

Strike's Phase III Opens as Promised

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Farmers supporting the American Agriculture movement's strike launched what they have termed a "more militant" Phase III on Tuesday, but demonstrations staged at Lubbock, Amarillo, Childress and Hereford remained basically low key as compared to activities of the past two weeks.

Tuesday's largest event was a tractorcade on Loop 289 around the South Plains city of Lubbock.

An estimated 1,100 tractors showed up for that event, and encircled Lubbock with a ring of tractors 27 miles long.

Farmers began arriving at about 9 a.m. Tuesday and continued circling the city until 2 p.m.

Farm vehicles were directed into a single solid lane of traffic along the loop, and Lubbock police reported only minor inconveniences in the movement of traffic during the peaceful demonstration.

A group of 30 crop dusting planes also flew over the South Plains city in support of the American Ag movement.

Another contingent of farmers gathered at Western Plaza shopping center in Amarillo for a rally and prayer session.

Farmers from numerous Panhandle communities parked their tractors at the mall and gathered around for prayer and song before making plans to participate in a nationwide plowup of wheat, which is aimed at cutting wheat acreage by 50 percent.

In Childress, farmers burned a bale of cotton and forced the closing of a grocery store, drawing angry reactions from some of the patrons of the store.

Hereford strike supporters staged relatively low-key activities here, forming mini-caravans of tractors and parading along local streets and highways to the north and east of the city.

A group of some 20 tractors blocked the entrance to the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant at about 4:30 p.m. yesterday, just as the shift was changing at the plant.

Leo Harper, plant manager and Calvin Jones, who is assuming duties as agricultural manager at the plant met with the picketing farmers for a brief period and issued a press release concerning the local plant's position on the farm strike.

The press release stated: "As an agricultural business, Holly Sugar Corporation supports the objectives of the American Agriculture movement. Because of the joint efforts of sugar beet and sugar cane farmers and processors and refiners during 1977, the domestic sugar industry has been given some relief by Congress in the farm bill which supports sugar beets at 52 1/2 percent of parity. While this is still below the farmer's and Holly's cost of production, it is step in the right direction toward achieving the agriculture movement's goals. Unlike other agricultural products, the sugar beet farmer produces the crop under a participating contract whereby he shares in the processor's sales dollar for sugar produced from his crop. The returns from the sale of sugar are divided on about a 60-40 basis with the larger share going to the farmer. Holly's goal in 1978 is to contract for and harvest 30,000 acres of sugar beets in the Hereford District, so this important factory can continue as a viable operation."

Phase III Launched Here

American Agriculture movement supporters across the Panhandle and South Plains turned out to launch Phase III of the farm strike Tuesday. Activities were relatively low-key in Hereford, although farmers did block the entrance to the Holly Sugar Corporation's beet processing plant here for a short time Tuesday afternoon. In the top photo, Calvin Jones (hard hat at left), and Leo Harper, (hard hat, right), discuss the local plant's stand on the American Ag movement with local strike supporters. The tractor barricade remained in place at the local plant for only about 30 minutes, before picketing farmers departed, satisfied with the contents of a press release issued by the local plant. ## Carter Urges Support Of Palestinian Rights

ASWAN, Egypt (AP) - President Carter met for an hour with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt today and afterward expressed support for "the legitimate rights of the Palestinians."

Sadat told newsmen he and Carter shared "identical views" and had decided on "specific steps" to be taken for peace. But Carter's endorsement of the rights of the Palestinians did not go beyond his previous statements.

He refrained, for example, from endorsing the independent Palestinian state demanded by Sadat and other Arab leaders and rejected by Israel.

Reading a prepared statement as a desert wind tugged at his coat, Carter pronounced "first principles" for a lasting peace between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

True peace, he declared, "must be based on normal relations between all the parties."

"There must be withdrawal by Israel from land occupied in 1967," he continued, and there must be secure borders for all parties. And "there must be resolution of the Palestinian problem" insuring the legitimate rights of the Palestinians, and the Palestinians "must participate in the determination of their future."

As in the past, Carter did not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization, with which both Israel and the United States refuse to deal because of its dedication to the destruction of the Jewish state.

Carter and Sadat met at the airport outside Aswan, the Egyptian winter playground on the upper Nile, during a 90-minute pause in the American president's flight from Saudi Arabia to Paris, the sixth stop on his seven-nation foreign tour. Sadat asked for the meeting after Carter said he favored a Palestinian homeland linked to Jordan rather than an independent state.

The two leaders were relaxed and smiling after their talk and embraced warmly after their statements to reporters. Sadat grinned broadly.

One high-ranking member of Carter's party said the U.S. president would seek to learn three things from Sadat:

1. What he expects from the political and military talks between the Egyptian and Israeli foreign and defense ministers that are to begin later this month.

2. What position Egypt will take when (See CARTER, Page 2)

Public Attendance Urged 'Government Month' Begins in Hereford

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford and Deaf Smith County's government officials have accepted a Brand promotion making January "Government Month," which stresses public involvement in local politics.

County Judge Sam Morgan and Mayor Bartley Dowell Tuesday proclaimed it "Government Month" in Hereford and urged public attendance at each meeting of a governmental entity during January.

"I think it's a real good idea," Morgan said. "I'm real concerned that every citizen of Deaf Smith County really knows and is interested in local government."

Morgan said that when the people of the county do not "take care of local government" then either "the state or national government will."

Dowell said a problem faced by governmental bodies is that "people don't know the meeting is open."

Morgan agreed and endorsed the Texas Open Meetings Law.

"It's a good law and it was prepared so that every citizen in the county has the right to attend the meetings of any governmental board. I think they should do it."

"I'd like to urge every citizen of Deaf

Smith County to attend the meetings of commissioners court and other government functions in order that they'll know what's happened in their counties.

"It's real important that people keep themselves informed about what's going on so they don't have to listen to rumors. So many times, people will hear a rumor that grows and grows and accept it as truth."

City Manager Dudley Bayne said he too hopes "Government Month" inspires a large turnout of citizens at local meetings.

"I think it's good if people know what's going on, taking place in their city, and what business matters the commission has to review and act on," Bayne said.

"Government Month is good if you can get people interested enough."

Dr. Harrell Holder, Hereford Independent School District superintendent said he hopes public response is good because "every citizen is directly concerned with the function of the district's schools."

Attendance at school board meetings, Holder said, "would give the average citizen some insight into the operation of the schools. The schools are responsible for the children and the expenditure of (See MONTH, Page 2)

Mahon To Visit Hereford

U.S. Rep. George Mahon, who has announced his retirement at the end of 1978, will come to Hereford Thursday as he starts a visit around his 19th Congressional District.

Rep. Mahon will attend the Kiwanis Club meeting at noon Thursday and visit here briefly before going to Dimmitt for a 3:30 p.m. appearance at the Castro County Courthouse. He is scheduled to be in Friona Thursday morning.

Mahon has served in the U.S. House of Representatives since his election to the 74th Congress in November, 1934. As a member of Congress, Mahon has been interested in all legislation, but he has been most noted for his work in agricultural and defense matters. He has been chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee since 1964.

Long considered as one of the most powerful men in Washington, Mahon has been an outspoken advocate of economy and pay-as-you-go policies throughout his tenure in the House. Mahon as reared on a cotton farm in Loraine, and began the practice of law in Colorado City in 1925. He was born in Louisiana on Sept. 22, 1900.

Banquet Tickets Issued

Hereford Hustler Charles Bell, left, supplies banquet tickets to the newest members of the Chamber of Commerce Hustlers organization Ron Smith and JoAnn Dwyer to sell to the public. The annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 19 at the Hereford Country Club, with Edward O'Daniel, Fort Worth humorist, scheduled as guest speaker. There are 600 tickets available from Hustlers, who will receive points for selling tickets. ## Chilean Referendum Favors Dictatorship SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) - Chileans vote today for the first time in almost five years in a referendum expected to give President Augusto Pinochet's military dictatorship a big endorsement.

About 6 million people were expected to vote, marking either "yes" or "no" on paper ballots to a brief statement backing Pinochet "in his defense of the dignity of Chile" and reaffirming the legitimacy of the military government that seized power in 1973.

An opinion poll taken last week indicated 70 percent would vote "yes."

Pinochet, the army general who heads the Tour man junta that overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende, ordered the plebiscite after the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution last month condemning abuses of human rights by the military regime. Pinochet called this "international aggression" against Chile.

Pentagon Preparing To Shut Down Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pentagon leaders are preparing for a new round of military base closings and reductions that they calculate will save $25 million to $300 million a year.

They have instructed each armed service to list bases that can be eliminated or cut back. An announcement of installations that may be affected is likely late this month or in February.

"We'll have to get at some bases that are very hard for the services to give up," said one senior official.

This imminent economy move is certain to meet resistance from congressmen whose districts would be affected by a loss of jobs. The last major base cut was ordered by the Ford administration two years ago.

President Carter and top Pentagon officials already are under strong pressure from a bipartisan coalition of more than 200 congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest to prevent any further base closings in their districts.

Paratrooper Lands On Another Chute

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - A Fort Bragg paratrooper, plummeting to earth when both his parachutes failed to open, was saved when he fell on top of an opened parachute and slid down the lines into another soldier's arms.

"He hollered at me to get off, but by the time I slid off the top, holding onto his lines, he knew what had happened," recalled Spec. 4 Jerry Tindal.

The other trooper, Nelson Peters of Fayetteville, grabbed Tindal and the two men landed safely. Tindal escaped with a sprained leg muscle.

"I was all right until I hit the ground, and then it came to me what had happened," Tindal said. "I know there had to be somebody up there watching over me, or I wouldn't be here now."

The incident happened at the end of December. Tindal told his story to his hometown newspaper in Florence, S.C., but he declined an interview with the Fayetteville Times because he said his commanding officer upbraided him for publicizing the near tragedy.

"The captain told me it looks bad for the Army to have stories in the newspapers about how a 'chute didn't open,'" he said. "He said it might hurt the 82nd's recruiting."

Companies Claim They Won't Close

say they won't shut down the stores as striking farmers have asked.

Farmers met in Denver Tuesday with executives of three companies after sending telegrams asking them to shut down their operations Wednesday to show support for the strike.

In another action Tuesday, AFL-CIO representatives from six states agreed to support the striking farmers of the American Agriculture movement.

At a meeting in Denver AFL-CIO state chairmen or state executive secretaries from Kansas, Nebraska, Texas, Colorado, Wyoming and North Dakota agreed to support the farmers.

The labor representatives agreed to contact senators and representatives from their states and urge them to support the goals of American Agriculture at upcoming Congressional hearings, according to Lyle Davidson, an American Agriculture representative at the meeting.

He said the representatives also agreed to support American Agriculture's demand for a halt on the importation of all agricultural products.

Ross McCotter, vice president of King Soopers, said the meetings between store officials and farmers, will continue today and that farmers and officials had agreed to say nothing more about Tuesday's session other than the discussion was long and friendly, and no conclusions were reached.

Carter Remembers D-Day During Visit to Omaha Beach

OMAHA BEACH, France (AP) - "This is the one place overseas where Americans can cry unashamed," said Phillip Jutras, a World War II veteran from Sanford, Maine.

President Carter visits the place on Thursday. It is the American cemetery here and the straight white rows of crosses and stars of David that enshrine the memory of D-Day, June 6, 1944, when Allied forces invaded Nazi-dominated Europe and began their long march to Germany.

Thirty-three years later, evidence of the invasion still remains fresh among the trimmed hedgerows and stone-walled Normandy ports - and in the minds of those who lived through it.

Jutras, who was one of them, returned in 1973 to marry a French woman and run, as an unpaid volunteer, a parachute-shaped museum commemorating the American drop which captured Ste.-Mere-Eglise - behind Utah beach farther up the coast - the first French town wrested from the Germans.

Carter is to travel by helicopter the 150 miles here from Paris with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on his two-day visit to France. He will spend an hour at the manicured cemetery for 9,386 American soldiers, kept by the U.S. government at a cost of $330,000 a year.

He is the first incumbent American president to visit the invasion beaches although Dwight D. Eisenhower came here after he left office to see where his men landed when he commanded the entire Allied operation.

Carter and Giscard d'Estaing will view the four-mile beach still called Omaha - the name it was given by D-Day planners - where the main American force stormed ashore. But the visitors won't have time to see dozens of sites where thousands of Allied soldiers and French civilians died over miles of this green coastal strip on the English Channel.

They will miss the crumbling German blockhouses - one with the red letters "KAPUT" stenciled on a rusted cannon - and the new barns which were rebuilt after saturation bombing.

Veterans say the only Americans to come back to settle are Jutras, Leo Heroux, a Rhode Islander who runs a driving school in nearby Bayeux and a retired soldier who owns a village cafe. And Merlyn Grove, who came here the hard way in 1944, now supervises the cemetery for the American Battle Monuments Commission.

But every Norman over 40 has a story to tell. "I was driving just over that hill when two German planes strafed the road, and I saved myself by running off the road," recalls Robert Constans, now mayor of Ste.-Mere-Eglise. "Everytime I drive past that spot, I see those planes."

Some veterans come back every year. One is Roger Lantagne, formerly of Lewiston, Maine, a retired paratrooper who is now commander of American Legion Post No. 1 in Paris.

In 1976, Robert Murphy of Westwood, Mass., 50 at the time, repeated the jump over Ste.-Mere-Eglise which made him the first American to land in the invasion.

Sometimes memories and myth have become inextricably mixed. When a reporter discovered that one famous war story was probably not true and yet had been perpetuated by those involved, a local resident pleaded: "Please don't give it away. Please. You can't destroy the myth my town has been living for so long."

Some truths have never surfaced. Veterans suspect that one French farmer stole the bodies of three missing Americans and hid them, but they have not been able to establish the facts.

Omaha Beach is by far the most dramatic of the historic battlegrounds. At low tide, the wrecks of 24 ships are still visible. Swimmers occasionally turn up bent dog tags and copper shell casings.

Of the half million people who visit the American cemetery here each year, about 30,000 are Americans, and 300 of them have relatives buried here. There is a steady stream of visiting widows, some with their new husbands.

Thirty-three sets of brothers lie side by side here. There are 307 graves marked only: "Here Rest in Honored Glory a Comrade in Arms Known Only to God."

Phase III

plant departed only minutes after they were presented with the news release, apparently satisfied with the local plant's position on the farm strike movement.

While Phase III activities got underway strictly on a community-by-community basis on Tuesday, farm strike representatives from over 30 states are preparing to meet with Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland in Omaha, Neb. on Friday.

Gerald McCathern of Hereford will represent Texas during the Omaha meeting, at which American Ag delegates will present five points to Secretary Bergland.

The points stress the need for 100 percent parity for all agricultural commodities and call for a reduction of commodity imports, a farmer board to devise ag policies, and sufficient advance notice on crop production matters to allow producers to make proper adjustments.

American Ag delegates to Omaha will meet Thursday to hammer out details of their presentation to Bergland.

Bergland has already clarified an issue which became a point of contention with the strike supporters, when he invited members of non-striking farm organizations to attend the Omaha meeting.

According to Bergland, representatives of these organizations have been invited to attend a luncheon on Friday, but will not be allowed to attend the meeting with American Ag representatives.

"Farm strike activities for tomorrow in Texas tentatively include a gathering in El Paso to protest beef imports from Mexico.

Carter

the negotiations start. J. What specific objections Sadat has to Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's proposal for Palestinian self-rule under continued Israeli control of the occupied West Bank territory along the Jordan River.

Sadat told a Mexican television reporter he has "run out of concessions" and was asking Carter to pressure Israel to modify its position.

He said he was ready to reevaluate his stance on security measures to satisfy Israel but would not compromise on the return of all Arab territories taken in the 1967 war or on the question of self-determination for the Palestinians.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Kamel said he hoped the Carter-Sadat meeting would give new momentum to the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations. In an interview with The Associated Press he cited Carter's championship of human rights and said: "The right to self-determination is a basic human right and should be applied to Palestinians as well as other peoples."

Carter flew to Aswan after an overnight stop in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, during which he and King Khaled discussed the Egyptian-Israeli negotiations, energy cooperation and recycling of the kingdom's petrodollars into the United States.

Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal told reporters after the talks that the Saudi and U.S. positions on the Arab-Israeli conflict "are different and that is reasonable, because the U.S. serves as intermediary" between the Arabs and Israel.

Other informed sources in Riyadh said Carter and the Saudis achieved "complete success" on oil and investment cooperation, but they gave no details.

Faisal said Khaled told the president "no just and lasting peace can be achieved unless two requirements are fulfilled: a complete withdrawal from the Arab lands to the 1967 borders, including Jerusalem, and granting the legitimate rights of the Palestinians, including the right to self-determination and return to their homeland."

Ann Landers Restroom Qundry

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 59-year-old grandfather who needs an answer. I'm sure other grandpas have been faced with the problem and all of us could profit from your solution.

Recently I took my three-and-a-half-year-old granddaughter for the day. Suddenly she announced, "I have to go potty."

Question: Should I take her to the ladies' restroom where I do not belong? Or to the men's room where SHE does not belong and where she might see things that could be upsetting?

I opted for the women's room and was very lucky. There wasn't anyone in there. I did get an awfully funny look, however, from a woman who was coming in just as we were leaving.

For the next time, what's the best solution? - Mr. Dunno Yet
DEAR MR. D.: Don't press

your luck, friend. Next time take your granddaughter to the men's room. I doubt that she will be traumatized by anything she sees there - especially if she has a little brother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Hope you can stand another letter about in-laws who speak their native tongue. The subject really hit home.

My husband and his parents have been in this country for 21 years. He can think, write and even dream in English. His parents are not nearly so fluent.

You are correct about them speaking in their native language because it is easier, but they are totally insensitive as to how rude their behavior is to me. For example, we will be conversing in English, then all of a sudden they start yammering in Greek and the non-verbal message is clear. "You are an outsider and no longer a part of the conversation."

So, I try to absent myself and find something else to do - like read a magazine or book, do some mending, or phone a friend.

I keep telling myself I should admire and respect them for coming to a foreign country to make a new life, and I ask myself, could I have done so well? But still it hurts. Any suggestions? - Left Out Lizzie
DEAR LIZ: If misery loves company, you've got it, dear. I received hundreds of letters from Lizzies who are being "left out" all over the North American continent.

My advice is to enlist your husband's help. Tell him how you feel and let him know how much you would appreciate it if he would switch the conversation back to English when his parents lapse into their native tongue.

DEAR ANN: It's time someone rode herd on the American housewife for looking like a slob when she does her marketing. I refer specifically to those who appear in public with tight fitting T-shirts, no bras and rubberized slacks that show everything.

I once read a very clever comment that says it all: "Sweaters and pants should be tight enough to show you are a female but loose enough to show you are a lady." - L.H.C.
DEAR L.H.C.: I'm pleased you thought the comment was "very clever." I liked it, too - when I wrote it about 15 years ago.

Herd Wins Third Over 'Horns

By BOB NIGH
Sports Editor

Hereford basketball coach Bobby Decker is glad his Whitefaces are finally through with the Caprock Longhorns this season. The Herd gained a 61-55 win over the 'Horns in Amarillo Tuesday night, but it took a 27-37 performance at the free throw line to do it.

The win was the 12th of the season against eight defeats for the defending District 4-4A champion Whitefaces, and

Kitchens finished the night with 27 points to lead all scorers. "We didn't shoot very well," Decker said in a mild understatement. "It was just one of those nights, but they also played some good defense."

Another thing which hampered the HHS offensive showing was 44-33 rebounding edge posted by the much taller Longhorns. "We weren't getting but one shot a lot of the time," Decker said. "It's tough while Schumacher scored six. Stuart backed up Nipp's performance with 10 points in the game, while Randy Hughes matched that output with an even 10 of his own.

In junior varsity action last night Caprock took a 54-48 win over the Whiteface JV. Buzzy Abalos led Herford with 12 points, while Steve Cerda, Reid Herring, and Kevin Bunch all added eight each. The loss dropped the JV to 10-5 on the season.

The Whitefaces will take the rest of the week off before testing Levelland at home January 10 at the La Plata gym. The Herd sophomores will play Dimmitt in warmup-match that night before the Herd JV and varsity test the Lobos.

Irish Placed Atop Heap

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Less than three months after critics were clamoring for his scalp and "Dump Devine" bumper stickers were flourishing in South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine is having the last laugh and basking in the glow of college football's national championship.

The Fighting Irish, whose over-all winning percentage of .744 entering the 1977 campaign was the best in history, added another chapter to the Notre Dame legend Monday when they were voted national champions by the 64 voters in the nationwide Association Press poll.

In a racing among five teams with identical 11-1 records, Notre Dame's 38-10 Cotton Bowl rout of previously No. 1-rated Texas enabled the Irish to win out over Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and Penn State.

"There's a lot of personal satisfaction in a job well done and maybe this is hard to understand but I'm happier for the team than for myself," Devine said when he was informed that Notre Dame had won the AP National Championship Trophy. "I have a combined feeling of being humble and thankful. "I usually try to hold my emotions in, but I'm kind of quivering all over right now. I'm just so thankful that my staff and my players are the kind of people they are."

Notre Dame, which finished the regular season in fifth place, received 37 1-3 first-place votes - one voter split his ballot among Notre Dame, Alabama and Arkansas - and 1,180 of a possible 1,280 points.

Runner-up Alabama, a convincing 35-6 winner over Ohio State in the Sugar Bowl, climbed from third place to second with 19 1-3 first-place ballots and 1,132 points. Arkansas jumped from sixth to third with 5 1-3 first-place votes and 1,011 points by clobbering previously second-ranked Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl 31-6.

Texas, the only team in the country to make it through the regular season undefeated, dropped to fourth place with the remaining two first-place votes and 797 points. Penn State, which also finished 11-1 by downing Arizona State 42-30 in the Fiesta Bowl, rose from eighth to fifth with 768 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten were 10-1 Kentucky, 10-2 Oklahoma, 9-2-1 Pittsburgh, 10-2 Michigan and 8-4 Washington. Kentucky was on probation and ineligible for a bowl while Pitt trounced Clemson 34-3 in the Gator Bowl and Washington upended Michigan 27-20 in the Rose Bowl.

Kentucky climbed from seventh to sixth with 605 points, Oklahoma plummeted from second to seventh with 592, Pitt's defending national champions went from 10th to eighth with 508, Michigan skidded from fourth to ninth with 443 and Washington rose from 13th to 10th with 437.

Ohio State fell from ninth to 11th, the only team to drop out of the Top Ten.

Notre Dame, third in The AP's pre-season poll, started off slowly. The Irish defeated Pitt 19-9 but trailed in the game until Pitt quarterback Matt Cavanaugh suffered a broken wrist. The following week they lost to Mississippi 20-13 and then had to come from behind period to beat Purdue 31-24.

"I'm not sure that was the turning point, but the Purdue game was very important," Devine said. "At that point we just started to play better football and the team just got better as the season went along. Rather than being a turning point we just started to do things better."

"Doing it the hard way makes this even more enjoyable. Overcoming a lot of adversity and having a difficult path always makes it more satisfying."

The national championship was Notre Dame's seventh since The AP poll began in 1936. Oklahoma is second with five titles. Notre Dame's other championships were in 1943, 1946, 1947, 1949, 1966 and 1973.

The Irish dropped as far as 14th place during the season but were either fifth or sixth during the final six weeks.

The 1977 Second Ten consists of Ohio State, Nebraska, Southern California, Florida State, Stanford, San Diego State, North Carolina, Arizona State, Clemson and Brigham Young.

The final regular-season Second Ten was Clemson, Nebraska, Washington, North Carolina, Arizona State, San Diego State, BYU and Texas A&M tied for 17th, followed by Florida State and Southern Cal.

Jockey Cauthen AP Athlete of the Year

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) - The son of a blacksmith father and a horse-trainer mother and too small for most sports, Steve Cauthen seemed destined to be a jockey.

His destiny was realized with amazing speed and impact in 1977 as the 17-year-old riding phenomenon from Kentucky burst to the forefront of sports with a string of riding feats unequalled in horse racing history.

Tuesday, Cauthen was named the Associated Press Athlete of the Year, becoming the first jockey so recognized in the 47 years of the award.

"I certainly appreciate the honor," said Cauthen, who rode 488 winners in 1977 and won purses worth $6,151,750, the first time a rider has topped the $6 million mark.

"I try to take honors in stride," he said. "I try never to let myself get too excited or too disappointed. I just go day-by-day, try to ride the best I can every day. I don't dwell on awards, but will just try to get another next year."

"Thanks," he added with a wide grin.

A 5-foot-1, 95-pounder, Cauthen topped such outstanding athletes as baseball's Rod Carew, football's Walter Payton and basketball's Bill Walton in the balloting among sports writers and broadcasters.

Cauthen received 79 first-place votes while Minnesota's Carew got 40, Chicago's Payton 33 and Portland's Walton 24.

Other first-place vote-getters were Cincinnati outfielder George Foster, 20; New York Yankees outfielder Reggie Jackson, 19; retired Cosmos soccer star Pele, 13; Masters and British Open champion Tom Watson, 10, and Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas, 8.

The past year was filled with notable sports achievements such as Jackson's World Series homers, Carew's .388 batting average and Watson's dramatic victories. But Cauthen's accomplishments overshadowed even those.

Highlights of his year included riding six winners in a day on three different occasions; winning Aqueduct's Gold Seeker Purse on Little Happiness to go over the $6 million mark, and riding three winners his first time out without an apprentice's five-pound weight allowance.

Dorsett Top NFL Rookie

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Tony Dorsett wasn't surprised but he was happy and humble and said he had just the place for his latest trophy-The Associated Press National Rookie of the Year.

"It ranks right along with the Heisman Trophy," said the former Pittsburgh All-American, who became only the eighth rookie back in the history of the NFL to gain more than 1,000 yards.

"To be top dog in your first year of your profession for an athlete is quite an honor," said Dorsett. "I want to thank each and every person who voted for me."

Dorsett, who suffered a knee injury in training camp, wasn't even a starter until Dallas' ninth game of the season yet gained 1,007 yards.

Such great backs as O.J. Simpson, Jim Brown, and Walter Payton didn't rush for 1,000 yards in their rookie seasons.

"I want to give special thanks to Gil Brandt and the other members of the Cowboy organization for bringing me here to play for a Super Bowl team," said Dorsett. "I could have ended up at Tampa Bay or Seattle."

The Cowboys gave up their first round pick-a No. 14 over-all and three second-round choices to Seattle for Dorsett, the only breakaway running back Dallas has ever had in its 18-year history.

"I want to thank God for helping me keep my composure when I was down," said Dorsett. "I was hurt, I was having trouble learning the offense. I wasn't playing."

Dorsett never criticized Cowboy Coach Tom Landry for starting veteran Preston Pearson ahead of him.

"I just kept a low profile because I knew if I could get well I could contribute to the team," said Dorsett. "Then, I won a starting job and everything fell into place."

Dorsett received 79 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, three from each NFL franchise city.

marked the third win over Caprock this year.

"It's pretty tough to beat anybody three times," Decker said following the Herd win. "They've got some real good shooters outside, and are a lot better than their record indicates."

The loss was the 13th of the year for the Longhorns, who have won but four times. One of those shooters Decker referred to was Caprock's All-District guard Bruce Nipp, who finished the night with 16 points.

Hereford was hot from the charity stripe, but someone forgot to plug them in from outside. Only 17 of 55 field goal tries by the 'Faces found the mark.

Wing man Kelly Kitchens provided most of the Hereford free tosses in the game, hitting 17 of 20 chances (85 percent).

for us to play and rebound with those big people."

Charles Stuart pulled down 15 rebounds to lead Caprock to its advantage, while teammate Alvin Raef collected 11 more. Jackie Mercer hauled in 10 cars to lead Hereford.

Kitchens added eight rebounds to the total, while David Arney had four. The Herd's tallest player, 6-3 David Schumacher, got only one carom after getting into foul trouble early.

Hereford took a 15-14 lead after one period in the contest. And upped the gap to three points at the half and after three periods. The Herd pulled ahead 31-28 at intermission, and led 41-38 going into the final stanza.

Robert Lee Graves placed behind Kitchens in the scoring column for Hereford with 11 points. Mercer added eight,

'Satch' Sanders New Celtics Head

By DICK BRAUDE
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) - A soft-spoken, gangling refugee from Harvard Yard has been appointed to lead the stumbling Boston Celtics out of the National Basketball Association wilderness.

"There aren't any communications gaps when you're winning," said new Celtics Coach Tom "Satch" Sanders, alluding to a reason for the firing Tuesday of boisterous Tom Heinsohn, the winningest active coach in the NBA.

"Familiarity breeds contempt," conceded Celtics President and General Manager Red Auerbach, who gave Heinsohn the news before a team practice in Lexington, Mass.

Alluding to what Auerbach termed the veterans of the once-dominant team's roster, Auerbach said, "They've been around Tommy for too long. You have to have new blood."

With the club off to its worst start, 11-23, Auerbach made Heinsohn the fall guy and the first Celtics coach fired in nearly 30 years and gave the job to Sanders, Heinsohn's handpicked assistant.

Until last summer, Sanders, a former Celtics forward, was a losing basketball coach at Harvard University, a job he took after retiring from the Celtics in 1973.

Auerbach said the decision was his alone, although team owner Irving Levin wanted to fire Heinsohn. In December, Levin offered the coaching job to Auerbach, who turned it down. "Levin is kind of spoiled," Auerbach said. "He likes the idea of winning. I felt the present situation could not be turned around. We needed a new slant, new motivation and new direction."

Over-Basketballed Orangemen Win

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
Jot this one down in your dictionary of hoop idioms.

It comes courtesy of Syracuse Coach Jim Boheim, who gave his eight-ranked Orangemen the next three days off after they defeated North Texas State 94-84 Tuesday night.

Why the post-holiday vacation?

"We're just over-basketballed," he replied, etching this new term somewhere between "outclassed" and "under-capitalized" in the mythical "Dictionary of Untranslatable Coaches' Expressions."

Boheim was quick to point out that he meant his players have "worked hard and we know we need a rest."

But maybe North Texas State was "over-basketballed" by the 11-1 Orangemen. They out-rebounded Syracuse 42-40, out-scored them 43-36 in the second half and got a combined 55 points from Mel Davis and Charles MacMillian, but still managed to lose by 10 points.

Maybe the Mean Green was "under-refereed," Bill Blakeley, the North Texas State coach, claimed that "We knew we couldn't get a break on the calls. That's why we went with a zone defense, but we still got into foul trouble."

"I don't mean to take anything away from Syracuse. They are awesome and deserve to win," Blakeley continued. "It's just too bad computers can't call the games."

Dale Shackelford scored 23 points while Louis Orr contributed 18 points and 13 rebounds to the Orangemen's 10th consecutive victory. Ken Williams had 15 points and 11 rebounds for North Texas State.

Elsewhere on a light night where ranked college basketball teams are concerned, No. 10 Louisville beat Memphis State 78-75 and No. 20 Georgetown defeated North Carolina Central 107-51.

In other games, VMI topped Cleveland State 71-66 and Siena defeated Oklahoma 69-66 in first-round action at the Siena Invitational tournament; Wisconsin-Stevens Points beat Lorain 73-67 and Wisconsin-Green Bay beat Shaw 77-59 in the first round of the Green Bay Classic, and Milligan won the Hall of Fame Classic championship with a 94-75 victory over Malone.

Meanwhile, it was Oral Roberts 66, Columbia 60; Lamar 88, New Orleans 73; Air Force

Cowboys Begin Work For Super Bowl

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys began their Super Bowl XII countdown today with Coach Tom Landry scheduling a heavy workload for the National Conference champions.

Dallas will concentrate on the American Conference champion Denver Broncos through Saturday, get Sunday off, then fly to New Orleans on Monday.

Landry said Tuesday that two Cowboys were nursing injuries but nothing of such a serious nature that it will keep tight end Jay Saldi or running back Tony Dorsett out of the Jan. 15 game.

Saldi was hospitalized with a severely bruised leg and Dorsett was nursing a slight leg injury.

"Both should be ready go full speed," said Landry.

"Tony is having trouble with the leg but it shouldn't be a factor with a lot of rest," he added.

Landry said he felt Denver could handle the massive media pressure and the hoopla of Super Bowl week although the Broncos are at the National Football League summit for the first time.

"I think the mental pressure is something of a factor because it does change your routine," said the dean of the National Football League coaches. "You use the same routine for 22 weeks in a row then things are so drastically different with the interviews and travel a week ahead of the game."

Landry said he believed the 1971 Cowboy team which defeated Miami 24-3 in Super Bowl VI in New Orleans was better than the current edition.

"We were a confident team," said Landry. "It was one of the few times I went into a game knowing we were going to win."

The great racehorse of the early 1930s, Equipoise, was known as the "Chocolate Soldier."

Hank Greenberg and Jimmy Foxx each hit 58 home runs in one season, the all-time high for righthanded batters.

Miami's Duhé Top Defensive Rookie

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Defensive tackle A.J. Duhé, a key part in the reconstruction of the Miami Dolphins defense, was named the National Football League's Defensive Rookie of the Year today by The Associated Press.

Duhé, the Dolphins' No. 1 choice in last spring's college draft, was an easy winner in balloting by writers and broadcasters covering the 28 NFL teams. He received 48 of the 84 ballots to dominate the voting. Linebacker Terry Beeson of Seattle finished second, with 14 votes, followed by Duhé's defensive linemate with the Dolphins, Bob Baumhower, who had five.

Other players receiving more than one vote were defensive back Oliver Davis of Cleveland, end Mike Butler of Green Bay, tackle Eddie Edwards of Cincinnati and linebacker Kim Bokamper of Miami.

Playing a position that usually requires a few years of experience to master, Duhé was a defensive giant for the Dolphins. He moved into the starting lineup early and helped Miami become the fourth-best team in the American Conference against the rush. Not only was he an overwhelming choice for defensive rookie of the year but he even received some support for the All-Pro team, an unheard of honor for a defensive rookie.

The Dolphins, coming off a 6-8 season, owned the 13th selection in the 1977 draft and went for Duhé, a 6-foot-4, 247-pounder out of Louisiana State. He was the seventh defensive player drafted and the sixth linemen following Edwards, who went to Cincinnati; Gary Jeter picked by the New York Giants; Joe Campbell, selected by New Orleans; Butler, drafted by Green Bay and Phil Dokes, who went to Buffalo. The other early defensive pick was cornerback Gary Green, picked by Kansas City.

Duhé's collegiate statistics at LSU were outstanding. He averaged 72 tackles a year in his four seasons as a starter there and recorded 27 quarterback sacks for his career. In his rookie year in the NFL he had 83 tackles, seven sacks and a blocked punt. The block, on Nov. 13 against New England, set up Miami's clinching touchdown in a victory over the Patriots. A week earlier he was awarded the game ball for his three sacks against the New York Jets.

A native of Reserve, La., in the heart of Cajun country, Duhé's given names are Adam Joseph Jr. He prefers the initials, however, and has no trouble convincing people to use them.

FTC's colossal headache

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Anyone who watches television or reads newspapers and magazines knows what "comparative advertising" is, even if the term itself is obscure at first glance.

Comparative ads are those in which the makers of Brand A try to persuade you that their product is infinitely superior to Brands B, C and D, which are helpfully identified by name.

As one of the government's leading advocates of a free market economy, the Federal Trade Commission in recent years has tried to encourage comparative advertising as a means of generating healthy competition.

But the FTC is also responsible, under the law, for insuring truthfulness in advertising — and sometimes that duty conflicts with its desire to promote greater competition.

A classic case in point is the agency's current attempt to referee a raging advertising war between the producers of two of the nation's leading analgesics, Bayer Aspirin and the leading non-aspirin substitute, Tylenol.

For weeks on end, ads for the rival over-the-counter drugs have been trumpeting conflicting claims of their relative safety. And some of those ads, especially those put out by the makers of Bayer, have employed selective quotes from another government agency in an effort to discredit the competition.

That agency is the Food and Drug Administration, which last summer issued a report by one of its expert advisory panels on the safety and efficacy of all analgesics — drugs for the relief of pain, headache and fever.

The FDA report was long and complicated, but warned in essence that there are safety problems associated with both major types of analgesics — those comprised wholly or in part of aspirin (like Bayer) and those based on a non-aspirin substance known as acetaminophen.

Sterling Drug Company, the producer of Bayer Aspirin, seized upon the report for a major television and print media ad campaign emphasizing that FDA had found "no basis" for claims that Tylenol is safer than aspirin.

What the ads failed to mention, however, was that the FDA report didn't say aspirin was safer than acetaminophen products such as Tylenol.

In fact, the FDA report cited a long string of circumstances under which aspirin use could potentially create problems — findings the Bayer ads conveniently neglected to mention.

McNeil Laboratories, the makers of Tylenol, cried foul. And FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, after reviewing the ads for both products, concluded everyone involved was guilty of distorting his agency's findings.

"We don't know who started this cat fight," said a spokesman for Kennedy, "but it sure has gotten vicious. Our feeling is that neither side is clean."

FDA regulates advertising for prescription drugs, but it controls only the label claims of over-the-counter products like Bayer and Tylenol. It is up to the FTC to regulate advertising for such drugs.

As it happens, the FTC has drafted a rule to require advertising for over-the-counter drugs to conform to the label claims permitted by the FDA. But that rule has not yet been approved.

So Kennedy has asked FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk to mediate the current battle between Bayer and Tylenol and to see to it that producers of both products quit misrepresenting his agency's findings.

Pertschuk says the FTC will review the controversial ads and seek a remedy that will protect consumers from misleading claims without discouraging competition between the drug companies.

It will be, he concedes, a difficult balancing act. Enough to give the entire FTC a colossal headache, in fact.

Indian Head Penny Stamps To Be Sold

The Hereford Post Office is one of 150 philatelic centers across the nation will sell Indian Head Penny stamps beginning Jan. 12.

The centers will be part of U.S. Postal Service testing of a regular-issue postage stamp format providing 50 additional stamps per pane.

A pane of the experimental stamps, which use an 1877 Indian Head Penny as the central design, will contain 150 stamps compared to 100 stamps in conventional regular-issue panes.

Poerner Named RR Commissioner

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - John Poerner was sworn in as a railroad commissioner Tuesday, causing chairman Mack Wallace to comment that the oil and gas regulatory agency, "in effect, becomes a new commission."

On an agency that is known for long-term service, Wallace, 48, is now the senior member with just over four years.

He and Poerner, 44, got their jobs by appointment from Gov. Dolph Briscoe to fill vacancies. The third commissioner, Jon Newton, 36, was elected in 1976.

Newton and Poerner are both former House members from South Texas, with Newton serving from Beeville in 1970-76, and Poerner from Hondo in 1969-75.

Poerner succeeds Jim Langdon, a former El Paso appeals judge, who resigned to practice law after 14 years as a commissioner. He has said he will run for the remaining two years of Langdon's unexpired term in 1978.

Poerner was sworn in before approximately 400 persons in the House chamber.

It was the House, in his final term, he said, that "gave me the opportunity to serve under a new brand of government, a new brand of leadership of this state. I had known Dolph and Janey Briscoe for many years prior to 1973, but the supreme respect and closer friendship developed by being here and working with him and for him have provided the most enjoyable years of my life.

"His brand of government is truly my brand of government." At the time of his appointment, Oct. 28, 1977, Poerner was on Briscoe's staff as director of education resources.

"I knew I needed someone with the ability, experience and integrity to serve the people of this state, and I did not have to look far," said Briscoe in brief remarks following the swearing-

A full sheet of the experimental stamps will contain 600 stamps as opposed to 400 in a conventional sheet. The Postal Service said that future use of the smaller format, if warranted by test results, would produce significant cost savings.

Five test cities - Kansas City, Mo.; Hartford, Conn.; Richmond, Va.; Portland, Ore.; and Memphis, Tenn. - will sell the stamp beginning Jan. 12 at all stations and branches of the Postal Service. The Indian Head Penny Stamps will also be sold by the 150 philatelic centers at post offices throughout the country and will be available by mail order from the Philatelic Sales Branch, Washington, D.C. 20265.

The stamps will be available at the philatelic centers, which include Hereford, for at least a year after issuance.

The Postal Service said first-day cover orders will be accepted until Feb. 15.

Image area of the experimental stamp measures .54 x .66 inches or 13.7 x 16.7 millimeters. That is in contrast to image area measurements of .75 x .87 inches or 19.05 x 22.09 millimeters for standard regular issue sheet stamps now in use.

The oath of office was administered by Secretary of State Steve Oaks, another Briscoe appointee.

"The railroad commission now has three members," said Wallace. "We're ready to work."

Mormon Will Trial Starts Again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - After the holiday recess, the trial to determine if Howard Hughes wrote the Mormon will resumes today before Clark County District Judge Keith Hayes.

Jury selection for the trial began Nov. 7, and the five men and three women hearing the case aren't expected to retire for deliberations until late spring or early summer.

The trial pits Hughes' relatives, not mentioned in the purported will, against former Hughes aide and confidant Noah Dietrich. The handwritten three page document names Dietrich as executor of the vast estate.

When the trial resumes, Dietrich's attorney, Harold Rhoden, of Los Angeles, will continue his direct examination of Dutch handwriting expert Arnold Etman, who says Hughes wrote the will.

Etman had been on the stand for several days when the trial was abruptly recessed Dec. 19, after a photo copy of another will purporting to be written by the reclusive industrialist was received in the mail by Hayes.

A letter accompanying the photo copy said the original would be mailed to one of Rhoden's associates in Houston, but Hayes' office said Tuesday that the original has not been received.

After examining the copy, Etman labeled the document a forgery, but said he could not give an expert opinion because he has not seen the original.

It is not known what stance Hayes will take on the newly-received will, but court observers believe he will disregard it for the time being and continue with the issue at hand, unless Rhoden or the other attorneys involved come out with some new information on Wednesday.

Before Etman, attorneys will argue a motion to quash several subpoenas which were issued at Rhoden's request.

Rhoden has subpoenaed a number of witnesses scheduled to testify for the other side, including a handwriting expert, in an attempt to discredit their future testimony or "turn them around."

Attorneys for Hughes' relatives have strongly objected to Rhoden's tactics.

Rhoden has argued that there is now law which says he cannot subpoena adversary witnesses.

Banking Customers Asked To Speak Out

WASHINGTON (AP) - Banking regulators have started encouraging customers to complain when they think lenders have misled or discriminated against them.

The Federal Reserve and the comptroller of the currency are including a complaint form and a list of consumer rights in brochures they will send to the banks they regulate. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has already sent similar pamphlets to its state-chartered banks.

The banks are not required to post these pamphlets but must have cooperated in posting other consumer lending brochures, banking regulators said.

The comptroller's brochure "was prompted by the low volume of complaints currently being received by this office," Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann said.

The pamphlets generally advise people to contact a bank first and to try to resolve the problem directly. If that doesn't work, they advise filling out the complaint form and mailing it to the local office of the agency supervising the bank.

The comptroller's office says it will contact the bank and promises "you will be informed of the results of that investigation."

The consumers' rights come from a series of recent credit laws that cover banks and the credit cards they handle. Among them:

- You have a right to know the finance charge - the amount of money it costs to get credit. You must also be told the annual percentage rate you are paying.

- If a business states the amount of a down payment, it also must explain the amount and duration of weekly or monthly payments. Banks, along with businesses, are responsible for these terms in the contract.

- If you put up a house for security, the lender must notify you that you have a right to cancel the transaction within three days.

- You can challenge what you believe to be errors in your billing statement. While you wait for an answer you do not have to pay the disputed amount.

- Lenders cannot discriminate in any aspect of a credit transaction on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, welfare status or age.

Royal B. Dunham Jr., a consumer specialist at the comptroller's office, said his agency will ask banks for written responses to each complaint. He said if there are two or three complaints about the same subject, examiners might be sent to investigate further.

The comptroller's form is being reviewed by consumer groups for comment, Dunham said. Initial response has been favorable, he said.

Liquified Gas Imports Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) - The president of the American Gas Association said Tuesday the federal government should allow imports of liquified natural gas without specific limits, and spread its high costs among all gas consumers.

George H. Lawrence, head of the trade association of natural gas pipeline and distribution companies, expressed the association's views at a news conference here.

Lawrence said the recent approval by the Department of Energy of two large projects to import liquified natural gas (LNG) was encouraging and he urged the department to approve other pending projects.

But Lawrence said the Carter administration seemed to be stalled in its effort to develop a policy on LNG imports because, in his view, it was incorrectly comparing the LNG prices, in the range of $3.00 to $4.00 per 1,000 cubic feet, with its own proposed ceiling price of $1.75 for a new domestic gas.

Lawrence said imported LNG prices are justified, when compared instead with the anticipated price of its energy alternatives, electricity or imported fuel oil.

He also said the government should not adopt a policy of charging the full cost of imported LNG to industries which, supposedly, use it and cause its importation.

Instead, said Lawrence, the cost of the imported gas should be "rolled in" with all other natural gas supplies, spreading and softening the price import on all consumers.

He said that by 1985, according to present company plans, LNG would provide no more than about 10 percent of the nation's natural gas and its price impact would be relatively small.

LNG is natural gas - the kind burned in home cooking stoves and furnaces - which has been chilled to some 260 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

At that extremely low temperature, the gas shrinks and turns into a liquid compact enough to be shipped across oceans in special refrigerated tankers.

When it reaches port, the liquid is allowed to warm up, expand, and turn back into the familiar gas that is pumped through pipelines to homes, businesses and factories.

The entire process is costly, so LNG imports demand prices considerably higher than natural gas produced in North America, which can enter the U.S. pipeline system in its original gas form.

Fleeing Editor Reaches Safety

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) - Fugitive South African editor Donald Woods and his family reached Botswana Tuesday after a 340-mile flight across South African territory in a small Lesotho Airways plane.

"I am relieved and I feel safe for the first time," Woods told reporters in the capital of this former British protectorate after the 2 hours and 20 minute flight from Maseru, capital of Lesotho.

Woods, 43, outspoken editor of the East London Daily Dispatch, escaped in disguise from South Africa to Lesotho last weekend in defiance of a five-year banning order which effectively silenced him.

The Lesotho government granted him political asylum and issued him and his family United Nations refugee documents.

The editor, his wife, Wendy, and their five children flew on to Botswana in a twin-engine Islander aircraft accompanied by an official from Lesotho to ensure their safety under an agreement with South Africa guaranteeing "overflight rights to the small landlocked black state.

The family is expected to leave on Wednesday for the Zambian capital of Lusaka, from where they will fly to London.

While in Botswana the Woods are staying at the home of the British high commissioner, Wilfred Turner.

Woods plans to settle in Britain or the United States.

He has almost completed the manuscript of a book on his close friend, black activist Steve Biko, whose death in South African security police detention last September from brain damage sparked an international outcry.

Mrs. Woods described the flight from Lesotho, which was without incident, as a "nervewracking experience."

Observers felt that if the plane was forced down in South Africa there was little doubt that Woods would be arrested.

Woods' banning order restricted him to East London and forbade him from writing or saying anything for publication. He was one of seven white

Women Make News in Arts and Sports Fields

In the arts, too, women made news during 1977.

At a concert at New York's Carnegie Hall celebrating her 75th birthday, legendary contralto Marian Anderson heard Rosalynn Carter read a congressional resolution honoring her for "her unstinting efforts on behalf of the brotherhood of man," and became the first black to receive a congressional medal.

A famed artist Georgia O'Keeffe, celebrating her 90th birthday, was the subject of a Public Broadcasting Service special.

At a Hollywood celebration of her long career, Bette Davis, 68, received the Lifetime Achievement Award of the American Film Institute. The award has been given only five times and she is the first woman recipient.

Academy Award Oscars went to Beatrice Straight, Best Supporting Actress, and Faye Dunaway, Best Actress, both for roles in "Network." Tony awards went to Dorothy Loudon, named best actress in a musical, "Annie," and Julie Harris, best actress in a drama, "The Belle of Amherst." Lily Tomlin got a special Tony for her one-woman show, "Lily Tomlin—Appearing Niteley."

Crystal Gayle was named best female singer of the year at the Country Music Association awards show in Nashville, Tenn.

Nancy Hanks, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts, was named the 1977 "Woman of Conscience" by the National Council of Women. She was cited for turning "the performing arts from an elitist exercise to a mass appreciation."

The American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters for the first time elected three women in the same year: Hortense Calisher and Elizabeth Hardwick, novelists and short story writers, and Ada Louise Huxtable, architecture critic.

In the military, women were flying high. Of the 157 women who entered the Air Force Academy last year, 130 made it to Recognition Day, the formal end of the first year.

Ten women received silver wings as the first of their sex to be trained as military pilots by the Air Force.

For the first time in the history of the Marine Corps, 22 female 2nd lieutenants, participating in a 21-week officer training program at the Quantico, Va., Basic School, underwent combat training in a simulated two-day war.

The Pentagon announced that the Navy, making its first major changes in uniforms for women since 1943, will include slacks as well as skirts in the women sailors' and officers' uniforms.

Though the ERA didn't make it in 1977, little by little sex barriers continued to fall in small but significant ways. A Treasury ruling discontinued the requirement that women co-owners of U.S. Savings Bonds, or women beneficiaries of the bonds, be identified as Miss or Mrs.

The Supreme Court ruled that employment requirements for height and weight discriminate illegally against women when employers fail to show that the tests have some real relation to the ability to handle the job. The ruling appeared likely to open more jobs for women in police, firefighting and similar fields by ending arbitrary eligibility standards that served to restrict hiring to men.

HOW ABOUT WOMANHOOD?

For the first time in 1977, some of the Rhodes scholars at Oxford University failed to meet Cecil Rhodes' requirement that candidates have the "qualities of manhood" in addition to outstanding capacity for scholarship and leadership.

They were the 24 women, including 13 Americans, among the 72 scholars — the first women chosen in the 75 years since the diamond king's will established the scholarships.

Britain's nationalized railroad system abandoned the 100-year-old custom of "Ladies Only" compartments on trains. And in New York City the City Council Consumer Affairs Committee voted to lift a 115-year-old ban against women working as waitresses and food vendors at theaters, baseball parks and race tracks.

A case of discrimination dating back more than half a century was righted when the Army restored the Medal of Honor to a front-line Civil War surgeon, Dr. Mary Edwards Walker, the only woman among the 3,000 medal winners. She was a feminist leader when her medal was revoked in 1917.

REVERSE EQUALITY

A mother made an issue of the fact that girls at an Amherst, Ohio, junior high school had to wear a uniform in gym class, while boys did not.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which Mrs. Tom Lockhart asked for assistance, called the requirement a violation of a federal law banning sex discrimination in public schools. Now boys as well as girls are required to buy a standard uniform.

Along with the gains, there were some setbacks for women. The Catholic Church, announced the Vatican, will not ordain women as priests no matter what other churches do, because Jesus Christ was a man and his representatives on earth must bear a "natural resemblance."

And women were declared still unwelcome as Rotarians when the Council on Legislation defeated a constitutional amendment to allow women to become members of the organization.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, at their national convention, rejected a bylaw change to allow eligible women veterans to join.

A nationwide survey revealed that almost 30 percent of 17-year-olds questioned believe that a woman's place is in the home. An additional 20 percent think women should be allowed to work only under certain conditions.

Nevertheless, according to new Labor Department figures, the percentage of working mothers has risen 7 percentage points since 1970 and 46 percent of American children under 18 had mothers who worked outside the home last year.

In company with the first lady ever to qualify at Indianapolis, gentlemen, start your engines."

The lady whose presence brought about the change in the traditional starting ritual of the famous auto race was Janet Guthrie, 39, the first woman to qualify for the Indianapolis 500. Earlier in the year she had become the first of her sex to start the Daytona 500.

In another sport, 48-year-old Patty Cox also chalked up a first. Named as general manager of the Oklahoma City 88ers, the AAA farm club of the Philadelphia Phillies, Mrs. Cox became the first and only female general manager in AAA baseball.

The younger generation, too, was making inroads on sports formerly reserved for men only. Amber "Jim" Hunt, an 11-year-old from Salt Lake City, Utah, made her boxing debut against an 11-year-old boy, winning handily in three rounds. She is the first female ever to enter the Golden Gloves competition in the United States.

Though she wasn't making waves by breaking a sex barrier, 45-year-old Stella Taylor did make waves of a sort by breaking a swimming record by more than four hours, swimming the 32-mile length of New York's Lake George in 26 hours, 51 minutes.

Cindy Nicholas, 19-year-old Canadian, broke the world record for a nonstop, round-trip swim of the English Channel. Her 19 hours, 55 minutes, was 10 hours better than the previous record. She was the first woman to complete a two-way nonstop crossing of the channel.

A new tennis queen was crowned at Wimbledon, as Virginia Wade of Britain won the women's singles title by defeating Betty Stove of the Netherlands. The 31-year-old Miss Wade had beaten Chris Evert, the defending champion, in the semifinals.

Despite this setback, the 22-year-old Miss Evert continued to rack up court victories during the year, including her third consecutive U.S. Open women's singles crown at Forest Hills.

Her teeth in braces and her hair pulled back with ribbons, a new tennis star stepped into the limelight as Tracy Austin became, at 14, the youngest competitor in Wimbledon's 100-year history. Though she bowed to Miss Evert in the third round, the schoolgirl from Rolling Hills, Calif., was a favorite of the press and the crowds.

Kathy Whitworth, 36-year-old Texan, won the biggest prize in women's golf when she took first place and $36,000 in the sixth annual Colgate-Dinah Shore Winners Circle tournament. Miss Whitworth, who has won more money than any other competitor in the history of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, also finished first in the Coca-Cola Classic.

BIRTHDAY BONANZA

"I only had $5 left when it hit," said Lorice Hartzog, who had invested $40 in a "progressive" slot machine at Harold's Club in Reno, Nev., where she was celebrating her 57th birthday.

Her present turned out to be the biggest jackpot in Nevada history — $236,756.

Linda Fratianne, 16, of Northridge, Calif., won the women's world figure skating championship, succeeding American Olympic gold medalist Dorothy Hamill, who has turned professional, as the world's skating queen. The 20-year-old Miss Hamill, who gave up her amateur status to tour with the Ice Capades, was voted the 1977 athlete-of-the-year by readers of womenSports magazine.

Hollis Stacy, 23, won the $100,000 Muscular Dystrophy golf tournament with a 17-under-par 271, a Ladies Professional Golf Association record for 72 holes.

Deaths during the year included:

Angis Nin, 74, writer noted for her series of diaries, which she began in her childhood and continued through her life; Frances Payne Bolton, 92, Ohio Congresswoman who served in the House from 1939 through 1968; Lela Rogers, 86, editor, theatrical producer and mother of actress Ginger Rogers; Marjorie Gateson, 86, an actress for nearly 60 years on stage, screen and television.

Joan Crawford, 69, superstar of the screen for decades after Charlestoning her way to stardom in "Our Dancing Daughters"; high fashion milliner Sally Victor, 83; Ethel Barrymore Colt, 65, actress, singer, daughter of the late Ethel Barrymore and a member of the ninth generation of the famed stage family.

Alice Hughes, 78, syndicated newspaper columnist and foreign correspondent; Geraldine Brooks, 53, Broadway, Hollywood and television actress and nature photographer; Sue Kaufman, 56, author of "The Diary of a Mad Housewife" and other novels.

Alice Paul, 92, a leader of the women's suffrage movement who was called the author of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution; Katherine Stinson Otaro, 81, pioneer aviator and stunt flier

Happy Achiever

Janet Guthrie is welcomed back to the pit after becoming the first woman to qualify for the Indianapolis 500 auto race. Miss Guthrie set a new course record for women at an average speed of 188.403 mph on 10-mile trial run.

who is credited as the first skywriter and the first woman to fly at night.

Jean Hagen, 52, radio, stage, movie and TV star, who appeared in the series, "Make Room for Daddy"; Ethel Waters, 80, blues and gospel singer and dramatic actress; Maria Callas, 53, opera singer; Mary Ford, 53, who with Les Paul, at that time her husband, rose to fame in the '50s as a singing duo; Maria Grigorievna Rasputin, 77, daughter of Czarist Russia's "Mad Monk" Rasputin.

PATENTLY PRECOCIOUS
Becky J. Schroeder, a 15-year-old high school sophomore in Toledo, Ohio, was granted her fourth patent. Like her others, including the first when she was 12, it deals with facilities for reading and writing in the dark.

ON THE HOUSE

Whether a workshop is used to facilitate the repair and maintenance of things around the house or as a place to indulge a hobby, it is certain to include a portable electric drill. It's the machine that gives the novice do-it-yourselfer his first experience with a power tool. Because it is light, easy to handle and highly effective, the drill has retained its popularity throughout the years, becoming a special favorite in the 1940s and never relinquishing its role as the best-selling electric tool.

The drill is basically what its name indicates — a tool for drilling holes in wood, metal and other materials. But each year the list of accessories that can be attached to a portable drill grows larger, until today there are very few tasks that cannot be made easier with these additions. In fact, unless you have been to a well-stocked store that sells such accessories within the past few months, you are not likely to be up-to-date on the wide variety that is available. In many cases, heavy-duty woodworking and metal-cutting operations are best done with the special tools made for those purposes, but the drill, with the proper attachment, will often perform satisfactorily.

An important use of this portable machine is for drilling holes in wood, especially hardwood, to receive screws. The pilot holes should be slightly smaller than the diameters of the screws. The same procedure should be followed with nails to prevent splitting in hardwood. Before each hole is drilled, a small indentation should be made with an awl. When the bit is placed into this hole and the motor turned on, it will not wander and mar the surface of the wood. Pressure on the drill should be firm but not heavy. To prevent splintering as the bit comes out the other side, back up the material with a piece of scrap wood.

Quarter-inch drills will handle most household projects, but if you do a lot of work with the heavy drill accessories, a larger size may be required. In choosing a drill, tell the dealer what the drill will be used for most of the time. He will advise you which size is preferable and whether you will need a speed reducer for the more difficult jobs. Incidentally, in buying an electric drill, be sure it has the proper "feel" or you may find it awkward later when using it for a period of time.

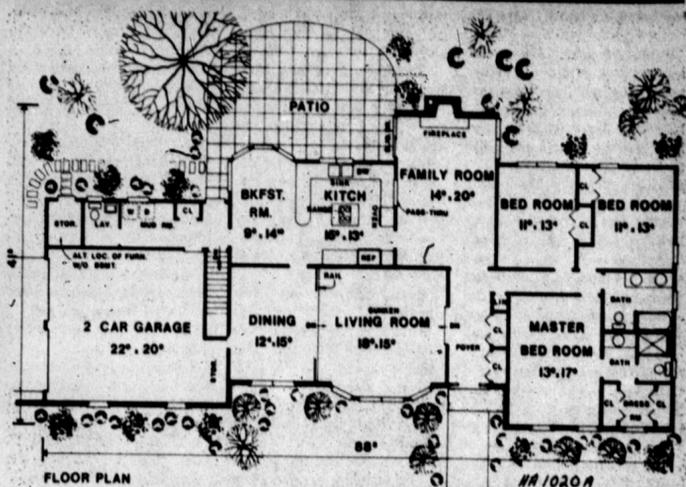

When a drill is designated as a quarter-inch size, it does not refer to the diameter of the hole that can be drilled with it, but to the maximum size of the shank that can be inserted in the chuck. The same thing holds true for larger-sized drills. This means, for example, you can drill a half-inch hole or even larger with a quarter-inch drill provided the bit shank is a quarter-inch or less. Some drill chucks are tightened by hand, some with a socket or Allen wrench and some with a geared key. When the chuck is tightened with a tool, attach that tool to the power cord of the drill so that it will always be handy when you need it.

Stage and film actress Helen Hayes made her stage debut in New York in 1909.

Here's the Answer

Q. — I am not much at fixing things. There was a time when it was easy to call someone up and pay to have any kind of repair made within a couple of days. Now they don't want to be bothered unless it's a big job. If it's something small, they say they are too busy or say they will be over in a couple of days but never show up. So this time I'm going to make an effort to fix something myself. There are several places in our blacktop driveway that need repair. Is there some easy way that a novice can fix these damaged areas?

A. — Yes. You need have no skill and you can use whatever tools you have on hand. The first step in repairing a hole or whatever in blacktop is to knock out the old material to a depth of about 2 inches. If the hole already is deeper than 2 inches, then fill it in with gravel until it is about 2 inches from the top of the driveway. Be sure to remove all loose material. Now, dump into the hole a blacktop patching mix which you can buy in most hardware stores and all lumber yards and building supply establishments. If you have a regular tamper, use it to tamp the mix solidly in place. If not, use anything that will do the job — a shovel or a wide piece of board, for instance. The driveway can be used immediately, but you should check every couple of days for a while to see whether any of the patching mix has dropped a bit below the surface. If so, put on some more of the mix and tamp again. This may be a little work, but not very much, so you really have no excuse to delay it.

Q. — We have a clay tile roof which has a small leak. I have located the exact area of the leak and intend to fix it by sliding a piece of aluminum under the tiles at that spot. What I want to know is whether there will be any chemical reaction between the tile and the aluminum as there sometimes is between two pieces of metal?

A. — No. Be sure the aluminum is kept in place with roofing cement.

Q. — I'm getting ready to insulate an attic floor. I noticed in a preliminary inspection that a lighting fixture from below protrudes through the attic floor. How should I handle this?

A. — To be in accord with the National Electrical Code, improvise a way of holding the insulation 3 inches away from the sides of the protrusion. Make some kind of metal shield, possibly by cutting the ends off a tin can of suitable size.

Irregularities Charged

BROWNSVILLE (AP)—State District Judge Darrell Hester today ordered a Brownsville district attorney to take before the grand jury possible charges of theft by fiduciary against the board chairman of a South Texas insurance company that formerly administered insurance programs for a Harlingen union.

Hester issued the order after his court of inquiry, looking into alleged irregularities in a Cameron County Manpower program, heard testimony from Robert Massey, board chairman of First United Life Insurance Co.

Hester repeatedly questioned Massey about $10,582 in the Plumbers and Pipefitters Union Local 823. That money was turned over to Massey's company for administrative expenses of the local's health and welfare plan.

Massey told the court the $10,582 was transferred out of that account into another account. He said the money is not in that second account now. "I know that I owe that money to the union. I used it to pay off company debts and I know we are liable to the union for it," Massey told the court.

He testified that he sold the administrative program to Employees Securities Program in Austin in late 1976 for $450,000.

He said the sale did not affect the $10,582 and that he still owes it.

Hester asked Massey if he had a bank account with the $10,000 in it.

"No," Massey replied, "but if you want a check for it, I'll give it to you."

Hester asked if he had that much in any one bank account and Massey said he did not and that during the past weekend, he placed $7,500 in cash in a safe deposit box in a local bank. He also said he had about $5,000 in a checking account.

Hester also questioned Massey about an $18,000 certificate of deposit purchased with union funds at a bank in Vidor, in Southeast Texas.

Massey initially said he did not know how the funds got to Vidor. Hester then asked Massey if he had any "pecuniary interest" in purchasing the certificate of deposit at the Vidor bank.

Massey said, "I don't know whether I did or not."

He told the court his company has insurance plans at that bank.

Hester asked Massey if he had made contact with a director at the Vidor bank about the certificate of deposit.

"It was you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours with union money, wasn't it," Hester asked.

Massey agreed that was substantially true.

State officials are to testify at the court of inquiry Tuesday, having been subpoenaed the current and former officials last week.

The scheduled witnesses include officials of agencies connected with issuing Manpower training grants funded by the U.S. Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act CETA.

The list of scheduled witnesses include: Jackie St. Clair, former state commissioner of Labor and Standards and now executive secretary of the Texas Building and Construction Trades Council Commission; Assistant Attorney General Ronnie Luna; Ben McDonald, executive director of the Texas Department of Community Affairs; Rolio Perez, head of the governor's Office of Migrant Affairs and three of Perez' employees.

Also, Camillo Dvorsky, head of the Department of Community Affairs monitoring section and one current and one former evaluator from that department.

Meanwhile, in Austin, the heads of two branches of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's official family said today they have suspended the flow of federal job training funds to the Manpower program.

Briscoe's press secretary, Bob Bain, said Saturday that Briscoe ordered the freeze on Dec. 20.

McDonald said the $248,000 grant from his agency was under "suspension with supervision."

He explained that no money would go to South Texas Building Trades Services, Inc., "but any funds lawfully due to trainees who have performed may be considered for payments so no hardship is worked on them."

McDonald said he and Briscoe's executive assistant, Dickie Travis, conferred after a court of inquiry began in Brownsville into the affairs of the non-profit job training corporation.

"I don't know who called who," McDonald said. "The governor's staff said the governor desired suspension of the payments under the contract."

Perez said, "We did get some oral instructions from the governor's office for me to look into it, and if it needed to be frozen, to freeze it immediately."

He said the last payment on the $300,000 contract with South Texas Building Trades Services was made on Nov. 11, 1977.

But, he said, "We didn't want to freeze the participants" and training is supposed to continue.

"They the job training center won't get any money until everything is cleared up," Perez said.

All the funds are from the CETA program.

When asked about the freeze Saturday, high-ranking subordinates of both McDonald and Perez said they were unaware of any such orders.

Bain said the freeze was ordered Dec. 20, and both Perez and McDonald said they remembered conversations with members of Briscoe's staff during that week.

McConn Becomes Mayor

HOUSTON (AP)—Jim McConn, reaffirming a pledge to provide improved services for the inner city, became mayor of Houston Tuesday.

The former city councilman took his oath and succeeded Mayor Fred Hofheinz in ceremonies at the Jesse H. Jones Hall for the Performing Arts.

Hofheinz did not seek a third two-year term.

McConn, 49, a home builder, was elected in a Nov. 22 runoff against Frank Briscoe, a former district attorney.

Kathy Whitmire, the first woman ever elected to Houston city office, took her oath as city controller. While elected on Nov. 22, she was appointed by Hofheinz on Dec. 13 to complete an unexpired term.

All eight city councilmen began new two-year terms.

RR Head Praises Briscoe

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—John Poerner, a former member of Gov. Dolph Briscoe's staff, was sworn in as a Briscoe appointee to the railroad commission Tuesday, saying the governor's "brand of government is my brand of government."

Several hundred persons—many from Medina County—gathered for the swearing-in ceremonies in the House chamber, where Poerner began his political career in 1969 as a state representative from Hondo.

Poerner said the "supreme respect and closer friendship developed by my being here," and working with Briscoe "have provided the most enjoyable years of my life."

Briscoe, who also once represented Medina County as a House member, said he wanted a commissioner with ability, experience and integrity. "I did not have to look long."

Poerner was director of the Governor's Office of Education Resources, which Briscoe described as a difficult "job no one wanted," when the governor named him as Jim Langdon's successor.

Langdon, a commissioner since 1963, quit with three years remaining in his six-year term to practice law.

Commission chairman Mack Wallace said neither he nor commissioner Jon Newton "looks upon our new colleague as a freshman or a rookie. We know we both can learn from this talented and knowledgeable public official."

Speaker Bill Clayton and several appointed state agency heads, such as chairman Hugh Yantis of the State Insurance Board, were present for the swearing-in, which was administered by Secretary of State Steve Oaks.

AUSTIN—Texas has a new emergency plan for handling winter fuel emergencies—which hopefully won't have to be implemented.

A blue-ribbon panel of the Emergency Energy Preparedness Committee adopted the guide for coordinated action by state agencies in dealing with cold weather natural gas and other fuel shortages in Texas and other states.

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace said he believes fuel stocks are better this year than last.

The plan contemplates no curtailments of natural gas supplies to residential customers. Commercial customers are not expected to experience severe problems due to availability of substitute fuels, the plan indicates.

Steps contemplated include increased production, allocations from one area to another, strict conservation measures and assistance programs to low-income families with peak winter fuel bills. The plan also suggests a moratorium on utility cut-offs due to inability to pay winter bills.

A center would be located in Austin to exchange information and monitor conditions on an around-the-clock basis if a genuine emergency develops.

"You can be sure we are not going to let people freeze while we go through hearings on gas rates," commented Wallace.

Severity of the winter will determine which, if any, of the emergency steps outlined, are necessary.

Statewide unemployment fell to 4.9 per cent in November.

smallpox vaccine January 1, since there hasn't been a case of smallpox reported in Texas since 1954.

Secretary of State Steve Oaks has issued instructions on implementing the new Texas voter registration laws.

Gov. Briscoe has announced awarding of two grants totalling $157,810 to Texas A&M University system for energy programs.

The Railroad Commission denied an application from Missouri-Pacific Railroad Company for authority to close the railroad's station house in Atlanta, Texas.

There were 22,911 applications for permits to drill oil and gas tests in Texas during the first 11 and a half months of 1977, up from 20,232 for the same period in 1976.

Rep. Walt Parker of Denton will be new executive director of the School District Tax Assessment Practices Board.

Candidate Judging
Environmentalists of the Texas League of Conservation Voters are going into the business of judging candidates for governor this year.

The league has evaluated voting records of legislators on environmental matters but has not taken a stand in the statewide elections.

Appointments
Former Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White was recommended by President Carter to head the Democratic national party, and the nomination was widely applauded by state leaders of all factions.

Gov. Briscoe dumped Rex C. Caultle of Denton, a former supporter, from the Texas Aeronautics Commission and replaced him with James D. Abrams of El Paso.
