

Tower Claims Innocence in Park Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. John Tower admits that, if given the chance to do it all over again, he'd never have accepted invitations to parties hosted by Korean businessman Tongsung Park. But the Texas Republican also vows he did no wrong in attending such functions.

"Obviously, in hindsight, you'd like to pick your friends more carefully," he told reporters Wednesday following a 90-minute, closed-door session with the Senate Ethics Committee investigating alleged influence-purchasing by Park.

Tower said he was "only one of several former and present senators" who provided information to the committee stemming from their association with the millionaire rice dealer and Washington socialite.

Asked if Park had ever used his name in reports to the Korean CIA, Tower said he may have.

"I don't have any documentation to verify that, but based on my knowledge of intelligence operations, agents will often pad their reports to gain favor with their superiors and give the impression to their superiors that they were doing much more than they were actually doing," Tower said.

The committee did not seek him about any such KCIA reports, Tower said.

Tower disqualified himself two weeks ago from sitting on the ethics committee because of his prior "social association" with Park.

"Based on the committee's inquiries to me today it is clear the committee is more interested in establishing patterns and practices of Korean nationals and did not view my acquaintances with such persons as suspect in nature," he added.

The Texas senator said he had attended "a maximum of six possible events" hosted by Park during a 10-year period from 1965 to 1975. Tower said he was "one of the honored guests" at one of the functions. Tower also said he had turned down Park invitations "a minimum of seven times."

"At these type functions you always talk about the great friendships between the two great countries like you would at a party given by the ambassador of Great Britain or anyone else," said Tower.

When asked if U.S. aid to Korea was ever mentioned at the parties, Tower, a member of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, said quickly his association with Park had no effect on his vote on foreign aid legislation affecting Korea.

"There has been no wrongdoing alleged," he said.

"There has never been a charge or allegation by the committee or anyone else."

Tower also said he had never "knowingly" accepted any campaign contributions from Park or any other Korean. "I wouldn't knowingly accept a contribution from any foreign national," he added.

The senator, who is seeking re-election this year, also noted that there had been "much unjustified speculation and conjecture during the last few weeks about my reasons for disqualifying myself from the committee's initial review into the Korean matter. My sole concern from the beginning has been to preserve the credibility and integrity of the committee and its work."

"Once it was known with certainty that Mr. Park was, in fact, returning to the United States to appear before the cognate congressional committees, it was incumbent upon me to step aside temporarily," Tower continued. "There have been some who have read something more sinister into my action. However, my decision amounted to a matter of principle, nothing more."

Tower also said his records indicate that during the 1965-75 period, seven office appointments were scheduled for Park, "during at least three of which he was accompanied by other Koreans." Tower also said former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Jo had been scheduled for two office appointments, and had sent Tower five invitations to social functions which the senator attended.

Tower also noted that the Korean Embassy had sent 18 additional invitations to his office which had been

75 Pints of Blood

Local residents flocked to the Community Center yesterday, giving a record 75 pints of blood which were forwarded to Coffee Memorial Blood Center in Amarillo.

Wednesday's response to a special appeal for blood was the greatest ever recorded here, according to Joan Bookout, blood drive chairman. John Mitchell, community relations director at Coffee Memorial, contacted Mrs. Bookout early this morning and praised the work of her committee. He also expressed gratitude to those individuals who gave blood for the benefit of Hereford.

Blood donors designated their gifts for the following accounts:

Larry Bain, 41; Margaret Plummer, 5; Eugene Knox, 2; Martha Knox, 2; Knights of Columbus, 1; Hereford pool, 1; blood insurance, 21; personal credit, 1; Mark Lindemann, 1.

Coffee Memorial's trip to Hereford last month was also rewarding, gleaming a total of 64 pints.

Council Says Farm Bill Too Expensive

Wednesday Night Collision

The Texas Department of Public Safety late Wednesday night was notified of an accident eight-tenths of a mile north of Hereford on Highway 385. A southbound Volkswagen driven by Terrie Craig, 22, of Lorain, Ohio, collided with a northbound car driven by Gerald Vaughn, 17, of 213 Ranger. WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration has criticized the Senate's emergency farm relief bill as one of the most inflationary government actions in recent years.

The White House Council on Wage and Price Stability said the bill the Senate approved Tuesday would add between two to five percentage points to the rate of food price inflation this year.

The legislation, if enacted, would add at least $100 a year to the average family's food bill because of increased payments by the government to farmers. The bill next will be considered by the House.

"If the bill becomes law, it would be one of the most inflationary actions of the federal government in recent years," the council said in a statement. While the agency expressed sympathy to the problems of farmers, it said, "we are also concerned about the impact of farm legislation on consumers and the over-all economy."

Even without the new farm legislation, food prices already are rising faster than expected this year, meaning higher cost to consumers. The increase for the year could amount to 8 percent, officials have said. But the council statement said that if the new legislation is enacted "there would be a major risk of returning the country to double-digit food price inflation."

Consumer food prices increased at an annual rate of 8.9 percent in the three-month period ending in January, and wholesale food prices rose at an annual rate of 19.4 percent for the three months ending in February. Officials had not expected those sharp increases to continue, however.

Senate Passes Retirement Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate passed and sent to the White House today a bill that will raise the mandatory retirement age to 70 for most Americans and eliminate it complete for federal employees.

The Senate vote was 62 to 10 after the House approved it earlier this week. President Carter is expected to sign the

Democratic Ballot Order Announced

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Three gubernatorial-candidate underdogs are listed before the favorites on the unofficial Deaf Smith County ballot for the Democratic primary, it was announced today by county Democratic chairman Robert Strain.

The draw for positions on the ballot was this week, with state certification expected within a few days.

Ray Allen Mayo, Donald R. Beagle and former governor Preston Smith are listed in that order in the governor's race, followed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill, respectively.

Briscoe and Hill are considered the leading contenders for the Democratic nomination.

Deaf Smith County judge candidates in order on the ballot are W. Glen Nelson, Eddie L. Coplen, L.B. "Scat" Russell and Bruce L. Miller.

Listed as 222nd District judge candidates are Rex Easterwood and David Wes Gully, respectively.

Roland Saul and Andy Shuval are listed in that order as district attorney candidates.

Justice of the Peace candidates as they appear on the tentative ballot are Jennie B. Phillips, Paul Abalos, Millard L. Murray, O.K. Neal, Virginia M. Dickson, Paul Hamilton and Fred Sims.

Other local offices and candidates in the order they appear include:

District clerk--Lola Fay Veazy.
County clerk--B.F. Cain.
County treasurer--Vesta Mae Nunley.
County surveyor--A.J. "Major" Schroeter.

County commissioner, Precinct 2--O.T. McPherson, Austin C. Rose Jr.
County commissioner, Precinct 4--Stan Fry, James L. Voyles, George V. Cassetty.

Morris Sheats and Kent Hance are listed in that order as Democratic candidates for the U.S. 19th Congressional District seat being vacated by George Mahon.

The primary will be May 6.

legislation. "This bill is a significant milestone for older Americans," said Jacob K. Javits, R.N.Y. "No longer can an employer arbitrarily force a worker to retire at 65 if he or she is qualified to do the job and wants to continue gainful employment."

As soon as the president signs the bill, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Aging Committee, said he will introduce another measure to eliminate all mandatory retirement, thus allowing everybody to work as long as they are capable or as long as they can find work.

The bill going to Carter amends the 1967 Age Discrimination Act by making it unlawful for private employers to force workers to retire before age 70 as of Jan. 1, 1979.

Beginning in September this year, federal workers would be allowed to continue on the job until they are ready to retire. For most Civil Service employees the forced retirement age is now 70.

The bill applies to private sector workers whose bosses have 20 or more employees. This takes in about 70 percent of the U.S. labor force.

Employers would still have the right to discharge persons of any age for incompetence, said Pepper.

State and local governments are covered under the new age 70 retirement cutoff provisions. But there are some occupational exceptions, such as persons in high-risk jobs such as policemen or firefighters who could still be forced to retire earlier than 70.

The bill provides for some exceptions and delays.

It will permit mandatory retirement between age 65 and 70 of a person, who for the two years before retirement, was employed in a "bona fide executive or high policymaking position" and is entitled to a pension of at least $27,000 annually.

Ex-Physician Dies Wednesday

R.R. Wills, 76, who with two associates opened the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic more than 30 years ago, died shortly before 11 a.m. Wednesday at his residence at 311 Lawton.

Dr. Wills, a physician for 50 years before he retired last August from a part-time practice at the clinic, was pronounced dead at the scene Wednesday by Justice of the Peace Glen Nelson, who said death was the result of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Drs. L.B. Barnett, Millard Nobles and Wills were responsible for the construction of the Hereford Medical and Surgical Clinic. In the late 1960's and early 1970's Dr. Wills practiced in both

In calculating the income figure for such executives, the bill excludes amounts attributable to Social Security, employee contributions and contributions of prior employers.

Colleges and universities would still be allowed to retire tenured professors at age 65 until July 1, 1982. They had argued against changing the 65 ceiling at all, but settled on the compromise in order to give them time to adjust their hiring policies.

The bill also defers the effective date if

Begin Refuses Proposal To Withdraw Military

WASHINGTON (AP) - Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is winding up a somber three-day visit that has left the Carter administration at an apparent loss of what to do next to get the stalled Mideast peace talks moving.

"Static" was an administration official's description of the situation as Begin held out against committing Israel to withdrawing from the west bank of the Jordan River.

Briefing reporters after Begin's talks with Carter ended Wednesday, the official, who barred use of his name, denied there was a crisis but seemed at a loss as to what the United States would do next.

First, he said, "we will have consultations among ourselves" and then try to determine the "most effective and practical way to proceed."

He said there is no plan yet for Alfred L. Atherton Jr., the principal U.S. mediator, to return to the Middle East to confer with Egyptian and other Arab leaders.

The United States planned to issue a formal statement on the talks today.

mandatory retirement is contained in employee benefit plans or seniority systems provided by collective bargaining agreements in effect on Sept. 1, 1977.

The delay would be for two years after Jan. 1, 1979 or until the termination of such agreement whichever comes first.

The bill will not alter 65 as the age at which most persons can be collecting their maximum Social Security benefits. However, it is anticipated that the financial pressure on the Social Security system would be somewhat eased.

House and Senate conferees looked at the bill Wednesday and decided to wait until after the Easter recess before reworking it into a bill that they and President Carter will accept.

Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., chairman of the House budget committee, said if the measure approved by the Senate Tuesday were signed into law, Carter's proposed $5.5 billion agriculture budget could soar past $10 billion.

The bill would boost price supports, encourage production and refinance heavy farm debts. At the same time, it would offer farmers cash now to idle some acres plus parity prices for some farmers next winter on wheat, feed grain, cotton and soybean crops if they idle 50 percent of their cropland.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the planting season has begun in many southern areas and the harvest of winter wheat is only weeks away. He said farmers need to know soon what the government will do to help them.

As the Congressional Budget Office worked on estimates of the proposal's impact, the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability warned Wednesday that if approved, the measure probably would push the annual rise in food prices year with The Brand. "There's a lot of them. I see people on the street that I delivered and THEY have kids. What does it mean? It makes me feel old."

Dr. Wills is a past president of the Hereford Lions Club.

Funeral services for Dr. Wills are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at First United Methodist Church, with The Rev. William D. McReynolds officiating.

Burial will follow in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Survivors include a son, J.B. Wills of San Pedro, Calif.; a brother, Edwin of Fort Worth; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Nix of Dallas.

Conferees Postpone Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - Economists and lawyers are trying to decipher just what the Senate adopted in its emergency farm legislation package, a proposal already branded by some critics as one of the most inflationary in recent years.

House and Senate conferees looked at the bill Wednesday and decided to wait until after the Easter recess before reworking it into a bill that they and President Carter will accept.

Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., chairman of the House budget committee, said if the measure approved by the Senate Tuesday were signed into law, Carter's proposed $5.5 billion agriculture budget could soar past $10 billion.

Extremists Arrested In Italian Search

MILAN, Italy (AP) - Two extremists were arrested today by police hunting for the kidnapers of former Premier Aldo Moro. One of them tried to swallow a letter with German names on it but police managed to seize part of it.

The Red Brigades, Italy's most feared urban terrorist gang, has claimed responsibility for kidnapping Moro. Police did not say whether the two men arrested today had any connection with the gang or the abduction.

The extremist who tried to swallow the letter was identified as Giuseppe Zambon, 39. Police said he was stopped here while riding in a car with German license plates.

The other extremist, Franco Berardi, 28, was arrested in a friend's Milan apartment. He had returned to Italy secretly after spending most of the past year in Paris, police said.

Berardi was wanted in connection with a string of violent disorders in Bologna a year ago.

The trial of 15 members of the Red Brigades in Turin has been recessed for one week because of Easter. The 15 are charged with organizing an armed band to overthrow the state.

Policewoman Shot In Parking Lot

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas policewoman was wounded in a gunfight when she and her partner surprised a man slashing tires at a West Dallas trucking firm, police said today.

Officer Judy E. Friesner, 23, was shot once in the left leg below the knee in the Wednesday night incident and was reported in good condition today at Parkland Hospital.

She is the first female Dallas police officer wounded in the line of duty. The shootout also left a man in his 20s in critical condition after he was shot three times in a volley of gunfire returned by the two officers.

He was hit twice in the chest and once in the leg. Police said attempted capital murder charges would be filed.

Police said the assailant "came out shooting like John Wayne" after being surprised by the Officer Friesner and her partner and training officer, A.A. Faulk, 25.

Faulk said they were dispatched about 10:50 p.m. to investigate the report of a prowler in the parking lot of the Wilco Trucking Rental Co.

Hearing Begins Today Over Estes Letter

TYLER, Texas (AP) - A hearing today over the whereabouts of a letter that allegedly will link paroled swindler Billie Sol Estes to a man facing kidnapping charges is expected to set the scope of the trial of promoter Don Trull.

Trull says the letter will show that Estes' secretary acknowledged the receipt of over half a million dollars for land in Smith County.

The 40-year-old Trull is charged with pouring gasoline around the Tyler office of Billy D. Pyron and then holding a Pyron employee hostage for several hours last August by threatening to ignite a cigarette lighter.

Jury selection was completed Wednesday. Testimony on the charges is expected to begin Monday.

Trull's lawyer has indicated he will try to introduce evidence that will link his client to Estes.

G. Brockett Irwin of Longview, Trull's attorney, has said he will seek to determine at today's hearing what happened to a letter that Trull claims he turned over to Smith County District Attorney A.D. Clark III with the other documents.

5 Suspects Arrested For Truck Robbery

MONTREAL (AP) - Police arrested five suspects, including two police officers, and recovered all the money from the $1 million armored truck robbery in the town of St. Jovite, a Quebec provincial police spokesman said today.

He said the five were arrested Wednesday and the money from Tuesday's holdup was recovered later that night.

More arrests were expected, police said.

Four gunmen burst into a roadside diner where the truck's guards had stopped for an early morning snack. The gunmen shot and wounded two guards and beat up a third. After taking the money, they fled in a stolen truck, later found abandoned on a side road 10 miles from St. Jovite, a community 62 miles north of here.

Contrary to security rules, the armored truck belonging to Alliance Securite was left unguarded outside the diner, police said.

Alliance Securite handles shipments for the province's credit unions and recently won a permit to transport money and securities for the Quebec Transport Board.

One guard was shot in the chest and the other in the arm.

Wallenda Falls To Death Doing Act in Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Karl Wallenda, patriarch of the Flying Wallendas family of highwire artists, fell 10 stories to his death from a wire extended between beachfront hotels here Wednesday, circus officials said.

Wallenda, 73, was doing a promotion for the Pan American circus, the circus manager, James B. Harrington said. Wallenda, whose family has been plagued by tragedy in a series of deaths and injuries during daredevil performances, fell an estimated 120 feet into the driveway of the Condado Holiday Inn hotel before hundreds of horrified spectators.

Montreal accountant Victor Abboud said he watched the veteran performer teetering on the wire in beachfront winds which were "too strong." "I saw him go down on his knees on the wire and I thought he was kneeling to rest," said Abboud. "But then I saw he was shaking. The wind blew him off and he went all the way down head first."

Blood stains spattered the hotel driveway where Wallenda fell. Harrington said he died in the city's Presbyterian hospital soon after the fall at 10:20 EST. German-born Wallenda was performing in San Juan nightly with his granddaughter Betsy on a 50-foot wire. Harrington said the Wallendas were hired for the circus's current run in the capital of the U.S. commonwealth. The run started March 1 and finishes April 2.

Post Prognosticator Predicts Good Crop

POST, Texas (AP) - The wind blew across the South Plains from the southwest Wednesday, meaning, of course, that farmers can expect a fair crop this year. "Chief" Frank Runkles made the prediction after setting fire to some prairie grass and watching a wisp of smoke catch in the wind. Some may doubt this old Indian tradition, especially when it's learned that Runkles isn't a chief. In fact, he isn't even an Indian. He is, however, an expert on Indian lore, and the Chamber of Commerce records in Post say Runkles is right 95 percent of the time. For the past 70 years, folks around this Northwest Texas town have waited for word on the March 22 wind direction. If the wind had been from the east to northeast, so the legend goes, farmers could look for a bumper crop. The wind had been from the south all morning, foretelling failure, but it shifted just as Runkles put grass on the fire.

Supreme Court Backs Demotion
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Supreme Court Wednesday affirmed the demotion of a Carrollton Fire Department lieutenant to private because he allegedly was rude to a late-night woman caller who reported an animal in the wall of her house. The demotion cost Rodney Keeling $180 a month to pay. Keeling appealed after the Civil Service Commission demoted him on the recommendation of Fire Chief F.J. Douglas. A Dallas trial court reversed the commission's decision and restored Keeling's rank, but the Dallas Court of Civil Appeals ruled that there was substantial evidence to support the demotion. Court records show that Keeling was on duty, sleeping by the phone, when Patsy Howard called at 11 p.m. to report there was an animal flopping around in the wall. She said she thought it was a bird. She said it was no emergency. She testified that it was no emergency. She testified that Keeling said the old fire department might have answered calls such as to get cats out of trees but the new fire department did not. She said Keeling told her he did not know where she got the idea to call the fire department about such things. She testified that she called at the suggestion of her brother, Randall Howard, a member of the nearby Addison Fire Department. Keeling, she said, replied that Addison was "just trying to harass" Carrollton firemen. The woman said when she hung up she was in tears because Keeling had made her feel "like an idiot." Her brother finally called the Addison animal control officer, who removed a rat from the wall. Randall Howard called Chief Douglas the next day, and Keeling apologized to Howard's sister. She said she thought that was the end of the matter. Douglas' charge against Keeling was that he had "lightly disregarded a distress call. A request for aid was rudely dismissed." The chief said although the woman thought the sound was made by a fire, he could have been a fire. He said the department had a written rule requiring all distress calls to be investigated. The Supreme Court affirmed the appeals court decision without writing an opinion of its own. The name Theodore comes from the Greek and means "gift of the gods."

Castro's Foreign Affair

President Carter is criticizing Cuba for involving its troops in Africa's tribal wars.

President Carter says Castro has no business over there and should allow those nations' self-determination.

It is interesting how this Administration chooses to meddle selectively in the internal affairs of other nations but does not think anybody else should.

Anyway, why not let Castro discover for himself the debilitating price of "foreign affairs"?

Castro has been supplying Cuban troops to fight in Angola since 1975 and more recently elsewhere.

He's already got the makin's of a Vietnam on his hands.

While Castro has acknowledged only three Cuban casualties in that fighting, thousands of Cubans have been killed there.

He has ordered them to be buried over there to minimize resentment at home.

But relatives back home grow restive. Young Cubans, to escape having to fight in Africa, are fleeing Cuba in small boats—dozens made it to our mainland last year.

A new prison has been built in eastern Havana province for military deserters.

Cuba's island economy is suffering shortages of skilled labor.

Guess who sold Castro the notion that he could export revolution?

Vanderbilt Gets Another Trial

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—The death penalty conviction of a former policeman in the slaying of the 16-year-old daughter of former Rep. Hudson Moyer, D-Amarillo, was reversed Wednesday by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

In returning the case to Amarillo for re-trial, the court said Jim Vanderbilt should have been allowed to present evidence on whether his oral confession was voluntary.

Vanderbilt was convicted in the April 1, 1975, slaying of Katina Moyer, who was abducted at gunpoint from an Amarillo high school, taken outside the city limits and shot in the head.

Vanderbilt, then an Amarillo police officer, was arrested 10 days later as he left the city police academy.

The defendant claimed prosecutors told the jury they tried to extract a written confession from Vanderbilt by offering not to ask for the death penalty in the case.

The state said the agreement was withdrawn and Vanderbilt immediately made an oral confession, which was used as evidence.

Vanderbilt said he later signed a written confession.

Russia is thus using Castro to run interference.

Russia believes Africa is ripe for Marxism and wants Castro to test the validity of the presumption.

Meanwhile, back home in Cuba Russian pilots will take over defensive missions.

Government-controlled news media in Cuba shows no film, publishes no stories about Cuban involvement in African combat.

Castro speeches say, "We helped the government of Mozambique and Ethiopia and we will help the liberation movements of Rhodesia and South-West Africa."

No mention of Cuban casualties.

While Castro contends that Cubans go to Africa only as "volunteers," the Cuban government uses incentives and punishments to encourage "volunteering." Those who refuse are likely to lose their jobs and their cars and be removed to the countryside for which was not used as evidence, but which said the state would not ask for the death penalty.

The criminal appeals court found "reversible error," because "a defendant is allowed the opportunity to present evidence to the jury on the issue of the voluntariness of the confession which the state has introduced at the trial against him."

Sadat Alive!

NEW YORK (AP)—A rumor circulated on Wall Street today that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat had been assassinated.

However, Sadat family sources in Cairo and the Egyptian Embassy in Washington said the report was untrue.

In the past, similar rumors have stemmed from confusion over names in the news at the time. Earlier Wednesday, stories from Madrid reported the assassination of Jesus Haddadi, director of Spain's prisons.

Brokers said the rumor circulating Wednesday was one of the factors in a decline of the Dow Jones industrial average.

the July 15, 1974, shooting indicated he was intoxicated.

But Mrs. Wendeborn's lawyers presented six witnesses who said they saw him during the hour before his death and believed he was not drunk.

The jury verdict, therefore, was not against the weight of the evidence, the appeals court said.

Westchester also contended that Wendeborn violated his employer's rules by keeping a shotgun in the store.

The appeals court said Wendeborn began keeping the gun after someone fired a shot into the store, which was located in a secluded area.

"We think that under the facts, the jury could properly conclude that the keeping of the shotgun was incidental to the employment and performance of the deceased's duties," the appeals court said.

Farmers Wage Expensive Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Estimating the number of farmers who have come to Washington since last fall to demonstrate for higher prices is like trying to count the number of cattle in a stampede.

American Agriculture, the farmers' strike group, says its about 200,000, but no one's keeping an accurate count.

One thing is certain - the cost of protesting is expensive. Hotels where many of the farmers stay have rooms going for $42 a day and up. With meals, it costs about $75 a day to stay in Washington.

And that doesn't include transportation to and from the farmers' home states.

Jerry Wright, an American Agriculture spokesman, said this week at the group's national office in Springfield, Colo., that the farmers are paying for the Washington trips out of their own pockets, although some neighbors and communities have helped raise money to send delegates here.

At the Agriculture Department, officials said that a recent count of letters sent to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland included about 4,400 in support of the protesting farmers and 26 who challenged American Agriculture's goals and its methods for gaining 100 percent of parity for farm commodity prices.

Mrs. Kennedy Kilchowski, of Ardoch, N.D., said in one of the letters that she and her husband have been farming for eight years and she's disturbed because "we have to pay the same prices as any other consumer, yet we do not get a 'cost-of-living' raise increase" as many non-farm workers do.

Mrs. Cecil Brown, Dumas, Texas, chided Bergland for "your inaction and procrastination" which she said is deplorable. "You were appointed to represent the American farmer, not the consumer," Bergland has mentioned a number of times that federal checks totaling $1.7 billion are being mailed to wheat and other grain farmers for 1977 crops to help make up the difference between reduced market prices and "target" prices.

Larry Dittrich, Meadow Grove, Neb., wrote to Bergland: "Big deal; $1.7 billion will be paid back to farmers. That's not even one damn airplane."

From Hamer, S.C., Gurnie Rowell expressed a feeling of many farmers in the Southeast who were hit by drought losses last year along with falling commodity prices.

"We know unless we get relief we cannot survive much longer," Rowell said.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Barnard from Spring Valley in Bergland's home state of Minnesota offered one of the letters disagreeing with the farmers. They said that government-guaranteed parity prices would be "too expensive" and would lead to too many federal controls on farmers, a view the secretary has maintained.

"Farmers should also be taught management of the farm and farm income, rather than be given handouts," the Barnards said.

Incumbent Hightower Favored To Win Democratic Nomination in District 13

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer Democrats of the 13th Congressional District will sit back May 6 and see what kind of candidate Republicans select to oppose two-term conservative Rep. Jack Hightower of Vernon in November.

Right now Hightower, former state senator, is an odds-on favorite to gain a third term from the district that includes most of the Panhandle and stretches east to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

The GOP primary contest pits Larry Kelly, 34, owner of a seafood restaurant in Amarillo, against Clifford Jones, 53, a Pertyon farmer.

Associates of Hightower expect him to keep a low profile while Kelly and Jones settle their intraparty contest.

However, both Republicans spend much of their time campaigning against Hightower instead of each other.

"Hightower is a nice guy who is basically very ineffective in solving the needs of the district," said Kelly.

Kelly said he was entering the race because "the residents of the district need a more effective, more conservative voice in Washington."

Jones, who calls Kelly a "bartender" and Hightower a "fence straddler," said he got into the race because "I'm after Carter, labor, the bureaucrats - all of them, I want to clear them all out."

Both Republicans said they are opposed to the Panama Canal treaties and both think the U.S. House should have a say in the treaty decision, not just the Senate.

Kelly, an Amarillo resident for the past three years, is a native of Morse in Hansford County. He said his rural background gives him a clearer view of the farmers' problems.

Jones organized the American Agriculture movement in his hometown. He suggests that the real solution lies in "limiting imports. Farmers are subsidizing the whole world. Somebody has got to let them know what we think. Congress is not protecting the individual."

Kelly was one of those who filed suits against Potter County Sheriff T.L. Baker and County Commissioner Bob Hicks in December seeking their permanent removal from public office.

Jones also made headlines in December as spokesman for a group of Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma oil and gas producers who threatened to halt production until domestic prices were allowed to rise to world levels.

Hightower easily defeated Republican Bob Price in the 1974 Watergate landslide then beat off a Price return match in 1976.

Hightower makes farm problems a big part of his campaign saying that urban congressmen must be taught that agricultural and energy producers and consumers are dependent on each other.

"The beleaguered farm economy threatens the strength of the national economy," he said. "No more serious problem faces our country than the plight of agriculture. The cost-price squeeze on farmers and ranchers threatens to grow steadily worse."

Hightower says he has tried to be a strong voice the past three years for energy production growth.

"I have spoken and voted for energy proposals that would increase our energy supplies and thereby protect the interests of producer and thereby protect the interests of producers and consumers," he said. "I have spoken and voted against programs that would increase federal involvement in energy production and that would promote energy conservation through the artificial means of taxation."

The Yankees and the Dodgers have faced each other in the World Series nine times.

Toy Show Draws Southwest Buyers

DALLAS (AP) - If a pink "Lolly" doll sold well last year, it will be back again this year with a blue "Cholly" companion.

The motto of the toy industry for 1978, as gathered from the 19th annual Dallas toy show, would appear to be: take a success and ride with it for everything it's worth.

An O.J. Simpson doll has rushed for as many dollars in the toy stores as "The Juice" has rushed for yards on the gridiron. It will still be in stock next Christmas, with the addition of a similarly-packaged Julius "Dr. J" Erving doll for basketball fans.

The toy buyers of the Southwest are out in force for the semi-annual event, which runs through Thursday. The show is the first and by some accounts the largest of the regional trade shows that follow New York's February toy fair.

Dave Balthrop, a Hasbro Industries representative, said, "Lead time is tremendously long in toys." The year ends in October, when planning starts for the next Christmas. A "lift and load" depot did well for one manufacturer last year. An elaborate "lift and load" railroad system is displayed next to it this year.

One specialist in home pinball machines proudly demonstrated his computerized model that keeps four scores in its memory at a time, gives a run-down of the competition after each player finishes, offers double-play bonuses and flashes "tilt" in digital letters.

"They've got a new one coming out," he said. "It has a triple-ply bonus. The kicker is it plays a rock and roll song instead of the sound ping-pinging of the ball."

Electronics are big everywhere. Radio operated cars that kids have driven by remote control for years can not be raced, since controls now contain more than one frequency.

A miniature tape recorder slips onto a book page, and recites the words on the page. "Star Wars" and the science fiction craze have inspired their share of electronic and futuristic wizardry. However, space themes are not overwhelming. "Spiderman," "Charlie's Angels" or even that old standby "Raggedy Ann" is in the manufacturers' displays.

Queens in AIAW Semis

LOS ANGELES (AP) - No matter what happens, there will be a new national women's basketball champion after the AIAW tournament, which begins tonight at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion.

A pair of small colleges, Delta State of Mississippi and Immaculata, Pa., have dominated the tournament for its first six years.

Immaculata won the first three championships from 1972-74 and Delta State captured the last three titles.

Until last year, when Louisiana State finished second and Tennessee third, no major college had ever finished among the top three teams.

Neither Delta State nor Immaculata are among the semifinalists this year. The final four are Maryland and Wayland Baptist, who meet at 7 p.m. PST, and host UCLA and Montclair State, who battle in the second semifinal contest.

Delph Reinstated In Time for NCAA Finals

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - Marvin Delph, the leading scorer in University of Arkansas basketball history, was again eligible today to compete in the NCAA basketball championships after being declared ineligible for about 24 hours earlier this week.

Two of the finest players in the history of women's college basketball, Ann Meyers and Carol Blazejowski, probably will be matched against each other in the UCLA-Montclair State game.

Blazejowski, 5-10, is averaging 38.5 points a game. Her record career total is 3,118 points.

Scott Tries to Regain Lead

Meeting by telephone conference call at Broyles' request, the NCAA Subcommittee on Eligibility voted Wednesday to reinstate Delph, just three days before the Razorbacks, 31-3, take on the Kentucky Wildcats, 28-2, in the NCAA national semifinals at St. Louis Saturday.

Hereford's Barbara Scott, fallen from the District 4-4A golf lead for the first time in two seasons, will attempt to regain that advantage Friday when she competes in the third loop round in Lubbock.

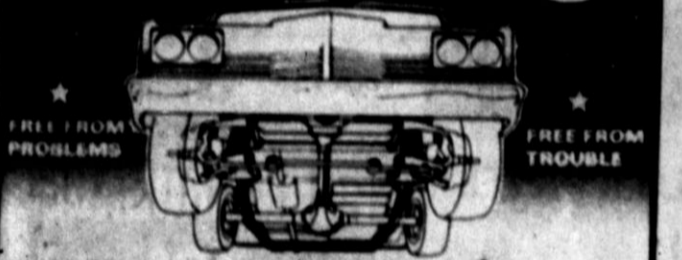

The Delphs have now returned all of the money raised to the donors, Blanchard said. It cost them about $550 to fly to Albuquerque in time for Saturday's contest.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Former Texas Tech basketball star Greg Lowery Wednesday lost his $783,000 suit in the Texas Supreme Court against his old coach, trainer and team physician.

Surrounded by an entourage of aides that included trainer Sam Solomon, Spinks let a Detroit lawyer, Lester Hudson, do most of the talking.

Sutton Won't Change Hog Defense for Kentucky

By PAUL LEBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) - In spite of a scare thrown at Kentucky by Michigan State last week, Arkansas does not plan to flag down the Wildcats with a zone defense when the two collegiate powers collide.

Razorbacks Coach Eddie Sutton pledged that Wednesday while weighing his fifth-ranked team's chances against No. 1 Kentucky in Saturday's semi-finals of the NCAA basketball tournament at the Checker-dome.

"At this point of the season, I don't think anybody's going to put any tricky plays in or just ditch what has gotten them to where they are," Sutton said from Fayetteville, Ark., during a telephone news conference.

"We're basically a man-to-man basketball team," he added. "What's going to be a key as far as we're concerned is defensive board play. I think it's the biggest problem we'll face with a team like Kentucky."

While Sutton rejected defensive alterations for Kentucky, 28-2, which got to Michigan State 52-49 for the Midwest Regional title, Wildcats Coach Joe Hall was equally against change.

"There are things I feel are effective against his club that we're just not capable of doing," Hall said of Arkansas, 31-3.

"Quickness has been a problem for us," Hall said, alluding to problems Kentucky might face if it attempted to capitalize on the apparent weaknesses of its foe against pressing defenses.

The sentiments on strategy voiced by Hall and Sutton were echoed in large part by Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps and Duke Coach Bill Foster, whose teams will clash in the other half of Saturday's double-header.

"I just think that we've got to play with what brought us here," said Phelps, whose No. 6 Irish, 23-6, flattened three opponents, including third-ranked DePaul 84-64, en route to the Midwest title.

"Obviously, that's our depth and our being physical. We're not looking to change any of that," he added. "I think in discussing Duke that Bill Foster has done an excellent job of getting his kids to play basketball."

Duke's Foster, a longtime friend of Phelps, returned his rival's compliment, labeling the Irish "a very deep club."

"I think the interesting thing in watching Notre Dame is that they are a combination of a power team, maybe to a large degree, but they're also a very, very well disciplined team. Their defense moves around very well, and this is what we'll see on Saturday afternoon."

Rose, Reds Tough On Expensive Uniforms

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - There are days when Bernie Stowe would like to run Pete Rose through a car wash.

"Pete is the dirtiest player in baseball," said Stowe, who has served as equipment manager of the Cincinnati Reds for the past 11 years. Stowe was referring to Rose's affinity for finding ways to look like a soot-covered chimney sweep.

"That belly slide is really tough on shirts," said Stowe, who was a batboy for the Reds when Rose, the Reds' 11-time All-Star, was 6 years old.

Stowe's job is to make sure members of the Big Red Machine look like a million dollars.

"We probably order more uniforms than any other big league team," he said. The Reds take pride in their spotless image, a policy that took root when Bob Howsam became general manager of the club in 1967.

"He's a stickler for presenting the best possible image," said Stowe, a rotund little man who is often the instigator of clubhouse horseplay.

His job isn't easy or inexpensive. The laundry bill alone totals a king's ransom and outfitting a baseball club can quickly add up to astronomical sums.

Every winter he orders 85 new white uniforms and 85 road grays at a cost of about $12,000. "The pant and shirt go for $70, a cap is $8.50, and our red wool socks are $8.50 a pair. We're the only club in either league that still uses wool socks. They are expensive, but they look very good," he said. Players provide only shoes and gloves.

Some players, like Rose and slugger George Foster, are rougher on uniforms than others.

"Foster is the hardest guy on the team when it comes to wear and tear on pants. He slides in such a way that he tears up three or four pair of pants a year," said Stowe.

The artificial surfaces at many ballparks have cut down the laundry bills, but produced unforeseen new costs.

"If an outfielder slides on his knees while making a catch on astroturf he'll melt a hole in the nylon material the size of a half dollar," said Stowe.

Fine tar, used to improve the grip on a bat, is Stowe's worst enemy. It doesn't wash out easily.

A deal of small merit

The issue of merit selection for federal judges and prosecutors which the Marston case so vividly highlighted will crop up once more as House-Senate conferees try to hammer out the final version of legislation creating more than 100 new U.S. District Court judgeships.

As part of the no longer secret deal which Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell struck with Senate Judiciary Chairman James O. Eastland back in December 1976, the administration agreed to leave District Court appointments under the patronage control of senators, along with the selection of U.S. Attorneys.

In return, the senators acceded to Carter's desire to create non-political commissions to recommend federal appeals courts nominees on the basis of merit.

The deal, of course, directly abrogated Carter's 1976 campaign promise to remove all judicial and prosecutorial appointments from the political arena. And now that the Marston affair has proved so embarrassing, House conferees—who have no patronage to lose to speak of—may push for some type of merit selection for all those new District Court judgeships Congress is creating.

A bill going nowhere

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The Marston affair, a mere firecracker as political scandals go, is producing enough fallout to do credit to a nuclear explosion.

The latest apparent casualty of the contamination is long-pending legislation to diminish prosecutorial domination of federal grand juries and grant new legal protection to witnesses who testify before such panels.

Although the proposed Grand Jury Reform Act had been moving slowly but steadily through the mills of the House Judiciary Committee, its progress has now come to a virtual standstill.

The reason? The bill is the pet project of Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., the fellow who interceded with President Carter to have U.S. Atty. David Marston of Philadelphia fired at a time when Eilberg himself was under investigation for alleged influence-peddling.

As it happens, Eilberg introduced his grand jury bill long before his current potential legal difficulties arose, and some of the reforms he is pressing have widespread support among lawyers and civil libertarians.

But given the furor surrounding the Marston dismissal, and Eilberg's own problems of the moment, even supporters of the grand jury legislation concede it is going nowhere this year.

The Justice Department has never liked the measure in any event, claiming it would hamstring investigations of white collar crime and political corruption, and its objections have now taken on new weight under the

'Loving, Caring, Sharing' Taught By Mother of Two

By DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

The religious aspect of Easter was emphasized during the youth of Mrs. Bill Johnson and as a mother she also is trying to bring out the fact that "Jesus died for mankind" to her children.

"When I was young my mother brought us up to think of Easter as a religious holiday. We always woke up and went to church on Easter morning. I can't remember ever discussing the Easter Bunny in my home."

The Johnson family plans to dye eggs Saturday and perhaps the Easter Bunny might leave some goodies for three-year-old Chad and three-month-old Ryan during nap time but Easter morning they intend to attend church and Sunday school class.

The captivating 28-year-old homemaker commented that she "takes parenthood very seriously."

"I believe that children must be given values that will last them throughout their lifetimes. They must be taught caring, sharing and loving," she said.

"I really feel that tradition is important. Children need to feel a base of security and know that someone thinks they are super neat!" she said.

Throughout the striking interior of the Johnson home at 247 Fir St. a plush but warm and friendly atmosphere pervades.

"My husband laughs at me because I am constantly working on decorating projects like changing wall paper, picture arrangements or moving the furniture around. I like to either add a little or take away. It's not extravagant but we like living here."

Mrs. Johnson is a member of the Kappa Iota Sorority Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and Daughters of the American Revolution.

Her leisure hours are consumed by needlework.

Since the active mother is employed part-time, a baby sitter comes into her home to care for the children.

"It is good for a child to be left with a baby sitter. They need to be exposed to other people and adapt to society. This way, when they are left alone to meet people, they won't take hard blows too seriously and will let it slip away," she explained.

Her husband Bill is employed by Plains Insurance as an independent agent. He sells fire, casualty, and car insurance.

Johnson enjoys carpentry in his spare time and has recently constructed a back shop where he does all his wood working.

He is the chairman of Hereford Hustlers, a member of the YMCA board of directors and the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Reserve.

He is interested in numerous kinds of civic work.

Mrs. Johnson said one of her greatest desires was to own and learn to play a piano. She has hopes of taking oil painting lessons and having her grandmother teach her the lost art of tatting.

When asked about the effect of child psychology, Mrs. Johnson commented, "I like to read a lot about it. I think it is easier to accept a written idea than have someone hurt your feelings and tell you why your child is a brat, and too, sometimes we all get too wrapped up in our own personalities and we need to see a different viewpoint," she added.

Mrs. Johnson suggests her mother's hamburger recipe for a toddler's meal:

PORCUPINE PATTIES
2 medium potatoes
1 lb. hamburger
1 small onion
1 egg
salt and pepper to taste
Peel and grate potatoes, combine with other ingredients. Form into patties and fry in small amount of fat. When brown on one side turn and brown on other side.

SOUR DOUGH BISCUITS

1 pkg. yeast
1 C warm water
2 C buttermilk
¼ C sugar
¼ C oil
4 t. baking powder
7 C flour
Dissolve yeast in water. Add buttermilk, sugar and oil. After combining dry ingredients add slowly to liquids until soft, pliable dough is formed. Mixture can be rolled out immediately or can be stored in refrigerator for up to 2 weeks. Also convenient when spoon dropped on greased cookie sheet.

Bake at 400 degrees for 12-15 min. until golden brown.

Transportation Offered To Senior Citizens Here

REJOICE - IT'S EASTER
The National Cattlemen's Association and beef producers strive to please the consumer and meet the consumer's desire for leaner beef, while assuring flavor and tenderness.

This Easter, we can count our blessings and be thankful that we live in a country where there is plenty of good beef available. Enjoy eating beef and stay trim—this is in for spring. Roast beef is No. 1—to many American palates, nothing tastes better than a handsome standing rib roast of beef, pink and juicy on the inside, brown and savory outside. It's especially savored when accompanied by tossed salad and a big wedge of apple pie.

According to a recent survey, this is a favorite restaurant menu across the nation. Why not serve this special treat to your family for Easter?

XEA Chapter Elects Slate of Officers

Members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, tackled a heavy business agenda Tuesday evening in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

The main point of business was the election of officers with Barbara Kendall selected to serve as next year's chapter president. Chosen to serve with her were Alene Tindal, vice president; Opal Glenn, recording secretary; Jo Ann Richard, treasurer; and Barbara Burkhalter, corresponding secretary. City Council representatives during the ensuing year will include Mrs. Kendall, Lillie Shipman, Karren Ruland and alternate Nan Gauthreaux.

Members expressed interest in viewing films produced by the American Cancer Society but tabled a final decision until autumn. Members were asked to help with the Cancer drive here April 3. Also, members were reminded that on Easter Sunday, the public will be invited to tour the historic E.B. Black house, which will be available as a site for club meetings. The XEA Chapter will convene in the Black house on the night of May 2.

It was announced that proceeds of the BSP state convention held last year at Waco have been donated to the Children's Diagnostic Center at Baylor Hospital. The sorority's upcoming state convention is scheduled June 23-24 at El Paso.

Members agreed to invite a

BSP transferee, Debra Ann Cook, to continue her sorority membership by joining a local chapter. Also, it was reported that Bonnie Decker and Lynn Sciombato, currently members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter, will be eligible to advance to XEA after spring rituals on April 18. A reminder was given concerning the chapter's next meeting, slated April 4. Jan Walser and Pam Fogo will present a program on Ben Gurion and serving as hostesses will be Mary Sledge and Mrs. Kendall. Members will be asked to bring toothpaste as a contribution to Gristown, USA.

No date was chosen, but members opted to attend an Amarillo dinner theatre during May as their annual spring social. Hostesses Mrs. Shipman and Mrs. Gauthreaux served peach shortcake during the fellowship period.

EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio) indicates how efficiently an appliance uses energy, explains Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

EER equals the number of BTU's used by the appliance, divided by the appliance's wattage, she adds.

The United States is the only industrial country in the world not on the metric system of measurement.

Kittrell Couple at Home After Farwell Marriage

State-Line (Special) Cary Patricia Marsh and David Lynn Kittrell were united in marriage recently at Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church in Farwell.

The Rev. Russell Martin, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Sarah Haseloff and Glen Marsh, both of Farwell, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kittrell of Farwell.

Wedding music was provided by Margaret Aycock, organist, and Lillie Christine who sang "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace. The bouffant skirt of lace tiers fell into a chapel train. A satin bow accented the waist at the back. Her veil of white illusion was attached to a crown of satin and seed pearls. The bridal bouquet was red and white carnations and babybreath with long red ribbon streamers resting on a white Bible given to her by her parents when she was a child.

Following tradition, the bride wore an emerald pendant necklace belonging to her mother and originally belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Marie Gouther. She also wore the traditional blue garter.

Kim Marsh served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a red checked floor-length gingham dress with cameo neckline and short bouffant sleeves. The princess-styled gown was accented at the bodice with a bow and streamers. She wore a white picture hat trimmed with red ribbon streamers. She carried an arm bouquet featuring red and white carnations and babybreath with red ribbon streamers. She also wore a chain necklace with white pearls, a gift from the bride.

Leigh Ann Kirkland and Rene Garner served as bridesmaids. They were both dressed identically to the maid of honor and wore chain necklaces with white pearls.

Flower girl Maria Marsh, sister of the bride, was dressed in a long red and white gingham dress and white summer hat trimmed with a red ribbon. She carried a white basket of red and white carnations and babybreath accented with red ribbon streamers.

Ty Phillips was best man. Groomsmen were Chip Cradt, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mike Deel. Ushers were Steve Kittrell, cousin of the bridegroom, and Britt Crook.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Haseloff chose a long brown princess-styled dress trimmed with off-white lace. The bridegroom's mother wore a street-length brown and white knit suit. Each wore an orchid corsage.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with white net over a white coverlet and centered with a red votive candle arrangement surrounded with red and white carnations and babybreath.

The white three-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with white daisies and red roses. The cake was topped with wedding bells and the base featured two cupids holding the upper tiers. The wedding cake, red heart mints, assorted nuts and raspberry punch were served from crystal appointments.

Serving at the reception were Cindy Cooper, Paula Christian and Tony Curtis. Members of the houseparty included Linda Gories, June Magness, Mona Hardage, Donna Haseloff and Vicky Haseloff.

For the wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the bride chose a navy blue tailored suit. She wore a red and white carnation corsage.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Farwell High School and is presently employed at Clovis, N.M. The bridegroom attended Farwell High School and is employed by Helton Oil Company. The couple is at home in Tesico, N.M.

A shower was given for the bride February 4 at Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church. Hostesses were Dorothy Gast, Mona Hardage, Ruthie Routon, Sue Kirkland, Mildred Haseloff, Bobbie Jones, Peggy Jones, Kathryn White, Lillie Christian, Dot Christian, Beta Dollar, Annette Black, Jo Schell and Liz Kaltwasser.

Beginning at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, the car wash will cost $2.50 for each vehicle, which will be cleaned inside and out. The charge will be $3 for clients who wish their cars to be delivered.

Saturday April 8th

Wedding Planned

Miss Jeannie Moon and Tim Tucker plan to exchange nuptial vows Saturday, April 15, in the First Christian Church. Miss Moon is a legal secretary employed by Witherspoon, Aikin & Langley Law Firm. Tucker is sales manager at KPAN Radio Station here. The couple plans to continue to reside in Hereford after their marriage.

News From The Lodge

Wakan Ki Ya met Tuesday at 704 Plains.

The girls played a symbol game and worked on other requirements for the Trail Seeker Badge.

Penny Tubb served Easter refreshments to the following girls: Kim Birdwell, Shelly Edwards, Joy Barker, Stacy Kirkpatrick, Mary Ruth Hamman, Ratty Perez, and Mary Jo Hamman, Leader.

Wakan Ki Lo Horizon Club, sponsored by Marsh Cattle Company, continued work on a Toarch Bearer in Citizenship by conducting a mock trial called The Capitol Hill Case. Each girl had a part and the trial was conducted according to court procedure.

Judge Cristi Crawford presided over the court. Susan Brown, clerk of the court, swore in the jury consisting of Kelly Killough, Tammy McCathern, Brenda Parson, Janet Burdine, Willa Lawson and Rane Padgett.

The Attorney for the State, Karen Compton called for her witnesses which included Mayor Titian, Deanna Pool; Chief Fuzz, Rhonda Hollowell; Mrs. Rubberneck, Paula Graves.

Each witness was cross examined by the attorney for the Defense, Jill Paschel. The Defense Attorney then called her witnesses, Rev. Dean Parson, Ramona Rhodes; lawyer Barrister, Cindy Gomez; Libby Roke, Jill Davis. These witnesses were also cross-examined.

Closing arguments from both attorneys were given and the Judge gave the jury a charge to make a decision in the trial.

After each debate, Forman of the Jury, Kelly Killough, gave the verdict of the jury who found the defendant guilty.

Judge Crawford pronounced the defendant guilty and fined her $1,000 and the court was adjourned.

The mock trial brought out the true heritage of the American citizenship. "Innocent until proven guilty," to the girls.

Leaders are Paula Eubanks and Glenice Thompson. Deborah Black was the guest.

Ann Landers

Wife Needs Check-Up

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every four or five months my wife (I'll call her Jane) flies off the handle and gets physically violent. I don't mean just a punch or two. She pounds me with her fists, pulls my hair, tries to scratch my eyes out and throws anything that's handy -- like a lamp, a clock or a piece of kitchen equipment.

Her temper outbursts are never anything important. I don't drink, cheat, or gamble. The way I looked at another woman, or some casual remark made in complete innocence, can set her off.

This has been going on for three years. I told Jane the last time it happened that if she tore loose at me again I would give it right back to her. She said, "No gentleman would ever strike a lady." I told her no lady ever behaved like she does.

Do you think I would be justified in giving Jane a little of her own medicine?—Too Many Times

DEAR TOO: No. Any man who hits a woman back pegs himself at the same level—and that's pretty low.

When you see the storm clouds gathering tell Jane if she wants to talk things over in a civilized manner, fine -- but no more assault and battery. If she doesn't cool off, leave for an hour or two.

If she hasn't simmered down by the time you return and attempts to clobber you again, I suggest a trial separation.

P.S. Has Jane had a physical lately? There may be some neurological problem that is causing these wild outbursts. She should get a complete check-up if she hasn't had one within the last year.

DEAR ANN: I am heartsick. My only sister confided that her husband, who is in his mid-30s (a professional man), confessed he has had several homosexual relationships over the last seven years.

My sister and "Bill" were married in 1968 and have two children. She had no idea anything odd was going on and is utterly devastated. Now Bill has met a man he wants to live with. He is willing to support my sister and the children, but feels he must follow the lifestyle that makes him happiest. Is it possible for a man who went homosexual after fathering two children to return to a straight life through psychiatric help? I hate to see "Bill" destroy himself and his entire family.—Heartsick Sister

DEAR HEARTSICK: "Bill" didn't turn into a homosexual. He has been one for a long time. Many homosexuals marry and father children. (Actually these individuals are bisexual but they usually prefer members of their own sex.)

Unless "Bill" wants to be straight (and it sounds as if he doesn't), therapy is useless. I hope your sister will get some help, however, since she is the one who is "utterly devastated."

CONFIDENTIAL to No Tyrant -- Just Democratic: Sorry, but I don't agree. I like Sydney Hook's comment: "The majority rule is not reasonable in a family where there are several small children, a prison or an institution for the feeble-minded."

At The Library

Two Adventure Novels Set in Germany, Florida

Two suspense thrillers, "The Valhalla Exchange" and "Treasure", are being featured this week on the shelves of Deaf Smith County Library.

Set in Nazi Germany during the end of World War II, Harry Patterson's "The Valhalla Exchange" incorporates military intrigue, hostages and romance. The conflict is provided by fire prominent Allied supporters who are being held captive by desperate Nazi soldiers.

Analyzing the search for gold off the Florida Keys, "Treasure" by Robert Daley offers a microscope view of man's lust for riches. The 47 tons of treasure aboard the sunken Atocha seems to carry a curse for its pursuers.

Deaf Smith County Library is open free to the public from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday and Thursday; other weekdays from 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.; and until 12 noon Saturday.

THE VALHALLA EXCHANGE By HARRY PATTERSON Jack Higgins, whose "The Eagle Has Landed" and "Storm Warning" have captured the public imagination as triumphant bestsellers, has now chosen to declare himself. His new blockbuster, "The Valhalla Exchange", is published under his real name.

We are in the closing days of World War II. Berlin is being reduced to rubble by Allied artillery. Sturmbannfuhrer Karl Ritter, SS Panzer Division, is summoned to the Reichsbunker for two honors: First, the Iron Cross, presented by the Fuhrer himself. Second, from Martin Bormann, a special mission named "Valhalla Exchange".

In the Austrian town of Arlsberg, five prominent Allied captives, three men and two women, are being held under guard. Bormann knows these VIPs will be useful in the surrender bargaining. Does he also have in mind the usefulness of exchange their lives as the means to escape to South America?

One of the important prisoners in Schloss Arlsberg, the American war hero General Hamilton Canning, is absorbed by his beautiful companion; Clair de Beauville, also a prisoner, but he knows the Nazis are coming for him and he "damn well" isn't going to wait. He tries to persuade the German commander of the guard to surrender to the nearest Allied unit wherever they can find it. But master organizer Martin Bormann has already thought they might try that. As Bormann's men hurtle toward their final confrontation with General Canning, the suspense is breathtaking.

TREASURE By ROBERT DALEY "I never dreamed it would be this hard to find." So said Mel Fisher, the Vero Beach treasure king. As he spoke, his search for the Spanish galleon "Atocha" and its priceless cargo of gold and silver, lost somewhere off the Florida Keys in 1622, had already consumed eleven years of his life. Four people were dead, including his eldest son, and three of his vessels had joined the "Atocha" on the bottom of the sea—all at a personal cost of over two and a half million dollars.

Now best-selling author Robert Daley tells the dramatic story of the most extraordinary search for treasure of modern times, a search carried out simultaneously in the dusty archives of Seville and on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico. Even as Fisher and his divers beat off shark attacks and storms off Key West, Fisher's historian in Spain, Dr. Eugene Lyon, patiently scoured the original documents for clues.

What had the "Atocha" looked like, how did it sink, how much treasure had it carried? The documents were worm-eaten, faded, three and a half centuries old. Most important, where did the Atocha's carcass rest now? Year after year, Lyon persisted. At last he knew everything about the galleon, and had placed Fisher's boats over the spot where its 47 tons of treasure ought to lie.

But that treasure, as it rose up dripping from the sea, was greeted by so much tragedy that Fisher and his colleagues began to wonder if the "Atocha's" gold and silver did not carry some kind of curse. With brilliant portraits of gold-obsessed Fisher, scholarly Lyon and hippie diver John Lewis, Treasure is a breathless story of physical and intellectual adventure and of man's lust for gold, which endures through the centuries.

Fifty-two percent of all airline trips taken in 1977 were for business reasons and the remaining 48 percent were for pleasure or personal reasons, says the Air Transport Association.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

If I were casting a war, using sports enthusiasts, there's no doubt in my mind that the joggers would be the infantry, the golfers the artillery, the swimmers the submarines, polo players the cavalry and tennis buffs the special reserves.

For reasons I am about to explore, the skiers would be the Marines.

It's not that they're so elite. It's just that somewhere along the line they've been brainwashed into believing that by putting big sticks on each foot, riding an open chair lift to the top of a big hill and skiing down into the arms of three ambulance attendants, they are having a good time.

They are absolutely fearless. No snow is too deep, no blizzards too paralyzing, no distance too far. The colder it is, the more inaccessible the slopes, the more hazardous the conditions -- the bigger the challenge.

My husband is a ski mercenary. He follows the snow. We happen to live in the southwestern part of the United States where the winters are comparatively mild. When storms began to wreak their devastation this winter, my husband and I watched in horror.

"It's a real blizzard," I said quietly.
 "It's a 40-inch snow base," he said, "and I've got to go."
 "It's not your war," I pleaded. "There is nothing you can do."

As he packed his thermal underwear, his padded mittens, and his stocking cap, I tried to appeal to his sense of survival. "It's the flu season. You have children. Your skin is dry." No amount of reason would keep him home. He dug out the car chains, his AAA card and was off to the front.

A week later, he returned from the wars... face burned by the sun, a bruise from a chair lift that gave him a nudge, and a service-connected limp.

"What happened?"
 "I was forced to do my reverse Wishbone."
 "What's that?"

"It's where someone skis across your skis, whirls you around and you are skiing down a hill backwards as both of your legs are skiing in opposite directions."
 "Sounds exciting. Wanta take out the garbage?"
 "In 50-degree weather? Get hold of yourself!"

Apartment-Dwellers Can Cut Energy Costs

[EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of four articles on energy-efficient apartments. It discusses interior factors that save energy.]

COLLEGE STATION -- "Energy savers" inside an apartment can cut utility bills. Important "energy savers" are caulking and weatherstripping in good condition, along with the effective location and upkeep of heating and cooling equipment, says a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Other "energy savers" of less importance are floor and wall coverings and colors, window treatments and lighting, according to Glenda Moore with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

CAULKING, WEATHERSTRIPPING
 To make sure caulking and weatherstripping are in good condition, check the front door first.

Be sure its frame is caulked and sealed where the siding and frame are joined. Caulking should not be cracked or falling out.

Also, make sure the interior of the frame has weatherstripping that fits snugly. A threshold at the bottom should keep air from seeping in or out.

Be sure all windows are caulked and weatherstripped.

LOCATION, UPKEEPING OF HEATING, COOLING EQUIPMENT

Heating and cooling consumes the largest portion of energy used in an apartment. Single-unit equipment that has an interior location is an advantage when the apartment resident is paying the utility bills, because it is protected from high summer temperatures and trash or dirt, which can hamper its efficiency.

If the compressor unit for a refrigerated air conditioning system is outside, it should be protected from hot sun and kept clean.

Inside, check the cooling and heating system's filter. If it is dirty, ask about the maintenance policy. A clean filter is an energy-saving "must."

Water heater location should be close to both the kitchen and bathrooms. This avoids expensive long-distance travel for hot water to reach those areas.

FLOORS, WALL COVERINGS
 Carpeting on floors makes them warmer to walk on.

A dark-colored carpet will make the apartment seem warmer and smaller, while a light color will make it seem cooler and larger.

Color of walls and wallpaper will have the same effects.

WINDOW TREATMENTS
 Ability of different types of window treatments to keep the sun's heat out of an apartment varies greatly, but they do cut utility bills.

A tight-fitting white opaque (allow no light) roller shade mounted near the glass can reduce a window's "heat gain" up to 50 percent.

White translucent shades (allow some light) can cut heat gain by 44 percent.

A white-lined drape can cut 33 percent of heat gain, and a closed Venetian blind can reduce heat gain by 29 percent.

LIGHTING
 An apartment with large usage of fluorescent lighting will save more energy than one with incandescent fixtures.

However, since renters usually are responsible for replacing bulbs, they should look for fixtures which allow the use of fluorescent converters.

Breakeven Costs Will Be Key To Farm Profits During 1978

COLLEGE STATION— For Texas farmers to be "in the black" at the end of the year, they have got to keep production costs down. And they must know what their breakeven costs will be for various crops so that they can make the right decision in setting up their cropping systems.

To help farmers in making their management decisions, Cecil Parker with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has estimated breakeven and total production costs for both irrigated and dryland cotton, sorghum, corn and wheat for five resource areas of the state.

He used 1978 projected costs of production inputs and a weighted average yield for 1972-76 for each of the crops.

"Although cost of production for a particular commodity is often difficult to determine due to the variability of production inputs, it is a starting point for a producer to organize his resources to obtain optimum net income," points out Parker, an economist in management.

Beginning with cotton, the economist's figures look like this.

Breakeven costs for variable expenses for dryland cotton are 26 cents per pound of lint in the High Plains, 21 cents in the Rolling Plains, 49 cents in the Blacklands, 35 cents in the Coastal Bend, and 40 cents in the Rio Grande Valley. Irrigated costs are 42 cents in the High Plains, 32 cents in the Rolling Plains and 44 cents in the Valley.

Variable costs for dryland sorghum per 100 pounds are $2.13 in the High Plains, $2.43 in the Rolling Plains, $2.97 in the Blacklands, $2.55 in the Coastal Bend, and $2.32 in the Valley. Irrigated costs are $2.99 in the High Plains, $2.97 in the Rolling Plains, and $3.61 in the Valley.

Dryland wheat variable costs per bushel are estimated at $1.76 in the High Plains, $2.27 in the Rolling Plains, and $2.46 in the Blacklands. Irrigated costs for the High Plains only are estimated at $2.50.

Parker estimated breakeven costs for corn under irrigation only, this being $1.66 per bushel in the High Plains.

Lumping the variable production costs together to obtain a statewide average, the economist came up with these figures:

34.5 cents per pound for cotton, $2.71 per 100 pounds for sorghum, $2.17 per bushel for wheat, and $1.66 per bushel for corn.

Looking at total production costs for Texas, the figures showed 52.5 cents per pound for cotton, $4.21 per 100 pounds for sorghum, $3.28 cents per bushel for wheat, and $2.38 per bushel for corn.

Parker based his statewide estimates of variable and total production costs on per-acre yields of 364 pounds of cotton, 3,671 pounds of sorghum, 25,077 bushels of wheat, and 128 bushels of corn.

"By comparing income above variable costs per acre for each crop, producer can select a combination of crops for optimum income above variable costs, assuming land is the only limiting factor," explains Parker. "Of course, breakeven variable and total production costs can be influenced by a change in production input costs and yields. Each producer should view these data and relate them to his particular situation."

SCOUTS LOOK TO THE ENVIRONMENT

BALTIMORE (AP) — These days, there's more to Scouting than learning how to tie a double-sheep-shank.

For a group of young men and women students in Baltimore, the Exploring division of Scouting has given them hands-on experience in environmental control, and an award.

The organization is an offshoot of Scouting devoted to career development. Each Explorer post is sponsored by area corporate volunteers — in this city by Koppers, Inc., a Pittsburgh-based industrial firm. This year, the company and its subsidiaries will work with more than 40 Explorer groups in the United States.

The goal of this liaison is to help the students explore the technical and social aspects of pollution and its control. The Explorer post of Baltimore received a special citation of recognition from the Boy Scouts of America for exceptional work in environmental control and for its exhibit at the Annual Explorers Exposition in 1977.

Lesotho, in southern Africa, is a mountainous state, with altitudes ranging from 5,000 feet to 11,000 feet.

CGA President Endorses John Hill for Governor

The president of the 400-member Texas Corn Growers Association, Carl King of Dimmitt, has endorsed Texas Attorney General John Hill for Governor.

"As a corn grower for 10 years, I feel John Hill has displayed a direct interest in the farmer's problems," King said. "Although Hill isn't a farmer, he has extended himself in all directions on their behalf."

King said he was particularly impressed with Hill's recent success in mediating the confrontation between protesting farmers and local authorities in the Rio Grande Valley.

"He didn't have to go down there and stick his neck out, but he saw a duty and performed it well," King said.

"Hill certainly responded to the needs of the farmer when he thought he could help them," King added.

King said he will ask members of the corn growers association to formally endorse Hill later this spring. "But I feel safe in thinking I am speaking for the majority of the farmers," he said.

Storage Sign-Ups Continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have continued to sign up wheat in a three-year storage plan intended to keep the grain off the market to help raise prices.

The Agriculture Department says that a weekly telephone survey of field offices showed that 234.4 million bushels were committed to the reserve, about 70 percent of the goal of 330 million bushels.

But very little corn and other grain has been signed up. No special surveys have made for those grains, but as of mid-March fewer than five million bushels were officially signed up in the reserve. The goal is 670 million bushels of corn and other grain.

Under the plan, farmers agree to store the grain for three years or unit market prices go up enough to trigger their release. They get 25 cents a bushel per year for storing the grain.

Weed Control at Hand For Early-Planted Grain

Dr. Frank C. Petr, Area Agronomist

Winter annual weeds are making their appearance, especially in early-planted fields of wheat and other small grains. Now is the time to spray these weeds before they utilize moisture and nutrients needed by the grain crop.

Tansy mustard, pepperweed, and kochia are the weeds most commonly encountered in the major wheat-growing area of the state. They can be easily controlled with 1/2 pound of 2,4-D applied either by air or ground spray equipment. Translocated herbicides are most effective when weeds are not under moisture stress. It is important that the small grain plants are fully tillered before 2,4-D is applied. Yield losses and plant deformity may result if the plants are too young.

Not all wheat fields require spraying as good stands of vigorous wheat shade the ground early and discourage germination. In late-planted fields or those that did not receive moisture until recently, the weeds may not appear until January or February, so fields should be checked carefully.

The weeds are easiest to kill while they are in a rosette stage with a diameter approximately the size of a half-dollar. If the weeds are elongated and yellow blossoms have begun to appear, you waited too long. They have already caused a reduction in potential grain yield.

Research on weed competition has been conducted by Dr. Allen F. Wiese at the Southwestern Great Plains Research Center at Bushland. His studies indicate that one weed per square foot can reduce wheat yields by 10 percent. If a potential yield of 40 bushels per acre is assumed, the yield loss would be about 4 bushels or about $10.00 at current prices. With an estimated spray cost of $1.50 this could mean an extra $8.50 per acre as a result of controlling the weeds.

When two weeds are present per square foot the estimated yield loss is 20 percent. Assuming a 15 bushel per acre yield potential under dryland conditions, the loss caused by weed competition would be about three bushels. In this situation, the farmer could pay the spray cost of $1.50 and realize an additional $6.00 per acre from the weed control practice.

One-half pound of 2,4-D will control most winter annual broadleaf weeds; however, treacle mustard is more difficult to kill and requires one pound of 2,4-D for effective control when under moisture stress. It is important to fight this weed diligently to prevent its spread.

False flax is another new weed showing up in the eastern part of the Panhandle. This is a broadleaf weed and can also be controlled by spraying with 2,4-D.

Cheatgrass and rescue grass, which act as winter annual weeds in wheat, are becoming more prevalent in the wheat-growing area, especially where wheat is grown continuously. There are no labelled chemicals for control of cheatgrass and rescue grass, so the only available treatment is to use summerfallow or crop rotation to control infestations. Wild oats, which also behave like winter annual weeds, have become established in the Red Rolling Plains. It can be partially controlled with a single application of Carbyne applied in November or December. For nearly complete control, two applications (November and December); are needed, but only one application is permitted by the current label. Producers are advised to follow label instructions regarding rate and timing of all herbicide applications.

Japan Seeking Offbeat Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan is the leading single-country buyer of U.S. farm products but this involves primarily the purchases of big items such as grain, soybeans and cotton.

Sometimes Japan also wants something more exotic like cattle gallstones and bear bile.

A list of "export briefs" circulated Monday by the Agriculture Department said that an importer in Tokyo is interested in obtaining cattle gallstones, "100 percent pure" and that each piece must be "in perfect form, wrapped in vinyl film, stuffed with cotton" and then shipped in cartons.

The buyer is willing to pay $3,000 to $3,300 per kilogram, about 2.2 pounds, for the gallstones.

Also, the brief trade note said, the Tokyo buyer is interested in "dry bear bile, perfectly dried, amber color" and packed one kilogram per can.

The quoted price also is about $3,000 per kilogram, the department's Foreign Agriculture Service said.

Speaker List Will Highlight TSCRA Convention

FORT WORTH - Cattlemen who attend committee meetings at the 101st annual convention and trade show of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association March 26-29 in San Antonio will hear an impressive list of speakers from industry, the academic community and government, says J.S. Whittenburg III, TSCRA president from Amarillo. All business meetings will be held in the San Antonio Convention Center.

"Committee meetings are traditionally our work sessions and we think it is important to the average cattleman to get the facts firsthand on legislation, animal health, marketing, and other areas of concern," Whittenburg said.

More than 2,500 cattlemen and their families are expected to attend. All committee meetings are open to convention registrants.

The committee speaking agenda for Monday morning, March 27, will be Wilson Boaz, director of the federal-state tick eradication program in Texas, Mexican border committee; Dr. W.T. "Dub" Berry, member of the National Brucellosis Technical Commission and Clint Booth, member of the National Cattleman's Association Animal Health Committee, animal health committee; James W. McGrew, executive director of the Texas Research League, tax committee; and Dr. Leo B. Merrill, superintendent of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Sonora, agricultural research and education committee.

Tuesday afternoon, March 28, agenda includes John Huston, vice president and secretary of the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board and Cratus Couthitt, chairman of the Texas Farm Bureau's Beef Cattle Advisory Committee, membership committee.

The wildlife committee has a panel discussion featuring Gordon Hansen, assistant regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service; Bob Armstrong, Texas Land Commissioner; Pearce Johnson, chairman of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission; and Joe Wyatt, state representative from Victoria.

The marketing committee has a three-part program beginning with a market outlook by Dr. Ed

Uvacek, Texas A&M University, and Topper Thorpe, a general manager of Cattle-Fax, NCA, Denver. "Foreman's Follies-Proposed Changes in Federal Meat Grading and Labeling Regulations" will be the subject of a discussion by Dr. Zerle Carpenter, Texas A&M University, and Dr. Richard McDonald, Texas Cattle Feeders Association. A panel discussion involving all four speakers will follow.

TSCRA recently announced its general program would feature John Wayne, movie personality and cattleman, and John B. Connally, statesman and former Texas governor. Other general session speakers include Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe, Whittenburg, Richard A. McDougal, president of the National Cattleman's Association; Ronald A. Zumbum and Raymond M. Moboisse, Pacific Legal Foundation; Don C. King, TSCRA secretary-general manager; Anna Fay Friedlander, editor of Solar Engineering Magazine, and Emma Lee Collier, Texas CowBelles president. Addressing the board of directors Monday afternoon will be Neal Knox, executive director of the National Rifle Association's Institute for Legislative Action; and Topper Thorpe.

The Texas CowBelles will hold their semi-annual meeting and the Texas Beef Cookoff in conjunction with the TSCRA convention.

TDA Saluting Network

AUSTIN--Around 1915 a small office in Jacksonville, Tex., opened to report the shipping point prices of tomatoes moving out of the state.

"It marked a small but important beginning for the Texas Market News Service," Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said recently. "The Texas Department of Agriculture wants to salute this beginning and the network of communication that developed from it."

The Jacksonville office was the second in the country, established like the earlier one in Hammond, La., to provide reliable information on marketing, growing conditions and availability of supplies. Its purposes was also to combat unscrupulous businessmen who were manipulating the produce market.

"The problem arose," Brown said, "with the development of what was actually a boon to the produce industry, the refrigerated rail car. Now it was possible to ship produce from growing points to distant eastern and midwestern cities."

"The absence of reliable communication, however, created gluts in certain areas and limited supplies of the same commodities in others," he continued.

"Moreover, some receivers were telling shippers that merchandise had arrived in bad shape and had to be sold for little or nothing. And some shippers were telling buyers that supplies were light, hoping to escalate the market."

Obviously something had to be done.

In 1918 shipping point offices for onions opened in Dallas, Mission and Crystal City. That same year Fort Worth became a year-round wholesale receiving market that operated until 1950 when it was transferred to Dallas.

Originally a federal venture, Market News Service became a federal-state program under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act. In Texas the first federal-state agreement was ratified Jan. 10, 1922, with headquarters at San Benito.

Offspring of the Jacksonville office and the first Lower Rio Grande Valley operation in Mission is the office in Weslaco which began in 1939. Headed by John D. Engle, the office has Market News reports on file dating to 1927.

Daily reports of citrus and produce moving out of the Valley are released daily from Weslaco between early November and mid-June. During the summer fruit and vegetable headquarters move to Hereford to follow the High Plains harvest.

Since the early days, Market News in Texas has expanded to include reports on grain, livestock, cotton and other Texas Agricultural Products from offices around the state. Reports are available by mail and by daily tape recordings which can be dialed by telephone.

DAVIS, Calif. (AP)—whever pinched a statue of "Hotel" from a Chinese restaurant here need not bring it back.

"I'm not interested in the return of a stolen Hotel," said restaurant owner George Gee. A Hotel that has been "tampered with," that is stolen and returned, would no longer "project good vibes," he explained.

Hotel is a mythical figure which is considered a symbol of good luck and good health in the Orient.

The statue, which had been bolted to the front wall of the restaurant, is the fourth statue that has disappeared in seven years, Gee said.

The Cost Cutter

Less Irrigation Cost — Lower Harvest Costs Because of Lower Moisture — Less Drying Cost

Pioneer® brand 3780 can cut your costs to improve corn profits in four ways —

★ Less Irrigation Cost — 3780 needs less total water than commonly grown corns because it grows off fast. And because of its early water use, 3780 uses early-season rainfall more efficiently than other corns or crops.

★ Less Harvest & Hauling Cost — Fast drydown with good standability and ear retention lets 3780 dry in the field — you harvest and haul less moisture from the field.

★ Less Dockage — Less water hauled from the field means less dockage or drying expense.

★ Lower Potential Weather and Insect Loss — Because of its rapid growth feature and fast drydown, 3780 is ready for harvest well ahead of commonly grown corns. Fewer days in the field mean less exposure to potential bad weather and late-season insect problems.

MORE NET INCOME PER ACRE

High Plains farmers have consistently found 3780 producing more net income per acre than competitive corns of later maturity . . . even though the green weight of later maturing corns may have been more.

With 3780, you don't take big cuts in yield like you might expect. In fact, in 96 tests under many conditions in the past four years, 3780 has averaged 7,817 pounds per acre. Few farmers will boast of a higher four-year-average, dry-corn yield than this.

Yields like you'd expect from corn with input costs similar to grain sorghum . . . that adds up to more net income per acre.

3780 — 96-High Plains tests — 4-year average — 7,817 lbs./A.
Here's How 3780 Performed For 5 Area Farmers in 1977

Helmuth Quebe — Plainview
Planting date: April 11
Harvest date: August 20
Results: 8,200 lbs./A. at 15.0% moisture; pre-water plus three waterings; outyielded later maturing competitive corn by 600 lbs./A.
His comment: "I like 3780 because of its early maturity."

R. E. Lance — Hereford
Planting date: April 20
Harvest date: September 25
Results: 8,500 lbs./A. at 19% moisture; watered 3 times.
His comment: "3780 did as good as I thought it would."

Don Ott — Dimmitt
Planting date: April 27
Harvest date: September 10
Results: 8,590 lbs./A. at 19% moisture; watered 5 times.
His comment: "3780 had a very good yield for a fast maturing variety."

Vernon Jackson — Stratford
Planting time: April 7
Harvest date: August 5
Results: 8,680 lbs./A. at 16.5% moisture; watered 5 times. Popular competitive variety in same field planted earlier, received 1 additional watering, yielded less, and was harvested 12 days later at 24.5% moisture.

J. L. Francis — Kress
Planting date: June 2
Harvest date: October 20
Results: 7,100 lbs./A. at 14% moisture; watered 5 times.
His comment: "My 3780 was planted after a hail and I was really satisfied with the results."

Sorghum Farmer's Corn

3780 yields well with management similar to sorghum. And since it reaches peak water demand 4 to 6 weeks earlier than sorghum and up to 2 weeks earlier than later maturing corn hybrids, it can take advantage of early-season rainfall and avoid later-season water shortages. The Greatest Drama -- 3 Apostles Disturbed by Jesus' Farewell Supper

EDITOR'S NOTE - This is the third act of a five-act Easter drama. All dialogue is Scriptural, from direct or indirect quotations except minor phrases and some traditional words of stated table graces. Some unattributed comments of disciples are attributed.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer Act III, Scene 1: Nisan 14 (April 7), 30 A.D., sundown, start of Passover. Place: An upstairs chamber in the hewn-stone house of a wealthy Jerusalem widow. Jesus and his 12 disciples enter the room, carrying their sandals, as women array the low table, lighting candles, laying out vessels. The disciples remove cloaks, but not turban-like kaffiyehs, and recline on couches about the table. Jesus, however, also pulls off his tunic, remaining clad only in loincloth. The others, startled, watch silently. He fetches a pan, pitcher and cloths from a shelf and kneels before the burly Peter, pouring water into the pan. The others lean forward to see. Jesus lifts one of Peter's feet.

Peter, jerking it back: "Lord, do not wash my feet." Jesus, waiting: "Afterward you will understand."

Peter, emphatically: "You shall never wash my feet!" Jesus, patiently: "If I do not wash you, you have no part of me."

Peter, exuberantly thrusting forth both feet: "Lord, not my feet only but also my hands and my head!"

Jesus, resuming task: "You are clean, but not all of you." He moves from disciple to disciple without further words, bathing and drying their feet, then puts his tunic back on and reclines at the table among them.

Jesus: "Which is greater, one who sits at table, or one who serves?" The disciples break into simultaneous, uncertain talk about it.

Jesus: "I am among you as one who serves. . . . A servant is not greater than his master, nor is he who is sent greater than he who sent him. . . . I have given you an example. . . . If you know these things, blessed are you if you do them."

The women place a bottle of wine and plates of matzo bread and karpas greens on the table, along with bowls of salt water and a pasty sauce of mashed apples, nuts and wine.

Jesus: "I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer. . . . You are those who have continued with me in my trials; as my Father appointed a kingdom for me, so do I appoint for you. . . ."

He picks up the wine bottle, giving thanks, "Blessed art thou, my Father, who creates the fruit of the vine." He pours out a cupful, takes a sip, and passes it to John, reclining next to him.

Jesus: "Take this, and divide it among yourselves. . . . Drink of it, all of you; for this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins."

They pass it along, acceeing but wondering, each taking a swallow. Jesus: "I tell you, I shall not drink again of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." He dips parsley in the salt water and eats it, as do the others.

Then he takes up a chunk of bread, giving thanks, "Blessed art thou, my Father, who brings forth bread from the earth." He breaks off a piece, and passes the rest to the others. "Take, eat, this is my body."

Jesus, watching their puzzled compliance, murmurs: "He who ate my bread has lifted his heel against me." James nudges John, whispering: "Tell us who it is of whom he speaks."

Jesus, overhearing: "Truly, I say to you, one of you will betray me."

Each, in turn, incredulous and distressed, "Is it I, Lord?" "Is it I?" "Is it I, Master?"

Jesus: "He who has dipped his hand in the dish with me will betray me." Several have dipped, making it unclear. "The Son of man goes as it has been determined." He turns to Judas Iscariot. "What you are going to do, do quickly."

Judas, the group treasurer, gets up, shouldering the joint purse.

Matthew, assuming he was sent for purchases: "Buy what we need." James: "Give something to the poor." Judas, flushing, exits. The women serve shanks of lamb, roasted eggs, bitter herbs and more matzo bread. Jesus: "My time is at hand. Yet a little while I am with you. . . . where I am going you cannot come."

Peter: "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus: "Where I am going you cannot follow me now; but you shall follow afterward."

Peter: "Lord, why cannot I follow you now? I will lay down my life for you."

Jesus: "You will all fall away because of me this night; for it is written, 'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.'"

Peter, slamming the table determinedly: "Though they all fall away because of you, I will never fall away."

Jesus, with resigned smile: "Truly, I say to you, this very night, before the cock crows, you will deny me three times."

Peter, standing up, clapping his chest: "Even if I must die with you, I will not deny you."

Other disciples, in mingled protests: "I will not deny you." "Never." "We will not."

The Counselor, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all that I have said to you. . . . He will bear witness to me; and you also are witnesses. . . . But now I am going to him who sent me.

I say to you, you will weep and lament, but the world will rejoice. You will be sorrowful, but the sorrow will turn into joy.

Let not your hearts be troubled, neither let them be afraid. I go away and I will come to you. . . . The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered. . . . and will leave me alone; yet I am not alone. . . . In the world you have tribulation: But be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

They sit silently a moment, then break into a hymn, the Passover hallel: "O servants of the Lord, praise. . . the Lord. . . He raises the poor from the dust. . . and set me free."

Jesus stands, pulls his woven cloak about himself. "Rise, let us go hence." They exit.

Scene 2: Same evening, second watch (about midnight), with calls of watchmen resounding along Jerusalem's wall towers. Place: A clearing in the woods on the Mount of Olives, across the campfire-dotted valley from the city's eastern wall.

Jesus to his men: "Sit here, while I go yonder and pray. My soul is very sorrowful, even unto death. Remain here, and watch with me." He moves through the trees to an upthrust of limestone and kneels beside it, burying his head in his arms on the rock.

Jesus: "Father, the hour has come. Thy voice breaks. 'Father, if thou art willing remove this cup from me.' His body quivers and he throws back his head, great beads of sweat rolling from his face, his eyes staring into the darkness. 'Nevertheless, not my will but thine be done.'"

He gets up slowly, walks back to the others, who are stretched out sleeping. "So could you not watch with me one hour? The spirit indeed is willing but the flesh is weak." He goes apart and prays again. "My Father, if this cannot pass unless I drink it, thy will be done."

He returns to the sleeping men: "Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? Flares of torches, the tramp of feet, voices and cracking branches come through the trees. 'Rise. . . see, my betrayer is at hand.'"

A detachment of armed Roman soldiers, accompanied by Temple priests and officers, burst into the scene, bearing lanterns and weapons.

Judas Iscariot, scared, eyes darting: "Hail Master!" He kisses Jesus.

Jesus, lewelly: "Judas, would you betray the Son of man with a kiss?" He turns to the military commander: "Whom do you seek?"

Tribune: "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus: "Have you come out as against a robber, with swords and clubs to capture me? Day after day I sat in the Temple teaching, and you did not seize me. But this is your hour and the power of darkness. . . . I am he."

Abruptly, Peter and the Zealot draw swords and begin slashing out at the surrounding band, one swipe severing the ear of Malchus, servant of the high priest, who screams with pain as blood spurts forth. The soldiers draw swords and move into the malec.

Jesus to disciples, sternly: "Put your sword back into its place. All who take the sword will perish by the sword." The soldiers have overpowered several disciples, but Jesus protests: "I told you I am he. So if you seek me, let these men go."

Tribune, slapping with his staff: "Not them! Him!" The soldiers swing about and seize Jesus, binding him about his arms with ropes. The disciples, terror-stricken, steal separately away into the dark woods.

Scene 3: The third watch (about 3 a.m.) in an open courtyard of the high priest's house, with sharp voices of interrogation coming from the lighted interior, where Jesus stands bound.

Roman soldiers, Temple officers and servants huddle around a burning charcoal brazier in the courtyard, warming themselves, an uneasy Peter among them, glancing repeatedly and fearfully at the scene inside.

A maldeasant, in surprised recognition: "You also were with Jesus the Galilean." She whirls about to others, pointing. "This man also was with him."

Peter, averting his face: "I do not know what you mean. Woman, I do not know him." He edges away to a group near the gateway.

Another bystander: "Certainly you are also one of them, for you are a Galilean. Your accent betrays you."

Peter, swearing furiously: "Man, I do not know what you are saying. I do not know the man."

In the distance, a cock crows the approach of dawn.
