Carter Says U.S. To Send Atherton

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter today announced the United States will send a high-level representative to a mid-December peace conference in Cairo and he called recent Arab-Israeli contacts "a historic breakthrough in the search for a lasting peace in the Middle East."

Carter told a nationally broadcast news conference that Assistant Secretary of State Alfred L. Atherton will head the U.S. delegation to the Cairo conference called by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. Carter said the conference is now scheduled for Dec. 13.

The president said that the importance of the meetings between Sadat and Prime Minister Menahem Begin of Israel "is that there has been an initiation of direct, person-to-person negotiations."

Turning to the U.S. role, Carter said, "I think it's much more important to have direct communication between Egypt and Israel than to have us acting as a constant, dominant intermediary."

He further characterized the U.S role as to encourage progress toward negotiations and an over-all settlement.

"We have no control over any nation in the Middle East," he said. "When we find progress being stopped, we use all the initiative we can."

He referred to the difficulty many Arab leader have in agreeing to direct discussions with Israel after so many years of armed confrontation and said the United States is taking "concrete steps" to persuade, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon to enter the negotiations.

There is no doubt in my mind that President Hafez Assad (of Syria) wants peace with Israel, "said Carter. "There is no doubt in my mind that King Hussein (of Jordan) wants peace with Israel."

While characterizing Egypt as the most populous and powerful of the Arab confrontation states. Carter said that both Israel and Egypt have publicly stated that a separate peace agreement, excluding the other Arab states. "is not desirable."

Only Israel, Egypt, and the United States have agreed so far to participate in the Cairo conference. Syria, the Palestinian Liberation Organization and the Soviet Union have rejected the invitations issued by Sadat.

Asked about criticism of his invitation to the Soviets to resume a role in the search for peace in the Middle East, Carter said, "I believe the Soviets will follow along and take constructive steps for a lasting peace."

The United States and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference at which previous Middle East settlements have been reached.

On other topics, Carter:
-Praised the late Sen. John L.
McClellan, D-Ark., for his legislative efforts to maintain a strong U.S. military defense. McClellan died Monday.

Said his position on energy legislation was unchanged and that he would veto any bill that would be unfair or violate energy conservation goals.

LA Merchant Says Official Paid $500,000

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Los Angeles clothing firm owner says he funneled more than $500,000 in "commissions" from a big American electronics firm to an official of the South Korean embassy in Washington

The remarks came in testimony from Howard Lee before the Securitiessands Exchange Commission, which is probing whether that money, plus about $900,000 more in commissions from E-Systems Inc. of Dallas, Texas, was used in the alleged South Korean influence-buying scheme in Washington.

In particular, the SEC is probing whether any present or former members of the U.S. military received payments from the South Korean government. An SEC subpoena specifically mentions a possible $10,000 payment by a South Korean businessman to a retired U.S.

Absentee Voting In Senate Election Begins Today

Absentee voting for the senatorial runoff election between former U.S. congressman Bob Price and current State Rep. Bob Simpson began today in the Deaf Smith County clerk's office.

Absentee voting will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Dec. 6. The election is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 10.

Simpson and Price finished 1-2, respectively in the Nov. 8 election to replace Max Sherman from District 31 in the state Senate. Sherman quit the Senate to accept the presidency of West Texas State University.

Price, a Republican who served in the U.S. House of Representatives, was in Hereford Monday night during a coffee held in his honor at Caison's Steak House.

Simpson, a Democrat, will be in Hereford at 2 p m. Wednesday, Dec. 7, in the Community Room of First National Bank.

Price farms and ranches in Pampa, and Simpson is an Amarillo attorney.

The Carter administration once again is sending "help wanted" signals after U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson concluded that his health prevents him from becoming FBI director.

Attorney General Griffin Bell announced Johnson's decision at a news conference Tuesday. He said he and President Carter may agree on a replacement by Jan. 17, when Congress returns from a recess.

Bell asked the current director, Clarence M. Kelley, to postpone his scheduled Jan. 1 retirement until mid-February. Kelley was to give Bell his answer today.

In a statement from his Montgomery, Ala., office, Johnson said his slow recovery from major surgery last August has forced him to step aside and to ask Carter to withdraw his nomination.

"It will be several more months before I will regain my strength and stamina."

C. Johnson said. "It will not be fair to the ministration once again is vanted" signals after U.S. "A keep this makes pending and become "

The Alabama judge was Carter's first choice for the job, and the President will have a tough time finding another nominee with such broad support. Civil rights groups that have criticized the FBI for past abuses of individual rights praised Johnson for his judicial decisions protecting the rights of schoolchildren, prisoners and mental patients.

FBI agents and other law enforcement groups generally were pleased with Johnson's record of imposing stiff prison sentences in criminal cases.

"Johnson has become the standard, and it's going to be a helluva tough standard for anyone else to come up to," a department official remarked.

Bell, who will recommend a potential nominee to Carter, said he doesn't plan to

Water Official Warns of Shortage

HOUSTON (AP) - Dr. V.E. McKelvey, director of the U.S. Geological Survey, says Americans must realize that a water shortage could be a "very severe problem in the future."

McKelvey, chairman of a conference on water data now under way in Houston, said in and interview Tuesday. "We are in no real danger now, but we must look to the future. We must find ways to use fresh water more effectively."

Asked if the nation was facing an immediate crisis in the supply of water, he said, "Not at this time. But we must be more prudent in the use of water in the future. To say it simply, we may some day have to stop watering our lawns each day during the summer or washing the car once a week."

McKelvey is chairman of an advisory committee on water data meeting in Houston for a three-day conference. The sessions will attempt to find methods of obtaining information needed to solve

The goal of the conference, Make

The goal of the conference, McKelvey said, is to avoid possible waste of time and effort in the collection of water date. Then we can concentrate on collecting information at key trouble spot where future problems appear likely to develop.

Attending the conference are members of national, state and regional water conservation organizations, professional and technical societies, and the academic community.

McKelvey said pollution of the rivers and streams can be solved and once that is done "scores of millions of dollars can be saved by understanding the pollution problem.

The amount of water American people have become to accept, an unlimited supply, can't be here forever. We can avoid a crisis, such as we now face in energy, if we look ahead."

Enrichment Program Offers Students Chance To Develop

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Some of the kids play cards, others put fish into an aquarium.

Another group is planning projects which include producing a Christmas play, setting up a school-supply store, and building a darkroom where they will develop their own photographs.

The 32 children involved in Bluebonnet Elementary School's non-academic enrichment program are not doing all those things strictly to have fun. They are learning some things they may not be picking up in the classroom.

The youngsters comprise a select group with high learning potential. The program got its name from one of its objectives — to provide an enriched learning environment for those particular students.

The enrichment classes offer them opportunities for independent study and research and encourage them to express themselves creatively. They also develop critical thinking through a variety of activities not available in the regular classroom.

It is not an accelerated program like the ones in junior high and high school because students are evaluated and not graded in the enrichment classes.

The program began at Bluebonnet three years ago, patterned after similar undertakings in Dallas, Houston, Mobile, Ala., and Wichita, Kan.

It began in Hereford with one instructor, Carol Sims. Now there are three at Bluebonnet and the program on the language arts level has been extended to the other five elementary schools in Hereford for fifth- and sixth graders.

The program may include kindergarten through fourth-grade students at the other schools, as it does at Bluebonnet, in the future, said Dr. Harrell Holder, superintendent of the Hereford Independent School District.

"It's possible, yes, if we are successful with it at Bluebonnet. We'd like to have a similar program throughout the elementary schools," said Holder, whose predecessor, Roy Hartman, helped initiate the classes in Hereford three years ago.

The Bluebonnet program actually does not have any kindergarten children and first-graders at the present time.

"Those kids will be included as soon as they've started reading," said Rodney Laubhan, Bluebonnet principal, who has examined other programs to get additional ideas for improvement of the Hereford classes.

"In the years we've had this, we've had to travel extensively." Laubhan said. "We've visited various programs. This thing in Mobile was a PESO (Panhandle Educational Service Organization) sponsored workshop in Talents Unlimited."

Two of the Hereford instructors

were in Mobile last week

Laubhan said he has had to travel so much because no cities close to Hereford have incorporated the program.

Second-graders at Bluebonnet meet for 30 minutes a class period on Tuesdays and Thursdays and are playing card games such as go fish and spades.

"I'm trying to develop some of their abstract thinking skills, often times their higher thinking skills," said Sue Brown, who teaches the younger group.

"Why did I choose games? A child has to think things out — he has to use his mind to think three or four steps ahead."

Her kids also are involved in a project called "team games and tournaments," a phase initiated in Hereford by Mrs. Brown and not through Talents Unlimited.

"I got the idea for it from a class I took," Mrs. Brown said.

After cards, the children will work in art activities, such as arranging three circles then incorporate them into a picture and also printing designs with sandpaper.

Leslie Paschel, who has the third-graders, stresses mind-expanding projects. Her pupils are creating an aquarium.

"They're picking out the material

Environmentalists Protest Canyon Drilling

NEW YORK (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency has granted 10 oil companies permits to begin exploratory drilling for oil off the New York and New Jersey coasts.

Formal announcement of the decision was made Tuesday following inquiries prompted by an Associated Press story disclosing the pending decision.

disclosing the pending decision.

The permits mean that the 10 companies will be free to explore for oil after Jan. 3 in an area known as Baltimore Canyon, which is between 75 miles and 135 miles south of Long Island and between 50 miles and 75 miles off New Jersey.

Environmentalists in both states repeatedly testified that the permits should not be granted. They contended that exploratory drilling would endanger marine life and cause pollution. They also argued that the federal agency was being lax in enforcing environmental standards.

However, an EPA source said the agency had determined, as it had when it granted tentative permits in September, that its "environmental review does not indicate that significant environmental impacts will result."

He added: "The permits limit the discharge of pollutants such as deck drainage, drilled cuttings, drilling muds and sanitary wastes which are associated with this type of operation in order to protect marine environment."

The 10 oil companies interested in drilling include Exxon, Gulf, Shell and ongoing battle being fought over the issue by environmentalists and the oil concerns.

On Nov. 14, Suffolk County and a group known as Concerned Citizens of Montauk asked the U.S. Spreme Court to review a decision issued in August by the U.S. Court of Appeals that said the drilling could go ahead.

That decision by the appeals courts overturned another decision issued last February by U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein that voided the leases granted

Senate Battles Bill To Pay for Abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House having rejected yet another compromise solution in the battle over governmentpeid abortions, faces increasing Senate opposition to providing funds for . nuing the fight.

The Senate resentment could threater funds for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare and paychecks for the two departments' 240,000 employees.

Appropriations for the departments are tied up in the abortion issue, and temporary funds provided earlier run out at midnight tonight. The House effort to provide more temporary money was expected today.

The House on Tuesday turned down what some senators had referred to as their final compromise offer. Each chamber has taken five votes on abortion suggestions proposed by the other, with the House taking a more restrictive view than the Senate on use of government money for abortion.

Pupils Smoke In Experiment

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) -Some New Hampshire high school pupils are being allowed to smoke in class this week - to show them the harm smoking inflicts on their bodies.

The New Hampshire Lung Association, using federal funds, has been supplying high schools throughout New Hampshire this fall with equipment to monitor heart rate, skin temperature, carbon monoxide in the blood stream and nervousness. This week, the tests began at West High School in Manchester

The pupils are monitored before and after smoking. Tests witnessed Monday showed the heart rate and carbon monoxide in the blood increased, while steadiness and skin temperature decreased.

It makes you realize what smoking really does. It makes your arteries and veins smaller so the heart has to work harder," said Karen Klop, 15.

Department Store Boom

Department stores are capturing an increasingly large share of the retail dollar. The Conference Board reports. In 1956, they accounted for only 26 percent of the $43.5 billion in sales of general merchandise, apparel and furniture. By 1976, they made over 44 percent of $154.3 billion. Over the same period, the share of business covered by specialty shops and variety stores declined. Mail order houses, however, showed gains.

Slowdown May Help Strain on Supplies

NEW YORK (AP) - The traditional winter slowdown in the construction industry may provide a welcome breather from the boom that has strained supplies of building materials such as copper pipes and insulation.

Although shortages of materials are not unusual in the highly cyclical industry, analysts say the sharp pace of the construction recovery has aggravated lags in supply and demand.

"This time around, I think the shortages have been the most pronounced since the second World War," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist for the National Association of Homebuilders.

Insultation and drywall have been put on allocation programs by some manufacturers who are unable to keep up with contractors' demands. In addition, prices of such items as lumber, bricks and plaster have increased sharply.

So far Sumichrast knows of no projects that have been canceled for lack of building supplies, but backlogs are common.

With producers of insulation and drywall already running their operations on double and triple shifts, the slowdown in construction activity this winter should provide a brief catch-up period that will ease some problems.

Manufacturers of drywall and fiber insulation had to shut down some operations when construction demand fell off sharply a few years ago, said Sumichrast, and they may be reluctant to fund permanent expansions now.

But a number of plants have moved in to fill the insulation gap by producing cellulose insulation, which requires a much lower initial investment to get manufacturing started.

Not all demand for such products comes from those in new building, of course. Koach notes that home remodeling and insulation projects have seen a dramatic upswing this past

But the longer-range projections for new building clearly indicate demand should remain high for the next several years.

According to a survey of more than 1,000 consulting engineering firms, construction of all types is expected to expand by more than 12 percent as measured by dollar volume next year although the total number of projects will increase only slightly, an industry magazine, Consulting Engineering, reported this past week.

In the housing industry alone, the Association of Homebuilders estimates that new housing this year will reach 1.97 million units and slow only slightly to 1.8 million units next year. By contrast, new housing construction was going up at an annual rate of only 900,00 units in the spring of 1975, before the latest upswing in the housing cycle.

In other bsiness developments this past week:

-Consumer prices continued to rise at a moderate rate in October, the government reported. The Labor Department's consumer price index showed prices increasing at an annual rate of 3.6 percent in October. Food prices, which make up roughly one quarter of the price index, rose only 0.1 percent in October, the same as the previous month.

Economists said steep declines in wholesale farm prices over the summer were largely responsible for easing of mer price rises. Consumer prices have increased at an annual rate of 3.8 percent in the last three months. In the first three months of the year, prices rose at an annual rate of 10

-A proposal to aid the domestic steel industry, due to go to President Carter next week, reportedly will aim at reducing foreign imports from about 20 percent to 12 percent to 14 percent. The plan, drafted by a special interagency tax force, would include minimum prices for 40 to 60 categories of imported steel to make domestic products more competitive. Also included would be a program for cheap loans and revisions of some tax and trade regulations to aid domestic producers, according to plans outlined to members of the Congressional Steel Caucus.

-Stockholders of Kennecott Copper Corp. filed suit against the company in an effort to stop its takeover bid of Carborundum Co. Kennecott, in a widely followed merger proposal, offered to buy stock of the abrasives manufacturer at $66 a share, almost twice what it had traded for early this year on the New York Stock Exchange. The suit, brought on behalf of the Frederick Danziger family in New York, charges that the merger price was too high and an unlawful waste of Kennecott's assets." A spokesman for the company says the stockholders didn't have enough information to make a proper judgment. -Gulf Oil Corp. was fined $36,000 after pleading guilty to giving illegal trips to an Internal Revenue Service auditor who supervised an audit of the company's 1959-1964 returns. Gulf did not admit any bribery in its plea but the case was seen as significant by some government sources because it marked one of the first times a major U.S. corporation acknowledged that gifts to the public officials are illegal even when no favors are expected.

Clothing the Skeleton in the Closet

By Garth B. Thomas President of Deaf Smith County Genealogy Society

Many of us have been fortunate in being acquainted with our parents. Some, less fortunate, spend their lives searching for a mother or a dad. Few of us have had the presence of mind to get to know our parents and through them, to know our grandparents.

Very, very few ever have the luck to meet a great-grandparent. In time, most of us realize how little we know of our progenitors. Many of us yearn to know more.

The Deaf Smith County Genealogical Society was organized in 1976 as a group to assist ourselves and others in tracing ancestral lines. A secondary purpose was to compile, organize and preserve significant and pertinent data on of Deaf inhabitants Smith County in order to assist any relative who might be seeking such family information. In addition, the Society strives to be of assistance to our Public Library through the purchase of genealogical material beyond the Library's budget.

It is a rare person who becomes a legend during his or her lifetime. Some individual activities are so outstanding they are documented in historical writings. However, in most families, research will disclose events and happenings which are unique and interesting - some are shocking, some are praiseworthy, and most all will explain why - why Grandpa sold out and moved.

Thus, it becomes fun and self satisfying to learn and to know that to survive in earlier days, in pioneer times, in Revolutionary days, in periods of famine and pestilence, our ancestors were the fittest and truly legendary. And remember, if they had not survived, you probably would not be you.

Thursday, Dec. 1st, Society members will assist, individually, persons present having difficulty in specific areas. Whether beginning or just stumped on where to look next, bring your questions, help may be as close as 211 East 4th, the

Compared to Rober Mugabe, Uganda's Idi Amin is a nice guy.

Colin Corbett, who says that, should know. He was born in Rhodesia, where Mugabe heads a guerilla movement.

Corbett, who now tives in Hereford and works for Arrowhead Mills, was interviewed recently by The Brand about terrorist activities and virtually unpublicized atrocities in his native land.

The villians in Corbett's story are Mugabe. leader of the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU), and Joshua Knomo, Zimbabwe African Peoples Union (ZAPU) boss.

Mugabe operates out of Mozambique, and Knomo heads a guerilla movement in Zambia and Botswana.

Caught in the middle is the white prime minister of Rhodesia, Ian Smith, who is making desperate attempts to bring peace to his country. Smith last week offered to steer Rhodesia to black majority rule in one-man, one-vote elections.

Jeremiah Chirau, leader of the moderate black Zimbabwe United Peoples Organization (ZUPU) said Smith's acceptance of majority rule could mean the end of guerilla fighting.

Corbett, for one, will be watching the situation

"These two guys (Mugabe and Knomo) hate each other. Their guerillas have met in Rhodesia and they've killed each other. They've formed an unholy alliance in order to overrun Rhodesia and then they plan to sort out their differences." said Corbett, who got his American job while studying this country's cattle business first-hand. said.

"I'm watching. What will stop me from living here is when the United States, if it does so, sends military equipment, advisors and military personnel to the factions going against Rhodesia.'

The whole thing started when Arnold and his wife were forced to sit in the no-smoking section of an airplane on their vacation.

"We were flying to Phoenix about four or five months ago," Arnold said. "When we got on board, they had oversold the smoking section. We sat in the non-smoking section on the way out there and I didn't say anything. And I didn't smoke.

But the same thing happened on the return trip. Another couple started raising hell about it. My wife and I just sat down, but after we took off I lit up a cigarette."

He said a stewardess asked him to put it out. "I told her I was going to smoke all the way to Lubbock and I did," Arnold

Arnold went to work and said he enlisted 2,500 members in the five months before Tuesday's announcement. He said the membership rolls include doctors, politicians and blue-collar workers, but declined to name any of them "until I get their approval."

"The whole thing behind this is just common courtesy between smokers and nonsmokers." Arnold said. "But there are 521/2 million of us there are 52½ million of us smokers. If you get that many behind you and take your petitions to Washington, watch what happens.'

Direct mail dividends

WASHINGTON — (NEA)— It is difficult, to put it mildly, to picture ultra-conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., on the cutting edge of political change.

But when it comes to campaign financing, Helms is blazing a trail which others may very well try to follow in the years about the years ahead.

A full year before he must face the North Carolina voters in his bid for a second term, Helms has raised an astounding $1.7 million in campaign contributions—roughly five times as much as any other candidate for the roughly five times as much as any other candidate for the Senate next year.

Only three 1976 senatorial contenders spent that much money for the primary and general elections combined, and they were running in states far bigger than North Carolina.

Sen. John H. Heinz III, R-Pa., shelled out $3 million, of which $2.5 million was his own money, while former Sens. James Buckley, R-N.Y., and John V. Tunney, D-Calif., spent $2.1 million and $1.9 million respectively on losing efforts to retain their seats.

Unlike these and other big sponsors of yesteryear, Helms has built up his war chest almost entirely from small contributions averaging about $13 per donation.

His secret weapon? Direct mail wizard Richard Viguerie, who has targeted fund-raising appeals at conservative true-believers all over the nation.

true-believers all over the nation

Viguerie's "prospecting" operation for Helms didn't come cheap. The senator has spent almost as much money as he has raised, and at least 40 percent has gone right to Viguerie.

But Helms now has accumulated a list of more than 100 000 sure fire contributors who will be togethered.

100,000 sure-fire contributors who will be tapped again and again in the coming year, at minimal cost to the campaign. In some respects, Helms is uniquely positioned to capitalize on a direct mail fund-raising scheme. Over the past couple of years, he has gradually emerged as a hero to the far right.

He has traveled widely, speaking to conservative groups all across the nation, and has lent his name to a variety of issue-oriented crusades by organizations opposing big issue-oriented crusades by organizations opposing big labor and big government.

His leadership role in the fight against the proposed Panama Canal treaties has solidified his reputation with the right, and turned him into the second-biggest conservative money raiser, behind Ronald Reagan.

Nonetheless, the direct mail technique Helms is using to finance his re-election campaign is likely to be employed by more and more candidates in years ahead, regardless of whether they have a readily identifiable pool of potential contributors to target.

The reason is simple. Campaign reform laws of the past few years have clamped strict limits on the amount both individuals and organizations may legally contribute to individuals and organizations may legally contribute to political candidates.

political candidates.

Although business and labor groups continue to pour millions into congressional campaigns through their political action committees, only the most powerful members of Congress — such as committee chairmen — can hope to garner enough money from these special interests to finance their campaigns.

Other senators and House members, espeically those who are not personally wealthy, must rely on small donations to survive. The day of the fat cat is over.

Direct mail, despite the enormous start-up costs, pays tremendous dividends. His Senate colleagues may sneer at Helms' hide-bound political views and his utterly predictable voting pattern, but they are gazing with awe at his campaign bankroll.

'Faces Run By Speeding Lobos

Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces jumped ahead of the .500 mark for the first time this season Tuesday night with an 88-86 win over the previously unbeaten Levelland Lobos in Levelland. Speed burners Kelly Kitchens and Robert Graves led the way to the win with 51 points between them.

Kitchens canned a seasonhigh 30 points against the Lobos, while Graves was also at his best with a 21-point effort in the contest, which was filled with never-stop action according to Herd mentor Bobby Deckes.

'It was just run and gun and have fun," Decker said. "We were just trying to stay up with them, and didn't get the chance to set up our offense very much.'

The 'Faces kept the pace well, exploding for 33 points in the first quarter to take a 33-24 lead. "We used the fast break all the time and did a good job moving down the court and filling the lanes," Docker said.

The Lobos closed the gap to four at 50-46 at the half, and scrapped back to knot the game at 68-68 after the third stanza. Things got even worse in the fourth quarter for Decker's crew as both big men, David Schumacher and Greg Brockman fouled out with nearly five minutes left.

"It gives you a scary feeling when you look out there and see all your height gone," the coach said. "But, we moved David Arney from the weak side post to the strong side, and put Larry McNutt in there at the weak did a real good job and helped offset some of the disadvantage," Decker said.

In the end it was another hot hand at the free throw line that propelled the Herd to the win. The Whitefaces canned 24 of 28 charity toss attempts in the game (86 percent) and held a 24-14 overall advantage in free throws over the losers.

Hereford was also without starter Jackie Mercer for the game due to illness, but the quickness of Kitchens and Graves, along with the hustle of Schumacher, paved the way for success via the fast break route.

Kelly and Robert each got a lot of points on the break, and Schumacher was down there in pretty good shape most of the time to help out," the coach

The loss was the first for the Lobos, who are now 2-1. The Herd moved to 3-2 on the season, and will open defense of their title in the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Tournament against Dumas Thursday night.

In other action Tuesday the HHS sophomores took a 61-60 win over the Lobos, while the Herd JV was clipped 56-52. Keith Adams' 21 points led the Herd sophs to their win, while Ernie Suarez added 14 and Randy Ellis 13.

Steve Cerda led the HHS JV in its loss with 11 points, while Kevin Bunch and Joe Walker each had 10, and Reid Herring and Buzzy Abalos nine each.

The other returning team. Dumas, finished last in the tourney a year ago, and coach Ben Scharnberg is looking to seniors Todd Hornsby and Gary Wingo and junior Kent Hazen to propel the Demons to a better finish this time around.

Newcomer Perryton shows a lot of height with 6-6 seniors Jeff Conner and David Reynolds leading the charge along with 6-4 Dave Rima.

The Clovis Wildcats of coach Jimmy Joe Robinson sport nine players at least 6-3 with 6-6 junior Robert Anderson leading the way. Able help will come from 6-5 juniors Lynn Culberth and Mark Steinle.

Palo Duro has but one player over 6-3 with 6-4 junior Todd Loftis the big gun. Coach Ed Smith will also be counting on 6-2 performers Victor Wells. Tracy McClain, and Scott Loftis on a team which has 14 juniors on the roster and no seniors.

Friday's schedule will be much the same as Thursday's with games slated for 2:30, 4:15, 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. The Clovis-Perryton winner will face the Monterey-Canyon winner at 6 p.m. in winner's bracket action, while the Palo Duro-Morton winner will meet the winner of the Herd-Dumas match in a 8 p.m. contest.

Eagle Trial To Begin

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Testimony is to begin next Monday in the federal court trial here of three Central Texas men charged with conspiracy and airborne hunting of endangered golden eagles.

Jury selection was completed after U.S. District Court Judge John H. Wood Jr. rejected a bid to delay the trial.

Defense attorney Will A. Morriss Jr. had sought the continuance because of his own illness and the illness of a prospective witness.

Facing trial on a nine-count indictment are Real County Commissioner Lanny Leinweber, Andrew Allen and Norman M. Pape.

They are accused of conspiracy, violations of airborne hunting laws and illegal killing of golden eagles.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys' passing game is under Coach Tom Landry's microscope prior to the start of the National Football League playoffs.

But he says, contrary to rumor, that there's nothing wrong with quarterback Roger Staubach's arm.

"We're aware Roger isn't passing the ball well but there's nothing wrong physically," said Landry Tuesday. "We're reviewing the situation. Roger could have fallen into some bad habits. We just haven't reached a conclusion.

"Poor routes and poor protection could be throwing Roger's timing off. We just don't know. We have a young offensive line and a young tailback rookie Tony Dorsett. But we're not overly concerned. Overall we're not bad but we've got to improve if our goal is the Super Bowl.' Dallas is 9-2 and has already clinched a National Conference wild card berth. A victory over Philadelphia Sunday in Texas Stadium would nail the NFC East title flag to the mast.

Landry said, "The best thing we did was shutout Washington in the second half. Pittsburgh and St. Louis whipped us in the second half and that's where we had been winning our games. That's a very encouraging sign." "I think we will be ready for this game, but Philadelphia has a sound defensive team," said

Landry said the peaks and valleys of the Cowboy caliber of play could be traced to young players on defense and in the offensive line.

"We haven't had a good enough offense the last two or three weeks to get us into the Super Bowl," said Landry. "But we'll get better."

Landry said the encouraging thing about the victory over Washington was the way the Cowboys dominated the second half in the 14-7 conquest. "We certainly matured as a team in the second half after two bad games in a row against St. Louis and Pittsburgh," said Landry. "That was very significant because a loss would have really backed us up."

Thrills Dominate College Games

By Murray Olderman

STANFORD, Calif. NEA)- They gather in the groves of eucalyptus across the road from the stadium as early as 10:30 on a Saturday morning. No longer are the tailgates flung open, except to unload the truffles and quiche and vintage wines. Linen-clothed tables are extended under the arbors to hold the feast.

This is part of the college football ritual, the gathering point. The ambience is delightful, but it is only the appetizer. It doesn't explain why, by the tens of thousands, people of all persua-sions flock to the stadium to see a horde of tightly clad scholars knock bodies around for the entertainment of the masses.

There is the game itself. It is, in a word, exciting.

Professional football has been pushing heavily the notion that in this society it has become the national pastime. Millions since the mid-1950s have been caught up in the mystique of the long bomb, the 4-3 defense, the 3-4 defense, flare controls, etc.

But a dullness has also crept into the pro game there is a sameness about the way all 28 teams in the NFL play offense and de-fense which makes it predictable and stereotyped and, yes, frequently boring. Not so with the college football I've seen this year. The Stanford-UCLA game a few weeks ago was the most thrilling I have seen in years. Razzle-dazzle endarounds, long, heroic passes, sensational bursts through the line of scrimmage featured the action. Stanford, in fact, operating in an area with two professional football teams, one of them the defending Super Bowl champions (the Oakland Raiders), has consist-ently put on the best football show in northern California. Their freshman running back, Darrin Nelson, is the most exhilirating scat type since Buddy Young of Illinois a generation ago. Their quarterback, Guy Benja-min, could step into the lineup of virtually any pro

Stanford Coach Bill Walsh is in a good position to analyze the merits of the pro and college games because for a full decade, prior to taking over the collegians this season, he was a pro assistant with Oakland, Cincinnati and San Diego, building a reputation as an offensive coordinator.

The kids at Stanford learn faster than pros," says Walsh, explaining the complex offensive patterns he has installed. They're as sophisticated and detailed as any pro attack. The professionals may not be as interesting as they should

We feature a lot of variety," says Mike White, the coach of the University of California at Berkeley, which has also been staging its share of entertaining spectacles each Saturday. That's both offensively and defensively. Why can't the pros do it? They could. But a lot of guys would be afraid for their jobs."

There is another transcending reason for the ap-peal of the college game. Varsity football is a tribute to the imperfection of man and the games he plays.

Eddie LeBaron, the new general manager of the surprising Atlanta Falcons, puts it this way: They play the same offenses as the pros. The defenses just aren't as good."

That means they can be exploited with plays that bring the spectators to their feet. It also means there are several options open to colle-gians which are simply shut off by the excellence of the pros, where huge, agile linebackers made running wide a virtual impossibility.

The pros are much more patterned in their attack. Watching the Oakland Raiders, you know as sure as Al Davis chews his finger nails that Fred Biletnikoff on third down will curl out one yard past the first down marker, that Cliff Branch will sprint deep down the left side, that Dave Casper will trundle over the middle.
