Government says

Consumer prices performing well

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, half-way through 1986, are down at an annual rate of 0.2 percent, their best performance in more than three decades, the government said today. The good news came despite a 0.5 percent increase in June.

Last month's increase, the steepest since November, followed a 0.2 percent May gain.

Yet, due largely to three months of falling prices earlier in the year, inflation at the retail level for all of 1986 is now expected to be 2 percent or less.

Both gasoline and food prices rose last month, the Labor Department said.

Gasoline prices, on the heels of a 2.5 percent May gain, picked up even further, rising 3.1 percent in June. Analysts note that, however, by the end of the month, pump prices had once more turned downward.

Food prices were up a tiny 0.1 percent after a 0.4 percent increase in the preceding month.

The year-to-date reading was the best since six-month showing since a 0.4 percent drop in 1955.

Despite the June gasoline price increase, overall energy costs this year have fallen an at annual rate of 40.2 percent.

Grocery store prices declined at an annual rate of 0.5 percent through June while restaurant meals increased 4.1 percent for the same period.

Food prices overall for the year have risen 1.0 percent at an annual rate.

For June, the department offered these statistics:

—Housing costs, which fell 0.1 percent in May, climbed 0.5 percent, partly reflecting higher costs for energy and other utilities.

—Natural gas and electricity prices increased 2.6 percent after a 0.6 percent decline in May. Heating oil, coal and bottled gas prices fell 1.8 percent after a 4.4 percent drop in May.

—Fruit and vegetable prices fell 2.8 percent after a 1.9 percent rise in May while meats, fish and egg prices gained 1.0 percent after a 0.3 percent May increase.

—New car prices, which have been climbing throughout the year, rose 0.6 percent while used car prices were down 0.4 percent.

The overall June increase was equivalent to an annual rate of increase of 5.7 percent, according to Labor Department analysts.

The rise left the Consumer Price Index at 327.9, meaning that the same market basket of goods that cost $10 in 1967, the base period, would have cost $32.79 last month.

This figure, unlike others in the report, is not adjusted for seasonal variations. That was 56 cents above what the identical selection of goods would have cost in June 1985, when the consumer price index stood at 322.3.

Detailed description given

Police looking for rape suspect

A young woman who stopped to help an apparent stranded motorist near West Central School was grabbed from behind, threatened with a gun, then taken to another location and raped, according to Hereford police.

According to a report filed Tuesday night, the victim was waved down in the 100 block of Campbell by a man who appeared to be having pickup trouble. After the woman stopped, the man put a gun to her back and said he would kill her if she didn't go with him.

The man took her in his pickup to near Reinauer Produce, forced her to strip, then raped her, according to the police report. He then took her back to Campbell Street.

Descriptions given by the victim to a female county deputy and a physician at Deaf Smith General Hospital are being used by police investigators to find the subject. He is described as a brown-eyed white male, approximately 25-years-old, with short dark brown hair and thin eyebrows. He is about 5'4" and weighs approximately 180 lbs. On his cheek is a dark mole about the size of the end of a pencil.

He was wearing a yellow T-shirt, blue jeans, white leather loafers, a leather banded watch and a ring on his right hand.

The pickup was described as a white and dark colored 1980 Chevrolet with dark interior. It had rally wheels, a tinted back window and a 6-inch crack on the driver's side of the windshield.

The victim remembered the gun as having wooden grips.

Group urges income tax prohibition

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Constitution should prohibit any personal or corporate income tax, says an anti-tax group urging Gov. Mark White to allow lawmakers to consider such a ban next month.

"It's a very traditional value that we have in this state. The people don't want an income tax," said Rep. Bill Blanton, R-Farmers Branch.

The group Texans Against State Income Taxes sent White a letter Monday encouraging him to include consideration of a constitutional amendment banning an income tax as part of his formal calling of the Aug. 6 special legislative session.

The group's chairman, Richard Ford, said that although White and other state leaders say they oppose any income tax, a constitutional prohibition is better.

"I don't believe they will be in office indefinitely. This is an issue that is so important that it needs to be put into the Constitution to protect the people," Ford said.

If approved in the special session, a proposed constitutional amendment could go before voters in November.

Committee hears gripes about DOE

Witnesses from Texas, Nevada, and Washington — all selected by the Department of Energy for nuclear waste repository site characterization — testified before a House subcommittee on energy development Tuesday afternoon to blast DOE actions.

Rep. Beau Boulter (R-Amarillo) said at the hearing that "politics rather than science and safety are driving this nation's search for a high level repository."

He was joined in protest by Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) who said postponement of a second site search created a "reasonable justification for inquiry" and charge that the DOE appears to be on a "predetermined, preconceived course" in its efforts to place a repository.

Boulter will support an amendment to be brought before the House today by Rep. James Weaver of Oregon which will cut $291 million from the DOE's $677 million nuclear waste repository budget.

Lawmakers critical of Reagan's remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's refusal to seek sanctions against the white-ruled South African government is being sharply criticized in Congress, with even Republicans saying legislation to cut most American economic ties with that country is now likely to pass.

Republicans and Democrats attacked Reagan's speech Tuesday in which he said sanctions "would destroy America's flexibility, discard our diplomatic leverage and deepen the crisis. To make a difference, Americans — who are a force for decency and progress in the world — must remain involved. We must stay and work, not cut and run."

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of the chief congressional supporters of White House foreign policy, said, "I think the president needs to do more."

Lugar predicted guerrilla warfare in South Africa within the next "two or three months" unless Pretoria takes major steps toward ending apartheid, the system of legal segregation by which 5 million whites control the nation's 24 million blacks.

Lugar said he supports a limited package of sanctions. Those include refusing landing rights in the United States for South African commercial planes, freezing bank accounts of whites who try to move assets out of the country, and the closing of U.S. consular offices.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said she was "deeply disappointed that the president chose not to announce a new direction for U.S. policy in South Africa."

Lugar said his panel will try to put together a sanctions bill in the next three weeks before Congress takes its August recess.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called Reagan's speech "not only a disappointment but a disaster" and said the president gave "hope and sustenance to the forces of apartheid."

In the formal Democratic response, Rep. William Gray III, D-Pa., criticized Reagan's policy and said the president "protects Pretoria from the one weapon it fears most."

Just about the only support for Reagan was voiced by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who said "the damage that can be done to the United States by these actions (sanctions) will far outweigh any advantages that would come to both black and white people living in South Africa."

Whatever passes the Republican-controlled Senate will have to be reconciled with the bill passed by the Democratic-run House a month ago. The House bill imposes a total trade embargo and requires U.S.

businesses to end their investments in that nation.

The House action came shortly after Pretoria imposed a state of emergency permitting arrest of blacks without charges for six months, strict press censorship and new restrictions on public meetings. In the past two years, about 2,100 people have been killed in anti-apartheid protests.

Reagan, as he has in the past, rejected the idea that sanctions will force Pretoria to change what he said is a system that is "morally wrong and politically unacceptable."

"Those who tell us the moral thing to do today is embargo the South African economy and write off South Africa should tell us exactly what they believe will rise in its place," he said in the speech to a White House audience of foreign policy experts.

Local Roundup

Mischief, burglaries reported

Authorities at Northwest Elementary reported to police Tuesday that a window had been broken by a water hose. No entry was made, but footprints were found at the window. Also at the school, Boy Scout leaders reported that someone had tampered with the troop's bus and caused about $25 worth of damage.

At 223 S. 25-Mile Ave., police checked a burglary report filed by Alex Serrino. The barber shop at that address had its west door forced open and on the inside all the drawers and cabinets had been ransacked. About $20 in cash was taken from a cigarette vending machine.

Other reports filed Tuesday involved two domestic assaults, two vehicle vandalisms, a vehicle burglary, a car ransacked, trash pickup problems, gunshots heard, fireworks shot in town, children throwing mud, a pried open window screen, and some children atop a house.

Farmers Union says export deficit may be start of trend

WASHINGTON (AP) — An agricultural trade deficit of $348.7 million in May was not a fluke as some have suggested, according to the National Farmers Union.

"It will likely continue through the summer, and since other productive is being done to correct conditions, it could prevail for the year as a whole," the NFU said Tuesday in its newsletter.

"If that happens, it would be the first agricultural trade deficit in 27 years," the report said. "It was in 1959 that farm and food imports exceeded agricultural exports."

According to the Agriculture Department, U.S. farm exports for the entire fiscal year that began last Oct. 1 will be about $27.5 billion, down 12 percent from last year and 37 percent below the record of $43.8 billion in 1980-81.

The agricultural trade balance is the difference between the value of exports and the value of agricultural imports. For years, the United States has enjoyed a large advantage, with exports far exceeding imports.

Even this year, according to USDA estimates, agricultural exports will exceed imports by about $7.5 billion.

The administration and some private economists say U.S. farm exports will begin to rise slowly as lower prices for American commodities take hold and attract overseas buyers.

Administration officials contend the lower price supports authorized by Congress in the Food Security Act of 1985 will make U.S. farm commodities more competitive on the world market.

But the NFU is not convinced. Five years ago, it said, the agricultural trade balance was $26.5 billion, and it "may possibly melt away entirely" this year.

"The May experience ought to shock the American people into looking critically at current farm and trade strategy, for it is obvious that whatever is being done is not working," the NFU said. "The times require more than a childish demand for doing more of what is already shown to be unsuccessful."

In NFU's view, the government should guarantee farmers higher minimum prices for commodities to cover costs of production and a reasonable profit.

Fly Control For Cattle

So your using insecticide ear tags as your only means of face horn fly control in cattle. Your not getting the best results? Well, consider "helping" those ear tags a little. Ear tags are still as good as ever for face fly control. However, cases of horn fly resistance to tags have been documented in 16 states. Maybe it's time to look at what used to work? Dig out those organophosphates and dust bags. We never had trouble controlling flies with these tools. Ear tags are just so convenient for cattlemen. In forced situation dust bags have shown to be the most effective and efficient means of applying insecticides.

Tags are still very effective against horn flies and may be all you need until late July and early August at which time we usually see a peak in face fly population. Adding a dust bag at this time will give a boost in fly control.

Let's get the word out to avoid total resistance to tags, producers who have used ear tags for fly control for three or more years should consider an organophosphate insecticide, whether they've seen resistance in the horn fly population or not.

Studies at USDA research centers have shown improved face fly control when using tags and dust bag together.

This information was put together through the Deaf Smith County Extension Office with assistance from the Animal Health Bulletin.

Boys' major league all-stars eliminated at sectional

The Hereford Kids Inc. boys' major league all-star team suffered elimination from the Bronco sectional tournament in Amarillo when it lost to Amarillo National 14-9 Tuesday.

On Monday, Hereford fell to Amarillo American 20-1 on Monday. Hereford held a 2-0 lead after one inning of play Tuesday night. Hereford pitcher Joel Gaytan struck out three Amarillo National batters in that inning, but also walked two batters.

In the bottom of the first, Petey Colvin singled, Gaytan hit an RBI double, and Brady Collard hit an RBI single.

Gaytan had some more problems walking batters in the second inning, when Amarillo National loaded the bases on walks. One run was scored on a grounder that resulted in a forceout at third base.

Hereford moved ahead by two runs again, 3-1, in the bottom of the second inning. Vince Castillo walked, advanced two bases on two wild pitches, and Colvin batted him in with a single.

Colvin stole second and third, but was left stranded at third base.

Amarillo National used a single, a walk, an RBI single, an error, another RBI single, and an RBI groundout to score four runs in the top of the third for a 5-3 lead.

Hereford then tied the game at 5-5 in the bottom of the third. Kevin Kelso walked, stole second and stole third, and Brady Collard walked and stole second.

The runs were scored on an RBI groundout by John Nava and an RBI single by Jake Head.

Amarillo National moved ahead 9-5 in the top of the fourth. The sequence of events in the inning were a single, wild pitch, RBI single, single, run scoring on a passed ball, walk, and a two-run double.

Amarillo National then increased its lead to 11-5 in the top of the fifth, scoring one run on a groundout and the other run on a wild pitch.

Head hit a two-run single for Hereford in the bottom of the fifth inning. Runners scoring were Kelso, who singled, and Nava, who walked.

In Hereford's sixth inning, Colvin walked and Gaytan doubled, putting runners at second and third. Colvin scored on a wild pitch.

Gaytan went to third on that wild pitch, and then scored when Kelso hit a double.

Amarillo National added three runs in the seventh inning with a double, an error, a single and a double.

Hereford had two baserunners in the bottom of the seventh, but failed to score. With one out, Head walked and went to second base on a wild pitch. Joe Rojas walked, and Head and Rojas advanced one base each on a wild pitch. The potential rally was thwarted by the Amarillo National pitcher who struck out two Hereford batters to end the contest.

Hereford used three pitchers in the game. Gaytan pitched two innings, recording three strikeouts, walking six batters, and allowing one hit.

Jamie Kapka pitched three innings. He struck out four Amarillo National batters, but walked three batters and had seven Amarillo batters connect for hits off him. Fonzie Enriquez then pitched two innings, allowing three hits and recording one strikeout.

Babe Ruth all-stars in title game

A spot in the West Texas state championship game was earned by the Hereford Kids Inc. Babe Ruth League 14 and 15-year-old all-stars when they defeated Andrews 3-1 Tuesday night in Levelland.

The championship game is set for 6 p.m. Thursday.

Tuesday night's game was a pitcher's duel, compared to Hereford's other tournament games (27-0 over Levelland Brown on Saturday and 7-3 over Levelland Blue on Sunday).

Hereford scored one run in the top of the first inning for a 1-0 lead, and it was not until the sixth inning that more runs were scored in the game.

Glenn Parker walked and went to second base on an error. Roger McCracken hit a single to bat in Parker for the first-inning run.

Andrews had just four baserunners in the first five innings. Jason Scott pitched the first two innings for Hereford, allowing two hits and striking out one batter.

Fidel Ceballos pitched the last five innings, striking out two batters and giving up four hits. Neither Scott nor Ceballos walked an Andrews batter.

Hereford had two baserunners in the fifth inning, both of which walked, but they were stranded on the basepaths.

In the top of the sixth inning, McCracken and Robby Collier both singled. Kyle Andrews gave Hereford some important runs when he stroked a two-run double, giving Hereford a 3-0 lead.

The Andrews team managed one run in the bottom of the sixth when two batters hit singles, and later were successful in a double steal attempt to score the run.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have been telling your readers that if they want to donate their organs at the time of death they should carry organ donor cards.

I am a kidney transplant recipient and I work with the Kidney Foundation in Maine. We distribute donor cards, but your readers should be told that the card alone isn't enough. Your next of kin's permission is required at the time of donation. This means if you want to make sure your organs are taken, you must tell your loved ones NOW so when the time comes, they will inform the doctors of your wishes. Some physicians are reluctant to approach the family of a potential donor for fear they might seem insensitive, but if the doctors don't ask and the family doesn't offer, the chance to save another life is lost.

Stating this wish in your will is useless. Organs must be taken within hours of death. By the time the will is opened and read it is too late.

The donor cards are still important because it can be a good conversational springboard to let your family know how you feel. Such a discussion may seem depressing, but it is one you owe your family because in the event of sudden death, organ donation might be the only way they can get solace and comfort from the loss. It can help them to accept the positive aspect of something that seems unbearably cruel and unfair.

Please, Ann, tell your readers to send for a donor card, sign it and carry it in their wallets. But more important, when the card arrives, they should talk with their loved ones and make their wishes known. There are more than 8,000 people in this country waiting for kidneys, 100 or more waiting for hearts, 300 for livers, 4,000 for corneas, and a host of others are waiting for a pancreas, bone marrow or skin. Many of these people will die while usable organs are buried with the dead.

Donor cards can be obtained by contacting the National Kidney Foundation affiliate in their areas. It's in the phone book. If they can't find it, they should call the American Council on Transplantation. The number is 1-800-Act-give. We appreciate your help, ANN.—RUTH FARABEE COBB, A VOLUNTEER IN WINDHAM, MAINE

DEAR RUTH: Thanks for a letter that will surely save countless lives. I urge my readers to act on this today. Mature people face reality. This could make possible the most meaningful gift you will ever give. (P.S. Age is no barrier. Skin from an 8-year-old recently saved the life of a baby who suffered burns over 80 percent of his body.)

Fleas are essential to the health of armadillos and hedgehogs—they provide necessary stimulation of the skin.
