

Seattle paper says Mississippi site best

SEATTLE (AP) — The U.S. Department of Energy rejected a salt dome in Mississippi as a site candidate for the nation's first permanent repository for high-level nuclear waste even though its own rankings showed that area to be the most suitable place.

The Mississippi site is near Richton, about 100 miles southeast of Jackson, Miss., and 65 miles northwest of Mobile, Ala.

The Seattle Times reported in a copyright story in Tuesday's editions that the Richton site was the best site based on the DOE's analysis and the newspaper's own ranking with 31 criteria.

On May 28 the DOE announced three finalists under consideration for the repository, including the Hanford nuclear reservation in Eastern Washington, which was one of the two least desirable sites in the government's studies, the newspaper said. The other site was in southern Utah.

The others were Yucca Mountain, Nev., and Deaf Smith County, Texas. Eliminated were sites in Mississippi and Utah. The DOE also eliminated plans for a second repository.

A resolution that calls on the Reagan administration to resume the search for a second site or start the search for the first site again from the beginning was passed unanimously Tuesday by Western governors meeting this week in Colorado, said Tim Zenk, a spokesman for Washington Gov. Booth Gardner.

The Seattle Times report showed scientific rankings could not have been the prime consideration in narrowing the list of sites for the first repository to the three chosen. The DOE acknowledges that.

DOE spokesman Roger Gale said

the rankings were only a guideline and were "never meant to be the final determiner."

The rankings placed too much emphasis on cost and on the sites that were closest to the nation's nuclear reactors, which are located mainly in the East and South, Gale said.

Critics of the DOE, including Gerald Pollet of the Washington Public Interest Research Group, say the government put too much emphasis on sites that are easy to acquire.

The Texas site is farmland, and Hanford is already owned by the DOE. The government would have to move the town of Richton, population 1,205, to put the dump in Mississippi.

Gale said the department wanted to study three sites made up of three kinds of rock: basalt, volcanic tuff and salt. The sites in Mississippi, Texas and Utah are all salt sites. Hanford is a basalt site, and Nevada is volcanic tuff.

Although the Texas salt site rated as less desirable than Mississippi, it was chosen because it rated average more often than Mississippi.

For nuke dump

Mississippi had more No. 1 rankings than Texas, but it also ranked lower in some cases and had fewer average rankings, he said.

In the category of possible damage to the environment, Mississippi ranked fourth, and Hanford, which is already considered damaged land, ranked first. Mississippi also ranked after Hanford and Texas in acquirability.

Mississippi ranked high because the salt there is very dry, it would be easy to mine, it would cost less, it would be the safest, and it is nearest to most waste producers and not near hazardous industries, the Times said.

Texas got high marks for cost and for its protection from surface flooding.

In its study, the newspaper assigned five points for first place to one

Bids on renovation, roofs, band uniforms approved

Capital maintenance and improvement were the key issues in decisions made Tuesday by the Hereford Schools board of trustees as four bids on high school renovation work, one bid on major roof repair for two elementaries, and the purchase of band uniforms were approved.

Bids for renovation tasks on the high school office area were all awarded to local contractors.

Electrical Specialist won the wiring work with a low bid of $5,900. Vasek Service an Equipment will handle the mechanical work on the renovation due to a low bid of $12,986. Webster's will provide maroon carpet and gray tile for $4,719, a low bid which included both products.

The board chose Accents Unlimited, which had a bid difference of $110 above the low bidder for ceiling work, because of availability of the representative and familiarity with the work.

A decision on quarry tile to cover windows which will be lost in the renovation was tabled. Superintendent Harrell Holder noted that the bids of close to $9,000 for strictly cosmetics was too expensive. Holder suggested looking at another rock product which would cost about one-third that amount.

Immediate roof repair contracts for Tierra Blanca and West Central schools was awarded to Leaway for $137,926. The two-ply product application and gutterwork should be completed by Aug. 30.

A bid on 250 band uniforms from Fruhauf Uniforms in Wichita, Kan., was approximately $10,000 less than the board had estimated. At $270 each, the total price will be $67,720 to replace the current red uniforms with two-pant maroon and white outfits. Delivery will be in four to five months.

The HHS Band Boosters have agreed to help with the cost.

The board also approved contracts for several services from the Educational Service Center of Dist. 16 in Amarillo. Items of computer software use, media services, curriculum service, training seminars, Head

Band uniform bid lower than expected

Start and special ed programs were included in the package which is charged on an average daily attendance rate. Holder said the package would cost around $28,000, which is cheaper than contracting such services elsewhere.

Tax on autos will remain intact, by unanimous vote of the board.

Upon recommendation of Holder, Ken Helms' contract was amended to move him from the central administrative office to be the assistant principal at La Plata on a one-year contract.

The board also approved the resignations of Kelly Vasey, DeeAnn Clifton, Patrick Liles, Lisa Phillips, Virginia Phillips, Marcus Phillips, Sammie Henderson, Rhonda Henderson and Rhonda Johnson.

Hired were Debbie Criswell, science at Stanton Junior High; Leah Rucker, math, Stanton; Jan Metcalf, speech therapy, Aikman; Robert Rumph, band, La Plata; Johnny Catherine Rumph, elementary, subject to placement; Lynn Ann Gilbreath, coach, Stanton; Bill Binder, vo-ag, high school; Patricia Binder, English, Stanton; Margaret Valdez, elementary, Tierra Blanca; Lynette Butler, elementary, Tierra Blanca; Enrique (Henry) Perez Jr., coach/health, Stanton; Edward Burge, math, La Plata; Rene May, from halftime to fulltime hearing specialist, high school.

Stock plunge may be slowing

The stock market suffered more big losses in the second day of trading following Monday's record selloff, but there were some signs that the dizzying plunge may be slowing down.

After remaining down by nearly 30 points for much of Tuesday's session, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks trimmed some of its losses to close with an 18.27-point decline at 1,820.73.

That put the combined two-day loss at 80.14 points. A record 61.87-point drop — to 1,839 — was posted Monday, topping the previous record drop of 45.75 points June 9.

In the broader market Tuesday, about five stocks fell for each one that rose on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume totaled 174.06 million shares, against 138.23 million in the previous session.

Only a week ago, the Dow Jones industrials had closed at an all-time high of 1,909.03, which was about 33 percent higher than it was in late September, when the market began to rebound.

Tumbling stock prices also affected the credit markets Tuesday. The Treasury's 30-year bond, generally considered a trend-setting security, was down 1 point, or $10 for each $1,000 in face value, yielding 7.23 percent, up from 7.16 percent Monday.

In currency trading, the dollar, which bounced up and down in a narrow range throughout the trading day, ended lower against all major foreign currencies except the British pound.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

-The value of building permits issued by the nation's 200 largest cities rose to $55.1 billion in 1985, a 10 percent increase over the previous year, according to a Dun & Bradstreet Corp. report.

-The Conference Board reported that business executives remained fairly confident in the economy during the second quarter of this year, with half of those questioned expecting economic conditions to strengthen.

More than two-fifths thought business conditions had improved in the three months ended June 30. The survey by the business research group was conducted in May and early June.

-In Washington, yields on 52-week Treasury bills fell to 5.98 percent in Tuesday's auction, the lowest level since April, and down from 6.59 percent at the last auction June 5. It was the lowest since 5.94 percent on April 10.

Pros are people who do jobs well even when they don't feel like it.

A man returned home from a nearby farm with two large buckets of cow manure for his garden. "What's that for?" asked his 6-year-old son. "This is for the strawberries," said the father.

After staring at the manure for a minute, the boy asked, "Can I have mine with Cool Whip instead?"

At the recent Texas Press Association convention, we attended a program which outlined all the new laws requiring us to label, store and handle hazardous materials and chemicals used in the printing business. The OSHA regulations add up to more expense and more red tape and, again, many of the laws are an over-reaction to the problems.

The government wants us to warn printers and pressmen that drinking some of these chemicals could be hazardous to their health. We've been in the business 30-plus years and have never known this to happen. However, we've already conformed to the laws, compiled several books of records and information on chemicals used, and held meetings with employees to explain the rules. This paperwork was expensive, but the penalties for failure to comply are severe, starting at $500 per day.

Perot to fight education cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot says he will fight any legislative effort to cut back recent education improvements to lower the state budget deficit.

Perot said Tuesday he will be "working actively" to defend the education improvements when the Legislature meets in special session this summer to explore ways to cut the state's projected $2.3 billion deficit.

He said if lawmakers want to economize in public school funding, they should slice "junk" in athletic programs and vocational education.

"If you've got to cut, then cut in the right places," he told the Dallas Times Herald. "We're throwing money out the window on vocational education. We don't need any more AstroTurf. We don't need to pay coaches more than the median salary of teachers. "We can't get our priorities screwed around," said Perot. "There's a lot of soft stuff they can cut out."

Several lawmakers have mentioned the possibility of cutting back some of the reforms Perot helped push through the 1984 Legislature.

House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, said Monday the House may consider eliminating funding for the teacher career ladder, delaying class-size restrictions and lifting requirements for preschool programs for disadvantaged 4-year-olds.

Perot said he again would try to get a massive showing of public support to defend the programs. "We'll gear up and go at it again," he said.

Perot said that saving the special programs for disadvantaged 4-year-olds is particularly crucial.

Attorney claims victim chose prod

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A defense attorney in the trial of three men accused of a torture death claimed that a former drifter chose to endure the shocks of an electric cattle prod rather than leave his job at a Hill Country ranch.

Attorney Ray Bass made the claim Tuesday as he cross examined co-defendant Carlton Robert Caldwell, who was on the witness stand for the ninth day in a trial in its 11th week.

Bass represents Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33, who along with his 55-year-old father, Walter Sr., and Caldwell, 21, is charged with conspiracy in the March 1984 death of Anthony Bates.

They are accused in an organized crime indictment of luring hitchhikers to the Ellebrachts' ranch and forcing them into slavery. The indictment claimed Bates, a drifter from Alabama, was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod, and then his body was burned.

"He refused to quit the job and leave the ranch," Bass read from a letter Caldwell wrote to his attorney. "My men became very upset. They came to me and told me to fire Anthony or they were going to quit."

Bass asked Caldwell: "Didn't the men get together to ask Anthony Bates whether he wanted to leave or get shocked? Isn't that what happened?"

Foundation to offer scholarships

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — The collapse of oil prices has led to a gusher of a gift for students whose families have run into hardships in this petroleum-dependent West Texas city.

About 900 high school graduates have been offered the chance to attend a year of community college on scholarships offered by the Abell-Hanger Foundation of Midland.

The scholarships, available for every high school graduate in Midland County to attend Midland College, could total up to $600,000 if all of the students who graduated from the three Midland County high schools this year take advantage of the offer.

"So much of the news about Midland and the Permian Basin has been unfavorable and the foundation realized that many Midlanders wouldn't be in a position to pay college costs for this year's graduates," said Dr. Jess H. Parrish, Midland College president.

Parrish said he expected about half of the eligible students, from Midland High School, Midland Lee High School and Greenwood High School, to accept the offer.

School officials said the gift is especially appropriate because of economic woes that have hit the Permian Basin following the collapse of oil prices.

"This is a marvelous gift to the community in a time of economic hardship for many associated with, or affected by, the slowdown in the petroleum industry during the past year," Parrish said.

Derailment causes evacuation

MIAMISBURG, Ohio (AP) — Firefighters poured water and sand today on a burning, derailed tank car that spewed a poison cloud that blanketed parts of three cities, injuring at least 183 people and forcing 17,500 to flee their homes.

Many of the evacuees had returned home late Tuesday, but hundreds remained overnight in makeshift shelters after seven Baltimore & Ohio cars, including one carrying white phosphorus, derailed earlier in this Dayton suburb.

Fire officials said the phosphorus, a component of rat poison and weapons, had stopped burning, and the fire was under control but not out. There was no word on how soon people would be permitted to return home.

Firefighters have to cover the phosphorus with sand or dirt to prevent it from reigniting, said Miamisburg city planner Mike Grauwelman.

White phosphorus burns in contact with air at least 86 degrees Fahrenheit, said Pat Madigan of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency. It was about 90 degrees when the cars derailed.

"I heard the crash," said Ron Hinton, foreman at Karolton Envelope Co., about 200 yards away. "I looked out and saw all the smoke and flames coming out, so I just told everybody to shut their machines down and get out."

At least 183 people were treated at hospitals for symptoms that included shortness of breath, burning eyes and nausea. There were no reports of serious injuries, but hospital officials said at least 11 people were admitted, most of them with breathing problems that were aggravated by the fumes.

Probe comes amid strained relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that Israel illegally smuggled U.S. technology to build cluster bombs comes amid already strained relations between the two allies stemming from the discovery of an Israeli espionage ring in the United States.

The U.S. attorney's office in the District of Columbia is continuing its investigation of the Israeli spy network involving Jonathan Jay Pollard, the Navy counterintelligence analyst who pleaded guilty to espionage and implicated four Israelis as co-conspirators.

In the wake of that probe, the U.S. Customs Service and the Justice Department are investigating allegations that Israel tried to obtain technology from private contractors in the United States, Customs spokesman Dave Hoover said Tuesday night.

Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten refused to confirm or deny the existence of the investigation, and a call to the Israeli Embassy in Washington seeking comment was not returned late Tuesday.

Federal agents investigating the alleged smuggling of the bombs technology searched two companies in Iowa — Vector Corp. in Marion and Bexco International in Cedar Rapids — Hoover said in a telephone interview.

A search was planned for Assembly Machines Inc. in Erie, Pa., he said.

Vector Corp. makes equipment for compressing and coding medicine capsules, according to CBS News, which first reported the story, and to federal law enforcement officials. U.S. officials say the equipment can easily be converted to military use.

Protesters block intersections

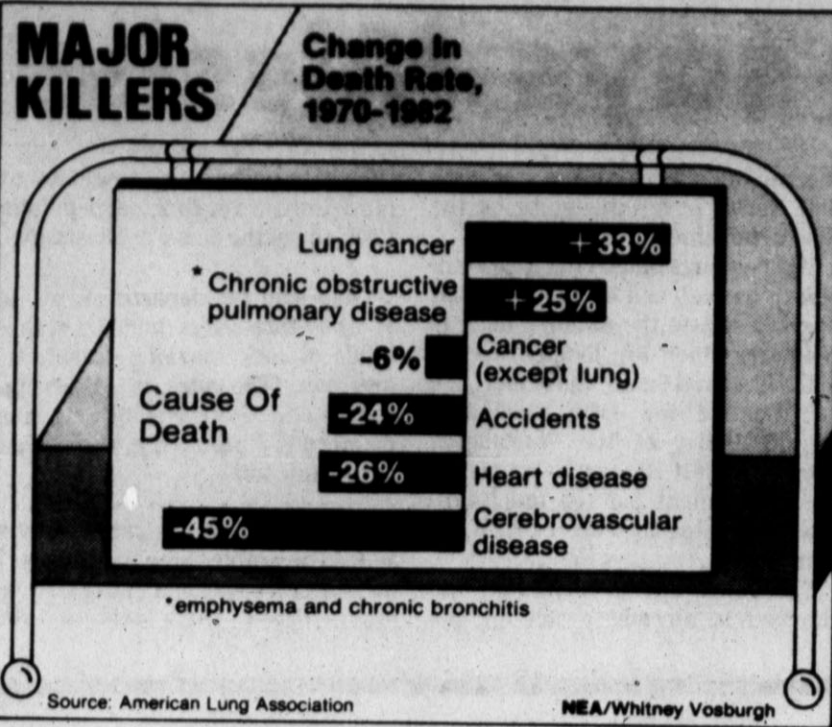

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — About 200 backers of the opposition National Action Party blocked street intersections in Chihuahua to protest alleged vote fraud in the state elections.

They said they also were demonstrating support for the week-long hunger strike of the city's mayor, who was fasting to draw attention to his call for democratic elections.

Those taking part in the Tuesday night protests parked their cars at 17 intersections in the central part of the state capital of Chihuahua in an hour-long demonstration.

It was the first major demonstration since Sunday's state elections for governor, 67 mayors and 14 legislators in the national Congress.

The ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), has declared its gubernatorial candidate, Fernando Baeza, the winner, although official results will not be released until Sunday.

where the money is, and that the public is not saddled with costs they should not bear.

The disposition to sue has become commonplace in our society. One reason is that the courts have thrown common sense out the window in too many cases. The examples are plentiful and many of them appear too bizarre to be true.

A burglar accidentally fell through a painted-over skylight while he was stealing lights from the roof of a public school. He sued the school district and recovered $200,000 in damages plus a continuing income for life.

In New York City, a man attempted suicide by jumping in front of a subway train. He was injured but did not die. He sued, claiming the driver should have put the brake on faster. The NY Transit Authority paid $650,000.

A man was hurt when a drunk driver crashed into the phone booth he was using. The California Supreme Court held that the manufacturer of the phone booth could be held liable for the man's injuries. (This is an example of the "deep pockets" theory). Obviously, many civil suits are justified but reforms are needed to take care of a large number that are not. The number of suits against hospitals and doctors is especially threatening, and now businesses are facing a serious problem in getting liability coverage.

Medical malpractice insurance has increased by 200 to 300 percent, according to the cost of health care. Costly tests are ordered, not because they are deemed necessary, but in order to protect doctors and hospitals from malpractice suits.

In the newspaper business, more than 90 percent of all libel suits are won by the publication. It is expensive to win, however, because of rising insurance costs and the attorney fees necessary to defend against a suit. One of the largest insurance companies in Texas has ceased to provide libel insurance.

It took 20 years for the scales to tip too far in one direction. We cannot wait another 20 years for the courts to do away with the excesses and inequities that exist in our civil justice system.

The Texas Legislature needs to address this issue and come up with reforms as soon as possible.

The totals were: Mississippi, 104 points; Nevada, 99.75; Texas, 86; Hanford, 73; and Utah, 70.75.

The government's more complex analysis, which took years to complete, was published in two parts. One was for sites judged best for short-term ease and safety of construction. Mississippi and Utah ranked first, followed by Texas, Nevada and Hanford.

The other was for the places judged best for storing radioactive wastes for 10,000 years. Nevada ranked first, and then Mississippi, Texas, Utah and Hanford.

In the government's study, Mississippi was most often the best site and Hanford was most often the worst.

"The only reason really to have Hanford on the short list, let's face it, is that there is a property up there that is not only federal but is also surrounded by people who are used to living with nuclear material," said Thor Brekke, a geologist who studied the Hanford site for the DOE. The 570-square-mile federal nuclear reservation employs many of the residents of the area.

Sulfite banned from salad bars

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is issuing regulations today banning the use of sulfite preservatives on fresh fruits and vegetables in restaurant salad bars, suspected in at least 13 deaths nationwide.

The regulations, which take effect in 30 days, remove six types of sulfite preservatives from FDA's list of food additives generally recognized as safe.

Adoption of the rules follows nearly two years of debate in Congress and within FDA and the scientific community on the possible dangers from sulfite preservatives, particularly those used on restaurant salad bars.

Sulfites have long been used to make fresh fruits and vegetables look more attractive. Sulfites keep lettuce from wilting, for example, and prevent apple slices from turning brown.

The Classroom Teachers Association announced that the Texas CTA would have a leadership conference July 24-26. Attending will be Aurora Dominguez, Catherine Cortez, Judy Bullard, Tricia Sims and Wanda Nall.

Hereford Educators Association will have its state convention in August, president Mary Hendrickson announced. She reported that three persons attended a recent conference with First Lady Linda Gayle White in Amarillo.

They are harmless for most people — but not to an estimated 500,000 sensitive people, mostly asthmatics, who can suffer an allergic reaction to the substances.

Most reactions are mild, resulting only in nausea, hives, diarrhea or shortness of breath. But severe reactions can send a person into shock and constrict the air passages, causing suffocation.

The National Restaurant Association and the Produce Marketing Association, in endorsing the proposal for a ban last year, said most restaurants have stopped using the preservatives because of the hazard.

"Salad bars have been associated with most of the serious problems, and the idea of posting signs in restaurants when sulfites have been added has not been universally accepted," FDA Commissioner Frank E. Young said in a statement Tuesday. "Thus, we believe we must ban the sulfites in this use."

Board members present for the meeting were Bud Patterson, Steve Coneway, Shirley Wilson and Kathy Moore. Absent were John Fuston, Bill Townsend and Jo Garcia.

Stores remove Accent containers

By DONNA GEHRKE Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston officials are collecting about 100,000 Accent flavor enhancer containers after a cyanide-tampering threat and are telling consumers not to use Accent purchased since June 25.

Some 3,300 stores in metropolitan Houston began removing the packages Tuesday after officials received an anonymous threat that six 4.5-ounce units had been poisoned, authorities said.

"It comes at a time when we are redesigning the package so that would not be possible," said Les Landes, spokesman for Pet Inc., the St. Louis-based producer. "It is truly ironic."

"All we want to do is get them off the shelves," said Anthony Whitehead, director of the Houston investigations office of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. "Then, we'll try sorting through to see if there's anything to it (the threat)."

No illnesses or tampered Accent packages had been reported late Tuesday as FDA officials began investigating with FBI and state officials, Whitehead said.

The threat was the second product tampering scare in Houston since March. A nationwide removal of Contac cold capsules, Teldrin allergy relief capsules and Dietac appetite suppressant capsules was ordered after authorities found contaminated capsules in Houston and Orlando, Fla. Edward Arlen Marks, 24, was arrested in Los Angeles in late May and charged in connection with the March capsule tampering.

Dixie heat wave cooks southern states

Associated Press

No relief was in sight today for Dixie after a four-day heat wave that sizzled much of the East, where an airliner sank into asphalt, firefighters dodged rocks to shut off hydrants and zookeepers put their polar bears on ice.

The National Weather Service said showers and thunderstorms were expected today from New England through the mid-Atlantic states and in the Ohio and mid-Mississippi valleys. The storms were expected to keep temperatures below 90 as far south as the Mason-Dixon Line, but three-digit readings were likely from North Carolina to Georgia.

"The temperatures are going to remain above normal, and it's going to stay very dry through this weekend," said forecaster Jim Curtis in Greer, S.C., which hit a record 101 degrees Tuesday.

Other records Tuesday included

Officials limited the Accent removal to Houston as an anonymous letter writer said he had tampered with the containers only in this metropolitan area, Whitehead said. The letter was postmarked July 3 with a Houston zip code, he said.

"Claims were made by the writer that he had poisoned some containers with cyanide and placed them on store shelves," according to a FDA written statement released Tuesday.

The design of the Accent package would allow someone to tamper with the product and return it to a store shelf undetected, Landes said. He said the company had already started redesigning the package when the anonymous letter arrived.

The company asked consumers in Fort Bend, Harris, Montgomery, Waller and Liberty counties who bought the product after June 25 to return it where bought for a refund.

"It's the responsible thing to do if there's a threat to the health of the people," Whitehead said.

Grocers and distributors in the Houston area have been advised by Pet Inc. to withdraw the product from sale and hold it pending instructions from the company regarding its disposal.

In a telephone interview with The Associated Press, Landes said the company chose the June 25 sale date as a refund deadline because of the July 3 postmark.

"We figured that that was an appropriate buffer or safeguard," he said. "As a safeguard we decided to include five counties in the area."

100 at Baltimore, Atlanta and Charleston, S.C., and 92 at Cape Hatteras, N.C.

South Carolina utilities reported record demand for electricity Tuesday, a day after similar reports in Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey and New York.

In Philadelphia, four days of 90-plus-degree temperatures ripened tons of garbage left on sidewalks during a municipal workers' strike.

"I can't do anything about the odor because I don't have anything for the odor," said Norris Newton, a sanitation department employee. "But I know it's going to get rough out here. That odor, especially with this heat, is going to make it rough."

Fifty of the 85 public swimming pools were open Tuesday, the most since the strike began last week. The water in the polar bear pool at the Philadelphia Zoo, however, wasn't cold enough to satisfy Coldlocks and Klondike, so zookeepers dumped 300 pounds of ice into it.

Slight relief came Tuesday from a weak cold front that dropped temperatures and humidity in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and the Midwest. New York City reached only 90, after two days at 98.

Still, there was a substantial increase Tuesday in heat-related calls to the city's Emergency Medical Services, although the exact number could not be determined, said spokesman John Kilcooley.

In nearby Jersey City, N.J., firefighters closing hydrants were pelted by rocks thrown by youths, although no arrests or injuries were reported.

"They don't want them shut off," said Fire Chief Louis Masters. "This could be a problem if there's an emergency."

Temperatures exceeded 90 degrees Tuesday for the fourth straight day in the Washington, D.C., area, including a record 99 at Dulles International Airport.

Reduce credit charges now

If you have large unpaid balances on your credit card accounts, now may be a good time to analyze your credit spending habits.

Why now? Family economics specialist Nancy Granovsky says that the tax reform proposals now in Congress call for eliminating the deduction for interest paid on credit cards, so it may be advisable to begin reducing interest expenses this year.

Another good reason for reducing credit expenses is the difference in interest rates for credit cards and for other forms of borrowing.

"Depending on the kind of charge card and where it was issued, consumers are paying annual percentage rates ranging from 12-13 percent to over 20 percent," she says. "Since home mortgage rates are in the 10 percent range, auto loans are somewhat less, and your savings dollars are earning no more than 6-8 percent, interest rates for credit cards seem high."

The Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist says the quickest way to reduce finance charges is to simply stop using credit cards until you've paid off the balances fully. Or you may decide to continue using credit cards, but only if you pay the balance in full each month.

"Families often wind up overextending themselves—and paying excessive finance charges—because they don't pay enough attention to how they're using credit cards," observes Granovsky.

She suggests entering each credit

ARTHRITIS ISN'T MINOR

ATLANTA (AP) — You can rarely pick up a magazine or watch a television program these days without seeing some medication advertised for the minor aches and pains of arthritis, says the Arthritis Foundation.

But, it says, many people with arthritis will tell you there's nothing minor about it. Arthritis often is a serious disorder which affects one in seven people in America. It changes a person's self-image, lifestyle and ability to work. It can cripple, deform and disable.

The foundation says people who think they have a form of arthritis should have their condition diagnosed and follow an individual treatment plan prescribed by a doctor.

purchase in a small notebook, similar to what you would do if writing a check. For example, if you use three credit cards regularly, keep a list with three columns. Each time you use a credit card, write down the amount and what it was for.

When the credit card bill comes, you'll be able to monitor your spending and make sure all the changes were legitimate ones.

You'll also be able to keep track of how much you're buying on credit, manage your cash flow more easily and therefore reduce your finance charges.

Ann Landers

Write for donor cards

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read this in USA Today. I hope you think it is worth running in your column.—R.J. in N.J.

DEAR R.J.: I do, indeed. Here it is.

My son was pronounced brain dead in January 1985. He was a healthy 23-year-old. The staff at a small hospital in Western Kentucky was most kind. The decision to donate the organs was made by myself and five children. I could not save my son, but because of his death, two people can now see thanks to cornea transplants. A man in his 50s in Kentucky has a new heart and can enjoy his family again. A man in his 30s in Texas and one in New York have kidneys that will enable them to live productive lives. In my son's death, five human beings were given the greatest gift of all, a life of independence and dignity.

I am so happy my son was able to be of service to so many people even though he was cut down in his prime. He was a giving sort of person and would have been the first to agree with our decision to donate his organs.

If I have any regrets, it is that I was not given the names of the people who received the organs. I was told only that the transplants were a success. I think of them often and wonder how they are doing. Knowing my son, I can smile, for if the recipients have a desire to travel, play the guitar, and go to Western Kentucky it is nothing to worry about. It's just something they inherited.

DEAR R.J.: Thank you for providing me with yet another opportunity to urge my readers to write to the Living Bank for their donor cards and instructions. The address: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Tx. 77265. Please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The man who invited eight different women to sleep in with him (under his parents' roof) reminded me of the family cat who drops its mice at the feet of its owner.

It seems to me the mother and father of this young fellow should try to understand why their son needs to bring his conquests home. Could he perhaps be letting them know that even though he was dumped by his college sweetheart, he is still considered desirable by others?

Instead of telling him to take his women friends elsewhere for romantic interludes, his parents should be building up his shattered self-esteem by telling him they think he is terrific and they are proud of him, no matter what.—NEW ORLEANS FAN

DEAR NEW O: Your point is well taken. Perhaps the parents should attempt to bolster the young man's sagging ego, not "instead of" but in addition to instructing him to take his female friends elsewhere for the night. If you recall, they were embarrassed by his shamelessness, and it is their house.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I felt a strong kinship to the woman who wrote to say how uncomfortable she felt when the hostess in the restaurant asked, "Just one of you?"

I, too, am "just one of me" and there are millions of others who are also alone. But what are widows and divorcees supposed to do? Hide? I hate to cook for just myself. Being out among others helps overcome the loneliness. I feel as if I am part of the living world when I am people-watching. I love to see folks chat, laugh and enjoy themselves. Please stand up for us, Ann. We are lonely a lot.—ANOTHER SINGLETON IN VANCOUVER

DEAR VAN: I did, but I'll do it again. Look! I'm standing! I'm standing!

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. BRAIN TRUST
NEW YORK (AP) — The country with the highest number of scientists and engineers in proportion to population is Switzerland, where 40 out of every 1,000 Swiss citizens are engaged in those occupations, according to a United Nations survey.
 The Soviet Union virtually equalled Switzerland with 39.6 per 1,000, the survey said, but those figures were inflated to include students.
 Japan was next highest with 35.3. The United States ranked near the bottom of the list with only 11 engineers and scientists per 1,000 of its citizens.

Several participate in special program

Several local students have participated in the annual summer program of the Gifted and Talented Institute held on the West Texas State University campus June 22-July 5.

They include Jill Reinauer, Jill Walser, Matthew Parker, Tommy Hyer, Ruben Gutierrez, all of Hereford, and Kelly Christie of Summerfield.

University faculty and staff members have led classes on mythology (Euripedes), math, science, art, creative dramatics, calligraphy, photography, and a variety of sports during the two-week session.

The participants are students who have been identified by their school districts as gifted/talented, or whose principals or counselors have recommended them as capable of high-level academic performance.

In addition to their classes, the students took an educational early-morning hike in Palo Duro Canyon with Carl Johnson, wrote and planned their own ecumenical church service, and saw the musical drama "Texas."

The Gifted and Talented Institute is partially funded by a grant from the Rockwell Fund. For further information, contact Mary Jane Reeves, director of the institute, at (806)656-2031.

JANIE RODRIGUEZ

Rodriguez honored

The National Secondary Education Council announced today that Janie G. Rodriguez has been named an Academic All-American.

Janie, who attends Stanton Junior High School, was nominated for this award by Coach Rundell. The honoree's name will appear in the Academic All-American Scholar Directory which is published nationally.

She is the daughter of Jose and Paula Rodriguez and is the granddaughter of Jesus and Lupe Garcia of Hereford.

The National Secondary Education Council selects Academic All-American scholars upon the exclusive recommendations of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the NSEC for other honors.

New session to begin

The Y's Way to a Healthy Back will start a new session on July 22 at the Hereford Y and is taking registration now for the class. Sessions will be on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8 p.m.

The pre-registration also calls for a Kraus-Weber test used to assess the strength and flexibility of posture muscles in the back. The six-step test helps determine which areas of the back's muscular system will need toning to prevent strain and stress.

The YMCA began the national program in 1976 after it became aware that a majority of back pain is caused from underexercise and overstress. Studies have shown that 85 percent of back patients have indicated less intensity and frequency of back pain after the course.

Susan Marnell, fitness director, has detailed information on the program.

Walling hits two-run homer

Astros score 4-1 victory over Expos

By The Associated Press

Denny Walling says he usually has trouble hitting Montreal relief ace Jeff Reardon.

But Walling had no trouble Tuesday night, hitting a home run over the right field wall in the eighth inning to help the Houston Astros to a 4-1 victory over the Expos.

"It was a bit of a surprise for me because Reardon's always gotten me out with men on base," Walling said. "He really owns me."

Reardon had a rare, ineffective outing after entering the game in relief of Jay Tibbs, 4-5, with the Expos leading 1-0 and runners on first and third.

Bill Doran's grounder to third scored the tying run. Ty Gainey singled in the go-ahead run before Walling followed with his fifth homer of the year, a shot over the right field wall.

"In that situation I was looking for a fastball on the first pitch and I was able to get the fat part of the bat on it," said Walling. "He's been pretty successful against me with the fastball because he usually jams me, but he didn't get it as far inside as he probably would have liked."

"I'm not happy about it because it's the strongest I felt in a week," Reardon said. "I take the blame for the homer, but the other two were just ground balls."

The four-run inning made a winner of Nolan Ryan, 5-6, who turned in his fourth consecutive strong start since coming off the disabled list on June 24.

The 39-year-old Ryan, who was sidelined because of an elbow strain, worked seven innings, allowing five hits and fanning nine. He walked just two batters.

That gave him 27 strikeouts in the 23 innings he has pitched since returning, a span in which his earned run average is 1.57.

"When I went on the disabled list, a lot of people said I wouldn't be back," Ryan said. "They looked at my age and made some assumptions. But I don't go by my age, I go by how I feel."

Ryan, working on only three days rest, obviously felt well, matching Tibbs in a pitcher's duel until the Expos opened the scoring in the sixth inning.

George Wright led off with a bloop double that dropped on the left-field line and moved to third on Andre Dawson's single to center. Hubie Brooks then fouled off several pitches before lifting a fly ball to centre deep enough to score Wright.

"That was a real good at-bat for Hubie," said Expos manager Buck Rodgers. "But the way Ryan was going, we were only going to beat him 1-0."

Charlie Kerfeld finished the game for the Astros to record his third save.

In other NL games, Cincinnati edged New York 5-4; Philadelphia swamped Atlanta 8-2; St. Louis beat Los Angeles 1-0; San Diego whipped Pittsburgh 4-2 and Chicago turned back San Francisco 4-1.

Reds 5, Mets 4

After hitting into two double plays and also striking out with the bases loaded, Buddy Bell had only one thought in mind when he came to bat in the ninth with a man on first and his Cincinnati team down by two runs.

"I was just trying not to hit into a double play," he said.

This time, he sent the ball over the left-field fence for a home run to tie the game and set up a 10th-inning rally capped by Tony Perez's RBI single that gave the Reds a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night.

"I've been in this game a long time," said Bell, who connected for his fifth homer following a leadoff single by Dave Concepcion. "I'll tell you one thing, it was nice to hit that home run."

It was the first time after 47 games this season that the National League East-leading Mets had lost with a lead in the ninth inning. It was also the seventh victory in nine games for the revitalized Reds.

Before hitting his game-tying homer off Mets relief ace Jesse Orosco, Bell had stranded seven runners in his first three plate appearances.

Parker led off the tenth with a ground-rule double on the first pitch from Roger McDowell, 7-2, who relieved to start the inning. Parker moved to third on Eric Davis' tapper and Perez followed with a ground ball past the Mets' drawn-in infield into center field.

John Franco, 3-4 pitched two scoreless innings for the victory, the Reds' second straight over the Mets. Phillies 8, Braves 2

Mike Schmidt broke out of a slump with a two-run homer and rookie Bruce Ruffin pitched an eight-hitter to lead Philadelphia over Atlanta.

Schmidt was 0-for-22 before hitting his 475th career home run in the fourth, tying Stan Musial and Willie Stargell for 15th place on the all-time list.

Rick Mahler, 10-7, was the loser as the Braves dropped their fifth straight game.

Cardinals 1, Dodgers 0

Tim Conroy and Ricky Horton combined on a five-hitter and Mike Lavalliere broke a scoreless tie with a run-scoring single in the top of the seventh inning to lead St. Louis over Los Angeles.

Conroy, 3-3, whom the Cardinals obtained from the Oakland A's in an off-season deal for Joaquin Andujar, yielded three hits and struck out six in six innings. It was his first start for St. Louis since May 25, the day before he went on the disabled list with a sore left shoulder.

Padres 4, Pirates 2

Tony Gwynn hit a three-run homer to cap a four-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning, leading San Diego over Pittsburgh.

Gwynn, snapping an 0-for-12 streak, connected on a 2-0 pitch off Pirate left-hander Larry McWilliams, who had just entered the game in relief of Rick Reuschel, 4-10.

San Diego starter LaMarr Hoyt, 4-4, worked eight innings, allowing both Pirate runs and giving up eight hits. Craig Lefferts notched his second save by setting down the Pirates in the ninth.

Cubs 4, Giants 1

Shawon Driston homered and drove in two runs in support of Dennis Eckersley's six-hit pitching as Chicago defeated San Francisco.

Eckersley, 3-5, walked none and struck out six while posting the 100th complete game of his career and first of the season. San Francisco right-hander Mike Krukow's record dropped to 10-5.

Rangers rebound to defeat Yankees, 6-1

By The Associated Press

To Ranger manager Bobby Valentine's way of thinking, the mark of a champion is his ability to get off the deck and inflict damage on the opponent.

"The Rangers have done that all year," Valentine said Tuesday night after the Rangers beat the New York Yankees 6-1 behind left-hander Mike Mason's complete-game 5-hitter.

The victory came on the heels of Monday night's 14-3 trouncing at the hands of the Yankees.

"I looked at last night's loss as just another mark in the 'L' column," said Valentine, "and I think the team felt the same way.

"So many times this season, we've taken a pretty good beating and come back the very next game with a big victory."

Mason, 6-2, had his task made easier when the Rangers jumped on Yankee rookie left-hander Alfonso Pulido, 1-1, for three runs in the first and two more in the second.

First baseman Pete O'Brien hit a 2-run homer, his 11th, in the first, and

Pro baseball

set in Vernon

A professional baseball tryout camp has been scheduled at Vernon Regional Junior College in Vernon on Saturday and Sunday.

The Philadelphia Phillies of the National League will hold the tryout camp at the baseball field on the college campus.

Also, since Vernon Regional Junior College will be fielding its first baseball team this fall, the tryout camps gives prospective college students a chance to be watched by the college coaches.

Danny Watkins, head baseball coach at Vernon Regional Junior College, said players over 16 years of age may participate in the camp. The tryout camp starts at 8:30 a.m. both days.

Athletes are asked to bring their own spikes, cap, workout clothes, and glove, but no personal equipment.

For more information on the camp, contact Watkins at (817) 552-6291, ext. 283.

Oddibe McDowell added a 2-run shot in the second, his 13th of the year.

Both are left-handed hitters.

"Pulido has a lot of trouble with left-handed hitters," said New York manager Lou Piniella, who could safely say the same thing about the whole Yankee team.

The Yankees are 10-19 against southpaws this season and 36-19 against right-handers.

"Well, we haven't beaten a left-handed pitcher for quite a while now," added Piniella, whose Yanks dropped to eight games behind Boston in the American League East race. "I'm not sure what I can do. I've tried about every combination possible."

Mason, beating the Yankees for the second time this season, retired the first nine batters he faced before Rickey Henderson's triple and a throwing error gave New York its only run in the fourth.

"Mike Mason was great," said Valentine. "That was almost a perfect performance. First and third and none out in the seventh and he got out of it. That's pretty good pitching."

After working out of mild jams in the middle innings, Mason retired the last nine batters in the game to record his second complete game in 14 outings.

"I was a little keyed up for tonight's game after what happened last night," said Mason. "Any time you lose a game like that, you get motivated to come out and try to do the same thing to them the next day."

"Tom House (Texas pitching coach) told me I was throwing my head to the side on my delivery," said Mason. "He told me to throw my cap at my leading foot and I've been doing that the last couple of games. It's a lot easier on my arm and it makes a difference between going six innings and going nine innings."

A crowd of 23,652 pushed the Rangers' home attendance over the million mark after 44 dates, the earliest the team has topped that mark in its 15 years in Texas.

In other AL games, it was California 14, Milwaukee 3; Boston 8, Oakland 7; Baltimore 8, Kansas City 4 in 13 innings; Chicago 6, Cleveland 2; Seattle 8, Toronto 5; Detroit 5, Minnesota 1.

Angels 14, Brewers 3

John Candelaria arrived in California last Aug. 2 and almost pitched the Angels to the American League West Division title. This time, he has come to the rescue almost a month earlier.

The veteran left-hander was acquired in a six-player trade with Pittsburgh last summer and went 7-3 as the Angels finished one game behind

Kansas City. But after a two-inning, four-run stint against Seattle on April 9, he was sidelined with a sore elbow which required surgery and a rehabilitation trip to the minors.

The Candy Man came back Tuesday night and pitched five scoreless innings in California's 14-3 rout of the Milwaukee Brewers, which included George Hendrick's grand slam and home runs by Rick Burleson, Bobby Grich and Wally Joyner.

Catcher Bob Boone said Candelaria looked about the same as he did when he came to the Angels last summer.

"John made some good pitches when he had to. He had a good, solid, quality outing. I expected that from him," Boone said.

By winning, the Angels remained one-half game ahead of Texas.

Leading 1-0, the Angels erupted for six runs in the fifth inning against Milwaukee rookie Juan Nieves, who had gone 36 innings without giving up a homer.

Red Sox 8, A's 7

Bill Buckner capped a five-run sixth-inning rally with a three-run double and Rich Gedman and Rey Quinones also had RBI doubles in the inning as Boston beat Oakland and moved eight games ahead of New York in the AL East. Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 11-6, allowed four runs, two unearned, in six innings before needing help from Bob Stanley and Steve Crawford. Orioles 8, Royals 4

Two Baltimore runners scored on Kansas City shortstop Greg Pryor's 13th-inning throwing error and Juan Bonilla added a two-run single as the Orioles dealt the floundering world champion Royals their 11th consecutive defeat.

Tigers 5, Twins 1

Detroit's Kirk Gibson, Lance Parrish and Darrell Evans hit consecutive fourth-inning home runs off Bert Blyleven, who has surrendered 30 homers — 13 short of Pedro Ramos' 29-year-old AL mark and 15 shy of Robin Roberts' 30-year-old major-league record.

Detroit rookie Eric King allowed four hits — all doubles — in 8 2-3 innings and tied a major-league record for a pitcher in a nine-inning game with six putouts. He shares the record with Blyleven, who had six putouts on June 24, 1984.

White Sox 6, Indians 2

Harold Baines hit a three-run homer three batters after a solo shot by Tim Lulett in the fifth inning while Neil Allen scattered five hits through eight innings as the White Sox won their third straight game and 11th in 15 games under Manager Jim Fregosi.

Mariners 8, Blue Jays 5

Seattle's John Moses and Jim Presley had two-run singles in a six-run second inning.

Mark Huisman, who scattered five hits over 4 1-3 innings of relief, was the winning pitcher and Matt Young, the third Seattle pitcher, went 2-2-3 innings for his eighth save.

Strikeout ace Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians walked 208 batters in the 1938 campaign to set a record.

Although he won only 150 games during his big league career, Dizzy Dean was named to the Hall of Fame in 1953.

Kiki Cuyler, who is in the Baseball Hall of Fame, made 10 straight hits during one stretch of the 1925 season with Pittsburgh.

Checklist pinpoints problems

So you think your house or apartment is electrically safe, but is it? Safety experts at the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission offer this quick-and-easy checklist of some major electrical hazards to look for in your home:

-Has any electrical product shocked you lately? If so, stop using the product and have it inspected at an electrical repair shop or appliance service center; the next shock could be far worse if you continue to use the product.

-Are countertop electrical outlets within six feet of the kitchen sink proected by a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI)? Probably not, says CPSC, in which case you could be electrocuted by means of a number of product-related accidents. For example, if an electrical appliance fell into a sink of water and the consumer instinctively reached into the water to remove the product, the consumer could probably be electrocuted, even if the switch were off. However, if the circuit were protected by a GFCI, the power would be shut off before serious harm came to the consumer. The GFCI monitors electricity flowing in the circuit to sense any loss of current, then switches off the power quickly if current is escaping from the circuit. For any circuit or outlet which may pose a risk of electrocution, a qualified electrical repairman should install the GFCI's.

-Are all bathroom outlets protected by GFCI's? If your home was built before 1975, CPSC says the outlets probably do not have GFCI protection. Since then, new homes wired according to the National Electrical Code are supposed to have GFCI protection on all bathroom circuits, plus garage and outdoor circuits. However, not all newer homes have these GFCI's. Find out if your home has them. If you home does not have GFCI protection on these lines, this protection can be added by a qualified installer.

-Do you always connect the grounding system when you use a third wire grounded electric appliance, one with a three-prong plug? If you don't you lose shock protection. To reduce the risk of shock when using an extension cord, be sure it is three-wire. If your outlets do not accept a three-prong plug, be sure to use an adapter and connect its ground terminal to the screw of the faceplate. Double-insulated products do not require the three-wire cord and may be used with two-wire extension cords.

Consumers may obtain a free copy of the detailed electrical safety checklist in English or Spanish by writing Electrical Safety, Washington, D.C. 20207, or by calling the agency's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772. A slow-play disc record of the checklist is also available for the blind.

HIGH COMPRESSION
LEONIA, N.J. (AP) — One reason high-compression engines began disappearing from use in cars manufactured in the United States was the introduction of unleaded gasoline in the late 1960s.

Unleaded gas is considered a "lean" mixture of fuel unsuitable for the old, high-performance engines which typically required a richer mixture of fuel.

Jaguar Cars produces the 12-cylinder XJ-S production car.

Frostbite has lasting effects

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.
DEAR DR. GOTT — My son's hands and feet were severely frostbitten during training at Army Ranger School, and he spent four weeks recovering in their version of a hospital. He's now stationed in the DMZ in Korea. Is there some kind of medication he can take to reduce his chances of getting frostbite again?
DEAR READER — Frostbite is tissue damage due to thermal (freezing) injury. There is no medicine to prevent it. When an extremity has been frostbitten, the affected portions undergo profound changes: capillaries, skin and subcutaneous structures are destroyed. Of course, with time, new tissue grows back, but it is not as thermal-resistant as the original. Therefore, your son will have to take extra precautions in cold weather, because his hands and feet will be exceptionally sensitive to further cold injury.
DEAR DR. GOTT — My brother has a problem for which he's not gotten a satisfactory explanation from his doctor. If he lifts anything heavier than 20 pounds, he gets intestinal bleeding. The doctor says his intestinal blood vessels have ruptured and there's nothing that can be done. Do you agree?
DEAR READER — Such a sequence of events would indeed be unusual. Sometimes, when people strain while lifting heavy objects, the increased abdominal pressure can cause a sudden surge of blood through the intestinal veins. If there is a malformed vein, it might rupture or leak blood under these circumstances.
 Based on the information you have given me, I cannot agree or disagree with the doctor. Twenty pounds is pretty light, however, so I'd want to know the location of your brother's bleeding, in the hope that the offending vein could be cauterized or removed to prevent more serious future bleeding that could occur if your brother were to strain in other ways — such as on the toilet, for instance. Using special tests, a gastroenterologist might be able to define the precise source of the bleeding and offer treatment.
DEAR DR. GOTT — I live in Arizona, but go back to New York City every December. Each time I'm there during cold weather, I get an awful itch and break out in hives. What can I do to prevent this?
DEAR READER — There are lots of things in New York City air that could cause you to itch. In your case, I suspect that the most probable explanation is that you are especially sensitive to the cold weather. Short of avoiding the city altogether, I think your best bet would be to dress warmly and wear full-length cotton long-johns, in case you are allergic to long-sleeved woolen garments.
DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a sweet taste in my mouth all the time. Blood tests appear normal. My doctor isn't concerned. Should I be?
DEAR READER — Not necessarily. But I'd advise you to see a dentist. Dental conditions, including cavities or denture problems, may cause both sweet and foul tastes in the mouth.

Rickover dead at 86

By NORMAN BLACK AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, a Russian immigrant who served his adopted country by ushering in the age of the nuclear Navy, will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery, the Navy says. Funeral arrangements were still incomplete late Tuesday, but the Navy said Rickover, known widely as the "father of the nuclear Navy," would be interred at the military cemetery in a private ceremony as requested by his family, probably on Thursday or Friday.

outpouring of condolences and plaudits by officials throughout the government, many of whom had tangled repeatedly with the irascible military man before he stepped down as head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program four years ago.

"It is a most incredible and remarkable record of American accomplishment for an immigrant, born abroad in the Soviet Union, to become this father not only of the nuclear Navy but also the standards of safe nuclear power," said Navy Secretary John F. Lehman, who played a role in President Reagan's decision to force Rickover into retirement in 1982.

Reagan saluted Rickover as a man of peace and said "it was particularly poignant" that his death followed the celebration of the achievements of immigrants that highlighted the Fourth of July weekend.

Rickover, an electrical engineer by training who was renowned for his autocratic, crusty manner and sharp intellect, died quietly Tuesday at his home in suburban Arlington, Va., with his wife by his side, the Pentagon said. The retired admiral had been in ill health since suffering a debilitating stroke in July 1985.

He built what amounted to his own empire — a navy within the Navy — with ultimately nearly half the Navy's combat ships becoming nuclear-powered since the commissioning in 1954 of the submarine Nautilus.

In the process, he carefully courted Congress and managed to remain on active duty for more than 63 years, serving 13 presidencies.

Rickover was a fastidious man of small physical stature who was as demanding of himself as he was of others, working long hours and suffering neither fools nor superiors lightly. In remarks at a dinner saluting his career in 1983, he told the crowd: "I did what I wanted and was paid well for my work. And I obeyed all orders that I agreed with."

Long before Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger launched his crackdown on errant defense contractors, Rickover was castigating Navy contractors and demanding investigations of their billing practices.

GOD HAS A PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE TOO!

"As I was on the road, nearing Damascus" (Paul continued), "suddenly about noon a very bright light from heaven shone around me. And I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?'"

"Who is it speaking to me, sir?" I asked. And He replied, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, the one you are persecuting." The men with me saw the light but didn't understand what was said.

"And I said, 'What shall I do, Lord?' and the Lord told me, 'Get up and go into Damascus, and there you will be told what awaits you in the years ahead.'"

"I was blinded by the intense light, and had to be led into Damascus by my companions. There a man named Ananias, as godly a man as you could find for obeying the law, and well thought of by all the Jews of Damascus, came to me, and standing beside me said, 'Brother Saul, receive your sight!' And that very hour I could see him!"

"Then he told me, 'The God of our fathers has chosen you to know His will and to see the Messiah and hear Him speak. You are to take His message everywhere, telling what you have seen and heard. And now, why delay? Go and be baptized, and be cleansed from your sins, calling on the name of the Lord.'"
