Budget may come in above deficit target

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nearly $1 trillion fiscal 1987 budget approved by Congress early today may not reduce the deficit enough to avoid automatic spending cuts of the Gramm-Rudman law, lawmakers

The plan restrains both military and domestic spending and officially meets next year's $144 billion deficit target with $1.4 billion to spare. But lawmakers said it contains optimistic assumptions about strong economic growth, and weak provisions to enforce the cuts, that could drive the deficit estimate billions of dollars higher.

"It's phony as a $3 bill," said Rep. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee. Still, Conte was one of 333 House members who voted for the budget, with only 43

Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said, "At least there is a modicum of outlay reductions."

In Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is vacationing, White House spokesman Larry Speakes issued a statement saying the president found the overall conference agreement "generally action "would alter the president's priorities."

The resolution "cut too much from defense and international affairs in fiscal year 1987 and is way too limiting" for future years, Speakes

The spokesman said the resolution increases domestic spending by more than the president recommended, but he welcomed the fact that the conference report did not call for a tax increase and met Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction targets.

The legislators, rushing out of town for the Fourth of July recess, approved the $995 billion plan overwhelmingly. It was given final passage by the Senate by voice vote early today soon after the lopsided approval vote in the House on Thursday night.

Before the Senate voted, its budget committee chairman, Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., predicted a tax increase still would be needed.

Domenici said the $292.15 billion in military spending in the budget was inadequate, and President Reagan would have to ask Congress for an in-

Nicaragua cracks down on dissent following U.S. approval of rebel aid

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -The Sandinista government shut Nicaragua's only opposition newspaper and announced stricter internal security measures a day after the U.S. House of Representatives approved new aid to the Contra rebels.

In a nationwide television and radio broadcast Thursday night, President Daniel Ortega said House approval of $70 million in military aid and $30 million in non-lethal assistance to the Contras "opens a new aggressive escalation ... which forces a revision of some policies to confront the new threats that exist."

The Democratic-controlled House approved the aid to the Contras on Wednesday, and passage by the Republican-controlled Senate, which approved an earlier assistance bill, was expected to follow.

In The Hague, Netherlands, today, the World Court denounced U.S. backing for the Contra rebels and termed the U.S. support a violation of the U.N. Charter. The ruling came at the end of a 26-month legal proceeding at which the Sandinistas presented what they said was evidence of U.S efforts to topple the Managua government. The United States boycotted most of the court

Ortega said his crackdown on dissent would include "the strict and severe application of the state of several times for a few days at a emergency" imposed March 15, 1982. The emergency suspends rights of assembly and free association, habeas corpus and the right to strike, and allows the government to make arrests without a warrant. It also requires the news media to submit material for censorship. Ortega said the emergency rules were "an effort to contribute to easing internal and regional tensions," but sometimes had been managed "with excessive flexibility."

Even before the tightening of the state of emergency was announced, the government closed the newspaper La Prensa.

A letter from the Interior Ministry to editor Pablo Antonio Cuadra said that "from now, the daily newspaper La Prensa is closed for an indefinite time," managing editor Carlos Holmann said.

The government's Voice of Nicaragua radio later called the newspaper "an accomplice and an official spokesman of President Reagan in Nicaragua and a direct accomplice in the aggression and war against our people, of the bloodshed in our country."

Elimination of too many stories had prevented La Prensa from publishing 41 times since the emergency was declared. It also had been closed by the government

But Holmann said that in the past the newspaper had always been told how long it would be kept shut.

Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, a coowner of the paper and widow of former publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, said the newspaper would comply with the order because "there is no alternative."

'This confirms that there is no freedom of the press," she said.

Pedro Joaquin Chamorro was a critic of Nicaraguan strongman Anastasio Somoza. The publisher's slaying in 1978 was a spark that intensified the Sandinista revolution that overthrew Somoza in 1979.

Loan problems of Cox not to affect interest in Hereford plant

Staff Writer

A combination of depressed economies in the oil and gas, agricultural, and real estate industries is at fault for Dallas investor Edwin L. Cox's uncertainty to repay $80 million in personal loans from Interfirst Corp. of Dallas, a spokesperson for Cox's Valley View holdings

Lucia Wyman of Valley View headquarters in Dallas, said that everything is going as scheduled," however, with the proposed Valley View energy generating facility to be located near Hereford.

Construction of the multi-million dollar Valley View project is planned to begin in September.

"Everything is fine," said Wyman.
"Hopefully we can correct the misconception that these personal loans will affect his business projects. These business loans are totally separate and apart from anything to do with his business. Even the personal loans themselves are not in jeopardy," explained Wyman.

Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Mike Carr said that a $92.7 million bond acquired through the county to fund the Valley View project is in no way in trouble.

"That money can only be used for the construction of the plant," said Carr. "Nobody can take any money from that account for any reason other than the construction." Cox, 39, the son of Dallas oilman Edwin L. Cox Sr., owns several meat-packing plants in the Texas Panhandle, including the recently acquired Swift Independent Packing of Chicago. Wyman also pointed out that Cox's holdings within the Swift

Testimony continues in torture case

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former Hill Country ranch worker has testified he suggested the tape recording of torture sessions of another laborer.

Carlton Robert Caldwell, 21, also admitted he helped torture Anthony Bates. But Caldwell said he participated because he feared he might be the next target in a torture session. He said he recommended tape recordings because he might be able to escape with the tapes as evidence. Caldwell is the only one of three defendants who has taken the witness stand in an organized crime trial. Caldwell, of Alamagordo, N.M., Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55; and Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33; are charged with conspiracy to commit aggravated kidnapping and murder. They are accused in the March 1984 cattle prod torture death of

The prosecution also claims after Bates died, his corpse was doused in gasoline and burned. Caldwell said Thursday the first time the junior Ellebracht handed him the cattle prod to use on Bates, he did not turn on the power. "Why did you participate?" in the torture sessions, Caldwell's attorney Scott Stehling asked.

"Because if I didn't, then I could very well have been cuffed myself and been in Anthony's position," Caldwell said.

Caldwell said Ellebracht Jr. instigated the first torture session after Bates, who had been injured in a chainsaw accident, refused to work on the ranch.

Farm Aid II site switched again

AUSTIN (AP) - Jim Hightower likens producing the Farm Aid II concert to loading bull frogs into a wheelbarrow, but "leap frog" might be more accurate.

More problems with liability insurance have forced the benefit concert to switch sites for the second time in two weeks, this time to a horse-training facility east of the city, organizers said Thursday.

"I said the other day that nailing down all the business details of the Farm Aid II concert was kind of like loading bull frogs into a wheelbarrow," state Agriculture Commissioner Hightower said.

"We finally got the toads loaded up, but to make Farm Aid II work, we've had to move a little further down the road to Manor Farm country," he added.

The day-long July 4 concert to benefit the nation's farmers was originally scheduled for the University of Texas' Memorial Stadium, but prohibitive liability insurance costs forced promoters to move it last week to South Park.

That site six miles south of the city is where country singer Willie Nelson, who organized the Farm Aid concert, has held his Fourth of July picnic-concerts in the past.

"By moving to Manor Downs, Farm Aid II will save a ton on insurance," said Hightower, whose department is backing the production. "The insurance companies were charging so much at the other location that it would consume $6 out of every ($20) ticket.

"But by using the policy Manor Downs had in place, it will cost just $1 of every ticket," he added. "That's a bonus of $5 for every ticket that Farm Aid can send to provide services to hard-strapped farmers instead of big insurance conglomerates."

Gas war takes prices to zero

SANDOVAL, Ill. (AP) - It started out as an old-fashioned gasoline price war and ended up as a party as hundreds of drivers, sipping sodas and joking with each other, lined up for blocks for the ultimate savings - free gas.

The Star service station and Huck's Convenience Store in this southern Illinois village of 1,700 people began their battle Wednesday and kept cutting prices until, on Thursday, both were giving away fuel.

"This is great!" said Leanna Spitler of Odin, laughing as she filled her tank. "They were charging 20-some cents. But when I got around the corner, they were saying: 'It's 9 cents. It's 8 cents. It's 4 cents. It's free!

"I figured they'd run out of gas before I got here, but they didn't." The Star Service and Petroleum Co. station was charging 71 cents per gallon and 76 cents for unleaded — a penny more than Huck's when the battle began, said Jim Miller, the local Star manager.

"We've made a lot of friends with it," he said Thursday. "I don't have any idea how long it'll last. I just do what they tell me.'

White ignoring budget

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Protestant church leaders today urged South Africans to refuse to state their race on documents, a key measure in the administration of apartheid. "If done on an increasing scale, this would eventually render the system unworkable," the South African Council of Churches said in a resolution adopted at the end of its annual conference in Johannesburg.

New national identity documents, replacing passes for blacks and separate cards for whites, will not state race, but race still will be designated on most forms, including birth certificates and driving licenses.

Johannesburg police, using powers granted under the nationwide state of emergency declared June 12, today extended a ban on students entering school premises to the black township of Alexandra.

Schoolgrounds have been a prime location for anti-government protests, and the ban on students entering school premises already was widespread.

The ban followed two more regional curfews imposed Thursday, one across the troubled KwaNdebele tribal homeland, north of Pretoria, and another on 11 black townships in the northern Orange Free State province.

Township residents were also banned from carrying slingshots.

Ordinance passed by commission

In a special meeting of the Hereford City Commission held Thursday morning in the Hereford City Hall, an ordinance was signed declaring Sept. 13 as the date to hold the city election.

Seats up for election are in Places 2 and 4 and are currently held by R.W. Bud Eades and Emory Brownlow

According to the commissioners, the opening date for filing for those seats is Monday, June 30. All filing must be completed by July 30.

In order to run for the commissioner seats, the individuals must reside in that district and voters may only vote in their residential district.

The September election replaces the April 15 election which was postponed due to a law suit filed against the city by Flora Aguero, Domingo Landin, and Criselda Landin. In the lawsuit, the plaintiffs said that the city's former election procedures were discriminatory against Hispanics.

Prior the the lawsuit, the commissioners were choosen by a city-wide vote. Commissioners elected in early March to settle the suit out of court. The city agreed to divide into four seperate commissioner precincts, with each commissioners elected from the district in which he or she lives.

Voting will be at the Hereford Community Center. Voters who are not registered must do so at least 30 days before the Sept. 13 election in order to be eligible to vote. Voter registration can be done in the county clerk's office in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The council includes representatives of the major Protestant churches in South Africa, but does not include the Dutch Reformed Church of the governing Afrikaners. The council is headed by a veteran Afrikaner anti-apartheid campaigner, the Rev. Beyers Naude.

It was not immediately clear what penalities, if any, South Africans could incur for altering documents.

In addition to the 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew imposed in KwaNdebele, emergency regulations issued by the homeland's white police chief on Thursday said no one may "play, loiter or aimlessly remain on any public road."

Non-residents were banned under the decree from the 1,000-square mile homeland, 60 miles from Pretoria.

KwaNdebele is scheduled in December to become the fifth tribal homeland to acquire nominal independence under a policy which the original architects of the apartheid system of racial separation hoped would ensure permanent white control over 87 percent of South Africa.

According to the government, 66 people have been killed in South Africa since the state of emergency was imposed.

Among other things, the emergency rules prohibit news reports on security force actions without official permission, disseminating "subversive statements" which are vaguely defined, and revealing the identities of people detained without

CHICAGO (AP) - One of a sixmember committee reviewing the Roman Catholic bishops' 1983 condemnation of nuclear war predicts they will have to revoke their conditional acceptance of nuclear deterrence because of U.S. policies.

Auxiliary Bishop Thomas J. Gumbleton of Detroit told a Catholic group here that the bishops' provisional acceptance of deterrence hinged on progress toward arms control and almost none is being made.

"The bishops are going to have to face up to these facts," he said, as reported in the archdiocesan weekly, Chicago Catholic.

Besides tolerating deterrence only as transitional in reducing such weapons, he said conditions laid down excluded first-strike weapons, such as the MX, and also Pershing 2 missiles deployed by the United States in Europe.

Administration officials have pressed Congress to sell more government assets and raise user fees, but lawmakers said many of those were politically impossible and a tax increase was the only way to give Reagan anywhere close to the $320 billion he originally requested for the military.

The Senate had endorsed a $10.7 billion tax boost, but House Democratic leaders refused to go along unless Reagan dropped his opposition. The contingency fund for "unmet critical needs" helped lead to the House-Senate compromise.

Whether Congress actually meets the Gramm-Rudman requirements won't be determined until August, when the Congressional Budget Office and the president's Office of Management and Budget make a revised deficit estimate.

If the deficit for fiscal 1987 misses the $144 billion target by more than $10 billion, automatic spending cuts would be ord;.."ilitary and domestic programs to make up the difference.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., an original sponsor of the Gramm-Rudman law, predicted the deficit wouu $165 billion because of "the soft numbers."

Approval of the spending plan came more than two months after Congress' self-imposed deadline of April 15. But it was still well in advance of last year, when the budget wasn't approved until Aug. 1.

Medication can DR. GOTT ease migraines

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am 31, average height and weight, married with two children (my husband had a va-sectomy). I occasionally get anxiety attacks and have mitral valve prolapse. My problem is that every time I have an orgasm, I get a rotten mi-graine headache that lasts for two days, complete with nausea and flashing lights. I have seen four doctors, and all look at me as if I'm from outer space. What do you think?

DEAR READER - I think that your doctors are from outer space. Sexual excitement and orgasm can trigger migraine headaches in susceptible individuals. Find a doctor who is an earthling and ask for a prescription for the beta-blocker propanalol (Inderal). Twenty milligrams three or four times a day, during the times you are sexually active, may prevent the migraines from developing. DEAR DR. GOTT - What causes constantly chapped lips?

DEAR READER — Chapped lips usually result from loss of natural oils from the skin. Frequent lip licking, cold weather and exposure to sun or wind can deplete the lips' lubrication. A lanolin-containing cream will replace the oils; a petroleum-base lip balm wil help protect from further

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am concerned about my 9-month-old grandson's feet. His toes point straight out to the sides, instead of towards the front. The doctor says they will correct themselves. What do you think?

DEAR READER — Your doctor is probably right. Once children start to walk, their feet usually straighten out. If you are really worried, ask the pediatrician to refer you for another opinion to an orthopedic surgeon who specializes in children's bone

DEAR DR. GOTT - I read that Teens Alzheimer's disease may be hereditary. What can a genetics laboratory do to locate the defective gene?

DEAR READER - Many research facilities are investigating the likelihood that Alzheimer's disease (and other similar conditions) have a genetic basis. Although early reports are encouraging, the results are still too preliminary to permit definite conclusions to be drawn.

The techniques used by these laboratories involve the meticulous separation and identification of tissue genes obtained from Alzheimer's patients. These genes than have to be photographed and, like fingerprints, compared to the genes from normal patients. It's exacting and exciting work. You have to wonder what the scientists will do with the results if, in fact, there is a genetic cause for the disease. Then the work will really

Mrs. W.H. Ford was welcomed as a new member when Pioneer Study Club met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Ted Panciera.

Club President Panciera presided during the business session with Billee Johnson and Fern Sigle reporting on a Federated Women's Club workshop they recently attended in Amarillo.

The budget's and president's theme, "Club Women United In Community Service" was adopted. Also, plans were completed for the new club year to begin in September.

Following the meeting, members carried the club flags and stands to the E.B. Black House where they were presented to the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to Helen Bishop, Leatrus Clark, Fern Ford, Bessie Hill, Bea Hutson, Etoile Manning, Gladys Miller and those already mentioned.

Ann Landers Telephone operators

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a telephone operator at an answering service. I don't think I've ever seen anything about this occupation in your column. Believe me, Ann, we need help. Very few people realize how difficult our job is.

MayI offer a few suggestions to Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public? You would not believe how rude people can be when they are "Anonymous."

1. Please don't hang up in my ear when you discover you've reached an answering service. It takes only a moment to say, "Thank you, I'll call later."

2. Don't yell at me for something I didn't do. Remember I just answer for businesses-I don't own them.

3. Don't get angry when I put you on hold. I have at least 50 lines and sometimes 10 or 15 ring at the same

4. Please don't tell me your life's history. I know there are a lot of lonely people out there, but I don't have

DEAR PERSON: Here's your letter. The job sounds ulcer-producing, to say the least. Your colleagues will bless you for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sooner or later most everyone must write to Ann Landers for one reason or another. Here is my problem.

A friend of mine married and the couple had a daughter. The man's wife died. The man remarried and the couple had a daughter. The two young girls were half sisters who had the same father but different mothers.

The two half sisters were married. One half sister bore a son, the other half sister bore a daughter.

The latter children married each other and have a daughter. This child has a common great-grandfather who is her father's grandfather (on his mother's side) and her mother's grandfather (on her mother's side.)

DEAR L.I.: My authority is a Ph.D. of medical genetics at the University of Indiana. He said, "The offspring of the two half sisters are half firstcousins. The couple may have broken the law in some states by marrying. They can check this information in the local courthouse.

"The risk of having a genetic problem in their offspring is only slightly increased by virtue of the fact that they are distantly related."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every night when my wife reads the paper she always turns to the obituaries first and then to Ann Landers. I asked her yesterday why she did this. She replied, "If I ain't in the obituaries I know I ain't dead and if I ain't in Ann Landers' column I know I ain't weird."

Please print this letter so I can show her she IS weird! We would both get a big kick out of it and I would be one up on her for a change .-- A HUSBAND IN GLOUCESTER, VA.

Television stations compete for fans

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Battle lines are being drawn over the latest fad to hit local television - the innocuous, mild-mannered game of bingo.

That well-loved pastime of ittle old ladies and volunteer firefighters is riding a new wave of popularity, and television producers are capitalizing on the public's age-old fascination with B-15s and G-59s.

Bingo programs recently have hit the air in several cities, including Los Angeles, Honolulu, Oklahoma City, New Orleans and West Palm Beach, Fla.

But the first major competition for the advertising dollars generated by bingo aficionados has occurred in Pittsburgh, where two network affiliates began broadcasting bingo shows in February.

According to the A.C. Nielsen Co., WTA-TV's bingo show had a 9 rating and 40 percent of the audience in its 10 a.m. time period in May, compared to a rating of 5 and 22 percent of the audience for the show it replaced, "Divorce Court."

"It was dynamite," said WTAE General Manager Fred Barber."We had projected a 7 rating, and to do a 9 rating obviously exceeds our expectations. It has terrific sales success."

WPXI-TV's bingo show generated moderate gains, according to Bruno Graziano, general sales manager, posting an 8 rating and 15 share.

"The response has been tremendous," said Mark Barash, program director for WPXI-TV, an NBC affiliate. "Our mail increases by 10,000 pieces every week."

Judy Girard, program director for WTAE, had felt that bingo was a boom-or-bust gamble.

"The only game shows that have ever worked are those that the viewers can play along with. Bingo is the ultimate because you have to play along with it completely," she said. WTAE, affiliated with ABC, airs

WPXI-TV is shooting for a larger, more diverse audience for its "$50,000 Jackpot Bingo" with an evening time slot. Portions of the show are live, others taped. Because prime-time network programming follows, only 55 numbers are called and the show often leaves the air without announcing a winner.

Possible winners phone a toll-free number to have their cards verified. Viewers at home can win cash prizes up to $25,000 in the morning show's game, $50,000 in the evening

One baby in three out-of-wedlock

Nearly one-third of young women who have babies are unmarried, with out-of-wedlock births accounting for one-in-five white babies and almost three-fourths of births to black women ages 18 to 24, according to a new Census Bureau study released

There were about 625,000 births to unmarried women in the United States in the year ended in June 1985, the bureau reported.

"Approximately two-thirds of the out-of-wedlock births in 1985 were to women 18 to 24 years old, constituting 31 percent of all births to women this age," the report said.

For black women ages 18 to 24, the share of births to unmarried women was 74.5 percent, the report said, while for white women it was 20.2

problem or need. But skeptics say that if God is all-knowing, he must have already known about the situa-

Why have to remind him? Why keep imploring him about it, if he was already aware of it without being told? What's the use?

That's one of those convoluted peculiarities of religion, which is laced with such paradoxes. Yet whatever curves are thrown at it, they're usually oldies repeatedly explained over the years.

About that prayer conundrum, a common answer is that any transaction in life necessitates participation of those involved, and prayer is the process by which human beings open and attune themselves to God on the issue at hand.

Such cooperation is essential to any mutual action, and it sometimes takes a lot of praying, church thinkers say, to sensitize the person to God's waiting concern and wisdom about the matter.

Gallup polls find that 87 percent of Americans pray at times, most frequently for guidnee, for family, for health for friends and family, and in thanksgiving.

Nevertheless, the old question recurs often - why keep appealing to God about something over and over again if he already knows about it anyhow?

The Rev. Curtis C. Mitchell of La Mirada, Calif., cites an added twist

This is "perhaps the most unpopular concept" about prayer, he says, the idea of bringing the same requests to God over and over again, such repetition seeming to suggest lack of faith.

But whatever the misgivings about it, he says, "persistence is Scriptural," an essential quality. "Christ himself taught its necessity and importance," urging "dogged persistence," Mitchell says.

Nevertheless, Mitchell says the rationale behind the need for persistence in prayer may seem baffling, since God already is interested and informed about human welfare.

But two points have to be kept in mind, Mitchell says - that not only must the one knowing the answer be willing to give it, but the one seeking the answer must be able to receive it.

"Importunity is an instructor in ment," Mitchell says. "In short, Goddoes not become more willing to because of the perserverance, but the petitioner may become more capable of receiving the answer...

"Thus, importunity can be viewed as a means of enlarging our own capacity to receive what God desires to give. Prayer is not to make God more like man, but to make man more like God."

Reports

AUSTIN - We took our Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on the road again, this time to the Rio Grande Valley, and had another outstanding public hearing.

Valley farmers, ranchers and agribusiness people joined state officials and others at the Pan American University campus in Edinburg to discuss problems facing our agriculture financing system and ways to better market Texas agriculture products.

Texas Department of Agriculture officials led off the hearing with a fairly frank and productive discussion of TDA's activities in both finance and marketing. Deputy Commissioner Mike Moeller provided an overview of TDA's work and assisted marketing specialist Paul Lewis in a presentation of the Department's marketing programs.

Both Moeller and Lewis stressed the farmers' markets TDA has created, and other direct marketing efforts. While they obviously tried to put their programs in the most positive light, they admitted under questioning that the farmers' markets have helped only a small percentage of Texas farmers.

Lewis reported better success with TDA cattle sales to Mexico. although these sales, like the farmers' markets, have helped only a small percentage of Texans. Strange also was forthright when discussing the Family Farm and Ranch Security Loan program, which he supervises. That program has resulted in only two loans in five years, and Strange said the program "has not been success-

We have made no secret of our distaste for TDA's tendency to blow every program way out of proportion. But, things were a little different at this hearing. The promotion was kept to a minimum, and we were very impressed with Moeller's, Lewis' and Strange's ability to stick with the facts. Everyone involved seemed willing to work together to improve agriculture finance and marketing. It is such cooperation that ultimately will turn our sluggish agriculture economy around. That reversal unfortunately is still several years in the offing. More immediate results probably will come from the testimony of Valley cattleman and meat packer Rueben Hinojosa.

Hinojosa brought to the subcommittee's attention a serious discrepency in the prompt-payment laws. Those laws require packers to pay cattle raisers immediately upon purchasing cattle but does not entitle the packers to the same payment from beef prompt retailers.

The situation puts many packers in a dangerous cash-flow situation, Hinojosa said. Money travels out much quicker than it comes in for a packer, and Hinojosa suggested the situation probably could be solved by making retailers pay packers promptly.

On the surface, the idea seems good and certainly merits further research. There is a good chance the subcommittee will recommend to the 70th Legislature that packers be entitled to prompt payment for Space unfortunately doesn't permit us to discuss all the other good testimony in detail, but we would like to commend Drs. Julian Sauls and Wayne Hayenga, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Kenneth Harmon, Farm Credit Banks of Texas, for their outstanding presentations to the subcom-

From now on, the subcommittee's work schedule is going to be rather hectic. The committee meets next July 1, in Austin. At that hearing, final testimony will be taken and preliminary recommendations made. After subcommittee members have discussed those preliminary recommendations, our staff will begin preparing our report to the 70th Legislature.

It's still a little early to say exactly what those recommendations will be, but based on the outstanding testimony we've received, we're confident they'll be of benefit to Texas agriculture.

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - An 18-year-old youth has been arraigned on a charge of criminally negligent homicide following a one-car crash that killed the daughter of countrywestern singer George Strait.

Jenifer Strait, 13, died Wedneday night when the auto carrying four teen-agers overturned near her family's home, authorities said Thurs-

Justice of the Peace Macel Sullivan said the driver, George Wilson Allen of Staples, Texas, was arraigned before her on the Class A misdemeanor charge and released on a $2,000 personal recognizance

Allen is scheduled to appear before County Judge H. Howard Warner on July 24, she said.

Authorities said Miss Strait, an eighth-grade student in San Marcos public schools, was killed when the auto in which she was riding rolled over while attempting a left turn.

Strait, who lives in the city about 30 miles south of Austin, went to the accident site after being notified of the crash, a family friend said. Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said the driver wasn't injured in the accident.

Rangers snap 3-game losing streak

Charlie Hough had a bad time pitthere.

"I made a couple of good pitches with men on base, but I don't think I pitched a good game," said Hough, who held the Seattle Mariners to five hits over seven innings to help the Texas Rangers snap a three-game losing streak with a 10-3 win over Seattle Thursday.

Despite allowing just five hits, Hough, 7-3, said he struggled all through the game.

"I've always had a tough time here. The mound is so high here," he said. The Ranger knuckleballer won the first game he ever pitched in Seattle on September 30, 1981, but in the next four seasons lost three games and had one no-decision.

The high mound, which other pitchers in the league have also criticized, gives Hough more problems than the small dimensions of the Kingdome. "I think every pitch will

Texas manager Bobby Valentine agreed with Hough. "That's not the Charlie Hough I know. That mound is tough, he kept trying to adjust all night," he said.

Spud Webb has become 'hot potato'

DALLAS (AP) - Since winning the NBA Slam-Dunk championship at Reunion Arena here Feb. 8, Spud Webb has been one hot potato.

He just signed a two-year contract, worth a reported $250,000, to promote a company's shoes and clothing.

For three days earlier this month, representatives of the Pony company took pictures of Webb in Dallas, to be used in a national advertising campaign for their newest line of sneaker, The Dunkmaster.

"This is a take, Spudbaby," Damian Bisch, president of a New York ad agency, told Webb during a recent photo session at the Wilmer-Hutchins High School gym where Webb once played.

Standing just 5-51/2, Webb's famed dunking ability has made him among the latest rages in sports marketing. There is a Spudball made by Baden - smaller than the standard-sized basketball. In the next few months, it's likely Webb will be promoting Coca-Cola.

He has been approached by Walt Disney Studios, which wants to do a movie about his life.

A book about him is already in the making.

Moreover, Webb went to New York last week to film a segment on the Phil Donahue Show that will be shown July 7.

Webb, who last season played with the Atlanta Hawks for the NBA minimum salary of $70,000, likely will emerge as a millionaire.

"He is, like, the rage," said John O'Reilly, Pony's vice president of marketing. "We have Mary Lou Retton, too, but we've negotiated more time with Spud. The response has been phenomenal. He's the hottest thing going right now, absolutely."

The little guy who used to hustle pool at Webb's Soul Market is climbing the endorsement ladder in highheeled sneakers.

But, he said, "I'd rather just play and go home."

"I don't get into the ego thing. I haven't told a lot of people about the camps, or even the shows I've been on," Webb said.

"It's (his new-found celebrity) something. But I treat it like it's nothing.'

Like it or not, Webb is appealing because he is small. "I want them to say, 'He can play," said Webb. "I know because I'm small I'm doing all these things now. But I hope my size is just giving me a foot in the door. I hope that by playing in the NBA I showed people I could play."

Royals 9, A's 2

A mouse that cost Dave Kingman $3,502. A baserunning blunder that cost Jackie Moore a job

All things considered, this was one of the more eventful four-game series in Oakland baseball history. It seemed almost fitting for the A's to cap their zany trip to mid-America Thursday night by taking it on the chin, 9-2, as the Kansas City Royals thoroughly spoiled Jeff Newman's managerial debut.

With Jorge Orta hitting an insidethe-park home run, the Royals scored four runs in the first inning and four more in the second.

Moore's dismissal was anything but unexpected. Oakland's lone victory Tuesday night in this eightgame road trip had snapped a teamrecord 15-game road losing streak. A gut-wrenching 5-4 loss Wednesday night, featuring Ricky Peters' baserunning mistake in the ninth inning, plunged their record to 29-44.

Kingman's practical joke during Monday night's game, in which he had "a $2 rat" delivered to a female sportswriter, backfired in his face.

The moody slugger was fined $3,500 and told he would be fired if it ever happened again. Moreover, the incident seemed to indicate that morale and discipline among the boys from the East Bay had sunk to a new low, and probably did nothing to strengthen Moore's tenuous hold on

But with Newman at the controls and Moore flying home to Arlington, Texas, Thursday night, the A's went back to business as usual. They loaded the bases in the first and fifth but failed to score.

"Did I experience anything I didn't expect to?" said Newman. "Yes. I really didn't expect them to score eight runs in the first two innings."

Moore's firing caused a change of plans for Royals' Manager Dick Howser, who will manage the American League in next month's All-Star game.

"He was a friend. I hate to see it. I had selected him as a coach for the All-Star Game," Howser said. "Now he can't do it."

"I know this is a first-class organization," Moore said after he was dismissed Thursday as field boss of the Oakland A's. "I will always appreciate their giving me an opportunity to be their manager."

"We'd like to have someone in place within 7-10 days," said Sandy Alderson, the A's vice president for baseball operations. "We have not speculated at all on who that might be. We've got some names in mind, but no one has been contacted."

LaRussa said he has not been con-

"I haven't heard anything, other than I'm being mentioned (as a possible successor) in the press," LaRussa said from his home in Sarasota, Fla. "I've learned not to assume anything. I'm not going to say they're interested in me if I don't know they are. But I will say that I'd like to manage in the major leagues again someday."

Newman said he had no interest in the position.

"In no way am I in the running for the job," said Newman, who has been the A's bullpen coach. "I don't want to be considered."

Moore, a popular figure with players, fans and media, said he has not decided whether to take the A's up on an offer of an unspecified job in the organization, but said he would like to manage again.

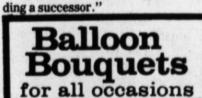

"I sure would," he said. "I know it's in my blood. But right now, I just need to sit back and think about everything that's happened."

Moore joins Chuck Cottier of Seattle, Jim Frey of the Chicago Cubs and LaRussa on the list of managers who've been axed this season.

The A's began the season well and were tied for first in the American League West on May 10. But injuries to pitchers Joaquin Andujar, Moose Haas and Jay Howell as well as center fielder Dwayne Murphy contributed to a nosedive. A victory over the Royals Tuesday night snapped a team-record 15-game road losing Alderson said dismissing Moore was a difficult choice to make.

"The most important goal for today is to make sure Jackie's departure is done in a way that he deserves," Alderson said. "He's a first-class guy and a tremendous gentleman. We want to make sure his dignity and pride are intact. Very soon, we'll turn our thoughts to fin-

Where's sense of humor?

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Rats. Nobody, it seems, has a sense of humor anymore. Baseball players once were known for their lighthearted approach as they sashayed through life earning major league money for playing a little kids' game. Pitcher Moe Drabowsky, remember, was king of the clubhouse hotfoot, a juvenile stunt that he maintained right through his advancing years. Now, though, everybody is so serious.

Occasionally, however, we're treated to a good oldtime guffaw, provided by a comedian in double knits. Take Dave Kingman. Or, as Henny Youngman might put it,

"Take Dave Kingman, please." Oakland's designated hitter and well-known humorist played this swell practical joke on a woman

It was announced that the game will be played on Christmas Day from 1986-88 and will be renamed the John Hancock Sun Bowl. John Hancock Financial Services, a promotional name for the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston and its 17 subsidiaries, will give the Sun Bowl $500,000 in each of the next three years, with one-year renewal options for 1989 and 1990.

LAPPEENRANTA, Finland (AP) - Olympic champion Edwin Moses made his long-awaited comeback, winning the 400-meter hurdles in 48.89 seconds in his first race since 1984. It was Moses' 95th straight victory. Counting heat victories, his winning streak now stands at 110 and he has not lost since August 1977.

Steve Ovett, Britain's former world record holder in the mile and the 1,500 meters, outkicked Steve Scott of the U.S. to win the 3,000 meters in 7 minutes, 51.43 seconds.

sports writer the other day but instead of applauding his efforts at comedy, the A's wound up fining him $3,500 for his trouble.

C'mon, guys, lighten up. Kingman, whose DH role leaves him plenty of spare time to dream up new and exciting ways to entertain his followers, found himself in Kansas City this week. With the A's in the clutches of a 15-game road losing streak, it clearly was time for a little levity. Don't worry boys. Just leave it to Kong, the clown.

Well-paid for his occasional contribution to Oakland's tour of the American League - he is batting .213 and earning $600,000 - Kingman invested $2 to purchase a small ro-

It may have been a mouse. More likely it was a rat. Anyway, Kingman carefully placed the little creature in a pretty pink package and shipped it up to the press box, addressed to the attention of Susan Fornoff of the Sacramento Bee. He attached a note which said, "My name is Sue."

Now that's a real thigh-slapper, isn't it?

And when Fornoff, who covers the A's without benefit of approval from Kingman, entered the clubhouse after the game, the designated hitter tossed a box of tissues at her, saying, "Go ahead, cry."

Charming, isn't he?

Predictably, Fornoff did not cry. To their credit, the A's did. Management was not amused and Sandy Alderson, the club's vice president for baseball operations, announced that the stunt would cost Kong $3,500. What's more, Alderson said, if he pulled anything else like that again, he would be "released immediately, without further compensation."

While they waited for Kingman's next gag, the proprieters of the Oakland funhouse practiced releasing people by firing Manager Jackie Moore on Thursday.

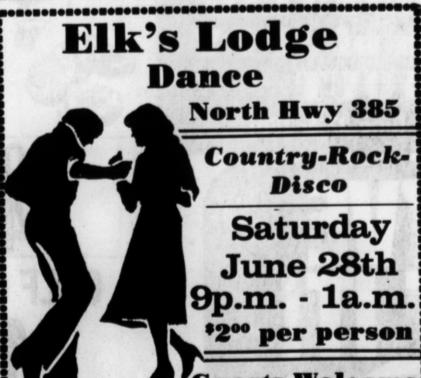

He wasn't laughing, either.

Meanwhile, we are pleased to report that Kingman's rat has found a good home. Reporter Fornoff turned the creature over to a Royals Stadium employee who passed it on to a friend's 5-year-old son. Boy and beast established an immediate rap-

But then Kingman sent word that he would pay $75 for the return of the rat. Why he wanted it, nobody knows. There are rather limited uses for a used rat.

The owner's father considered the offer - "Seventy-five dollars is seventy-five dollars," he noted — but rejected it when the 5-year-old cried. Ahhh, tears, at last.

Had the buy-back offer been accepted, it would have increased Kingman's investment in this strange affair to $3,577. Drabowsky, operating in a simpler economic time, got away much cheaper. He was only fined $100 when they caught him applying the hot foot. And the matches didn't cost a penny.

D.C. chief prosecutor is drawn into Bias case

By JANE E. ALLEN Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) - The chief prosecutor for the District of Columbia has confirmed his office has been drawn into the investigation surrounding the drug-induced death of University of Maryland basketball standout Len Bias.

U.S. Attorney Joseph Di Genova acknowledged late Thursday that his office had become involved in one aspect of the case: whether the cocaine that killed Bias was purchased in Washington.

"A crime was committed in the District of Columbia, according to published reports," Di Genova told the Associated Press from his Washington home. "That matter is the subject of an inquiry."

According to broadcast and published reports, Bias purchased cocaine on a Washington street corner hours before he died.

A Baltimore radio station, WBAL, quoted unidentified sources at the University of Maryland as saying Bias bought eight grams of cocaine in Washington for $800 on the morning of June 19. Earlier reports placed Bias in an area of Northeast Washington noted for its on-thestreet drug sales hours before he suffered cardiac arrest.

Prince George's County police have declined to comment on any evidence of such a purchase.

Di Genova defined the crime under investigation as "the distribution of drugs," and said any information his office gathered would be transmitted to Prince George's County authorities.

"I've confirmed to you there is an investigation," he said.

District of Columbia police spokesman Quintin Peterson said Thursday a gram of 90 percent to 97 percent pure cocaine would sell in Washington for $315, making eight grams worth $2,520. He said cocaine confiscated from street sales in the district averages 20 percent pure.

A District of Columbia police officer, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press in Washington that Bias could not have purchased on the street cocaine of the purity found in his body.

'That would have to come from a major dealer. A dealer would hold something like that for himself and his friends," he said.

At the College Park campus where

Bias died, the shock waves from the death of a 22-year-old athletic superstar have raised questions about school policies.

Chancellor John B. Slaughter told the Washington Post in an interview that he would transfer oversight of the university's academic support unit for athletes from the athletic department to the academic sector. He acknowledged that the university shares with the athletic department the blame for the poor performance of some athletes.

Maryland, he said, is guilty of exploiting its athletes, "just as every institution" heavily involved in athletics.

The university's Board of Regents meets Monday to examine academic records of athletes, who reportedly are failing at a high rate. According to school administrators, less than a third of the players on the men's basketball team during the last several years have earned degrees.

The board of regents also will examine athletic and academic officials' responses to the news of Bias' death early Thursday, a state official has confirmed.

The official, who declined to be identified, also said the university's top governing body would examine on-campus drug abuse.

Argentine star will not take all credit

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Diego Maradona always finds a way to escape.

The Argentine star, who has stamped this World Cup soccer tournament with his personal flair and power on the field, nearly was trapped off the field Thursday. But just as no defenders have been able to keep the superb striker in check, a few hundred members of the media had little chance of ensnaring him at a training session as Argentina prepared for Sunday's championship game against West Germany.

The brilliance of Maradona, who scored all four of Argentina's goals in the last two games, has carried the 1978 champions to the brink of supremacy.

But Maradona refuses to take all the credit.

"Argentina is a great team, which it shows game after game," he said. "My teammates help me a great deal. They don't just pass me the ball, defend and attack even when I'm away from the play. They also feed to me and drag the marking away so I can aim easily."

His aim had to be precise on Thursday as he sped through more than 200 journalists gathered for the practice. While awaiting Maradona, reporters and photographers talked to other players. But when he appeared, the reporters rushed to surround him.

Maradona escaped by running onto the practice field, with a fence separating him from the reporters, and security guards on each side of him.

Maradona tried to accommodate the crowd, practically yelling his responses to questions, and spent an hour with the journalists.

About West Germany, which is making a record fifth World Cup final appearance, Maradona said, "We respect their style of play, their courage, but we will give everything we have physically and soccer-wise to come out as the world champions."

West Germany Coach Franz Beckenbauer, in his time one of the greatest players in the game, praised Maradona.

"Maradona has been the outstanding player at this World Cup. Just to see him is worth a trip to the stadium by itself," Beckenbauer said.

"It is the toughest team we have faced so far, with an uncompromising defense which could even be called brutal."

The Germans used a pretty tough defense, physically aggressive and featuring lots of hard tackles, to beat the favored French in the semifinals. Now, once more, West Germany is an underdog.

It is a role Beckenbauer doesn't

"We have fared well being the underdog up to now and we should also do well in the final from that position," he said.

The teams have met twice in the World Cup. In 1958, West Germany won 3-1. In 1966, they tied 0-0.

Birthplace of golf described

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (NEA) -During a driving tour of the British Isles, I made a special stop recently at the cradle of golf. That naturally means the Old Course at St. Andrews, jutting seaside on the spit of land between the Firth of Forth and the Firth of Tay. It is Mecca for all who strike the little white pellet.

Shinnecock Hills on Long Island, N.Y., where the U.S. Open was played, has been compared to the old seaside Scottish courses where the game was spawned.

Golf was first played officially at St. Andrews in the 16th century, during the reign of Mary Queen of Scots, though it is suspected that some braw lads and bonnie lassies were stroking feather-laden balls through its golden whins and purple heather a century earlier.

In 1754, the Society of St. Andrews golfers came into being. This evolved into the present, hallowed Royal and Ancient Club that still sets the standards for the mores of golf. Exactly 100 years later, just beyond the 18th green, a clubhouse was built from the smoky gray stone of the region, and it still stands as the bastion of the

The clubhouse is not normally open to the curious. Although the Old Course is public, the R&A remains an exalted, private domain for its 1,800 members, who are spread around the world. The average duffer has to repair to the locker rooms in the modern hotel some 600 yards distant along the 17th fairway.

Thanks to Tom Wallace, a friendly Scot who manages the Royal and Ancient, I was able to peek inside its sanctum. I felt like Indiana Jones on the verge of examinging the sepulchral tablets.

Tom opened a locked case in the anteroom to show me the mementoes of the ages, including an ornate trophy on which silver golf balls are clustered like grapes, each to commemorate a club champion.

Two years ago, thunder and lightning would have echoed through the chambers if a woman entered this anteroom, but equal rights are making an impact. My wife was allowed to sit there. And how there are four funcations a year at which women may tread inside the doors of the club.

The club has deigned to admit three golf professionals. One is Arnold Palmer. "I suppose," said Tom Wallace, "Jack Nicklaus will come in some day."

Tom himself doesn't belong. He joined another local club, but a fee of 42 pounds a year (about $65) permits him to play the three major courses in the St. Andrews area. The big local complaint now is that the Americans and Japanese, so hipped on the tradition of St. Andrews, dominate play in the summer time.

St. Andrews will play host to the British Open again in 1990. This year, the Grand Slam event will be held on the opposite, west coast of Scotland, at Turnberry (July 17-20). My peregrination took me there, too. Like St. Andrews, it is a seaside links course, with the waves of the North Channel on the Irish Sea lapping at its edges. The layouts are deceptive because they don't contain thick groves of trees or artificially created water barriers. They look wide open, but the undulations of the fairways and the greens and the natural stands of gorse, bordered by impenetrable tall rough, make them devlish tests of golfing skill.

The setting at Turnberry is somewhat more dramatic, however, for a classical Victorian hotel, built 80 years ago, roosts on a promontory overlooking the entire course. From its heights, with a good pair of binoculars, one can see virtually every fairway on the course. Spectator stands have already been strategically placed around the course itself to help the viewing.

There are no trees to impede vision. Even without the scared-off American tourists (and some similarly frightened pros), the Scots expect 190,000 people to flock to remote Turnberry for the four-day festival.

They follow the game seriously and avidly in the birthplace region of

Swimmer sets 2nd world record in two days

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Matt Biondi set his second world record in two days, winning the 50-meter freestyle in 22.33 at the U.S. Swimming World Championship Trials.

The University of California senior from Moraga, Calif., also won the 200-meter freestyle after earlier establishing a world record in the 100-meter freestyle. He is the first person ever to win all three freestyle sprint events in a U.S. Swimming na-

POLLY'S Cloth makes crust POINTERS as easy as pie

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - Having trouble rolling rich pie crust dough on a counter top? Buy ½ yard of pillow ticking at a fabric store. Cut in half to get two 18-inch squares. Sprinkle a square with sugar or flour, roll out the dough, then loosely roll up the dough and cloth. Place the crust in the pie tin by unrolling the cloth. The cloth can also be used for cookie dough. Launder the cloth in the washing machine.

Here's a delicious dip for raw vegetables. Mix 1 cup sour cream, 1 cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons parsley flakes, 2 tablespoons chopped green onions, 1 teaspoon dillweed, 1 teaspoon Beau Monde seasoning, 3/4 teaspoon monosodium glutamate, and 1/4 teaspoon salt (or less, to taste). Chill overnight in a covered jar before serving. — MRS. A.S.
DEAR POLLY — Whether you have small children or a busy career, sometimes you just can't find that block of time needed for major projects such as washing the windows or cleaning out drawers. If you divide the large task into smaller steps, it doesn't seem so overwhelming. For example, select one window a day to wash or one drawer a day to clean out. In a week or two, your project is done without giving up a large block of your time. There is an old saying: "Yard by yard, it is very hard; but inch by inch, it is a cinch!" -

DEAR POLLY - When cooking brown beans, add 1/2 to 3/3 cup of whole-grain wheat (wheat berries) to a pound of beans. This adds nutrition and flavor.

To reduce calories in any cornstarch pudding, use only half as much cornstarch, cook as usual, then add to the thin, hot pudding, 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin moistened in 1/2 cup cold milk or water. Chill pudding. This gives a light, delectable dessert.

To get that last dab of cocoa out of a box or can, add some granulated sugar, shake well, then use the sugar to make the cocoa. Presto, an extra cup of cocoa! - RUTH

DEAR RUTH AND READERS -Adding the whole-wheat berries to beans while cooking adds the required protein complement to the beans, so you'll be having the most nutritious bean dish possible. A great Pointer! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I know the skin of chicken is supposed to be removed for low-cal chicken, but does it matter if you remove it before or after cooking? - LYNN

DEAR LYNN - For the fewest calories and lowest fat content, remove the chicken skin before cooking. If it is left on while the chicken is cooked, the fat under the skin will melt into the chicken. This makes a moist and delicious chicken, but adds lots of calories.

If you find chicken cooked without its skin too dry, moisten the meat with a little fat-free chicken broth, tomato sauce or other low-calorie liquid. -POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Use a one-inch paintbrush to dust the knobs, buttons and grooves on your TV and VCR. It's fantastic on "groovy" things. — M.M. DEAR POLLY — The noses of infants and small children can become very tender when they have a runny nose and a cold. To clean these tender noses, place Vaseline on a warmed wet washcloth and then gently wash. Now you have a clean and medicated nose! - GLADYS

DEAR GLADYS - This keeps those tender little noses a lot more comfortable. Your helpful Pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1081 Helpful Hints for Making Everything Last Longer." Others who would like this book can order it for $6.50. Make check payable to POLLY'S POINTERS and send to POLLY'S POINTERS, Box 1216, Dept. 55, Cincinnati, OH 45201. -

DEAR POLLY - An inexpensive wicker basket with a cover makes an attractive bathroom accessory. It will also keep extra toilet tissue, bathroom brushes and cleansers out of

An old pair of pantyhose, tied securely around a broom head, makes a perfect ceiling and high-corner dust-

DEAR POLLY - Do you have a recipe for spices you simmer in a pot to give a spicy odor throughout the house? — M.L.S.

DEAR M.L.S. - While no real "recipe" is needed, here's a combination of spices I think gives a pleasing

Put two cups of water in a shallow pan and add a cinnamon stick, five or six cloves, five or six allspice berries and a couple of slices of orange or lemon. Simmer on the stove so the aroma fills the air. Watch to see that the liquid doesn't boil away; add more water if necessary. Simmer 20 minutes or more to thoroughly scent the

If you like, you can use ground spices instead of whole ones; use ½ to one teaspoon of each spice.

You can also place the ground spires in a shallow pan and bake them in the oven for 15 minutes at a low temperature (200 degrees). However, keep an eye (and nose) on it to make sure the spices don't burn, which causes an unpleasant odor.

Whichever method you choose, your home will be filled with a delightful aroma. Guests will think you spent the entire day baking! -POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Soon after I began to baby-sit my two nephews (4 and 2 years of age), I found that the building blocks I had for them to play with were sometimes dangerous. At this age, children like to throw things and I noticed that several times one or the other of the boys was almost hit in the face with a wooden block. I bought a big bag of colorful sponges. I left some as they were and cut others into different sizes. The boys love playing with the sponges. They can't hurt anyone or anything if they throw them around. — GRACE

DEAR GRACE — This is an excellent suggestion for safe building blocks. One precaution, however. If there are babies at the chewing stage in the house, it's best to keep the sponges away from them; a small piece chewed off a soft sponge could be a potential choke hazard since the soft sponge can conform to the shape of the windpipe if swallowed.

Another suggestion for safe building blocks: Cover small empty boxes with adhesive plastic or shelf paper. I'm doing this with butter boxes which are a great shape and size for blocks, but other small boxes are good, too.
