Committee chops repository test funds

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Senate committee's unexpected decision to cut funding for testing of proposed nuclear dump sites in Texas and two other states gives opponents a small victory and more time to win the war, Texas lawmakers and residents

The surprise cuts, which came from the Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday after backstage negotiations, were so drastic that the Energy Department may be unable to work on potential waste sites, including the one proposed in Deaf Smith County in the Texas Panhandle, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, said he "couldn't think of any better news" for area residents.

Wayne Richardson, president of a seed company that is located on the proposed site, said the decision at least provides temporary relief to area farmers.

"Land value has already gone to pot just because of the threat here," Richardson said. "We (the Panhandle) are the breadbasket of the nation. It's the richest, largest agriculture area in the country, and we don't need the dump site."

Bentsen said the funding cut provides additional time for study.

"I realize nothing is final," Sarpalius said. "But if the Senate's vote holds up, Texas will have won two straight victories in the war against the nuclear waste dump. First, DOE agrees to abide by our permitting law and now they get all their study money taken away.

"We can't let this victory weaken our resolve to keep the dump out of Texas, though. DOE eventually will get that money and we'll be in the same situation we are in now," he said.

Senators from Nevada and Washington, the two other states with sites chosen by President Reagan earlier this summer for further investigation, all supported the move, said Paul Laxalt, a Nevada Republican.

The other two sites are Yucca Mountain near the Nevada nuclear test site and the Hanford nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash.

The department had planned to begin detailed geological investigations, including the sinking of shafts some 3,000 feet, aimed at recommending one site to whomever is president in 1991.

The cut, if eventually upheld, would leave the department with $380 million for disposal work during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. The department had sought $769 million.

The House has approved $678 million, and the Senate Appropriations energy and water subcommittee had set aside $619 million in its $14.5 billion version of the appropriations bill for the Energy Department and for water projects of the Interior Department and Army Corps of Engineers.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, told the full committee $380 million was "the figure the budget office has indicated will provide for the continuation of the organization but will not provide for any activity."

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., ranking minority member on the commitee, said, "It depoliticizes it. deregionalizes it, yet keeps the (Nuclear Waste Policy Act) from being taken apart."

The 1982 act aims at opening a permanent waste depository by 1998, when the Energy Department must take title to spent nuclear fuel now stored at power plants.

Bentsen said he had asked the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Oregon, to delete fiscal 1987 funds for work in Deaf Smith County and at the other two possible sites.

Laxalt said he had been a "good soldier" in supporting nuclear testing in his state, yet "based on the Chernobyl incident, and what happened to (the space shuttle) Challenger, I have become conerned about these so-called experts."

"If there is a nuclear accident, it's not going to be confined, any more than it was at Chernobyl, at the boundary lines of Nevada, Utah or Washington or anywhere else," Laxalt said.

He said the program administration had been "sloppy ... fatally flawed." The House Appropriations Committee has described it as "satisfactory." He said senators agreed to the fund-stripping amendment beforehand so they would not have to face competing amendments from Laxalt and Warren Rudman, R-N.H.

tion and we thought we should at least see what we're representing here," he said.

The attorney general's office is currently involved in two suits: one against the Environmental Protection Agency concerning site characterization and the other on the DOE's environmental assesment guidelines. Hicks also said the tour was not meant to gain any legal ground for the suit, "although some of the facts we've gathered may be helpful to the suit later on.'

He said the federal government is hard to fight but as of now, the DOE hasn't taken any concrete steps to acquire land. "They've just been in touch with the citizens' group," said Hicks. According to Hicks, the land acquisition will mainly be a private matter, except for some federal guidelines.

Hicks said it should be November before any steps are taken, but deadlines are going to be set very soon. In early September, the Texas attorneys will be in court in Boston arguing the EPA suit.

He also noted transportation of the waste as an issue because it could not only affect the Panhandle, but the whole state.

Hicks summarized Mattox's position on the issue by saying "he was in Congress when the Nuclear Waste Act was passed. He's said there has to be a better place to dispose of the waste. Why ruin prime farm areas when there's other areas available?"

Hicks also said that the state is not suing just for the sake of suing, but said that Mattox believes the DOE shouldn't dispose of any waste unless the agency complies with the law.

For barbeque

Owens won't tell his secret

By CINDY SMITH Staff Writer

Bobby Owens can keep a secret - if it concerns how he makes delectable barbeque.

The veteran barbeque chef Owens has prepared barbeque for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Diamond Jubilee, the Town and Country Jubilees, and for two Texas-Oklahoma Kiwanis conventions serving approximately 1,200 people at each convention.

Owens says he doesn't have a recipe. "I just cook it," he claims. But, Owens admitted that he has strict rules for cooking.

The secret to his barbeque is his homemade smoker. "I use nothing but mesquite wood, season it with salt and pepper and pop it in the smoker," smiled Owens. He explained that the firebox draws the smoke from the fire through to the meat and this is what keeps in the flavor. His iron smoker holds up to 200 lbs. of meat.

Owens added that his barbeque is always good because he buys good meat. "I only barbeque beef and pork. I never barbeque chicken because it's not raised in Deaf Smith County," he said. For the past five years, Waldo Baxter, fellow Kiwanian, has been

Youth convicted of murder by torture some cuts that would not damage

HOUSTON (AP) - An 18-year-old youth who testified he helped kill a friend because he feared for his own safety faces up to life in prison after being convicted in the torture slaying.

Jurors deliberated for 45 minutes Wednesday before convicting Harold Glenn Smith in the Aug. 6, 1985, death of 19-year-old Dennis Keith Medler. Smith has not yet been sentenced.

Prosecutor Jim Peacock told jurors that five members of a gang planned for three weeks to torture Medler to death just to watch himhe didn't help them.

"I probably could've run," Smith told Peacock. "But they'd have got me quick."

Peacock said Medler was chosen as the victim because he had evicted Smith from an apartment three weeks before the killing.

Evidence showed Medler was stabbed, kicked, strangled and beaten with a pipe before suffocating on his own blood and teeth. His body was found eight days later near a north Harris County cemetery by a man tending cattle.

"If I believed I was guilty of killing somebody," Smith said, "I'd plead guilty and take my time like a man."

Smith's attorney, Joe Frank Cannon, questioned the credibility of the key state witness, Bridgette Stowe, 19, and whether the confession his client gave police was voluntary. Ms. Stowe, who testified she pretended to be asleep to avoid accompanying the group when it left with Medler to kill him, called Smith the leader of the group. "I never really thought anybody was going to kill him," Smith said, contradicting Ms. Stowe's testimony that the group plotted the murder for weeks. While Medler was being beaten, he said, he simply stood there and

"checked it all out."

Smith is the first of the five suspects to be tried. Also charged with murder in Medler's death are Michael Gene Cravey, 20, John-Michael Trimmer, 18, Martin Tosh, 17, and Shannon Rivera, 17.

Women feeds hungry children

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Twice a day, some 300 hungry children speaking a multitude of languages unwrap free meals on benches and tables set up on a barricaded west Philadelphia street at Ada Alexander's doorstep.

The summer food program is underwritten by state, private and church contributions, driven by Ms. Alexander's determination and shaped by regulations that the 68-year-old woman didn't even know existed when she set out to feed the neighborhood.

"Five years ago I received a call from Ada," says field representative Bonnie Baehr of the Philadelphia Roman Catholic Archdiocese. "She was crying. She said that the children of her neighborhood were going through the garbage cans for food and eating the plants out of their apartment balcony planters."

Ms. Baehr went to see Ms. Alexander ad was quickly convinced of the need for a food program there.

Funding soon followed, and a program providing both breakfast and lunch was under way.

An average of 320 children flock to her doorstep for each meal. The food is provided by the archdiocese with funding from the state Department of Education.

Most of the children are younger than 8 and live in a single apartment building that runs the length of one west Philadelphia block.

Reagan maid faces smuggling charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A naturalized U.S. citizen who has worked as first lady Nancy Reagan's personal maid since 1981 is one of three people charged in an alleged scheme to smuggle small-caliber ammunition to Paraguay.

Anita Castelo, 45, was put on administrative leave last Thursday after the White House was informed by law enforcement agencies that she had been charged with aiding and abetting the illegal exportation of munitions in a complaint at the U.S. District Court in Richmond, Va., White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Wednesday. Mrs. Castelo has not been indicted. She has been and jury that will

Speakes said Mrs. Castelo's duties did not involve any responsibility for classified information but that she had been interviewed by the Secret Service to ensure her activities did not entail a breach of national security. "The Secret Service has concluded that there was no evidence of a breach of security," he said.

Speakes said Mrs. Castelo, who was born in Paraguay, became a U.S. citizen in 1967. She had worked as part of the White House residence staff since 1981 and was paid $17,430 annually, he said.

The FBI conducted a full investigation of the woman in 1981, but found nothing untoward in her background.

Elaine Crispen, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, said the first lady would have no comment on the matter because it is in the courts.

Speakes said President Reagan and his wife were informed of the charges last Thursday.

Uribe says lottery bill still alive

AUSTIN (AP) - Efforts to pass a state lottery measure during the special session are not dead, Senate and House sponsors said after a turnback in a Senate committee.

"I hope I can get another hearing in a few days," said Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, after his measure was knocked off the agenda of the Senate Affairs Committee on Wednesday.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, protested that the committee could not act in Uribe's proposal because it had not been submitted as a subject of the special session by Gov. Mark White.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, committee chairman, said if White opens the session call to revenue-raising measures, Uribe's proposal would be considered.

A similar proposal was introduced in the House by Rep. Larry Evans, if this bill passes without the people being allowed to investigate the complaints on abused children, we'll lose four or five children that will be killed," Willis said.

But when the vote was taken, with Lewis looking on, Willis voted "aye."

"I'm whipped," he said. The cuts are a major part of Lewis' plan to get the state through the cash crunch without the tax hikes pushed by Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"The strong support shown here today indicates the willingness on the part of the House to make some very drastic cuts," Lewis said of the appropriations committee vote. "I'd like to challenge anyone from this point on who says there is any fat in state spending."

The cuts hit almost all areas of state government, including a 13 percent reduction for spending on higher education.

Voting against the bill were Reps. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi: A.C. Garcia, D-Pharr; Frank Madla, D-San Antonio; and Tom Uher, D-Bay City.

State Treasurer Ann Richards told lawmakers Wednesday that cuts alone probably won't solve the budget crisis. She called for a tax hike to be enacted during the special

"A program of budget cuts solves the cash-flow problem only temporarily until August 1987, and delaying revenue measures until January will be too late," she said. White said he is reviewing the House committee's plan. "We're still talking," he said.

The total state deficit is projected to hit $3.5 billion next August if taxes are not raised or spending cut. Lewis said a tax bill, if needed, should be considered in the regular 1987 session beginning next January.

The appropriations committee delayed action on another portion of the Lewis plan, a plan to raid the Permanent University Fund and Permanent School Fund for $1.1 billion. Those funds long have been considered untouchable and crucial to education.

The $1.1 billion represents capital gains earned on the funds in the past five years. White and education officials oppose the plan.

The funds transfer was approved Monday by the appropriations committee as part of the budget cuts. But y voted to make it a separate bill to be handled later.

Committee Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, said the entire spending cut package would have been jeopardized had the school fund transfer been part of it.

"The Senate would have definitely killed this bill. This way, they won't have that reason to kill the bill," he

Medication can ease migraines

DEAR READER - I think that your doctors are from outer space. Sexual excitement and orgasm can trigger migraine headaches in susceptible individuals. You cannot start again until the flashing red lights are no longer activated or the bus driver signals you to proceed.

"Be especially watchful in school zones as this is where students will be congregated. Extra effort on a drivers part will pay off in preventing traffic accidents in these areas," advised Major Cawthon.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am six me, he just punched me in the months pregnant. Twelve days after my pregnancy was confirmed I began to receive catalogs that sold maternity needs. Although I was not sure how I got on these lists I really didn't mind.

Several weeks ago we began getting phone calls in the evening, as late as 10:15. They were from every baby service imaginable.

The other morning I got a call from a diaper service at 6:45 a.m. because they wanted to reach me "before I left for work."

My husband and I finally decided to ask the last few callers where they got our number. Most were evasive. but one firm admitted that they had BOUGHT our address and phone number from my doctor!

When I started asking around to see if other women had similar experiences I found out they had. Isn't this unetical? Shouldn't the doctor's office ask permission before they give out personal information on a patient?

I am afraid to discuss this with my obstetrician for fear of alienating him before my baby is born. I desperately need his good will.

The irony is that if I want to reach my doctor in an emergency I must go through his answering service because his home phone is nonpublished. So is mine, but his office sold it to dozens of hucksters. What should I Do? -- FURIOUS IN CHICAGO

DEAR FURIOUS: Wait until the baby is born, then chew out the doctor. Pass the word to your family and friends. The practice you describe is despicable. And for heaven's sake change your phone number as soon as the baby comes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have never before written to you but I am compelled to support the woman who wrote to say she couldn't stand her brother. You urged her to "try." Well, dearie, you haven't been there. have. May I speak my piece?

My brother never sexually abused stomach, broke my toys, tormented my friends, and lied about me constantly to get me in trouble with my parents.

I made excellent grades but no one ever gave me a pat on the back because my brother's grades were terrible. When a kind aunt asked my mother about this she said, "We never praise one unless we can praise the other."

My mother, whom he never obeyed or respected, favored my brother to her dying day. She overlooked his faults and shameful conduct to a point where it was nauseating.

A few years ago, on a bus tour, the subject of bully brothers came up. I was amazed at the number of women who had had similar experiences. I'm sure this problem from early childhood has a lot to do with my inability to relate to men in a normal

A MATTER OF AGE is not necessarily true that older vintage wines are better than younger vintages. If a wine is complex, it needs time to age. Aging, however, takes years, not decades. Most reds are ready after aging for approximately three to five years. Most whites are best from six months to two years. Aging a wine forty to fifty years carries the risk that it will fall apart ether. Some wines are bette before their second birthday. They include, for example, Chenin Blanc, Portuguese whites, and pink or blush whites. Johannisberg Rieslings, Gewurztraminers and Sauvignon Blancs should age at least two to three years. Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Pinot Noir, Burgandies. bordeaux and some Chardonnays and Zinfandels need at least five years in the cellar.

You'll find our staff at THE STORE very knowledgeable when it comes to wines and most anxious to share this wealth of information with you. Even if you are looking for a particular bottle of wine make us your first stop and chances are there will be no need to go elsewhere. We are located at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 and look us over. In 8 2-3 innings, Hershiser gave up five hits and three runs - with all runs and three of the hits coming in the last inning. He had retired 24 of the 26 batters he faced, with only two

"After the first two hits, he became a little cautious," Los Angeles manager Tommy Lasorda Bloop singles by John Mizerock and Bill Doran greeted Hershiser while a two-run hit by Kevin Bass hurt him the most. He also issued his only two walks before Niedenfuer earned his eigth save.

"Mizerock's hit would have been an out if it had gone on any other part of the field, and Doran's hit was a check swing. Bass' hit was legitmate; it came on a bad pitch."

In a four-run, four-hit first inning, the Dodgers took an early lead. Bill Madlock's hit-by-pitch and Len Matuszek's walk was sandwiched between doubles by Bill Russell and Greg Brock, who had two RBI in the inning along with Mike Scioscia.

Loser Mike Scott, 12-8, had not allowed more than three runs in 20 starts before Wednesday, when he surrendered all five Dodgers runs and seven hits in only five innings. He had only given up four earned runs in his previous 31 innings. However, Scott is still the major league leader in strikeouts, picking up six to raise his total for the season

"I was all over the place," Scott said. "I had no idea where my pitches were going. When you're that bad, you just aim down the middle. I

Los Angeles righthander Orel Hershiser saw his fortunes rise and fall. but he still prevailed over the Houston Astros.

Rangers edge Brewers, 5-4, in 12 innings

By The Associated Press

Texas Rangers reliever Greg Harris is reminding some people of a relief pitcher the Los Angeles Dodgers had about 20 years ago by the name of Phil Regan.

Regan was nicknamed "Vulture" by his teammates, because he came in in the late innings of tie games and picked up a quick victory with a minimum of work.

Harris is following that pattern. Wednesday night, he earned his third victory in the last five games with one inning of work as the Rangers scored in the 12th inning to beat the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

Harris, the fifth pitcher used by manager Bobby Valentine in the game, has won his last five decisions, squaring his record at 8-8. Those five wins have come in the last 10 games.

"It's nice to be even again," said Harris, who got out of a mild jam by picking a runner off first during his inning of work. "Mitch (Williams) pitched three great innings, then I come in and get the win."

Williams held the Brewers the past three games.

He was nicked for a leadoff double into the leftfield corner in the 12th by pinch-hitter Don Slaught, who advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt and scored on Ruben Sierra's two-out single off Bryan Clutterbuck.

"Ruben battled them all night long," Valentine said of his rookie outfielder, who was hitless in four previous at-bats.

Bobby Witt started for the Rangers and struck out nine batters in four innings, but he walked six and left in the fifth with the score tied 2-2 after the first two batters reached base.

"Witt had outstanding stuff early on," said Valentine, "but I thought he lost it in the fifth. After that, we got another great job out of our bullpen."

Valentine has used 17 pitchers in

"We thrive on the work," said Harris, who has appeared in five straight and leads the American League in games finished.

Darrell Porter homered for the Rangers, his sixth of the season, and Rob Deer hit his 25th of the year for the Brewers.

His second-inning shot gave starter Danny Darwin a 1-0 lead, which Porter wiped out with his tworun shot in the bottom of the inning. Harris, 8-8, pitched one inning for

Garden under construction

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Construction is two-thirds complete on a unique underground plant conservatory, officials at the San Antonio Botanical Garden say.

The special plant museum is being built underground to protect the greenery from the intense South Texas sun and heat.

To be called the Lucile Halsell Conservatory, the $6 million facility is being built primarily with donations from the Ewing Halsell Foundation.

It was designed by famed Argentinian architect Emilio Ambasz, who created the underground plant museum especially for San Antonio's hot climate.

"I just wish it were finished," said horticulturist Steve Gaydos as he gazed at the construction site.

Gaydos has been acting as construction boss for the half-acre conservatory project.

When completed, the museum will be visible at ground level through large glass pyramids that will rest on contoured grassy banks. The pyramids will form a roof that will provide the only source of daylight for the interior. The underground conservatory, said Botanical Garden Director Eric Tschanz, "extends the range of the plant material you can grow. It's a needed part for a botanical garden."

The new complex will house hot tropicals, a palm garden and an

"orangery," where citrus trees are grown, plus an exhibit hall and staff offices.

Only the offices will be air conditioned in the traditional sense.

The exhibit area and plant rooms will have a more elaborate climate control system that depends on a computer.

"This will be for the people of San Antonio," Tschanz said. "There'll be something different every season."

No accomodations for USFL refugees

NFL rejects roster increase

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - USFL players seeking jobs in the NFL aren't getting much help from the owners in the older league.

NFL owners overwhelmingly rejected Wednesday a proposal to increase their rosters from 45 to 49 players to accomodate refugees from the USFL, which is remaining inactive this year after being awarded just $3 in its antitrust suit against the NFL.

The proposal to increase the rosters got only four of the 21 votes needed, failing even to get the vote of the man who proposed it - Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys. Schramm missed his first NFL meeting in 26 years to stay in California for the signing of running back Herschel Walker and the Cowboys were officially regarded as an abstention.

"It was a feeling of not wanting to change horses in midstream," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "We've already started training camp with a 45-player limit and we don't want to change the rules now."

About the only balm the USFL players got was a limited roster exemption - they won't count against the player limit that goes down to 60 next Tuesday for two weeks of workouts. But the first time a player suits up for a preseason game, that exemption is lifted.

NFL rosters were at 49 for 21/2 seasons but were reduced to 45 last year by owners who said they wanted to save money on player salaries.

Tennis tournament starts next Thursday

A tennis tournament will start next Thursday in Hereford, the YMCA Deaf Smith County, Dimmitt and Friona Tennis Tournament.

The tournament, which continues through Sunday, Aug. 24, will have five elementary divisions, five junior high divisions, five high school divisions, and 10 adult divisions.

The tournament will be held at the Hereford High School tennis courts. Competition each day begins at 8

Entry deadline for elementary, junior high and high school divisions is 5:30 p.m. on Aug. 19. Entry deadline for adult divisions is 5:30

Entry limit is three events per person. Tennis players ages 16 and over may play in adult divisions, but must enter division "A."

Entry fees for junior high and elementary divisions are $5 per event for YMCA members and $6 per event for non-members of the YM-CA. Entry fees for adult and high school divisions are $7.50 for YMCA members and $9 for non-members of the YMCA.

Registration forms are available at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA office. For more information, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

Proponents of the larger roster, including all the coaches and many general managers, noted that the number of players on the injured reserve list increased last season as teams sought new ways to stockpile extra players. Wednesday's meeting was postponed from its usual June date by the NFL-USFL antitrust suit, which resulted in the younger league decided to not play this year and thus the mass exodus of players for the

More than two dozen ex-USFL players had signed with NFL teams by Wednesday including Walker and running back Kelvin Bryant who signed with the Washington Red-

Unlike Walker and other big-name players, many have just marginal chances of making NFL teams, particularly since they are reporting to training camps a month late.

Owners were also briefed Wednesday on the USFL suit by the NFL's lawyers, Frank Rothman, Robert Fiske and Paul Tagliabue, who will move Sept. 3 to have set aside the one antitrust count on which the league was found liable. It was exonerated on eight others. The jury found that the NFL was a monopoly and had maintained its position as a monopo-

Cowboys' Lavette believes he will make the team

ATLANTA (AP) - Running back Robert Lavette spent his college career at Georgia Tech in the shadow of cross-state rival Herschel Walker. With Walker joining him on the NFL's Dallas Cowboys, however, Lavette says there will be no renewal of the rivalry.

"I think I'll make the team," Lavette said Wednesday. "I'm not worried about that. But Herschel being here could cut down on my playing time at running back."

Lavette said he thinks he will get along with Walker, who signed a fiveyear contract Wednesday with yards in 1979 - if Walker had not tallied 3,167 yards as a Johnson Central High senior.

But Lavette, in an interview published in today's editions of The Atlanta Constitution, said all that is history.

"When you get in the pros, you put all that stuff behind you," he said. "I don't know Herschel that well, other than playing against him at Tech and seeing him a few times in the offseason. But we'll get along."

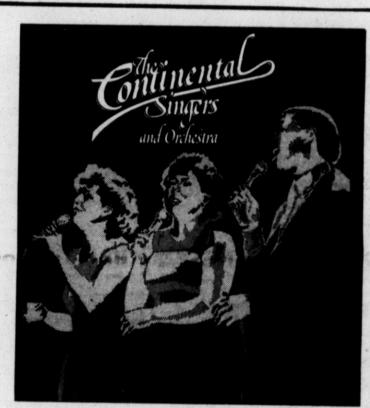

Walker, who signed with the troubled USFL after his junior year at Georgia, has not yet had his position with the Cowboys determined. But Walker's presence almost certainly means less playing time for Lavette. Lavette maintained he does not believe the arrival of Walker means the end of his job with Dallas.

"I've had a pretty good pre-season camp and so far I've stayed away from injuries," Lavette said. "I think I really have improved in returning kickoffs and also have been returning punts."

"I am fortunate, King Agrippa," he began, "to beable to present my answer before you, for I know you are an expert on Jewish laws and customs. Now please listen patiently! As the Jews are well aware, I was given a thorough Jewish training from my earliest childhood in Tarsus and later at Jerusalem, and I lived accordingly. If they would admit it, they know that I have always been the strictest of Pharisees when it comes to obedience to lewish laws and customs. But the real reason behind their accusations is something else - it is because I am looking forward to the fulfillment of God's promise made to our ancestors. The 12 tribes of Israel strive night and day to attain this same hope I have! Yet, O King, for me it is a crime, they say! But is it a crime to believe in the resurrection of the dead? Does it seem incredible to you that God can bring men back to life again. I used to believe that I ought to do many horrible things to the followers of Jesus of Nazareth. I imprisoned many of the saints in Jerusalem, as authorized by the High Priests; and when they were condemned to death, I cast my vote against them."

Budget shortfall hits city

DALLAS (AP) - A projected budget shortfall of more than $60 million could cost hundreds of municipal employees their jobs and sharply cut services, a bitter setback for a city used to being a glittering notch in the prosperous Sun Belt.

Dallas is studying a budget plan that would eliminate 600 jobs and raise most fees by 20 percent in an effort to meet a state law that requires cities to operate with a balanced

If the plan were adopted by the City Council, all city swimming pools would be closed next summer, the summer playground program would be eliminated, and the central Ebrary would be closed evenings. Dallas' woes come at a time when state lawmakers are fighting a fiscal crisis caused by the collapse of oil and gas prices. The Legislature is considering various plans to attack a deficit that Comptroller Bob Bullock said will grow to $3.5 billion by Aug. 31, 1987, unless taxes are raised or spending is cut.

Dallas City Manager Charles Anderson unveiled his $1 billion budget Monday, recommending nearly $20 million be cut from services such as park programs, health and human services and city building security operations.

The shortfall, estimated at $60.3 million, is due to planned spending increases in the police and fire departments and in street repair, coupled with flagging sales and property tax revenues, Anderson said.

"With regard to sales tax, three years ago it was growing at an annual rate of about 18 percent. We're projecting no growth next year," Anderson said.

The sales tax problems can be traced to the downturn in the Texas economy that has made consumers wary of spending money. But officials say the problems also stem from a softening in the real estate market, brought on by overexpansion, and a large number of bankruptcies.

"We are not that dependent on oil. We have some (business) headquarters here but we don't have any oil under our soil," Anderson said. "While the tax base is growing, we are expecting our collection rate to diminish because of the growing number of bankruptcies," he said. The budget proposal includes a downward revision in the tax collection rate of 96.5 percent to 95 percent, a $3.8 million loss. Despite the fact that the city is experiencing its worst budget forecast, Anderson said the city's financial indicators are robust. 'While real estate and energy are having problems now we've got some very strong signs in general aviation, defense, high technology, (and) the film industry," he said. Anderson said he expects Dallas to retain its AAA bond rating from both Standard & Poors and Moody's.

Surpluses from previous years have been plugged into emergency reserve funds that have helped buoy the city's financial standing, Anderson said. He said he expects the economy to rebound within three years.

The proposed budget has no new

Mayor Starke Taylor says this is the first time the city has plunged into fiscal problems and predicts the City Council will have a difficult time.

In Houston, Mayor Kathy Whitmire proposed a $1.3 billion budget this spring. The plan projected a $72 million shortfall and called for 750

However, the City Council balked at the layoffs and instead passed a 3 percent pay cut for all city employees. About 375 municipal positions have been eliminated, but the pay cuts may have saved the jobs of the remaining employees, said Paul Mabry, a spokesman for the

Ms. Whitmire plans to present a revised budget proposal in about two weeks, Mabry said.

Joint venture locates plant in suburb

PLANO, Texas (AP) - Business and government officials say a $60 million compact disc plant will introduce new technology to the Southwest and provide 350 new jobs.

The Memory-Tech Inc. plant will be the first of its kind in the southwestern United States and among the 10 largest taxpayers in this Dallas-area suburb, officials said Wednesday in announcing construction plans.

'This decision will mean hundreds of jobs for Texans and translates into the introduction of state-of-the-art manufacturing technology to the Texas economy," Gov. Mark White said in a prepared release.

"The Memory-Tech decision will benefit the Texas economy with 350 new manufacturing jobs, $16 million in annual payroll and over $60 million in new tax base," White said.

"Texas is serious about creating new jobs, attracting new industry and diversifying our economy."

Initially, the Memory-Tech facility will employ about 200 people with a payroll of about $7 million, company officials said.

The company will manufacture compact discs, an extremely high fidelity method of recording.

"This was a very highly competitive endeavor we were involved in," said Plano Mayor Jack Harvard. "The competition was tough and we are so pleased to be selected."

Memory-Tech is a joint venture of Mitsubishi Corp. and ElectroSound Group Inc.

The first phase of construction will begin this this fall, with operations beginning next year.

The Texas Economic Development Commission, White, the city of Plano and Chamber of Commerce assembled the incentive package to attract the company.

Cliff Drummond, executive assistant to White, said the state and Memory-Tech would jointly operate a training program, with the state paying 50 percent of workers' salaries during training.

"We are pleased to welcome this firm to our area," said Harvard. "The new job opportunities generated will add to our vibrant local economy and will continue our prominence in the high-tech international market."

The first project phase will cost $32 million to build, and the second phase will cost $30 million.

Harvard said Memory-Tech will be among the 10 largest taxpayers in the city.

"The incentive package we put together beat three other states and 20 cities that were in the competition," White said.

The incentive package for Memory-Tech also included a construction assistance commitment from the city of Plano
