

FIRST FLOOR PLAN on Hereford's proposed new high school building is immediately below. The two-story structure will face Union Avenue on the south and extend north along "F" Street a distance of 426 feet. The second story plan is shown below and will sit on the first floor, allowing for vacant spaces above the gym and auditorium. Due to small size of the plans here, a complete set will be placed on display in The Brand office window next week to allow people to study them closer.

New High School Plans Are Given Preliminary O.K. By School Board

Members of the Hereford Rural High School Board of Trustees Wednesday authorized the architect to start work on permanent plans for Hereford's new $850,000 high school building. Their action followed a joint session with 10 members of the Citizen's Committee, named here last summer to help work out a building plan to meet with public approval in a bond issue.

The building will definitely be a two-story structure, according to instructions to the architect. It will contain 21 instruction rooms, including a band hall, study hall, science and home economics rooms, and general class rooms. The building will also have a library, administrative offices, an auditorium to seat 1,000 people, and a gymnasium to seat 1,000. The gym will be so constructed that bleachers can be moved and it can be changed into a practice court.

First Floor
The building will front on Union Avenue with a foyer leading into the auditorium. Located east of the main building will be the band hall. Most of the rooms will be strung along F street, going north as follows: reception office, superintendent's office, student guidance conference room, book room, office; a vestibule separates the class rooms, which continue north as follows: two class rooms 22x30 feet, typing room, work room, book-keeping; another foyer, then two more class rooms, 22x30 feet. To the east of this section, separated by a 12 foot corridor, and in the center of the ground floor will be located toilets, cooking room, living room, offices, sewing room. To the rear and on the north end of the structure is the gymnasium, which includes movable bleachers, dressing rooms, showers, storage units, etc. The plans call for 426 feet north and south along F St. Lockers, trophy cases, fountains, etc., are located in the corridor on this floor.

Second Floor
Second floor of the structure is similar to the first floor, except that the areas above the gymnasium and auditorium will not be utilized. Running north on F street will be the study hall on the south; a library, 22x60 feet seating 58; office and book storage, then seven class rooms. Separated by a 12-foot corridor and to the east of this area are a stairway, toilets, and general science, girls toilets, stairway, clinic and janitor rooms, women teacher's lounge and another stairway on the extreme north. Lockers, drinking fountains, trophy cabinets are along the corridor.

Around Town

Jack Gilliland is a hero to his five-year-old son, Bill Jack, these days — and that's more than most men can boast. It all happened when two handlers stopped at the veterinary clinic this week to get health papers on two horses they were carrying. The unusual thing about the horses, and what got the small-fry so excited, was the fact that these two happened to be "Champ" and "Little Champ," movie horses of Gene Autrey. The cowboys were returning the horses to California and said that they had appeared in rodeos and exhibitions in 43 states. Jack made a one dollar bill for his services as vet and, as we said, is a real hero to his son, who got to touch the horses "with his own hands."

Pack 50 is desperately in need of Den Mothers and are sending out an emergency call. They now have two active Den Mothers and report that six is an absolute minimum. Volunteers, even on a temporary basis, are being sought. Any ladies interested in helping were urged to call G. T. Slaughter, sub master, or Don Martin, assistant.

Thieves entered the REA building through a window on the north side into the manager's office Thursday night and knocked the knob off the vault door. They were unable to enter the vault, however, and nothing was found to be missing in a survey of the premises Friday.

Three Accidents, One DWI Charged

Three accidents were reported by the City Police this week, according to Leo Box, chief. The first accident happened on Thursday night in the 200 block of Avenue I when an unknown vehicle hit an 800-pound trailer, parked just south of Grand avenue. Damage to the trailer, which was owned by J. D. Brock, was set at $75.

One DWI Charge

Charges of negligent collision by improper backing and having no operators' license were filed against W. M. Wittaus following an accident Thursday afternoon in the 100 block of Main street. Wittaus, who was driving a 1947 Chevrolet was parked on the east side of main street when he started backing out and hit the right front fender of a 1952 Chevrolet (Continued on Page Two)

Avenue Church To Sponsor Revival

A revival meeting, beginning Sunday, March 8, and continuing through March 22, was announced this week by Rev. H. V. Fields, pastor of the Avenue Baptist church. Rev. C. J. McCarty, evangelist of the Calvary Baptist church in Lubbock, will be in charge of the meetings, Rev. Fields said. He also pointed out that Rev. McCarty assisted in a meeting here in the fall of 1948 and is well known to the congregation. Weldon Lewis will assist as gospel singer during the meeting. Morning services will be held daily at 10 o'clock and evening services at 8 o'clock. He invited the public to attend.

Right-Of-Way Calls For 80 Feet In Town

Pointing to 80 feet as the minimum requirement on State Highways, District Engineer James G. Lott told members of the City Commission of Hereford Thursday afternoon that another 20 feet of right-of-way will be necessary on U. S. Highway 51 through the city following completion of the Canadian River bridge near Vega.

"The City will make a survey and a detailed study before steps are taken on the program of widening road," Mayor S.O. Wilson said. "The space to be taken from each side will be determined in this manner, and will be announced when the survey has been completed."

The area in question runs south from Park Avenue to Highway 60, and is only 60 feet in width at the present time.

In addition to the minimum requirement through town, Lott also said that the road should be widened to 100 feet north of Park Avenue to the city limits. The road, north from that point, is already 100 feet in width. General safety measures are the basis for state requirements in width of highways.

Highway 51, popularly known in Hereford as "25-Mile" Avenue, got the name many years ago because it traversed a total of 25 miles without a crook or turn. Down through the years, and at the present time, 25-Mile Avenue has been popular as a residential section and includes many homes of the community, especially among old timers, who built in the area down through the years. The avenue is also lined with shade trees almost all of the distance of the space which requires additional right-of-way.

When a drive opened here two years ago, resulting in widening of the street at many points north from Park, the development was met with a hue and cry from residents, protesting the removal of trees and slicing up of front yards. The City finally dropped the movement, deciding not to take steps until they became necessary by actual letting of the Canadian bridge. Meanwhile, the protests have arisen once again from a few of the property owners along the street, commissioners said.

Veigel, Allison For School Board

A ticket was filed Thursday, March 5, for the vacancies which occur on the Hereford Rural High School Board of Trustees this year. Men nominated for the post are Robert Veigel and J. R. Allison. The names were filed on one petition, rather than two, and were signed by 14 people. Five signatures are required on a petition and petitions must be filed 10 days prior to election day, which is April 4.

Veigel will be a candidate for re-election, since he now holds the office of president of the board, and is one of the retiring trustees. H. H. Miller of Dawn, is the other trustee whose term expires. Allison has not previously served on the board. He is a former Chamber of Commerce president and is president of the Hereford State bank. He is also active in Baptist church affairs, and in community work. He was chairman of the advance gifts division of the Red Cross drive which closed here this week.

No filings were reported from the office of County Judge and Ex-Officio School Superintendent in the three vacancies which will occur on the county school board this year, or in the one vacancy on the board in Walcott, District No. 6.

Red Cross Drive Tops Quota; $5,101 Friday

Deaf Smith County's Red Cross drive went over the top Friday, D. C. Kinsey, roll call chairman, announced today. A total of 5,101.57 had been collected Friday afternoon — $185.57 in excess of the quota set for the county this year.

Corrine Jennings, executive secretary, put the report in the mail Friday afternoon, and was predicting that Deaf Smith County would another time, be included in the 10 Texas counties to first reach its quota.

"The county has a record of which it may well be proud," said

Mrs. Jennings. "And we want to thank every worker and every contributor who made the drive a success," added Mr. Kinsey. "There were hundreds of them, and they are the ones who have really done an outstanding job."

Mrs. Jennings predicted that an additional $200 to $300 would come in during the current drive, putting the county still further ahead of its quota. She said that several divisions in town have not reported completion, and that quite a few rural areas are still to be heard from in the drive.

Sail Boating Fling Turns Into Cold Swimming Party

Hereford has three young men, at least, who won't volunteer for the navy.

The trio last Sunday felt the urge to do some boating on Buffalo Lake which was alright, until they settled on a sail boat, which they borrowed from Frank Jones, high school English teacher. Their greatest handicap was that they didn't know a jib from a main-sail, or a rudder from a boom, but everything was still alright — until the wind started blowing a bit.

Somebody did the wrong thing, and over went the boat. They were approximately 300 yards southwest of the dam in water which averaged from 50 to 60 feet in depth, so the boys had to swim for it. Fortunately, each of the three were good swimmers and they made the 200 feet to the shore without too much trouble, despite the fact that they were fully clad, including their coats.

Lloyd Brooks lost a $28 pair of glasses and around $25 in cash in his billfold; Francis Miles also lost his glasses, valued at $120, along with $4 in his billfold. Nelson Pierce, other member of the trio, took inventory and figured that the only thing he lost was a box of caught drops.

The boys were plucky, though. They swam back out and with help of the waves were able to work the boat into shore. Damage was estimated as not extensive. The water, according to the boys, was plenty cold.

driven by Johnny C. Formby who was traveling north on Main. Damage to the Formby car was set at $50 and to the Wittaus auto at $5.

A charge of DWI was also filed against W. M. Wittaus following an accident Friday night at about 11:15.

Wittaus was going south on Main and weaving all over the street when he sideswiped a 1940 Ford driven by Homer Dale Hinds, who was traveling north on Main. Damage to the Hinds auto was set at $60.

Fire....

The blaze was believed to have started when workmen accidentally let a spark from welding torches enter the building Thursday morning. They were in the process of making additions to the structure to handle cottonseed hulls.

"Prompt, efficient work on the part of the fire department was what saved the elevator," Jack Bradley said, "and I want to say a good word for our fire department. They are really on the ball."

GRASS ROOTS

Took a quick run to Lubbock Monday and was surprised at the amount of farming going on in that area. Looks like cotton is going to be king in the South Plains again this year! It is hard to estimate how many acres of native grass I saw being plowed up but there was enough to put plenty of Texas topsoil in Oklahoma when the wind is in the right direction. Also saw a lot of underground irrigation systems being installed and more yet already in operation. Jack rabbit stew, Republican administration or five cent cotton hasn't excited those boys.

HUBAM CLOVER AGAIN: I have been mousing for a couple of weeks about the value of legumes as soil builders, and have concentrated on Hubam Clover since this is the season for planting this summer growing legume. While doing a job of soil building this clover can be used as a supplemental pasture for livestock. Hubams record as a stock feed is hard to beat. There are a number of ways to use Hubam as a supplemental pasture. Seeded alone or in mixtures with Oats or Sudan have proved very satisfactory. All idle Johnson grass land should be seeded to Hubam. Johnson grass in itself is a fine grazing grass and with the addition of Hubam clover one can expect a lot of cattle on a few acres for quite a spell. This practice of seeding clover into Johnson grass has a very definite effect on the control of this pest. Jelly McGowan near Summerfield seeded Hubam into a heavily infested Johnson grass field last Spring and took off quite a lot in grazing. In addition Jelly reported that due to the competition of the clover the Johnson grass roots were forced near the surface of the soil and he was able to get under most of them with one plowing. Could be that one of the control methods on Johnson grass will be to kill it with love.

It's Lawn Time Again: Last Fall's dryness was worse than usual and our lawn soils went into cold weather deficient in moisture. Due to this condition the vigor of our lawn grasses was reduced since the plants were not able to tiller out as they normally do in late fall and winter. Now is the time to make plans for your lawn. Outdoor activity on the lawn is a rewarding challenge and a fine spring tonic. There are several things a lawn doesn't need this time of year, but it does need FOOD. An early breakfast in bed is a good idea. The grasses can use the root strengthening Phosphate and the growth stimulating Nitrogen as the plants begin to stir and stretch. So put it on now. Another item is getting all the debris raked up and out of the way. Get rid of old leaves and trash that smother grass. These are just two of the many things that need to be done this time of the year to insure a nice lawn this summer. This column will try to carry as much information as possible concerning lawn care, but in the mean time drop by to see us for your lawn fertilizer and tips or lawn care.

Tip For The Hay Patch: Alfalfa is waking up now and should be watered right away. Before watering you should give it a shot of Phosphate and insure yourself that increase yield. We have a good stock of both 45 percent and 20 percent Superphosphate on hand to fill your needs.

BE CUTE AS A BUTTON IN FLAME BOUCLE

A Flattering straight-line jacket in Anglo's famed Curigo Boucle. The skirt is in the darker contrasting shade and you can even wear the jacket as a topper. The buttons are bejeweled with rhinestones and the tailoring details are fabulously Fashionbill. Wear it with a scarf or blouse . . . but wear it! Here is Dame Fashion's dictate for the fresh new suit style that every woman needs to add spice to her wardrobe.

Short flare coat with important new back detail in Anglo's pure wool Boucanta.

by Swansdown

FLATTERING YOKE COAT IN LUSCIOUS BOUCADA
The fullness of this lovely topper falls from the dipping yoke on the front and back of the garment . . . to give a slenderizing flattery to you. The tiny jewel-like buttons are fashion's latest dictate. Deeply cuffed sleeves are adjustable to most arm lengths. The dramatically embroidered iridescent taffeta lining makes you almost want to wear the coat inside out . . . and maybe you would if the exterior fabric wasn't so smart.

I Love
Everything
About
My New

Swansdown
Suit

I love this stunning new Swansdown suit . . . I'm making it the mainstay of my Spring wardrobe. I like its lean fitted lines . . . the sloping shoulder yoke . . . the fresh, spirited polka dots that spark the neckline, the cuffs, and line the jacket like an expensive custom-made original. It's in a fine, pure worsted fabric. Sizes 10 to 18.

Wyche H-D Club
A business and program planning session was the main feature of the meeting when the Wyche Home Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. W. T. Carmichael Thursday.

Plans were made for entertaining the South Hereford Home Demonstration club with a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Charles Packard on March 19. Mrs. Harley Ward will act as co-hostess.

Those present were: Mesdames: W. R. Scarth, Ira Ott, E. C. Hewitt Jr., V. P. Walker, Wayne Newsom, Guy Newsom, J. V. Pickens, Edwin Flood, W. P. Ake, C. C. Ellis, the hostess and Mrs. C. W. Greham, a guest.

a smile instead of a frown. Public school week did something for me after all, I agree:

"The cooking's just like mom used to make" — except at our house we had a slight option. Mom never did toss it out in a sea of water-thin gravy.

Maybe it's because I can still taste the stuff that I am so upset about this deal. Worse, though, every once in a while comes a mental picture of that poor little wad of stuff sitting out there in that big ocean of greasy water. How about it? Am I completely nuts? Does everyone else like this type of cooking? Let's hear from some of you other folk who were at Central Thursday. If everyone agrees, we might be able to get something done. If I am wrong I'll apologize — but I'll still think it was lousy.

After all, when you get fat, forty and bald-headed you can also get a little bit eccentric.

The time for filing for city office is past and it looks like we came out about even. One candidate for each office. Furthermore, I have heard very little complaining. Very little. Few people realize it, but the City ticket this year is most unusual in one respect. It represents almost every walk of life in the community. Too often one group, or clique, will get out a ticket and because of some point get the entire ticket elected. This City ticket is representative of nearly all possible groups. Most people with a legitimate gripe will have a friendly ear on the city council. That's worth a lot. Taxation without representation caused the civil war and, for our money, the City ticket this year is a good one.

I don't mean they won't get cussed — and plenty. Widening of 25-Mile Avenue is strictly a hot potato. Some toes are going to be stepped upon, and very few people like to get their pedicure smeared. It sure is a tough problem. It will start with the old council and end with the new in all probability.

People are all of the time screaming about the absence of the Bull Column these days. I have to admit that it is flattering, but doing it, along with the rest of the chores, is next to impossible since we have no one in the news

Lots of things could happen, now that Joe Stalin has passed on to his reward (?) Most commentators say, "Your guess is as good as the next" — and that is probably right. My guess is that there will be quite a scramble for top man on the Russian totem pole. The fellow who does get it will have to kill off all of his opponents, once he's in, to guarantee continuation of his supremacy. This will weaken the whole deal and, consequently, weaken the hold which these unscrupulous leaders have over the Russians. This is probably wishful thinking, but it is also possible.

On the other hand, they may have had the deal cut and dried for a long time. They may have everything primed and oiled to keep going right along in high gear. Still, I doubt if it works out too well for the Russians. When Roosevelt died we had a vice-president to step right in. His name was Harry Truman.

Maybe I am 100 percent haywire. Maybe I am spoiled. Maybe I am just plain, downright ungrateful. Anyway, I am unhappy. I have also changed my mind on one subject — thanks to Public School Week, March 1-7.

Time was when I thought the scores of teen-agers a bit juvenile to forsake a good, hot meal in the cafeteria at 35 cents and walk to town for a greasy hamburger at a higher price. Now I wonder. For a long time the school kids, especially high school age, have been complaining about cafeteria meals. The quality of the food, they say, is fine — but the preparation isn't exactly like "mother used to make." Frankly, I thought it was a matter of griping, or maybe wanting to hold hands with a fellow's girl on the stroll to town. All of this was before I ate lunch at the Shirley school cafeteria Thursday as part of public school week.

The menu was well planned and balanced. The portions were generous enough, but the turkey and dressing stood out like a small island in a sea of goo, which someone must have construed to be gravy. I am willing to grant that a few characters may like their turkey and dressing submerged: a' la one full inch of sage-flavored water. It so happens I like mine dry. Furthermore, I realize that it is impossible to please everyone when cooking for such a large crowd. What really worries me, though, is the fact that everyone reported the Thursday meal as well above the average. Outstandingly good! Stew, they say, is really thin and stringy, hamburgers ultra-rare — and "boy, you should try some of that spaghetti and meatballs sometime."

All of which leads me to wonder if anyone ever went to the trouble to try to find out how the kids do like their food prepared. Simple questionnaires could be filled out in the individual rooms with ease if the cooks and administration really wanted to serve the types of food people like. Such a survey could even be used as the project for a home economics class. It would be some trouble, perhaps, but so is almost everything worthwhile. Actually, it is a shame to take good food and turn it into a conglomerate mess. That, in my opinion, could be happening.

Anyway I apologize to those kids we've been mentally criticizing as they trek to town each day. Furthermore, when my own kids want to take their lunch instead of eating at the cafeteria, I'll agree with well run out of soap and there is nothing left but vacant space when you get down to the Bull Column. Here's the deal, though, I will try to get some individual to do it. A different one each time. Maybe there will be an influx of new ideas, new material. This should be good for a few weeks or so. Maybe I could announce each issue who will be next.

For instance, Next Thursday Editor's spot. Besides, you pretty roid Close, ex-basketball player and drug store operator, will write the Bull Column. Charlotte will check over his spelling (I hope) and it should be a dandy. Old Harold is the poppa of a lot of worthwhile things around Hereford. He is the guy who dreamed up the softball field. He flat-footed talked the Lions Club into sponsoring the football stadium. Harold is a stem-winder when he gets started. I'll bet he does a real good column. Anyway, we can see next Thursday.

Leslys Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary Here Last Sunday

"Grow old along with me—the best is yet to be" was the message that seemed to shine through the radiant faces of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lesly as they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at an open house in the home of their daughter Mrs. Lewis West who lives 10 miles northwest of Hereford. "There hasn't been many dull moments," say the couple, as they look back on the good times and the bad, "but we are looking forward to the future and good years ahead." He is 73 and still able to do his farm work and she is 69 and keeps up with her chickens and garden as well as taking care of the home.

Mr. Lesly was born in Lec County, Mississippi, on Jan. 24, 1880 and Mrs. Lesly, who was Miss Odie Lancaster, was born in Erath County Texas on Dec. 3, 1884. He came to Comanche, which was still Indian Territory, in 1888 and started to school in a strip box house and later went to school in a dugout. She was eight years old when her family moved to Comanche.

Sam broke horses and mules and cowboied as a young man and made his first trip through Hereford in 1901 with a train load of cattle from Mud Creek Ranch in the Chickasha Territory, enroute to Hagarman, N. M. where he summered the cattle before shipping to Kansas City.

On March 1, 1903, the young couple were seated in a buggy in front of the Methodist Minister's home in Comanche as the minister read the wedding vows. In December of that year, Odie and Sam and his parents moved to Bandera County, making the trip in a covered wagon. It took 22 days to cover the 600 miles.

The couple moved to Big Spring in 1907 where he hauled freight for the building of Post City, Texas. In 1908 they decided to make an extended trip through Texas. They loaded the covered wagon and brought along 4 mules and a saddle horse. They visited her people in Quay, N. M. coming through Hereford on a hot July 4th. They stayed longer than they expected for as they crossed a ditch on Main St. their wagon tongue broke in two and they had to wait for it to be fixed.

Back in Oklahoma he became interested in cattle as well as horses and farming and between 1911 and 1950 he operated farms and cattle ranches in several Texas counties, landing at Post in 1940. In 1950 irrigation farming attracted his interest and they purchased property and moved into the Progressive Community, Hereford.

To the couple were born seven children, six of whom are still living. They include: Mrs. Lewis West, Mrs. Horace Vaughn and Luther Lesly of Hereford; Mrs. Glen Wolcott, Torrance, California; Mrs. John Meason, Roaring Springs, Texas and Mrs. Jack Bridges, Compton, California. All of the children and their families were present for the anniversary celebration. There are 11 grand children and 5 great-grand children.

Also present were Mrs. Lesly's four sisters: Mrs. Bud Morris, Amarillo; Mrs. Ellen New, Matador; Mrs. Leonard Dunn, Quay, N. M. and Mrs. J. C. Bradley, also of Quay. Also here for the occasion were Mr. Lesly's brother, Elbert Lesly and Mrs. Lesly of Merced, California, and a sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Claude McCain of Littlefield.

Other out of town relatives attending were: Mrs. Ruth Slape, Mr. and Mrs. Don Crouch, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Brooch and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Andrews, Amarillo. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Thompson, Las Vegas, N. M. Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Hill, Littlefield; Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hill, Amberst; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McCain, Texico. Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Lesly and family of Ralls.

"Old Tascosa" started as a camping place for Indians and explorers, and is located on a shallow spot on the Canadian River. ture of the effect of culture brought to the area," she said. She further described Old Tascosa as the mother of Amarillo, Channing, Doherty and many more Panhandle communities. subject "Let's Quit Labeling Children." She said in part: "Many a talent and many a fine personality trait have been suppressed and lost because a child has been convinced that he cannot change his nature, and it is human to cherish almost any kind of label that makes people aware of themselves as individuals. If admirable qualities are not allowed to command attention, then roughness, meanness or trickery may be used as a substitute."

A REPORT TO OUR STOCKHOLDERS

Mr. G. W. Brumley attended Meeting Feb. 19th & 20th and Reports as follows:

Mr. G. W. Brumley of Hereford, Texas, President of the Board of Directors of the Hereford National Farm Loan Association, has recently returned from Houston. He was the official representative of this association to the Eighth Annual Stockholder's Meeting of the Federal Land Bank of Houston held on February 19 and 20, 1953.

He reported that the bank made the largest volume of farm mortgage loans to Texas farmers and ranchers in 1952 than any year since its organization in 1917, with one exception. This exception was in 1934 during the depression period.

Officers of the bank stated during the meeting that the 1953 volume of loans promises to exceed that of 1952 if the first six weeks of this year can be used as a guide. It is also anticipated that many loans will be made during the year for the purpose of financing the restocking of ranches and stock farms with livestock.

The increased demands for loans has been brought about for several reasons. The primary reason apparently is the fact that the average net cost of Land Bank loans is probably lower than that of any other mortgage lender in the State. Also many short-term loans, created by reason of the drought throughout much of Texas, are now being refinanced on a long-term basis on account of the opportunity of reducing the rate of interest on these loans which can be repaid at any time without penalty.

The Federal Land Bank of Houston is completely owned by the 141 Texas national farm loan associations. The associations, which are owned by local farmers and ranchers, in turn own all of the capital stock of the bank. We feel that inasmuch as the loan services of the bank are handled in the field by these associations, it is having a marked influence on this increase in volume of business. Under such a plan, local people do business with homefolks who understand local conditions and personally know the people with whom they are doing business.

The local association owns its own building, which is located at 407 N. Main.

The officers and directors of the association are as follows: J. M. White, President; G. W. Brumley, Vice President; Ira Scott, Director; Jeff Roberson, Director; Frank Bezner, Director; N. E. Gass, Secretary-Treasurer; Zula Gilliam, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer.

Scrubbing Floors

After scrubbing the floor, either wood or linoleum, it is very important, as a final process, to go over the surface with a rag wrung out of clear water. If water is left on wood, splinters will soon appear; if left on linoleum, it will produce lumps in the surface.

Broken Eggs

If eggs are broken but cannot be used immediately, put them in a cup and cover with water or milk to prevent them from drying. Then place them on ice.

Damp Rooms

Keep a small box of lime in the pantry, or any other room in the house that is inclined to be damp, and it will keep the air cool and dry.

An Emergency Salad

Use one cup of cooked diced carrots with one cup of cooked peas and one half cup of chopped celery. Add 3 or 4 tablespoons of broken nut meats and 1 tablespoon of finely chopped pimientos. Mix with French dressing and serve on lettuce leaves.

Flower Pots

To make unsightly flower pots attractive cover them with two or three thicknesses of paraffin paper, then a layer of crepe tissue paper. The paraffin paper prevents the moisture from coming through.

Tender Feet

Nothing is better for tender feet than a cold foot bath. Follow by rubbing briskly with either alcohol or olive oil, and then dust with talcum powder.

The Paint Brush

A paint brush will not shed bristles while painting if, when new, it is stood on end, with bristles up and open, and a spoonful of good varnish is poured in. Keep the brush in this position until dry.

Shoes

To preserve shoes, they should be coated with copal varnish to the soles and vamp. The shoes will not stain and will be half-soled and it is particularly good for children's shoes.

Brown Marks

The brown marks which are caused by baking in the oven, can be removed if they are rubbed with damp salt; then wash off and repeat the process if necessary.

Custard Pie

If the custard shrinks from the crust it has been baked in an oven that was too hot. Heat the oven for about ten minutes to bake the pastry, so that it will not absorb the custard, then reduce the heat.

Supreme Court justices engaging in private practice may be impeached.

Ceramic Art Club Plan For Art Show

Ceramic Art Club met in the Community Club House Thursday afternoon with Mrs. O. H. Chippeney serving as hostess. Mrs. F. H. Kester, vice-president, presided over the meeting. Several plans were discussed for the May Ceramic Art Show. The group made costume jewelry in workshop activities.

Those attending were Mesdames Fred Hunter, F. M. Baker, E. J. Carter, Vaughn, V. E. Denson, Mrs. Gilliland, G. M. Thompson, Ed Cox and the hostess.

A Word About The Optometry Bill

One of the most bitterly contested and most confusingly handled bills to appear before the legislature this year is the optometry bill sponsored by optometrists all over Texas. It is also the most expensive and time consuming.

Actually, there appears little cause for the confusion - unless the legislators are trying to please both sides. The issue involved is clear cut. It appears that people would either be "for" the bill or "against" it.

Since the argumentative point in the bill concerns advertising, we would perhaps be prejudiced. This is more especially true in view of the fact that the bill would establish a board specifically telling each man not only what, but how he must advertise.

In our opinion, it is the unquestionable right and privilege of optometrists or any other organization to regulate the use of advertising by their own members. However, it appears that the optometrists are not satisfied with regulating their own practices - but are taking it upon themselves to regulate the business of others, including non-members. The state and federal laws do already prohibit false and misleading advertisements. This, in our opinion, is just and right. Violations are settled in the courts - and that is also just and right.

Such a control board as the optometrists desire would eliminate the jurisdiction of courts, placing power to run another man's business at the discretion of the board. The whole plan entirely overlooks production costs and competitive free trade.

Furthermore, it appears to us that the only people who might benefit are the optometrists. Certainly, the business of fitting glasses is a "learned profession." However, the average optometrist also involves the resale of manufactured articles at a nice profit. If they merely wrote a prescription and turned the sale of glasses over to another agency, just as a doctor does the prescription he writes, their argument might hold water. So long as the optometrist insists in going into the additional business of retailing spectacles to the public, it appears to us that he should forget his "learned profession" status - and take his chances along with other retailers, not as a professional man, but as a retailer.

The optometrists, as we see it, are the only people who would gain from such a bill - and that is questionable. Efforts to control, rather than meet competition are chief among the complaints which sponsors offer in passing additional bills which increase government controls. We have always been opposed to socialized medicine and we are equally opposed to curbing of free enterprise, which is its forerunner.

Congratulations, To Ballinger, Tex.

In the history of every community rest unseen landmarks of many things, likewise unsung tributes to many people. Hereford is no exception.

Since 1901 this community has included thousands of fine, honest people. Some have stayed here to die, others have moved on into other fields. Some have been leaders, others have been followers; a few have been roof-top shouters, and some have been free riders. Never, down through the years, though, has Hereford possessed a more honest, sincere, progressive couple than Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Cagle.

As pastor of the First Baptist, Rev. Cagle has established an enviable record of progress in which can be cited creation of three district missions, one now a full-fledged church. Rev. Cagle, though not a disturbance maker by any means, has also found time to take part in organizations and affairs of the community. He has almost as many friends outside of the church as he has in the church.

Most important of all, however, is the fact that he conducts himself as a Christian outside, as well as in the church. As a result, the church rolls have grown steadily during his seven years as pastor here and many members who previously did not attend church are once again in the habit.

In addition to substantial growth to the church which he served as pastor, Rev. and Mrs. Cagle leave Hereford a better, more liveable community than that which they moved into in 1945. They have scores of close friends who will treasure their relationship down through the years. These people realize and approve of the Cagles moving into another field where they can continue to serve, possibly to an even greater extent, though they will be sorely missed here.

All in all, the situation can best be summed up by saying, "Congratulations to the people of Ballinger, Texas."

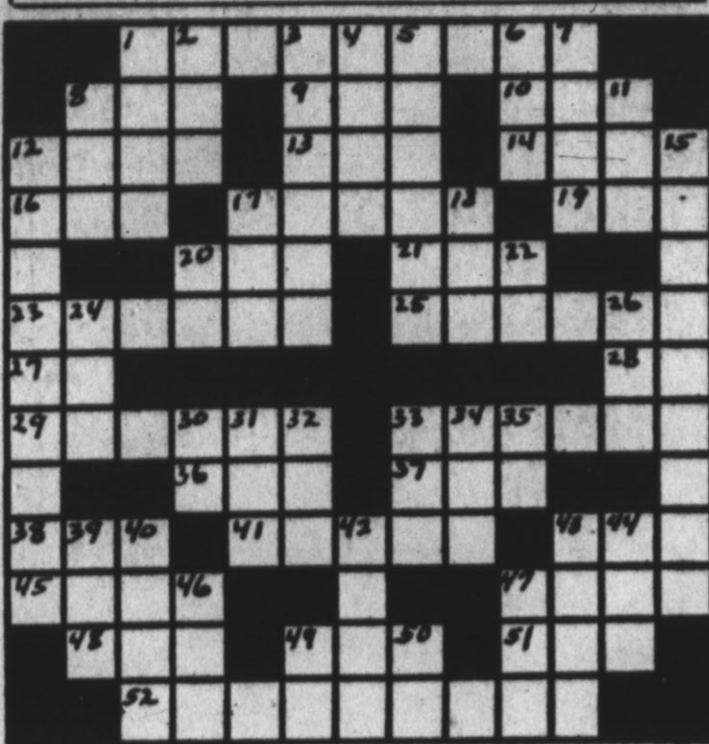

Who can recall the days when speakers had to work up a good lather, if the affair was to be a success.

It is easy to make last-minute plans when you don't have any work to do in the first place.

This is the time of year when young things look especially good in bathing suits.

The world will be more pleasant if you stop trying to make people think like you do.

Texans In Washington

Texans In Washington
By Tex Easley

AP Special Washington Service
Falling farm prices, along with a billion dollar hoard of farm commodities held by the government to stabilize the market, have Texas members of Congress worried.

As a whole they're inclined so far to wait a bit longer before hurling charges at the Eisenhower administration.

One of the best informed men in Washington on agricultural problems is Waco's Rep. W. R. (Bob) Poage, who has discussed the problem several times with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. A democrat, Poage thinks farm prices probably will level off and everything will be all right.

"At least, I hope so," he said. "But, we're skating on thin ice. Unless the government, the administration that is, gives assurances that it sincerely wants to maintain a 90 per cent of parity price support program, you might see the market tumble."

The Texan explained that the Agriculture Department is authorized now to support the six basic commodities at 90 per cent of parity. (Parity is a formula designed to net the producer a fair return for his output.) The basic commodities are: cotton, corn, wheat, rice, peanuts and tobacco.

Although the authorization for the price support program exists, its success depends entirely on the attitude of the administration and the secretary of agriculture, Poage added. The cabinet member is the man who must issue the various orders and directives to carry it out, and come to Congress for more funds for the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) to operate its purchase or loan programs if more money is needed.

In that regard, Poage points out that in 17 years that price support programs have been in effect, the government has netted a profit of about 225 million dollars while assuring farmers billions of dollars of income they might not otherwise have had.

Pointing to the statements and acts of Benson since he took over at the helm of the Agriculture Department, particularly in regard to his attitude on falling livestock prices, Poage added:

"I'm a little worried over the lack of enthusiasm he has shown so far in the price support programs.

"Although a secretary of agriculture could sabotage a farm program, I want to make it clear that I am not suggesting that Mr. Benson will do so. I think he is sincerely trying to figure out the best way to face a difficult situation."

Many people interpreted the Republican presidential campaign statements last fall as commitments to back a 100 per cent of parity price support program.

"Whether that's true or not," Poage continued, "the Republicans are finding out that it is a hard thing to do without running into an expensive subsidy program."

Rep. Clark Thompson of the Galveston district, like Poage a member of the House Agriculture committee, has urged the immediate purchase by the armed services of large quantities of meat and livestock.

This would save taxpayers by getting the military the supplies it needs while the prices are down, and at the same time would help the producers by stabilizing the market, he declared.

Rep. Lloyd Bentsen of McAllen, concerned with the citrus and fresh vegetable levels as well as cotton and livestock prices, says he is waiting and watching to see how (Continued on Page Five)

Plain "Whittlin" Is A Lost Art

Few people carry sharp pocket knives anymore, and it is a shame.

Most men today, especially those who grew up in this Western country, can remember how their dad used to get a whet rock down on the kitchen table and hone his knife blade to the point where it would actually split hairs. Now days when you borrow a fellow's knife it is always the small, penknife variety - the kind which would once have met with derision and ribald humor upon sight.

Over half our dads had no earthly excuse for the knives, really, and rare indeed was any of them who used it on Indians. They carried them, though, and they took real pride in having a sharp knife.

"Why is it a shame not to have a sharp knife, especially without a good solid reason?" This question, we know, lingers on many lips, so we will tell you why.

You just can't do a good job of thoughtless whittling without a sharp knife. Whittling for art's sake is creative and worthwhile, but that's really carving and that's out. We mean plain old "whittling" - the kind you do at random. Many a decision has been over a soft pine board with a sharp knife. The lost art is conducive to deep thought and emotion.

Time was when an old boy, instead of filing for a divorce, got out his knife and whittled his way through a tough family problem. The philosophy and logic of good government of yester-years often emerged over a pile of pine shavings in the general store.

Take juvenile delinquency, for instance. When the kids got out of line, pop would stroll out to the barn, lean back against the wall, and first thing you knew he picked up a board and started whittling! He always came up with an answer, too. Sometimes he even whittled a long, flat paddle.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Let's Admit Hawaii, Alaska, Too, Is Opinion of Hereford Citizens

The question of admitting Hawaii as the 49th State will come before Congress in the near future. Do you think they should be admitted? Why?

DENNIS LOMAS

Yes. They pay taxes and go to the Army just the same as we do so they might as well be a part of us.

JIMMIE WITHERSPOON

I think they should and Alaska, also. For the same reason they ought to have some voice in the government that Texas and the other states do. They are a part of the United States and there are enough people in them to justify them having a say in the government just the same as New Mexico, Oklahoma and the other states that have been admitted.

ROY PEET

They've tried for so long to get in that we might as well admit them. Most of the people over there are pretty good Americans. As long as we're going to keep them as part of us it might as well be all. I think while we're at it we might as well admit Alaska.

ABE MARTIN

I think they should if they want to be admitted but I think that the decision should be left up to the people over there.

KENT SNARE

I think we should include both Alaska and Hawaii in our state complement inasmuch as we should have the revenue from taxation as well as some territory that might enable us to prevent aggression.

'Tater Peelin's

By Roberta Campbell

We didn't know a person could have so much fun on a birthday after they got as old as we are. All day last Tuesday the telephone kept ringing and somebody would wish us a happy birthday. (Central probably wished we had died the day before) and that night the neighbors surprised us with games and birthday cake so we really didn't mind adding another year to the half century we had already been in existence.

Sharon Flood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Flood of the Wyche Community celebrated the very first day of March and speakin of cakes we've never seen a ten-egg Angel Food cake rise to such proportions as the one Mrs. Flood baked for the party.

It was just the usual recipe usin:

- 1 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 cup and 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
 - and 10 egg whites, but you almost needed a step ladder to see the top.
- Ours usually look as if somebody had used them for a cushion.

How time must fly.

It was Friday before Valentine that we stopped at Lukes Little Grocery for some soda pop for the youngsters at school and we could hardly believe our eyes when we passed that way again a few days ago and saw a new, much larger buildin all complete and moved in.

Wonder when the ducks are going to take on up north where they belong -- Aubyn Hodges is another farmer who is havin trouble keepin them from makin a wadin pool out of his field.

CUT THROAT

Parkland hospital received a call from a distraught young woman Thursday saying that her husband had cut his throat. The hospital notified police that there was a man at the West Dallas address with his head chopped off.

The police notified the homicide bureau and reporters that a man was at the house with his body in one room and his head in another.

Three police squad cars, two detective cars, an ambulance, two reporters and a television newsreel camera descended on the scene in a cloud of dust.

Capt. Will Fritz walked to the steps of the house where he was confronted with a sweet smile from a gray-haired lady. "Did you want to see somebody?" the woman asked.

"Yes, some girl just called and said a man had been cut to pieces out here," the homicide captain answered.

"Oh," the lady smiled, "that was my daughter. I told her that her husband had cashed his check. She must have thought I said gashed his neck. I wondered why she ran out of the house when I told her." The Dallas Morning News.

The BOOTLEG Philosopher

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher is off on topics he doesn't know much about again this week, which is customary with him.

Dear editor:

Last week in my letter to you I was talkin about the school teachers' problem, how there was a shortage of teachers in Texas due to the fact the profession apparently has been under-paid and is failin to attract enough young people, all the smart ones want to go into something that pays better, and how a lot of people believe the solution is to give the teachers an increas in pay.

This may be right, but I'm afraid the request comes any where from fifteen to thirty years too late to help the present adult population.

You can look around you now and see what this country needed thirty yeras ago, add or subtract a few years, was an increas in teachers' pay in order to attract a lot better class of teachers, that is, just judgin by the amount of education you and me and a lot of others I could name absorbed.

The argument for more teachers and better teachers and more money to attract 'em is pretty plain, when you examine the state of a lot of grown people's education. I ain't saying if they'd paid my teachers more money they'd had any better luck with me, but I reckon I'm gettin close to sayin it.

But I didn't start out to discuss the teachers' problems, what I started out to say is everybody has problems. For example, before he had any notion of runnin for President, Eisenhower bought a farm up in Pennsylvania and the newspapers were full of his plans about it. He and a partner were going to operate it and split the profits fifty-fifty.

Well, the other day I noticed in a newspaper that up to now there haven't been any profits to split and that President Eisenhower has decided he hasn't got time to be president and look after a farm too.

I know what he means. Runnin a farm is a full-time job and the day was never made with enough hours in it to run a farm and the Presidency too.

But I notice Eisenhower is holdin on to the place, and I'm glad of it. Just because a farm don't show any profit is no reason for sellin it. If it was, the real estate people in this country would get rich on commissions.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Mr. Jimmy Gillentine, Editor

Hereford, Texas

Dear Mr. Gillentine:

I have read with much interest your editorial in regard to the increase in teachers' salaries and where the money should come from. I heartily agree with you that if we are to maintain any reasonable control of our schools that we must pay the bill locally.

I think this is the most clear-cut and the finest editorial on a controversial subject that I have read in many years.

I would like to have your permission to mimeograph this editorial and use same for distribution to many of the people in our district; also, to distribute among the members of the House of Representatives.

Please let me hear from you.

Sincerely,
Jesse M. Osborn

FOIBLES

By Kent Snare

I scoffed at the AP All American rosters, now comes the UP's A-A and it is top heavy too, only more so. Not only do they have 3 centers on the first string, they have elevated Bevo Francis to the second list with an aggregate there of 4 centers. I have apparently been laboring under a misapprehension in thinking that in order to have a top club, the first thing you must have is team balance including playmakers, ball handlers and defensive men as well as a scoring punch. The basketball rules committee convenes later this month and their agenda will be keynoted with an overwhelming demand to straighten up their game of BB—Some guessers have the four foul limit returning. The option probably will be reinstated as well as continuing the 2 shot 3 minute rule, in order to minimize fouling to gain possession of the ball. Speaking about ball control, last Monday night in the Okie Ags squeaker past St. Louis U at 51-50, the Billikens tried to control the ball for 10 minutes, therein, making the grievous error of violating one of this era's percentage rules. This accepted, unwritten rule directs that no club should ever try to freeze the ball for more minutes than there are points to your lead. In front by 7, St. Louis opened the 4th stanza with a full stall, retaining the ball for 4 minutes at the outset while tacking on 2 points as the Ags fouled 'em, but when they could, the Ags kept changing horses until they had stretched it too thin and the Cowpokes got thru to sack up the Valley. Hardin-Simmons took Tech at Lubbock and for a second accomplishment took the toss and elected to meet Arizona at Abilene, of course, to decide who would play Santa Clara in the first Far West round of the NCAA. As hazarded herein, the NIT had to fill their hand with also rans from the NCAA races, taking Tulsa and St. Louis who with Houston tied for 2nd in the MV and they were glad to get the number two team in the Skyline which probably will be Brigham Young U., who booted the championship almost out of reach by dropping 2 in a row to Wyoming and Colorado Ags, of course, the latter is the only stumbling block to a clearcut title for Wyoming and they may be just that—B.H. Born, Kansas U's only biggie at 6-9, broke the Big 7 individual scoring record at 44 points and his right thumb in last Monday's tilt with Colorado. Although he is a portsider, the splinted digit may hold the Jayhawks to a tie with the K-Ags, for they still have two games to go, one of them in the lair of Missouri, who are double tough in their own backyard. If they do tie, and play off, K-Ags will take them and place Gardner back in the front row—Have you noticed how the Orange Bowl committee has been pulling the strings since the Syracuse scrapple was served in their bowl last January One. First they distorted the idea of having the National Pro-League play their championship in the Orange Bowl, probably knowing that the paying adherents of the Pro League champs would be apt to leave their saucer askew before allowing such a reprehensible happening. Last week the Orange Bowl sent 2 delegates to the Big 7 conference Faculty representative meeting with a feeler. This tentative probing was first to ascertain if the league might relent and let their top clubs appear in the money aftermath at the Year's opening holiday games. The delegates also revealed that the Orange Bowl itself would be enlarged to accommodate 84,000 paying inbabs. Rumor has it that the Orange Bowl committee hopes to pledge the Big 7 to Dallas and Miami in a 4 conference package including also the Southwest, Southern and South-eastern leagues. By such an alliance they feel both Bowls would be assured of topflight matches and would obviate rematches. For instance, if Oklahoma and Texas won their races, Texas would host the Southern or Southeastern Kingpin at Dallas with the Sooners taking on the Southeastern winner at Miami. In case of no repeat contests conflicting, the northern and Southern titlists would automatically be matched in the Cotton and Orange Bowls. In order to do this they would have to get the no-bowl rule rescinded in the Southern Conference also. The idea is a good one and supposing it had been workable last year would have pitted Texas and Georgia Tech plus Oklahoma and Maryland—Did you know this one stemmed from the pen of B. Franklin, to wit: "Here Skugg lies snug as a bug in a rug." —In part quite familiar, is it not??

The Administration gets along for a while yet before reaching an opinion.

"I do think they have done one good thing already," he added. "In lifting livestock price controls and compulsory grading of meats they have helped both the grower and the consumer."

"The compulsory grading caused an unfair relationship between good and choice grade meats."

From out in the sheep and wool growing section of West Texas, Rep. Clark Fisher of San Angelo says he sees no fault yet to voice against the Benson-directed Agriculture Department.

"Livestock men generally want as few governmental controls as possible," he said, "even though that means less assistance from the government."

He said that one of the duties of the Federal government was to protect domestic producers from unfair competition of foreign goods this country under a subsidy of some kind maintained by a foreign nation. He cited as an example of this one grade of wool which has been shipped into the U. S. from South America.

Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, who was in Congress when farm prices began to fall at the beginning of the Depression and has helped enact virtually all farm laws now on the books, wrote in a recent news letter:

"Congressmen from farm areas remain disturbed about the rapid decline in farm prices and the apparent determination on the part of the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Benson, not to do anything about it unless the situation be-

Q. Please suggest a good exercise for slimming abdomen and hips.

A. Lie flat on back, arms overhead, knees straight, toes pointed. Lift torso slowly to a sitting position, breathing in. Bend forward from waist to reach the toes. Don't hunch the shoulders. Reverse, raising arms overhead, then slowly lower torso to the floor, starting from the small of the back.

Q. How should I properly wash my hair and complexion brushes?

A. Wash these regularly with borax and soap, and rinse in an antiseptic solution diluted with water.

Q. Is there a good treatment for occasional pimples on my face?

A. Often effective is a handful of starch in the morning bath, and a thick paste of starch spread on at night before retiring.

Q. What type of hairdress do you suggest for the girl who has a round little, "cherub" type of face?

A. Very good for this type is a short up-do — that is, two-inch hair brushed flat at the sides for slimness, but fluffed close to the head in back. Bangs that appear to tumble carelessly over the forehead are really arranged to fall at center front to draw attention away from the roundness of the face.

Q. What is a good, effective mud or clay pack for use on an oily type of skin?

A. Either fuller's earth or kaolin is good in this case — mixed to a smooth paste with witch hazel. Use about two tablespoons of the clay. Equal parts of witch hazel and peroxide may be used if bleaching is desired.

Q. How can I make a better job of cleaning my knees and heels?

A. Try adding a little powdered pumice to a soap lather and scrub these areas well with a brush. Rinse and massage with hand lotion.

Q. What is a recommended routine for making up the face?

A. First, of course, wash the face thoroughly. After rinsing and drying, apply skin lotion or tonic, and let dry. Then apply a foundation cream or vanishing cream, rubbing in lightly and evenly. While face is still damp, blend rouge into cheek toward the front. Then apply face powder evenly and carefully, being careful not to use too much.

Q. How should I pluck bushy and shaggy eyebrows?

A. In plucking, be careful, for every hair is important. Never touch the top line itself, only remove the strays above it. If the brow is too wide, remove one by one the lowest line of hairs and all those below it.

Q. What is a good skin-softening treatment?

A. One that I have recommended before is to coat face and neck with some olive oil, then rub briskly over this with some common table salt.

L'Allegra Study Club met in the home of Mrs. Richard Winget Thursday evening for a special program presented by Mrs. J. W. Barnett.

Senate Squabble

IRONICALLY, the first important foreign policy issue presented to Congress by the GOP Administration received the support of the Democrats but was opposed by the Republicans. Under the influence of Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), President Eisenhower's proposed declaration on the wartime Yalta and Potsdam agreements was rejected by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Democrats accused the Taft forces of breaking the bipartisan front in the Senate and claimed their's was the only party ready to uphold the Republican position.

Both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had pleaded with Congress to adopt a resolution accusing the Russians of having "perverted" the terms of the Yalta and Potsdam agreements into arrangements for "subjugating" free peoples and declaring the United States would never acquiesce in such enslavement.

The Republicans demanded the addition of a rider in stronger language. The Eisenhower resolution did not repudiate the territorial concessions made at Yalta and Potsdam.

The GOP leaders in the Senate attached this rider to the resolution: "Resolved, that the adoption of this resolution does not constitute any determination by Congress as to the validity or invalidity of any of the provisions of the said agreements or understanding."

Democrats asserted that by casting doubt on the legality of the agreements, the Republicans also were casting doubt on the right of the U.S. to remain in Berlin and Vienna under those agreements.

The GOP Democratic squabble over the resolution posed a situation which Secretary of State Dulles had plainly tried to avert. In an appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Secretary said that if the Eisenhower resolution could not be adopted with complete unanimity, it would be better not to adopt it at all.

They weren't hurt—just mad. They told an 18-year-old youth who came to the rescue to take the plane and keep it, then took a bus the rest of the way home.

● In Peoria, Ill., a motorist arrested himself for driving through a stop sign. He told the local magistrate he was worried about his own carelessness. The judge dismissed the case.

ADENAUER AND BIDAULT MEET IN ROME

IN ROME last week, representatives of six nations unanimously agreed to push for speedy ratification of the European army treaty. Everybody went home satisfied with the results.

Later it developed that the delegates had not understood exactly what they were agreeing to.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault said proposed French protocols to the treaty would be altered, as agreed on at Rome. A permanent interim commission started to work on this project in Paris Monday. But Bidault added there would still have to be revisions in the treaty to make it more acceptable to the French government.

In Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer declared there had been no talk at Rome about revisions. He emphasized, the treaty must be ratified as signed last May and that if Bidault thinks he can change it, he is mistaken.

"All six nations have agreed to push for early ratification of the European army treaty," Adenauer asserted. "There can be no talk now about deciding to make amendments."

The conflicting interpretations of the decisions reached at Rome suggested France and West Germany

The WORLD This WEEK

WEST PONDERERS KREMLIN'S COURSE

EARLY-RISING Muscovites heard the news repeated over and over again. Some listened with concern plainly visible on their faces. Joseph Stalin, their leader for almost 30 years, was through.

In Washington, officials were jolted by the news. Diplomatic officials regarded it as of momentous importance. The fact that Stalin was removed from the Soviet political scene gave rise to fears that extremists in the Kremlin might gain control.

State Department officials agreed the machinery for a change of power in Moscow had no doubt been set up long in advance of Stalin's illness. But the prospect of a power struggle loomed, nevertheless.

Stalin, son of a cobbler, emerged out of the chaos of the revolution to become top man. In the course of his rise to power, he swept aside such rivals as extreme left-winger Leon Trotsky.

Georgi M. Malenkov, the coldly methodical pupil of Stalin, is the man who has been closest to the Premier in recent years. The status of V. M. Molotov, regarded as a possible successor, has been shrouded in Kremlin secrecy.

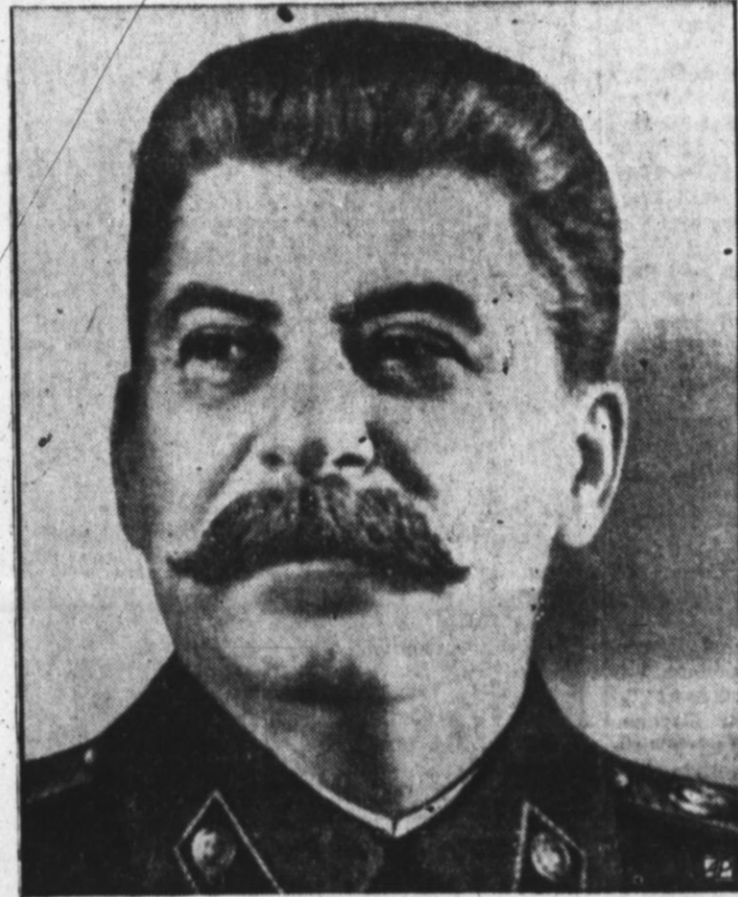

Lavrenti P. Beria, chief of the dread Soviet secret police, was regarded as a third possible heir to Stalin's mantle. The recent official attacks on the security system inside Russia and charges that a network of spies was operating in the country were taken as ill omens for any future ambitious Beria might have.

Malenkov is 50, and a secretary of the Communist party. He is dark, stocky and he hates the West. He has been built up as the super-architect of the Soviet world. His rise has been rapid. He was Stalin's private secretary before being appointed to the Soviet war cabinet after Hitler invaded Russia in 1940.

At the All-Union Communist Congress last October, Malenkov delivered a long keynote address, a chore previously undertaken by Stalin himself. Western observers regarded the fact that Malenkov gave the address as highly significant.

Beria, 54, is a man of mystery. He looks something like a small-time manufacturer or businessman with glasses. He was first regarded as a leader possibility when he was made head of the secret police. He later took over the Soviet atomic energy program.

Molotov is one of the few remaining old Bolsheviks. At 62, he has been a longtime friend and adviser of Stalin. He joined the Communists before he was out of high school and had frequent experiences with the Czarist police long before the revolution of November, 1917.

In the Soviet satellite empire, the situation was particularly tense as first news of Stalin's illness was flashed from Moscow. The purges in the satellite countries in recent months indicate clearly that all is not serene behind the Iron Curtain. The atmosphere inside Poland and Czechoslovakia was regarded as especially volatile.

The anti-Semitic campaign currently being waged by the Kremlin was apparently to tighten up police

BALKAN ENTENTE

FOR centuries, a recurrent objective of Russian foreign policy has been to gain access to warm water ports in the Balkans. This has meant a traditional Russian pressure on countries bordering the Black Sea, the Aegean and the Adriatic.

Communist imperialists in the Kremlin are no less aware of the region's strategic importance than their Czarist predecessors. The Reds have bombarded Greece and Turkey with threats ever since those two countries first contemplated alignment with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

With the defection of Yugoslavia, Western strategists got an unexpected assist in their plans to tie important Balkan nations to the Western defense system.

The signing of the treaty of friendship between the two NATO countries of Greece and Turkey and Communist Yugoslavia effectively links those nations with the overall Western plan to thwart Russian aggression. It means the eastern Mediterranean and the vital approaches to the Middle East are in control of nations who are pledged to collaborate for defense.

One of the clauses of the treaty, slated to run five years, provides that other neighboring countries may join with the consent of all three signatories.

Obviously, this is an opening for either Bulgaria or Albania, if they wish to throw off their communist allegiance and come in under the protection pact. It also is an implied invitation to Italy, but the strained relations between Yugoslavia and Italy over Trieste would have to be settled first.

The treaty rules out any pledge that the armed forces of Greece and Turkey will automatically go to the defense of Yugoslavia in the event of an unprovoked Soviet attack. The reason for this stipulation is that Greece and Turkey, as members of NATO, cannot promise action that might involve other NATO partners. This is something of an academic restriction, however, since any unprovoked Soviet attack on Yugoslavia could very well mean the beginning of a hot war in which case NATO would immediately be involved.

The new Balkan entente does enable the three countries to draw up dovetailed defense plans, deploy their forces to the greatest advantage, exchange information and consult on action.

control in the satellite states. Some observers speculated Stalin may have been stricken weeks ago and that evidences of a disension inside the Politburo were part of a struggle over his successor.

In the midst of the wary speculation on future developments in Moscow, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden arrived in Washington for talks with officials of the Eisenhower Administration.

The news from the Soviet capital reportedly received top priority in the Anglo-American conferences.

Congressional leaders in Washington thought the news from Moscow might mean a temporary show of solidarity in the Kremlin, but that this was likely to dissolve in a power squabble between top men.

Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio), top-ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee said:

"The Kremlin has called the shots all along and all of them are prisoners of the Kremlin. There may be a temporary period of quiet while the successor to Stalin is getting himself adjusted, but in the long run, I wouldn't expect much change."

In some foreign capitals, there was speculation, meanwhile, that Stalin was dead before the first announcement of his illness was made by Moscow Radio.

In Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said the death of Stalin should not be taken as a sign for the free world to relax its strength.

"We must remember," said Adenauer, "that after the death of Lenin there came a Stalin. I have had the feeling for some time that the Russians were preparing the way for Stalin's successor in Moscow."

In Tokyo, Japanese officials said they did not expect any significant change in the direction of Russian foreign policy.

In Short

Urged: by Rep. Cliff Cleveland (R-Ohio), chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee that passes on funds for the State Department, abolition of the Voice of America, under investigation by Sen. McCarthy's permanent investigating committee.

Inaugurated: Samuel Wilder King as Hawaii's eleventh governor. King, one-eighth Hawaiian, is the Territory's first part Hawaiian leader since the fall of the monarchy.

Announced: by U.S. Army headquarters in Heidelberg, plans to lop 27 per cent of its German employees off the payroll on economy orders from Washington.

Revealed: by President Eisenhower, plans to bring about closer relations with the Arab nations of the Middle East. The President expressed concern over recent "deterioration of relations between the Arab states and the U.S." In this connection, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles reportedly is considering a flying trip to the Middle East to bolster U.S. prestige in the area.

Tehran Riots Grow From Oil Deadlock

IRAN'S Mohammed Mossadegh, aged but durable, is not a man who is swayed by riotous demonstrations. He has weathered a continual series of them since he took over as premier.

The volatile situation in Tehran this week saw Mossadegh hard at work, rallying his support while he held his opponents at a stand-off.

The whole outburst in Tehran apparently arose from Mossadegh's efforts to make himself complete master of troubled Iran before letting the people know that negotiations to settle the oil nationalization issue with Britain had failed again.

The merchants in the near-bankrupt nation have become aroused at the excessive tax load they are forced to bear. They blame the heavier taxes on loss of oil revenues resulting from Iran's nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. Britain has successfully managed to prevent Iran from selling the oil in world markets.

Mossadegh sensed the resentment among the merchant class and realized it could be exploited by his political enemies. In addition, Mossadegh got wind of an army plot to overthrow the government.

The premier reportedly believed these opposition movements were encouraged by royal court circles and determined on a showdown with Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. Local newspapers in Tehran reported Mossadegh contemplated bringing royal court finances under direct government control. That would mean royal estates—long tax-free—were to be taxed.

The crisis with the Shah set screaming mobs loose in the capital. Crowds supporting the Shah attacked Mossadegh's house. Later, pro-Mossadegh forces appeared in the streets and tangled with the royalist mobsters. Apparently everybody was mad at the U. S.

American-owned autos and homes were stoned. U. S. Point Four and consular offices were closed throughout the city. Embassy personnel were ordered to stay off the streets.

NEW FARM PRICE PLAN

ONE of the toughest domestic issues facing the Eisenhower Administration when it took over almost seven weeks ago was the question of farm price supports.

Farm prices had been sliding steadily downward for five months. In farm country, the situation was regarded as serious.

Ezra Taft Benson, the new Secretary of Agriculture, waded into the price support problem without delay. He indicated he favored a change in farm price support policy and described supports as "disaster insurance."

Today, farm prices still are on the downgrade and stand 8.84 per cent below those of a year ago. The Secretary's statement on price supports had many of the nation's farmer's very much concerned.

Against this background, Benson announced the Government would continue supports for butter and other dairy products at 90 per cent of parity. In addition, he announced the Government will support this year's corn crop at a national average of $1.58 a bushel, two cents below last year's support, and rice at $4.84 a hundred pounds, down 20 cents from last year.

Benson made it clear he was not abandoning his policy for less Government subsidizing of farmers, however. He disclosed a plan for a nationwide campaign to win support for a new farm program which will include price supports, but as a sort of minimum wage guarantee for farmers.

With assurance of White House backing, Benson is determined to institute a new farm policy which will eliminate a high, rigid support level. Such high supports, he feels, encourage inefficiency and wasteful surpluses. In place of these, he will incorporate price supports in the sense of a minimum wage.

In an effort to offset worry in the farm belt that the agriculture economy is going to be suddenly disrupted, Benson emphasized any shifts will be made gradually and in the manner best calculated to strengthen the farm economy.

In the meantime, Benson was reported planning a house cleaning of some Agriculture Department personnel who are alleged to be actively opposing his new farm policy.

In the Senate, the sag in farm prices, plus a GOP defense of Benson's farm policies, touched off a lively exchange of verbal brickbats between Republicans and Democrats over who is to blame and what to do.

Cancer Immunity Experiment

Scientists at the University of California have produced cancer immunity in rabbits by implanting a tumor in the skin for a few hours. The researchers point out the tests involve an animal-type tumor. It is not yet known what significance the experiments may have for human cancer victims.

It has been known for some time that live cancer tissue planted in the skin of rabbits makes them immune to the growth of cancer, but heretofore it has been thought the cancer must remain in the skin for at least several weeks before immunity developed.

The scientists at Southern California have found that the implanted tumor may be removed in a short time with the result that an apparently permanent immunity develops just the same.

Just what the rabbit takes from the tumor to produce the immunity is not known. There is no evidence of immunity factors in the blood. The immunity apparently comes from body tissue rather than the blood.

If the cancer tissue is planted anywhere except in the skin, the rabbit is killed by the growth.

Quotes

Robert Schuman, former French Foreign Minister, on France's role in formation of the European Defense Community: "If we fail because of our fault, if we abandon the work we have undertaken, we betray not only our own future, but we deceive the hope that all Europe has placed in us. Europe will develop or perish. If it develops, it will be done either by us, or against us, by others. It is necessary that all Frenchmen realize this."

Charles E. Bohlen, newly-named U.S. Ambassador to Russia on the resolution condemning certain portions of the "Big Three" agreements at Yalta and Potsdam: "I find it difficult to believe that these agreements were so favorable to Russia when Russia has found it in her interest to violate them openly and continuously. The alternative was to ignore Eastern Europe. You could not afford not to make the attempt which was made at Yalta."

U.S. Public Sentiment for Korea Decision Grows

ALLIES THROW BACK REDS U.N. BATTERS RED LINES PATROL ACTION ON FRONT

These are representative headlines covering current phases of the war in Korea. They summarize a cold catalogue of tactical facts. They do not tell how U.S. soldiers died making them.

Behind every news story on Korea there is another story of death. There are broken bodies and personal tragedy.

The headlines cannot portray a line of litters in an open field filled with Americans who have made the supreme sacrifice. They cannot show a medical corpsman moving down the line, checking dog tags, when they are still attached to the bodies. They do not tell of the boy in agony with his leg twisted in three different directions.

For the families of men in Korea, these things are vivid enough. They want to see the U.S. do something about the war which has dragged through almost three years and left the front lines in almost the identical spot they were in when it began.

The Administration in Washington is aware of the prevailing sentiment in the U.S. to break the stalemate in Korea or pull U.S. troops out of the line.

High officials reportedly are studying a variety of possible solutions. Basically, they boil down to:

1. Get out of Korea.
 2. Continue the war as is.
 3. Stage an all-out offensive to break the stalemate and force the Communists to talk peace.
- Gen. James A. Van Fleet, retired commander of the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea, told Congressional leaders Wednesday how he thinks the war could be won.

AMERICANS IN ACTION IN KOREA

(In the U.N. General Assembly in New York, the uncompromising Red stand on Korea caused Western diplomats to discount the possibility of any new move on that issue at the current session.)

In Van Fleet's opinion, the galling deadlock in Korea is "of our own choosing and was not imposed by the enemy."

Van Fleet declared the Eighth Army, now commanded by Lt. Gen. Maxwell Taylor, "certainly" could wage a successful offensive.

The general's testimony that the stalemate in Korea is of U.S. choosing caused circulation of reports that Van Fleet did not see eye-to-eye with the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) on directing the war.

Van Fleet declared the U.N. can win a military victory in Korea without danger of broadening the war. He said the present situation was not strictly a stalemate or a checkmate, but a "sitdown" of our own choosing.

Van Fleet gave President Eisenhower, a West Point classmate, a thorough briefing on the Korean situation before he went to Capitol Hill.

Eisenhower has called for a speedy buildup of South Korean troops to take over most of the battle line and permit disengagement of American troops. Van Fleet is regarded by military men as a top trainer of native troops. He is given much of the credit for the good showing South Korean troops have made on the front.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the JCS, outlines four courses of action for the U.S. in Korea. He says he is neither for or against any of them. The decision, he states, is not his to make.

1. Pull out of Korea—an action "I believe the American people and their allies would not condone because it would jeopardize U.N. authority and give communism free rein in Asia."

2. Continue the pressure in Korea—but be ready to "take the additional military steps, from time to time, where a military advantage might accrue."

3. Take any combination of military steps to get a decision "even while we realize it might eventually involve us in all-out war with Communist China."

4. Let the war simmer, as at present, keeping up pressure, keeping down U.N. casualties, inflicting the maximum possible casualties on Red forces.

What to do in Korea still is the number one issue before the Eisenhower Administration.

Macaroni Souffle Answer To Basic Lenten Dishes

Those who think all macaroni dishes taste the same can be sure that they don't, because the hole in macaroni is not accidental. That hollow "cup" shape is the key that gives those wonderful flavors and a more thorough cooking inside as well as outside.

In many households, macaroni and cheese dishes are a must for Lent as a meat substitute, but they may be eaten with relish the year-round.

Mrs. Glenn Snyder likes to serve macaroni and has a number of good recipes for using it in its various shapes and in combination with various sauces. Our favorite is her macaroni souffle with tomato sauce which seems blended to perfection for a special flavor. Here is her recipe:

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup grated American cheese
1 1/2 cups lightly packed soft bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-3 teaspoon pepper
2 cups cooked macaroni
1 tablespoon minced or crushed onion
1 tablespoon minced green pepper
3 eggs separate
Scald milk and melt butter and cheese in it. Add bread crumbs, macaroni, onion, green pepper and beaten egg yolks. Add seasonings and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour in a greased 2 qt. casserole and set in pan containing one inch of water. Bake in moderate oven (350-F) and allow to bake 40 or 50 minutes or until a silver knife comes out clean

by FRANK ROSSIN

CUTOUT'S WILD PLAN HAS WORKED! HIS ZOOMING MODEL JET PLANE HAS FRIGHTENED THE GUARD AWAY FROM HIS POST AND ALSO CAUSED ONE OF THE HOVERING HELICOPTERS TO CRASH INTO A TREETOP!

TAKE EVASIVE ACTION! AVOID THAT JET PLANE!

I CANNOT... I CANNOT... THAT JET IS POSSESSED OF THE DEVIL!

IT IS UPON US... LOOK OUT!!

IN HIS FRIGHT THE PILOT LOSES CONTROL! THE COPTER TIPS....

HAVE SOME KNUCKLES, PAL! THAT'S A DOWN PAYMENT ON YOUR RANSOM!

STEADY DOES IT, BABY! NOW TO TAKE OVER AND MOP UP!

OLD STUMBLEFOOT CUTOUT... TO THE RESCUE, AGAIN!

THE BEDRAGGLED REMNANTS OF THE SCAVENGERS ARE ROUNDED UP...

W.W.A. TO U.S.A.P. X-1263... THIS IS HAZARD AGAIN...

GOT THE MOB ALL ROPED AND BRANDED, GENERAL! COME ON OVER AND JOIN IN THE FUN!

TELL HIM WE'LL BE THERE... AND TO SAVE SOME FOR ME!

LATER...

MY LI'L OLE JET PLANE REALLY GOT US OUT OF A HOLE, EH, JOHNNY? ITS FUEL IS ALMOST SPENT NOW... WONDER WHERE IT IS?

YIKES!

LIKE EVERY OTHER PRODIGAL... IT'S COME HOME TO ROOST!

RUSTY RILEY

By FRANK GODWIN

YOU GOTTA COME QUICK, MR. STOVEPIPE!... THERE'S A PLACE TO HIDE BETWEEN NEKRO'S TENT AND THE MERRY-GO-ROUND!

YES, YES, MY BOY! I CAN SEE THIS IS AN EMERGENCY, BUT WHILE WE'RE STILL OUT OF EARSHOT, TELL ME WHAT'S WRONG?

AFTER YOU LEFT ME, I FOUND I'D LEFT MY MONEY IN THE PANTS OF THAT UNIFORM I WEAR IN MR. NEKRO'S ACT, SO I WENT BACK TO GET IT... HE WAS IN THE TENT TALKING TO THAT FORTUNE TELLER.

PROCEED, RUSTY!

HE SAID MR. DOOLEY WAS A "MADE-TO-ORDER SUCKER," AND THEN HE SAID, "THAT NOSY KID WAS FOOLING WITH MY SPECIAL SPECS."... AND...

YOU, NO DOUBT, ARE THE NOSY KID... TELL ME, DID HE MENTION MARKED CARDS?

JEEPERS, YES!... HOW DID YOU KNOW THAT?.. HE SAID, "GIVE ME THOSE MARKED CARDS AND SCRAM!"

I FEAR THAT MY LONG EXPERIENCE IN THIS PROFESSION HAS EDUCATED ME IN THE DEVIUS WAYS OF MANY DEPLORABLE CHARACTERS... LET US HURRY!

THIS IS THE PLACE I MEANT... AMONG THESE BOXES... IT'S REAL DARK, AND YOU CAN SEE IN THE TENT THROUGH THE BACK FLAP!

WE'RE RIGHT IN TIME! DOOLEY JUST CAME IN.

LOOK, MR. STOVEPIPE, MR. NEKRO'S WEARING THOSE QUEER, PURPLISH GLASSES I TOLD YOU ABOUT!

A LITTLE LATER, INSIDE THE TENT...

THREE KINGS BEAT ME... IT'S YOUR POT... YOUR LUCK'S REALLY RUNNING HIGH, DOOLEY!

I WARNED YOU I COULDN'T LOSE TONIGHT! HOW 'BOUT IT? WANT TO QUIT?

GREAT NEKRO MAGICIAN EXTRAORDINARY

GEE WHILLIKENS, MR. STOVEPIPE!... MR. DOOLEY IS WINNING!

SH-H-H-H... WAIT!

ONE MORE HAND, DOOLEY! DOUBLE THE AMOUNT THAT'S ON THE TABLE!.. THEN WE'LL QUIT! WHAT D'YOU SAY?

OKEY-DOKE WITH ME... IT'S YOUR DEAL!

THIS IS WHAT I WAS WAITING FOR! QUICK, RUSTY!.. RUN OUT TO THE MAIN GATE AND GET THE POLICEMAN WHO'S STATIONED THERE!

HUH... POLICEMAN? OKAY!
