Nuke dump memos fan political fire

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handful of newly released Energy Department memos is fanning a controversy over whether the agency is playing politics with its high-level radioactive waste dump program.

The documents, released Thursday by Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., chairman of an Energy subcommittee, indicate DOE officials weighed political factors at length before deciding on May 28 to indefinitely postpone selection of a waste site east of the Rocky Mountains.

"We found the smoking gun," Markey declared in a statement accompanying the 25 pages of memos. "These documents show that the department put politics first, not science, in making its decisions."

The DOE already has recommended that a first high-level nuclear waste dump site be located in the Yucca Mountains of Nevada, Deaf Smith County of Texas, or near Hanford, Washington. Western politicians, including at least three running for the Senate, have accused the department of halting the second-site program to escape intense pressure from the seven Eastern states in which potential sites are located.

DOE officials have denied the charge and continued to do so Thursday after the memos were released.

Costs, staff morale and utility attitudes were among the "pros" and "cons" cited in discussions of eight options in the DOE memos, but political considerations were the most prominent.

Typical was a May 13 memo that listed "immediate political relief" from second-round states as the first advantage of terminating the second-site program outright. The first three disadvantages were "obvious political ploy," "severe political backlash from 1st repository states," and "graphically demonstrates success mode of resistance."

Technical and geological considerations are not mentioned anywhere.

The April 30 notes also include "pro" and "con" considerations in terminating the search for an Eastern site.

No. 1 in the "pro" column was "immediate political relief" from the nine Eastern states under consideration for the second repository.

At the top of the "con" list was the notation: "obvious political ploy," followed by "No. 2, severe political backlash from first repository states (Washington, Nevada and Texas)."

The notes also add, "It would appear that immediately terminating (the search for a second site) would give a great deal of political benefit to DOE via (the Eastern states)."

However, nuclear waste director Ben Rusche said the memos were discussed in the context of scheduling and were not the only basis for the decision. He said they were written by field staffers who had just conducted 80 public hearings that attracted thousands of people rather than the 50 or 100 that had been expected.

"They didn't know anything about partisan politics. They were talking about political in terms of intense public reaction," Rusche said in an interview.

Earlier Thursday, Energy Secretary John Herrington said the DOE had decided to stop studying potential Eastern sites because projections of nuclear waste had declined and the need for a second site was questionable.

Under questioning by the House Interior Committee, he denied that the department had been secretive or mishandled selection of first-site candidates in Washington, Texas and Nevada. "I'm here today to defend that decision," he said. "We have delivered a viable first repository decision."

Herrington said the second-site program is continuing with studies of crystalline rock formations — the type found at the Eastern candidate sites — in Canada, Switzerland and Sweden. Only site-specific work has been discontinued, he said.

But several congressmen said the DOE had violated the 1982 Nuclear Waste Policy Act by putting off the site studies.

Herrington said DOE lawyers had advised him the action was not illegal. He conceded under questioning that the act requires his department to nominate five Eastern sites and recommend three by July 1, 1989. But he added, "We don't expect to (do so) if Congress approves our revised mission."

"I'm going to send a revised mission statement to my bank about my overdraft," Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., responded sarcastically.

Weaver, a Senate candidate, failed last week to win House approval for an amendment cutting off funds for the nuclear waste program.

"I consider the divide-and-conquer strategy by the administration very clever," he told Herrington. "The Easterners all thought you had eliminated them and they wanted to keep the repository in the West."

Interior Chairman Morris Udall, D-Ariz., alleged that "the pressure for action on a Senate seat overwhelmed the administration's ability to think clearly" when it decided to derail the second-site process. He noted that no second-round states — not North Carolina nor any other state — "are really off the hook at this point."

North Carolina Republican James Broyhill, a representative who was appointed to finish the term of the late Sen. John East, is in a tough Senate race against former Gov. Terry Sanford. Two of the possible Eastern dump sites are located in North Carolina.

Middlemen may make megabucks with cotton inventory payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of cotton merchants, textile mills and cooperatives become eligible today for federal subsidies that in some cases may total tens of millions of dollars, say government and industry sources.

The payments are part of a new U.S. agriculture strategy that calls for reversing years of high price supports, dramatically cutting prices to make American crops more competitive in world markets.

Under the 1985 farm law, anyone holding "free stocks" — bales of old-crop cotton unencumbered by government loans — will be entitled, beginning today, to one-time "inventory protection" payments of about $200 for each 500-pound bale.

Holders of eligible cotton will receive government commodity certificates that can be sold or exchanged for cotton now in government stocks.

Agriculture Department and industry estimates put the amount of eligible cotton spread across the country at 2.5 million to 3 million bales, worth $500 million to $600 million to those holding the stocks.

The amount of cotton held by any mill or merchant is not yet known and is a closely held secret because of competitive considerations. But industry observers say they expect cotton merchants in Memphis, Tenn., where many of the largest merchants are based, to receive some of the heaviest federal subsidies.

Merchants, mills, cooperatives eligible today

"It wouldn't surprise me if some of them don't have 250,000 bales," said one veteran industry watcher, who spoke on condition he not be identified. At $200 a bale, that could mean payments of up to $50 million to some cotton middlemen.

Billy Dunavant, a Memphis merchant who is among the world's largest purveyors of cotton, declined to talk specifically about how much he stands to collect. But he acknowledged that 250,000 bales is "in the ballpark."

"We've got tremendous shipments to meet in August and September, and we've got to be in a position to roll," he said.

"Yes, it's going to be costly for the American government," Dunavant added. "But 90 percent of the cotton grown in the world is grown under a subsidy. We've got to do this if we're going to compete." He said the entire cotton industry, from farmer to textile mill, will benefit from higher sales.

McCathern reports good reception through district

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

About 120 persons attended a $50-a-plate banquet Thursday night to help kick off Gerald McCathern's general election campaign. The Hereford Democrat is hoping to unseat Republican Larry Combest as congressman from the 19th District.

McCathern told supporters at the country club event that he had received "tremendous receptions" around the district and that voters were unhappy with the "ineffective representation" of Combest.

"This is not my campaign. I'm not good at asking for contributions. This is a campaign for all of us, and I am confident that we can win," McCathern said Thursday night.

Denzil Pulliam, emcee for the fund-raiser dinner, told the audience that while the dinner was a kick off for McCathern's general election campaign, "it is also a party to announce the retirement of Larry Combest."

Pulliam said campaign workers have analyzed the race and that the key to victory lies in the small towns and rural areas of the district. He explained that 40 percent of the vote is in Lubbock, 20 percent in Odessa and the other 40 percent in the rest of the district.

"We think we can beat Combest in Lubbock and Odessa, but even if we don't we can still win with strong support in the other parts of the district," Pulliam said. "Our main task is to encourage people to vote and to convince the big-city Democrats that McCathern is a winner."

McCathern was introduced at the banquet by Ralph Roming, senior member of the Texas Water Commission. Roming, who farmed in the Bovina area for more than 28 years, is helping McCathern's campaign while on his vacation.

McCathern claimed that his opponent "thinks he can fool all the people all the time, but his solutions to the district's problems have been to close the barn door after the horse has already escaped."

McCathern added that it was "a sad fact that the U.S. is now importing more agricultural commodities than we are exporting—the first time it has happened since the 1950s. The Combest-supported farm bill has devastated our rural economy while at the same time increasing program costs from $9 billion in 1985 to almost $30 billion in 1986."

Edwin Axe, campaign treasurer, reported the Committee to Elect Gerald McCathern to Congress had raised about $37,000 for the primary and it was all spent in the successful campaign. He said the committee has a goal of raising at least $90,000 for the general election campaign.

Romeo's A Lady's Bird

Romeo, a Mexican Double-Yellow Amazon parrot, is a lady's bird. He's taken his owner, Wanda Saul, for his mate and will attack men who come near. This special parrot is also bilingual. He speaks in English and Spanish in four voice range tones.

Bird lover's pets colorful, talkative

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

Wanda Saul is an avid birdwatcher. She watches about 200 of them every day—in her home.

Parrots, conures, red-rump parakeets, lovebirds, red crested Brazilian cardinals, budgies, and other species of birds dot cages in a built-on room of their own.

Feeding and watering every night, Saul admits, "Birds are time consuming. They're more time consuming than babies and each one is just as delicate as a baby."

Saul said the parents don't like for anyone to mess with their babies and the babies stay in their nesting boxes for about a month until they come out.

The baby birds then stay at the bottom of the cage for about two weeks, depending upon the bird, until the mother bird teaches them to crack seeds.

According to Saul, different birds have 46 different nesting boxes. "All straight beak birds have to have wicker nests such as the finches and some birds, such as the cockatiels, your Amazons, lovebirds, budgies, parakeets, conures— all your hook bill birds will eat the wicker baskets up, so we make wood nesting boxes for these," she explained.

Saul also said one has to have the right kind of food to feed all these different birds. Saul and her husband mix a 100 pounds of seed at a time in a cement mixer.

"It lasts about a month of feeding and then it's time to do it again," said Saul.

Saul uses 12 different ingredients that she mixes for all birds. The mixture for hook bills includes canary seed, white millet, old groats, all bought in 50-lb. bags, and mixed with powdered milk, powdered butter-milk, and acidophilus, (a beneficial bacteria which keeps the birds from going into shock when feeding out babies), powdered lime, safflower oil and water mixed with Caro syrup.

"You also mix a good powdered vitamin and put in powdered plaster of paris for a hard shell," Saul said. She explained that chickens have a shell-hardener in their feed, and for the tropical birds one has to add something or the bird will come up soft-shelled.

For the straight beak birds, Saul uses the same ingredients but in-

At McCathern Fund-Raiser

Gerald McCathern was honored at a fund-raiser banquet Thursday night at Hereford Country Club. The Hereford Democrat is launching his general election campaign to seek election to Congress from this district. He is shown visiting with some of the supporters who attended the event Thursday night.

Ann Landers

'Play it straight'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in a large city in New Jersey and recently my niece came to visit me for two weeks. She is 18.

"Laura" went back home to a small town in the Midwest and decided she hates it there, loves the big city and is going to move to New Jersey, go to college here and STAY WITH ME.

At my age (50) I don't think I can tolerate a teenage "live-in." I never had children, am a widow and enjoy being alone. Also, I am not terribly well off financially. I had no idea how much teenagers eat and I could not possibly ask her parents for room and board.

How can I turn down Laura gracefully? Should I say it is best for an 18-year-old girl to attend a local college and live at home for a year or two?—A CORNERED AUNT IN N.J.

DEAR CORN: Play it straight or you might find yourself in the same spot "in a year or two." Tell Laura's parents that you aren't emotionally geared to having a teenager around for a long stretch of time and if she insists on going to school in New Jersey she will have to live in a dorm.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: While riding on an errand, I saw on the side of the road a scraggly poodle clomping along with his rear foot caught in a cracked plastic pan. I stopped to help him. When I freed his foot, I got back into my car expecting him to trot off happily, but he just stood there, a look of anguish and pain in his big brown eyes.

Again I got out of the car and felt for his collar. It was so tight it wouldn't budge, so I took out my knife and managed to get under it.

I expected the collar to drop, but it didn't. I felt under his neck and it was all slime. The poor poodle had scratched open this throat to relieve the pressure because the flesh had grown around the collar.

When I slid the collar out of the hole in his neck he licked my hands and then my face. When I got back into my car and glanced back the little dog just stood there looking grateful.

The message: Please, folks, check your animal collars, flea or otherwise. Pets grow fast.—DOG LOVER

IN BAY SHORE, N.Y.

DEAR LOVER: Thank you for alerting dog owners everywhere to this awful hazard.

I'm sure, because of you, thousands of collars will be checked today and I'll bet there will be plenty that need to be loosened.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I think you will agree that circumstances often alter a situation. Please tell me if I did anything wrong.

I recently asked that the family return a gift I'd given to a lifetime friend before her death by suicide. She was an alcoholic whose family gave her no help—only criticism.

The two pieces of Steuben glass were things she enjoyed very much the afternoon I gave them to her. I wanted to remember our last happy time together. And to be perfectly honest, I did not want her awful family to have these lovely pieces. Do you think I acted in a calculating, crass and vulgar manner?—JUST CHECKING

DEAR CHECK: Perhaps not "calculating," but certainly crass and vulgar.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious—lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Local Church News

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Dr. Weldon Butler, former pastor of First United Methodist Church, will be filling the pulpit Sunday in the absence of Pastor Steve McElroy. Dr. Butler served the church from Sept. 19, 1982 until his retirement June 8, 1986. Dr. Butler and his wife Jeanne now reside in Lubbock.

Dr. Butler will be reading from scripture, Matthew 6:24-23 and his sermon title for the morning worship service will be "Consider the Lilies."

Lesley Woodard, soprano, will be singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by William B. Bradbury as special music for the service.

The United Methodist Women will be hosting the Annual Silver Tea from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday in the newly redecorated Ward Parlor. This is a church-wide event and all women are invited to the tea. Offerings received at the tea will be used to replenish the church kitchen in fellowship hall.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The Rev. Bruce Kochsmeier's sermon for the 10:30 a.m. Sunday worship service is "Voices from the Wilderness". The scripture lesson is Philippians 4:10-13.

"Ordering Your Private World" continues this week at 7 p.m. Wednesday, at 138 Liveoak. If things in your life need a renewed inner peace and a practical perspective on putting faith into action, then this is the place for you.

"Scripture for Lunch Bunch" meets Wednesday at noon in the small fellowship hall to discuss the scripture for the following Sunday's sermon. The passage is Jeremiah 29:4-14. Read ahead and be part of this fellowship.

The Mission Yearbook asks for prayer for the "Recovering Women Ministries" in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Led by the Rev. Deana Vezmar, this project seeks to minister to women victims of chemical dependency, compulsive overeating, sexual and domestic violence.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH

JON MOORE

PHYLLIS MOORE

Jon and Phyllis Moore will be guest speakers during the church's revival scheduled Aug. 3-8.

The schedule for the revival is as follows: Sunday morning, 9:45; Sunday evening, 7:30; Monday through Friday, 11:50 a.m. until 12:50 p.m.; weekday evening services, 7:30.

Ladies Bible study is planned from 11-11:45 a.m. Monday through Friday.

Jon Moore of Euless, Texas is a member of the First Baptist Church. He is a former pharmacist and is still a registered pharmacist in Texas. He has pastored for two and one-half years prior to beginning a full-time traveling ministry in January of 1974.

Phyllis Moore travels with her husband ministering to women through Bible studies, personal counseling and music. The Moores are involved in revival meetings, Bible conferences, retreats and an extensive cassette tape ministry.

WESLEY UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

410 Irving St.
The public is invited by the Rev. Lanny Wheeler to celebrate Holy Communion during worship hour at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Rev. Wheeler will speak on "Christ and The Misfits" during the morning service. Study Luke 19:1-10. His evening sermon at 7 Sunday is entitled "How Can I Be Sure". Study Mark 10:17-27.

There will be a special sermon for children.

The United Methodist Men will meet for breakfast at 7 a.m. Saturday.

Three new Sunday school classes, which meet at 10 a.m. Sunday, have been organized. They included elementary age classes, ages 7-9; youth, 7-12 grades; and adult class.

FIRST CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

"Sonlight Mountain" is the theme of this year's vacation Bible school to be held from 6:30-9 p.m. Aug. 4-8. Each person that brings five children to VBS that are not members or currently attending the church, gets a free "Sonlight Mountain" T-shirt. All children from the ages of two through the sixth grade are invited to attend.

The Rev. Bob Huffaker added that the camping theme for VBS will help create an atmosphere of fun and adventure while featuring life-related Bible study, creative crafts, games, songs and planned recreation.

A pre-registration carnival for VBS will be held from 4:30-7 p.m. Sunday on the church parking lot. The carnival will feature games, crafts and refreshments.

There will be a drawing for 10 Sonlight Mountain backpacks from those who pre-register.

Cottage Prayer meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. every Sunday evening during August. On Sunday, the group will meet in the Kenneth Halbert home.

South defeats North in football action

HOUSTON (AP) — Tomball's Lance Pavlas and Columbus' Percy Waddle have offered Texas A&M fans a sneak preview of what they can expect in future years.

Pavlas and Waddle, both headed for Texas A&M this fall, combined for record-breaking performances Thursday night to lead the South to a 17-13 victory over the North in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star football game.

"I look forward to playing with him (Waddle) for the next four or five years," said Pavlas, who was named the outstanding offensive player of the game.

"He's a great receiver. I've never thrown to anyone that fast."

Pavlas completed 16 of 32 passes for an all-star record 246 yards passing, breaking the old mark of 224 yards by Robert Armstrong of Houston Sam Houston in 1971.

"We started working well together from the start," Waddle said. "We were a little shaky at first but we're going to be a great team.

"If you have a great quarterback like him and a great receiver like me, you can work together."

Waddle caught seven passes for 173 yards, breaking the record of 166 yards receiving by Bryan Willingham of Pasadena in 1971.

Pavlas hit Houston Jones' Kerry Simien with a 2-yard touchdown pass with 3:55 left in the game to rally the South to victory and narrow the North's lead in the series to 28-20-4.

The touchdown nullified a record 81 yard punt return for a touchdown by the North's Johnny Hurndon of Daingerfield that gave the North a 13-10 lead with 1:52 to play in the third quarter.

Hurndon's return broke the previous record return of 68 yards by Galena Park's Michael Frazier in 1971.

South defensive tackle Greg Oefinger of San Antonio Churchill won defensive player of the game honors.

Oefinger was credited with six tackles and three assists and stopped Greenville's Jay Mapps to stop a North drive at the South 12.

Shane Smith of Gregory-Portland kicked a 28-yard field goal on the South's second drive of the game and Hempstead's Harvey Williams leaped two yards in the second quarter to lead the Rebels to a 10-6 halftime lead.

Williams, who gained 5,883 yards and scored 70 touchdowns in his career at Hempstead, scored one play after Pavlas hit Waddle with a 40-yard pass to the North's two.

The North rallied in the second quarter on a touchdown run by Dallas White's Carmichael Moore, whose 7-yard score followed a 23-yard pass from Greenville's Jay Mapps to Stamford's Timmy Delce.

Hereford All-Stars take on Fort Smith

The Hereford Kids Inc. 14 and 15-year-old Babe Ruth League travels to Sante Fe, N.M., today to take on a team from Fort Smith, Ark., in the first round of the Southwest Regional Tournament which begins Saturday afternoon.

The Hereford-Fort Smith clash will begin at 4 p.m. at Fort Marcy Park in Sante Fe.

The contest winner will play again at 6 p.m. Sunday, and the loser will play at 2 p.m. Sunday. Hereford will be representing West Texas in the tournament. Other teams in the tournament are Fort Smith; Kennedy, Texas; Brazoswood, Texas;

Sante Fe, N.M.; Las Cruces, N.M.; New Orleans Nord Lake Shore, La.; and Durant, Okla.

Hereford earned the right to play in the tournament by defeating Andrews last Thursday in the final game of the West Texas State Tournament.

The Sante Fe Tournament will last through Thursday, with the participants staying in foster homes.

The winner of the southwest region will travel to Newark, Ohio, for the National Babe Ruth Finals.

Coaches for the Hereford team are Jimmy Collier, Rick McCracken, and Bert Parker.

Giants manager gets what he asked for, stop Braves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Roger Craig held a pre-game team meeting, perhaps to restore any confidence lost during the San Francisco Giants' recent four-game losing streak.

"I just knew that after that meeting, we'd score nine or ten runs," the Giants' manager joked after Candy Maldonado's bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth gave the Giants a 3-2 win over the Atlanta Braves Thursday night.

"We didn't lose four in a row. We've won one in a row," he added, displaying the optimistic attitude which has been generally rampant in the clubhouse of one of baseball's most surprising teams. The Giants, losers of 100 games last season for the first time in the franchise's long history, climbed back to within four of the four previous games, they totaled four runs and lost a pair of 2-1 decisions.

Gene Garber, 4-2, walked Maldonado on a 3-2 pitch with one out

Domino tourney slated

The Oasis Shrine Club will be sponsoring the Annual West Texas State Domino Tournament Saturday in the Castro County Expo Building in Dimmitt.

Tournament registration will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, and the competition in the single-elimination tournament following the registration. The entry fee is $5.

There will also be a double-elimination tournament on Sunday. Entry fee for that tournament will be $10 per person.

All proceeds will go to the Oasis Shrine Club.

and the bases loaded in the ninth inning to force in the winning run.

"This game was a perfect example of the way we were playing earlier this season, pulling out a win in the late innings. We showed we're a team of 24 players," said Maldonado, who picked up his 18th RBI as a pinch hitter. He leads the league with a .424 average as a pinch-hitter.

Ted Simmons homered in the fourth for the only run off Giants starter Steve Carlton. Carlton allowed five hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Braves' Manager Chuck Tanner's last-place team has dropped 18 of its last 23 games. Joe Morgan, the former big league infielder now working as a Giants' television broadcaster, paid a visit to the Braves' clubhouse and got a message from Tanner.

"Joe, whatever you do, don't become a manager," Tanner said.

Indian rookie holds on to beat Detroit

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ulcers may be tough on the stomach, but they can work wonders for your pitching arm, says Cleveland Indians relief pitcher Scott Bailes.

The 24-year-old rookie, who spent three days recuperating from two ulcers, returned to action Thursday night and shut out the Detroit Tigers on two hits for four innings as the Indians recovered from a six-run deficit to win 8-7.

"The only real effect of the ulcers is, I had three or four days rest. When your arm's rested, you get a little extra on the fastball, a little sharper breaking ball," the left-hander said.

In the only other American League game Thursday, California beat Oakland 8-5.

Bailes, who is tied for the AL lead in appearances with 47, entered the game in the sixth inning after starting pitcher Rich Yett had allowed consecutive homers in the fifth by Alan Trammell, Kirk Gibson and John Grubb to fall behind 7-1.

The Indians scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth and four in the Pat Tabler singled in one run and Julio Franco singled in two more for Cleveland to tie the game 7-7 in the eighth against Bill Campbell, 2-3. Franco took second on the throw from the outfield, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored the winning run when Castillo greeted Jim Slaton with a double off the fence in left.

Trammell had lined a two-run homer to left to start the Tigers' fifth-inning outburst. Two pitches later, Gibson drove his 17th home run into the upper deck in right, and Grubb followed by lining a 1-2 pitch over the fence in left center, his eighth homer, for a 7-1 Detroit lead. Grubb has hit six home runs in his last 15 games.

The Tigers also collected three straight homers in a game July 8 at Minnesota.

Angels 8, A's 5
Brian Downing and Bob Boone each hit grand slams that led California over host Oakland.

Downing connected in the third inning for the Angels' first hit of the game off Eric Plunk, 3-7. Plunk had loaded the bases with three walks before Downing hit his sixth career slam and his 12th home run of the season.

Doug DeCinces led off the California fourth with a single and two walks again loaded the bases. Boone then connected off Plunk for his fourth home run of the year and first slam since 1976.

The Angels last hit two grand slams in a game on April 27, 1983, when Fred Lynn and Darryl Sconiers did it against Detroit.

Mike Witt, 11-7, gave up five runs in 6 1-3 innings and got the victory.

Cowboys enjoy London

LONDON (AP) — Cabbies the world over have a notorious reputation. But Dallas Cowboy Brian Salonen has found the ones he thinks are the best — London taxi drivers.

Salonen, a linebacker with the Cowboys, is in London this week for Sunday's exhibition game against the Super Bowl champions Chicago Bears at Wembley Stadium Sunday.

In between training sessions Salonen has tried to catch as many of the British capital's sights as possible. He's traveled to most of them in the back of a black London taxi.

"I've enjoyed my stay here a lot and I have been surprised by the friendliness of the London cab drivers," Salonen said Thursday.

"Most of the time cabbies don't care too much, they just want to get you to your destination and collect the fare. But in London they have been very friendly and genuinely hope the Cowboys win Sunday," he added.

The Cowboys' day in London begins at 7:30 a.m. when they meet in the ballroom at their hotel to discuss game plans. After breakfast they head south of the city for a gruelling two-hour practice session at the National Sports Centre, Crystal Palace.

After that, however, the players have a chance to take in the sights and soak up the atmosphere of this historic city.

"I've seen Big Ben, the houses of parliament and Buckingham Palace, I've been cramming in as much as possible while I've had the chance," said Salonen.

But Wembley Stadium is the sight that the Cowboy linebacker is most looking forward to. "I've heard so much about it, Wembley is one of the most historic sports stadiums in the world. It's going to be an honor to play there," added Salonen.

DR. GOTT Migraines are still mysterious

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Headache is one of the commonest symptoms that prompt patients to seek medical attention. It has many causes, including brain tumors and infection (rare), muscle tension/contraction (frequent), and vascular factors (such as migraine).

The precise cause of migraines remains unclear, but these headaches are often incapacitating and are now thought to be due to abnormal electrical impulses that involve the brain's hypothalamus and cerebral cortex. About 20 percent of people with migraine attacks appear to suffer from reactions to certain foods, because of allergies or the foods' chemical components. Neurologists have identified at least three types of food-induced migraine:

(1) "Ice-cream headache" is probably due to the coldness of the product as it enters the palate. Ice cream has been reported to trigger migraine in up to 90 percent of susceptible people, as opposed to 30 percent of non-migraine groups.

(2) "Chinese restaurant syndrome" is characterized by intense throbbing headache, burning sensations of the upper body and pressure on the chest that occur about 20 minutes after eating meals prepared with soy sauce. The mechanism is poorly understood, but seems to be the result of monosodium glutamate (MSG), a flavor enhancer to which migraine patients can be extremely sensitive.

(3) "Hot-dog headache" can follow ingestion of cured meat. It, too, is severe and pounding. It is believed to be caused by sodium nitrite, a chemical additive (approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration) that imparts a uniformly red appearance to the meat.

"Vitamin A headache" is non-migrainous, but violent. It is seen in patients who take too much of the substance as part of megavitamin therapy. Excess vitamin A can cause many toxic effects — including hypertension, retarded growth in children, anemia, nausea, dizziness, visual difficulties, rash, hair loss and liver failure. Too much vitamin A also can raise the pressure in the fluid that bathes the brain, causing severe headache as a complication.

Many patients believe that other foods, such as cheese, citrus and chocolate, can trigger migraine. Some people with migraine have observed that omission of certain foods will increase their attacks of headache.

In controlled studies, relatively few patients were found to react to tyramine or phenylethylamine, two common constituents of migraine-triggering foodstuffs. Nevertheless, children with migraine have been proven to be sensitive to different types of food, usually when they are eaten simultaneously. These include cow's milk, eggs, chocolate, oranges and wheat products. Such children tend to show positive reactions both to skin tests and to the radioallergosorbent test (RAST) for these foods.

A majority of migraine patients are not sensitive to foods; their headaches occur without much warning and bear no relation to what they eat. However, for some patients, exposure to certain edible substances and chemical additives can provoke excruciating pain. Although an allergic cause for all migraine has not been confirmed, doctors are awaiting conclusive biochemical evidence that could link this troublesome ailment to diet.

Until this link is established, migraine sufferers might wisely choose to experiment on their own by omitting certain foods from their diets for one or two weeks at a time. By doing this, each individual might be able to take an active role in preventing symptoms and reducing the severity of an incompletely understood, often disabling condition.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Once my blood pressure returns with medication to normal, would it be safe to stop taking blood-pressure pills?

DEAR READER — As a general rule, no. It is because of the medicine that the blood pressure becomes normal. Therefore, stopping the pills would permit the blood pressure to rise to pre-treatment levels.

Nevertheless, some cases of hypertension seem to be only temporary. For example, obese patients might have a form of hypertension that will fall to normal when they lose weight.

Patients on anti-hypertensive drugs should have their blood pressures checked regularly. If the pressure falls, the physician often might be inclined to make a reduction in medicine. Occasionally, under medical supervision, patients might be able to stop treatment altogether. However, this is a decision best made by the doctor during a close medical follow-up.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My 5-year-old daughter has had repeated colds since birth. Her height and weight are below normal, but progressing. Her pediatrician just keeps pumping her full of medicine, the latest being Dime-tapp. Should she see a specialist? Could allergies be causing this?

DEAR READER — Indeed, they could. Food allergies, in particular, can cause repeated symptoms resembling colds. Ask your pediatrician to consider referring your daughter to an allergist, preferably one who is familiar with food sensitivities.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I live alone and love orange juice. Each day I scoop out a tablespoon of frozen concentrate to mix up, then I replace the top of the container. My sister says this is dangerous and could lead to contamination. Am I doing the wrong thing?

DEAR READER — As long as the concentrate is frozen when you scoop it out, and when you replace the container in the freezer, I do not believe there is any harm in what you're doing.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I eat hot, chewy peppers, tabasco or grated red peppers with most of my meals. I am of Italian descent, and this is a tradition. Now I've heard that these foods can cause stomach problems and cancer. My grandfather died at 89 and never had any problem. What's the story?

DEAR READER — Highly spiced food certainly can cause stomach upset in the form of indigestion and heartburn. You apparently are immune to these symptoms. I am not aware that stomach cancer is a consequence of the products you eat, providing your diet is balanced.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says the Prednisone I take is the cause of my swollen abdomen. Once I stop the drug, will my abdomen return to normal size?

DEAR READER — That would depend on the reason you are taking Prednisone, a form of cortisone. Prednisone is known to cause fluid retention in patients who take it. However, I doubt that the drug is the sole cause of your abdominal swelling.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is adrenaline (which "runner's high" produces) addictive?

DEAR READER — The so-called "runner's high" is not caused by adrenaline. It is the result of natural painkillers, called endorphins, that are secreted by the brain in response to stress. Because the endorphins resemble narcotics, they can be "addictive" in the sense that serious runners can become "hooked" on running in order to achieve the high. For some runners, the activity can become a compulsion that adversely affects their everyday lives. Nonetheless, endorphins are natural substances and, as ordinary components of our bodies, are not — by themselves — considered to be addictive.

DEAR DR. GOTT — If I became senile, would I know what was happening? I wouldn't want to be a burden to my family.

DEAR READER — If you were to become senile, you would not be able to judge the impact of your behavior on those around you. In most cases, senility is a progressive condition, not one that occurs overnight. However, since you are concerned about this, it is appropriate for you to make arrangements, such as a Living Will, while you are alert and mentally competent. If and when you become a burden, your ability to make these decisions will be impaired. The organization Concern for Dying (250 West 57 St., New York, NY 10107) can give you information on preparing a Living Will.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I was 17, the measles settled in my left ear. It hasn't bothered me until now (I'm 87). I get scaly, flaky, itching spells, and some of the hearing is gone. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — While it's true that measles can affect hearing, your deafness probably is not due to the childhood disease you had 70 years ago. Hearing trouble usually appears at or near the time of the infection. In addition, I doubt that your flaking and itching skin come from the measles. Such a condition is more likely the result of skin changes that appear with aging or from low-grade skin inflammation, such as psoriasis or yeast infections.

I suggest that you make an appointment with an otolaryngologist (ear, nose and throat doctor). This specialist will be able to diagnose both the skin problem and your loss of hearing.
