

Combest tries twice

LSC fund-cutting measures fail

Two amendments aimed at the pocketbook of the Legal Services Corporation, the funding agency of Texas Rural Legal Aid, were turned down by the House of Representatives Thursday. Both measures were brought to the floor by Rep. Larry Combest, Dist. 19, as a change on the 1987 appropriations bill for the state, commerce, and justice departments.

His first amendment presented called for elimination $305.5 million in appropriations for the LSC. It failed by a 278-103 vote.

The second attempt to harness the agency called for cutting LSC funding to $280 million from the $305.5 million. It failed by a 204-164 vote.

Combest told the House that the amendment was needed to stop the gross misuse of taxpayer dollars that persist with LSC attorneys despite the numerous restrictions placed on their activities.

"Over the past 12 years LSC has become better known for its role in funding political activist layers throughout the country rather than its role in providing legal assistance to poor people," Combest said.

But another Texas congressman had other views. Rep. Henry Gonzalez, up for an unopposed election in Dist. 20, told the House, "God bless the LSC and its lawyers who work on behalf of the cause of the migrants."

Gonzalez, on a housing subcommittee, said he has visited Hereford twice to show the poor conditions under which migrants live and cited "cardboard shacks" were homes for the workers.

Combest told the congressmen that before the TRLA office was opened in Hereford, the town was a developing agricultural community which businesses considered a prime spot for new enterprises.

"Now, in addition to the problems generally plaguing agriculture, life in Hereford is characterized by ethnic division and social and economic upheaval," Combest said.

"The cruel iron of this situation is that the hardship brought on Hereford, Texas, has been funded with the residents' own tax dollars."

Combest told the House he felt the funding of an agency which fostered bitterness and unrest in communities was "unspeakable." He added that few taxpaying constituents want their dollars used in the way LSC uses it.

He noted in his presentation that the average staff attorney salary increased by 27 percent in a two-year period, an amount three times the increase of the consumer price index.

He said that since he has taken office there has been a steady flow of complaints from people in Dist. 19 about an LSC grantee, TRLA in Hereford.

While Combest claimed that the TRLA has "run amok of its intended purpose," Gonzalez called the attorneys of the LSC "heroes" who have stood up to threats and bodily harm to defend the poorest of the poor.

Special session set to convene Aug. 6

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has summoned state legislators to a special session Aug. 6, but top lawmakers say no agreement is in sight on the best way to reduce a budget deficit that could top $3 billion.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he and House Speaker Gib Lewis "do not agree on a plan, but we are both confident that we can reach agreement as we move closer to the opening date."

White called the special session Thursday night, saying the oil price drop has devastated the state treasury.

"This is the most difficult time in this state's history, at least in this century," White said.

In a speech televised live from his private Capitol office and at a later news conference, White said Texas has been placed at the mercy of Saudi Arabia as it glutts world oil markets.

"The times that we face today are extremely critical because we have very little control over the price of oil. If the price were at $20 a barrel, where all the prognosticators said it was going to be just a few months ago, then we wouldn't be here today," he said.

To solve the dilemma, White said more cuts in state spending will be needed.

He pledged there would be no state income tax and said he hopes to avoid layoffs of state workers or cuts in spending for education.

However, White did not offer specific details for lawmakers to follow in dealing with the crisis.

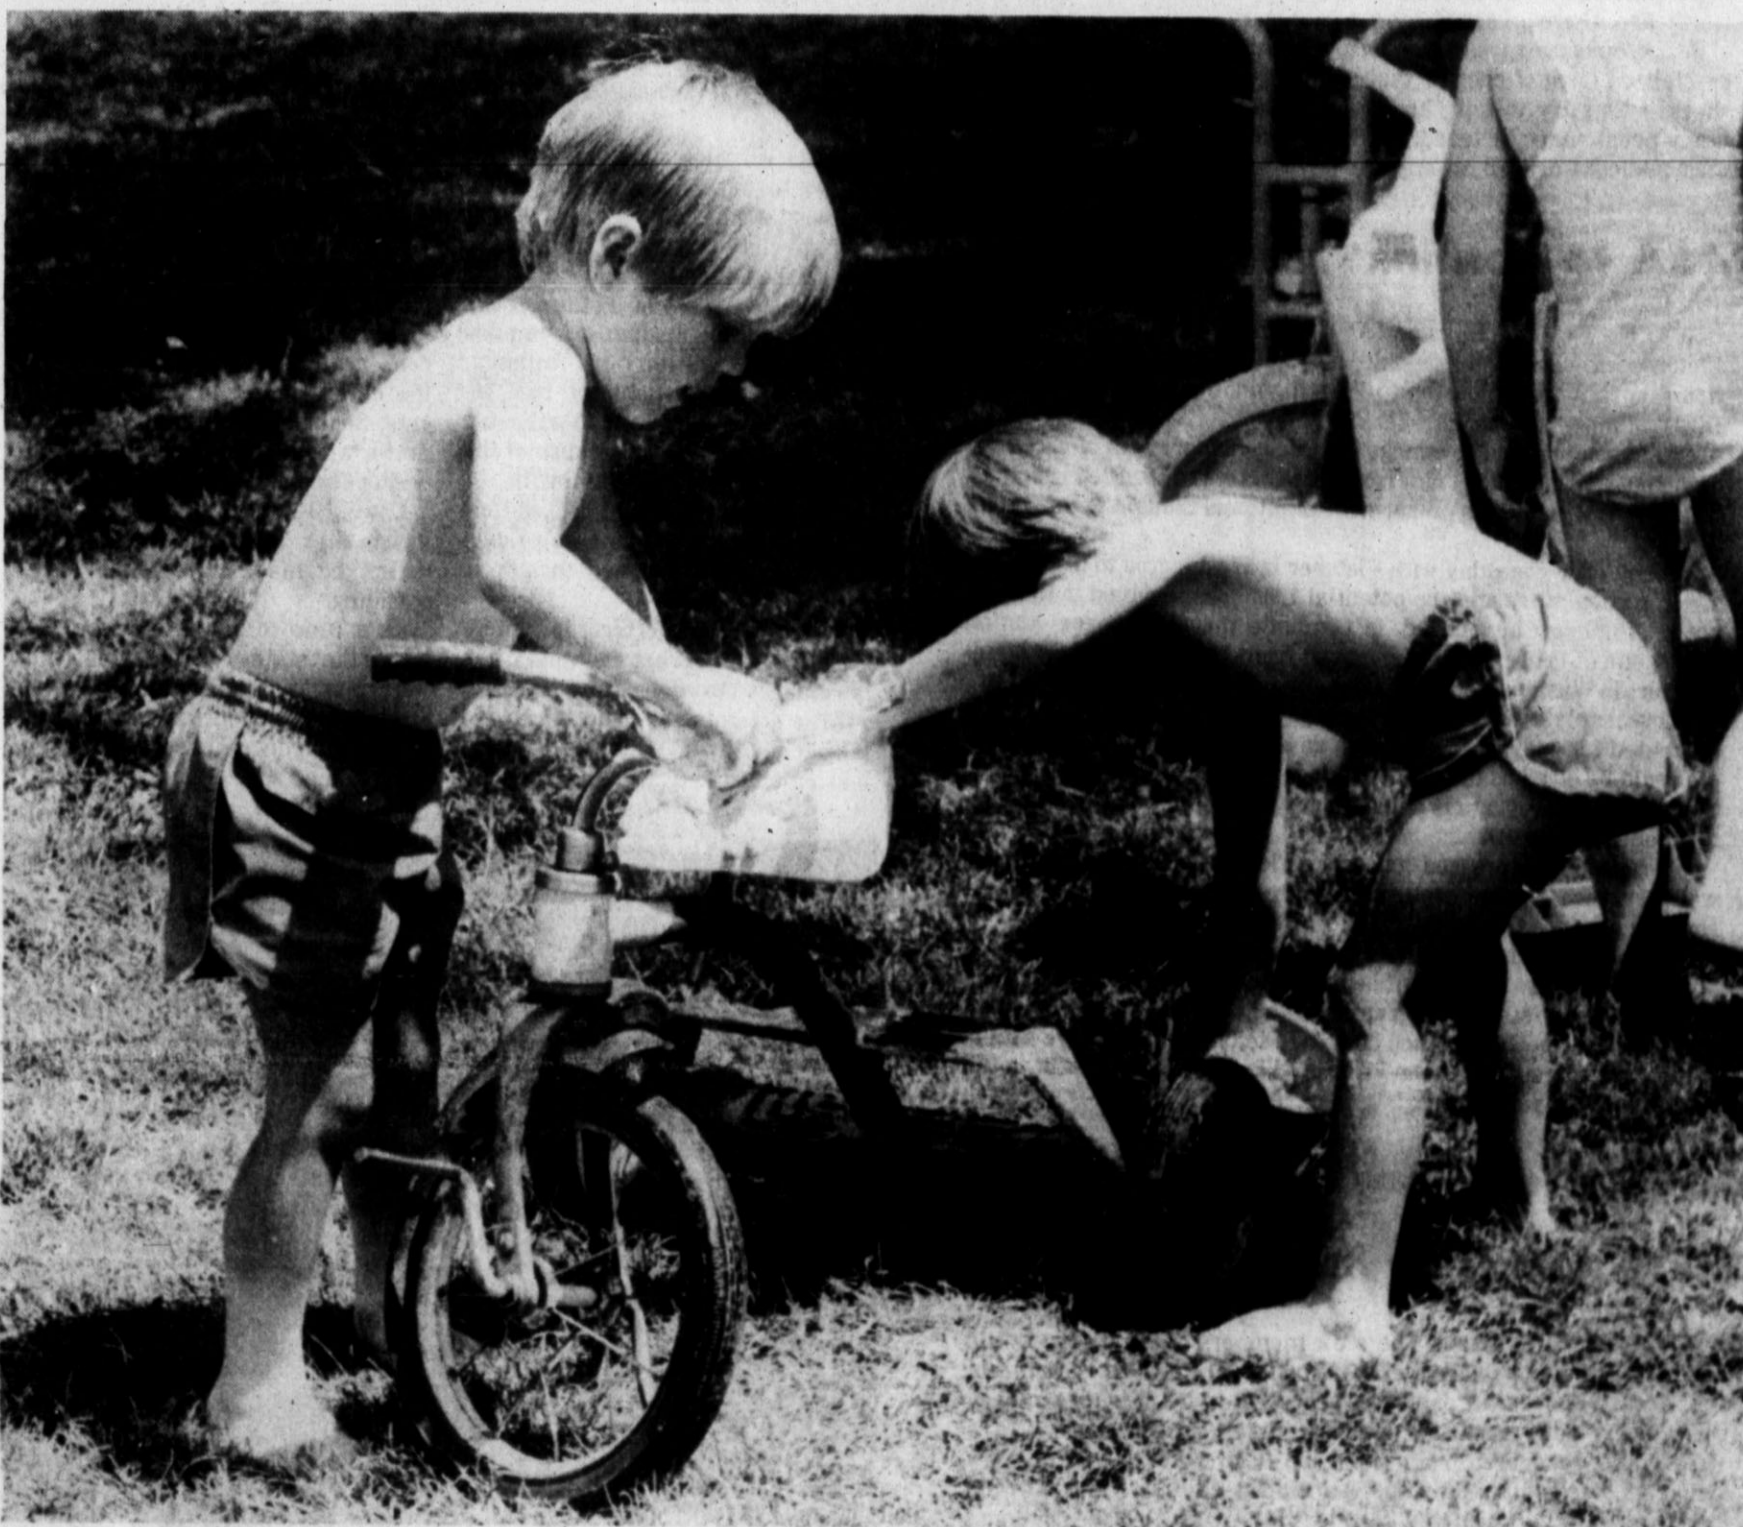

He said he is working with legislative leaders and watching the actions of House and Senate committees as they hunt for areas where spending can be reduced.

"We're working every day on formulation of a plan ... That plan is being worked on in the committees that are meeting now. They're talking about the cuts. That will be the first step in the plan," White said.

Cuts must come first, he said, before any increase in the sales tax is considered.

"First, we're going to see how far

Election fraud protest continues

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Thousands of supporters of the main opposition party blocked a major highway outside this border city for two hours in another peaceful protest against alleged state election fraud.

Today, the fourth day of protest by the conservative National Action Party, or PAN, drivers were to stop their cars at 2 p.m. MDT, pull their hoods open and honk their horns for about 10 minutes, as they have been doing daily since Tuesday.

Alleging ballot stuffing and the disappearance of ballot boxes, PAN asked the Mexican government on Wednesday to annul July 6 elections in the state of Chihuahua, which borders New Mexico and Texas.

The government Institutional Revolutionary Party, PRI, was declared the winner in Chihuahua races for governor, all 14 state legislative seats and 65 or 67 mayoral seats.

In Ciudad Chihuahua, the state capital, PAN supporters parked dozens of vehicles across the main highway to Mexico City Thursday.

The hour-long protest created an enormous traffic jam but no violence, said Fernando Ramirez, commander of the Chihuahua State Transit Police.

The two-hour blockade Thursday afternoon at a crossing of the Pan American Highway, about 12 miles outside Juarez, drew some 2,000 PAN supporters, who sang political ditties, chanted slogans and waved flags bearing the party emblem.

Forty plainclothes officers with the state judicial police, who had been in place since at least 5:30 p.m. MDT, wielded batons but retreated to about a half-mile away as the crowd grew steadily from a trickle to a couple of thousand.

Two government helicopters carrying soldiers circled the site early on, disappeared and returned as the blockade ended at 8 p.m. Buses, trucks and family cars that got caught in the blockade stood by their vehicles during the two hour-blockade with resignation.

Beet growers enjoy sharing ideas with Texas farmers

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Meeting the farmers who came to Bill Cleavinger's home during Thursday's sugar beet tour was the most important thing to Luther Markwart, executive vice president of the American Sugar Beet Growers Association.

"They stopped and visited and we had a chance to meet them and share ideas with each other," he said.

Markwart and 144 sugar beet producers and their wives toured Arrowhead Mills, viewed an antique car collection, and were treated to lunch at Hereford Country Club Thursday. The producers concluded their annual summer ASBGA meeting with a reception at the home of Jimmy Witherspoon, secretary of Texas Sugar Beet Growers Association.

Markwart said that one of the main problems facing the beet growers is the whole state of agriculture and concern for agriculture's future.

"But one of the brightest signs for the future in agriculture is that the Congress and Reagan administration are fully taking steps to solve international trade problems," said Markwart. "The House of Representatives passed the trade bill and the President did threaten to retaliate against the European communities trade bearers."

The ASBGA also has handled a few problems of its own recently. Earlier in the spring, the association had to face the USDA in the conservation program.

"There's a great amount of confusion on the 50-92 program because of late changes in the farm bill," said Markwart. "And when there are changes, the Reagan administration has a different interpretation of the law than what Congress has."

"And so, we had to go back and get congressional pressure and further explanation of the program in order to solve the problem."

"A key factor was that the farmers worked through their congressional members and were persistent," he said.

Markwart said the association was very happy with the outcome of the bill. "We basically got what we wanted from the farm bill, a simple loan program which has to be repaid to the government with interest and it is designed to operate at no cost to the operator," he explained.

Markwart said the new farm bill stabilizes consumer prices for everyone. "And it helps to keep sugar from getting expensive while maintaining the United States' sugar industry," he added.

Other problems discussed during the annual meeting included the threat of artificial sweeteners.

Markwart said that to counteract this, the association is spending close to $4 million on radio and print advertising, and public relations.

"We don't do any television advertising because it's so expensive and we don't have that kind of money," he added.

"What we stress is that sugar is a safe, natural sweetener that has only 16 calories per teaspoon," said Markwart.

Markwart said there are 13,000 sugar producers in the association. Markwart has been executive vice president of the association since April of 1982.

"When there's problems with the government in a program, it's my job to work with all the growers across the nation and work, really, as a representative for them," said Markwart. "I explain to the

AIDS fear alters addicts

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Fear of catching AIDS is turning heavy drug users from heroin to cocaine, a top official of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services says.

Dr. Donald I. McDonald told more than 250 law enforcement officers, educators, and medical personnel Thursday at a drug conference that more than half of all needle-using drug addicts in New York are infected with AIDS.

Many other addicts, both with and without AIDS, are trying to find other ways to satisfy their craving, McDonald said. One of the highest risk groups for AIDS are those who use needles to inject drugs into their system.

McDonald, acting assistant secretary of Health and Human Services, said drug addicts in New York are "becoming afraid of the needle."

"That's causing a lot of people to seek help for their drug dependency. It's also causing a lot of them to turn to 'crack' or snorting cocaine to get their high," he said.

Bexar County Medical Examiner Vincent DiMaio said such a strong fear of the needle hasn't existed in San Antonio because syringes can be bought over the counter, as opposed to large cities in the Northeast, where prescriptions are necessary.

Intravenous drug users who turn to cocaine — or crack, a popular crystallized form of cocaine that can be smoked — may be in for a shock if they try to quit, because cocaine is more addictive than many people have believed, McDonald said. He called cocaine the most addictive drug in America.

the cuts will carry us. Then we will take into account the other alternatives," White said.

White also refused to be specific when asked if he would accept a plan that would only cover the state's cash-flow problems until the regular legislative session in January. Treasurer Ann Richards has indicated she might have to write hot checks by year's end because of the slowdown in tax funds coming in.

"We're going to solve the cash-flow problem at the same time we're solving our budget problems," the governor said.

Pressed by reporters for more specifics about what he would like lawmakers to do, White replied, "We're not going to go out there and lay out a plan that everybody starts tearing apart ... This is the plan that we're going to follow, and that's to work with the House and Senate leadership."

That leadership wasn't in agreement as White called them to Austin for the special session.

Members of the generally more conservative House want to make up the entire deficit through spending cuts. Senators have said they would prefer a combination of cuts and increased taxes.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, continued to insist that the House wants the deficit be made up through lower spending.

"It's time to show the people of Texas that state government is going to respond to our fiscal problems as any other Texas business would, and that is to reduce government levels of spending," Lewis said.

"I am pleased to see that the governor has not mentioned any tax increases in his statement this evening," Lewis said.

But Hobby, who presides over the Senate, said relying on spending cuts alone is dangerous.

"There is no way that we can cut $2.5 billion from state services without shortchanging our future. Texas' prosperity depends on our willingness to make hard decisions now," Hobby said.

White's election opponent, former Republican Gov. Bill Clements, said the Democrat moved too slowly to call the session.

Comptroller Bob Bullock predicted a $1.3 billion deficit in February and raised that to over $2 billion on May 30, Clements noted.

"It took Gov. Mark White seven months to do what I told him in January was right for Texas. The reason he didn't call the session earlier is politics. White has allowed a bad situation to get worse," Clements said.

"It sounds like a tree fell on the boy," White responded.

White said he didn't call a special session sooner because oil prices have continued to drop and lawmakers wouldn't have known precisely how much spending to cut had he called them to Austin earlier.

administration or the congressmen if they have any questions about the industry."

Markwart said he and the tour group thought highly of Hereford's biggest industry—cattle.

"There's no other place in the country that has the feed operation that you have here," he commented.

"To give you an example, when we stopped at one of the feedyards people asked so many questions, they were so interested, that we had to make some cuts in other parts of the tour," Markwart said.

Concerning the nuclear waste repository, Markwart said it was a local issue only as far as the national association is concerned, but did comment, "I think anytime you put something of that seriousness in an agricultural area near water, you have a potential problem thousands of times worse than the Chernobyl incident and we know what kind of scare that that one incident had throughout the world," he said.

Bud Azarow, president of Holly Sugar from Colorado Springs, was a special guest at the country club luncheon Thursday. He urged producers to keep focus on the economic and political issues involving the industry.

A group of Chamber Singers entertained the association members during the luncheon. Mike Carr, executive vice president of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the group to Hereford. He was introduced by emcee Bill Cleavinger, president of the Texas Sugar Beet Growers.

NASA to 'rethink' station move

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA Administrator James Fletcher has agreed to "rethink" a proposal to move the space station program from Houston to Washington, Johnson Space Center Director Jesse Moore said.

"He has not agreed to change anything," Moore said of Fletcher. "I did not get any kind of new commitments out of Dr. Fletcher, but I do think Dr. Fletcher is giving some additional thought to this structure."

Moore met Wednesday with Fletcher in Washington to discuss the space station move and the potential 1,900 jobs involved in the program. Fletcher announced last month that the space station management center would be moved from Houston to NASA headquarters in Washington.

Moore explained during a Thursday news conference that the estimated 1,900 jobs were based on an assumption of how many people could be hired as the space station program progresses. He said the $1.4 billion program is in its infancy and doesn't expect a deployment until 1992 or 1993.

Moore said he expressed concern to Fletcher on Wednesday that a well-structured space station program might be better kept in Houston.

"We really wanted to make sure our center expertise here at Johnson was fully utilized in the development part and operational part of the space station program," Moore said.

He said the decision handed down by Fletcher "didn't have a lot of details associated with them. There still is a fair amount of detail that needs to be worked out."

Challenger crew had no warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crew members of the space shuttle Challenger were unaware they were in danger in the final moments before their spacecraft exploded, according to NASA's preliminary analysis of a newly restored tape recording from the flight.

The tape, recovered from the ocean floor with the orbiter crew cabin six weeks after the Jan. 28 accident, gives no indication the seven astronauts knew the shuttle was in trouble, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said in a statement Thursday.

The statement marked the first time the space agency had addressed anything associated with the last moments of the astronauts, all of whom were killed when the ship exploded in a fireball 73 seconds after launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

"Preliminary analysis of the tape shows the crew was unaware of the events associated with the tragedy and the internal communications were being maintained as would be expected during a normal ascent," NASA said.

It has been a subject of speculation since the accident whether, in the moments before their deaths, the crew knew something was amiss. A $15.1 million damage claim filed with NASA by the widow of pilot Michael J. Smith alleges Smith "was thrown about in the spacecraft and in the few seconds preceding his death, knew of his impending death."

Hostage released unharmed

MARAWI, Philippines (AP) — An American missionary was released unharmed today by his Moslem captors after six days in captivity on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao. No ransom was paid, a negotiator said.

The Presbyterian evangelist, Brian Lawrence, 30, of Madison, Wis., was brought to Marawi by Moslem Princess Tarhata Alonto Lucman, who negotiated his release.

The tall, bearded Lawrence looked slightly shaken, but said, "I feel very happy." "I have to say my kidnapers always treated me well," he said. "There were times when I was threatened... that if the military would operate (in a rescue attempt) I would be killed."

Lawrence was freed a day after another Moslem group released unharmed 10 Filipino Roman Catholic nuns, who were abducted from a Marawi convent last Friday.

Lawrence said the kidnapers did not know his name or nationality when they abducted him Saturday from his apartment in Marawi, on Mindanao 510 miles south of Manila.

He said about 20 men guarded him at any given time. Lawrence was released around noon. Military authorities said he was brought in a small boat from the island of Balut Masla in the middle of Lake Lanao to the lakeshore town of Uato, about 18 miles from Marawi.

Princess Tarhata, scion of an influential Moslem family and widow of a sultan, said no money was paid for Lawrence's release. It was not known whether any concessions were made.

The kidnapers' identity was not immediately known. Military officials have said Lawrence was believed to have been abducted by a group called the Barracudas, a private army linked to Moslem kingpin Ali Dimaporo, a supporter of ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Princess Tarhata, a political rival of Saidamen Pangarungan, the governor of Lanao del Sur province, said Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos asked her to negotiate with Lawrence's kidnapers for his freedom.

Mets explode past Astros, 13-2

By The Associated Press

Give them an inch, and they'll take a mile.

An old saying came true in Houston Thursday night as the New York Mets exploded for 13 runs in the last three innings to launch the second half of the season with a 13-2 victory over the Astros.

Leading the offensive charge for the Mets was second baseman Wally Backman, who drove in five runs with three singles.

Veteran righthander Nolan Ryan (6-7) was the victim of the Mets' explosion. With two outs in the seventh inning and the Astros leading 1-0, Ryan, who had allowed only four hits and struck out eight, walked three consecutive batters.

Len Dykstra drove in two runs with a single, Backman singled home two more, and Darryl Strawberry capped the seven-run uprising with a bases-loaded double.

"Despite the outcome, Ryan was throwing the ball the best I've seen in two years. He kept his breaking pitches down," Dykstra said.

Lefthander Bob Ojeda (11-2) was the beneficiary of the Mets' onslaught against Ryan and four other Astros pitchers. He pitched the first six innings, allowing one unearned run and four hits.

"This is a very good Mets team," said Astros manager Hal Lanier. "They have great pitching, and the biggest improvement this year is their bench strength."

In order to rest his relief staff, and down 10-2 going into the ninth inning, Lanier sent veteran infielder Craig Reynolds into the game as the fifth Astros pitcher. Reynolds had not pitched since high school in 1970.

"We were down eight runs at that point, and I didn't feel we could get back into the game. That is why I used Reynolds. I would do it again," Lanier said.

"It was fun being out there on the mound," Reynolds said. "But I hope I don't have to do it again soon." Reynolds gave up the final three runs.

The victory maintained the Mets' 13-game lead in the National League East over the Montreal Expos, 4-2 winners over the Atlanta Braves. In other NL action, it was San Francisco 6, Chicago 4; San Diego 2, Pittsburgh 1; Cincinnati 7, Philadelphia 6 in 11 innings, and St. Louis 12, Los Angeles 2.

Expos 4, Braves 2

Floyd Youmans pitched a four-hitter and struck out nine over seven innings as Montreal defeated visiting Atlanta, handing the Braves their fifth straight defeat.

Youmans, 10-5, walked four en route to his sixth straight victory. Jeff Reardon finished the game, recording his 21st save.

The loss went to Rick Mahler, 10-9. Giants 6, Cubs 4

Pitcher Vida Blue and Randy Kutcher each homered and Jose Uribe drove in two runs to lead San Francisco over Chicago. The victory for the visiting Giants was their third straight and seventh in their last 11 games.

Blue, 7-4, worked into the sixth inning.

Ed Lynch, 1-1, was the loser.

Padres 2, Pirates 1

Lance McCullers allowed four hits over seven innings for his first major-league victory as a starter to pitch San Diego over host Pittsburgh.

Garry Templeton had three hits and his one-out double drove in San Diego's first run in a two-run fourth against loser Rick Rhoden, 9-6. Tim Flannery knocked in San Diego's eventual winning run with a sacrifice fly later in the fourth.

McCullers, 5-3, walked one and struck out four in his third major-league start. Craig Lefferts pitched the final two innings for his third save.

Reds 7, Phillies 6

Pete Rose's two-out triple off the glove of right fielder Glenn Wilson scored Wade Rowdon in the bottom of the 11th inning, lifting Cincinnati over Philadelphia.

The Reds scored three unearned runs off reliever Steve Bedrosian in the bottom of the ninth to send the game into extra innings, winning it in the 11th on Rose's triple.

Ted Power, 4-5, gave up one hit over the last two innings to earn the win. Tom Gorman, 0-1, was the loser. Cardinals 12, Dodgers 2

Tommy Herr had three hits and John Tudor, supported by a 17-hit attack, finally won a game after six straight failures as St. Louis beat visiting Los Angeles.

Tudor, 7-5, allowed eight hits, struck out six and walked one in eight innings in his seventh attempt at winning his seventh game.

Loser Orel Hershiser, 8-7, was touched for six hits and five runs in just 1 1/3 innings as the Dodgers saw their road record fall to 11-27.

Sports camps must be fun for youth to learn

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Look for the teaching process at a summer sports camp, advises a California university soccer coach who runs one.

"Most camps teach the basic fundamentals and techniques of sports," says Mike Hovencik, soccer coach at United States International University in San Diego, "but the most important thing to look for in a sports camp is the teaching process.

"In order for the learning to take place effectively, it must be fun and it must be instructional. My feeling has always been that no matter what you're doing, if you enjoy it you're doing it well," he says.

"The parents who have come to my camps over the years have always asked their children two questions: First, did you have fun, and second, what did you learn? Never has it been the opposite," says Hovencik, who has been conducting sports camps for 11 years.

Another factor in selecting a camp, he says, is whether parents want their children to go to a day camp or a live-in camp.

Both offer the techniques and the fundamentals, he says, but the live-in camp also offers "the socialization of being away from home, of being on your own, of being a little more independent."

Tigers rally to defeat Rangers, 2-1

By The Associated Press

The baby-faced Texas Rangers make Detroit look like the Over the Hill Gang and make Tigers' Manager Sparky Anderson positive-ly drool.

The Tigers got the best of the Rangers, rallying in the ninth inning for a 2-1 victory Thursday night, but Anderson wasn't being fooled.

"You think they ain't looking ahead over there?" Anderson said, puffing on a pipe in his small office. "They've got 11 rookies. That's 11 of 24 ballplayers, with an outstanding young manager."

"That's an outstanding franchise." Actually, the Rangers only have seven rookies on their roster and two others who are in their first full season, but who wants to quibble? Anderson's point is well-taken. The Rangers have been in contention in the American League West all season and currently are in second place behind the California Angels.

"It wasn't so much that we were out-played," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said. "We just didn't do enough to win."

Strong talk for a man who just watched his pitcher walk in the winning run. Are these defeats easier to take now that the Rangers are a contender?

"I don't know that it was so hard," Valentine said. "We could have scored more than one."

"We just have to shake this one off and go out and beat their best pitcher (Jack Morris)."

Larry Parrish's 15th home run, a solo shot into the second deck just inside the right field foul pole in the second inning, staked the Rangers to a 1-0 lead and it looked for a while like it might stand up.

Texas starter Ed Correa, who at 20 is the youngest pitcher in the major leagues, checked the Tigers on only three hits in the seven innings he worked.

"Bobby has a lot of confidence in my stuff, but he felt I was getting tired so he took me out," Correa said. "I got out of jams two times before, but I believe that's what they pay Bobby for."

Hard-working Walt Terrell, 8-8, held the Rangers in check until the Tigers could get something started in their last at-bat. Terrell scattered six hits, walking one and striking out seven.

"I threw OK," Terrell said. "I got the ball up more than I wanted to. But, we were catching it so it was OK, but just OK."

Larry Herndon's pinch double in the ninth drove in the tying run and Herndon scored the winner when Kirk Gibson drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs.

"It's good to get off to a good start in the second half of the season," Herndon said. "I've been coming off the bench all year, so I was ready."

"You work hard to do your best all the time and it came out good tonight."

The victory brought the Tigers back to even .500 for the first time in two weeks at 44-44.

Correa and Mitch Williams, 7-2, had combined on a six-hitter through eight innings. But Darnell Coles led off the ninth with a single and scored one out later on Herndon's pinch-double into the left field corner.

"The ball hit the crack," Texas left fielder Gary Ward said. "It hit the crease between the pads out there and caromed away. He's not going to score any other way on that ball."

After Chet Lemon was intentionally walked and Lou Whitaker flied out, Greg Harris relieved Williams. Harris walked Alan Trammell to load the bases and Gibson walked on a 3-1 pitch.

"Harris is a pro. He'll get over this," Valentine said. "That's exactly what Sparky Anderson was trying to say."

In other AL games, Kansas City defeated Cleveland 5-1, Seattle slammed Boston 5-1 in 11 innings, New York beat California 8-5, and Baltimore defeated Minnesota 6-2.

Royals 5, Indians 1

Struggling Bret Saberhagen showed the form that won him the 1985 Cy Young Award and Frank White homered Thursday night to lead Kansas City past the Cleveland Indians 5-1.

The victory moved the defending World Series champion Royals into third place in the American League West, 7½ games behind California.

Last year, the Royals were in this exact same spot. They sloshed through the first part of the season and, one day after the All-Star break, were in third place, 7½ in back of California. After that, the Royals played the best ball in the major leagues, closing with a 47-29 tear.

Saberhagen, 20-6 last year, improved his record to 5-10 as he pitched eight innings and gave up five hits, including Joe Carter's 16th homer in the seventh. Saberhagen, who has been having trouble with his control, struck out six and walked one. The loser was Tom Candiotti, 8-7.

Mariners 5, Red Sox 1

Jim Presley hit a grand slam with two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning, lifting Seattle over Boston.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Maverick coach Dick Motta believes his unsung center, James Donaldson, is destined for a leading role in the NBA. Donaldson came to the Mavs in mid-season in a trade.

at-bats, sent a 2-2 pitch from Red Sox reliever Stanley Bob Stanley, 5-3, over the left-field fence for his 19th homer and second grand slam of the season.

Mariners starter Mark Langston pitched 10 innings, giving up an unearned run on four hits while striking out 11. But the victory went to reliever Pete Ladd, 5-2, who pitched the 11th.

Yankees 5, White Sox 4

Dennis Rasmussen won his sixth straight decision and right fielder Dave Winfield threw out the potential tying run at the plate to end the game as New York held off Chicago.

Rasmussen, 11-2, took a five-hitter and a 5-3 lead into the top of the ninth inning, but left after a leadoff single. Reliever Dave Righetti got his 20th save as the Yankees won for the fifth time in their last six games.

Blue Jays 8, Angels 5

Rance Mulliniks hit a three-run homer, capping a five-run fifth inning that sent Toronto over California.

The Blue Jays pinned the loss on Don Sutton, 8-6, who had won six straight games.

Jimmy Key, 9-6, won for the sixth time in his last seven decisions. John Cerutti got the final two outs for his first major-league save.

Orioles 6, Twins 2

Lee Lacy homered and drove in three runs and John Shelby and Cal Ripken also hit solo homers to lead Baltimore past Minnesota.

The winner, Ken Dixon, 9-7, gave up four hits, and was relieved in the eighth by Don Aase. Frank Viola's record dropped to 9-8.

In Alamance County, North Carolina, Honda lawn mowers are assembled from the wheels up. Then, each mower must pass rigid quality control standards before we ship it.

The final test is a critical performance check to ensure easy starting. We call it the Clara Johnson Test. At the end of the assembly line, each mower is started or it doesn't ship.

Come in and give the whole line of Honda mowers the Clara Johnson Test yourself. Each one will start easily, or it wouldn't be a Honda.

U.S., U.S.S.R. battle for title

By STEPHEN R. WILSON
Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States, who haven't met on a basketball court in four years, will play Sunday for the World Basketball Championship.

The confrontation came about because of some last-minute heroics by the Soviets and the Americans' ability to run. In Thursday night's semifinal games, the Soviets beat Yugoslavia 91-90 in overtime after overcoming a nine-point deficit with less than a minute left in regulation, and the United States held on to beat Brazil 96-90 after taking a 26-point lead in the first half.

The Soviets will seek to defend the title they won in 1982 when they beat the United States by one point in Cali, Colombia.

The United States, which has not won the world championships since 1954, took the gold medal in the basketball competition at the 1984 Olympics, but those Games were boycotted by the Soviets.

"We have a great rivalry with the Soviets, not only in sports, and it would be a great ending to beat them for the gold," American guard Kenny Smith of North Carolina, who scored 15 points against Brazil, said.

Smith and 5-foot-3 Tyrone Bogues of Wake Forest led a running offense that gave the Americans a 60-37 halftime lead after shooting 69 percent from the field. Bogues scored 12 points and had a game-high four assists and five steals.

Oscar Schmidt, Brazil's 6-8 forward, went to work in the second half, scoring 30 of his 43 points. But Brazil never got closer than nine points, 86-75 with 4:25 to play.

The American victory was sealed when the 6-11 David Robinson of Navy, who led the United States with 17 points, converted a three-point play with 1:22 left, slamming home a dunk and making the free throw for a 94-77 U.S. lead.

The United States will be forced to play the gold-medal game without their best outside shooter, Steve Kerr of Arizona. Kerr, who had 14 points, suffered a severe knee injury in the second half. For awhile Thursday night, it looked like the Soviets would fail to keep their date with the Americans. With less than one minute to play in regulation, they trailed Yugoslavia 85-76 and the Yugoslav players were starting to celebrate. Before they knew it, though, they were buried by a barrage of three-point field goals.

First, 7-foot-1 Arvidas Sabonis, who was selected by Portland in the first round of the NBA draft last month, connected on a three-pointer from the top of the key. Then, Valeriy Tikhonenko drilled a three-pointer with 40 seconds left, making it 85-82.

Yugoslavia lost the ball on a double-dribble violation with 12 seconds to play.

With four seconds remaining, and the fans wildly chanting "Russia, Russia," Valdis Valters launched a 25-footer from the left side of the key to tie the game 85-85 and force the overtime session.

Yugoslavia went ahead 90-89 with 2:23 left in the five-minute overtime, but never scored again.

Sabonis finished with 25 points and seven rebounds.

Lightning can form a particular danger to golfers because they are often in open fields far from shelter when a storm approaches.

Lightning storms are dangerous for golfers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the most popular months for golf, and the most dangerous for lightning, at hand, government weather officials are issuing their annual warning to leave the links when an electrical storm approaches.

Lightning deaths and injuries peak in July, with June and August close behind, according to National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration statistics covering 1969-85.

With 73 lightning-related fatalities, last summer was a relatively mild year, compared to the long-term average of 98 deaths.

Four golfers died from lightning strikes in 1985, the National Climatic Data Center reports. These fatalities occurred in Iowa, Kentucky, Utah and Illinois.

But meteorologists point out that increased outdoor activity in the summer months exposes growing numbers of people to the dangers of lightning and the toll can easily increase.

Between 1959 and 1985, some 120 lightning deaths occurred on golf courses, the weather records show, along with 318 injuries related to lightning strikes.

Michigan had 12 fatalities recorded over the period, and 38 injuries. Pennsylvania was a close second with 11 deaths and 11 injuries.

Black cowboy promotes rodeos throughout country

By BILL NICHOLS
Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS, (AP) — Cleo Hearn was a black cowboy before being a black cowboy was cool.

Hearn remembers a day in 1948 when he went to a rodeo near his hometown of Seminole, Okla., to watch Marvel Rogers perform. In those days, being a black cowboy definitely was not cool.

Rogers, who became one of the greatest black riders ever, would wait until the competition was over before getting his chance to ride. When the white riders finished, the crowd passed around a hat taking contributions to watch Rogers ride the baddest horse in town.

"The crowd helped him get his break," Hearn said. "For their entertainment dollar, the crowd didn't care what color he was. He broke the barrier for blacks to ride in rodeos."

Rogers also made a lasting impression on Hearn, who at age 9 decided on the day he saw Rogers' performance, that he, too, would make rodeo his life. Thirty-eight years later, Hearn is an accomplished professional calf roper and rodeo organizer. He was in Dallas last month to ride in the Texas Black Invitational Rodeo and Folklife Festival.

Black rodeo has been around a long time, but it has come a long way since the days when Rogers and a handful of other cowboys fought for acceptance on the professional circuit. In the '50s and early '60s, black rodeos were the only places that blacks could perform in mainstream rodeo competition.

Hearn, too, has come a long way since the day he saw Rogers ride. Hearn has helped promote black rodeos across the country since 1971, turning it into an educational experience designed to focus attention on black culture and history.

When Hearn was growing up, blacks could compete with white cowboys, but they weren't allowed to ride during the regular competition. Although some blacks still competed on the regular circuit — riding after everyone else — black rodeos began springing up around Houston and throughout Oklahoma, giving black cowboys a chance to showcase their talent.

After seeing Rogers, Hearn learned to ride with a friend whose father had a horse. While practicing, Hearn was noticed by Chick Sewell, who ran a calf-roping school nearby. Sewell offered support, and Hearn accepted. Their black-white friendship was born, and Sewell accompanied the young black cowboy to rodeos all over Oklahoma.

"It wasn't too popular for him to ride around with a black guy in the front seat of his truck," Hearn said. "But Chick liked me and he let me work out. He got me hooked up with these guys down in Texas, and I developed some good habits."

Hearn saved his money and took a bus to Drumright, Okla., to enter his first calf-roping event at the Drumright All-Negro Rodeo. Here was his dream, and he was nervous.

"I missed the calf on the very first try," Hearn said. "That's probably one of the greatest things to happen to me because I went home and practiced more than ever."

He returned the next year and won his first professional competition at age 17. This was 1956, and Hearn collected $112. There were five black rodeos in Oklahoma within an 80-mile radius — Shawnee, Seminole, Boley, Drumright and Okmulgee — and Hearn entered them all.

The following year, he went to Oklahoma State University on a football-rodeo scholarship. But after the coaches told him they wanted him to play football exclusively, he dropped out and was drafted.

Once out of the service, Hearn kicked around the professional circuit and turned pro in 1960. The rodeo was a tough living. After the cuts and the bruises, there was the constant traveling and the terrible pay. On top of that, there was the feeling he didn't belong because of his color.

"It was common practice not to compete during the paid performance," Hearn said. "But my desire to be a cowboy was so great, I just wanted to win. I didn't know any better. I thought that was the way it was supposed to be."

In 1957 when he was 18, Hearn once was allowed to compete during a regular competition. The memory of that experience still scares him.

"A guy jumped over the fence during my performance," Hearn said. "He was juiced. He said, 'Ain't no nigger ever roped here, and we ain't going to start now.' But this white guy helped me. I was riding his horse, so he had a vested interest in me. From that point on, it got better, but you could always feel it. You can feel when you're not wanted."

Hearn said the color barrier finally was broken around 1965, when the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association refused to discriminate and blacks were allowed to compete. Hearn said the public's demand to see the black cowboys they had heard about or had seen after a white rodeo led to the turnaround.

Today, out of about 6,000 professional cowboys, about 35 are black. Hearn has been instrumental in organizing black rodeos, holding the first in Dallas in 1975.

For Hearn, being a black cowboy has its ups and downs. He has always had to explain himself. Most people, Hearn said, think a black cowboy is a contradiction in terms.

"You ought to see some of the looks I get," Hearn said. "Here's a black man walking around town with his boots and spurs. You've got to explain yourself. I once stopped in Kansas City to get some gas and this black guy came up to me and said, 'Hey mister, what do you represent?'"

"When I told him I was with the rodeo, he said, 'Man, I've got to see this.' I gave that guy a ticket, and the next night he brought about 50 members from his church. He's my best fan."

At 47, Hearn works five days a week as a field manager for Ford, then spends the weekends at rodeos. He says he will continue competing until he dies because he loves the travel, the camaradery and the competition.

"I'm well accepted now on strictly ability," Hearn said. "Color doesn't mean a thing. A cowboy can make it if he wants it."

DR. GOTT One physician is usually enough

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In my region of the country it seems as if gynecologists takes care of women's health, including problems not related to the reproductive tract, whereas men go to an internist. Should women go to a gynecologist and an internist?

DEAR READER — Customs vary from region to region, depending on the availability of doctors and the preferences of their patients. Many women feel more comfortable — for one reason or another — using their gynecologists as personal physicians. As a general internist, I prefer to use gynecologists as consultants. In my view, they should limit their practices to the female reproductive system and leave the driving to us — the internists and family practitioners.

I doubt that a woman needs both a gynecologist and a general medical doctor. One or the other will do. In the long run, I believe you will obtain more balanced primary care from an internist or family doctor, if you can find one who measures up to your gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had a problem with drowsiness for several years. I fall asleep in church, watching TV and riding or driving in an auto. This condition is quite annoying, embarrassing and dangerous. I get a good night's sleep. How can I deal with this problem?

DEAR READER — Uncontrollable and inappropriate drowsiness may be due to an unusual disease called narcolepsy. This can be diagnosed by a competent neurologist, who will also be able to suggest treatment. The cause of the sleep attacks in narcolepsy is not treatable, but stimulant drugs almost always end the attacks.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Finally, after two years of fertility studies, Clomid and anguish, I am finally pregnant. I am a diabetic, but my doctor says that I should avoid anything that contains Nutra-Sweet (aspartame) because of its effect on the fetus. Any suggestions?

Your doctor is probably being overly cautious, but he or she is correct; it's better not to take chances: For example, aspartame can accentuate certain metabolic diseases like phenylketonuria. As a diabetic, you must also avoid sugar. Therefore, I suggest that you use fruit to relieve your sweet tooth. Your body doesn't need refined sugar, and you certainly don't need Nutra-Sweet.

Because the effects of pregnancy on your diabetic condition are somewhat unpredictable, you need to be closely monitored during your baby's gestation. I suggest that you ask your obstetrician to refer you to a dietician with whom you feel comfortable

All In A Row

Excitement mounted among the children as 30 commercial tricycles were delivered recently to Ruth Warner Memorial Day Care Center and the Norton Center. The tricycles are made of heavy gauge one-piece steel tubing and have replacement parts. They are also guaranteed for five years according to Betty Dickson, executive director of Hereford Day Care Center.

Ann Landers—Reply given

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In response to "East Coast Agony," whose child's blood type is Type A and neither he nor his wife have that type, I have a similar situation. My husband has Type A and I have Type B.

Seven months ago we had a son born to us with Type O blood. I told the nurse at the hospital this could not be our child because neither my husband nor I have Type O blood. She said, "Blood type can skip a generation. Check and find out if one of the child's grandparents has Type O blood."

Sure enough, we checked and learned that my mother has Type O. So please tell "East Coast Agony" to make some inquiries before he gets all worked up.—NO DOUBTING THOMAS IN INDIANA

DEAR NO D.T.: I asked a top-notch authority at Duke University Medical Center to explain the situation. He kindly consented to do so. Here is his reply:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your respondent to "East Coast Agony" is essentially correct; blood group O may be present in a child although both parents appear to lack it. Each person has two genes which determine the ABO blood group, one inherited from the father and one from the mother. The O blood group behaves like a recessive trait (like blue eyes). It is expressed only when two genes for it are present, as in her child. Both she and her husband have only one gene for O, the other gene being A or B. A and B are dominant (like brown eyes) and are expressed when only one A or B gene is present. Thus, the characteristic does not actually skip generations, but is simply not detected unless both genes are O.

This situation is different from that of "East Coast Agony." His problem is that one of the children appears to have a gene (the gene for A) which neither he nor his wife possesses. Since A is dominant, it would be expressed if either had the gene (either as Type A or AB blood).

I fully agree with your first consultant. Blood group genetics is not a subject for amateurs; too much is at stake.—Sincerely, Wendell F. Rosse, M.D., Professor of Medicine, Co-Director of the Division of Hematology-Oncology, Duke University Medical Center.

DEAR ANN: This was clipped from the Mexico City News about 30 years ago. It must have had me plenty intrigued to have kept it so long. After all these years it still makes sense. Will you print it, please?

"A Manhattan bus driver whose route terminates at a small park near the Bowery, where many loafers congregate, says, 'In all my years of stopping at that park I have yet to see a bald-headed bum there. Most of the loafers have plenty of hair.'"

I found this extremely interesting. All my life I've noticed that bald-headed men were the most fascinating, charming, delightful—and also the most successful.

"Bald-headed Row" is always occupied by the influential and affluent.

I've often heard it said that bald-headed men are the greatest lovers. Maybe you should advise your readers to tell their daughters to try for a bald-headed husband.—THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

DEAR T.R.F.: Few men are bald when they marry—for the first time. The best way to determine if your husband is going to end up with a shiny pate is to look at his father.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

A luxury car maker has begun a program in which those who can't afford the cost of buying a new model can buy one of its "pre-owned" models. Pre-owned, of course, means the same as used, but it sounds nicer, car dealers say.

Col. Godman to speak at meeting Saturday evening

Col. Henry Godman, author of "Supreme Commander", will be the guest speaker at the Hereford Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship dinner and meeting Saturday at the Community Center.

The dinner, which will be catered by Savage's Barbecue, will be served at 7 p.m. and the meeting will begin at 7:45 p.m.

Anyone interested in attending may call Richard Schlabs at 364-1281.

Col. Godman was handpicked by Gen. Douglas McArthur to be his personal pilot. He has spent a lifetime flying for the United States Air Force.

Following a crash into shark-infested waters off the island of Mindanao in an attempt to rescue Gen. McArthur and his family, Col. Godman became a pilot of the famous B-17 "Bataan." Following seven years in the Strategic Air Command, commanding two SAC bases, Col. Godman served as Director of Operations for the Air Force Systems Command.

Retiring from Holloman Air Force base as base commander, Col. Godman and his wife now reside in Alamogordo, N.M.

The King Davis Hotel in Jerusalem, headquarters of the British forces in Palestine, was blown up on July 22, 1946. Nearly 100 people died and 50 were wounded in the attack by a terrorist group. The attack was sparked by an Anglo-American committee recommendation earlier that year to divide Palestine and allow the immediate admission of 100,000 Jewish refugees. Britain, however, refused to agree to the plan unless the U.S. shared the costs. Terrorism continued until Britain withdrew from Palestine in 1948.
