-month bonus of more than $500 for each of the union

The prior base wage of $8 hourly would increase to $10.40 by Oct. 1, 1979. Employer contributions to pension and welfare benefits would increase by 91 cents to a new rate of $3.75 per man-hour of work.

Hours of preparation are required each year as the Medical and Dental Auxiliary launches Project Christmas Card. By donating the amount of money normally spent on sending Christmas carde, an individual supports beneficial additions to local

Project Christmas Card Launched for 21st Time

By KERRIE STEIERT Women's Editor

Wives of Hereford's physicians and dentists are again asking local citizens to endorse the consistent improvement of medical facilities here by contributing to Project Christmas

Begun in 1956 by the Medical and Dental Auxiliary, Project Christmas Card has collected more than $60,000 in those 21 years from Herefordites. Over the years, that sum has been spent in numerous improvements at Deaf Smith General Hospital, as well as the provision of scholarships for students entering health careers.

By donating the money normally spent on mailing local Christmas greetings to Project Christmas Card, local residents will aid the Auxiliary in purchasing a second anesthesia machine for the hospital's surgery wing. Contributors to Project Christmas Card will have their yuletide greetings expressed in a full-page spread to appear in The Brand's special Christmas edition

Cash gifts to Project Christmas Card must be made prior to the Dec. 15th deadline in order to appear in The Brand's Dec. 25th edition. Donations may be made at eleven city locations, including both banks, Safeway, Ideal, Thriftway, Furr's, Deaf Smith General Hospital, Park Avenue Florist, JJ's Hair Fashions, Harold Close Drug and Armour Foods.

When making a contribution to PCC, individuals specify how they wish their names to appear in The Brand's giant Christmas greeting. Last year, Hereford residents gave a generous $5,000 to Project Christmas Card, which in turn provided necessary funds for a complex life support system, now in operation at the local hospital.

Project Christmas Card has an impressive history here, being responsible for a lengthy list of improvements at the local hospital. Some of these additions include:

In 1956, the first year of the Project, furniture for the children's ward of the hospital was purchased with drapery for the obstetric floor being bought the following year. A sugery table for the operating room and an isolette were

More than $1,600 was used to renovate the hospital's kitchen in 1960 and the '61 campaign provided a delivery table and intensity light. The ensuing two years concentrated on the purchase of a cardiac monitor and defibrillator.

A portable respirator, dental equipment and a hospital intercom system were funded by Project Christmas Card from 1964-66. In 1967, Auxiliary members collected money to buy another cardiac monitor with defibrillator, plus an infant resuscitator

Further embellishments have included an anesthetic machine for obstetric patients, an emergency radio communication system, a portable transport crib and croup tent. Improvements in the hospital's recovery room were supported by Project Christmas Card, as was the purchase of delivery room incubators, a fetal monitoring system and a Project Christmas Card has not limited its benefits to the hospital. In 1959, PCC profits were expended on new furnishings at Hereford Community Center. Also, as mentioned. Project Christmas Card raises funds for scholarships, given to local high school seniors who plan to enter health-oriented fields.

An Auxiliary spokesman stated, "Project Christmas Card" was begun to demonstrate the Christmas spirit of sharing. You and your friends simply deposit the money usually spent on greeting cards and postage to send them locally and your names will be signed to a joint Christmas greeting in The

She continued, saying, "You need spend no more - just in a better way. Money will be appreciated by residents of the community who consistently receive benefits made possible: by Project Christmas Card."

Mrs. Gulley Appointed To Governor's Program

Jane Hampton Gulley, wife of District Judge David Wesley Gulley, has been appointed Volunteer Coordinator in Deaf Smith County for the First Lady's Volunteer Program, Office of the Governor, according to Mrs. Jack Hazelwood of Amarillo, Regional Coordinator of the Program.

In making the appointment, Mrs. Hazelwood said, "The spirit of volunteerism is growing in Texas as more and more people seek ways to improve our society and the quality of life. When people see a need, they organize to solve the problem."

"The First Lady's Volunteer Program is encouraging statewide participation in both government and private sector volunteer activities. As Deaf Smith County Coordinator, Mrs. Gulley will help stimulate new volunteer ideas and efforts in her community. She will also encourage the establishment of a local Volunteer Action Center to work with volunteer programs," Mrs. Hazelwood added.

"Governor and Mrs. Briscoe are deeply committed to this volunteer effort and see many benefits from such neighbor helping involvement. Mrs. Briscoe works directly with the volunteer program in her capacity as First Lady," Mrs. Hazelwood concluded.

In accepting the appointment, and chairman of the Board of

AN EARLY TUMBLE FOR TEDDY

NEW YORK (AP) - Losing an important election doesn't necessarily mean the end of a political career, many politicians have found. Teddy Roosevelt, for example, lost the turnultuous New York City mayoral election in 1886 to a Tammany Hall politician, yet later rose to more im-ctan, yet later rose to more impressive political heights.

An episode highlighting the 28-year-old Republican's unsuccessful bid for this city's top political job is a feature in "The Best of Families," an eight-week deep access for the state of the s eight-week drama series for the Public Broadcasting Service to, be shown this fall. Roosevelt was born here in 1858 at 28 East 20th St., making him the only president born in New York City.

Letter To The Editor

We wish to express our thanks to all who participated in the Pro-Family Rally in Houston this past week-end.

Not only the many who rose to the need of full participation, at great personal expense, leaving their children at home, but the many at home who supported us, physically-getting resolutions signed and talking to friends and neighbors, financially helping to pay for printing literature and bus fares for people otherwise unable to attend the Rally, and most of all to Mayor Dowell and the many church and civic leaders who designated Nov. 19th as Family Day holding prayer for us and our work on behalf of the family. We all know that God gave us strength for the trip and the beautiful victory for His people. We wanted all to know that there were several thousand people overflowing the Astro-Arena plus the 15,000 packing

'An estimated 300,000 resolutions were presented at the rally of which approximately 800 were from our community, with more coming in all the time.

These kinds of numbers are certainly not in the minority and I can assure you that even away.

though the speakers at the rally were great, the people there representing their communities and states were there because of their convictions on the issues. The proverbial "Sleeping Giant" has awakened with the eagerness of those 300,000 plus-working to educate others on the issues and helping to elect people to office that are in line with their stand on the issue. I would say that this battle has only begun.

As has been stated many times, this is not a battle of sexes, or the women against the women, but a battle of philosophies or ideoliogies.

And if God is with us who can stand against us? Our Thanks to all. Citizens Forum of the

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your reply to Jerry in Yonkers (who hated work) was interesting. A lot of people hate work and intelligence has nothing to do

I am 26, have a genius IQ. graduated college with honors and have a good bit of common sense. I still hate work and live for the day when I can find a way out of this grind. I am bored to death, even though I'm kept busy. I have many interests and talents which go ignored because I must work. By the time I get home I'm exhausted and have no energy for the things I really want to do.

I'll bet people like you who say they "love" their work have no outside interests or they use work as an escape from unpleasant home life. Personally, I think "work-lovers" have done a super job of brainwash-

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a senior in high school and am now corresponding with a fellow who went East to an Ivy League college in September. He writes twice a week and I have to go look up words in the dictionary. (He never talked this way when he was home.)

Lately he started to use phrases like a "a fait accompli," "joie de vivre" and "persona non grata."

Should I tell him to cool it, that I am not impressed with his foreign language? Or would it be better if I looked up some Latin phrases on my own and gave him back a little of what he is giving me? -- Simple Sally

WESTGATE NEWS By Bea Noland

As I write this article, today is Nov. 22, and it does not seem possible that Christmas is so near, but may we pause and give Thanksgiving a place in our thoughts and programs.

Our November birthday was a special day for the honorees-Gertrude Barlow, Irene Flynt, David Perrin, Beth Casad, Lillie Jackson, Maggie Cocanougher, Freida Coneway, Billie Brown, Fannie Watts and Ethel Curry.

The following ladies Donna Brockman, Emily Pavlicek. Bunnie Urbanczyk, Lorine Schwertner from St. Anthony's Woman's Organization served ice cream and cake. The hodorees had as their centerpiece a beautifully decorated birthday cake with the honorees' names on the cake. All of the honorees but two were able to be at the birthday table.

With the birthday party, was the special treat of a well-rendered program. The following young women: Judy Detten, Carmen Flood, Ann Meyer, Judy Cloud and Karen

Zinser gave a musical program singing special arrangements of "Whispering Hope," "Precious Memories," "He Touched Me," "Just a Closer Walk," "Angels Watching Over Me," "If That Isn't Love," and "They'll Know We Are Christians by Our Love." We

To save the rest for later, turkey can be frozen uncooked or cooked. Uncooked poultry maintains a desirable flavor and texture longer in freezer storage than cooked poultry, however.

If buying a frozen bird, thaw it in the refrigerator just enough to cut it up. Then package uncooked parts in meal-size packages and freeze immediatey for later use.

Or cook the whole bird, then cut up the meaty parts and use as sliced roast turkey. Then

Ideas for preparing uncooked turkey parts frozen for later include braising the legs and thighs in a little liquid for a 'different' main-dish item. Also, slice an uncooked turkey breast across toward the bone. flour the slices and fry them as a substitute for veal cutlets.

In addition, cover the bones and boney parts of cooked or uncooked turkey with water and boil. Use the broth for soup, gravy or in sauces to season casseroles. The meat that cooked off the bones is used in salads and casseroles.

Chicken and dumplings uses the whole bird and stretches the chicken flavor further.

-Buy parts of chicken instead of the whole chicken if the price per pound is low enough. Chicken breasts can cost up to 49 percent more per pound than broiler-fryers and still provide more meat for the money. Thighs and legs can cost up to one-third more per pound.

-In meat buying, think about 'cost per serving." Compare costs of meat, fish and poultry with that in mind. More expensive cuts - with less waste - are often better buys.

Boneless lean meat, fish and poultry give three or four servings per pound. Steaks, chops, fish steaks and cut-up chicken parts give only two to three servings. Whole fish, spare-ribs, chicken wings and other fatty or boney meats give only one to two servings per

-Remember to slice cheese and luncheon meat at home, since pre-sliced is more expensive than buying by the chunk.

"CLOCK" THE HOLIDAYS Win the race against the clock this holiday season. Plan ahead and use these few time management ideas to make your holiday relaxing and enjoyable.

Start a notebook or calendar with plenty of space to plan for each day in the holiday season. As soon as activities are priorities. Try to obligate no more than 40 percent of a day. Take into account if you are an early or a late starter.

Put harder tasks first. Offer yourself an incentive or special reward at the finish of hard tasks - something to look forward to, and encouragement to get through with work. Take advantage of odds, and ends of time to do small tasks, working from a list of short-time jobs.

Center holiday activities on the family. Involve family members in addressing cards, making and putting up decorations and shopping. Give family gifts rather than individual gifts and save shopping time and money.

Make gift-giving fun . Collect wrapping supplies and keep them in a set place that all family members can use. Keep boxes or containers if the gift my be returned. Shop by newspaper and telephone to locate items on your gift list. Set a limit for the amount to spend for each gift and stay within that

Arabs, Jews

NEW YORK (AP) - Legend says they're ancestral cousins, those two edgy rivals who had been breathing fur and distrust at each other until they sat down at a table together, the Arab and the Jews.

They're both Semitic peoples and according to Scriptural accounts accepted by both Moslems and Jews, they're blood counsins. It might seem odd that they've been such bitter foes.

"But families are always having arguments," says Biblical historian Shaye Cohen of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. "Family arguments always are the most ferocious."

There were hints of that sort of thing, both the entrenched antagonism and also the latent, somewhat surprised consanguinity, when Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and Israel's Prime Minister Menahem Begin met together.

'We liked each other," Begin put it, incredulous but pleased. 'May peace be with us all, God willing," said Sadat.

Both referred to their shared roots, Sadat to the Biblical patriarch Abraham, "Forefather of Arabs and Jews," and Begin to the "racial kinship and ancient bonds" between Arab and Jewish people.

Their family ties go back to the sons of Abraham: Ishmael, born of Hagar, Egyptian maid of Abraham's wife Sarah, who had urged the affair so her aging husband could get a son, and Isaac born later to the aging Sarah, amazed to laughter that she finally could bear a child herself.

Ishmael's offspirng are considered the Arabs, as affirmed by the founder of Islam, Mohammed. Isaac bore the Jewish line. The fathers of the two lines were half-brothers, the uncles and the descendant counsins. After Ishmael and Isaac became toddlers, Sarah on seeing them playing happily together, urged Abraham to throw out the servant woman and her son for he "shall not be heir with my son, Isaac."

This annoyed Abraham because Ishmael was a son, too; Abraham did as Sarah wished since Abraham's descendants would be named through Isaac, although Ishmael also would sire a nation.

A "great nation," says Genesis 21:18. The boy grew up in the wilderness, becoming an expert bowman. He took an Egyptian wife. His descendants would be so many "they cannot be numbered for multitude." was the Biblical promise of him in Genesis 16.

Isaac married Rebekah, the parents of the Jewish patriarch Jacob

President Sadat, citing the ancestral ties between Jews, quoted from the Koran: "We believe in God and what has been revealed to us and what was revealed to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob and the 13 Jewish tribes. And in the books given to Moses and Jesus and the prophets from their Lord, who made no distinction between them."

"So we agree," Sadat said. "Shalom aleikum - peace be upon you."

Retiring SS Commissioner Criticizes Retirement System

WASHINGTON (AP) - James B. Cardwell says something is out of whack with the federal retirement and Social Security

He is in a position to know. Cardwell, at age 55, is retireing as commis Social Security after a 35-year government career in which he rose through the ranks from a clerk earnings $1,440 a year to his current $50,000-a-year post.

When he leaves in mid-December, he will begin drawing a government pension of about $24,000 and - for the first time in his life - will begin paying taxes into the Social Security system.

Cardwell is taking a top financial job at the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, a private entity, that will pay $53,000 annually. He frankly admits that he wishes his new job was not covered by Social Security because he does not expect to work the 81/4 years he would need to qualify for Social Security benefits.

"If I could look at it very selfishly, I would like to err on the side of not participating in Social Security after having gone this long without participating," he explained in an interview. "But that would be very selfish and I'm willing to pay my share, even if it never Cardwell also wants to avoid becoming a member of a group he has criticized in the past: double-dippers who draw both a federal pension and Social Security benefits.

Although Civil Service pensions are designed to be self-sufficient, about 44 percent of all retired federal workers draw benefits from both systems. Some federal employees gain

Social Security coverage for work they did before or after their government service. Others moonlight, including a large number of the lower-paid clerical workers, Cardwell said. But the double-dipping controversy is not over civil servants who work for long periods in jobs covered by Social Security. Rather, it is over those who work for short periods and qualify for a minimum benefit. That Cardwell admits, can be a windfall.

Social Security pays a minimum monthly benefit of $114 to workers who retire at 65, regardless of how much they earned or contributed. This benefit is weighted to help a person who was presumed to be a lifetime low-wage earner.

Cardwell says the system was built around averages and lacks any method to weed out people who were simply under Social Security for a short time from those who were "truly low wage earners who deserve the

The bill to refinance the Social Security system that is now in a House-Senate conference committee would make changes to eliminate some of the windfalls. The Senate version would limit how much the federal pension could draw from Social Security as a dependent.

NEW YORK (AP) - Instead, currently has an output of 10 novels a year.

Mrs. Dailey says she dreamed of writing and traveling back in her early, Iowa elementary school days, but fate's fine thread didn't start spinning in that direction until 1969, when she began reading romances and "practically be-came an addict."

Two hundred romance tales later, she decided to write her own novel. In dribs and drabs, over a one-year period, she wrote — during lunch hours, coffee breaks and in spare minutes at home. She sent that first effort to Harlequin in 1973, and her "No Quarter Asked" was accepted for publication. Her husband, Bill, not only encouraged her writing, but that very year decided to sell their Des Moines construction firm and home so that he and his wife could take to the nation's highways in search of new settings for her books.

Mrs. Dailey's own story reads somewhat like a Harlequin romance, she admitted while she and her husband were passing through New York City in the 31-foot recreational vehicle they now call

Right after high school, she went to work for Bill Dailey's construction firm as a secretary and married the boss two-and-a-half years later.

Dailey, who does all of the location research for his wife's books, says "she worked for me for 13 years, now I work for her." At the rate of 30,000 miles a year, he scours each new locale for regional flavor and detail by taking notes, going on sightseeing tours and reading travel brochures on weather, food and foliage particular to

"If you took any of the heroes in my books," the author adds, "you'd find many of Bill's personality qualities dominant, adventurous, quicktempered, a great sense of humor, a bit of a romantic and sentimental. He's not just a husband."

Mrs. Dailey, who rises at 4 a.m. every day to write, says she employs no formula in her work - only that the books have a happy ending. The sole guideline from the publisher, she continues, is that sex should not precede marriage, nor should it be explicit.

When you allow the theater of the mind to take over, you find that you don't need all of that description.

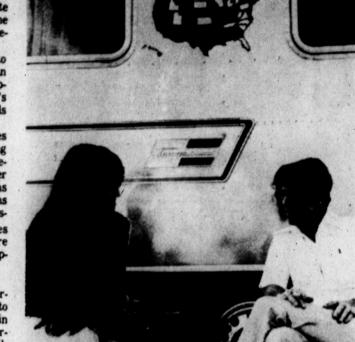

'Ten years ago, you could've described the heroine as virginal, young and helpless. Today, you'd have to leave out the helpless, 'she maintains. Women are more independent today, hence you can create more conflict between the dominant male and the independent woman.

When the Daileys pull into campsites across the country in their trailer-home, many campers recognize the author's name and word quickly spreads among her reading fans.

Although she has many titles to her credit, the latest being "Show Me," Mrs. Dailey remains a loyal admirer of other Harlequin writers. She beams when her husband mentions that her books have been translated into several languages and that three of her books are being considered for movie op-

While calling herself "a liberated woman" she goes on to say "my man is important in my life. When you're a liberated woman, you have the ability to choose - no matter how successful I am, without Bill, what is success?"

The White Shark has a unique distensible stomach which allows it to swallow anything from a license plate to a horse, as the stomach lining expands with the load.

TRAVEL TEAM-Author Janet Dailey and her husband, Bill, travel the nation's highways in their recreation vehicle to get the flavor of various states for the paperback romance novels she produces.

Senate May Modify Offices

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate is spending more than $750,000 in an effort to find out whether improving office design will increase the productivity of staff aides.

The experiment involves the office suits of five senators and two committees with a total of more than 200 employes. The project, with a budget of $785,000, will attempt to relieve overcrowding and improve working conditions such as lighting acoustics.

The Senate has hired an "environmental psychologist" to interview staff members to find out what they think works

The results of the project willbe used to help design prototype. office suites for the new $83 million Senate office building named for the late Philip Hart, D-Mich. The building is due to be completed in 1980.

Senate staff aides contend, meanwhile, that renovation of existing offices will be worth the

"It's not a lot of money when' you consider the number of people that are affected," said an aide with the Senate Rules Committed, the panel that authorized the project.

About 50 senators expressed an interest in having their offices chosen for the renovation. Selections were made on the basis of 50 criteria designed to produce a mixed sampling. The design contracting firm, Interspace of Philadelphia. recommended selection of offices of senators from both big and small states as well as nearby and distant states. Officials say relatively large numbers of constituents from states near Washington visit their senators on Capitol Hill and those lawmakers need more office space as a result.

The Rules Committee selected the offices of the committees on commerce and energy and natural resources as well as offices occupied by Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.: Ted Stevens, R-Alaska; Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa.; Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Wendell H. Ford, D-Ky.

The work involved is extensive. Ceilings are being lowered to save energy, reduce noise and improve lighting. Walls are being removed to make better use of space.

Modular funishings will be installed to accomplish what the management consultants call more efficient use of individual work stations.

The project was inspired in part by the renovation earlier of the office of Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., the ranking Republican on the Rules Committee.

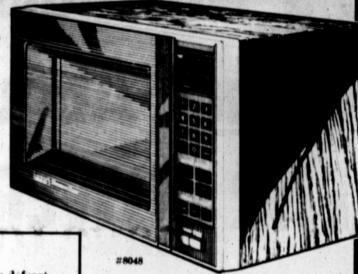

The senators and staff aides involved in the experiment are expected to move back into their offices by December or January and the first results of the effects on worker efficiency should be known by April.

President Lincoln delivered his address at the dedication of the military cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa., Nov.19, 1863. The battle had been fought July 1-3, 1863. The report that newspapers ignored Lincoln's speech is not accurate; its greatness was immediately recognized. Five copies of the Gettysburg address in Lincoln's hand are extant.

New Braunfels Judge Worth Weight in Fines

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) - Crime can shoplifting and minor thefts. And he has making it pay in New Braunfels and surrounding juvenile and probation matters. Comal County.

Buchanan, Comal County court-at-law judge, given a budget of $24,266.67.

By this week, Buchanan's little court on the building had collected just over $70,000 in fines since its first day of operation.

The court, in fact, had paid for itself six weeks after it came into existence.

Buchanan, a 56-year-old former trial lawyer, feels the system is working because "the offenders are paying for the judicial system and that's the way it ought to be."

doesn't know of one in a small town like New here.' Braunfels, population about 20,000, that has done nearly as well.

The court was established to handle Class A and B misdemeanor offenses that were dying on the vine in the crowded district court dockets, where more serious crimes get first attention.

Buchanan found cases in the clerk's office that were three years old "through nobody's fault." So far, the new court-at-law has had more than 400 cases.

Before the court was created, it was well known that a motorist ticketed for speeding had only to appeal his case to district court here to wriggle out of the charge. In district court, such cases just didn't get herd.

Buchanan said many of the cases he hears are driving while intoxicated DWI charges. It used to be "up to six months" for a DWI defendant would make his first court appearance, he said. Now, court appearances for DWI are scheduled at the time the arresting officer issues the ticket and most cases are tried within three weeks.

Buchanan's court also hears such cases as responsible for his own actions.'

The court's existence has put a halt to many "frivolous" appeals, he said in an interview, held his first docket call July 15. His office was because appelants know the case will be heard

"Of course, if it's a just complaint, I'll hear it third floor of the stone county courthouse and they just might prevail on me," he said, propping his cowboy boots on top of his desk during an afternoon lull.

Buchanan said the secret to his success in running the court is a simple one: long hours and hard work.

"The success of this court is due to the fact that we're open five days a week, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.," Buchanan said. "Anybody that wants to He says other courts make money, too, but he dispose of some matter can always find me

Jury trials seldom last more than a day, he explained, and Buchanan picks a whole week's juries on Monday. Then he's set to work.

Buchanan says the court has also improved morale on the local police force and at the Sheriff's Department because arresting officers know their cases will be processed.

But, the friendly judge says he has a soft spot, too-for young people.

"I hate to see these high school and college kids come in with a misdemeanor marijuana possession or something like that which can hurt them the rest of their lives. I try to make believers out of them and help them out a little."

Buchanan does that by often allowing the young people to plead guilty to a lesser charge and handing them a stiff fine. "I don't want to damage a college kid for the rest of his life because he made one mistake."

the judge says. "We've all made mistakes. But if the offender is a grown person, that's different, and I take the position that he's

National Gas Reserves Decline

HOUSTON (AP) - Natural gas reserves in the lower 48 states have declined more than 36 percent since 1967.

An American Gas Association AGA analysis, however, indicates the decrease has been almost entirely attributable to decreases in the interstate market.

The intrastate market meanwhile has remained relatively stable.

The analysis made use of lower 48 reserves and production data compiled by the AGA and interstate market reserves and production data from the Federal Power Commission.

Natural gas proved reserves in the lower 48 states peaked at 289.3 trillion cubic feet in 1967. with 198.1 trillion cubic feet committed to interstate markets and the remaining 91.2 trillion to intrastate.

By the end of 1976, however, proved reserves had dropped to 184.1 trillion cubic feet, with the interstate market claiming 98.3 trillion as opposed to 85.8 trillion for the intrastate market.

Such trends indicate lower 48 proved natural gas reserves have declined 105.2 trillion cubic feet since 1967, with 99.8 trillion cubic feet of the loss being from the interstate market and only 5.4 trillion from the interstate market.

The AGA said that since specific data for the intrastate market are not readily available that market was assumed to be the represented by the difference between lower 48 reserves and production as reported by the AGA and interstate reserves and production as reported by the FPC.

"While this assumption is only an approximation in view of was only one demonstration-by definitional differences between close to 100 Argentine women in AGA data and FPC data, support of his human rights particularly for reserves, it is efforts.

felt that the trends indicated by such an analysis are valid," the AGA report said.

The decrease in lower 48 reserves from 1967, the peak year, to the present is almost entirely attributable the decrease in the interstate market. Intrastate reserves have remained relatively stable."

The AGA said a similar pattern is observed for production, which peaked for both the lower 48 and the

The AGA said another interesting insight into the declining reserves and production picture can be made by comparing the reserves-production ratios for the two markets.

Carter Considers Minor Tax Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Maybe the income tax system isn't such a disgrace after all.

The crowds used to cheer when Jimmy Carter vowed a complete overhaul of the tax code. "It is a disgrace to the human race," he'd say, and they would cheer some more.

But attacking the tax laws and rewriting them are vastly different undertakings.

"All my life I have heard promises about tax reform, but it never quite happens," Carter said in accepting the Democratic presidential nomination. "With your help we are finally going to make it happen. And you can depend on it."

But not now and not soon. The prospect now is that Carter will recommend that Congress enact tax reductions in the $15 billion to $20 billion dollar range in 1978, but that he won't propose any major overhaul until later.

His package apparently will include some minor changes the administration can call a first installment on the promised reform effort.

When he was campaigning, Carter said it would take him at least a year in office to put together a detailed, comprehensive tax reform plan. He said he wasn't going to try to do it one piece at a time because that way, interest groups could concentrate their forces to block action on their favorite tax preferences.

Though most of the campaign season he avoided specifics. saying only that he wanted to overhaul, simplify and reform the whole 40,000-page tax code, and would do it in such a way as to decrease taxes on the average

Setting his administration's agenda, Carter had said that he would come up with tax

The draftsmen have been at work for months. Their proposals are expected to be ready for Carter sometime next week, and for Congress after it reconvenes in mid-January.

As the timetable slipped, the proposals have become less ambitious, and Secretary of the Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal now says the legislation sent to the election-year Congress will be relatively

Or the taxpayer can elect to pay a lower-than-ordinary rate on the full capital gain, an alternative which is to the advantage of some people in high tax brackets. 'I intend to take on myself, as a president's responsibility, at firm and specific on one feature one time, a complete and of his tax plan: he always said comprehensive tax reform he would seek to end the tax 'effort." Carter said in a campaign interview. "...I would move to treat all income the same and remove the sharp distinction now drawn depending on where the income is derived "

But Blumenthal, in a Wall Street speech on Monday, virtually ruled out a proposal to

Under present law, there's a break. "We fully understand the important role that preferential tax rates for capital gains have played in encouraging capital formation - especially for venture capital and new businesses," he said. "We will. of course, take this into account in designing reforms to reduce or eliminate unjustified tax

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agengy (EPA) is threatening to withhold $2 million in federal funds from the Texas Air Control Board unless the state agency complies with a tough new federal air pollution policy, it was learned last week.

EPA Threatens

To Withhold Funds

The federal policy establishes that before a plant can move into an area with an overly-high pollution level, some other plant or plants in the area must reduce emissions by an amount that more than offsets the pollution from the new plant.

A spokesman for the TACB said the agency had asked the EPA for a waiver from the policy and EPA is expected to decide on it by Dec. 10.

He added that if the state application is rejected, state anticipated fund cutoffs.

This summer EPA accused four Texas companies of violating the guidelines by beginning construction of new plants without making sure that the offsets would follow. The companies had construction permits from the TACB which does not require the offsets.

Public hearings have been scheduled for Dec. 19 to decide what to do if the EPA turns down the request for the waiver.

In its waiver request, the TACB argued that it can achieve the same pollution reductions its own way and the offset policy might backfire.

"The offset policy is a disincentive for industry to clean up," said Andy C. Wheatley, director of TACB's Control Strategy Division.

"It's an incentive to industry to hold on to dirty plants so that if they want to build something later they will have the offsets.

He added the offset policy would encourage buying and selling "pollution rights" and cited the case of a California company that bought another plant for about $90 million and closed it to achieve the required offsets.

E.R. Lozano, director of the Air and Hazardous Materials Division in EPA's regional headquarters in Dallas, countered that the policy does seem to be promoting pollution reduction. Some companies, he said, are designing their plants to limit emissions to less than 100 tons per year so that they will not require offsets.

A spolesman in EPA's Washington headquarters told the Dallas Times Herald that Texas is the only state so far to request a waiver of the offset policy.

American Ag Gets Support In California

"I definitely feel like our trip was worthwhile. There were a lot of folks who didn't know what was going on with our movement, and now they've pledged to support our efforts." Those were the comments of a local representative of the American Agriculture movement, who was joined by Oran Watson of Tulia in a trip to the West Coast during the past week to drum up support for the farm strike movement

McCathern and Watson traveled to Klamath Falls.

Sign-Ups Underway For Dec. 10 Rally

The Hereford American Agriculture office is still taking bus reservations for the Dec. 10 trip to Austin to "swarm" the state capital with farmers.

That date has been selected for railies at the capitals of some 40 states, and will set the stage for the farm strike, which has been scheduled for Dec. 14.

According to a spokesman for the Hreford office, one busload of local delegates totaling approximately 46 agriculturalists has already been signed up and local movement supporters are hoping to get another busload together.

Fee for the trip is $27 and reservations may be made by contacting the local office at 364-7820. Buses will depart Hereford at 8 a.m. Dec. 9 and delegates will spend the night in Austin.

Buses will return immediately following the Austin rally.

AMARILLO - An abundant byproduct of the brewing industry, brewers dried grains, can provide a valuable. one-package source of roughage, energy and protein for beef cattle feedlot rations, report scientists at the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

Not only are brewers dried grains attractive as a livestock feed, they are effective in reducing digestive disturbances and liver abscesses in cattle, Dr. G.B. Thompson, resident direcof research at the center. said.

In a paper presented last week at the national Brewers Feed Conference in St. Louis. Thompson reported on experiments involving 275 head of beef cattle to determine the value of the dried grains in cattle diets. Performance, carcass characteristics and qualitative energy determinations were made in the

Some of the results of those studies indicate that brewers dried grains have a potential in the center's research on special sick pen diets for feedlots, Thompson said. Research on these special diets is being led by Dr. David Hutcheson, animal nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Sta-

Particularly relevant to cattle producers and feedlot operators in the High Plains, Thompson said, are the findings that cattle fed high concentrate rations containing the brewers dried grains produced a low incidence of abscessed livers. The roughage component of the grains also was effective in reducing digestive distrubances in cattle, the tests revealed.

To help the center here pursue research on rations for stress cattle, the United States Brewers Association, Inc., approved at the St. Louis meeting a grant of $5,000 to the Texas A&M scientists.

At the conference, Thompson reported that if the proper minerals are fed in a ration containing from 10 to 45 percent brewers dried grains, the performance gains and rate of conversion are similar to that of a corn ration. This bears out

Other important factors, they said, were significant changes in cultural practices and the use of cotton strains which are more resistant to disease.

"From the time the farmers planted seed to the time of harvest, the weather was excellent." Minton said. "This reduced losses from weatherrelated diseases."

Even so, "the loss this year would have been high if High Plains cotton producers had been using the varieties they planted 15 years ago," Ray said. Research scientists are

Farmers Voice Serious Concern About Nation's Energy Supply

SPRINGLAKE, -- K.B. Parish, Springlake area National Director for the Agriculture Council of America (ACA) reported that farmers from all across the country voice serious concern about the nation's energy supply and have begun a concerted drive to conserve existing supplies while exploring new sources.

The ACA leader said 83 percent of the farmers responding to a nationwide "Farm Line" telephone poll November 16th, agreed the energy crisis was real. By comparison, recent polls indicate only about 50 percent of the general public believes there is a very serious energy shortage.

Some 35 energy experts. representing Congress, the Administration and industry. participated in the Farm Line program, sponsored jointly by ACA and the Alliance to Save Energy (ASE). Panelists include Senators Birch Bayh (D-Ind.). and John Heinz (R-Penn.) and Richard Lugar (R-Ind.), Representative George Brown (D-Calif.), and top-level spokesman for the new Department of Energy and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Interest in the Farm Line ran extremely high with over 350 calls completed from 25 states during the five hour program. And the telephone company reported a substantial backlog of calls on the 12 toll-free lines.

"The message which came through loud and clear is that farmers, more than any other group of Americans are more aware of our energy problem, and in fact, are doing something about it," said Burton Joseph,

ture Committee.

Each caller was asked respond to an energy questionnaire, specifically designed to collect information on the affects of the energy shortage on the general farm community. And with few exceptions. farmers placed costs at the top of the list of their energy

Ninety percent of those surveyed reported an increase in energy costs over 1976, while only 10 percent felt the cost would decrease or remain the same this year. Forty-two percent of the callers said energy expenditures would account for 20 to 40 percent of their 1977 total operating expenses, while 13 percent indicated energy costs would account for 40 percent or more of their total outlays. Thirty-four percent estimated annual energy costs at 20 percent or less, while 11 percent did not know what the cost would be.

"The results of the energy Farm Line really brake-up the findings of our recent phone-in on the condition of the farm economy," commented ACA Chairman Dale Hendricks, a dairyman from Bloomfield. lowa. "Farmers nationwide face serious economic problems and are eager to cut costs in any major expense area -- especially one like energy."

Most of the callers agreed there was a genuine opportunity to conserve energy in a number of farm areas. In fact, 59 percent of the farmers questioned, said they planned to change their tillage practices or fertilizer application process to minimize G. E. D. TESTS TESTS 1, 2 &3 November 21, 1977 TESTS 4 & 5 November 22, 1977 fields. Twenty-four percent indicated plans to shift land from tillage to forage while 69 percent had no such plans, and seven percent were undecided.

The farmers also expressed a keen interest in exploring and utilizing alternate sources of energy. Topping the list of the most promising alternatives was solar energy, which drew a favorable response from 96 percent of the callers. Eightynine percent agreed that wind or gasahol could be effectively developed sources of energy, while 79 percent expressed an interest in using crops and wastes in biomass conversion. This was followed by methane -77 percent, nuclear - 61 percent, steam - 49 percent and coal - 49

One caller from the midwest reported substantial savings from the use of a solar grain dryer which he installed at a cost of $700. The cost of grain drying, he said, is now only eight-tenths of one cent per bushel as compared to eight cents a bushel using conventional energy.

The panel of energy experts heard numerous suggestions on ways to conserve energy on the farm, such as using more acreage for cattle and less for tillage, using less fertilizer, planting crops that require less nitrogen and water and carpooling into town. On a percentage basis, 73 percent felt tillage offered the most promising opportunity to conserve energy, 56 percent listed farm equipment, and 51 percent said conservation could be effectively applied to crop drying techniques and fertili-

The callers also had a "Farm Line" message for the Federal government. Fifty one percent said the government should provide farmers with some sort of tax incentive to save energy, such as an exemption, investment credit, rebate, etc.; 34 percent disagreed, while 15 percent were undecided.

Safety Tip Offered Loader Operators

skid-steer loader with full bucket raised suddenly tops forward and the machine ends up resting on the extended boom and two front tires?

Keep your cool and stick with the machine is the recommendation of a farm equipment manufacturer with a full line of skid-steer loaders for farm and industry.

But to avoid ending up in this precarious situation, there are several safety rules to follow concerning loader operation:

-Select a loader with a long wheelbase which provides superior operational stability.

When handling a heavy load, keep the boom low whenever possible.

.. When it becomes necessary to operate a loader with a full bucket in the raised position, observe the Operating Load limits of the machine, avoid making turns and sudden moves, such as stopping and check for sloping terrain and obstacles in the loader's path.

A demonstration of the safest way to right a loader if the machine should ever tip forward was stated in a test. To deliberately tip the machine, the loader with packet bucket fully raised was driven forward and then suddenly reversed to start the machine tipping.

Remaining with the machine the operator should place the boom in the "lower" position and slowly drive the loader to the bucket. Thus, the loader rights itself.

This practice is safer than crawling out of the machine and then forcing someone else to re-enter and right it. Even if the machine stalls, the starting engine has enough torque to creep the machine forward.

The deliberate tipping demonstration also illustrates the importance of using safety equipment. The seat belt holds the operator in place and the hard hat provided additional protective cab and keeping a clear head can get a loader out of the precarious situation.

But it's still best to follow recommended operator precautions to avoid any tipping problems and always use safety equipment.

On The Turntow By Jim Steiert

Brand Farm Editor

A farmer's pickup is as much a part of the agricultural scene as his tractor.

These vehicles have the charming capability of serving as a rolling parts shop and work bench rolled up in one rugged package. I've always been amazed by the vast array and quantity of gear a farmer could stow in the bed of one of these workhorses. A lot of farmers have a way of following the "be prepared" line of thought with their pickups, and feel virtually naked when they are without them. There are the numerous tool boxes, containing every imaginable variety of wrench, hammer and screwdriver, in addition to the specialized tools for more difficult jobs.

And the really thrifty farmers manage to throw in several coffee cans and buckets filled with rusty bolts, nuts and washers, pieces of chain, cotter keys and even nails that are so necessary in those every day fix-it situations.

Of course, there's a sturdy chain and clevice for pulling the neighbor out of the barditch after a rain and an all-important bumper jack that shows the signs of frequent use for any number of jobs.

Most have a couple of good pry bars for getting a little extra leverage during a tough job.

There's usually a shovel. The older model pickups had dandy storage spaces for these. You stood them up by the handle in holes on the side of the box just behind the cab, and they were a virtual "battleflag" that marked you as an irrigation farmer.

And the GMC's from the 1950's that we used to drive had rounded edges on the box that provided an excellent place for storing long strands of baling wire, or "Texas lacing leather" as my Dad referred to it.

The lowered tailgate is a readily-available work table for anything from cleaning out planter boxes and fixing seed plates to serving as a makeshift. sawhorse.

of course, there's always the traditional roles of hauling hay, cattle and hog feed and any of a dozen other lugging jobs that can be accomplished simply by rearranging the aforementioned contents.

Then we move to the cab area.

Room here for that coat you had always better have along if you're going to make it in this country.

The dash is a good catch-all for tape measures, notebooks, a box of W.N. Tinsley if you so desire, gloves and anything else you feel you can't get along without.

If you're lucky enough to have storage space behind the seat, maybe you can slip in a few more necessities, and even bring a rifle or shotgun

Of course, you need a water jug, and a box of soda is nice to have on those days when dinner was a bit too stout, or the battery cables need cleaning.

The list goes on, the reason for feeling lost without it gets better all of the time, and darned if you can ever squeeze youself into the silly thing, maybe you'll take the old pickup to the field and plow a few rounds.

.But first you'd better throw a case of oil there in the back, cause you wouldn't want to find the rig a quart low and be caught without.

County Reports Show Crop Drought Damage in Millions

AUSTIN-Estimates made at the county level show that drought has caused $48,328,719 in damage to Texas crops and livestock, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V.

Thirty-eight counties in central, southwestern and western portion: of the state have been hardest hit by lack of adequate rain since early this summer, Brown said. Only a portion of the losses are eligible for loans to farmers and ranchers under various federal programs. Loan applications due to drought total $82,076,244 which will cover just over half of the losses reported. Other applications are still being processed by the Farmers Home Administration.

Major production losses

have been in crops such as peanuts, grain sorghum,

corn, wheat, and hay. Forage on pastures has also been lessened by lack of rainfall. A.O. THOMPSON ABSTRACT COMPANY A. J. SCHROETER - MARGARET SCHROETER

Wheat Crop Off To Good Start

1978 winter wheat crop, which was planted this fall for harvest next summer, is off to a good start in most of the major of production areas, according to the Agriculture Department.

Generally speaking, the department said in a weekly weather review, the winter wheat crop was "rated good" except in parts of the Texas High Plains and the Pacific Northwest where dry weather continued to be a problem.

. The report covered the week of Nov. 14-20. Nearly all the winter wheat had been planted 5 nationally, including virtually all of the crop in Kansas, the ! leading producer. "

Officials said that by Nov. 20 about 10 percent of the fall-planted wheat in Kansas was being used by stockmen to graze cattle and sheep, about equal to the average rate but double the acreage grazed a Farmers had harvested 87 percent of this fall's record corn crop by Nov. 20, trailing last year's 97 percent progress on the same date. However, officials said harvest was ahead of the normal 84 percent completion by now.

The soybean harvest, also forecast at a record this year, was 84 percent finished, compared with 92 percent by Nov. 20 of last year and the average of 88 percent. Wet weather had caused "some mold and sprouting" of beans, but a return to fair skies limited the damage, officials said.

Cotton picking in the 11 southern states was 82 percent finished by Nov. 20, well ahead of the rate a year ago of 55 percent and the average pace of 50 percent.

The report said that vegetable crops in Florida were in "good to excellent" shape and that the generally have rebuilt depleted fall harvest has advanced

Near-Record Grain Harvests Push Stocks Up, Prices Down

AUSTIN-The purpose Thanksgiving traditionally been to celebrate a bountiful harvest. But this year bulging grain bins have caused prices to hit rock bottom, giving Texas producers little to cheer about, says Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V.

Brown reports that near-record harvests have pushed stocks of feed grains to an estimated 63.6 million bushels, over twice the amount in storage at this time last year.

"Substantial immediate price gains seem unlikely due to the large supplies on hand," Brown stated. "But the new national loan rates for corn, sorghum and wheat, though not as high as

AUSTIN-The imported fire ant is well-known in many parts of the state, but out in West Texas it is a stranger. And the Texas Department of Agriculture wants it to stay that way.

In the next two years $600,000 will be spent on research by two universities. $400,000 by Texas A & M and $200,000 by Texas Tech, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reports. Funds are released through the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Sugar Beet Harvest Is Moving Toward Completion

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Harvest operations continue to make good progress across the state this week with most activity centering on getting in an excellent cotton crop, according to Dr. Daniel C. Pfannsteil, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

There also is some soybean and peanut harvesting along with small grain planting.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

SOUTH PLAINS: The cotton harvest continues active and is moving toward completion in the southern half of the area. This is one of the earliest harvests on record. A large amount of cotton is sored in modules. Sugarbeet harvesting is in the final stages. Irrigated wheat is providing grazing but that on dryland needs moisture.

ROLLING PLAINS: The major activity continues to be the cotton harvest, which is in the final stages in some southern counties. A record peanut crop has been harvested in Motley County, with yields of more than 5,000 pounds per acre. The pecan harvest is making good progress. Some farmers are continuing to sow wheat where soil moisture is available.

NORTH CENTRAL: Farmers are putting the final touches on the cotton and peanut harvests. Soybean harveting is at the halfway point while about 60 percent of the pecan crop is in. The pecan crop is generally poor. Some small grains are still being planted, with early fields making good growth.

NORTHEAST: Some peanuts are still being harvested, with average yields. Fall vegetable crops are below normal. A short pecan crop is also being harvested. Wheat and oats need moisture. Livestock are in fair to good shape.

FAR WEST: The cotton harvest continued active with ideal weather conditions. Wheat is making some growth in areas receiving recent moisture. Livestock are in fair shape, with feeding under way. marketing continues active.

WEST CENTRAL: Harvesting of cotton and sorghum is about complete, the cotton crop excellent in most counties. Peanut and peacan harvesting continues active, with fair to good yields. Supplemental feeding of livestock has started due to poor forage conditions. Hunting is active over the area. with good harvests of deer, turkey and quail.

CENTRAL: The peanut harvest is winding down; this was a poor crop year. Pecan harvesting is 30 to 40 percent complete. with yields varying. However, prices are good. A considerable amount o small grain has not yet been planted due to the lack of moisture. Livestock are getting supplemental feed due to poor pasture and range conditions. Stock water is short in many counties.

EAST: The peanut harvest is about complete, with generally good yields. Pecan harvesting continues, with fair to good yields. Fall vegetables are making good progress. Wheat and oats continue to need rain. Livestock feeding is active and marketing continues at a heavy a problem in some cattle.

SOUTHWEST: The soybean harvest is in full swing, with quality of the crop lower than expected. A few late peanuts are still being harvested, and the pecan harvest remains active. The pecan crop is generally of poor quality. Some cabbage, kale and spinach is being harvested but the market is off. Cattle feeding continues.

COASTAL BEND: The soybean harvst has been delayed by rains while the pecan harvest is about complete. Most wheat and oats have been planted and are making good progress. Fall gardens are producing squash and cucumbers. Grazing conditions have improved due to recent rains, but cattle marketing continues heavy.

SOUTH: Harvesting of vegetables, citrus and sugar cane continues active. Green peppers are in good supply while supplies of cucumbers, squash, tomatoes and cabbage are light. Livestock are in generally good condition, with average to below average grazing. Farmers are busy with land preparation, but there is much indecision on wheather to plant cotton or grain next year.

Electronic Scales Make Ration-Mixing Easier

Why should a farmer buy an pound of gain -- say a 3.5 or throw animals off feed and electronic scale on a grindermixer?

"Because it pays," says Tim Wadsworth, product manager for grinder-mixers at Sperry New Holland. "Farmers and ranchers using grinder-mixers with scales can take advantage of gain it takes to reach the 220 of lower-cost bulk delivered supplement and still be sure of a balanced ration.

Livestock specialists have long pointed out balanced rations get the job done with less feed than unbalanced rations. It's important for both beef and pork but the most critical for the hog producer as far as the farmer-feeder is concerned. The reason is because hay and silage help correct some nutritional mistakes. High-grain beef rations are another story.

Penn State's Extension Livestock Specialist, Lester Burdette, points out that ration balances for most efficient gains are different for different stages of growth. Protein quality is almost as important as the quantity for a young pig. But he's of the opinion it's probably fair to assume an unbalanced hog ration would mean consumption of an extra 3/10th manager points out that a of a pound of feed for each mistake in ration balancing can 3.7-to-1 ration instead of 3.2-to-1 feed/grain ration.

That's not counting the feed rooted out of the self feeder. This means a 40-pound pig would need an extra 54 pounds of feed to make the 180 pounds pound market weight if the ration isn't well balanced. Electronic scales to help make ration balancing easier can be factory-installed or field-installed on grinder-mixers.

A steer on a high grain ration will need about 8 pounds of feed for a pound of gain to get all the way from 500 to 1,100 pounds. A little less per pound in the early part of the feed but then a little more protein is needed. An unbalanced ration can mean an extra pound of feed per pound of gain or about 600 pounds more feed per animal.

Steel supplement is a little cheaper than hog supplement because protein quality is less critical for ruminants. You can use some urea. But, that extra 600 pounds per animal adds up to a substantial amount of money that can be saved through balanced rations.

The grinder-mixer product create health problems in addition to wasting feed and hurting conversion rates. "The farmer can mix rations properly with his grinder-mixer, but it is much easier to do a job of proper ration balancing when a grinder-mixer is equipped with an electronic scale. Bulk purchases and proper ration balancing make electronic scales on your grinder-mixer pay off both ways," Wadsworth

TDA Demands Bond Payment On Behalf of Grain Farmers

AUSTIN-A Galveston bonding company has been urged by the Texas Department of Agriculture to pay a disputed $225,000 bond on wheat found missing from Geronimo Elevator Co. of Wichita Falls, in connection with the Robert M. Johnson grain case.

American Indemnity Co. was recently put on official notice by Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown that the bond is due and payable to the receiver appointed by the Federal Bankruptcy Court. James W. Dugger of Wichita Falls is charged by the court to distribute applicable monies to claimants, Brown said.

The official notice is the latest effort by the Department to obtain reparations for over 200 farmers who deposited grain with the elevator company.

Department inspectors discovered over 400,000 bushels of wheat missing from the facilities operated by Robert Johnson after he disappeared from a boat in the Gulf of Mexico on Jan. 3 of this year. Sale of grain remaining in the facilities has allowed farmers to recover part of their losses. but payment of the bond which American Indemnity Co. held on the grain will further ease their financial

"The Department of Agriculture is not empowered to distribute any of these monies." Brown noted. "However, we are working with the receiver to help get these

The shock entering cold water can cause intense pain, induce uncontrolled rapid breathing. cause confusion, and dizziness. and may cause heart stoppage.

Wearing a personal flotation device (PFD) is the only known protection in this type of accident.

Each year, 600 Texans lose their lives in water-related accidents and many are listed as drownings but hypothermia may be the ultimate cause of death.

Hypothermia is not always easy to spot. Generally, one of the first symptoms is violent shivering which is an attempt by the human body to generate heat through exercise.

Mental confusion, inability to make decisions, and bad coordination increases as the body temperature lowers from

Soon, the legs and arms become numb and useless. The effects of the cold will eventually lead to loss of consciousness and finally death.

Hypothermia can be separated into two catagories ... chronic, or long onset, hypothermia is generally associated with being exposed to cold weather for a time ranging from a few hours to several days. It is generally caused by the sportsmen's misjudgement of withstand low temperatures. Many hunters have survived for days due to their ability to conserve body heat by finding shelter and wearing proper clothing during weather extremes such as blizzards, wind storms, and plane crashes.

Air temperature alone will effect the body in retaining heat but, add wind and the wind-chill factor become important.

Wind will applify the effect of low temperatures or damp conditions so the combined effect will be much lower than if there is no wind. A 20 MPH wind with an air temperature of 20 degrees F is equal to a temperature of 0 degrees F with no wind.

The best method to prevent hypothermia is to wear proper clothing and stay out of the water by obeying safe operating procedures.

A few honored "folk remedies" which may cause considerable harm and which should not be used: (1) do not give the victim an alcohoic beverage. Since alcohol is a relaxant, blood vessels will relax allowing cold blood to return to

In some cases, when the cold person's mind is still clear and he or she is only wet and shivering, it may be that all they will need is shelter, dry clothing and warmth.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reminds all outdoor participants that proper preparation and knowledge of weather is important to survive and even enjoy difficult cold conditions.

The wearing of protective equipment, particularly the life vest for boaters, is critical should an accident take place.

I have a great deal of respect for, and in fact, am a bit envious of those individuals who can pick up a duck or goose call and make real waterfowling music. Somewhere along the line I managed to come by enough skill with a goose call to get the attention of distant skeins.

Mostly with a lot of huff and puff. I became capable of blowing a few wheezing notes that said little more than "Hey you honkers, look over here!"

But I have hunted with men who blow magic from that wooden cylinder that dangles from their necks.

Their initial notes say not only 'Hey," but add, "there's a bunch of us Canadas over here in this corn field and the dinner fare couldn't be better."

And when that wary skein makes a turn with a bit of mistrust evident on their part, the guys who already possess the skill I only wish I had are right back on that call adding, 'Don't you honkers be shy now. The coast is clear, come on down here and give us the pleasure of your company."

Their every note on that call seems to draw the geese closer. These guys who have the gift of Canada gab can seemingly direct a whole skein of honkers to the spread on the invisible thread of sound linking those wild geese to a piece of wood.

It is incredible to see a man talk to those majestic creatures and have himself understood when he is using little more than that piece of wood and the air that both man and goose are breathing...

Duck callers are something else again.

Even I can blow one or two correct notes on a goose call when all of the conditions are right. But getting more than a few duck-flaring squawks out of one of those duck calls is a whole new undertaking.

Like many of my fellows, I went on the assumption for many years that if I ever found just the right call, I would then have to put in only a minimum of time learning how to blow it. Then I would have mallards and pins dropping into the spread so quickly I wouldn't have time to pick targets.

I went through three or four calls with a wide range of squeals and squawks and never obtained one satisfactory reproduction of the basic quack of a mallard hen.

A couple of weeks ago I finally found a call I thought I could live with. At least it sounded good to my uneducated ear.

Evenings at our house are now punctuated with the redundant childings of a narrator on a duck calling record who keeps exortinghis listener to "blow with the stomach muscles" to produce "the common quack of the mallard

And faithful to the commands of my 45 r.p.m. instructor, I keep doing my best to match the notes coming from the record. It is incredible to listen to the varied vocabulary of the ducks I seek to emulate. They have "highballs," grass feed calls, comebacks, greetings, and even chuckles for feeding time.

While the instructor slides through the entire repertoire. sounding incredibly like the wild creatures he's imitating, I do well to master my first quack.

But in that moment when I first come to understand the difference in pitch that gives the suttle intonation of a wildfowl voice and give two or three successful hen quacks in succession, I feel a new wonderment toward my sport.

Suddenly I realize that if I stay at it long enough, I too may be able to talk to the greenheads and long tail-sprigged pintails which have soared high above me on so many hunts.

If my wife can stand my practice sessions long enough, I may one day be inviting flocks of mallards down for a smorgasbord among my decoys with my own breath and my own magic wooden cylinder.

"A lot of so-called wildlife organizations take cheap shots at hunters and sport hunting and they raise a lot of money from people who think they are contributing toward conservation. But most of those funds go for salaries and lawyer fees, and very little of the money ever goes for wildlife. One thing about our organization, I'd say 80 cents out of every dollar we raise goes for securing and maintaining waterfowl habitat."

Those were the comments of Jim Stevens, a director for the South Praire Region of Ducks Unlimited, a widely-recognized organization of sportsmen who practice waterfowl conservation on an international level.

The DU organization uses a continental approach to waterfowl conservation which relies on cooperation between the United States, Canada and

Stevens, an Austin native and former fisheries biologist with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept., ranges over the entire state, helping to conduct DU functions and form new

He made a stopover in Hereford this week, hoping to arouse some interest in the organization on the local level en route to a DU dinner in "The story of DU is one of the most fantastic conservation sagas of our century. The efforts of dedicated sportsmen who contributed funds toward wetland acquisitions helped bring our waterfowl resources in this nation back from the brink of extinction," said Stevens.

According to Stevens. The DU organization was born in 1937. during the midst of the Great Depression and a devastating drought which saw duck numbers drawing closer to extinction each year.

"DU made plans to rescue America's neglected ducks and geese at a time when North America's natural resources were being abused by both man and nature," said Stevens.

An extensive waterfowl research project revealed that 70 percent of all waterfowl production on the North American continent originated in Canada.

'Realizing that suitable habitat held the key to the success or failure of the waterfowl resource, DU began to restore and rehabilitate wetlands in the vast prairie provinces of Canada," Stevens

With funds provided by American sportsmen and conservationists, DU was able to initiate construction of its habitat projects.

These include water control structures such as levees, dikes and sluice gates, which were implemented by DU in order to stabilize the habitat areas from the harmful effects of flooding and drought.

"To date, DU has completed over 1,300 wetland projects varying in size from small potholes to complexes of over 50,000 acres. These are located throughout the Canadian provinces. The total amount of wetland acreage reserved by DU now exceeds 2.5 million acres, which provide living space for some 300 species of wildlife,"

Stevens pointed out. He added that the projects also afford irrigation and flood control for farmers and ranchers.

"DU doesn't purchase the Canadian lands outright, but government and individual landowners to secure free. long-term land leases and easements," said Stevens. "Out of the $58 million DU has raised in its history. DU has made $46 million available to Canada for wetland development alone." he added.

Stevens pointed out that small chapters are the backbone of the DU fund-raising program, and that annual dinners conducted by the various chapters account for the greatest total of funds

Local DU Chapter Possible

Want to get involved with the Ducks Unlimited program on the local scale?

If you're interested in forming Ducks Unlimited chapter in the Magic Triangle Area of Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties, write to Jim Steiert. Outdoors Writer, The Hereford Brand, Box 673, Hereford, Texas, 79045, or call 364-2030.

Representatives of the DU organization are available to assist in getting such a program going here, if sufficient interest is shown.

"We have close to 60 DU chapters in Texas right now and there are some 13,000 DU members in Texas. I'd say we have a membership of a little over 200,000 nationally," he

According to the regional director, the DU organization assists local chapters with their projects from their beginning.

When we go into a community hoping to organize a DU chapter, we usually form a committee of eight to ten people, or up to 25 or 30 in larger cities. These men take care of the arrangements for putting the chapter together. DU provides a manual describing how activites should be conducted, particularly the annual dinner, and the actual work is done by the chapter members themselves," he

According to Stevens, at least 60 percent of the organization's annual revenue comes from DU banquets, although member-ship dues account for a portion of the revenue too.

"Each year DU provides each chapter with a commemorative shotgun and several pieces of art for the fund-raising dinners. I take care of securing these items for each chapter, and the rest of the time, I'm busy looking for cities to form new chapters in," Stevens replied with a grin.

Sportsmen can become Ducks Unlimited members by submitting a minimum membership donation of $10 to Ducks Unlimited Inc., P.O. Box 66300, Chicago, Ill. 60666.

"When you become a member, you receive the DU magazine, which is well worth the minimum membership donation for the art alone. Members also receive a news letter on DU activities known as "The Duck Call" and also receive a decal. First year members receive a duck identification book too," Stevens replied.

New members find out quickly that these DU functions are a lot of fun, and before long, people begin to look forward to them. Individual chapters do a lot of trading off for fund-raising projects, such as a Texas coast thing about DU is that the organization is composed almost entirely of volunteers who care lot of trading off for fund-raising chapter trading a deep sea fishing trip for a pheasant hunting excursion in this area,"

Stevens, a waterfowler himelf, admits that working on behalf of DU leaves him little time to hunt pintails along the

"Pins are great ducks, and there are plenty of them down there," he commented. Stevens added that the Hereford area is also an outstanding area for waterfowl hunting, and a 'natural' for a DU chapter.

"I guess the most satisfying about a valuable wildlife resource. They devote much care toward providing suitable habitat for North America's waterfowl, not only on the nesting areas of Canada, but in Mexico, where 10-40 million waterfowl winter annually. It's an international organization of caring sportsmen who are dedicated to preserving one of our greatest heritages, -- the heritage of our wildfowl. And these individuals aren't afraid to dip into their pocketbooks to support something they care so much about," he concluded.

Reservoirs Can Support More Fish, Waterfowl

By Robert L. Haney TAES Science Writer

More than 1,700 Texas lakes built for flood prevention stand to benefit from an extensive two-year study aimed at boosting fish production and usage by migratory waterfowl

Scientists in Texas A&M University's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries are determining what kind of fish are best suited for the lakes and what lake conditions are best for game fish. They're also seeking ways to encourage migratory waterfowl to use the lakes.

During the summer of 1976, fish surveys were made of 62 lakes in the Corsicana area. From August 1976 through March 1977. 55 of these same lakes were monitored for use by migratory waterfowl.

Data on fish populations and waterfowl usage will be compared with such physical characteristics of the lakes as size, depth, age, and shape, with the characteristics of water, and with amounts and kinds of aquatic vegetation found in the lakes.

The lakes usually range in size from 10 to 50 succe acres. Such lakes have been built by the Soil Conservation Service to prevent floods on numerous water-

Although wide fluctuations in water levels occur in the lakes, the study shows them to be more valuable than expected for fish and waterfowl.

Of the 62 lakes studied, 61 were used for fishing and over half for waterfowl hunting. Very few have had any management to enhance fish and wildlife

Fisheries investigations show that the lakes are quite productive and are dominated by popular sport fish such as largemouth bass. channel cat, and white crappie (white perch).

Although many lakes were overpopulated with crappies and black bullheads (mudcat), few were contaminated with typical reservoir rough fish such as carp, suckers. and gizzard shad

Aerial surveys of waterfowl, on a semi-monthly basis, indicated that wide variations occurred in waterfowl usage of the lakes. In 15 flights from September through April. over 36,000 water fowl were observed with counts twice exceeding 4,200 ducks.

Main users of the lake were blue-winged teal early in the season, followed later by widgeon, gadwall, greenwing teal, ring-necked ducks and canvasback. Ducks were consistently observed on larger lakes with large amounts of shallow water and abundant aquatic vegeta-

This information will help scientists to determine design features that favor fish and waterfowl, as well as make recommendations for fish species and vegetation best adapted to conditions in flood prevention lakes.

Current studies will concentrate on the use of water level drawdown combined with plantings of mile and millet.

While vegetation will attract waterfowl by providing food, the organic matter is expected to cause the water to clear as suspended silt settles out due to a chemical process associated with decay of the vegetation following reflooding.

Clearer water boosts fish production by increasing light penetration. fish food production, and ability of fish to feed by sight.

At the same time, the clearer water will increase growth of aquatic plants which serve as food for water fowl.

The study resulted from a cooperative program of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

The research project is under the direction of Experiment Station Scientists Dr. Richard L. Noble, researcher in fisheries ecology, and Dr. James G. Teer. head of A&M's Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences Department; and Don W. Steinbach, fisheries specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, who coordinates the demonstration

Frank Sprague of Temple and Jerry Turrentine of Bryan, Soil Conservation Service biologists, are assisting in the study. Local program coordination for the study is under the direction of J. C. Brown, Area Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, at Corsicana. Lake owners are cooperating with the project through local SCS field offices.

According to Noble, few lakes are presently even close to their capacity to produce fish and sustain waterfowl. With improved management techniques being developed through the study, most could be brought near their full potential and consequently provide quality hunting and fishing.

Registration Of Boats

Sets Record

AUSTIN - A record-setting number of boat registrations is nothing new in Texas.

This year the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will register the usual approximate 10 percent increase in boats, with 515,841 on the books as of Sept. 30, 1977.

John Ebell, in charge of boat registration statistics, said the state's vast waterways, good weather and general economic health keep the state either number two or three in the nation for registrations, usually trailing only California and Wis-

UCLA researchers wondered why woodpeckers don't get headaches from bashing their beaks into trees all day and why the countryside "isn't littered with dazed and dying woodpeckers." The birds skulls, they discovered, are of dense, spongy bone sur-rounded by shock-absorbing muscles. They said that football helmets might be made similarly and be safer

Readying For Pheasant Hunter's Breakfast

Members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary compose posters advertising their annual pheasant hunter's breakfast which will be held from 5:30-7:30 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 10 at the Hereford High School cafeteria. The breakfast has become popular with local pheasant hunters in recent years as the proper way to start out opening day. This year's breakfast will feature scrambled eggs, ham, biscuits and gravy and coffee or milk. The auxiliary will also be filling thermos bottles with fresh hot coffee at a charge of $1 per bottle. Charge for the breakfast will be $2.50 per plate, and all proceeds will go for the purchase of equipment for the Hereford VFD. [Brand photo by Jim Steiert]

Big Game Hunters To Be Honored

AMARILLO-The Amarillo Chamber of Commerce is again recognizing outstanding trophy deer, souded and antelope bagged in the Panhandle regulatory district during the 1977 Texas hunting season.

An Uncle Henry Pro-Hunter knife will be awarded to the individual bagging the largest antlered or horned game animal listed above. Second and third place winners will receive a coin set for each game animal category.

Dean Kelley, chairman of the sports committee has announced that Wayne Arnold, Bridgeport, Texas, has placed first in the antelope contest with his animal having horns of 161/4

nches from base to tip The deadline for antelope closed on Oct. 14 but the aoudad deadline is Nov. 28 and the deer deadline is Dec. 14, 1977. No entries have been received for aoudad even though the season closed Nov. 18.

All state game wardens in the Panhandle will have the necessary entry forms and will measure and record all game animal entries for the contest.

More information is available by contacting your nearest game warden or Leroy Tillery, Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, Amarillo Bldg., Amarillo, TX. 79101.

Neglected Gamebirds: What Future?

Birds are the favorite target of hunters in Texas who annually harvest about million mourning doves. 1.5 million ducks, and 150 thousand geese. Bird hunters are usually conservation minded and aware that game laws are designed to protect an adequate breeding population so hunting remains good.

Effective laws, though, must be based on sound population estimates and up-to-date information on any breeding, disease, diet, or other problems that affect numbers. Such research tends to concern itself with the most popular game because it draws the financial backing.

A consequence is that Texas has some great game birds that are little known by hunters and there is very little research being done on their numbers and prob-

Although most of these neglected species are concentrated in the coastal prairies and adjacent ricelands, two species are widespread within Texas. The common snipe, a shorebird, will occur anywhere in the state if sufficient water provides the necessary shallow wetlands for probing.

A seven-year study by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station showed that this species reacts quickly to changing water levels. Dr. Keith Arnold, who made the study, is a professor of ornithology and ecology at Texas A&M University.

Snipe will abandon an area overnight if water levels rise rapidly. Conversely, Arnold says snipe will move into an area within a few days after inundation when moist grounds provide adequate feeding areas. Common snipe wintering in east-central Texas tend to return year after year to the same local area.

The strong, erratic flight of this species makes it a challenge to the shooting ability of any hunter.

"The American woodcock, also a shorebird, is generally restricted to the eastern third of the State. depending upon the amount of moisture in a given winter," according to Arnold.

"This bird, a resident of moist thickets, has a loyal following of hunters who believe any other bird hunting is mundane. The woodcock stays close to the ground and flushes only when the hunter is almost on it; it is a startling experience to have a woodcock explode into the air from a short distance away."

The other neglected gamebirds include two large rails. the clapper and the king, and two gallinules, the purple and the common.

All are relatives of the American coot or mudhen, and all inhabit thickly vegetated marshes where they prefer to disappear into the sedges and grasses when disturbed. Only when hard pushed will they take flight.

The king rail inhabits the freshwater marshes and ricelands, while the look-alike clapper rail is restricted to saltwater areas. The gallinules generally prefer fresh-

Arnold, who is an authority on these birds, says hunting them would be a challenge to any hunter, and probably a bit uncomfortable. These birds must be hunted by much walking, often through thick vegetation and water. At best the hunter may have but a glimpse of the bird before it rockets into the air.

Comprehensive population counts, habitat studies and other research is needed, according to Arnold. If such research were done and then combined with hunter harvest studies, we'd be in a position to update game laws and capitalize on a great hunting resource.

In addition, we could be sure that these great game birds wouldn't die out. Arnold cites the case of the Attwater's prairie chicken which is still on the endangered species list but is beginning to make a comeback thanks to the efforts of Experiment Station researcher, Dr. Nova Silvy and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Silvy, through research, discovered that this prairie chicken was dying out because of a lack of suitable nesting area and food supply. Correction of these problems is helping this gamebird to begin a come-back that may one day get it off the endangered species list and permit limited

Fishing Licenses Prove A Bargain

AUSTIN - Fishermen who fish in Texas pay less for the privilege than in most states. This includes the cost of both resident and nonresident fishing licenses, according to figures compiled by the Fisheries Division of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department,

A resident fishing license costs $4.50 in Texas; the average for other states is $5.24. A Texas nonresident license sells for $10.50; the average for the other 49 states is $13.81.

Six states charge more than $25.00 for nonresident fishing licenses; Nebraska and Tennessee have the most expensive at $30.00 each.

Seven states charge less than $4.00 for resident licenses, the two lowest being Illinois, $2.25 and Louisiana, $2.00.

Most states including Texas sell short-term licenses. Texas issues a five-day nonresident license for $4.50 or a three-day saltwater license, good for both residents and nonresidents, for $1.25. California issues a 10-day ocean license for $5.00.

Many states' licenses require extra stamps for fishermen who fish for salmon or trout.

AUSTIN - An illustrated instruction sheet on how to field-dress deer is available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The publication explains how to efficiently clean and skin the deer carcass and assume full utilization of the meat.

The leaflet may be obtained by writing the Literature Distribution Dept., Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas

Old quarries which were active up until 1813 lie beneath the streets of Paris. It is estimated that six million people have been buried there.

Joint Effort Works as Kids Pitch in To Help Run Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleanor Berman admits that if it hadn't been a matter of absolute neessity, she'd still be doing the cooking and housekeeping and her children "wouldn't have been asked to do a thing."

But after her divorce she had to get a better-paying job than the part-time work she had been doing. That meant commuting to New York City from her Stamford, Conn., home. And commuting meant she'd get home late, as well as tired.

"The kids (daughter, then 10, sons 13 and 15) said they didn't work a 'hely sitter' and offered.

want a 'baby sitter' and offered to take care of things and do the cooking," their mother re-lated in an interview. "So we decided to give it a try.' That was four years ago, and the experiment worked out so well that Ms. Berman has written a book about it, "The Cooperating Family.

"It had never occurred to me that anybody could manage without me," she said ruefully. But I discovered I had some very competent children. The boys really got into it; they looked through cookbooks and their menus were more interesting than mine, since I had gotten into a routine." The whole family sat down after Saturday breakfast and lanned the week's menus. At first Ms. Berman did the shopping but the kids, finding they didn't have the ingredients to make their sometimes exotic dishes, soon took that task

It was the older son, Tom. who cooked the first meal she emembers: veal par-

'The kitchen looked like a disaster area. Pots I hadn't seen for six months were delighted. His brother, Eric, who had to do the dishes that ight, was not so delighted." Eventually it worked out that Eric was turning into a good cook and enjoyed it. Tom, who didn't like it, volunteered to do the dishes and let his brother do his share of the cooking.

"One reason it worked is be-cause the kids had a say in the planning," says Ms. Berman, who thinks her setup can work in any family, whether it has a single or working mother or single father. She interviewed a number of people who were fol-lowing similar plans with var-

"Some single fathers had in-volved their kids without thinking," she said. "Their typical comment was 'We all eat, don't we?' But many women found it hard to give up their burden. I think we are all programmed to believe that whether we're working or not, it's a mother who takes care of everything in the house: cooking, cleaning, laundry. Very few families ask the children to do anything."

Many women, she added said it was too much trouble to get the youngsters to do the job right, or said that they felt guilty about asking them to help.

"You have to be a little more relaxed about what you want the house to look like," Ms. Berman advises. "Praise is the whole key. Kids basically want to please and if you let them know what they do matters, selves." When setting up a program

she cautions, be specific and have a written routine, at least until it's established, to avoid fights over whose turn it is to do what. Rotate the bad jobs so nobody gets stuck all the time with something he hates.

If she were going to start over in raising a family, she'd do it differently, says Ms. Berman, who believes mothers who hope to have both family and career should train their children early to help.
"As soon as they're old

ugh to manage something, don't dust as efficiently as you. Gradually as they get older let them take over more responsibility," she urges. "We under-estimate our kids."

Her son Tom, now 19, is in college, and Eric, 17, and Terry, 14, are sharing the work, but all three have learned from the experience, says their mother, a publicist and free-lance writer who is working on a book on changing family life in America.

"They feel good about them-selves participating almost on an adult level. They're so much more independent. Their portion in the home has change My treatment of them has changed. Instead of being someone to take care of and do for, they're more like my part-says her toy collie. Vicki, will pace the floor all night until her cat, MIDNIGHT, comes home. Then she cries with glee when MIDNIGHT comes in !

MARMADUKE

I WAS JUST READING ABOUT WHY CANADA GEESE FLY IN V-FORMATION . CALL WILLIAM WILLIAM

THERE IS A DEFINITE REASON FOR IT. THE LEAD BIRD IS THE STRONGEST MEMBER OF THE FLOCK.

WHEN THE LEAD BIRD (WHICH CAN BE MALE . OR FEMALE) TIRES, ANOTHER STRONG BIRD, WHICH CAN BE MALE OR FEMALE, TAKES OVER.

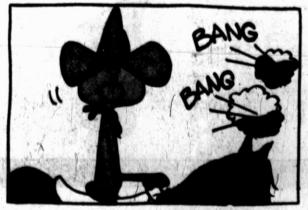

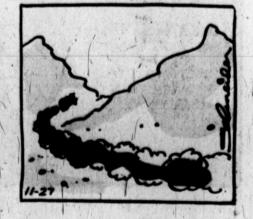

drink in a soda pop can is not used I put on a plastic lid from a potato chip can. It's a close enough fit to retain the carbonation in the drink.---MRS.F.M.L.

DEAR POLLY -- When caring for an elderly person or semi-invalid, attach a little jingle bell to the side edge of the top sheet so as to alert the one in attendance (who may be doing something else) that the patient is stirring. When the bell jingles, the patient needs some attention. -- BESSIE.

DEAR POLLY --- I fold my lawn chaise lounge on the floor, lay chaise lounge on the floor, lay bath towels over it and have a great place to spread out sweaters after I have washed them. Another small trick is to turn the ironing board upside down on the bed or against a chair and insert petrollum jetly into the working parts with a cotton-tipped atick. This eliminates a lot of stick. This eliminates a lot of squeaking. --- MRS. J.P.

DEAR POLLY --- An old toothbrush is good for removing egg and such from between the tines of forks and for many more useful small jobs. --- MRS. A.S.

DEAR POLLY---I bought an extra toilet brush to keep just for scouring the bathtub. This is most efficient for cleaning the tub without that backache that comes from so much reaching. I keep this brush stored in an empty coffee can I have decorated .--- MURIEL.

DEAR POLLY--- am a new mom who loves the convenience of paper diapers but hate it when the tape falls to stick (one usually has to throw away a brand-new diaper). I have now learned to keep a dispenser of clear adhesive-backed plastic tape by baby's changing table. When the tape tabs fail I have this right at hand to use as a replacement .---

DEAR POLLY -- When one gets a dog it must have a collar, so when we got our dog we fitted an old belt around his neck, cut it to fit and used that for a collar. It looked good as new and cost nothing. -- BILLIE JO.

DEAR POLLY -- Road film on a car's windshield often stubbornly resists soap and water, elbow grease and most detergents but cleans off quickly if a dash of cream of tartar is sprinkled on the wet glass and then wiped off with a paper towel. -- MYRTLE.
