Tapes Suggest Pilots Aware of Icy Wings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tape recordings from the Air Florida jet that crashed into the Potomac River last month support theories that ice or snow on the wings made it stall — and strongly suggest the pilots knew of the problem before taking off, according to a report in today's Washington Post.

The cockpit voice tape suggests the pilot and copilot had seen a buildup of ice or snow on the Boeing 737's wings but went ahead with the ill-fated flight anyway, an unidentified source close to the National Transportation Safety Board investigation told the newspaper.

NTSB spokesman Ira Furman and Francis McAdams, head of the NTSB investigation, could not be reached for comment on the report Wednesday night.

According to a preliminary transcript of the tape, pilot Larry Wheaton and copilot Alan Petit spoke to each other repeatedly about the heavy snow falling on Jan. 13 as they prepared to take off, the Post said.

One source told the newspaper that their words suggest they at one point looked out their windows specifically to check for snow or ice on the wings, noted there was some, but took off anyway.

About 30 seconds later, Petit's final words to Wheaton reportedly were, "We're going down, Larry," and Wheaton responded, "I know it."

Seventy-four of the 79 people on the jetliner, including Wheaton and Petit, were killed when the plane hit a busy commuter bridge and smashed into the icy Potomac. Four people on the bridge also were killed.

FAA regulations state that "no pilot may take off an airplane that has frost, snow or ice adhering to" engines, windshields, wings, control surfaces or, with piston-engine aircraft, the propeller.

Ice or snow can reduce the lifting power of wings. Investigators have said that about 43 minutes elapsed between Flight 90's last de-icing and the takeoff.

As the plane sped down the runway at National Airport, the pilots' words indicate they were worried they were not accelerating fast enough, according to the Post.

One source was quoted as saying that preliminary electronic analysis of the jet noise recorded on the tape indicates the engines were producing only about 80 percent of normal power.

The flight data recorder recovered from the Potomac showed it took the plane 47 seconds to accelerate to takeoff speed, rather than the normal 30 or so seconds.

Sources told the Post that the 737's "stick shaker" — a device that rattles to warn of an impending stall — can be heard on the cockpit tape.

The rattle began as the plane reached 166 mph — some 24 mph faster than the craft's normal stall speed — supporting theories that ice or snow had reduced lift and made the plane stall at a higher speed than usual, the newspaper said.

Border Agents Clamp Down On Illegal Aliens

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — On a couple of occasions this month, illegal aliens crossing into El Paso from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, have found the banks of the Rio Grande crawling with Border Patrol agents.

"We set it up in a grid pattern," said acting chief agent Jack Richardson. "We may let that alien get away from the man on the river, then he's pursued by a second one and then the third one catches him. That boy's got his tongue hanging out from running. By that time, he wants to get in the car and go back to Mexico."

Richardson is the architect of the three-layer crackdown plan, which he compares to the alignment of a defensive squad in a football game.

"Set up like this, we can effectively control the border for eight hours," he said.

The predawn river raids and associated raids at businesses led to 12,360 arrests of illegal aliens in January, Richardson said, adding that the number was a 5 percent increase over the amount arrested in December.

The system began after Richardson took over as acting chief Jan. 4. Richardson is the chief agent in Del Rio, but is working in El Paso until a new chief agent is selected.

Richardson said that when he arrived in El Paso, too much time was being devoted to paperwork and not enough time was spent catching illegal aliens. But he's changed all that.

For the river raids, every agent with arrest capability — even those who normally work in the office — were sent to the riverbanks to round up the aliens as they crossed into the United States.

"That's based on two philosophies," said Richardson, 52, who participates in the raids himself. "When I go to the river, everybody goes to the river. Secondly ... we're simply allowing people to do their stated mission by law."

"My first duty is to keep them from coming in," he added. "By golly, we'll do that job."

Most of the aliens arrested are simply returned to Mexico and the attempt to cross is put on their record. More serious cases — repeat offenders or people who are

Urges American Dialogue

Mubarak Firm On Autonomy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak is holding firm to Egypt's insistence that Palestinians eventually must have the right to establish their own "national entity." In a toast at a White House banquet Wednesday night, Mubarak urged President Reagan to start an "American dialogue with the Palestinians" in the search for a lasting peace in the Middle East.

"No party should be excluded from this process," he said in an obvious reference to the Palestinian Liberation Organization. So far, the United States has refused to consider negotiating with the militant PLO.

Mubarak's forceful call for talks with the Palestinians seemed to suggest that no early compromise on the thorny question of Palestinian autonomy is unlikely.

Reagan, who was scheduled to meet with Mubarak for a second round of talks today, said in his toast that, "Our meetings have reassured me that further progress is within our grasp."

The question of Palestinians' autonomy and other issues were discussed Wednesday at the start of Mubarak's first official visit to Washington as president.

Although a second meeting was not on the original schedule, plans were switched.

Mubarak did not call specifically for a separate state for the Palestinians and declined to elaborate on exactly what he meant by a Palestinian "national entity."

Mubarak also disclosed following a meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. at the State Department that 66 Russian technicians he invited to Egypt last week should be gone within year.

"Why are you making a big fuss of that?" he asked reporters who asked why he had invited the technicians. He said they are needed to work on Soviet-supplied equipment and projects. "They will be staying one month, maximum, 12 months. That's all."

Sadat, who was assassinated Oct. 6, ordered 700 Soviet technicians to leave Egypt in September. Mubarak made clear he wants the same close ties to the United States that existed under Sadat.

Those warm ties have helped generate large amounts of U.S. economic and military aid to Egypt — a total of $1.9 billion in fiscal 1982. The Reagan administration is expected to ask Congress to approve an additional $400 million for military aid in fiscal 1983.

A senior administration official said Reagan and Mubarak agreed that the 1979 Camp David accords were "the appropriate and only vehicle for addressing the Palestinian problem" and expressed the hope that other nations could be drawn into the process.

The question of autonomy for the 1.3 million Palestinians on the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip is the last major item of un-

Midwest Immobilized; Third Storm Moving Into Area

By ERIC KRAMER Associated Press Writer

Wide areas of the Midwest were immobilized by up to 2 feet of snow that killed motorists and crushed roofs in the second heavy snowfall this week, and more misery was in store as a third storm began moving in from the Rocky Mountains.

In Georgia, meanwhile, record floods sent homeowners fleeing, and the Northeast was pelted with freezing rain.

The Midwest's second storm, which turned into sleet today over the eastern Ohio Valley, caused fewer problems than earlier storms that have pelted the area this winter.

"I think everybody learned their lesson," said Monroe County, Mich., sheriff's dispatcher Betty Miller. "Most people took cover this time."

Experts were called to the Eastern Missouri Correctional Center in Pacific, where the roof of the new $26 million facility began to sag under nearly 2 feet of snow.

In Indiana, 15 members of the Ball State University men's baseball team and six members of the track team escaped injury when a fieldhouse roof caved in. The Howard County Civil Defense maintenance garage in Kokomo collapsed and snow flattened the roof of a commons area at Eastbrook High School near Marion.

In Georgia, forecasters said Sweetwater Creek would crest at 12 or 13 feet above flood stage today at Austell near Atlanta, forcing residents to flee 100 houses and trailers. The creek's greatest flood on record was on Nov. 29, 1949, when it crested at 7.4 feet above flood stage.

Throughout northern Georgia, roads were under water as driving rains forced homeowners to flee and school officials to cancel classes. Residents of Atlanta suburbs were scooping mud out of their expensive homes today in the wake of the flooding which dropped up to 7.2 inches of rain on Dahlonega.

Snow Accumulation About 1 Inch; Driving Hazardous

Intermittent snowfall since Tuesday has blanketed Hereford with about an inch of snow with some parts of town having a base of sleet underneath which did not melt from Tuesday night's showers.

As of 7 a.m. a trace of precipitation was recorded from about a half-inch of snowfall during the night.

J.E. McCabe, east of Dawn, said about an inch of snow fell there yesterday, but none during the night. "It looks like it's just beginning to start," he said about 10 a.m. today. "Traffic is getting on down the highway without any trouble."

Out at the county barn 23 miles west, the snow fall is between two and three inches, according to Bobby Hammock. Flakes still falling today were small and roads were passable. The low at the barn was 6 degrees.

Winston Roundtree, south of town at Easter Fertilizer, said it was still spitting a little snow this morning. "I wouldn't say there's over an inch on the level ground."

Eva McKnight, who lives in the Ford area and commutes to Hereford, said roads are clear up to about 16 miles out, then they turn icy. From about four miles north of Hereford to Ford the trees are iced over.

The Hereford police department said reports are the same over the entire Panhandle. All towns were receiving snow today with roads icy in spots. Driving is becoming hazardous in Spearman, Muleshoe, Friona and Farwell areas.

The Panhandle forecast calls for snow accumulations of up to two inches during a winter storm watch. Lows will dip to -1 tonight with a high Friday in the low teens.

Reagan Seeks More Defense Budget Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Reagan is holding his request for actual defense spending for next year to about $1 billion more than he predicted last September, he is seeking an extra $13.6 billion in new budget authority for the Pentagon, administration sources say. The distinction is that most of the extra $13.6 billion in "budget authority" would not actually be spent in fiscal 1983. The Pentagon could, however, let contracts for that amount which would have to be paid for in later years.

The additions would bring the proposed total for fiscal 1983 to a record $215.9 billion for defense spending and $257.7 billion in budget authority.

Administration sources said the main effort in shaping the new defense budget, which Reagan will send to Congress next Monday, has focused on keeping 1983 spending increases in check because it is spending that directly affects the size of the anticipated federal budget deficit. And the size of the deficit has become one of the administration's major economic problems.

"The administration tried to calibrate the budget's effect on the economy so we focused on spending," said a senior administration official who asked to remain anonymous.

He did not say anything about another factor: the likelihood that the administration is eager to keep the new spending figure close to earlier projections — modest when compared to the jump in budget authority — because the spending figure is the one that draws the most public attention.

Most people outside of government are unaware of budget authority, which permits the Pentagon to make contract commitments which are "spent out" in future years as new ships, planes and other equipment are produced.

Officials said that although the $215.9 billion defense spending request is $1 billion more than the spending total Reagan forecast last September for fiscal 1983, which starts Oct. 1, it really is just a technical increase. They said it represents a shifting of some functions from the Education and Energy Departments to the Defense Department.

The $215.9 billion would be an increase of $34.1 billion over this year's anticipated spending level, as stated by Reagan in September.

The new total of $257.7 billion in budget authority would be $43.6 billion above the expected 1982 level, officials said.

In addition to taking into account inflation factors revised since September, officials said the added budget

'Doggone Good'

To Be Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming "it's doggone good to be home," Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier is commemorating one week of freedom from Red Brigade terrorists with a prayer breakfast as President Reagan's guest and then an Oval Office meeting.

Before beginning a leave of absence, Dozier also will brief Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and hold a press conference at the Pentagon.

That will be his last official duty for a while.

"He'd like to be sort of left to his own devices to rest and catch up and relax a bit," said Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto.

Dozier, who was held captive for 42 days, was welcomed home Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base by Vice President George Bush.

"I don't think there are any ribbons for valor in the face of kidnapping, but if there were one, someone would be pinning it on him today," said Bush.

Dozier told his well-wishers that he wanted to thank everyone for their prayers and "those of us who were the object of your prayers could feel what was coming across."

'Twist' Originator Hospitalized

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Singer Chubby Checker was in serious condition at a hospital early today, suffering from an undisclosed ailment, hospital officials said.

Checker, 40, was admitted Tuesday night to the Boone Hospital Center under his legal name, Ernest Evans, after he canceled an appearance at a local nightclub.

The club said Checker began preparing for two shows Tuesday evening, but left after a short time. He later canceled the shows, citing health reasons, the club said.

Hospital officials would not comment on the nature of his illness.

Checker gained fame in the early 1960s for launching the dance craze called "The Twist."

Looking For Clues

In Double Slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — A fully loaded furniture truck may produce a break in the execution-style slaying of two High Point, N.C. men found shot to death near a deserted stretch of road in northeast Harris County, police say.

Michael Mazingo, 29, and Kenneth Wayne Whitt, 19, had been in the Houston area for about a week selling furniture from the truck, which Mazingo was leasing from a furniture company in his hometown, friends said. Police believe the truck was stolen from the two men.

The bodies were discovered by a passerby about 9 a.m. Wednesday, about three miles south of Lake Houston. Mazingo had been shot in the side and Whitt in the head. Their hands were tied in front with rope, police said.

Harris County Sheriff's Deputy Sidney Allwright said both bodies were fully clothed in blue jeans, long-sleeved shirts and down jackets.

One man had $15 and a North Carolina driver's license and the other had $1.12 and no personal identification, police said.

St. John's Is Different

College football should perhaps be called "semi-pro football."

Consider the generous scholarships allowed college athletes, the studies they don't have to work at, the "jobs" they don't have to work at, the alumni subsidies, the subliminal indoctrination to "kill" their adversaries.

The enormity of the coaching staff in colleges now rivals the pros; the year-round torture training, the acceptable proliferation of practice injuries.

There is another way to play college football—and win.

At St. John's University in Collegeville, Minn., a football coach named John Gagliardi is considered "unique" because he coaches as coaches coached before college ball became big business.

At St. John's no athletic scholarships and no big staff, no coordinators and no secretary. No player is considered too small and no player is cut. No athlete is pampered.

"They don't count tackles," players get no special diet; no sprint timing; no practice in rain, mud or wind and no practice at all on Sundays and Mondays.

When St. John's players play every play — no sparing, no cheap shots, no foul play, no cheerleaders.

And the "Johnnies" have no between-season practice, no compulsory weight program, no recruiting and no tutoring.

There are no staff meetings, no practice apparatus, no blocking sleds, no lengthy causthetics.

No plays are called from the bench, no game plans, no precision huddles and no computer analysis.

Now, let's examine the results.

The Johnnies have been Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champions 13 times in the last 26 years.

They were nationally ranked 16 times in the last 19 years.

And they were National Champions in 3 of those years.

The Johnnies of St. John's have the best bowl and post-season record in all college football—eight and one-outscoring their opponents 316 to 89.

And no St. John's player has ever failed to graduate.

There have been and are no discipline problems.

And in addition to its players' athletic and academic excellence, St. John's also leads "in fewest injuries."

How do you explain it?

Coach Bud Grant of Minnesota's professional football Vikings has become a close friend and admirer of coach Gagliardi. Grant's son attended St. John's, was a tight-end punter for four years, is now coaching. He says he tries to emulate the Gagliardi precision but does not know how to define it.

Gagliardi has been national coach of the year twice, the winningest coach in small college football—and in all college football, with 202 victories, he ranks third behind Bear Bryant and Eddie Robinson.

Of course he's had opportunities to coach the pros, has declined.

John Gagliardi likes doing what he's doing—coaching football the way it was played 30 years ago—for fun.

And, incidentally, winning.

Hereford Man Arrested After Fight

Hereford police arrested Miguel Jimenez, 37, Wednesday night at the scene where he allegedly cut another male's arm with a knife.

Police said the complaining party told them that she and her son had company and the visitor and her son got into a fight. Jimenez allegedly left about a three-inch cut on the son.

Police are also investigating a threat with a rifle at a convenience store Monday night.

A man told police he was talking to another man about a job, when a subject pulled a .22 rifle on him and told him to leave.

Police checked three minor accidents, one attributed to slick road conditions, a harassing phone call and arrested one person for driving while intoxicated.

for the new china which very elegant," Mubarak said.

The 120 dinner guests applauded and the first lady laughed.

Mubarak wasn't the only one with compliments.

The butlers "are mighty proud of it," Scouten said.

"They are thrilled to death. It's beautiful."

Vice President George Bush called it fine china and said it was outrageous to criticize the first lady since she acquired it at no cost to the taxpayers.

"I think she should get some credit," he said.

Lyn Nofziger, who recently quit his White House post of political director, said it was "about time we had some new china here and I don't know what all the fuss is about."

The 120-place setting service was ordered seven months ago and arrived by truck Tuesday in time to be hand-washed for Wednesday night's dinner.

The ivory china with a red and gold border was the showcase for a dinner of filet of mountain trout farcie with fleurons, supreme of chicken with red peppers and white rice, green beans amandine, port salut cheese, watercress and mushroom salad, chocolate mousse and petits fours.

Each place setting consists of 19 pieces, but only seven were used Wednesday: service plate, salad plate, dinner plate, fish plate, dessert plate, demitasse cup and saucer.

The other pieces are: soup plate, finger bowl plate, butter plate, tea cup and saucer, bouillon cup, cream soup cup and stand, berry bowl, cereal bowl, ramekin, and cocktail cup. In addition, 60 extra demitasse cups and tea cups were ordered, along with 72 large platters.

According to Mrs. Tate, the only other White House china that was not paid by taxpayers was the Johnson service, contributed by an anonymous donor.

Mrs. Tate made the following cost comparisons with other White House china:

FDR — $9,301.20 actual cost; $74,108 in 1981 dollars.

Truman — $28,271.40 actual cost; $96,100 in 1981 dollars.

Johnson — $80,028.24 actual cost; $195,000 in 1981 dollars.

Reagan — $279,508 actual and 1981 cost.

"I thought it would be interesting historically," Mrs. Tate said of the comparison.

aiding aliens to cross — are prosecuted, he said.

Richardson said the secret has been to streamline the processing of the aliens so that the officers get back to the river to catch more.

"I know when you catch them, you've got to clean them," Richardson said in a tongue-in-cheek reference to fishing. "But while you're cleaning them, you ain't catching them."

Asked if it does any good to catch the aliens only to return them to Mexico, Richardson said, "I don't know. But I know what the result is if you don't grab them."

"My goal is to get an acceptable level of control," he said. "I'm worried about those that penetrate Border Patrol operations and go into the interior of the United States. It costs the United States money to return them to the country whence they came. Piles of money. It's cheaper to turn them back at the river."

Richardson said the raids are the first step of a "one-two punch" he has planned for the border around El Paso. He won't say what the second punch is, but he says with a twinkle in his eye that it's coming soon.

"People are always talking bad about the government employee," he said. "But if he understands what he's supposed to do and he's given free rein to do it, he'll give you 1,000 percent. And that's

In the Cobb County subdivision of Fox Hills, where 15 homes were flooded, Dan and Linda Cooper awoke Wednesday morning to what seemed "like an earthquake."

"The walls started cracking," Cooper said. "I could feel the floor collapsing beneath us. The water just broke the foundation."

Flooding eased Wednesday near Oil City, Pa., but authorities continued to attempt to dynamite an ice jam the mouth of Oil Creek.

Rain continued this morning over much of the Northeast with locally heavy rains over southern New England. Travelers advisories were in effect for Vermont and eastern New York state where the mixture of rain, freezing rain and sleet have made travel hazardous.

The new storm moving out of the Rockies dropped temperatures this morning to 31 below zero in Hibbing, Minn., and put the wind-chill

Pioneer Sees Record Year

AMARILLO, Texas — The directors of Pioneer Tuesday declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share. That dividend is payable March 2 to stockholders of record Feb. 18.

K.B. Watson, chief executive officer and chairman of the board, said Pioneer owes its record-setting financial performance in 1981 to four areas of the corporation's operations: oil and gas exploration and production, natural gas liquids extraction, contract petroleum drilling, and natural gas transmission. Those operations have led Pioneer through 12 consecutive quarters in which earnings have increased over the comparable period a year earlier, Watson said.

The Pioneer chief executive said the corporation concentrated in 1981 on expanding its most profitable operations. Capital expenditures for the year totaled $343 million and, of that amount, some 58 percent was invested in oil and gas exploration and development.

Major investments were also made in gas liquids extraction plants and additional drilling equipment, he said.

Houston Sets Blight Area

HOUSTON (AP) — Some of this city's most influential residents are now living in or near "blighted" areas, thanks to the action of the Houston City Council.

Kathy Whitmire, perhaps the country's best-paid mayor, lives one block south and one block west of one of the areas. Former Republican gubernatorial candidate Hank Grover lives inside it.

The entirety of downtown is "blighted." So is the Astrodome. Rice University is across the street from the designated region, but the nearby Texas Medical Center is smack in the middle of it.

The City Council drew the line around a huge portion of Houston Tuesday to make the area eligible for development through industrial revenue bonds.

"This area might not be blighted by your definition, or by mine, or by Noah Webster's," City Councilman George Greanias, chairman of a committee on industrial revenue bonds, said Wednesday. "This is a legal and legislative definition."

The idea, Greanias said, is to use the bonds, which offer firms low interest financing because of the tax break they give investors, in areas where firms might otherwise be reluctant to build.

Not everyone is enthusiastic about the idea.

Victor Penuel, chairman of the Texas Association of Concerned Tax Payers, said the bonds contribute to unfair competition and drive up interest rates of other municipal bonds.

Now You're Cookin'

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

What's better on a cold wintry day than something hot to drink-to warm you up from the inside out? Of course there is always coffee, but for a change of pace, why not try something spicy and colorful like hot punch, hot tea, or hot chocolate?

Drinks that are ordinarily used cold can also be heated for a special treat during the winter months. Lemonade, orange juice, apple cider, pineapple juice, grapefruit juice, and Dr. Pepper are just a few suggestions.

If you're afraid of the calories, you might try substituting Sugar Twin or a similar sugar substitute in place of the sugar. Natural fruit juices without added sugar are good in hot drink mixes, and add a little more "tang".

For variety, mint, cinnamon sticks, nutmeg, cloves, or other spices can be added to drinks such as those named above. Don't be afraid to experiment-you might just discover something wonderful!

Hot drink mixes can be prepared at home quite easily, are generally less expensive to make than if you buy prepared mixes. Most homemade mixtures will make large quantities that last a long time, so you won't

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Elizabeth Taylor and I have a lot in common. We both agree that old age is inevitable and we welcome it...like an old friend.

To be sensitive about a few wrinkles and a couple of laugh lines is nonsense. After all, beauty comes from within. As a matter of fact, I rarely think about age anymore.

Some days I don't think about my age at all. Like today, I didn't give it a thought until I woke up. Lying in bed, it occurred to me that I wasn't growing older, it was just that people are getting ahead faster than they used to.

Take my priest, for example. We used to get them right out of the seminary from high school. But the other day, I saw a BISHOP who smelled like Clearasil.

Remember how the interns used to be the youngest doctors on the hospital staff? A doctor who wears Calvin Klein jeans on rounds and can't be a day over 20 is a local chief of staff! I don't know how they do it.

There was a time when the stewards on planes looked like they had landed their first job. Now the men piloting the planes are looking forward to shaving for the first time.

At first I thought it was my perspective, but, correct me if I'm wrong-didn't tennis champions used to be a lot older than they are now? You never see anyone serving to a silver-haired opponent at Wimbledon anymore.

And isn't it sort of scary to know that today's skyscrapers, shopping centers and condos are being built by kids who will have to return to school after the summer is over?

Luckily, I don't give a thought to age or I'd have been terribly upset when I met a full colonel who was young enough to be my son.

And what has happened to education? My teachers were straight from the Stone Age. My son has a teacher whom I swear has a picture of himself aging in the attic while he looks like a pre-schooler.

Maybe Liz and I would feel differently if we were older, but to me she's still as beautiful as when she appeared in "National Velvet" last year...or was that two years ago? Time flies...when you lie to yourself.

Milk-Still Best Buy

(First in a two-part series). COLLEGE STATION — Drinking less milk these days because its price is higher? If so, then you are losing money — not to mention nutrients, says Mary K. Sweeten, a food and nutrition specialist.

Even with today's higher prices — and what isn't more expensive? — milk alone offers greater amounts of calcium, protein and other nutrients than many other foods combined, no matter how many you eat, she says.

For that reason, milk still ranks among consumer all-time best buys, the specialist says.

Sweeten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

For example, to get the all-important nutrient calcium, consumers can turn to dark leafy greens, of course, but it would take enormous quantities to provide just one day's requirement for adults, Sweeten explains.

Two glasses of milk (eight ounces each) provide the calcium an adult needs. Or eight ounces of cheese, yogurt or cottage cheese will do the same, she says.

Calcium is not the only benefit, though. At the same time, those two glasses of milk provide a significant amount of the high-quality protein you need every day.

In addition, the two glasses are a good source of the vitamin A you need every day (if the milk is "whole" or "fortified"), and they're a good source of the vitamin D needed daily.

Also, two glasses of milk are a good source of the riboflavin needed daily — along with lesser amounts of other vitamins.

There's more: milk supplies phosphorous, potassium, magnesium, sodium, zinc, copper, iodine and other trace elements.

Milk also contributes carbohydrates (lactose or milk sugar) and fat (in whole or low-fat varieties) used for energy, Sweeten says.

Is there anything milk doesn't provide?

Milk is low in vitamin C, iron and fiber content, the specialist says. But, of course, other food groups, such as fruits and vegetables, bread and cereals, along with the meat-group foods balance out the daily diet, she adds.

Today In History

Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 1982. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 4, 1783, hostilities ended in the Revolutionary War between the United States and Britain.

On this date:

In 1938, in Nazi Germany Adolf Hitler assumed the office of war minister and named Joachim von Ribbentrop foreign minister.

In 1964, China charged that the Soviet Union seeks world domination through a policy of collaboration with the United States.

In 1977, U.S. intelligence officials said the United States and the Soviet Union were attempting to develop high-energy beams that could destroy nuclear missiles in flight.

And in 1979, Iran's Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar said he would arrest Ayatollah Khomeini if the Moslem Provisional Government tried to take over the country.

Ten years ago, British troops sealed all approaches to Newry in Northern Ireland and searched visitors for weapons prior to a civil rights march planned by Roman Catholics.

Five years ago, two elevated trains crashed in Chicago, killing eleven people and injuring more than 150 others.

One year ago, talks broke down between Poland's government and leaders of a strike in the southern province of Bielsko-Biala.

Today's birthdays: Feminist leader Betty Friedan is 61. Actress Ida Lupino is 64.

Thought For Today: History is, indeed, little more than the register of the crimes, follies and misfortunes of mankind. — Edward Gibbon, English historian (1737-1794).

Geisha Industry Seeks Younger Members

TOKYO (AP) — "Wanted: young Japanese girls willing to study traditional dancing and music. Job requires ability to conduct lively conversation with businessmen at parties. Good compensation. Must have own kimono."

The advertisement, while mythical, sums up the quiet search by Japan's geisha associations for new talent, young women willing to devote themselves to the life of the "willow world" — named for dances that simulate flowing tree branches — in Japan's entertainment districts.

The average age of Japan's geisha is now about 40, and there is a shortage of apprentices, according to Shigisuki Uetsuki, acting director of the geisha association in Asakusa, one of Tokyo's oldest entertainment quarters.

Asakusa, with its lantern-lit streets, was home to about 200 geisha in the years after World War II, he said. Today, about half that many women belong to the Asakusa Geisha Association, and one authority estimates there are no more than 2,000 "genuine" geisha in all of Japan.

The postwar geisha were in the old tradition, recruited in girlhood from poor families and apprenticed for many years in the teahouse arts — learning to play the twanging, three-stringed samisen, dance in the close-fitting kimono, and sing Japanese folk songs in the proper sort of cracked, wavering voice.

But Japan's increasing prosperity and the enthusiasm of its youth for more modern lifestyles means fewer girls are drawn to a career that requires long training, diminished prospects for marriage, an irregular income and little lifetime job security.

Most recruits now are in their late teens or early 20s, Uetsuki said, and many become geisha after finding other jobs less satisfying.

Aguri, 24, one of Asakusa's newer and most popular geisha, joined the geisha world 15 months ago after a short and uneventful career as an "o.l.," the Japanese term for office lady.

"My mother enjoyed dancing and playing the samisen, and I began Japanese style dancing when I was six. But when I told my mother and friends about my intention to become a geisha, all of them were very surprised," she said.

Interviewed after a Saturday afternoon samisen lesson, Aguri radiates enthusiasm for her new career. "To be able to work playing musical instruments and dancing, it's more than enjoyable, it's great," she said.

The Asakusa Geisha Association requires her to attend two dance lessons and one samisen and drum practice session each week. Three times a month she studies the ritual tea ceremony. Beginning geisha are expected to buy a new set of kimonos each month. That expense alone can devour much of the $2,000 or more a popular young geisha can make in a month.

Individual customers or restaurants that cater to parties can request Aguri's services. Like most geisha, she lives communally with several others. The "oneesan" or elder sister of the house guides and advises the younger women in their training and work.

Uetsuki said geisha such as Aguri, who combine artistic skill, a lively personality and physical beauty, are in demand throughout the year. The older ones, although more skilled, often can obtain daily work only during the month-long New Year's holiday period, he said.

Many women leave the trade to marry while still young, but few older geishas have husbands. Only one of the 100 Asakusa regulars now is married, Uetsuki said.

Valium Anonymous Says 'Thanks'

DEAR READERS: This Mailgram will be of interest to the thousands who have written to say they are hooked on Valium. It is very reassuring.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your syndicated column brought international attention to the Valium problem. An avalanche of letters has been received from people throughout the United States and other countries pleading for help.

These letters more than substantiate the statement of the National Consumer's League in Washington, D.C. that the consumption of Valium has reached epidemic proportions. Thousands of victims tell us they have tried everything without success. Many say their doctors have put them on Valium but can't get them off. Countless numbers are pinning their hopes on our group, Valium Anonymous. Thank you for telling them about us, Ann. Every letter will be answered. Please ask those who wrote to bear with us. —Leland Ahern, Box 404, Altoona, Iowa 50009.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a second marriage for both my husband and me. (We are in our 50s). I was aware from the start that he had a low sex drive but was certain he'd perk up when the pressures of premarital sex no longer existed. I was wrong.

At my suggestion we have gone twice (10 days each time) to one of the best-known (and most expensive) sex therapy clinics in the country. Not much was gained. We then went to see the foremost sex therapists in Canada (six trips in all). Still no results.

My husband is a wonderful person with many fine qualities, but the sad truth is he has very little interest in sex. I've tried being seductive, aggressive, shy, playful — nothing works. He is definitely NOT a homosexual, in case you are wondering. I've asked myself your question, "Would I be better off without him?" The answer is NO.

So, dear Ann, how do I deal with the devastating fact that my husband does not care for me sexually and I am "undesirable?" —Self-Esteem Zero In Toronto

DEAR S.E.Z.: A husband who would agree to let his wife schelp him eight times for sex therapy cannot be accused of indifference. So get it through your head that he would love to please you sexually but he just can't hack it.

When you accept the fact that the problem is HIS, not yours, you will no longer feel "undesirable."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of two little girls under eight years of age. They are both in bed today with terrible colds and hacking coughs because my nitwit cousin brought her 10-month-old baby over here yesterday morning, wrapped in a blanket. She said, "Suzi must be coming down with something."

When I saw the poor thing, I asked my cousin if she had taken the baby's temperature. Her reply: "I don't need to. I can tell by feeling of her forehead. She must have about 103."

My girls love babies and I couldn't keep them away from her. So now they are both feverish and coughing. I am furious. Please, Ann, say something in your column about mothers who drag sick kids around. If they don't care about their own, they should give some consideration to others. —Fit To Be Tied In Troy

DEAR FIT: No mother can protect her children against the germs of other children. If some visiting kid doesn't cough in your children's faces, a youngster in school will. The best you can do is make sure your two get enough rest, are well-nourished and properly clothed.

'Hunchback Of Notre Dame' Has Ingredients Of A Soap Opera

NEW YORK (AP) — Passion, injustice, good and evil — ingredients soap operas create through every contrivance imaginable — are the essential elements of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," a television adaptation on CBS' "Hallmark Hall of Fame" tonight.

This classic book, set in 15th century Paris and written by Victor Hugo, has been produced for the movie theaters three times. Lon Chaney, Charles Laughton and Anthony Quinn each played Quasimodo, whose grossly deformed body belies the gentleness and compassion inside.

Anthony Hopkins, Emmy-award winner for his portrayal of Hitler in "The Bunker," is the latest Quasimodo. Abandoned as a baby at the gates of Notre Dame Cathedral, Quasimodo was taken in as a self-serving public gesture of charity by Dom Claude Frollo, the movie's villain. Quasimodo grows up to become the church's bell-ringer.

Hopkins needed five hours of make-up work before each day's shooting to achieve the necessary disfigurement. But if you can get past the ugliness — and this tale is certainly not for everyone — then the beauty of the beast shines through in his sensitivity and kindness.

Quasimodo falls in love with the gypsy Esmerelda (Lesley-Anne Down), and three scenes express beautifully his painful plight, illustrating that his deformities have wounded him but have not arrested his emotions.

Just Another Wacky Wednesday in SWC

By JOE STROOP Associated Press Writer

A game delayed two hours when a band member knocks over a power pole, a coach draws a double-technical foul that cost his team the game, three of the top four teams shuffle places in the standings, a squad that didn't even play takes the top spot — just a routine night of Southwest Conference basketball.

The wackiest Wednesday night scene was played out in Waco where a bandsman trying to park a car smashed into a utility pole, disabled a power transformer and knocked out all the lights in Heart O' Texas Coliseum, where the Baylor Bears and Texas Aggies were trying to play.

A&M coach Shelby Metcalf agreed to play the second half only under the threat of forfeit. As it turns out, he could have stayed in the locker room.

Terry Teagle hit 24 points, including two late free throws, as a key technical called against A&M assistant coach Barry Davis, Baylor won it 55-50 and knocked the Aggies out of first place in the SWC standings.

In other games, Texas broke a three-game losing streak with a 69-56 win over hapless Southern Methodist, Texas Christian nudged Rice 67-57 on a last-minute field goal and Houston slid by Texas Tech 83-80 when Red Raider coach Gerald Myers drew a double-technical foul protesting the officiating.

"Certainly the technical was a big difference because it came at a crucial time," said Baylor coach Jim Muller. Davis was whistled for griping about the officiating and Teagle converted both free shots. But the hot topic was in a coliseum notorious around the loop for dim lighting even when all the lamps are burning. Even after power was restored, only 40 percent of the coliseum's vapor lights came back on, with Metcalf claiming his team's end of the floor was completely unplayable.

Head official Lynn Shortnacy, after conferring by telephone with SWC Commissioner Cliff Speegle, ordered the Aggies to play the second half.

"It will be a forfeit game, coach, if you don't get your team on the floor," Shortnacy said.

Ironically, one minute into the second half, all the lights in the stadium suddenly and inexplicably ignited.

"I bet he (Speegle) is mad we woke him up," Metcalf said.

The loss dropped the Aggies, 6-3, into a second-place tie with Texas and TCU, Arkansas, which was idle, backed into first place with a 6-2 mark.

TCU won its fourth straight SWC game when Darrell Browder drove the length of the floor and canned an 18-foot jumper against Rice.

"It was just a typical game for us," deadpanned Horned Frog coach Jim Killingsworth.

Tech coach Gerald Myers ran onto the court in the Houston game when his Vince Taylor drove the lane and drew some Cougar elbows, but no foul call late in the close game.

He was handed a double-technical foul, Rob Williams hit all four shots and the Cougars won it by three.

"The officials definitely decided the game," Myers grumped. "I got the technical fouls because the kid on defense made contact and the officials didn't make the call."

Machine Gun Kelly Tops Collegiate Sharpshooters

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Southern forward Harry Kelly usually doesn't get much resistance when he takes his first couple of shots from the area just inside the parking lot.

"But after I make the first two or three of those 30 footers they start coming out to get me," said Kelly. "That's when I fake the jumper and pass inside to the big man."

Kelly's ability to score from howitzer range on in has made him a big man among the nation's Division I basketball sharpshooters.

Kelly has led the nation in scoring most of the season, and currently has a 29.3 average despite an off-night of only 18 points and 14 rebounds in his last game.

Most coaches would cringe at watching a player take the low percentage outside shots, but Tiger Coach Robert Moreland actually relaxes when he sees Kelly put one up from the hinterlands.

"Harry's range has been the whole key to his success," Moreland said. "A shot from way outside is a 50 per cent proposition for him. We let him go for the deep corner shot that the average player wouldn't attempt."

Kelly, now a junior, arrived on the TSU campus firing in machine gun fashion and hasn't slowed down. He was among the national leaders as a freshman with a 27-point average, but dropped off to a 23.7 mean as a sophomore.

"His drop in scoring last year was really by design," Moreland said. "We were asking him to do other things but this year we've just turned him loose and told him to go shoot."

Kelly realizes his reputation as a gunner may detract from his other skills.

"I think I'm a pretty good rebounder and I can play good defense too," Kelly said. "I do have to pace myself on defense because the team sets it up for me to score. I feel if I didn't score as much I could play more defense."

Kelly has no doubt he could step into the National Basketball Association as a hardship and help out certain teams.

"The NBA has been my dream since I first started to play basketball," Kelly said. "I've played against the Rockets in pickup games and I feel I could help a team that needed a little more scoring, so if the right offer came along I'd really have to consider it."

Moreland hopes to have Kelly back machine-gunning one more year.

"I think he could benefit from another year of maturing in college," Moreland said. "Another year would help refine some of his skills, but if the right offer came along I'd have to be the first to tell him to take it."

Kelly's shooting, along with double figure scoring averages for Michael Anderson and Alton Jefferson, have propelled the Tigers into the thick of the Southwestern Athletic Conference race. They will take a five-game winning streak into Saturday's game against Alcorn State.

NCAA-Cable TV Pact 'Bonanza'

By LARRY SIDONS AP Sports Writer

Cedric Dempsey, the University of Houston's athletic director, says he's "pleased."

His counterpart at the University of New Hampshire, Andrew Mooradian, adds somewhat more descriptively: "It's mind boggling."

Both men, and others in college athletics and television sports, are talking about the bonanza that befell the NCAA with its first-ever cable TV contract for live football telecasts.

For a two-year package filled with restrictions, WTBS, the Atlanta-based super station, agreed to pay $17.7 million. It entitles the station, which feeds cable TV companies nationwide via satellite, to 19 games a year, primarily during Saturday night prime time.

The NCAA earlier had signed a four-year, $263.5 million deal with ABC and CBS for 14 games on each network each year — a total of 112 "exposures," as they are called in the industry.

So, the money from cable is a fraction of what college football is getting from its traditional TV outlet, the networks.

But it's still many times what ESPN and the USA cable network were paying for delayed-broadcast rights to games under the old package — and considerably more than what they bid this time around.

Industry sources said the winning bid was some 50 percent higher than that of the runner-up, ESPN.

"We were pleasantly surprised by the figure," said Mooradian, who, like Dempsey, was a member of the NCAA committee which negotiated the cable TV deal, "and I think that Saturday night football has a good chance to become a hit. Whether it's worth what they bid, I'm not sure."

"Pleased," chuckled Dempsey, when asked about the reaction of the committee members when the WTBS bid was opened.

Beyond the immediate windfall, the agreement is seen by athletic administrators as an indication of the dollar power cable TV can bring to college sports in the coming years.

College Roundup

Auburn Shocks Wildcats

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The way the Kentucky Wildcats were playing, the Auburn Tigers didn't need any breaks.

But they got one — and it eventually resulted in an 83-81 overtime victory for Auburn over the nation's ninth-ranked college basketball team Wednesday night.

"There's no way to take a basket away from us," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall after a field goal by Derrick Hord in overtime was disallowed because the clock had failed to start when Kentucky threw the ball into play. Officials ruled that all play between the inbounds pass and the time when the horn blew was negated.

Hall was, of course, dissatisfied with the explanation.

"The clock wasn't running, but there was no justification for taking away the bucket," said Hall. "I've seen games go for two minutes without the clock running and they didn't go back and take away points."

Meanwhile, Auburn stole everything from the listless Wildcats but their sneakers. Auburn "ran a heck of a trap and we just turned the ball over too much," said Hall. "This really damages our Southeastern Conference title chances."

Kentucky had 19 turnovers in the game, 12 after halftime, and Auburn also came up with nine steals.

"Just say we played good," said Auburn Coach Sonny Smith. "The most important thing for us was the change to the half-court trap. We made the steals. Another key was our free-throw shooting." Auburn made 31 of 38 shots from the foul line.

Charles Barkley, Odell Mosteller and Byron Henson scored four points each in overtime to lead Auburn's upset. Trailing 54-43 with 8:54 left in regulation, the Tigers used a trapping zone defense to force Kentucky into errors that enabled Auburn to get back into contention.

Barkley had 22 points, Mosteller 20 and Darrell Lockhart 16 for Auburn, while Jim Master, who scored two uncontested layups for Kentucky at the end, led all scorers with 29 points while Hord had 25. Before Wednesday night's victory, Auburn had lost 13 straight games to Kentucky.

Maryland shocked No. 13 Wake Forest 61-56 and Mississippi whipped No. 16 Tennessee 55-53 in overtime in other upsets Wednesday night. Elsewhere, No. 1 Missouri stopped Colorado 80-54, No. 3 Virginia beat No. 2 North Carolina 74-58, No. 4 DePaul edged St. Joseph's (Pa.) 46-44 in overtime, No. 8 Alabama took a 66-63 decision over Mississippi State, No. 12 Texas beat Southern Methodist 69-56, and No. 19 Kansas State trimmed Nebraska 75-64. Memphis State, tied for No. 19, was forced to postpone its game with St. Louis University because of snow.

Top Ten
Steve Stipanovich, Jon Sundvold and Ricky Frazier combined for 37 points, leading Missouri over Colorado. Stipanovich scored 14 points, Sundvold added 12 and Frazier had 11 as Missouri gained its 19th straight victory this season and its 29th consecutive at home. Both streaks are Missouri records.

Othell Wilson and Ralph Sampson led Virginia to a 17-point lead early in the second half and the Cavaliers held off two North Carolina rallies to beat the Tar Heels.

Wilson scored 20 points and Sampson added 18 as the Cavaliers took over the Atlantic Coast Conference lead and avenged their only defeat in 22 games overall. It was only the second loss in 18 starts for North Carolina, which had beaten Virginia 65-60 less than a month ago at Chapel Hill.

"We knew ourselves we could beat them and we just wanted to prove it to everyone else," said Wilson. "We had them beaten down there (at North Carolina) and came unglued. We knew if we did things right, we could beat them."

Terry Cummings scored a game-high 17 points, including a tip-in at the end of the overtime period, to help DePaul beat St. Joseph's. With the score tied at 44 and only seconds remaining in the overtime, Kenny Patterson put up a 20-footer. The ball kicked off the rim to teammate Jerry McMillan, whose 15-footer from the left side missed the iron, but Cummings came up with the air ball and banked in the layup at the buzzer.

Alabama, playing without flu-stricken senior forward Eddie Phillips, survived a scare from Mississippi State and used a four-corner offense to beat the Bulldogs. The Crimson Tide got balanced scoring from its starters, led by Phillip Lockett with 17.

Second Ten
Sophomore guard Denard Holmes moved into injured forward Mike Wacker's spot and scored 22 points as Texas defeated SMU. The victory improved Texas' record to 15-3 and halted a three-game losing streak that began when Wacker, a 6-foot-9 sophomore and the team's second-leading scorer and rebounder, went out for the season with a knee injury.

Freshman Adrian Branch scored seven of Maryland's final nine points in the last 45 seconds as the Terps upset Wake Forest. Branch made one of two foul shots with 45 seconds remaining to give the Terps a 53-50 lead and then rammed home a dunk shot on a pass from Herman Veal with 31 seconds left to make it 55-50. He added two more free throws in a one-and-one situation before Danny Young hit a field goal for the Demon Deacons. Fouled again.

Branch made two free throws with 13 seconds left and finished with 20 points.

Mississippi's Carlos Clark hit two baskets in overtime, including one at the final buzzer. Coach Don DeVoe said his players got themselves into a jam by lagging behind the Rebels early in overtime.

"You can't win a game against a good defensive team when you spot them a basket at the first of the overtime like we did tonight," DeVoe said.

Randy Reed scored 25 points to lead Kansas State over Nebraska.

Nicklaus Ready For Crosby Golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus comes to one of his favorite tournaments with renewed enthusiasm and, according to Nicklaus, with his game in better shape than in years.

"I'm in better shape for the Crosby than I have been for years," Nicklaus said before being off today in the first round of the 41st Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, an event he has won three times.

"That relates to the shape of my golf game," continued Nicklaus, now 42 and holder of a record 17 major professional championships. "I had to get my golf game in shape for South Africa. That was early in the year, and I played very well there. I played well last week."

"Now, I'm coming here, instead of coming off a mid-winter break, I'm coming in with a couple of weeks of golf behind me. I'm anxious to play."

And he's anxious to win. In those two starts, last week in San Diego and in the Million Sun City Challenge the first week of the year in southern Africa, he finished one shot back of Johnny Miller. Last week's effort included a brilliant final round of 64 that fell just one shot short.

"I've played twice and played well and each time I've been one back of Johnny," he said. "I'd like to have won one."

"I'd love to get one or two wins under my belt before Augusta."

And this, obviously, is one of his prime targets. The format calls for the 168 pros, each with an amateur partner, to play one round on each of three Monterey Peninsula courses, Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill. After 54 holes, the field will be cut for the final round at Pebble Beach, long-ranked by Nicklaus as one of his favorite courses in the world. And it's one of his more productive layouts. In addition to the three Crosby titles he's won here, he's also collected U.S. Amateur and U.S. Open crowns on the same spectacular layout that winds along cliffs and crags overlooking Carmel Bay.

He'll be playing with former President Gerald Ford as his amateur partner.

Miller, obviously, is the chief challenger. But he notes that "it's very difficult, coming off a win, to keep it all together, get it all together again, and win the next week."

Also in the field — which includes a variety of show business celebrity amateurs who give this event a unique flavor and character — are such standouts as Tom Watson, the current Masters titleholder, and a two-time Crosby winner, 1981 leading money-winner Tom Kite and defending champion John Cook.

Other major players include two-time U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, current American national champion David Graham, PGA titleholder Larry Nelson, Ray Floyd, Tom Weiskopf, Jerry Pate, Andy Bean, Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw, who will have host Nathaniel Crosby, the National Amateur champion, as his partner.

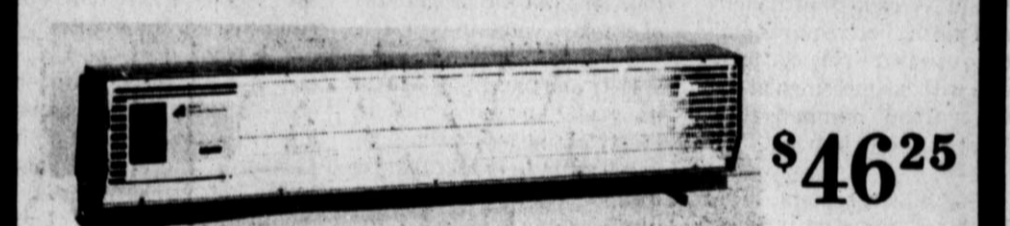

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

New York City covers an area of 300 square miles.

Huston Knows How To Hand it to Teammates

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

You really have to hand it to Geoff Huston...he knows how to hand it to his teammates.

Huston has averaged 17.3 points and a remarkable 18.5 assists for the Cleveland Cavaliers in their last four games — three of them victories. On Wednesday night, he had 20 assists and 19 points in a 108-104 triumph over the Indiana Pacers.

The modest two-game winning streak was the Cavs' first since Nov. 7-9 and improved their record to 10-34, still the worst in the National Basketball Association.

"It feels good to go into the locker room with games like this. But I'm not getting carried away," Coach Chuck Daly said after the Cavaliers handed the Pacers their 12th loss in 14 games.

"We're progressing by inches," Daly added. "I have to zero in on Geoff Huston. The kid is running the game, and we think alike in the plays that we look to run."

Huston, who had 27 assists in a victory over Golden State last week, said, "We're basically starting to get more confidence in ourselves. We're executing better and guys are pulling for each other."

In other NBA games, it was New Jersey 112, Atlanta 103; Philadelphia 122, Washington 96; Milwaukee 113, Chicago 96; San Diego 113, Dallas 106; Utah 122, Portland 118; Golden State 90, Phoenix 88; New York 98, Los Angeles 94; and Seattle 97, Kansas City 87. Boston at Detroit was postponed because of snow.

Scott Wedman also was singled out for praise by Daly although the Cleveland forward scored only eight points in 35 minutes, his longest stint since he returned from a broken foot Jan. 19.

The Pacers trailed 101-87 with 5:30 remaining, but a 12-2 spurt cut the deficit to 103-99 at the 2:45 mark. Cleveland's Bobby Wilkerson then hit a jump shot and center James Edwards, who led all scorers with 24 points, followed with two foul shots to give the Cavaliers a 107-99 advantage with 1:30 to go.

Johnny Davis led Indiana with 23 points and Louis Orr added 19 for the Pacers.

Cleveland, which hit 56 percent from the field, led after every quarter.

Kneels 26, Lakers 94
Maurice Lucas pulled down 21 rebounds and scored 13 points, and New York beat Los Angeles by holding the Lakers to one field goal in the final six minutes.

Los Angeles led 91-83 with 6:21 left, but got only a three-point goal by Norm Nixon the rest of the way. Mike Newlin led the Knicks with 21 points, while Jamaal Wilkes paced all scorers with 26.

Sonics 97, Kings 87
Gus Williams scored 26 points and Jack Sikma added 21 points and 15 rebounds to lead Seattle past Kansas City. The Sonics, who never trailed, built a 17-point lead in the first quarter, outscoring the Kings 18-2 in a 5 1/2-minute span.

Ernie Grunfeld and Steve Johnson both scored 21 points for the Kings.

Warriors 90, Suns 88
Golden State won its third straight game and handed

Phoenix its third consecutive loss when Bernard King slammed in a follow shot with one second remaining.

The Suns led 88-85, but the Warriors tied the score on Joe Hassett's three-point goal with 32 seconds left.

King led Golden State with 20 points, and Alvan Adams had a game-high 23 for Phoenix.

Bucks 113, Bulls 96
Milwaukee got 25 points from Brian Winters and won its third straight game without key players Marques Johnson and Junior Bridgeman.

Winters scored 12 points in the second quarter to lead the Bucks to a 53-41 halftime lead and Chicago, which lost its fourth game in succession, never got closer than eight after that.

Orlando Woolridge led the Bulls with 23 points. Clippers 111, Mavericks 106
San Diego, burned at the center position Tuesday when Moses Malone scored 53 points, successfully turned to Joe Bryant against Dallas.

Bryant, making his first pro start, scored 32 points for the Clippers, including 20 in the second half.

Jay Vincent led the Mavericks with 23 points.

Nets 112, Hawks 103
Ray Williams, who has 63 points to lead Philadelphia, which never trailed against Washington.

The Nets outscored the Hawks 17-4 down the stretch although all-star forward Buck Williams fouled out midway through the fourth period.

76ers 92, Bullets 76
Julius Erving scored 32 points to lead Philadelphia, which never trailed against Washington.

Andrew Toney had 22 points for the 76ers, who led by as many as 26 in the fourth period. Jeff Ruland and Kevin Gray had 23 apiece for the Bullets.

Jazz 122, Blazers 118
With the score 120-118, rookie Dan Schayes grabbed a rebound of a missed Trail Blazers shot and iced the victory with two free throws with six seconds remaining.

Pro File

Next is the 1982 draft

Who will be the star NFL draft picks of 1982?

It's difficult to calculate who will be selected No. 1 by New England on April 27 at the NFL college draft in New York. But the 2-14 Patriots can use all the help they can get. So can the 2-14 Baltimore Colts, who draft second.

Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen — the top star last season in college football — is a sure bet to be among the first chosen in the NFL draft.

Oddy, though, some pro doubts remain about Allen, the Southern Cal tailback who did something as a senior that had never been done before.

Allen, who is 6-foot-2 and weighs 204 pounds, became the first college player to rush for more than 2,000 yards in a season. He set 12 NCAA rushing records on his way to a total of 2,342 yards in 11 games.

Dick Steinberg, a New England scout, is high on Allen.

"He thinks like a quarterback, hits like a fullback, runs like a tailback and catches like a wide receiver," says Steinberg. "And he knows how defensive people react because he's played there, too."

Yet some NFL experts — while acknowledging Allen's superior talent — wonder how much his 212.9 yards-per-game average depended on Southern Cal's fine blockers. It seems to be the chronic worry about USC tailbacks.

Head coach John Robinson of Southern Cal certainly has no doubts about Allen's versatility and durability on the playing field.

"He doesn't show any signs of wear," says Robinson. "He's made 200-yard games commonplace. He broke the national rushing record in nine games. He's not a standard so high, it's incredible. If he has a 150-yard game, it's considered a bad day. Imagine that."

Robinson expects Allen to be a high first-round NFL draft choice. He says: "One of the things that will be exploited more in the NFL is the pass receiving. He'll become one of the leading pass receivers in pro football."

Another top backfield candidate is Darrin Nelson of Stanford. At 5-9 and 179 pounds, he is small. But Nelson is a do-everything back. He can run, catch passes and return kicks. He's got the elusiveness to become an NFL star.

It's a little easier to list key NFL prospects at quarterback Art Schlichter of Ohio State and Jim McMahon of Brigham Young top the field.

Schlichter (6-2, 206) has a strong arm to go along with good mobility and the kind of intelligence needed to run a pro offense. He knows how to read defenses and inspire his own players to get the job done.

McMahon, yet another pass-happy ace from BYU, is the all-time NCAA Division I leader in career total offense. Unlike Schlichter, he's used to operating from a pro-style offense. For McMahon, that's a key plus.

Other top-rated QBs: John Fourcade (6-1, 210) of Mississippi, Mike Pagan (6-2, 200) of Arizona State and Oliver Luck (6-2, 190) of West Virginia.

Receivers? The pros, of course, like Perry Tuttle (6-0, 179) of top-ranked Clemson. He's quick and tough — despite his relatively small size.

Other pass catching prospects: Tim Wrightman (6-3, 235) of UCLA, Dean Maszta (6-4, 230) of Notre Dame, Mike Quick (6-2, 185) of North Carolina State.

To round out the offense, some excellent college blockers are eligible for the 1982 NFL draft. They include guards Kurt Becker (6-5, 254) of Michigan, Sean Farrell (6-4, 256) of Penn State, Emil Bours (6-3, 268) of Pitt and Roy Foster (6-4, 259) of Southern Cal.

Among the top defensive line prospects are David Galloway (6-3, 276) of Florida, Emanuel Weaver (6-3, 258) of Pitt and — despite a broken leg — Ken Sims (6-5, 265) of Texas.

Topping the list of linebackers: Chip Banks (6-4, 232) of Southern Cal, Bob Crable (6-2, 223) of Notre Dame and Johnnie Cooks (6-3, 236) of Mississippi State.

Finally, this might not be the kind of year 1981 was for pro rookies in the defensive backfield. The new college crop seems a bit weak.

Tonelli, Duguay Added To NHL All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — John Tonelli and Ron Duguay, a pair of New York hockey players who are having their best seasons, were selected to play in the National Hockey League All-Star Game.

The Islanders' Tonelli and the Rangers' Duguay were among the eight additions made Wednesday by Islanders' Coach Al Arbour to the Prince of Wales Conference squad for the Feb. 9 game at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

Also added to the Wales roster, by Arbour, who is handling the Wales team, were centers Dennis Maruk of the Washington Capitals and Keith Acton of the Montreal Canadiens; defenseman Barry Beck of the Rangers and Rod Langway of the Canadiens; right wing Blaine Stoughton of the Hartford Whalers, and left wing Brian Propp of the Philadelphia Flyers.

Named to fill out the Campbell Conference team by Coach Glen Sonmor of the Minnesota North Stars were his own center, Bobby Smith; defenseman Harold Snepsts of the Vancouver Canucks and Pekka Rautakallio of the Calgary Flames; centers Don Lever of the Colorado Rockies and Dale Hawerchuk of the Winnipeg Jets; right wings Rick Vaive of the Toronto Maple Leafs and John Ogdrednick of the Detroit Red Wings, and left wing Brian Sutter of the St. Louis Blues.

Tonelli said when he entered the NHL after three years with Houston of the World Hockey Association, he expected All-Star consideration.

"It's no surprise to me that I'm scoring a lot," said the tenacious left wing who is in his fourth season with the Islanders. "I'm disappointed it's taken four years to get to this point. I thought I could do it right off the bat. But you have to adjust to the different personnel and style in this league."

Duguay has had a sensational campaign, beginning last September when he made and starred for Team Canada in the Canada Cup international hockey tournament. Always a flamboyant skater and attacker, Duguay has been the Rangers' best all-around performer this season.

"I came out of the Canada Cup with the confidence I needed," said Duguay. "It showed me the intensity I need to be a star in this league. That's what it took for me to make Team Canada and I've felt good about myself since."

Obviously, Arbour felt good enough about Duguay's play to add him to the Wales team. Previously named to the squad by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association were starters Michel Dion of Pittsburgh in goal; defenseman John Van Boxmeer of Buffalo and Ray Bourque of Boston; center Peter Stastny of Quebec, right wing Mike Bossy of the Islanders and left wing Bill Barber of the Flyers.

rookie goaltender Grant Fahr, center Wayne Gretzky, the NHL's runaway scoring leader, defenseman Paul Coffey and left wing Mark Messier — were chosen as starters for the Campbells, along with defenseman Doug Wilson of Chicago and right wing Dave Taylor of Los Angeles.

The Campbell's second team consists of goalie Gilles Meloche, right wing Dino Ciccarelli and defenseman Craig Hartsburg of Minnesota; center Denis Savard and left wing Al Secord of Chicago, and defenseman Borje Salming of Toronto, who is injured and has been replaced by teammate Bob Manno.

NEW YORK (AP) — NHL President John Ziegler announced that Los Angeles Kings Coach Don Perry had been suspended for 15 days for ordering Paul Mulvey to leave the bench during an altercation in a game Jan. 24 against Vancouver.

In addition, the Kings were fined $5,000 by the league.

They call me George Steinbrenner — West. Why? I guess I'm controversial. In 1959, though, I was just a young chemist. Then I invested $1,000 in an apartment house. Twenty years later I paid $67.5 million for a sports empire.

HEALTH should he stay with fiber?

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 65-year-old man. I have difficult bowel movements several times a year, characterized by hard, dry movements. It requires a very high degree of strain to eliminate.

I had a proctoscopic and sigmoidoscopic examination and a colon X-ray a month ago. All that showed up were internal hemorrhoids. I have no discomfort other than worrisome apprehension when I notice small amounts of blood on the tissue after my regular morning elimination.

Should I continue my high fiber intake (bran, raw fruits, raw vegetables, wheat germ) plus prune juice or go on a low bulk, bland diet to encourage the healing of my hemorrhoids? I drink plenty of liquids and exercise daily. Also what is the difference between internal hemorrhoids and just hemorrhoids?

DEAR READER - You should stay on a diet that provides bulk, just as you are doing. If you go on a bland diet without bulk you will have more of the same problems with your bowel movements and will strain more.

The straining increases the pressure inside your abdomen. This prevents the normal drainage of the veins in the rectal area and causes them to pop out, just as the veins on the back of your hand pop out if you hold your hand down or constrict your forearm. Hemorrhoids are really varicose veins of the rectal area. As a hard stool passes over the dilated veins, it can injure the area and cause bleeding.

If you have this problem very often you might ask your doctor for a stool softener. Do not take chemical laxatives. That might make matters worse.

Internal hemorrhoids are inside the sphincter and usually cause no symptoms other than bleeding. Those outside the sphincter, where you can sit on them, itch, burn and cause symptoms. These are external hemorrhoids. The treatment of the two is different but you can have a combination of both.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Recently I attended a meeting for salesmen for a company that sells aloe vera products. No matter what ailment was mentioned, the manager knew someone who cured themselves with aloe vera. One lady had a badly infected eye and had gone to see an ophthalmologist 60 miles away and he gave her a prescription. This manager told her his grandfather had the same thing and cured it with aloe vera lotion. The woman didn't fill her prescription and is using aloe vera on it. Her eye has not improved. The group selling this brand of aloe vera is a pyramid club. If aloe vera is that fantastic, why not buy the plant and use it straight from the plant?

DEAR READER - There have been salesmen like that ever since the first bottle of snake oil was sold at a medical side show and there was a sucker born every minute. Aloe vera has some healing properties for injuries but the natural plant works and the commercial preparations tested do not. The commercial products tested contain chemical additives. You are absolutely right - you are better off financially and in terms of health to raise your own.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I had my eyes examined recently as I knew I needed my glasses changed. The doctor told me I have cataracts. I'm now concerned about having the cataracts removed. I've heard that a new method permits them to be removed at an early stage rather than waiting until they are ripe. Also there is one way called an implant which is fairly new.

Would you please tell me if it is possible to have them removed at an early stage and what the operation is called?

DEAR READER - Before you start worrying about which operation to have you need to know if you even need an operation. The decision on whether cataracts should be removed or not is based mostly on two points. How good is your vision? Are cataracts your only problem or do you have other defects that may affect your vision?

Many people have small cataracts that are not in the line of sight through the lens and really do not interfere with vision. These don't need to be removed. You will need to depend upon your eye doctor's evaluation of your eyes to get an answer that applies to your particular condition.

If you need surgery the choice of the type of operation also depends upon the characteristics of your own eyes.

The phacoemulsification technique uses ultra sound and a small incision. Yes, you can literally have the lens of the eye removed at any stage of a cataract if it is advisable to do so.

Yes, the cataract lens can be removed and a new lens implanted within the eye. This type of surgery is not for everyone. It is more often used in older people. And it has many advantages in selected cases. As new contact lenses are developed that can be left in for weeks, months and maybe even years the advantages, if any, of implants compared to contact lenses may not be very important.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I read in your column about the little girl who developed rheumatoid arthritis. My grandson, also 12 years old, was diagnosed as having rheumatoid arthritis. However, when the treatment did not help he was referred to another doctor. He actually had rheumatic fever. His treatment was changed and he is doing fine now after about a year. I wondered if the little girl could also have the wrong diagnosis.

DEAR READER - Rheumatic fever is sometimes hard to differentiate from rheumatoid arthritis. Rheumatic fever can, and in some regions often does, cause red hot swollen joints, an inflammatory reaction. It is caused by a complication of streptococcal infections (strep throat, for example).

The cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not known, although there are encouraging leads in some cases, related to infections, too. With laboratory tests, such as those that measure the immune reaction to streptococcal infections, it is usually possible to separate the two conditions. And, of course, most cases of rheumatic fever can be prevented if streptococcal infections are diagnosed and treated soon enough.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm having an argument with my neighbor. She says that the size of your stomach determines how fast your food is absorbed. I say you don't even absorb food from your stomach. Who is right? If I'm right that means you can't get any energy from the food you eat until it is emptied from the stomach.

How long does it take your stomach to empty after you have eaten?

Also, do you absorb food from your colon or not? I've had people try to tell me they have trouble with their weight because they have constipation. I do know that people who have diarrhea lose weight.

DEAR READER - You are right. The size of your stomach has very little to do with how fast your food is absorbed. Some alcohol is absorbed directly through the stomach wall but not one calorie of fat, carbohydrate or protein is.

Failure to understand digestion seems to be widespread. You don't swallow something and have it go directly into your bloodstream and body. It has to get out of the stomach and then to be broken down to a form that can be transported across the small intestinal wall before it has any effect on your body.

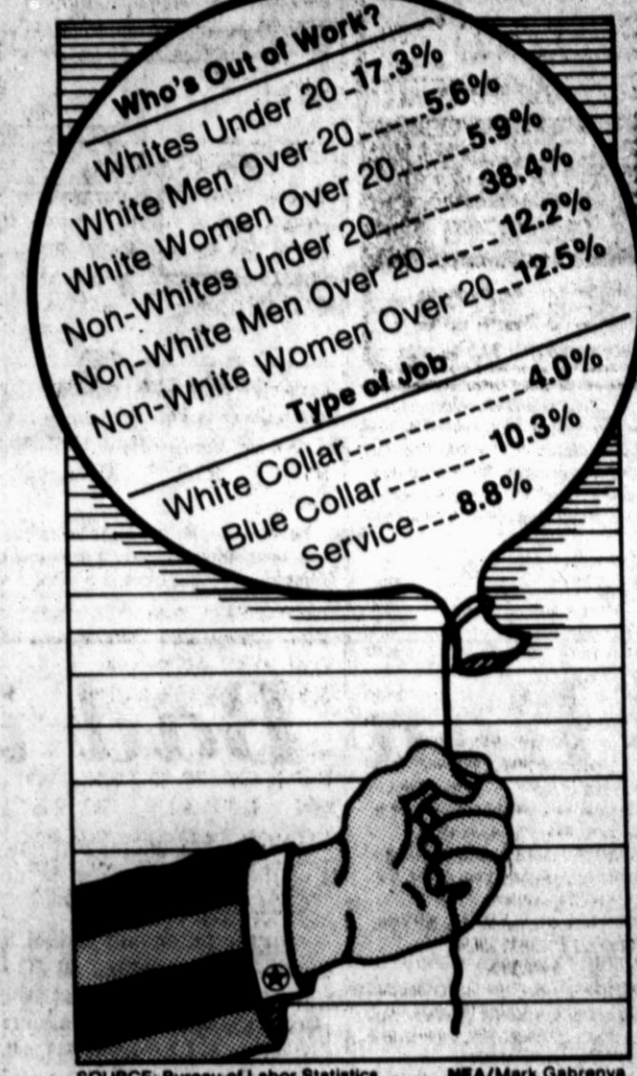

The stomach is a reservoir, a storage pouch. It processes food until it is converted to a slush or liquid before it squirts the food mixture out of the stomach into the small intestine. Sweet liquids go through the stomach the fastest. Proteins stay in the stomach longer and fats may slow the emptying of the stomach for hours. Heavy fat meals have been observed to stay in the stomach a whole day.

Food is not absorbed from the colon. Undigested food that gets into the colon is often fermented by bacteria and causes gas. Diarrhea diseases may prevent absorption of food from the small intestine (where most absorption takes place) resulting in weight loss. Of course, water loss is a factor in acute diarrhea.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Your advice to look in the phone books under Mental Health doesn't help thousands of us living in the boonies. Our phone book, 96 pages thick for three towns, doesn't list Mental Health. We are unable to drive the miles to the nearest big city - fellow, we just suffer. So don't be so glib for us who are worried and scared out of our poor old skulls. And don't pull a Landers or Brothers and suggest the clergy. They're too busy raising money to run a church. There is just one answer - don't become depressed - don't get ill and don't get old - unless you live in the city or have lots of money. Now you look in the Yellow Pages for sick-of-it old lady in tennis shoes.

DEAR SICK-OF-IT - You have a point. But you must not fall into the trap of refusing to find a solution. Some people do not want their problems solved - for psychological reasons. But you could have the local phone company let you look in the Yellow Pages of the city directory and call them. Through a social worker with such organizations they might have a solution that fits your local needs.

RISING UNEMPLOYMENT

Unemployment rates continue upward toward new postwar highs as the economic recession continues. Some 9.5 million Americans were out of work at the beginning of the year, 8.9 percent of the civilian labor force, up from 7 percent in July when the recession started. Government breakdowns by employment groups, above, indicate that joblessness is most seriously affecting young people, minorities, women and blue-collar workers. Previous record unemployment rate of 9 percent was set in May 1976. Economists do not expect the economy to strengthen appreciably until late this year.

1981 BUSINESS CLIMATE STUDY State Ranks and Regional Averages

Key: Number within the state is its overall rank based on 22 factors affecting business climate (1 best, 48 worst). Number below the regional name is the average rank of states within the region.

Texas Ranks Second in Nation In General Business Climate

Texas had the second best business climate for general manufacturing among the 48 contiguous states in 1981, it was reported in a study by Alexander Grant & Co., national accounting firm. Florida ranked first nationally.

The study was made in cooperation with the Conference of State Manufacturers' Associations (COSMA). The Texas Association of Business in Houston is the local COSMA affiliate.

In addition to its high national overall ranking, Texas ranked among the top five states nationally on seven of the 22 individual factors covered in the study and was ranked first overall in the South Central region, which includes Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Texas ranked high in the following:
--Unemployment compensation benefits of $32 paid per covered worker per year, lowest nationally and in the region.

--Population increase over three years, 1,427,000 persons, second highest nationally, first in the region.

--Value added by manufacturing employees—a productivity index—of $4.99 for each dollar of production payroll, third highest nationally, second in the region.

--Average hours worked per week, 41.2, a tie with Louisiana for third place nationally and first regionally.

--Proportion of labor union members per 100 non-agricultural workers, 11 fourth lowest nationally, first regionally.

--State and local government public welfare expenditures, $105 per capita, fifth lowest nationally and lowest regionally.

--Maximum weekly payment of $133 for temporary total disability under workers compensation insurance, fifth lowest nationally and second regionally.

office and partner in charge of the study, said changes were made based on input from many business organizations and other users of the past two year's studies. "We have, in effect, established a new and more comprehensive base for ranking the attractiveness of each state for general manufacturing operations," he said. Contrasted with 18 factors in prior studies, the 1981 study consists of 22 factors divided into five categories, including: state and local government fiscal policies; state regulated employment costs; labor costs; availability and productivity of labor force; other manufacturing related issues. Factors to be included were voted on by 38 of the 40 state business organizations that comprise COSMA.

Senate Aiming At Busing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is poised to approve stringent anti-busing legislation that critics say could undo school desegregation plans dating back to the 1960s if it became law.

The vote today was expected to be the first of a series of conservative victories in the Senate on social issues delayed last year while Congress worked on President Reagan's economic program.

The others include abortion, school prayer and a federal death penalty. All are likely to be debated in the Senate over the next three or four months.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., led a small band of Senate liberals in successful filibusters that postponed final votes on the busing issue for much of 1981. However, that filibuster finally was broken before Congress recessed last year.

Today's vote was scheduled to act on anti-busing amendments by Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Bennett Johnston, D-La. Both would be attached to the Justice Department's overall authorization bill if approved as expected.

The Johnston amendment, not yet considered by the House, would prohibit courts from ordering the busing of a student more than five miles or 15 minutes from home and, according to him, would apply retroactively. Critics say such an application could disrupt hundreds of existing desegregation plans put in place in the last decade.

How Bad is Housing?

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — How bad is the housing situation? In some regions, people now spend 40 percent of their income on home mortgages, real estate taxes and hazard insurance. Remember when it used to be 25?

As recently as five years ago, bankers said one-quarter of income was the upper limit in budgeting for housing costs. Most people paid far less than that, generally well under 20 percent.

In 1976 homebuyers spent 18.4 percent of income for mortgages, taxes and insurance on conventionally financed homes, according to Advance Mortgage Corp., one of the nation's largest home mortgage bankers.

In the latter half of 1981 it put the percentage at 32.1 percent, the result of the average home price having risen to $78,200 from $44,330, the mortgage to 15.14 percent from 8.87, and annual payments to $9,600 from $3,400, while household income rose only to $29,900 from $18,500.

Most people still consider $11,400 a fair pay raise over a five-year period, but it was no match for rising mortgage interest and prices.

San Diego homebuyers in 1976 spent 24.2 percent of income on housing. But that, says Robert J. Mylod, president of Advance Mortgage, was low in comparison to what ensued. Three years later the percentage had risen to 34.6. By 1981 it was 42.2, the nation's highest. San Diego, says Mylod, is "the most psychologically depressed housing market."

The San Francisco-Oakland-San Jose market was slightly better, with 40.7 percent of income going for home payments. If it weren't for unusually big incomes — an average household income of $39,500 — the percentage might have looked even worse. Prices averaged $130,800, compared with $59,200 in 1976. Buyers in 1976 paid $4,600 on mortgages, taxes, insurance. Buyers last year spent $15,500.

In Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Columbus, Dallas, Los Angeles, Miami, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, New York, Phoenix, Portland, Ore., St. Louis, Seattle, Tampa and Washington the income percentages were 30 or more.

Of all the major markets surveyed, only Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Detroit, Houston, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh remained under 30 percent of income for housing, and some of these percentages were depressed because of poor economies.

Mylod found Denver and Houston to be exceptions to the general trend. Since 1979, the percent of income needed by Denver homebuyers has steadily fallen, from 25.4 percent, to 24.8 in 1980 to 23.9 in 1981. In the latter half of 1981 the fall continued, reaching only 22.4 percent. It was only slightly higher in Houston, with a percentage of 24.7.

The explanation, Mylod believes, lies in the strength of the new-home market in these cities. And it might offer hope for other cities too. The new homes being built, he said, are "tilted heavily toward the low end" of the price scale. The economy house, that is, is on the market.

Polish Church Leaders Conferring With Pope

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Poland's top church leaders were due in Rome today to discuss martial law with Pope John Paul II and what to do about his plans to visit his homeland next summer.

Archbishop Jozef Glemp, the Polish primate, was coming to the Vatican with Cardinal Franciszek Macharski, the pope's successor as archbishop of Krakow, and probably two other bishops, Vatican sources said Wednesday.

It is the first visit by Glemp and the cardinal to the pontiff since martial law was declared in his homeland Dec. 13 in an attempt to check the reform movement led by the independent Solidarity labor union.

The pope and the Polish hierarchy were staunch supporters of the reform movement, but the hierarchy also sought to mediate between the government and Solidarity.

Since the suspension of the union and the internment of its chief leaders following imposition of martial law, the church has become the sole opposition voice inside Poland. But since more than 90 percent of the 36 million Poles are baptized Catholics and more than 75 percent attend church services regularly, the government has made no attempt to silence the bishops.

Vatican sources say the bishops differ on how militant a stance to take toward the military government, although they all supported a pastoral letter calling for restoration of civil rights and freedoms that was read in Polish churches the past two weekends.

The pope counseled patience in the early days of martial law, saying too much Polish blood had been shed in World War II to countenance a new rebellion. But as the seven-week-old crackdown continued, his statements have shown increasing impatience with the military grip on Poland and the internment without trial and persecution of Solidarity members.

At his weekly general audience Wednesday, he again deplored the loss of freedom in his native land and urged Poles to persevere in their faith.

John Paul is scheduled to visit Poland in August for the celebration of the 600th anniversary of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, Poland's holiest shrine. Vatican sources said they doubted he would make the trip if martial law was still in effect.

Most observers believe that the spontaneous outpouring of nationalism engendered by John Paul's first visit to Poland as pope in June 1979 was the forerunner of the nationwide wave of strikes a year later that produced Solidarity and the reform movement.
