Bergland Lauds Grain Set-Aside Plan

Hustled Out Of Town

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is pushed into a waiting patrol car by apprehensive Amarillo police officers moments after an egg throwing incident at the Quality Inn on I-40 East in Amarillo. Bergland had just left a brief meeting with regional representatives of the American Agriculture movement when a handful of dissident farmers began throwing eggs and snowballs at him. As police attempted to whisk Bergland away in the patrol car, a crowd formed and two farmers attempted to move a tractor to block Bergland's departure. The tractor was held at bay by two police officers with drawn guns. Bergland managed to get away and Amarillo Police Chief Lee Spradlin, who was pelted by one of the eggs meant for Bergland, told the farmers no arrests would be made and no charges filed if the farmers moved on. The incident, which erupted in only seconds, cooled off just as quickly. The egg throwing was later criticized by spokesman for the American Agriculture movement. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

AMARILLO — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland was unflappable in his support of a national grain reserve program during a press conference here Tuesday morning, taking virtually every opportunity offered to speak on what he feels are the merits of a program which may require up to three years to take effect.

Bergland opened the press conference with approximately 25 area media representatives by telling them that the purpose of his trip to Amarillo and other cities throughout the grain belt is "to raise the price of grain."

Bergland emphasized that America's farmers "have the clout to raise the price of grain, and wheat in particular. We are urging farmers not to sell their grain at the current cheap prices, but to store the grain under a government contract which would pay farmers a 25 cent per bushel storage rate for holding their grain off the market."

According to Bergland, the national grain reserve program would raise wheat and feed grain prices to at least $3.15 a bushel over a three year period.

A similar comment to a group of farmers earlier in the morning drew an angry response from one farmer, who yelled, "Hell, we can't wait that long."

Bergland was asked what protection was hedged in for the farmer in the grain storage program he supported.

"We are exploring a grain storage agreement which would bring grain storage fees into a uniform 25 cent level," Bergland responded.

He was then asked how the USDA expected to get a three-year program of farmer participation when there was really nothing in the program for the farmer.

"The real profits will come when the grain prices go up," said Bergland. "If we get 400 million bushels under storage in this program, I think grain prices will go up. We have 112 million bushels committed to storage now and I expect 170-180 million bushels by the end of the month," he added.

Bergland was skillful in eluding a question concerning a statement he made about agriculture's problems being largely weather-related in this area and other feed grain producing areas. Although he spoke at length on the effect of weather on crop exports in recent years, he failed to answer the original question.

"We've had three record grain crops back to back, and the world has had two record crops. If the weather goes bad somewhere in the world, the demand for U.S. grain will go up. Right now, three good years have built grain stocks above that which can be used," he responded.

QUESTION — Would you support the 40-50 percent set-aside, as being proposed by American Agriculture?

BERGLAND — We think that a 10 percent set aside on feed grains and 20 percent on wheat is enough. A 50 percent

Farmers Hurl Eggs, Snowballs at Sec

AMARILLO — A handful of farmers turned rowdy at the Quality Inn here Tuesday afternoon, hurling eggs and snowballs at Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland following a meeting between Bergland and regional leaders of the American Agriculture farm strike movement.

While Bergland was not hit by any of the missiles, the incident forced Amarillo police officers to hustle Bergland into a waiting patrol car, and a near riot ensued as a crowd of protesting farmers quickly gathered around the vehicle.

Bergland was in Amarillo yesterday for a news conference and a meeting with ASCS county committeemen from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, as part of a whirlwind trip to drum up support for a government grain storage program.

Bergland had already completed the news conference and a meeting with ASCS committeemen when he delayed his departure for another meeting in Wichita, Kan. to meet with the regional American Ag representatives.

Bergland, surrounded by an escort of Amarillo police officers, was just departing from the Sunburst Room of the Quality Inn here when the egg throwing incident occurred.

Several eggs splattered around the Bergland party, one apparently striking Amarillo police Chief Lee Spradlin.

Uniformed police officers quickly hustled Bergland away from the crowd waiting outside the Sunburst Room.

As the officers moved Bergland away from the motel, a crowd formed and began to follow.

Snowballs fell around Bergland and the officers as they moved away. They were apparently thrown by dissident farmers in the crowd.

Bergland's escort flagged down a police car on a nearby I-40 access road, and as police officers quickly pushed Bergland into the car, the crowd moved in to surround the vehicle.

Two farmers attempted to move a huge four wheel drive tractor into a position to block the police car's departure, but the tractor was held at bay by two officers.

YMCA Adopts Budget

Directors of the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA, in a regular monthly board meeting Tuesday, approved the 1978 budget, made plans for a Partner of Youth campaign banquet, and heard several committee reports.

President Tom Burdett reported that the new budget outlines expenses of $75,762 for 1978. This is an increase of some $13,000 over the past year, with the largest hikes coming in rent, salaries of non-professionals, social security, utilities, printing and promotion, and office supplies.

The YMCA is a United Way agency and anticipates about $12,000 from the community-wide organization. The remainder of the income is due from the Partner of Youth campaign and from membership dues and program activities.

Burdett announced the appointment of committee chairmen during the session. These include Don Tardy, finance; Roger Owen, membership and Partner of Youth campaign; Mary Parker, public relations; George Belford, program; Dave Hopper, health club and property; and Marsh Pitman new facility.

Owen announced that plans are being made for a big banquet on April 7 to launch the Partner of Youth campaign. He added that the committee is seeking to land a prominent figure as principal speaker for the event.

Purpose of the banquet will be to explain the "Y" program in Hereford, its goals and objectives, and to outline the Partner of Youth campaign. Owen said the board also hopes to set a date and name a chairman for a capital fund drive.

Egypt or Cyprus — Who's at Fault?

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The shooting at Larnaca Airport ended three nights ago, but the governments of Cyprus and Egypt are still sparring with words about who was wrong.

President Spyros Kyprianou said responsibility for the death of the 15 Egyptian commandos killed in the battle "rests with the Egyptian side." He asked why the commandos didn't make their attack earlier Sunday during the 11 hours the two terrorists, their hostages and their commandeered plane were in Djibouti, like Egypt an African Moslem country but one with a French garrison to help protect it.

Kyprianou said Egypt even gave assurances there would be no attack at Larnaca and that its ambassador and military attache were told the two terrorists had agreed to free the 11 Arab hostages and four plane crewmen.

When the Egyptians launched their attack, he said, the Cypriot National Guard "had no alternative but to intervene and take action to save the hostages and to protect the sovereign rights of the Cypriot state."

Brig. Nabil Shukry, who led the commandos in their abortive attempt to capture the killers of Egyptian newspaper editor Youssef el Sebaei, told a radio interviewer in Cairo he ordered the attack after 90 minutes without word of progress in the negotiations with the terrorists.

"If the Cypriot forces had not interfered, the operation would have succeeded without a single drop of blood," he said. "The Egyptian force reached the plane and was on the ramp when we were shot in the back. We were surprised. This was a kind of treachery."

The interviewer did not ask how the Egyptian army would react if a plane load of foreign commandos landed at Cairo Airport and tried to capture someone wanted by their government.

The two Palestinian terrorists killed Sebaei, a confidant of President Anwar Sadat, in the lobby of the Nicosia Hilton Saturday and then took 11 Arab diplomats on a flight around the Middle East in search of refuge. An hour after the terrorist plane eventually landing in Cyprus, an Egyptian C-130 transport got permission to land and stopped about 800 yards from the terrorists' plane.

Belly...Uh, Oriental...Dancing a Local Hit

By PAUL SIMS

Managing Editor

Shar Ron is back, shakier and swivelier than ever.

She was here last spring, performing for the Rotary Club. Now she is teaching that blessed art of belly dancing to Hereford women, 30 of whom showed up Tuesday night at the YMCA for their first lesson.

As she responded to the Brand reporter's questions, she seemed surprised by the number of women parading past her toward the ladies' dressing room.

"I think most of these women start taking it out of curiosity," said Shar Ron, whose actual name is Sharron Kay Morgan, a belly dancer for the last 5 1/2 years.

"Later on they'll get interested in the music and see Oriental dancing as an art."

She does not like the term "belly dancing" since the abdomen is used very little compared to other parts of the anatomy.

"I prefer to call it Oriental dancing. The first image that usually comes to mind is all those belly rolls, but the belly is used very, very little."

Shar Ron learned to dance Oriental-style under Scheherazade in Lubbock. She has since taught "close to 1,000" women.

"Why did I start? I'd always been interested in Middle East music and I had those little-girl fantasies like harems and Aladdin's lamp. I enjoy it because it's really quite an art."

Shar Ron weighed 140 pounds before she learned how to Oriental dance. She is now 32, looks like she's 22, and weighs 122 (pardon the poetry.) She is married and has three children.

"My husband likes what it has done for me. It's built a lot of confidence in myself and changed my appearance."

She has never taught a man, although there are male Oriental dancers, one of whom Shar Ron hopes someday she will learn under.

"My greatest ambition is to go to New York and take a week's lessons from Ibarahim Farrah. He is fantastic."

"I don't think I could teach a man. They dance so much stronger. Have you ever seen Greek men dance? There are good Arabic dancers - they do it like a ballet dancer where the man is in the supportive role. Yes, men and women can Oriental dance together."

When men think of belly dancing, Shar Ron says, they think of "the next thing to go-go dancing. But after I perform, I can see a complete change."

The Hereford classes are open to all women. They are scheduled for the next five Tuesdays from 7:30-9:45 p.m.

Barrett Won't Seek Another City Term

It was incorrectly stated in Tuesday's Brand that Frank Barrett, Hereford city commissioner for Place 4, will seek re-election for a fourth term in office.

Barrett said he will not file for the April 1 election, leaving Emory Brownlow as the only candidate to date to announce his intentions to run for the Place 4 spot.

"I've enjoyed it very much and worked with lots of fine people, but I think it's time for other people to do it," Barrett said.

Drug Trafficking Considered by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) - Locked in its longest secret session, the Senate is reviewing files on Panamanian officials' alleged role in drug trafficking - and debating how important the information is in its consideration of the Panama Canal treaties.

Reaction was predictable after Tuesday's session, which lasted nine hours and 50 minutes.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., one of the agreement's staunchest opponents, called it "useful" and said he thinks it "will have some impact."

But Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., a backer of the treaties, termed it "the biggest waste of time" in his 15 years in the Senate. Charles Percy, R-Ill., another supporter, called the day a "desperation move" by the opponents.

Another four hours of secret debate were planned today.

What the senators heard was a report by its intelligence committee on allegations that Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos knew of or had been involved in drug trafficking through his country.

Woody Allen Film Nominated for Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - When Woody Allen set out to make a movie about the love of his life, he wanted to call it "Anhedonia" - a Freudian tag for the inability to experience pleasure.

What Allen ended up with was a bit of pure pleasure called "Annie Hall," and nominations for three of Oscar's most prestigious awards.

Allen was nominated Tuesday for best director, best actor and best original screenplay, the grandest display of Academy Awards nominations since Orson Welles was chosen in the same categories for his 1941 epic, "Citizen Kane." Welles won a writing Oscar for his script.

"Annie Hall" was nominated as best picture and Diane Keaton was nominated for best actress as the beautiful, flighty Annie.

When Allen heard how his film had fared in the nominations, he said, "I hope Diane wins."

The National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will hand out its coveted statuettes at the 50th Academy Awards presentation April 3 in Los Angeles.

Bank Robber Holds Father, Son Hostage

EATON, Ohio (AP) - An armed bank robber held a father and two sons hostage in their disabled car on a rural highway near the Ohio-Indiana line today, threatening to kill them if authorities tried to capture him.

"I'm not playing. I'm not going to be taken alive," the gunman, identified only as Don, told authorities over a citizens band radio in the car. He had commandeered the automobile after fleeing a bank robbery in Richmond, Ind., Tuesday afternoon.

The gunman was reportedly asking for another car and safe passage, although it was not immediately known where he wanted to go.

Held hostage were Robert Herrmann, 38, a postal worker from nearby Eldorado, Ohio, and his sons, Rob, 10, and Mike, 6.

The car was stopped on U.S. 35 after all four tires were blown out by gunfire from pursuing police. Negotiations were being handled by the FBI.

An Ohio Highway Patrol officer said the car was "boxed in" and he described the scene as a "do or die situation."

Punitive Coverage May Be Eliminated

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Nobody knows for sure, but Texans might be paying more for their car insurance because it covers not only out-of-pocket losses but punitive damages as well.

The insurance industry asked the State Insurance Board Tuesday to eliminate coverage for punitive damages awarded by juries to punish serious negligence.

Board chairman Hugh Yantis suggested such an act by the board should be accompanied by some reduction in auto liability premiums.

The board said it wanted two or three weeks to read the numerous court cases cited by insurance industry spokesman David Irons before making its decision.

Irons represented the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office.

Yantis said the insurance companies were asking the board to act "in a vacuum" since they had not proposed a rate cut to go with their request.

A 1972 court decision, upheld by the Texas Supreme Court, said the standard automobile liability policy covers not only out-of-pocket losses of accident victims but punitive damages as well.

Police Report

Hereford police are investigating the theft of a $2,200 viola and case taken from the Hereford High School band hall between Feb. 15-16.

No offenses were reported Tuesday, according to police.

West Texas - Fair through Thursday except partly cloudy south Thursday. Warmer afternoons most sections. Highs mid 50s north to near 70 south. Lows mid 20s north to mid 30s south except near 20 mountains. Highs Thursday lower 60s north to lower 70s south.

Cost Trimming Is Focus Of Vegetable Conference

HEREFORD - Ways in which West Texas vegetable growers can trim their production costs by conserving energy, reducing labor requirements, and maximizing yield and quality will be explored in detail here Thursday, February 23, at the annual West Texas Vegetable Conference.

The one-day program should prove helpful to not only the large commercial producer, but also to the small commercial grower and the serious home gardener, said Dr. Roland E. Roberts, Extension vegetable specialist and conference coordinator. It begins at 9 a.m. at the Bull Barn.

The educational conference is the annual meeting of the West Texas Vegetable Growers and Shippers Council. It is co-sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Tech University, Texas A&M University, Texas A&M Vegetable Research Station at Munday, The Deaf Smith County Vegetable Crops Subcommittee and the Panhandle Economic Progress Program.

The conference will feature a dozen scientists and educators who will address critical problems facing area producers and shippers as they enter the 1978 growing season. There is no charge to attend and the program is open to the public.

The keynote speaker will be Dr. Bob Thornton, Extension horticulturist with Washington State University in Pullman, Wash. He will detail cultural practices used by potato producers in his state to save energy and reduce production costs.

Research at Texas A&M on a mechanical harvester for bulb onions, potato breeding, use of antitranspirant chemicals to reduce irrigation requirements for potatoes, and new methods for directing seeding of onions will be reported.

Texas Tech horticultural scientists will discuss their research to maximize yield and quality of potatoes, analyze the shelf life of Norgold Russet and Viking potatoes grown in Hereford, and report on an intensive study of insect pests of potatoes in West Texas.

A field representative for the National Potato Board, Kelly Hicks, will illustrate the board's campaigns to increase U.S. consumption of fresh and processed potatoes.

Roberts will illustrate an describe results of demonstrations with peppers, potatoes and onions on farms where area growers have worked with the researchers and their county Extension agents to test the practical potential of new techniques and innovations.

The 1978 market outlook for major vegetables will be reported by Dr. Gordon Powell, Extension fruit and vegetable marketing specialist.

Experiences and opportunities for directed industry financial support of vegetable research and education will be analyzed by Dave Fitz, marketing specialist with the Agricultural Marketing Service of USDA.

A barbecue lunch for all participants will be sponsored by the council and its agri-business friends.

JUVENTINO PERALES Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church for Juventino Perales, 55, of 308 Ave. E with the Rev. James O'Connor, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in St. Anthony's Cemetery under the direction of Smith & Co. Funeral Home.

Born at Ballinger, Mr. Perales died Tuesday morning in Farwell Nursing Home at Farwell.

A resident of Hereford for six years, Mr. Perales was a Catholic. He was a farm laborer.

He is survived by three brothers, Baltazar of Hereford, Victor of San Angelo and Carlos of Riverside, Calif.; and two sisters, Celia Perales of Hereford and Concha Martinez of Plainview.

JP Office Reports Activity Increase

There were a total of 5,930 cases filed in Justice of the Peace Court in 1977, according to figures released today by JP Glen Nelson.

There were 5,714 misdemeanor traffic offenses handled by the JP court, 393 non-traffic offenses and 821 civil suits.

Those figures represent an increase over 1976, when the JP court handled 5,234 traffic offenses, 380 non-traffic cases and 574 civil suits.

"There has been an increase in criminal violations as well as an increase in the number of civil suits filed. Court action has increased in some areas while some have decreased. All together, it has been a very busy year but we have handled it without having to employ additional help," Nelson said.

Total revenue from fines imposed by the court last year was $97,129. There were 5,045 payments for misdemeanor traffic fines and 210 for non-traffic penalties.

Of the civil suit total, there were 223 settlements.

Other yearly activity reported by Nelson's office included:

Thirty eight peace bond applications, 22 peace bond hearings, 23 county court complaints, 146 felony complaints accepted, eight examining trials, 17 inquests, 10 search warrants issued, 166 statutory warnings, 21 cases appealed and six juvenile detention hearings.

There were 461 traffic cases dismissed, with another 205 pending on Jan. 1 of this year. Nelson held six civil trials during 1977.

The Lighter Side

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) - The principal of a Savannah high school where staff and pupils have killed about 700 bats this month said Monday he feels humans are winning the battle against the flying furry mammals.

"Today we found only four," said Richard Mole, principal of Beach High School. On Friday, 20 bats were killed.

Trouble began about three weeks ago when a basketball game had to be delayed because bats - which have been living in the attic for years - were buzzing spectators.

"It looked like a horror movie or something," said Sheila Hicks, a ninth-grader.

It turned to war Feb. 13, when dozens of bats were found in the building. Students, administrators and maintenance men armed themselves with brooms, tennis rackets, shoes, books and other weapons and attacked.

DENVER (AP) - Telephone operators have their problems, too.

"A lot of operators tend to look at themselves as nobodies, as nameless, faceless non-persons," says a Mountain Bell spokesman. He said operators now are encouraged to identify themselves.

Under the three-month-old "Operation Identification," dial "0" and you'll hear:

"This is Suzanne, directory assistance. What city, please?" You may also just hear a "Number 108" on the other end of the line.

The natural warmth of one operator's voice so struck one of her callers that she found him waiting at the door of her home not long ago.

Since then, she has stopped giving her full name.

Students Honored

COLLEGE STATION - Three students from Hereford have earned "Distinguished Student" ranking at Texas A&M University, announced Registrar Robert A. Lacey.

The undergraduate honor is awarded students who have excelled academically. Recipients must earn at least a 3.25 grade point ratio (out of a possible 4.0) during the most recent grading period.

Distinguished students include Anthony A. Albracht, 125 Sunset Dr.; Michael A. Aven, animal science, son of Hiley L. Aven, 230 Ranger Dr.; and Robert B. Hicks, animal science, son of Robert M. Hicks, Rt. 1.

who drew their pistols and pointed them at the machine.

The crowd then attempted to form a human wall to prevent the car from leaving, and a woman was observed at the windows of the police car, screaming at Bergland. "Please help us."

Officers managed to move the car through the crowd, and as they sped away, the incident nearly flamed into a full-scale riot.

Amarillo police moved in to arrest two farmers at the scene and the stirred-up crowd then surrounded the officers.

Several farmers were observed arguing with the police officers, telling them, "These men have done nothing wrong. You can't arrest them."

After several minutes of pushing and shouting, the crowd apparently began to gather its wits and moved away from the scene of the confrontation toward the motel once again.

Police Chief Lee Spradlin waded into the crowd and told the farmers that no arrests would be made and no charges filed, and asked the farmers to move out the tractor barricade they had set up at the motel earlier Tuesday.

The incident then broke up as quickly as it began.

The egg throwing was criticized almost immediately by a number of American Ag representatives at the scene, and many of the farmers who had been waiting for a chance to see Bergland as he emerged from the Sunburst Room were calling angrily for the egg throwers to stop their activities when the incident started.

Speaking at a news conference in Wichita later, Bergland denied that he had been hit by any of the eggs, and stated that he "got a kick out of the whole thing."

Bergland also stated, however, that the egg throwing incident "did great harm" to the farm strike movement.

Spokesmen for the American Ag movement expressed shame over the incident.

would you tell them?

BERGLAND — Sign up to tie up your grain in the reserve program. Don't sell your grain at these disastrous prices.

QUESTION — What do farmers do for ready cash now?

BERGLAND — Last September, I put a moratorium on FmHA foreclosures. FmHA is also rescheduling old debts. We're going the last mile to give the farmer FmHA credit if he needs it.

QUESTION — What do you tell American Ag groups in your numerous meetings with them?

BERGLAND — Don't sell your grain for low prices, but put it in the storage program. The success of a 50 percent acreage cutback depends on participation. If several hundred thousand farmers participate, it would have substantial effects on markets, but if only a few take part, it will not. I give the American Agriculture movement great credit from a public relations standpoint.

QUESTION — Does the administration believe America's farmers when they say they are going broke?

BERGLAND — We do believe they are going broke, and we are doing what we can to help.

QUESTION — Is the American farmer a second-class citizen?

BERGLAND — The farmer is a first class citizen. Urban congressmen are getting interested in the farmer now and the urban press is also intrigued by him. I notice this wherever I go.

QUESTION — What about the farmer advisory board which has been called for in Washington?

BERGLAND — There are a number of farmer advisory boards already. I have no objection to more. I think they're great.

QUESTION — Do you really listen to the farmer?

BERGLAND — Absolutely. Texas is well represented in Congress, and we are kept aware of the farmer's needs.

His Job Is Stopping Passerbys

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - Going on 27 years Gene Looper has been on the job, never deserting his post. Now, after all those faithful years, his post has deserted him.

Gene Looper is the man-on-the-street interviewer on the radio.

Every morning during the quarter hour before noon, six days a week, he shows up on a downtown sidewalk, microphone in hand, asking passersby their opinions on current topics.

He has done this over a span of time ranging from: "Should General Eisenhower return from Europe and run for president? 14 yes, four no, two no opinion down to: "Should the Senate ratify the Panama Canal treaties?" four no.

Gene Looper is nothing if not loyal to his task. Counting this morning's broadcast, he has been out on that sidewalk 7,866 times.

The irony is that while Looper is still downtown, downtown isn't.

Downtown has moved to the suburbs. What used to be downtown in the Sparkling City by the Sea, as the postcards call Corpus Christi, has become a lusterless landscape of empty buildings. In the block where Looper does his broadcast all but one storefront is boarded up.

Alas poor Looper, the man-in-the-street has become as rare a species downtown as the whooping cranes that winter nearby.

"I used to have people lined up to get on the air," Looper said wistfully. "Now I'm lucky if I can snag three or four. I've had to make do with a few as two. It's sad, really, to watch downtown just die."

Getting them off was another thing. He's had to contend with more than a few drunks and, back when people walked the streets, a few streetwalkers.

For about one month before a bear goes into hibernation, it becomes ravenous and eats 20 of the 24 hours in a day. By increasing its caloric intake from about 7,000 to 20,000, the animal gains more than 100 pounds.

Yacht is derived from the Dutch "yacht" - a chasing ship - and the word surfaced in England about the mid-16th century. The first yacht club on record was the Cork Harbour Water Club, founded 1720.

The Dole Bill would provide variable target price incentives for reducing 1978 acreage in wheat, corn, feed grains and Sad, and a shame, because Corpus Christi still is a sparkling, breeze-caressed city, a city festooned with spires and palms and beaches washed by royal blue waters.

Like other cities its size across the nation, though, downtown yielded inexorably to the big shopping malls which are out where the people and the parking spaces are.

"I'd like to move out to a shopping mall myself," Looper said. "It's been talked about, but so far the station has been reluctant. It would be sort of admitting that downtown is dead. You've got to admit it sooner or later."

Meanwhile, Gene Looper has become a past master at filling what the radio people call dead air.

Waiting for somebody to wander by on the deserted street, he tells his listeners what the weather is like downtown. He tells them what the responses were to last week's question. He tells them what's on at the movies. "After so many years, you get the knack of it."

Looper gets nostalgic when he thinks about the days when dead air was no problem.

"It was a lively show. I had regulars who would come by all the time. When the question involved some hot local issue people used to pull up to the curb and wave him over. It was never any trouble getting someone on the air."

Getting them off was another thing. He's had to contend with more than a few drunks and, back when people walked the streets, a few streetwalkers.

Dole Bill Supported

The Deaf Smith-Oldham County Farm Bureau Board of Directors met Monday night and voted to recommend to the District 1 Farm Bureau Board Member, Jack Osborn of Pampa, that the Texas Farm Bureau Board of Directors take under advisement, within the framework of Farm Bureau policy, the concepts of the Dole Amendment to the 1977 Farm Bill and recommend support of the same to the National Farm Bureau Board of Directors.

The Dole Bill would provide variable target price incentives for reducing 1978 acreage in wheat, corn, feed grains and cotton. Under provisions of the bill, the more acreage the producer sets aside, the higher his target price would be. A 50% reduction would provide a target price of $5 a bushel for wheat, $3.45 for corn, and 84 cents a pound for cotton. The grain sorghum target price would be based on corn.

County President Don Howard said farmers and ranchers are showing by their current unrest that a strong organization is needed more than ever before.

Among the problems needing solution are high production costs and depressed prices, taxation, loss of export controls, environmental restrictions, and land-use proposals.

Howard said, "An adequate supply of food and natural fiber is essential to our nation. Many citizens of Deaf Smith County are directly or indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their livelihood. All of our citizens benefit from the advancements made in agriculture today.

Farm Bureau is seeking to improve the social and economic conditions of farm and ranch families and the Nation as a whole. It is an independent voluntary

Receiving Honor

Jay Henderson (left), who has served in the US Navy for six years, recently received his Dolphins certificate from a goggled periscope technician on the ocean floor aboard the submarine USS Scamp.

Henderson Earns Navy 'Dolphins'

After five and a half years of US Navy training in the nuclear submarine field, Jay W. Henderson, EMI has earned his "Dolphins," which is a prestigious symbol of his accomplishments.

First Class Petty Officer Henderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ray Henderson, 114 Lake St. and is a 1972 graduate of Hereford High School. Henderson was awarded his Dolphins during a special presentation aboard the USS Scamp SSN588 while the submarine rested on the ocean floor. The ceremony climaxed six years of Naval service.

Based at San Diego, Calif., Henderson has studied nuclear sub sciences at Vallejo, Calif., Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Great Lake Naval Training Station at San Diego.

Preparations Underway For 'TEXAS' '78 Season

CANYON - Winter and spring for the staff of musical drama "Texas," is a time for preparation.

Before the 1978 summer season from June 14 through August 26, there are auditions, meetings and election of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation Board which produces the show, construction in the Palo Duro Canyon of a new rehearsal room for the cast as well as a new entrance to the theatre, trials of sound and lighting and struggles with a script for a sound and light show (a possible attraction for the fall after "Texas" closes) ordering of pictures, writing of news releases, mailing out a thousand pictures and stories, discussions of policies, agreement with the Parks and Wildlife Department about the enlargement of some of the facilities at the amphitheatre, selection of a cast for "Texas" and a month of rehearsal.

"In May, when people say 'It's about time to start getting ready for "Texas," isn't it?'" we nod in our exhaustion and say, "yes!"

The ticket office is open. The show will play nightly except Sundays from June 14 through August 26 with one Sunday performance on July 2. Reservations are advised.

El Llano Studies CPR Procedure

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) was demonstrated and taught to members of El Llano Study Club Monday night in the home of Mrs. Ivan Block.

John Gilliland, a local paramedic, explained the life-saving CPR technique and described instances in which it should be utilized. Gilliland also demonstrated the prescribed method for assisting a person who is choking.

The club dispensed with business in order to hear Gilliland's program. Mrs. Ed Coplen was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Lynn L'Heureux was a guest.

One hundred percent of the club's membership was present Monday evening. The club's roster includes Mmes. Labry Ballard, Jim Bookout, Pete Caviness, Fain Cesar, Ben Childers, Bud Eades, Boyd Foster, Tom Hamlett, R.C. Hoelscher, John Jacobsen, Wayne Amstutz, Elmer Kimball, Lloyd Kirkeby, Travis McPherson, Milton Rudder, Raymond White and Dewitt Seago.

Ann Landers Relief Needed

DEAR ANN: My husband and I have four teenagers. We are barely making it. Our income is limited and everything is so expensive today.

My mother-in-law has been terminally ill for five months. She is being kept alive by machines and tubes. It's terrible. My husband's sister has called him three times to say, "Mother is dying. Come at once." The air fare for these trips is out of sight. The last time he went was on money my parents gave me in case I had to go to them in an emergency.

After my husband returned from the last two trips he said his mother didn't recognize him. I think my sister-in-law is punishing us because we had the gumption to move out of the old home town and she is stuck there.

Last night I told my husband if his sister calls to say he'll come when his mother is pronounced dead. I'm not positive but I think he was relieved. Now I feel guilty. Help me see things right, Ann. - After Thoughts

DEAR AFTER: So long as you merely suggested it and didn't insist, don't feel guilty. I suspect, as you do, that he was actually relieved. Now forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As you would say, "Wake up and smell the coffee." Where have you been all your life that you don't know the difference between a sisterly embrace and the sexy fondling and petting of lesbians?

I couldn't believe it when that woman wrote to complain about the disgusting behavior and public display of two lesbians in a supermarket and you replied, "I'm glad you didn't see my twin sister and me at the Los Angeles airport."

A person who has been writing an advice column for as long as you have should be a little more knowledgeable about such matters. Get with it or hang up your typewriter, Annie. - Couldn't Believe My Eyes

DEAR EYES: I couldn't believe mine either. The mail response to that column ran into the thousands. Almost all who wrote expressed astonishment at my "unworldliness." So, I'll just wipe the egg off my face and say I'm sorry I'm so dumb but we didn't have much exposure to that sort of thing in Sioux City when we were growing up.

DEAR ANN: I think you did some damage when you said, "True feelings come out when a person is drunk." A comment like that could give the message, "Since the truth comes out when my husband (wife or son) is loaded, all the terrible things he says about me when he's drunk are true."

Please do some further checking into "sincere delusion, projection" and what alcoholism does to a person's feelings.

White Elephant Sale To Benefit Museum

Friends of the local Historical Society will be staging a White Elephant Sale from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. Saturday at the Community Center in an effort to raise funds for further restoration of the E.B. Black house.

The public is urged to attend Saturday's sale and support the Historical Society's work at the Black residence, which is an adjunct of the Historical Museum. Those interested in contributing to the project are invited to bring their unwanted items to the Museum before Saturday.

Restoration work on the Black site, a continuing project of the Historical Society, is planned this spring. The Society is preparing to restore the Ionic columns on the gallery porch.

This work is financially possible due to L'Allegre Study Club's contribution of proceeds from their recent Antique Show and Sale.

Other work to be completed during the coming months at the house include a landscape program. Dr. Mate, professor from West Texas State University, is serving in an advisory capacity to the Society in planning formal flower gardens which will occupy the northeast section of the back yard. He will also make recommendations concerning trees and shrubs for the property.

The International Red Cross flag was adopted in 1863.

Palo Duro Discusses Luncheon

Members of Palo Duro Home Demonstration Club assembled Monday night in the home of Mary Fisher to discuss plans for the County HD Appreciation Luncheon, scheduled at noon Monday Feb. 27 in the Bull Barn.

Cheryl Hill presided during the business discussion.

Plans were made for three members to present a program on crocheting during the next meeting, slated March 13 in the home of Ann Lueb.

Each member brought handmade items with her for a discussion of crafts. Joyce Shipp, County Extension Agent, presented the evening's program.

Gayle Carter was welcomed as a guest by Michelle Brisendine, Janet Coleman, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Lueb and Shera Hammett.

Purchase meat by weight, not by package size, suggests Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Look for even-weight packages - it's easier to figure cost per ounce with even weights, not fractions or odd-ounce sizes, she adds.

Volunteer Opportunities

By Kathy Sealy
Volunteer Coordinator

Who is a volunteer? Anyone is concerned enough to give himself to others.

What is Care Corps? Care Corps is the volunteer program of the Department of Human Resources. Through Care Corps citizens express their concern for public welfare recipients and recipients of other agencies who need help.

Volunteers may serve in four general ways:

1. They may be members of boards, advisory committees and policy-making bodies.

2. They may perform administrative services such as consultation in a specialized area or do general office work.

3. They may perform indirect services such as providing facilities, equipment, clothing or monetary contributions.

4. They may also perform direct services for recipients such as transportation, tutoring, and being a friendly visitor.

Benefits to our community include:

1. Increased use of manpower in delivering of services.

2. Increased community participation in government.

3. Increased saving of taxpayers money by providing more services for less through the use of volunteers.

4. Increased provision of services which will assist people to get off welfare rolls. Other organizations who need the help of volunteers are: Big Brothers / Big Sisters, Satellite Center, Family Services, and Home Health Care.

Join the people who help people. Call Kathy Sealy at 364-6841 ext. 5 or come by the office in room 415 in the Courthouse.

Crusade Film To Be Shown

T.L. Osborn's film, "The Miracle Worker" will be shown to the public at 7:30 p.m. today in the Spanish Assembly of God Church, located at the corner of Union and Ave. G.

The film concerned the recent Christian crusade in Juarez, Mexico and includes bilingual dialogue.

All interested persons are welcome.

News From The Lodge

Deaf Smith County and Hereford City Jail was the meeting place for Wakan Ki Lo Horizon Club sponsored by Marsh Cattle Company as they began a Torch Bearer in citizenship.

Elsie Baker, Sheriff's Deputy Womens jailor, took the group on a tour of the jail and demonstrated the process of booking a prisoner which are: reading of rights, determining the severity of the crime, (felony or misdemeanor), picture taken and then finger printed.

The jail is divided into four sections; misdemeanor offenders, felony offenders, women quarters and juvenile division.

"I know the people in jail are prisoners, but I also see them as people," Mrs. Baker stated.

In the jail area there are approximately seventeen people employed and the only elected official is Sheriff Travis McPherson. There are two departments, the Sheriff's Department and the Texas Department of Public Safety.

At the end of the tour Elsie Baker was presented a Camp Fire Pin by Willa Lawson.

Members present were Janet Burdine, Ramona Rhodes,

Deanna Pool, Brenda Parson, Tammy McCathern, Cindy Gamez, Rane Padgett, Paula Graves, Cristi Crawford, Karen Compton, Jill Davis, Jill Paschel, Susan Brown, Kelly Killough and Rhonda Hollowell.

Leaders are Glenice Thompson and Paula Eubanks.

LABI Choir To Perform In Hereford

The choir from the Latin American Bible Institute at El Paso will be performing in Hereford this weekend, it has been announced by a spokesman for the Spanish Assembly of God Church here.

The public is invited to attend worship services at the church featuring the LABI choir.

The choir is expected to perform Saturday night during a service beginning at 7:30 p.m. Also, they will sing Sunday morning during regular worship services at 9:45 a.m.

Sunbelt Businessmen Recruit in North

DALLAS (AP) - The scenario is usually included in accounts of a potential economic war between Snowbelt and Sunbelt states.

A group of business leaders from the South flies to a decaying, cold city in the North, telling of the wonders of tax breaks, sunshine and a vibrant economy.

Northern businessmen look out the window, blanch at the weather and the general decline that surrounds them and announce that they're moving to the Sunbelt, lock, stock and ledgers.

Chalk up another defection from the North - another successful raid by tanned men who sometimes wear cowboy boots with their three-piece suits right?

Oh, it happens every now and then, but not nearly as often as one might think.

Truth is, most new businesses in the Sunbelt states tend to be offshoots of the local economy.

Dr. John Rees of the University of Texas at Dallas has figures to back up his belief that growth of business and industry in the Southern states is mostly self-generating and not very dependent on northern defections at all.

The National Science Foundation, wants Rees to keep up his research, and has given him the funds to do it.

"There have been a few big examples, like when Shell or Exxon moves from New York to Houston," Rees said in a recent interview. "These tend to capture attention."

The 29-year-old native of Wales firmly believes that a Great Northern Exodus is a media myth.

"My study focuses on the Dallas Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area SMSA, but indications are that the same would hold true for other Sunbelt metro areas like Phoenix," Rees said.

His study showed that from 1960 to 1975, the Dallas SMSA took in 487 businesses that relocated to their present home. Of that number, Rees said at least 80 percent were moves from one part of the Dallas region to another.

Given that as a promise, Rees concludes that growth in the South does not necessarily imply decline in the Northeast.

Rees said Dr. David Birch of MIT and Harvard approached the same idea from the Northeastern point of view and found that only two percent of businesses migrated from the Greater Boston area. He said Birch's conclusion is that Southern states would be better off to foster growth in their own areas than to try to lure Northern businesses.

If actual relocations show a growth from within, acquisitions and "births" bolster the premise.

From 1967 to 1975, the Dallas SMSA showed that 57 percent of acquisitions were made by companies with headquarters within the SMSA.

Rees said new companies in the area are often spawned by something that has yet to show up in Northern states - the "incubator effect."

The effect is produced when employees of a large company quit to form a smaller company.

While the overall growth of the area continues, Rees found

Krueger Says Alternatives Should Be Considered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas' energy future lies not in oil or gas or coal but in new sources such as solar and geothermal energy, Rep. Bob Krueger D-Texas said Tuesday.

"But it may be 10 or 20 years before such alternative sources are developed, and until that time, natural gas - even at deregulated prices, is our most economically and environmentally sound fuel," Krueger, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, told a symposium at the University of Texas.

Krueger said he agrees with the long range goals of President Carter's energy program but believes there are better methods to reach those goals than those proposed by reason to be concerned with the inner cities.

His figures show that growth tends to be in the suburbs, particularly the mid-cities area between Dallas and Fort Worth.

He and a colleague, Dr. Bernard Weinstein, said that while the outward movement has not reached a crisis stage, city planners would be well advised to check that movement lest fiscal problems arise as they have in New York City and other eastern metro areas.

The next phase of Rees' study involves research into smaller North Texas SMSA's, like Denison, Abilene and Lubbock.

"A lot of companies in the past two or three years are already deciding to expand in these smaller metropolitan or non-metropolitan areas because of the labor and living increases in the cities," he said. "They just can't find cheap labor any more."

Rees feels this could signal an eventual end to the cheap labor pool, reducing the advantage to doing business in the Sunbelt.

"The National Science Foundation wants to know if this migration will be a short-run thing," Rees said.

Bake Winners Named

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Linda L. Wood of Indianapolis, Ind., and Esther V. Tomich of San Pedro, Calif., were named

$25,000 first prize winners today in the annual America's Bake-Off cooking competition. Mrs. Wood, a secretary with her "Chick-n-Broccoli Pot Pies" dish. Mrs. Tomich's winner was a "Nutty Graham Picnic Cake."

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 22, the 53rd day of 1978. There are 312 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1732, George Washington was born at his parents' plantation near Fredericksburg, Va.

In 1810, Frederic Chopin, the composer, was born in Warsaw, Poland.

In 1819, Spain ceded Florida to the United States.

In 1889, the Dakota territory was divided into North Dakota and South Dakota.

In 1945, in World War I, the U.S. 3rd Army crossed the Saar River south of Searburg, Germany.

In 1966, Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda ordered five cabinet ministers arrested and assumed full power.

In 1967, Indonesia's President Sukarno ended a long reign of power by surrendering his remaining presidential authority to Gen. Suharto.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson called on Congress to approve a 10-year housing program to replace what he called "shameful, substandard units of misery." Five years ago: The United States and China agreed to establish liaison offices in Washington and Peking.

One year ago: Four Cuban exiles, arrested in the Watergate break-in, accepted a $200,000 out-of-court settlement.

Today's birthdays: Sen. Edward Kennedy is 46 years old. Actor Robert Young is 69.

Thought for today: Home is the place where, when you have to go there, they have to take you in - post Robert Frost.

Dick Reuter has been caught in a big avalanche or two and was nearly killed in a 50-foot fall from a chairlift tower. He's hunted, trapped, logged, dynamited, surveyed, showshoed and skied all over the rugged central and northern Sierra Nevada dividing California and Nevada.

And though Reuter, 54, doesn't like the fact he's been banged around in the process - he lost a rib and part of a lung, broke his shoulder and was chilled on uncounted mountaintops - he's philosophical.

"That's part of the hazard," said the lean, plain-speaking Reuter. "When you're in this kind of business there are risks. If you don't want to do this kind of stuff, don't get into it."

Reuter is mountain manager at the Kirkwood Meadows ski resort.

"There's no use kidding you, I'm not the man I used to be," he said. But he pointed to his head and added, "A lot of it's Reuter once went for a ride on a big avalanche that could have buried him, but instead threw him out to safety.

"It was real challenging," he said. "We were conscious of the danger but it's just like in the war - you think it's going to happen to someone else."

Big strides in avalanche control have been made since then "but they don't have it all down yet," he said.

"I've seen the whole thing (ski resort development) almost from the start," he said. "I've seen a lot of things happen. I've seen the equipment become a lot safer."

Along the way, he has learned how to direct "the yolk that has to be done on the mountain - the stuff that makes a place like this tick," Reuter said.

Penguins have flippers which are propelled by powerful pectoral muscles, which permit them to move as fast as 15 miles an hour. They are the only birds that can leap in and out of the water like porpoises.

The largest king crab ever measured weighed nearly 25 pounds and was five feet across, including its legs, reports National Geographic.

Of the 2.8 million people who did farm work in 1976, approximately 59 percent were in the 14-to-25 age group, says National Geographic.

Mary Tyler Moore Hosts Television Special

B JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - No doubt warming up for her new music-variety series next fall, Mary Tyler Moore has a CBS special tonight called "How to Survive the '70s and Maybe Even Bump into Happiness."

Sad to say, it's not so hot. It generally lacks the sparkle that marked her old series. Six writers did tonight's show, but their material is so thin it'd be marked AWOL if turned sideways.

The show, co-starring Harvey Korman, who'll soon have his own ABC series, and John "Three's Company" Ritter, has at the fads and foibles of this decade through sketches, song and dance.

Topics include clothing, jogging, tennis and singles bars, the sketches pegged on those how-to-cope, how-to-survive manuals that now occupy what used to be the humor section of many book stores.

It's good to see efforts to avoid the usual unrelated joke-song-joke format of variety hours. But MTM's scrivening crew doesn't seem to know how best to showcase her talents for comedy, song and dance.

They usually make her an eager-to-please wail, whether in a group therapy skit or in a routine in which Korman, cast as an angry, aggressive tennis player, is paired with Ms. Nice Gal.

There are three moments when the show lights up. One is a silent bit with her old sidekick, Dick Van Dyke, in a crowded elevator. Another is a bitter-sweet singles bar sketch with Bill Birby.

The last is her classy rendition of a lovely tune, "Listen Here," composed by jazz pianist Dave Frishberg for the show's finale.

But the rest - well, let us hope nothing similar appears in her new CBS series next fall. Miss Moore has too much talent to waste on third-rated material.

Cultural note: Feisty Robert Conrad, who saved "Ba Baa Black Sheep" from a planned axing by NBC this season, flies back to war tonight in the premiere of his revamped series.

Conrad, who plays Marine ace Pappy Boyington in the show now called "Black Sheep Squadron," seems aware that his Wednesday night opposition is ABC's top-rated "Charlie's Angels."

So he is going that three-lady series one better. His show, set on a Pacific isle in World War II, now has four stunning damsels - one is his daughter, Nancy - as regulars on the isle.

They play Navy nurses, wear tight, skimpy threads and are called "Pappy's Lambs." Feminist uproar is expected, as these ladies mainly serve as playpersons for Pappy's hard-judging warriors.

Chief lovely is Nurse Samantha, played by a stunner, Denise DuBarry. She can act, incidentally. I will bet anyone she makes everyone forget Farrah Whatshername.

Tonight's show does hint there's a war on, what with a Japanese strafing attack and great aerial shots of those fine old Corsair fighters that co-star in the series.

But whether the ladies turn, the ratings tide in Conrad's war, on "Charlie's Angels" remains to be seen.

He Expects Pains In His Business

KIRKWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Dick Reuter has been caught in a big avalanche or two and was nearly killed in a 50-foot fall from a chairlift tower. He's hunted, trapped, logged, dynamited, surveyed, showshoed and skied all over the rugged central and northern Sierra Nevada dividing California and Nevada.

And though Reuter, 54, doesn't like the fact he's been banged around in the process - he lost a rib and part of a lung, broke his shoulder and was chilled on uncounted mountaintops - he's philosophical.

"That's part of the hazard," said the lean, plain-speaking Reuter. "When you're in this kind of business there are risks. If you don't want to do this kind of stuff, don't get into it."

Reuter is mountain manager at the Kirkwood Meadows ski resort.

Reuter once went for a ride on a big avalanche that could have buried him, but instead threw him out to safety.

"It was real challenging," he said. "We were conscious of the danger but it's just like in the war - you think it's going to happen to someone else."

Big strides in avalanche control have been made since then "but they don't have it all down yet," he said.

"I've seen the whole thing (ski resort development) almost from the start," he said. "I've seen a lot of things happen. I've seen the equipment become a lot safer."

Along the way, he has learned how to direct "the yolk that has to be done on the mountain - the stuff that makes a place like this tick," Reuter said.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court cleared the way Tuesday for extensive oil and natural gas drilling in the Atlantic Ocean off New York, New Jersey and Delaware.

The justices refused to hear an appeal by Suffolk County, N.Y., officials and a group called Concerned Citizens of Montauk to delay the offshore exploration and production by six firms.

The controversy involves a massive portion of the Outer Continental Shelf known as the Baltimore Canyon for which the Interior Department sold oil and natural gas leases in 1976.

The government issued permits to six firms last November to drill exploratory wells within the 867,750-acre area. Some of the wells would be within 60 miles of New York City.

Suffolk County and the Montauk group, along with other local governments and environmental organizations, were in court as early as February 1975 opposing the proposed lease sales.

Before those sales, opponents won a short-lived victory when U.S. District Judge Jack Weinstein of New York ruled that a 2,000-page environmental impact statement prepared by the Interior Department was inadequate.

However, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Weinstein's ruling, and the lease sales were held on August 17, 1976 after Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall rejected a last-minute attempt to have them postponed.

The government awarded leases for 93 tracts to highest bidders, and was paid $1.1 billion. In addition, companies holding the leases must pay rentals until oil and gas is discovered and then must pay the government royalties of up to one-third the value of any oil or gas extracted.

After the sales, drilling opponents returned to Judge Weinstein with accusations that the government did not give adequate consideration to the environmental impact if offshore oil had to be transported by tanker rather than by pipelines.

Weinstein again ruled against the government, and was again reversed by the 2nd Circuit.

In their Supreme Court appeal, the drilling foes claimed that the appeals court's decision "clears the way for profound and irrevocable alteration of the Mid-Atlantic seacoast and landscape despite the admittedly major risk of oil pollution to the Atlantic fishing grounds and the risk of oil fouling the ocean beaches and parks."

The planned drilling will be the first in the Atlantic Ocean since the government initiated its push to find new energy sources.

The six firms awaiting word from the high court - all poised to begin full exploration and production - are Shell, Mobil, Texaco, Gulf, Exxon and Houston Oil and Gas Co.

Most of the initial exploration areas are east of Atlantic City, N.J., but some to the north are off New York's Long Island and two are east of Cape Henlopen, Del.

Experts believe that the Baltimore Canyon could contain as much as 1.4 billion barrels of oil and 9.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Mulligans Banned On Irish Golf Course

HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - The sign I once saw on an Irish golf course in County Sligo was enough to make any Irishman's blood boil, especially this one. It said, "No Mulligans Allowed."

I had heard of country clubs being restrictive about whom they let into the lockroom but never knew of any to single out a particular family. I had forgotten about this assault on the family escutcheon, which according to the heraldic expert at Dublin Castle bears the motto "Fortiter et Fideliter" - boldly and faithfully - over a lion both passant and guardant, until the other night on TV, Bob Hope said he was "happy no one asked for a Mulligan" at his pro-amateur golf tournament in Palm Springs, Calif.

Well, not being a golfer but being a Mulligan, it only reinforced my opinion that Barry Fitzgerald summed up the game beautifully in the movie "The Quiet Man."

"Golf, he said, playing the part of the matchmaker, "is a pool table moved out of doors." Reason enough for the Mulligans everywhere to leave such foolishness to the Scots who after a few jars seldom know enough to come in out of the rain.

Then John Ross, the editor in chief of Golf Magazine, who lives in nearby Weston, Conn., set me straight. It seems that in golf, a mulligan is an extra shot, quite illegal, permitted by custom on the first tee to duffers who have hooked their first drive into the woods or fozzled it in the vicinity of their golf cart.

There are several versions of how the name Mulligan came to be associated with this subversion of the rules of the game, which many clubs frown on and even ban because of the delays it causes in teeing off.

Ross cited an article by the recently deceased Des Sullivan, past president of the Golf Writers of America. Sullivan wrote that back in the '30s he played with the man who gave his name to the bonus shot.

John "Buddy" Mulligan, locker room attendant at the Essex Fells, N.J., club, always asked for a warm up shot when he broke away from his duties in the club house long enough to play a round. Others began asking for "a Mulligan," too, and the custom spread from course to course.

Down in Fort Myers, Fla., 84-year-old Herb Graffis, founder of Golfing Magazine, thought the Mulligan whom the Mulligan was named after was a golfer up in Montreal who had to drive over such washboard roads and rickety bridges to reach his favorite course he always demanded an extra opening shot to compensate for his bad case of the shakes.

Anyhow, the Mulligans throughout history have done more to earn the "mailed arm grasping a sword flamant all proper" on their blazon of arms than lend their name to an infraction of the rules of a geriatric pastime.

Hercules Mulligan, a tailor in New York, was a spy for the revolutionary cause in the personal service of George Washington and the father of the CIA.

According to one authority, the Mulligans came to Ireland as invaders from Normandy, where the original name was Molyneux. The chap who made it big as a high fashion designer decided to stick with the old spelling rather than peddle a line of naut couture called "Captain Mulligan."

In the Civil War, a Col. James A. Mulligan recruited and led the 23rd Illinois Regiment, composed mostly of young men who had fled Ireland during the great potato famine. "Last chance to avoid the draft," said their recruitment posters. "$302 bounty to all able-bodied volunteers."

"The Mulligan Guards" became famous a century ago in the vaudeville sketches of Harrigan & Hart, who inter-persed their immigrant shenanigans with such hit songs as "The Pitcher of Beer," "Johnny Reilly's Always Dry" and "Why Paddy's Always Poor." Mulligan Stew may have originated then.

Biddy Mulligan, "The Pride of the Coombe," a specialty number of Dublin comedian Jimmy O'Dean, lives on as a popular pub in the Irish capital. But not so famous as John Mulligan's on Poolbeg Street, where the license dates back to 1782 and a young Boston congressman named John F. Kennedy leaned an elbow on the long mahogany bar.

Then there is Buck Mulligan, the blasphemous medical student in James Joyce's "Ulysses," who in real life was the writer Oliver St. John Gogarty. Who's Who lists a dozen notable Mulligans who never twice lifted a golf club in anguish or wasted their heritage trying to induce a spheroid 1.68 inches in diameter into a hole 4 1/2 inches wide.

My father claimed the Mulligans were once high kings of Ireland, but as they say at Costello's bar in New York, "who wasn't?"

Supreme Court To Consider Howard Hughes Controversy

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Tuesday said it will hear arguments before deciding whether it should help resolve a controversy between California and Texas over the estate of millionaire recluse Howard Hughes.

The justices, exercising the "original jurisdiction" granted them by the Constitution to settle certain disputes between states before they are heard in lower courts, said they will consider approving a request by California authorities that they decide which state was Hughes' home.

At stake are millions of dollars in inheritance taxes from the vast fortune Hughes left behind when he died in 1976.

"Texas and California are on a collision course," the court was told by Myron Sedorf and James R. Birnberg, inheritance tax lawyers for California.

Noting that each state was under no obligation to respect the findings of the other as to Hughes' "home" at the time of his death, the lawyers said the Hughes estate could be assessed inheritance taxes totaling more than its available assets.

Texas Attorney General John L. Hill, urging the court to reject California's request, argued that the Hughes estate is in no such danger of over-taxation.

In addition, Hill charged that California officials and Hughes' heirs had devised an artificial dispute between the two states as part of a compromise.

One condition of the compromise was that the Supreme Court settle the California-Texas controversy. Under it, California's share of the Hughes' estate would be 2 percent if Texas were judged to be Hughes' legal domicile and 18 percent if California were determined to have been his legal home.

Hughes' heirs, lacking the proper legal standing, thus have agreed to insure 2 percent of the taxable estate to California just to get the case to the Supreme Court, Hill charged.

He called the compromise a "collusive attempt to buy and sell this court's equitable jurisdiction."

A Houston probate court jury has ruled that Hughes was a Texas resident at the time of his death and has found that the so-called Mormon will, one of several purportedly left by Hughes, is a forgery. A trial to determine the legitimacy of the Mormon will has entered its fourth month in Las Vegas.

Hughes died April 5, 1976 while being rushed in a chartered jet from Acapulco, Mexico to Houston. He is buried in a Houston cemetery.

Treasury Department Hopes For Return of Silver Buck

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury Department, which two years ago resurrected the $2 bill, now wants to bring back a shrunken - and mostly copper - version of the once-popular silver dollar.

The department also told Congress it has rejected proposals to eliminate the half-dollar and that it wants to keep the penny indefinitely.

The reason behind the proposed shift to copper dollar coins is economic. The proposed coin will cost between 2 and 3 cents to produce and will last at least 15 years. In comparison, a paper dollar costs only 1.7 cents to produce but wears out quickly.

The Treasury would continue to produce dollar bills if the dollar coin proposal is passed.

"It is anticipated that the new dollar coin, sized between the quarter and half-dollar, would be more acceptable to the general public than the present dollar coin," said Undersecretary of the Treasury Bette B. Anderson.

Mrs. Anderson's remarks were in a Jan. 16 letter to the House coinage subcommittee, which will consider the changes before Congress acts on them.

Vending machine operators want a dollar coin because it would allow them to sell products costing more than a dollar. Some members of Congress have expressed fears that it also would allow vendors to raise prices.

Opposition has come from Nevada casinos, who say the current large silver dollars are attractive to gamblers.

Terry Marksberry, special projects officer for the Treasury, said if Congress approves the new dollar coin this year, the government can produce 250 million of them for distribution early next year.

The House subcommittee will begin hearings sometime this spring.

The administration is hoping a one-dollar coin would supplement the $2 bill, which has had trouble catching on in two years of production.

Marksberry said he has still not seen the results of a pilot promotion of the bills among stores in the Washington area but said more of the new currency has begun showing up in cash registers and bank windows.

As for the half dollar, the Treasury had said last year it wanted to get rid of this coin because it was unpopular. But Mrs. Anderson indicated Tuesday that she would like the issue settled separately.

"Rather than requesting legislation to eliminate the half-dollar coin from our coinage system at this time, we deem it sufficient to curtail production of half-dollar coins until consumer demand indicates that full production is justified," she said.

The Treasury has 126 million half-dollars on hand but only circulates about 11 million each year.

Into NCAA Penalties

Congress to Begin Hearings

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress, after more than five months of investigation, will begin public hearings Monday into the powerful police arm of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the major governing body of intercollegiate athletics in the United States. The House subcommittee on oversight and investigations will hold the first of what should be eight days of hearings into the policies of the NCAA, particularly the enforcement of its rules and regulations.

The subcommittee staff has visited seven of the some 100 colleges and universities involved in official inquiries by the NCAA since January 1970, the period covered by the Congressional investigations, as well as having studied thousands of documents.

First-day witnesses include J. Brent Clark, an attorney who resigned from the NCAA enforcement until last Dec. 30, and representatives of Mississippi State. On Tuesday Jack Fusak, a part NCAA president, and officials of Michigan State are scheduled to testify.

Mississippi State was suspended two years for alleged recruiting violations. The suspension expired last season. Michigan State was suspended three years for alleged football recruiting violations. The suspension ends after the 1978 season.

Clark, an Oklahoma lawyer who now works for the committee staff, is expected to testify that the NCAA has a policy of "selective punishment" under which certain major colleges are never investigated or penalized by the association when they are suspected of having violated NCAA rules.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., is studying whether the investigative methods of the NCAA provide for due process, whether the association is violating antitrust laws and whether it levies fair penalties against member colleges, their coaches and athletes.

The investigation of the NCAA enforcement program was instigated by Rep. James D. Santini, D-Nev., a member of the subcommittee. Santini got signatures of 68 House members and petitioned Moss after penalties were imposed on the University of Nevada-Las Vegas last summer.

District Champs

Longhorns to Rest

TT Hosts A&M In Tourney

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
Abe Lemons called it his "guardian angel." Eddie Sutton called it "dodging the bullet." But no matter what anybody calls it, the Texas Longhorns earned themselves an 11-day vacation Tuesday night as the curtain closed on the Southwest Conference regular basketball season.

Texas, ranked No. 14, and Arkansas, No. 4 ranked, will share the championship with 14-2 records but it's the surprising Longhorns who will sit back and rest while the other eight SWC clubs joust in the post-season tournament.

Lemons' longshot Longhorns clinched the bye with an 82-74 victory over Southern Methodist, prompting the Austin philosopher-in-residence to exude: "If we had to flip a coin with Arkansas we would have won that, too. This is our lucky year."

Lemons added "I think we've got a guardian angel." Arkansas' Sutton sighed "At the beginning of the year I would have sold out for 14-2. I thought it would have been good enough to win the league. But Texas had dodged the bullet two or three times, and they're in there with us."

Well, almost, Eddie. But Arkansas has to win three games now to get at Texas again.

Arkansas, which downed Texas Tech 58-49, hosts Texas Christian Saturday in the first round of the post-season tournament. Rice, which won a toss and decided it would rather play Houston than Arkansas, gets to do so on the court of its cross-town rival at Hofheinz Pavilion.

In other matchups, Texas A&M is at Texas Tech and Southern Methodist is at Baylor. One of these two games will be regionally televised in an announcement expected later today.

The survivors of the first round go to Houston's Summit for Thursday and Friday night elimination games. The winner plays Texas March 4 for the right to advance into the NCAA Midwest Regionals at Lawrence, Kan.

Baylor drubbed TCU 60-52 behind Vinnie Johnson's 37 points and Texas A&M tripped Rice 81-75 in other league finales Tuesday night.

Lemons said if any team needed the rest it was the 'Horns.

"We got a reprieve," he said. "Listen to that team in there. They are not shouting and carrying on. They are just taking it in stride. I'm not happy but I'm glad."

"It is like going to the dentist to get a tooth capped. You know it's good for you but it still hurts while it's happening. I don't think any of us realize how big this game was. We have never been here before."

Lemons said "We were scared at first...but here we are floating into the finals. And only

"There's no doubt in my mind that everybody will be going to spring training with a different attitude, ready to prove 1977 was a fluke year. I know we're going to be doing things different this year, right from the start."

Anderson said he now believed it was important to win a lot of games during the pre-season in Florida.

"I'm going to make sure the pitchers who will come North with us do most of the pitching in Florida," Anderson said. "I want the regulars to play in a lot of games. We've got to get together again, get close, get used to each other on the field."

The Reds manager said that there would be no criticism this year about the Reds' pitching.

"The addition of Bill Bonham and having Seaver around for the full season really gives us stability," Anderson said. "Our problems last year were painful, but they did give some of our young pitchers a chance to get some valuable experience."

"It looks like our starting rotation will include Seaver, Bonham, Fred Norman and Doug Capilla, but in the early part of the season, with so many off-days, I will probably go with just three or four starters."

Lakers Win Fifth Straight

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Watch out for the Los Angeles Lakers. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar & Co. posted their fifth straight road victory and their 14th triumph in the last 17 games, beating the Chicago Bulls 106-104 Tuesday night as Lou Hudson hit a 30-foot jumper with nine seconds to play for the winning margin.

"I think the guys have made up their minds that they want to win," said Lakers Coach Jerry West, whose club is now 31-27 and limbing after a disastrous start marred by Abdul-Jabbar's broken hand and the suspension of Kermit Washington for punching Rudy Tomjanovich.

The mid-season trades that brought Adrian Dantley and Charlie Scott to the Lakers have given the club added firepower. Hudson had the hot hand against the Bulls, hitting for 29 points, while Dantley scored 24 game-high 34 points in the extra session. Knicks 122, Sonics 120 New York trailed by 19 early in the fourth period before storming back to win with 42 points in the final 12 minutes. Bob McAdoo scored 37 points and Butch Beard 20 for New York and teamed with rookies Ray Williams, Glen Gonzalez and Toby Knight to turn the game back around.

Rockets, 111, Celtics 96 Houston got 32 points from Calvin Murphy and 23 from backcourtmate John Lucas in beating the undermanned Celtics. Boston's Kermit Washington was withheld from the game to avert a possible incident in Houston, site of his knockout of the Rockets' Rudy Tomjanovich earlier this season.

76ers 127, Cavaliers 114 George McGinnis scored 26 points and Doug Collins 24 as Philadelphia moved in front by 25 points in the third period and coasted to its sixth straight victory. The Sixers played so well that Julius Erving, who missed six games because of a leg injury, was needed for only brief duty and scored just 10 points.

Suns 114, Braves 111 Walter Davis scored 32 points and Paul Westphal 29, but the big play for Phoenix came from forward Gar Heard, who intercepted an inbound pass and scored on a stuff shot with 4:01 left. That made it 102-101 and Phoenix never trailed after that.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Vijay Amritraj is returning to the Los Angeles Strings.

Amritraj, the top-ranked tennis player in India, has signed a multi-year contract to perform for the World Team Tennis club. It was announced Tuesday. Terms of the pact were not revealed.

Sandies Earn Region I Spot

Former Hereford head baseball coach Barry Arwine gained the bi-district championship he narrowly missed last season while guiding the Herd Tuesday night when his Amarillo High Sandies clipped Monterey 54-48 at the WTSU Fieldhouse.

Mitchell who was the difference in the game. Mitchell closed out with 20 points, and picked off 15 cars in leading the Sandies to a 38-25 edge in that department.

The Sandies, now 23-6, survived a desperate Plainsmen comeback through the final three quarters after building up a seemingly insurmountable 20-2 lead. Monterey, 19-12, was extremely cold in the early going, hitting only five of 24 shots from the field in the first half of play.

David Davidson, a steady performer for Monterey all season, led MHS with 16 points, while Tony Hamby tallied 14. Keith Jenkins led the Plainsmen in rebounds with 10.

The win sends the Sandies into the Region I tournament in Abilene Friday with a big match against the winner of the Fort Worth Dunbar-Arlington game, which will be played tonight in Fort Worth.

Dunbar, state 4A runners-up last year, are 32-2 this season, while Arlington has forged a 25-7 mark.

The Amarillo game versus the winner tonight will be played at 4 p.m. Friday, with El Paso Eastwood (26-3) set to take on Abilene High (32-4) at 8 p.m. The two winners will meet Saturday for the right to go to the state finals in Austin.

Snow Boosts Support of Electronic Banking

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) - While industry was halted in vast areas of the nation by snows and rains and howling gales, and sometimes crashing tides as well, some aspects of business were enjoying a boom of sorts. Among them: Downtown hotels, sellers of galoshes, travel agents and those electronic funds transfer systems outside of banks that can be used to obtain cash, pay bills, make loans and accept deposits. "This winter's snowstorms may have done more in a few days to promote acceptance of EFT than the banking industry has been able to do in five years," said one representative of a group of banks. During the January white-out in Columbus, Ohio, the City National Bank said its 45 automatic tellers totaled 15,000 transactions in two days, a 300 percent increase over normal volume. In the Boston area, the Bay Banks reported more than a 100 percent rise in the use of its 30 automatic tellers, each of which it says normally makes about 1,000 transactions a week. The times, of course, were abnormal, and in many instances the banks themselves were closed, forcing customers to utilize the electronic devices. Whether customers will continue to use them isn't certain. Nevertheless, bank officials are happy. They hope that customers, forced by the emergency to learn the newer method of transacting business, might find it just as comfortable as the old system. A spot survey by a newly formed banking group, whose purpose admittedly is to spur the use of EFT, showed the increases throughout the blizzard areas were not limited to just a few banks. The Provident National Bank of Philadelphia said its point of sale terminals in 12 convenience stores registered a 30 percent increase. In addition to permitting customers to pay for goods electronically - transferring funds from a customer's bank account to the store's account - customers can also obtain $25 cash from the store without a purchase. Citibank in New York reported business up about 20 percent at its 400 terminals in almost 200 sites in the metropolitan area. It said business also rose 20 percent during the big January storm here. At Long Island's Hempstead Bank, officials said 2,500 EFT customers made 12 percent more transactions - mainly payments of utility and local store bills - while the bank was closed during the February storm. The banking industry would love to have the public accept its automatic tellers for a number of reasons, and so it undoubtedly seized upon the storm experience to promote their usage. Automatic tellers reduce the need for clerks and bookkeepers, and are said to be more accurate as well. And because of their automatic bill-paying ability, they hold the promise of locking in the business of retailers and others. But all this depends on convincing people to use the automatic devices, and whether or not these customers will continue to view them only as emergency devices remains to be seen.

FTC To Consider Proposals For Cutting Kiddie Advertising

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission is about to consider several proposals to severely cut television advertising aimed at children, an FTC official says. Tracy A. Westen, who headed the team of FTC employees that spent months developing the proposals, outlined them in an interview Tuesday. They include:

- Banning such advertising on television programs with substantial audiences of children aged 6 or under.

- Prohibiting television ads for highly sugared foods aimed at older children, perhaps 7 to 12 years old, by limiting such ads to after 9 p.m.

- Requiring advertisers of other products designed to appeal to 7-to 12-year-olds to buy extra time for "counter-advertising" to present health, safety or nutritional information about such products. Western, deputy director of the commission's bureau of consumer protection, said the staff recommendations will be formally announced Monday, the day before they are presented to the commission. The staff recommendations would have to be approved by the commission before becoming effective. Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk, in an earlier interview, said he was "convinced some action has to be taken" to guard young children against television ads for products with large sugar concentrations. Manufacturers of sugar-coated cereals have cited studies, however, that they say show no relationship between cereals containing sugar and tooth decay. Cereal and candy manufacturers have been mobilizing to counter any FTC move to restrict their products' advertising. One possible attack on the FTC under discussion among industry groups is a legal challenge claiming that such regulations violate advertisers' freedom of speech. Some cereal manufacturers have embarked on a newspaper advertising campaign to rebut the poor-nutrition charges made against sugary cereals and are including in their television ads a disclaimer that their products are only "one part of a nutritious breakfast." The FTC scrutiny of children's advertising began after it received petitions from Action for Television's Children and the Center for Science in the Public Interest. The two groups contended that such ads may destroy a child's view of a good diet and can lead to cavities. For more than a decade, parent groups and consumer activists have campaigned to restrain what they see as hucksterism aimed at the young, particularly ads for sugary foods. In some cereals, sugar makes up half the product's content. Saturday morning television, dominated by cartoon shows aimed at children, is sponsored in large part by sugar-coated cereals and candy.

Briscoe Lauds NRC Mission

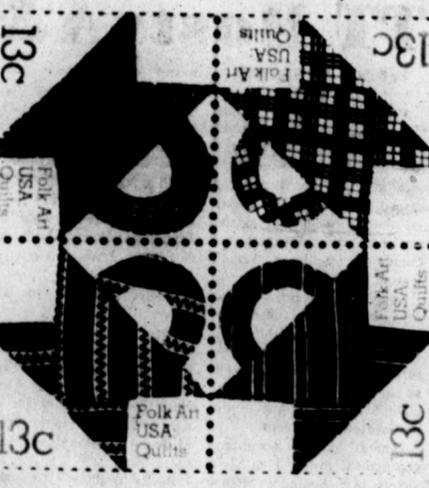

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe has urged a non "super" agency to do what it can to keep Texas a "superstate." Briscoe, whose delay in getting the Natural Resources Council started might cost Texas federal funds, pledged Tuesday that he was "committed" to the NRC's mission. He noted that a national magazine had proclaimed Texas a "superstate," and he added: "I am proud of this accolade. I intend to maintain Texas' position at the forefront of the nation in providing business and job opportunities and a clean and healthful living environment for our people."

Briscoe listened to followup remarks by state land commissioner Bob Armstrong, then departed - after spending 53 minutes at the council's first meeting - for another appointment. The 1977 Legislature created the council, largely in response to coastal problems, made Briscoe chairman, directed him to appoint the other members and authorized him to hire staff. Documents and sources indicated that Briscoe used the council's payroll to camouflage seven employees of his energy office. The measure creating the council went into effect Sept. 1, but Briscoe waited five months before appointing a 13-member advisory committee to the council. The council faces a March 1 deadline to report on coastal problems and possible solutions. The council is comprised of representatives of the governor's office, 13 state agencies and the University of Texas, Texas A&M and Houston systems. A well-informed source said Briscoe's delay in getting the council off the ground could endanger Texas' ability to deal with growth along the rich and populous Gulf Coast. The state's plan is due to be in federal hands in June. Briscoe said the council "is not a superagency" charged with making policy but should recommend action to the governor and legislature. "The need is not for emotional responses to development and environmental concerns, as has occurred in other parts of the nation," deliberate resolution of the issues we inevitably face. Armstrong, a member of the council, said $120 million has been spent on coastal studies in the past 10 years, but few of the reports are available, retrievable or accessible to the people who might need them. He said there is "no reason" for Texas to have the coastal problems of New Jersey and California "if we are far-sighted and if we think."

Drivers Booted In Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - Almost 50 school bus drivers, after refusing for the second straight day to make their runs, were fired Tuesday by the Dallas Independent School District. The drivers were protesting working conditions and pay, including the failure of the school system to pay them for five days that weather forced unscheduled closings. The drivers, after refusing to make their rounds Monday, showed up for work Tuesday morning. When asked to man their buses, they responded by asking whether their demands, including an increase of at least 75 cents an hour in their $3.25 hourly pay, had been taken under consideration. Told the demands were irrelevant to their work Tuesday morning, the protest leaders refused to make their runs and were fired. The rest of the drivers also were fired, but an "unknown" number of them later changed their minds and decided to continue working. School officials had told the striking drivers Monday night that state law makes it illegal to strike or to threaten to strike. School officials filled in with administrative personnel to complete the bus runs both Monday and Tuesday. The word "kremlin" means a fortress in Russian.

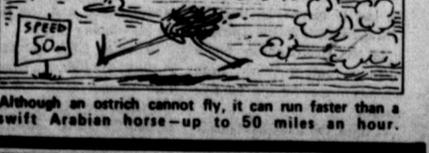

Quilt Stamps Scheduled To Go on Sale Locally

A block of four 13-cent stamps portraying segments from a rare American quilt will be issued in Charleston, W. Va., on March 8, the U.S. Postal Service announced today. Hereford Postmaster Nolan Grady said Tuesday that his office has received the quilt stamps, which are scheduled to go on sale locally March 9. The first day of issue ceremony will be conducted at the Science and Culture Building in the West Virginia State Capitol Complex. The four stamps, each in a square format, portray "basket" designs from a quilt made in New York City in 1875. The quilt is owned by the New York City Firm, American Hurrah Antiques. The block of four is in the American Folk Art Series, which began in 1977 with insurance of the Pueblo Indian Pottery block of four stamps. The stamps were designed by Christopher Pullman of Boston, Massachusetts. These are his first stamp designs. The modeler was Esther Porter, of the Department of Engraving and Printing.
