Scaffold Collapses As 51 Fall to Death

ST. MARYS, W. Va. (AP) - All 51 workers atop a scaffold inside a power company cooling tower were killed Thursday when the construction framework collapsed and the crew fell 168 feet to the ground in a twisted mass of steel and rubble.

Scott Widmeyer, press aide to Gov. Jay Rockefeller, said hours after the accident, "There are 51 confirmed dead."

Rescuers had to pull many of the victims from under the debris inside the base of the huge circular concrete tower.

A local fire station was pressed into service as a temporary morgue where relatives came to identify the dead, including eight members of one family working at the site.

John Pepler, a laborer standing on the ground in the middle of the tower when the disaster occurred, said the scaffold, wrapped around the inside of the tower, began peeling away and then fell.

Pepler, 38, said, "The first thing I heard was concrete falling. I had just sent a basket up. I looked over my left shoulder and I could see it falling. I could see people falling through the air and everything falling."

"They just fell like dominoes," a witness said. "I looked up and men were screaming and hollering."

Stanton Pair Designated Art Medalists

Cynthia Streun and Felix Mungia Jr., both students at Stanton Junior High School, learned this week that they have been designated as silver medalists in the 8th International Children's Art Exhibition.

Miss Streun is an eighth grader and the daughter of Mrs. Murlene Streun. Mungia is a ninth grade student and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Mungia Sr.

Their artwork, along with efforts from four other Stanton students, was judged in Tokyo, Japan by a panel of international experts. Winning entries will be included in traveling art exhibitions around the world, including three tours of the United States. The exhibit will be featured this year at New York City, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., Dallas, Houston, San Francisco and Chicago, as well as other major cities around the globe.

The annual exhibition is sponsored by Pentel Corp.

Pepler said he jumped under a truck ramp inside the tower and the four other workers with him ran to the center of the tower. All those on the ground escaped injury, he said.

A twisted mass of tables, lumber, steel and concrete lay over the scene an hour after the collapse.

Just after the accident, 21 bodies were wrapped in khaki blankets and lined up in plastic sheets at the plant site near the Ohio River town in northwestern West Virginia.

The cooling tower was being built for Monongahela Power Co., which draws river water to make steam and generate electricity. When completed, the cooling tower is to be used to cool down the water before it flows back into the river.

Research Cottrell of Boundbrook N.J. was building the tower for the power company.

Monongahela Power said the structure was about one-third completed. A spokesman said the diameter at the base was 360 feet and the tower was to be 430 feet tall when finished.

George Morrison, an engineer, said "I was on the ground when it started making noise. It was just a roar."

Another witness said of the doomed men, "They knew what was happening, but there wasn't anything they could do about it."

Lee Steele, of nearby Shultz, said he lost four of his five sons, a brother, two brothers-in-law and a nephew. The surviving son, Robert, 35, who said he was also employed at the construction site but was not on the scaffolding, identified his brothers as Gayle, 32; Ronnie, 30; Ernest, 28; and Miles, 25.

Town Stunned By Disaster

BELMONT, W. Va. (AP) - Adrian Hays went home early, his face worn by the mountain sun and the worst day's work of his life.

Hays, a volunteer fireman at nearby Belmont, helped dress 51 shattered bodies in plastic Thursday, helped tag each with a number, helped deliver them to the families who were led one at a time into the blackcurtained booth to affirm their loss.

"Fifty-one," he whispered. "Fifty-one men in bags. Thank God I can go now."

Slowly, hearse after hearse, he they Cadillacs or panel trucks, inched past the willows on Main Street to the Belmont fire station, just around the corner from a ramshackle City Hall.

Through an open window, the clatter of a typewriter, methodically cranking out death certificates, punctuated the hush.

An older woman stood outside the United Methodist Church and mourned the loss of her favorite grandson, who had only last week given her a birthday gift, a chandelier that she had wanted for years.

Inside was the dead man's wife, in near faint, under the arm of Pastor Amos McVey.

"We knew he was dead when we were called to the armory at Parkersburg and they began reading the list," said the grandmother. "We heard the name of his morgue at the fire station in Belmont to identify the victims.

As the dead lay inside the dark, gray concrete building behind the City Hall, state police ushered in the relatives to assist them in identifying the bodies.

A young woman in her early 20s left the building in tears on the arm of an older man.

Names of most of the victims were not immediately released, but the New Jersey subcontractor on the project said most were from New Jersey or West Virginia.

Cattlemen Say Rise Cyclical

NEW YORK (AP) - Beef prices are headed beyond the record highs of mid-1975, and cattlemen, who say they were unfairly branded as profiteers back then, are seeking to head off criticism before it comes to pass.

The beef industry, said Richard McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association, is cyclical. Prices decline as well as rise, and what we are heading into now, he explains, is the rising phase.

But almost certainly, he promises, price stability will follow, as cattlemen produce more heifers and steers, and as consumers cut back on consumption, now running about 126 pounds carcass weight per person.

Cattlemen, said McDougal, a Lovelock, Nevada, rancher, farmer and feedlot operator, have just come through their worst few years ever, losing close to $30 billion because of overproduction.

Forced to trim their herds in order to survive, the 1.5 million full-time and part-time cattlemen now have less beef to offer. Because of this, and higher middlemen costs, prices already have soared.

McDougal reports the national average price of five beef cuts reached $1.78 a pound on April 13, up 15 cents from a month earlier. But still, he reminds you, no higher than prices were three years ago.

During this three-year period, he

Mall, WIFE Slate Rally

Sugarland Mall merchants and the Hereford Chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) are sponsoring a political rally at Sugarland Mall Saturday from 2-4 p.m.

All local political candidates have indicated their intention to be on hand at the rally, which will present voters with an opportunity to visit with candidates and hear their stands on the issues prior to the May 6 Democratic primary, according to Susan Hicks, WIFE president.

Coffee and donuts will be served during the Saturday afternoon session.

Brand Farm Issue To Run Sunday

A special salute to Deaf Smith County agriculture in tabloid form will be featured in Sunday's edition of The Brand.

The special ag edition is packed with feature articles and photos on various aspects of the local agri-industry scene.

Included among articles in this year's special edition are a look at how three management practices can help local farmers conserve and extend the life of their available irrigation water supply; a history on the local chapter of the national and out-of-state WIFE organization; a report on how Deaf Smith County lived its state cattle feeding in 1977; projected acreage on crops in Deaf Smith County for 1978; and an enlightening talk with three young men who haven't been in farming that long, but who already have some definite ideas about do's and don'ts in agriculture.

Watch for the agriculture salute Sunday.

White Claims Daniel Refuses To Tackle Important Issues

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

State Attorney General candidate Mark White Thursday accused his opponent in the Democratic primary, Price Daniel Jr., of refusing to face up to critical issues in Texas.

White met with supporters at the Cason Steak House during a campaign tour through West Texas.

"My opponent has always fallen away from the important issues," said White, former secretary of state. "He falls off when they get hot and tough. I don't think the people of Texas can afford an attorney general who won't fight for the state."

"When I was secretary of state, I worked with every elected official in Congress. My opponent (former speaker of the House) couldn't get along with John Hill, couldn't get along with Dolph Briscoe, couldn't get along with Bill Hobby (lieutenant governor)."

White said that if elected the first step he will take as attorney general will be the initiation of a lawsuit against Montana and Wyoming which plan to tax coal shipments to Texas.

"One of the most important things about the attorney general's office is to make certain Texas is protected on energy. And I think it's important to make sure Texas gets treated fairly in this energy switch."

"Coal is being sent to us at very high prices. We're buying coal from Montana and Wyoming to generate electricity, and they're putting a 30 percent tax on that coal."

"That 30 percent tax will cost Texans $400 million in the next five years, and I propose to fight that the first day in office. My opponent yesterday (Wednesday) said that's one case he didn't want to fight."

White said that regulation of the intrastate gas market "is a great mistake if we go the way the federal government has gone with regulation, we'll be in the same shortage situation they have up in Ohio."

"The law of supply and demand can work if we get the federal government out of the energy business. This government intrusion into the rights of the state is one of the things my opponent has problems with—he won't step out and fight for the state."

White, in response to a question concerning his handling of complaints dealing with the open records and open meetings acts, said, "We'll handle initial requests within 10 days."

He added that he plans to work closely with local governments, install a toll-free line in the attorney general's office, and hire a staff of experienced prosecutors to assist him in lawsuits.

Musical Groups Perform in Last Contests

Music season at Hereford High School and La Plata Junior High hit a climactic note today.

The bands and orchestras at those two schools and the two junior high choirs were scheduled to wind up their competitive seasons today during the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo, while the high school choir ends its contest year today and Saturday in Dallas at the Six Flags Over Texas Music Festival.

Stanton Junior High's three musical groups performed Thursday in Amarillo.

Bands, orchestras and choirs from throughout the southwest have been participating in the eighth annual Amarillo music festival while competing for the distinction of outstanding musical group in each category.

La Plata Junior High's band has been named best of the festival in its division five times in eight years. Neither the high school band nor Stanton band has earned the distinction.

"That's the goal of our bands, orchestras and choirs," said high school band director Randy Vaughn. "I think the high school band this year has a good shot at it."

The high school symphonic band played at 10:20 a.m. today. Hereford's No. 2 group, the concert band, was scheduled to perform at 4:40 p.m. La Plata's band also played today.

The Stanton band performed Thursday, earning a II rating, the second-highest possible score awarded in the festival.

Stanton's orchestra also earned a II Thursday. The high school orchestra performed at 1:55 p.m. today and La Plata at 9 a.m.

Stanton's mixed choir scored a II Thursday, while it's all-girl choir earned a III.

La Plata singers performed today in the festival.

The high school choir bypassed the Greater Southwest Music Festival to perform in the Six Flags event today and Saturday.

The high school symphonic band, according to Vaughn, is coming off an exceptional performance in the University Interscholastic League regional contest April 19 at Canyon and a lackluster showing in the Buccaneer Music Festival April 21-22 at Corpus Christi.

The symphonic band earned a I in concert and a II in sight-reading in the regional contest to be outdone only by Pampa and Amarillo High, both of which managed two I I ratings.

"The symphonic band did 'Black Horse Troop March', 'Canide' and 'Symphony in B-Flat, Third Movement.' I think those numbers were the most sophisticated numbers the Hereford symphonic band has ever played. And it was more difficult than the program played by either Amarillo High or Pampa," Vaughn said.

"Everyone was so impressed with our symphonic band because the kids played so well."

The Hereford concert band, on the other hand, mustered a I in concert and I in sight-reading, as did the concert bands from Amarillo High and Pampa. That performance meant a Sweepstakes trophy for the 130-member HHS group, which won it for last week's performance and for scoring a I in marching in the fall.

"Everyone was also impressed with our concert band, and rightly so," Vaughn said. "This is the fourth year of our concert band, and our first sweepstakes. These kids are fantastic."

The symphonic band missed the sweepstakes trophy by a single rating since it got a I in marching last fall and I last week in sight-reading.

Tom Hutchinson, band director at Oklahoma State and a judge at the UIL contest, said on a critique sheet of the Hereford symphonic band:

"A most enjoyable pleasure to judge you."

Another judge, Gene Smith of Cameron (Okla.) Junior College, said:

"A most mature and musical performance."

Norvel Howell, judge and Clovis, N.M., High School band director, said:

"A great playing band, great director, all in the tradition of Hereford High School bands."

Stanton's band scored a I in concert and II in sight-reading at the regional contest, while La Plata managed a I in concert and III in sight-reading.

"We were the only city to have all three bands make I's in concert. Stanton was the only junior high band to get that high of a rating in concert. I'm very pleased with all our kids," Vaughn said.

The high school symphonic band, the concert band and the orchestra all earned II ratings at Corpus Christi, where Vaughn said "the competition was the toughest you'll find anywhere."

Fighting Continues In Afghanistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - More fighting was reported today in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, despite broadcast claims that rebel troops led by an air force commander had "eliminated" President Mohammed Daoud.

Afghanistan's borders and airports closed, and all commercial communication channels were cut. But Western diplomats in New Delhi said their embassies in Kabul reported about 200 bodies were seen in the streets.

There was no report on the situation in the important military centers of Kandhar and Herat, and one diplomat commented: "To seize Kabul is not seize Afghanistan. Resistance in the form of guerrilla warfare could continue for months."

The rebels led by Lt. Gen. Dagarwal Abdul Qadir launched the coup Thursday with tanks and jet fighters, ringing key government buildings and capturing the Defense Ministry, the diplomats said.

Pierce fighting raged through the night in sections of the city where two army divisions are based, the sources reported. By sunrise it had subsided somewhat but small-arms fire could still be heard.

Meanwhile, the air force's Soviet Su-7 fighters fired rockets down Darulman Road in the center of the city toward the Justice Ministry and the headquarters of the army central corps. The informants said the rebels encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, and one plane was shot down.

A heavy pall of smoke hung over the city of 500,000, and no civilians were seen out of doors, the sources said. Rebel troops surrounded some Western embassies and refused to permit diplomats to leave their compounds.

Government Asks For Sacrifices

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government is asking both executives and workers to make sacrifices as it tries to determine if inflation is getting worse.

After rising an average of 0.5 percent each month last year, consumer prices rose 0.8 percent in January and 0.6 percent in February. The Labor Department was releasing March price figures today.

The worsening inflation prompted President Carter on April 11 to announce a ceiling on federal pay increases and a plan to slow the government's contribution to inflation. He also said he would try to persuade unions and businesses to hold down price and wage increases.

Presidential aide Robert S. Strauss, who was named to head the anti-inflation program, said Wednesday he is asking "each American to insure that he makes some contribution to lowering inflation rates this year."

As one step, he asked businessmen to hold down their own pay increases. And Barry Bosworth, director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, said inflation cannot be checked soon unless big labor unions hold back their demands.

Most of the recent price increases have been in food, particularly among meat products.

Consumer food prices went up 1.2 percent in both January and February. If averaged out over the year, that would mean an increase of about 15 percent.

Red Brigade Planned Widespread Attack

ROME (AP) - The Red Brigades planned a widespread "terrifying" attack 24 hours after it kidnapped Aldo Moro to "bring the country to its knees," but the leaders of the terrorist army called it off, the conservative newspaper Il Tempo reported today.

Il Tempo said the disclosure came from Cristoforo Piancone, 28, a Red Brigades member who was wounded and captured after the ambush of a prison guard in Turin April 11. He was quoted as saying, in what it called an "exclusive dialogue" from his hospital bed:

"In connection with Moro's kidnapping, 24 hours later we should have carried out a subversive plan aimed at bringing the country to its knees, something terrifying. ... But those at the top level in the organization stopped it because it was felt to be politically inopportune at the time."

Il Tempo said Piancone did not elaborate on the plan. But it said he gave this detailed description of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist organization, which kidnapped Moro, the president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party, on March 16.

"We are 1,500 all told, divided in four local squads - one independent from the other, and based in Milan, Genoa, Turin and Rome - 1,500 persons dedicated to a revolutionary cause and for whom death is not an obstacle, committed to killing and aware of the risk of being killed."

Sunny Skies Replace Floods in Virginia

By The Associated Press
Sunny weather prevailed east of the Mississippi today. It was especially welcome in coastal Virginia where rains and high winds had created major beach erosion and urban flooding.

Virginia Gov. John Dalton was expected to decide today whether to ask President Carter to declare flood-ravaged sections of Western, Southside and Tidewater Virginia disaster areas.

Dalton declared a state of emergency Thursday in the Roanoke Valley, Danville and Tidewater areas and said there was a "strong likelihood" he would seek a federal disaster declaration today.

No deaths or serious injuries were reported in the flooding.

Rainy weather prevailed from Washington state through the northern Rockies into the Mississippi valley.

Oklahoma and Texas also expected showers today.

Sunny skies were expected from California, across Arizona and southern Utah into Mexico.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 75 in El Paso, Texas to 28 in Greenville, Maine.

Weather

West Texas - Fair most sections through Saturday except scattered thunderstorms southern portions today and eastern portions tonight. No significant temperature changes. Highs mostly in 80s except 90s along Rio Grande. Lows upper 40s north and mountains to lower 60s south.

Music

Delmar Junior College in Corpus Christi, a band or orchestra must either have scored a I in the regional contest or a II in the previous year's festival.

"I don't think any of our kids played as well as they could have," Vaughn said. "And the kids knew it. They were sunburned and tired. But, under the circumstances, I thought they probably played as well as could be expected." The bands and orchestra, while in Corpus, stayed in condominiums. Free time was consumed at the Gulf of Mexico.

Scaffold

inspectors left for the scene immediately after the accident. The two headed to St. Marys from Washington.

OSHA said a team of scaffold specialists was being assembled.

As OSHA spokesman, James Foster, said the general construction site had been inspected by OSHA since the project began, but no details of the findings were immediately available.

Foster added that the specific operations of Research Cottrell had not been inspected.

Death Scene

supervisor, so we knew he was gone, too."

Parkersburg, Belmont, Schultz, Sistersville and St. Marys. Most everyone in these little towns, just on the West Virginia side of the Ohio River, knows one of the men who died when the scaffolding collapsed Thursday morning in a Monongahela Power Co. cooling tower.

Lee Steele of Schultz lost four of his five sons, a brother, two brothers-in-law and three nephews.

Dale Johnson, working on an already completed sister tower, saw the accident that killed his brother-in-law, Emmett Steele, who was Lee Steele's brother.

"Just a rumbling noise, no screams, just a rumble," he said.

"The scaffolding just unraveled from one end to another all the way around the tower. And those men tried to run ahead of it."

No one survived the fall, a drop of 168 feet.

"We worked too fast," Johnson said. "They jacked up the forms for pouring concrete too fast."

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is investigating. OSHA said scaffolding specialists had visited the site all along.

"Let me tell you about OSHA," said Roger Miller, a second cousin to the Steeles and himself a construction worker. "Those damned inspectors come around and ask about hand rails and that's about all. They don't know a thing."

With that, Miller resumed his drink.

reminds you, many cattlemen had to borrow on the equity in their lands in order to survive. But they did so, he said, because they knew the market would correct itself.

"We have no power to manipulate prices," said McDougal. "We are 1.5 million people making 1.5 million individual decisions."

What can the shopper do? Reduce red meat consumption, of course.

As consumption drops, McDougal explained, those cattlemen who increased their herds in order to take advantage of higher prices will then find themselves with an excess, and prices again will drop.

That pattern has been repeated nearly every decade this century, a reflection, cattlemen say, of the free market at work - and the biology of the cow as well.

To produce additional beef, for example, it is necessary for cattlemen to plan, often imperfectly, for years ahead.

one of several he intended Thursday night.

He sat in Rose's Chalet, open for business as usual, barely 100 yards from Gate No. 6 and the rubble left from the morning's horror.

a fact often difficult to explain to urbanites who rarely see cows on the hoof.

The market for cattle, incidentally, is more likely than ever to be the restaurant rather than the dining room table.

In recent months, 40 percent of beef consumption has been outside the home, a goodly percentage of that in the increasing popular fast food outlets. No less than 45 percent of all beef today is ground.

And because of that supply-demand imbalance, ground beef prices are likely to rise fastest of all. The explanation: a shortage of older cows and grass fed - as opposed to corn fed - steers and heifers.

These lower-priced forms of beef generally go to the hamburger market, but in the past two or three difficult years they have been culled from herds. As a result, higher-priced, "fed" beef must be utilized.

The Abundant Life

NOT HOPELESS

BY BOB WEAR

WHEN I WAS A BOY, the talk and the obvious anxiety of my parents and other older people kept me upset and scared. According to most of the talk, there was no hope. They made me feel that there was not a very promising future for me. There was very little optimism among these people. At least, it was not strong enough to make an impression. It is true that some of the way since then has been rough, but not impossible. We have made it, but could have done better; if there had been a better climate, with just a little hope.

WE LIVE IN DIFFICULT TIMES NOW, but, historically, this has been true in each generation; has it not? Just what do we expect? Do we have any reason for honestly thinking that there can be a paradise on earth? If there is such a reason, I don't know anything about it. Nevertheless, we must also realize that there is no justification for giving up. We are "not hopeless," unless we want to be. Just as others before us worked their way through difficult days and perplexing situations, because they refused to give up; we can handle the problems of our time.

"THE TIMES ARE WORSE than they have ever been" is the expressed opinion of many people. Historically, this is not true. This is not an effort to minimize the undesirable and frightening present-day conditions, but, at the same time, there are many things for which to be thankful. Even though we do not know exactly what we will choose to do, and we do have a choice; we are "not helpless." We cannot afford to be hopeless. The challenge is a big one, and, at times, it may seem to be overwhelming. Nevertheless, we can do, as other people have always done, whatever we wish to do. We can give up, or continue to try.

WE WILL CONTINUE TO TRY, many of us will, because this is an expression of the innate will to live. Of course, there are no guarantees; and we do not have prophetic powers; but we are "not hopeless". For one thing, we cannot afford to give over to total despair. To do this, would weaken us in our resolve and in our determination, and would hinder us in our efforts to continue our most effective living.

"HOPE, OF ALL FASHION, most befriends us here; joy has her tears, and transport has her death; hope, like a cordial, innocent though strong, man's heart at once inspires and sereneness, nor makes him pay his wisdom for his joys." - Young.

THERE WILL BE PROBLEMS always, and there will be failures; but there will be some solutions and some success. We are "not hopeless".

Veteran Traveler Logs 2 Million Miles

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - What do the Pope, Jackie Gleason and Peter Ustinov have in common?

They've all met George Clark.

And who is George Clark? Just a retired meter reader for Northern States Power Co., who loves to travel.

Since retirement, Clark has logged more than two million miles. At age 76 he's lugged a heavy suitcase around so much that a doctor diagnosed a sore arm as "suitcase elbow."

He's spent about $50,000 on traveling - and he's seen the world, from the Soviet Union to Hawaii, from Ireland to Nova Scotia, from Africa to the Rose Bowl.

He had an audience with the Pope in the Vatican. He spent several days living with Indians on the Amazon River and visited the crews who were building the controversial Alaska pipeline.

He's trekked across the globe so many times that he just had to bump into a few important people, even while traveling mostly in the cheapest way possible.

When he tried a supersonic flight to London his seatmate happened to be Jackie Gleason. When fishing in northern Alaska once, he bumped into a bearded fellow who turned out to be actor Peter Ustinov.

Clark says he likes most places, except possibly South America. "I took movies down there once and they threw rocks at me," he complained.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

With the event of our annual Clean-Up Week here in Hereford, I would like to make mention of a much appreciated project.

As I was working at St. Anthony's Cemetery Saturday morning, two cars drove in and each had a load of girls. I found out that they were from a local Campfire group. They proceeded to do a thorough clean up of the entire cemetery.

I certainly do, and I'm sure all of those who have loved ones buried at St. Anthony's Cemetery appreciate this action.

Many thanks to the Campfire leaders and members for the thoughtfulness of this project.

Sincerely,
James Jesko

MISS TEXAS BARBRA HORAN
...gunning for Miss USA honors

Texas Making Bid For Miss USA Title

[EDITOR'S NOTE: Miss Texas Barbara Horan was in Hereford last month as mistress of ceremonies at the local pageant. Her state crown will be up for grabs this summer with Miss Hereford Stephanie Stringer in competition for the title of Miss Texas 1979.]

Barbra Horan, Miss Texas 1978, arrived this past week in Charleston, S.C. in anticipation of the 28th annual Miss USA Pageant to be staged at Gillard Auditorium at 8 p.m. Saturday. Along with Miss Texas, fifty contestants have been selected to compete for the title which will take one of them to the nationally televised Miss Universe Pageant in July.

Last year's winner, Kim

Tomes of Houston, will officially conclude her reign by crowning her successor before an anticipated audience of 5,000 and an unlimited television audience via CBS network.

Judges for the annual event include Leroy Neiman, artist; Barbara Peterson, Miss USA 1976; Keir Dullea, actor; Eileen Ford, Ford Modeling Agency; Joseph Barbera of the Muppets; Theodore Bikel, New York actor; Peter Graves of Mission Impossible and Haven Moses of the Denver Broncos football team.

Following the pageant, the 1978 Miss USA will remain in Charleston for three days for sightseeing and personal appearances.

Ann Landers Gift Suggestions

DEAR ANN: Will you please tell your readers not to throw away their money? What I'm getting at is the utterly useless gifts young people select for older people.

I'm a widow, nearly 75. On my last birthday I received from my grown grandchildren (they are teenagers) a dart board, a tube of bright red lipstick and a chain belt like the young girls wear.

Older folks on a limited income can always use bedroom slippers or skin lotion or something in the food line. A canned ham, a turkey, or a fruit basket would be mighty welcome. Please tell them, Ann. I can't. -- Silver Threads

DEAR SILVER: You DID -- and I'm glad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I did something really rotten. I betrayed the confidence of a close friend and I don't know why I did it. (Yes, I really do know. I was trying to build myself up and make it look like I was an "insider.")

This friend of mine has never actually said anything to me about my betrayal, but I think she knows I blabbed. Now, Ann, please tell me if I should confess all and apologize or would it be better to keep my mouth shut and hope she never hears? I'm afraid she will never trust me again.

I keep wishing I could transfer to another planet -- or at least to another school -- but that's out. Please give me some advice, Ann. -- No More Miss Big Mouth

DEAR MISS: Go to your friend and tell her what you did. Apologize. Far better to get everything out in the open than to trust to luck that the truth never surfaces.

And let this be a lesson to you. If you learn in your teens never to betray a confidence or carry tales, it will be quite an achievement.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote you a letter last week and tore it up. After I read the darned thing I realized it was full of whining and self-pity. I've written you several letters that I haven't mailed but just writing them did me a world of good.

Today's letter is going into the mailbox. It's a long overdue expression of appreciation. You helped me when my children were small and you helped me when they were in their teens. You helped again when they married. (I clipped out your rules of "Do's and Don't's" for in-laws.)

You cleared the air in our home when hurt and resentment and misunderstanding clouded our thinking. There were times when we just couldn't get together on this issue or that, and then you'd print something in your column that hit the nail smack on the head and set everybody straight.

Just keep on doing what you're doing. People need an impartial, clear-eyed outsider who can send them in the right direction. That's you, Ann. -- Grateful in Kalamazoo

SAY IT!
When was the last time you told someone they were doing a good job and you appreciate it! More often than not, we really don't notice the dedicated teacher or factory worker who works with a fervor that is prompted by a true concern. It's these people who make the difference in our world. They don't just plod along, hoping the day will pass so that another one will also. They go about their work with a renewed enthusiasm. Their co-workers often comment, "Jane really likes her job." I hope sometime today you will think about one of these special people and say to them, "Thank you for the job you do and your attitude. It makes my world a bit brighter."

Family Can Save Money By Living in State's Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dollar for dollar, a family of four lives better in Austin, Texas, than in any other metropolitan area, a 40-city government survey shows.

On the other hand, New York and Boston are about the worst places for the economically minded, the Labor Department says.

In its annual report on urban family budgets, the department said this week that an average urban family of four must earn $10,481 a year to maintain a low standard of living, $17,106 for a middle standard of living and $25,202 to enjoy a high standard.

The income levels represent the cost of three hypothetical lists of goods and services, including taxes, drawn up in the mid-1960s to portray the three relative standards of living.

The survey showed that a dollar goes the farthest in Austin, where a family can maintain a low standard of living on $9,286 a year, a moderate standard on $14,776 and a high standard on $21,727.

But if that family moved to Boston, it would cost $20,609 to maintain a moderate standard. And in metropolitan New York, it would take $31,655 to keep up a high standard. Both figures are the highest of the areas surveyed among the 48 contiguous states.

The San Francisco-Oakland area is the most expensive place for a family to maintain a low standard of living, requiring an annual income of $11,601 a year.

Living costs in Alaska and Hawaii are much higher than elsewhere in the country, but they are not comparable because of unique transportation costs that drive up the price of goods.

In general, the survey reported, costs were lowest in small Southern cities and highest in large Northeastern cities.

The figures, based on a survey conducted last fall, were adjusted to reflect rising prices and changes in taxes since the 1976 survey.

In 1976, the government said, it cost an average of $10,041 a year to maintain a low standard of living, $16,236 for a moderate standard and $23,759 for a high standard.

By 1977, a typical family of four needed to earn 4.4 percent more money to maintain a low standard of living, 5.4 percent more for a moderate standard and 6.1 percent to keep up a high standard.

The U.S. Census Bureau estimated that the median income for a family of four in 1976 was $17,315. Figures for 1977 are not yet available, but they are expected to rise.

The family income levels are based on a hypothetically typical family that includes a 38-year-old husband who is working fulltime, a non-working wife, a 13-year-old boy and an 8-year-old girl.

The budgets needed to maintain the three living standards include expenditures for food, housing, transportation, clothing, personal and medical care, recreation, education, entertainment, miscellaneous items and taxes.

The income needed to maintain a low standard of living does not represent a minimum level of income needed to avoid poverty, the government said. A family of four is said to be living in poverty if it earns less than $6,200 a year.

Justice Department Asks IBM To Change Policy

NEW YORK (AP) - The Justice Department antitrust division "wants IBM to bring fewer new products to market and change higher prices," says Frank Cary, the computer company's chairman.

This position, Cary said at IBM's annual meeting this week, is inherently inflationary and thus in direct opposition to President Carter's goal of greater production and price stability.

Cary's remarks are hardly isolated, fitting instead into a matrix of increased frustration over attempts by the Justice Department, the courts and the Federal Trade Commission to refashion the marketplace.

Eastman Kodak Co. is appealing a federal court verdict involving a claim that Kodak's introduction of new products made obsolete those of smaller companies. It should give warning, the court ruled.

Borden Co. has been told by a Federal Trade Commission judge that it should license other companies to make its highly successful RealLemon product, because that product has such a large share of the market.

The same agency has been arguing that the big cereal-makers share an oligopoly because they unfairly compete through a proliferation of brands - sometimes called consumer options - that shut out competitors.

Cary's ire is aroused over the government's antitrust suit, now nine years old, a suit that "has outlasted six attorneys general in three past administrations," a suit in which IBM has yet to begin a defense.

"When you look at the record," he said, "I believe you can come to only one conclusion: 'It's the Antitrust Division, not IBM, that has turned U.S. vs. IBM into the Methusalem of antitrust trials.'"

The government filed its case January 17, 1969. "For nearly three years they did nothing, until late 1971 - when they fielded a new team of lawyers," said Cary.

IBM insists it isn't a monopoly, a contention that may be debated in view of the fact that monopoly is not clearly established solely by percentages or dollars amounts. But it does seem to have a defense.

"Thirty years ago it (the industry) didn't even exist," Cary said. "Today in the United States it includes more than 4,000 companies," although many are active in only limited segments of the market.

Perhaps more impressive is what Cary next called attention to - that of more than 800 computer companies deposited in the suit, more than 200 entered the so-called monopolized industry since the suit began.

Legal authorities believe monopoly can be demonstrated by proof of retarded technological change, but "Not one computer system IBM manufacturers today was on the market when the suit began," said Cary.

The question that arises, he suggested, is whether the Justice Department would prefer the company make it easier on competitors by limiting technological change and charging higher prices.

"That is what the Division's lawyers and economists are saying," he told shareholders. And then he shared the defendant's observation: "We think they are turning the antitrust laws on their head."

Politics Likely To Intervene In Proposed Base Closings

WASHINGTON (AP) - Thirteen years ago the Pentagon said the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard would be closed. The defense secretary said his decision was "absolutely, unequivocally without qualification, irrevocable."

The shipyard, near Portsmouth, N.H., is still at work and apparently out of danger. But it shows how a base tagged by the Pentagon for elimination can be saved by the application of political power.

That power - some call it clout - will get another test soon, as the Pentagon has proposed base cuts and combinations at 107 installations in 31 states to save an estimated $337 million a year.

Congressmen from many of the affected areas already are attacking the plan, that would result in the loss of 23,200 jobs - 14,600 military and 8,600 civilian.

The Portsmouth facility isn't alone in having come close to extinction only to gain new life and live on for years.

Take Fort Dix, N.J., over the years, the fort has repeatedly come close to making the Army's "hit list." It landed there in 1973. Army officials said it was saved by pressure from Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J.

Fort Dix is vulnerable again. In his announcement Wednesday, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the Army is thinking of shutting the base's training facility - its reason for being. But there's a chance that the fort may survive as home for elements of the 2nd Infantry Division, scheduled for withdrawal from South Korea.

In the case of the Portsmouth

Shipyard, it was ordered shut in the mid-1960s after a special study board had singled it out as "the best shipyard to close" because of various short-comings.

But Democratic Sens. Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire and Edmund Muskie, whose Maine constituents work at the Portsmouth yard, appealed to President Lyndon B. Johnson. He overrode the order and the yard stayed open.

At a briefing yesterday, Assistant Defense Secretary John White acknowledged what many of his predecessors also came to realize - congressmen pull two ways on the base closing question.

"In the general sense, they recognize our problem - that is, we have too many bases, and they have urged us to make reductions," White said.

"On the other hand, obviously they do not want to see reductions in their particular area that affect their constituents."

There was no comment from the Christian Democrats, but the Communists and two smaller parties in the five-party pact on which the government depends called the proposal a disguised surrender to blackmail.

The U.S. acquired Wake Island in the Pacific on July 4, 1898, when the flag was raised by Gen. F.V. Greene, commanding the 2nd Detachment, Philippine Expedition.

3 More Shot in Legs AS Brigade Rampages

ROME (AP) - Two men and a woman shot a Fiat executive in the legs Thursday, and an anonymous caller said the attackers were members of the Red Brigades, the terrorist organization that kidnaped political leader Aldo Moro six weeks ago.

It was the second leg shooting done in the name of the Red Brigades in two days.

Police said Sergio Palmieri, 41, was shot as he left his home in Turin, where 15 Red Brigades members are on trial. Shortly afterward, a telephone caller told an Italian news agency: "This is the Red Brigades. We have hit Sergio Palmieri."

Fiat is Italy's biggest private corporation and a frequent target of terrorists.

On Wednesday, young gunmen wounded Gerolamo Mechelli, floor leader of the Christian Democratic minority in the Lazio regional assembly, which includes Rome, as he left his home in a Rome suburb. An anonymous caller said the gunmen were from the Red Brigades.

Another anonymous caller Wednesday reported that Moro's body had been left in a car near his Rome apartment, while still another reported the 61-year-old president of the Christian Democratic party had been set free in farmlands south of the city.

The calls touched off intensive police searches, but no trace of Moro was found.

The car search began after a man telephoned a news agency and said the Red Brigades had left Moro's body in a big blue car within 500 yards of his apartment.

Earlier in the day, a woman called the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero and said Moro had been freed near a farmhouse 13 miles south of Rome. Helicopters and police cars crisscrossed an 18-mile stretch of farmland.

The Red Brigades condemned the five-time premier to death in a "people's trial" and threatened to kill him unless the Christian Democratic government agreed to free 13 imprisoned terrorists. But the government refused.

FAITH WILL GIVE YOU PATIENCE FOR TODAY'S WORLD

In this age of instant foods and virtually everything else, we often clamor for the immediate fulfillment of all our wishes as a matter of course. Patience has nearly become a lost art because we seem to have so little need of it in this push-button era. However, faith in God will not only help you regain your patience, but will let you know if the rapid results you have come to expect are really worthwhile attaining. There may be no such thing as instant success, but there is an instant faith which will direct you toward it in the proper manner. It's as near as your Church.

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing."
— James 1:4

Carter Hopes To Reorganize, Strengthen Staff Members

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is attempting to reorganize and strengthen his White House staff without bruising anyone's feelings - including his own.

Consider the matter of office space, an issue fraught with potential trauma for the bureaucratic psyche.

When Carter took office, he had but a single woman on a senior staff then limited to nine members. The lone woman was Margaret "Midge" Costanza, former vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., and an early Carter backer in the Empire State.

Because the president had promised to appoint unprecedented numbers of women and blacks to federal positions, Ms. Costanza had a certain advantage in the initial rush for choice office space in the West Wing of the White House, where Carter has his own Oval Office.

To the surprise of few, Ms. Costanza was allocated space closer to Carter's own than any other member of the senior staff. Closer than Hamilton Jordan. Closer than Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

But now the president has added a second woman to the ranks of his senior advisers. She is Anne Wexler, who has enjoyed grand quarters as deputy under secretary of commerce.

Ask where Ms. Wexler will get desk space at the White House and you are greeted with blank looks.

The current housing shortage will only be aggravated when Carter ends his search for yet another senior staffer, a black.

The current leading candidate, who hasn't said yes, of Gary, Ind., a man unlikely to take kindly to the windowless basement cubicles occupied by some of the president's men.

Which takes us to yet another problem facing Carter as he realigns personnel and functions.

At the moment, the ranking black on the staff is Martha M. "Bunny" Mitchell, who has a modest second-floor office in the West Wing, like a number of other second-echelon aides.

When Carter named Ms. Mitchell, the president said she would act as his link with blacks and with the District of Columbia government.

Naturally, the soon-to-be named higher ranking black will become the administration's chief liaison with black groups. And the scope of Ms. Mitchell's domain will be reduced correspondingly.

As for the feelings of the president himself, he doesn't want to be portrayed as one who seeks fresh help and is refused.

Before Hatcher visited the Oval Office, it was an open secret that he was being offered an appointment as a senior adviser.

Within minutes of Hatcher's departure, however, press secretary Jody Powell told reporters, "We didn't get down to any specifics about jobs."

It took mystified reporters all of 30 seconds to decide that Hatcher was undecided about joining Carter's staff. So naturally a specific job would not be offered until or unless the mayor was agreeable.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, April 28, the 118th day of 1978. There are 247 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1952, war with Japan officially ended as a treaty which had been signed by the United States and 47 other nations went into effect.

On this date:

In 1220, work was begun on Salisbury Cathedral in England.

In 1788, Maryland entered the Union as the seventh state.

In 1789, the mutinous crew of the British ship, Bounty, set Captain William Bligh and 18 sailors adrift in a launch in the South Pacific.

In 1876, Britain's Queen Victoria was declared Empress of India.

In 1945, in World War II, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini and his mistress were captured and executed near Lake Como as they tried to escape to Switzerland.

Whooping Cranes Doing Well with Sandhill Care

WAYAN, Idaho (AP) - This may be a banner year for whooping cranes brought up under the foster care of their sandhill cousins which nest near here, says a wildlife biologist.

Whooping crane eggs are brought to the Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge and placed in the nests of the sandhill cranes which treat the relatively rare whoopers like they were their own, says Rod Drewien, a wildlife biologist.

And he said this year, if present refuge conditions don't change drastically, the program might have its most successful season.

The eggs are brought to the refuge from Wood Buffalo National Park in Alberta, Canada and the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Laurel, Md., said Drewien, a University of Idaho researcher and one of the founders of the program.

Last summer's drought dried up most of the marsh, resulting in more whooping crane chicks falling victim to coyotes who were able to reach the nesting area. But Drewien said most of the water has come back to the nesting area because of above-normal rainfall, and the cranes are therefore better protected against predators.

The project was begun in 1975 by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Canadian government. The once-thriving population of wild whooping cranes, now an endangered species, has dwindled to about 70 birds, all concentrated in Canada.

Wildlife officials hope the whooper project in Idaho will establish a second wild flock to provide a margin of safety against extinction should a catastrophe strike the Canadian flock.

Three of the Idaho-raised whoopers have already arrived here from their wintering roosts near Bosque Del Apache National Wildlife Refuge in New Mexico, Drewien said.

He said he wasn't sure about the status of all the cranes raised in the project, but at least six of them are still alive.

Two were killed after flying into fences in Southern California in the past two years, he said, and another was killed after colliding with an unknown object.

Task Force Official Says Bell Undermined

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Justice Department official who investigated illegal FBI activities said Thursday his task force had recommended the prosecution of eight middle-level FBI officials but that Attorney General Griffin Bell undermined the investigation by refusing to press for the indictments.

William Gardner, who resigned the task force post last December after a dispute with Bell, said his task force had recommended in a 336-page report that four former and four then-present FBI officials be indicted. He said Bell objected to that because of the number of FBI personnel targeted by the report.

"The recommended prosecutions involved charges of wiretapping, mail theft, break-ins or black bag jobs, perjury and false statements to a government agency," Gardner told the Senate appropriations subcommittee on the Department of Justice.

"The wiretapping, mail theft and black bag jobs began in 1970 and continued until at least November of 1974," he told the subcommittee.

Gardner said official recommendations for indictment included three squad leaders, four special agents in charge of divisions and one assistant director.

"The crux of the dispute between the task force and the attorney general, senators, was not the level of the officials involved," Gardner said in his prepared statement. "It was the fact that there were viable prosecutions against so many figures."

Gardner testified that Benjamin Civiletti, acting head of the department's criminal division, agreed in an April 2, 1977, meeting that the cases should be presented for grand jury indictment.

"Unfortunately, the attorney general was adamantly opposed to so many cases," he said. "Mr. Civiletti then began urging us to accept the reality of the situation and recognize that, given the attorney general's views against prosecuting FBI officials as well as the public and private pressures he felt against prosecution, we would not be permitted to file all the indictments warranted by the evidence."

Gardner said Bell's opposition "was reflected in his public and private undermining of our efforts. I had never seen that kind of conduct in almost eight years with the department."

He said the probe was effectively thwarted because Bell's opposition to perjury indictments against FBI officials gave the agents no reason to cooperate.

Weight loss is vital

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am so desperate and heartbroken. My husband had a bypass operation and now they tell me he has accelerated atherosclerosis. The surgery was six months ago. He is only 41 and had always been in perfect health.

Please could you help me by letting me know where and who I could possibly see to get help. Two other lives depend on his.

DEAR READER - I know how frightening it is to learn that a loved one has a serious and perhaps fatal disease. But there are things you can do to help your husband live a longer and useful life.

He has fatty-cholesterol deposits in his arteries and there is some evidence that the process can be slowed, stopped or even reversed. The two most important things to do are to not smoke and to get really thin. The latter has to be done gradually, but I don't think many of the special diets help much if a person doesn't get rid of all the excess fat under the skin. Unfortunately, too often both the patient and the doctor stop short of the real goal of ideal weight reduction.

Get your husband down to the point that there is no more fat around the small of his back than you ordinarily find under the skin over the back of the hand. That means no significant fat deposits around the waist anywhere. Anything less than that means you have not done all you can do. We do know that in monkey experiments the fatty-cholesterol deposits will disappear if the monkeys are put on a low-calorie, low-fat, low-cholesterol diet.

If your husband happens to have elevated blood pressure that should also be controlled. Weight reduction and elimination of salt help here too.

His diet should be low in fat (that helps control the calorie intake too) and low in cholesterol. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet Preventing Atherosclerosis, to help you.

If his condition permits he should start daily walking. He should not overdo the exercise and should progress in this department at a rate his own doctor permits. But the more he is able to walk the more help he will get in reducing his body fat and improving his condition.

These are the measures that help most in reversing the process of fatty-cholesterol deposits. If the cholesterol level is high or there are other indications of abnormal blood fats in the blood sample then his doctor may wish to give him some medicines to help also. If his blood pressure is high and remains so there are medicines that will help, which your doctor can give him.

The three factors that seem to have the most to do with fatty-cholesterol deposits are the abnormal cholesterol or blood fats, cigarette smoking and high blood pressure. If all of us would adopt life styles that control these factors, the diseases - strokes and heart attacks for the most part - caused by fatty-cholesterol blockage of the arteries would decrease at least 50 percent. And in most instances they would not occur until in the late 70s or 80s for most people. The life span of men could be expanded almost 10 to 15 years.

James Madison (1751-1836), fourth president of the United States, and Zachary Taylor (1784-1850), 12th president, were second cousins - both men having the same grandfather, James Taylor.

Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," made her U.S. debut Sept. 11, 1850, at Castle Garden, New York City.

Why Should Dolph Briscoe Be Governor for 10 Years?

There is no good reason!

No other Texas Governor has ever asked for 10 years, much less been elected for 10 years. Dolph Briscoe's record does not merit 10 years in office:

- Yet Briscoe has spent more than $2 million in this campaign - including $900,000 his supporters borrowed from 13 banks - to get 10 years in office.
- Property taxes have increased by 1 BILLION DOLLARS since Briscoe was elected; so far, he has done nothing to provide property tax relief.
- Welfare costs have more than doubled under Briscoe, without a fair increase in benefits for those people who really deserve them. The reason is waste. The worst example is Briscoe's own Office of Migrant Affairs, which spends $8,000 for each person it helps find a new job.
- Utility rates have skyrocketed while Briscoe has been governor, without a single sign of concern by the Governor.

Elect a New Governor

Endorsing John Hill, the El Paso News Herald said:
"He fought Southwest Bell all the way to the Supreme Court to stop an unfair rate increase. He appears to have beat the Howard Hughes empire over millions in inheritance taxes. And he cleaned up Duval County."

Endorsing John Hill, Fort Worth Star-Telegram said:
"In two terms as state attorney general, Hill has shown himself to be energetic, articulate and assertive. He can make firm decisions and work persuasively to see them carried out. As governor, he would be an active, accessible chief executive projecting a strong leadership image."

Endorsing John Hill, the Dallas Times-Herald said:
"John Hill has been an outstanding attorney general. He has made impressive progress in making the office what he has always said it should be - the people's law office."

Romero, Casey Top Mat Card

Two of the most popular young wrestlers in the Golden Spread team up this Saturday to meet two of the most unpopular, as Lions Club Wrestling returns tag team action to the Bull Barn. Rapid Ricky Romero, 224-pound Mexican speedster, joins dynamic Scott Casey, 238-pound stylist to meet Roger Kirby and "Lord" Jonathan Boyd, the Royal Kangaroo. Boyd tips the beam at 245, and is a powerful and aggressive wrestler, but not known for sportsmanship. Kirby, at 240, is a powerhouse who set a world leg press record of 2800 pounds. Casey replaces previously advertised Carlos Mata in the tag match. Mata wrestled a virus while wrestling recently in New Mexico.

"Thringing" is a sport that often sees contestants acquire broken or torn-off fingers. Schroeder is managed by a human blimp who styles himself "Sir Oliver Humberdick." In opening action, newcomer Terry Garvin, 235 pound Canadian, makes his debut against Japan's Mr. Pogo, 260 pound ex-sumo wrestler. In last week's action, Boyd and Kirby were disqualified when Boyd came off the top rope and was caught by the referee. Lei Lani Kai beat Vicki Williams with a submission, using a Boston Crab. Rip Hawk defeated popular Tonga Fifita with a reverse neck breaker.

Womens' Tennis Tomorrow

In semi-main action, young Berry Orton will try the strength of Germany's Hans Schroeder, and the wiles of the German's manager, Oliver Humberdick. Berry weighs 230, and is a son of the "BIG O", Bob Orton of Kansas City. Schroeder weighs in at better than 280. An ex-soldier, ex-merchant marine sailor, ex-boxer, the widely traveled Schroeder was also a "Thringing" or finger wrestling champion in Germany.

Play in the annual Womens' City Tennis Tournament sponsored by the Womens' Division of the Chamber of Commerce gets underway tomorrow morning at the high school courts here.

Competition in three age groups will be held in the tournament, with an "A" and "B" division in the oldest group, 26 and over.

Completion of play in some of the divisions may take place Saturday evening according to Lucy Rogers, chairman of the tournament.

No Obstacle

For the younger high jumper the technique of just "hurdling" the bar seems to be the best approach as this youngster demonstrates. High jump competition was just part of the Elementary Track Meet held at Whiteface Field Thursday. The meet was sponsored by the local Kiwanis Clubs. [Jim Banner photo].

SA Central Leads Golf

LUBBOCK - San Angelo Central rolled to the first-round lead at the Region 1 Class 4A Boys Golf Tournament Thursday at the Meadowbrook Golf Course here after combining for a 301 total to lead second-place Monterey by seven strokes.

Hereford's Whitefaces were off the pace in 10th place overall following the initial round, carding a combined 330.

In the 2A division also being played at Meadowbrook Kermit coasted into the team lead with a 310, nine shots ahead of Seymour and Winters. Winters' Jeff Russell and Seymour's Andy Barron held the individual lead with even-par 72s.

Fish, Bell At Regional Meet

Hereford's Jim Fish and Paul Bell were in Lubbock today competing in the Region 1-4A Track Meet. Fish, a senior, was taking his shot at the regional discus crown at 11:30 this morning, while Bell was slated for preliminary action this afternoon in both the 100 and 440.

Fish won the District 4-4A discus crown last week with a toss of 148-3, but he posted a personal best of 164-0 in practice Thursday.

Bell is the reigning 100 and 440 champion after winning the century last week (9.8) and taking the 440 (50.4). The HHS junior has run a 49.5 in the quarter this year, while the 9.8 represents his best time in the 100 to date. He ran a 9.7 last season as a sophomore, however.

Six districts are sending athletes to the regional this year with the addition of District 6-4A, which advanced a host of quick sprinters, mainly from Killeen and Temple.

Killeen's Kangaroos posted a 41.08 sprint-relay time in qualifying for the meet.

The running prelims were set to start at 3:30 p.m. today with the top eight times advancing to Saturday's finals. Prelims will be held in all events except the 800 and mile.

Jr. Highs At Meet Saturday

La Plata and Stanton Junior Highs will be competing for District Track championships in six divisions tomorrow at the Panhandle Junior High Athletic League District Meet at Pampa.

While the Mavericks and Dogies failed to win a team title in the recent South Zone Meets held on consecutive weekends for boys and girls respectively, they will be sending representative groups to the meet in all six divisions.

La Plata will be sending a total of 15 boys and 16 girls as well as 10 relay teams to the meet, while Stanton will counter with 19 boys, 14 girls, and 12 relay squads.

The top three finishers in the Zone meet will be competing for district laurels against the top three places from the North Zone.

Aikman, West Central Dominate Track Meet

Aikman and West Central dominated the Annual Kiwanis Elementary Track Meet held at Whiteface Field Thursday, with Aikman claiming three of the six team titles in the affair, and West Central claiming two.

Shirley managed to take the 5th grade boys title, but Aikman took the 4th and 5th grade girls championships as well as the 6th grade boys title, and West Central won both the 4th grade boys and 6th grade girls trophies.

Some 350-400 local children participated in the meet, which was headed up by Carroll Trucker, Kiwanis, Key Club members, and the Kiwanis Club Sweethearts all pitched in to run the meet off.

Just Right!

You have to hold your hands just right to get the maximum distance in the long jump. Children in grades 4-5 in all seven local elementary schools were on hand Thursday for the Kiwanis Elementary Track Meet. Aikman and West Central had the most success in the affair, winning five of the six team titles between them. [Jim Banner photo].

JV Baseball Team Splits With Bovina

The HHS junior varsity baseballers came up with five big runs in the fifth inning of the first game Thursday against Bovina to claim a 10-9 victory, but the Longhorns fell shy by a 1-0 count in the nightcap to earn a split with the Mustangs.

Hereford found itself down 9-5 after four innings of the opener Thursday, but Lee Schultz opened the fifth off with a sharp single to left field, and two bases on balls added to a pair of Bovina miscues and a double by Henry Torres paved the way for the five-run uprising.

The Mustangs went down in order in the bottom of the inning to give Hereford the win. Torres finished the contest with a pair of two-baggers in three trips to lead the HHS offense.

In the second game Bovina made a solo tally in the bottom of the first stand up for a 1-0 decision over the Longhorns. A base on balls, two HHS errors, a fielder's choice and a single pushed across the game's only run.

Hereford got a baserunner as far as second base just once in the contest when D. Torres reached on an error and moved around on a walk. Bovina's Steve Cory struck out the side to end the threat, however.

The two teams will play a return match today beginning at 4 p.m. at Whiteface Field.

Steve Cauten — The Whiz Kid of Race Riding

If he didn't have a horse to ride, he would sit on a bale of hay and practice using a whip. He watched racing films with his dad.

Steve began his pro jockey career when he was 16.

After winning several races, he and his dad went to New York to try to find an agent.

It would be the agent's job to line up the horses for Steve to ride.

They got one of the best in the business, Lenny Goodman.

Steve started riding at Aqueduct, near New York.

This track is one of the best in the country.

On weekends, Steve flew to California to race at Santa Anita.

The wins and the money piled up.

Right now, Steve is finishing a high school by taking a correspondence course. He makes A's and B's.

He spends his free time studying track records, lifting weights, playing gin rummy and ping pong.

Most of all he likes hanging around race tracks.

That's where he does his thing better than anybody else in the world.

Two years ago Steve Cauten rode his first race as a pro-jockey at Churchill Downs on May 12, 1976. His horse came in last. But that was just the beginning. One week later at another track, he rode his first winner. He has been winning ever since.

Steve is small for his age. He is 5 feet, 1 inch tall and weighs 85 pounds. He has large hands that help him handle his mounts.

Last Year's Derby winner

This Year's Hopefuls

Nobody really knows who will run in the Kentucky Derby until the last minute. There are two horses that had outstanding records as two-year-olds last year. They are great rivals.

They are the right age to make the Derby. Last year, Affirmed won $343,477. Alydar won $285,026.

Alydar is the bigger and stronger of the two.

Alydar is the bigger and stronger of the two. He is from Calumet Farms of Kentucky. He is known for being able to come from behind and win.
