There must have been a heatwave on Fourth Street Wednesday as both bank signs showed different temperatures at the same time. In the above photos, the sign near the First National Bank shows the time as 3:03 and the temperature at 103. In the bottom photo taken at the Hereford State Bank, the time is also 3:03, but the temperature reads only 97.

There seems to be an extra-added anticipation for the 1986 football season in Hereford. With the return of Don Cumpston as the grid mentor and the Herd moving into the Class 4A football district, fans and players alike are anxious for the action.

And that action is not far away. The Whitefaces open the season at home Sept. 5 against the Andrews Mustangs, then host the Clovis Wildcats the following week before getting into district competition. The Herd will have six home games this year due to a scheduling problem by Andrews. Hereford was originally scheduled to travel to Andrews, but Cumpston changed the game to help Andrews work out its schedule.

Lubbock Estacado, with a host of returning starters from last year's playoff team, has been picked as the team to beat in the district race. Hereford was picked second in a coaches' poll. The Herd will clash with rivals of the past in the race—such as Pampa, Borger, Canyon and Dumas. Other teams in the league are Lubbock Dunbar, Levelland, and Frenship.

We recently received the West Texas State media guide, and the Buffs are also looking at "a whole new ball game." WTSU is now a member of the Lone Star Conference, and the Buffs were recently ranked second in the nation in a pre-season poll of NAIA schools.

The Buffs' media guide included some interesting information that not all local football fans may know about. Hereford High played WTSU seven times in the Buffs' formative football years, and the Whitefaces have a winning 4-3 edge in grid victories over WT!

Hereford beat the Buffs, 10-6, when WT started football in 1910. Hereford played the Buffs three times in the 1911 season and won two of the games by 8-0 and 5-3 scores. WT captured the other game by 5-0. (Must have been defensive thrillers!). WT won twice over Hereford in 1914 by 20-0 and 58-6 scores. The teams played last in 1920, when Hereford took a 15-0 triumph.

Committee dislikes White's plan

Tax issue at stalemate

AUSTIN (AP) — Although Gov. Mark White has expanded the special legislative session to consider a temporary sales tax hike, the stalemate between legislative leaders appears no closer to solution.

"We know all about taxes," said House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter, adding that the White tax plan won't even get a hearing before his panel.

The committee must approve all tax legislation, but Schlueter said his committee now opposes White's $810 million tax hike by a 10-3 margin.

"Give me some time and it will be 13-0," Schlueter said.

White refused to say which lawmaker would sponsor his proposal to raise the sales tax from 4 1/2 percent to 5 1/4 percent for one year.

In opening the call Wednesday to include the sales tax proposal, White also allowed lawmakers to consider a constitutional amendment to prohibit a personal or corporate income tax, and legislation allowing out-of-state banks to purchase Texas banks and permitting no increase, Speaker Gib Lewis and many of his conservative House colleagues remain opposed, thus apparently deadlocking legislative action.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, predicted the current special session could end in a stalemate when its 30-day time limit is reached Sept. 4.

"I wouldn't plan a vacation for the first of September. I'm cancelling the one now that I've got. I was going to Alaska fishing," Lewis said.

Under the Texas Constitution, special sessions are limited to considering topics permitted by the governor. Since White said his expansion of the call does not include horse race gambling or a lottery, some lawmakers were angry.

House Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga, sponsor of a horse racing bill, said he had been led to believe by White's staff that the governor would allow consideration of the measure.

"All along, we've given him the benefit of the doubt. I don't think he's playing with a full deck with the House," Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, said of White.

White initially called the special session for budget cuts to help cure the state's $3.5 billion deficit. Since lawmakers convened Aug. 6, he has opened it to a few other topics, including school discipline and child support enforcement.

White said he didn't believe horse race wagering or a state-run lottery would raise sufficient money quickly enough to help with the current budget crisis, so he left those measures out Wednesday.

"I wanted to narrow the range of deliberations to those matters that will have a direct impact on the solution of the problem," he said at a brief news conference. "I don't believe that either of those measures (horse racing or lottery) will give us the revenues that we need at this particular time."

White also denied misleading lawmakers into thinking he would allow horse racing or lottery bills.

"This is exactly what I told them I was going to do," he said.

Despite the constitutional limit on special session topics, House speaker Lewis said he would allow the chamber to debate horse racing and lottery measures.

Lewis said it is his opinion that by allowing debate on a sales tax bill, the governor opened the door to other money-raising bills.

"I have consulted with my parliamentarian and he indicates to me — through case law and by precedent — that it does open it up to those two measures, and I would rule that way," Lewis said.

Hike in Texas crime rate blamed on economy, drugs

AUSTIN (AP) - The nearly 19 percent increase in Texas crime so far this year should be blamed on the state's faltering economy and stepped-up drug trafficking, Gov. Mark White says.

The Department of Public Safety reported Wednesday that the total number of crimes in seven major categories was up 18.6 percent from January to June 1986, compared with the same period a year ago.

Last year, 497,524 major crimes were reported from January to June, compared to 589,985 for this year, the DPS said.

The crime rate, the number of crimes per 100,000 people, also was up, an increase of 15.8 percent to 3,604, the agency said.

DPS Director Col. Jim Adams said all seven major crime categories saw increases: murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, theft and motor vehicle theft.

The DPS also reported that crime was up in all 19 Texas cities of more than 100,000 population. Those increases ranged from 4.3 percent in Wichita Falls to 35.8 percent in Amarillo.

Asked about the sharp upsurge,

White tied it directly to the rising unemployment that has accompanied the state's recent economic downturn.

"I think everyone knows that as economic conditions decline, that tends to increase and aggravate the criminal element," White told a news conference.

"Also, apparently there is an exaggeration of those numbers brought about by increased trafficking in cocaine and other hard narcotics into this country, something we have been pressing the federal government to do."

Food, gasoline prices balance retail report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first drop in gasoline prices since April made up for the steepest rise in food costs in more than two years to hold retail prices steady in July, the government said today.

More good news for consumers: So far this year, prices have fallen 0.2 percent, at an annual rate, their best showing since 1949.

But analysts warn that the July report could mark the end of the best news on inflation. Yet, no economist was predicting that prices would begin rising rapidly.

The belief that prices will turn upward is based in part on the OPEC agreement earlier this month to temporarily cut oil production in an effort to boost sagging world oil prices.

As for last month, however, gasoline prices fell 6.6 percent, more than offsetting gains posted in May and June and their fourth drop this year.

Indeed, for the first seven months of 1986, gasoline prices have declined 27.4 percent and now stand 35.7 percent below their peak level of March 1981.

Food costs, however, rose a sharp 0.8 percent in July, their biggest gain since January 1984. All major food categories showed substantial increases, with beef prices rising for the second straight month after falling for the first five months of the year.

Self-taught artist happy in job

A portrait which hangs in a local bank is one of many creations of Bobby Finch, a self-taught artist now designing logos for H&R Manufacturing.

The commercial artist also designed the logo for the Greg Black Memorial 10-Kilometer and Two-Mile Fun Run.

"Most of my work is done in pastels but I'd like to branch off in oils and watercolor later on," said Finch.

Finch learned to draw what he saw without the aid of books to learn perspective. His shading and texturing techniques are also a natural in his art ability.

The artist is now busy learning basic black and white camera-ready art. What started out as a natural talent and love for anything artistic has gotten him a job and an opportunity to learn more about the field.

Finch doesn't have cut books, he draws his own. He also does hand-lettering which is a necessity at H&R Manufacturing.

Panel prepares to question PUC

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate Nominations Committee, which met privately with Attorney General Jim Mattox to discuss the case, today looked at the nomination of Jo Campbell to the Public Utility Commission.

Chairman Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, said Ms. Campbell would be asked specific questions about allegations made about her in an appeal of a PUC ruling of a telephone rate case.

The committee also planned to hear from the lawyer who filed the appeal and is pushing for Senate rejection of Gov. Mark White's appointment of Campbell.

Mattox said that during Wednesday's closed-door session he told the committee about state law and rules regarding utility commissioners' contacts with parties and PUC staff members in a rate case.

Inmate said he enjoyed death row

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A death row inmate says he was relatively free while in the Stephens County Jail and even was allowed to have sex with female prisoners, but he added that his desire for freedom prompted him to take advantage of an opportunity to flee.

In his first public comments since he was returned to death row, Richard Donald Foster also accused law officers of beating him severely after he was recaptured saying they did it because he made fools of them.

Speaking through what he said was a dislocated jaw, Foster said Wednesday that the jailer would lock him in a cell with a woman every night.

"I can say this," Foster said in an interview at the Ellis Unit. "I have never seen a jail like that before, where me, on death row, can have women in my cell every night and be free and walk around the jail."

"I had fun," he said.

But Stephens County Sheriff James Cain dismissed Foster's comments. "He's a nut," Cain said.

The sheriff also said that an investigation into the escape does not back up the inmate's comments. Results of the investigation were released earlier this week.

"He's going to say what he wants to," Cain responded. "If it (the jail) was one like that I'd like to be a prisoner. That's not what occurred here at all."

The investigation found that when jailer Mark LaBonte opened the door to bring a woman out of Foster's cell on Aug. 3, Foster put a knife to the jailer's throat, threw him in the cell and fled in LaBonte's pickup truck.

Theologian vows to fight revocation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embattled theologian Charles Curran says he'll fight Vatican efforts to punish him for his views on sexual issues, arguing that "authority must conform to the truth" and not the other way around.

The priest said in a news conference Wednesday that his dissent from church leaders' views on such issues as birth control, abortion and divorce has been limited, respectful and proper.

And he said he won't retract it, even in the face of the Vatican's announced intention to revoke his church commission to teach as a Roman Catholic theologian.

That revocation theoretically would make him ineligible to hold onto his professorship of moral theology at Catholic University of America. And getting him out of that job at the only U.S. school directly controlled by the Vatican is the acknowledged aim of the action against him.

But he said he won't go quietly. Curran said he is considering an appeal through the university's established procedures — a strategy that would eventually run him into a school board dominated by presumably unsympathetic bishops but that would also give the issues the public airing he wants.

He also raised the possibility of legal action since he has a contract as a tenured professor with the university "and they have an obligation in American civil law to honor that contract."

He is on sabbatical until Dec. 31 and is not scheduled to be teaching anyway.

In the meantime, he said, he has no intention of leaving the priesthood or the Catholic Church — "my church." And in advice to other, possibly disgruntled Catholics, he said, "I would strongly urge people not to get out."

Sponges may serve as test for drugs

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — A type of sponge that has lived on Earth for a billion years mimics a human disease process so closely it has been patented for use in testing drugs to combat certain human illnesses, researchers say.

The way in which its cells clump together is remarkably similar to the clumping of human white blood cells in arthritis, gout and many other diseases that produce inflammation, said Dr. Gerald Weissmann, director of rheumatology at New York University Medical Center.

The red-bearded sponge of Moses is the oldest multicellular organism on Earth.

Weissmann said his latest finding, made in collaboration with Moseley Waite of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C., shows that the series of chemical steps thought to be important in triggering human inflammation occurs in exactly the same way in the sponge.

The finding was to be presented today at the General Scientific Meetings of the Marine Biological Laboratory in Woods Hole, where the research was done.

White leaders demand action

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A far-right white leader today demanded immediate action against Desmond Tutu for advocating anti-apartheid sanctions, and a Johannesburg newspaper likened the black prelate to a "religious pop star."

Tutu, the Anglican bishop of Johannesburg, was scheduled to return to South Africa today after a trip to Japan, China and Jamaica in which he repeated his call for international economic measures against his country as a way to force racial change.

Andries Treurnicht, leader of the Conservative Party, the country's largest extreme-right political organization, said Tutu's "actions and statements in any other country would be construed as treason."

"He should be dealt with immediately," said Treurnicht, who accused the government of weakness in its dealings with the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

Tutu is scheduled to be installed Sept. 7 as archbishop of Cape Town, the top Anglican position in southern Africa, and he has invited politicians, entertainers and civil rights leaders from the United States and elsewhere to attend.

Design...

Bobby Finch, self-taught commercial artist and newcomer to Hereford, is averaging half a dozen logo designs a week. Liking what he does, Finch said the art field is very self-satisfying.

ARTIST

size you want, you either reduce or enlarge the art. It is a dark room where the camera is located and you do have to use a safe light to protect the film," chuckled Finch, recalling an experience of exposing the paper.

The design is then ready for the silk screening process. "This is when you burn the screens which puts the image to be printed on the T-shirts onto the screen," said Finch. He further explained that the screens are coated with certain chemicals and the image, or logo, is burned off the silk screen so that only the ink comes through the silk on the image area.

The company can silk screen up to four colors and after being printed the T-shirts are removed and put through a conveyor-type dryer.

Averaging half a dozen of designs a week, some of Finch's logo accomplishments include designs for Ruidoso Downs All-American Futurity featuring fancy borders, Hereford YMCA softball olympic T-shirts, Cedar Hill Show Team, and recently he designed a T-shirt featuring points of interest on a Salmon River canoe trip which the Blacks and about 50 others attended.

"We have designs for everything here, from hunting vests to anything the public wants printed," Finch said.

The Black Memorial Fun Run design has been his favorite so far. "It just feels so good to come up with something original for such a good cause," he said.

"It's really very self-satisfying," said Finch. "Mainly I'm just glad to be learning something in the art field."

'Crazy Pat' not an ordinary neighbor

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Crazy Pat. Neighbors began calling Patrick Sherrill that years ago, when the strange, hulking man would prowl their yards at night in camouflage fatigues, peering wordlessly into their windows.

They suspected him of stealing pets and trussing them up with baling wire so his Dalmatian could mutilate them. They recalled him standing behind the screen door, ignoring his elderly mother's cries for help when she fell on the front steps.

Crazy Pat unnerved people. Always staring at them in that weird way of his, they said. Children would taunt him as he pedaled around by himself on a tandem bicycle. "Fat Pat," they chanted, "Crazy Pat."

Few people who knew him expressed genuine surprise after learning that the 44-year-old mail carrier had coolly slaughtered 14 co-workers in a post office massacre Wednesday before killing himself.

"The expression on his face would never change," remembered Charles Thompson, 24, who grew up across the street from the modest, white house where Sherrill lived for 27 years.

"He'd gotten so he didn't talk to anybody," Thompson said. "He just lived in his own little world."

Sherrill's world appears to have been a lonely, unstable one that revolved around his fascination with weapons, radios and bicycles. Since his mother died several years ago, Sherrill had lived alone.

A former Marine and a member of the Oklahoma Air National Guard, Sherrill had an undistinguished military career but was a small arms instructor and considered an expert marksman.

He skipped from job to job, fixing traffic lights, repairing radios, working in the stockroom at the American Cancer Society. For nine years, until 1981, he volunteered his ham radio expertise to the Red Cross for emergencies.

Since April 1985, he had been a mail carrier at the Edmond Post Office, a job postal officials in Washington said he was on the verge of losing because of poor performance. No details were available.

On Wednesday morning, Sherrill was up before dawn, according to next-door neighbor Willy Brannon, who saw lights on in the house when he left for work at 4:45 a.m. "That was kind of unusual. His front door was open."

Brannon, 62, had had a series of run-ins with Sherrill. Brannon's wife, Crystal, 29, was afraid to go out on the front porch when her husband wasn't home; she complained that Sherrill stared at her and made suggestive remarks.

"Sometimes, he'd be coming right up here in the front and peeping through the windows at her," Brannon said. When confronted, Sherrill would deny harassing Mrs. Brannon.

When his wife complained that Sherrill was bothering her again Tuesday, Brannon marched over and found Sherrill sitting on his wooden porch swing. Sherrill laughed in his neighbor's face.

"I told police if they didn't do something about it, I'd take care of him myself," Brannon said Wednesday night.

Other neighbors also reported having called the police on several occasions over the years to complain about Sherrill peering through windows or jamming their television reception with his powerful radio equipment.

Authorities said Sherrill had no police record.

Charles Thompson and his brother, Don, 29, said their most vivid memory of Sherrill involved the disappearance of neighborhood pets some 14 years ago.

The brothers said they rescued one dog that had been tied by all fours to Sherrill's back fence, later saw him carrying off another dog and found a dead cat trussed up in his garage on still another occasion.

The worst, Charles Thompson said, was when the children "untied a dog paw and tail from his fence. That's all that was left. It had been mutilated."

Assassin had history of problems

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A mail carrier who shot 14 co-workers to death and wounded six others before killing himself had sought union help after a history of work problems and faced the possibility of losing his job, officials said.

Patrick Henry Sherrill had been lectured by a supervisor Tuesday, the day before he walked into the post office and committed one of the worst mass killings by a lone gunman in U.S. history.

Sherrill, who carried a mail bag of ammunition and weapons, killed himself with a .45-caliber automatic handgun as police swarmed the building.

Postal officials meeting in Texas on Wednesday called for a check on Sherrill's mental stability and for better security, including metal detectors, at the nation's post offices.

Postmaster General Preston R. Tisch ordered the flag flown at half-staff at all post offices. Gov. George Nigh ordered flags across the state lowered, too.

A crisis center team, last used in May when tornadoes ripped through the city of 35,000 and caused $8 million in damage, was in place today to deal with the anguish of survivors and citizens distraught over the shooting.

"You can bet I'll be on my knees thanking my God tonight," said postal worker Clint Turner, one of the 70 to 80 employees who fled without injury.

"God did not will this to happen," the Rev. Michael Potts told about 100 people at an impromptu noon memorial service. "Out of the depths of our grief, our shock, our pain, we cry, 'Why, oh Lord?' But there are no easy answers."

Sherrill, a Marine veteran who never saw action and described by authorities as an expert marksman, lived alone in Oklahoma City. Co-workers described him as distant and friendless.

He had a history of discipline problems at the suburban post office since he began working there in April 1985, officials said.

On Tuesday, Sherrill was lectured for "non-performance," said Richard Carleton, postal service division general manager from Oklahoma City.

CRIME

ment to tend to for several years," the governor said.

Although the DPS reported that drug-related arrests were down 7.4 percent, to 29,551, during the first half of 1986, White said drug abuse still is to blame for the overall crime increase.

"Monies that are used to purchase that (narcotics) are almost always brought about from burglaries of businesses and houses. That's almost the total reason for those burglaries," he said.

Adams said robbery showed the largest increase in violent crime, up 34.6 percent this year.

The number of aggravated assault cases increased 30.1 percent, while rape and murder posted increases of 13.6 percent and 1.1 percent respectively. Burglary was up 20.5 percent and thefts increased 15.6 percent.

ECONOMY

peak. Energy prices overall fell 4.1 percent last month.

Charges for telephone services, which had jumped 1.9 percent in June, were unchanged in July as an increase in local service costs was offset by continuing declines in long distance charges.

The good news on gasoline prices, analysts cautioned, may soon end. They said the OPEC pact could mean a 10-cents-a-gallon boost in pump prices.

On Aug. 5, after months of wrangling, the 13-member cartel reached an agreement to reduce production from a level of 20.5 million barrels a day to 16.7 million barrels daily.

For all of 1986, analysts are predicting that consumer prices will rise by just 2 percent, the best inflation performance in more than two decades.

Through the first seven months of the year, the news has been even better as the 0.2 percent rate of decline was the best first-seven-months-of-the-year price news retail costs fell 2.4 percent from January through July 1986.

As recently as 1980, prices soared 12.4 percent in a single year, following a 13.3 percent jump in 1979 as a revolution in Iran plunged oil markets into turmoil, causing gasoline lines in the United States and shortages around the world.

All the changes in today's report are adjusted for normal seasonal variations, expect the dollar-value calculation of a selection of goods and services. In all, using that calculation, the Consumer Price Index stood at 328.0 in July, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $32.80 last month.

Over the last year, prices have risen 1.6 percent.

The Labor Department reported last week that prices at the wholesale level fell 0.4 percent last month for the fifth decline of the year, with the July decline attributed almost entirely to a 19.3 percent plunge in wholesale gasoline prices. Nearly all other commodities rose in price and food was up a sharp 1.9 percent.

book and first in food product category; and Jeff Hicks, who was selected as alternate in both categories.

4-H'ers participate in bake show

Nineteen Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers participated in the 1986 Bake Show held Friday at the Heritage Room of the Library.

The contest culminated two weeks of training in the study of wheat products and their use in human foods. A bake show workshop held Aug. 6 led the 4-H'ers in the study of wheat with Jennifer Hicks presenting the story of wheat.

John David Rickman, Sheila Teel and Susan Rickman presented how wheat is grown, harvested, and milled.

Judging standard of baked goods were presented by Jill Dutton, Pam Price, Trisha Teel, and Karon Harder.

Clara Shirley registered and Patty Hill, Susan Hicks, Denise Teel, Carrie Shirley and Teresa Dutton assisted the 4-H'ers.

Completing this area of study 4-H'ers toured grocery stores to purchase supplies for their chosen recipe and commenced baking products and perfecting food preparation skills.

Presenting their final products in the contest in senior division were blue ribbon winners Kristi Powell and Jeff Hicks. Powell won first and will represent the county 4-H in competition at district in both food product and project record of accomplishments.

Nikki Messer will be representing the county at district contest with the winning junior food product and Jennifer Hicks will compete with the winning Junior Record Book. Jill Dutton placed alternate in the project record judging and Karon Harder in the food product. Receiving blue ribbons in addition to those previously mentioned were Cory and Patrick Newton, Sara Perrin, Cody Powell, Pam Price, Sheila and Trisha Teel.

Receiving second place red ribbons were Cady Auckerman, Shyla Messer, who participated as an out-of-state guest participant and John David and Susan Ricman and Clara Shirley.

Additional awards were presented by bake show chairman, Patty Hill, and included cash prizes presented to Kristi Powell and Nikki Messer for top winners, kitchen spatulas presented by the 4-H Parent Leaders Association to top project record winners of Powell and Jennifer Hicks and sacks of whole wheat flour presented to each participant by Arrowhead Mills of Hereford.

Following the judging by Carol Odum and Darlene Richardson and picnic luncheon of sandwiches, chips, fruit and a taste sampling of participants entries were served by the participants and their parents to guests for the Bake Show.

County residents are invited to view a display at the Library prepared by the 4-H'ers and pick up a 1986 Deaf Smith County 4-H Bake Show recipe folder to help use the Panhandle's number one agricultural product of wheat. Recipe folders may also be obtained at the County Extension Office in the Courthouse.

Ann Landers Welfare reform works

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With all the media coverage on "welfare reform" these days, I'd like to put in my nickel's worth.

My $5,000-a-year salary wasn't nearly enough to support a child, so the welfare department enrolled me in WIN, a self-improvement program. They sent me to business college, paid my tuition, provided me with supplies, and gave me a small monthly stipend to live on. I graduated with a 3.98 grade average and have quadrupled my previous earning ability.

I am now a homeowner with a nice car (paid for) nice furniture (paid for), and nice clothes (paid for). Welfare reform really works.

If the welfare department would give America's single mothers marketable skills instead of just handing them a check every month, the recipients could improve their standard of living and learn what it is like to have dignity and self-esteem. Everyone would benefit. Especially the taxpayer. Please tell them—I Could Be Anyone

I would dearly love to send it to you as proof that the female of the species is far more unstable than the male.

One day I will write a book about the crazy situations women have got themselves into and called the fire department to help them out of.

Your column makes my day. Keep at it, Annie. —L.A. Fireman - 30 Years Now

DEAR L.A.: I plan to. Thanks for a good laugh.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Because you have the ear (and trust) of so many, I'm hoping you will help make the public aware of what I believe to be a serious misconception that has been promoted by television and movies for years.

I'm talking about the idea that a person can jump or dive through a closed window without harming himself.

Ann, how many times have we seen the hero or villain tuck in his head, burst through a closed window, and continue to chase without a scratch?

This is a dangerous and irresponsible image. Children should be taught that broken glass can be extremely dangerous. I know of one young man who nearly bled to death after imitating his TV hero.

Please encourage media people to stop showing this irrational escape or to portray it as realistically dangerous. Failing this, at least parents may be moved to discuss it with their children when they see an actor go through a window unharmed, and to point out to them the very real peril of broken glass.—R.C. in L.A.

DEAR R.C.: Thanks for providing a good basis for discussion at the nation's dinner tables. You've made an excellent point.

There are 43 million people of Irish descent in the United States.

Ways with Wine

THE SHAPE OF THINGS
Different wine regions have developed traditional bottle shapes. Burgandy bottles have sloping shoulders. Bordeaux bottles have high shoulders. Rhine wines come in tall, slender bottles called "flutes." Brown glass is used for Rhine wines. Green glass is used for Moselles and Alsaces. Dark glass is used in Burgandy and Bordeaux as protection against light. Many light-colored bottles are used for wines that are meant to be promptly drunk. The bottom of a bottle is sometimes indented. This indentation is called the "punt" and, sometimes, the "push-up." It is said to allow space for sediment to settle. It was probably devised, however, so that bottles could be nestled together for storage, neck in punt. It is stylish to pour wine with the thumb in the punt, but it is awkward.

At THE STORE you will find a large selection of imported burgandies and bordeaux from France and Rhein wines from Germany as well as many fine Californians wines. We are regarded by many in this area as "the place" to go for fine wines so why not join your friends who have already discovered us. Come by and see us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open: Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. beer and wine is available from 12-12. A very safe and happy Labor Day weekend. Please don't drink and drive!

The best bottle color is considered to be dark brown.

MOVING ALONG
NEW YORK (AP) — Seventy percent of Americans dream of pulling up roots and relocating elsewhere in the country. But only 3 percent think it likely that they will do so in the next five years.

According to a survey, people fantasize about "big adventures," such as moving to a new locale or finding a glamorous job. But most find their greatest source of pleasure and adventure comes from watching television, according to D'Arcy Masius Benton & Bowles, the ad agency that made the survey.

Information about your changing telephone service from Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations

Texas rates among nation's lowest

I recently came across a national survey conducted by the investment firm Smith Barney that shows residential rates for local basic monthly phone service in Texas are among the lowest in the country.

The study says Texans serviced by Southwestern Bell Telephone (SWBT) pay on average less than $10 per month, despite the fact that the cost per line is more than double that amount.

A quick review of my files confirmed for me that most of SWBT's residential customers haven't experienced a rate increase in more than two years. What's more, basic local phone rates will remain unchanged even with the recent rate case.

Compared with costs of other goods and services, local telephone service is an excellent value. The average one-party residential rate for most Texans has increased in the range of 40 to 50 percent since 1977. In contrast, the Consumer Price Index has increased about 80 percent during the same period.

A commitment to technology

One reason we are able to provide convenient, efficient service to you at such reasonable prices is that we constantly look for new and innovative ways to improve our technology and reduce our expenses.

I learned just how true this statement was the other day when I read some interesting numbers: It seems that in 1925, we employed 208 people for every 10,000 access lines (roughly equivalent to a phone number). By 1950, we had reduced that ratio to 173 per 10,000. This year, we employ about 54 men and women for every 10,000 lines.

These numbers are truly impressive when you consider that in the same time span, SWBT has dramatically increased the number of customers it serves, while developing quicker and clearer call transmission to virtually every nook and corner in Texas. Of course, these developments were made possible by technological wizardry.

An investment in the future

To support our technology, SWBT has continued to commit significant dollars to growth: Over the last eight years, we have invested $1 billion annually to maintain, expand and improve our service.

Rest assured, SWBT will always look for ways to improve the quality of your phone service, while keeping the cost affordable. Telephone service has come a long way since our pioneering days — many of you may remember some of our milestones. With this proud history behind us and our continued commitment to you, our valued customers, that service will be even better tomorrow than it is today.

Hough hurls Rangers past Royals, 7-1

By The Associated Press

Come October, the pitching performance turned in by Charlie Hough on Wednesday may be more important to the Texas Rangers than the record he graciously stepped aside to allow reliever Dale Mohorcic to set.

Hough limited Kansas City on a soft single and two infield hits for 8 2-3 innings in a 7-1 Rangers win.

The veteran knuckleballer agreed to come out with two outs in the ninth so Mohorcic could tie a major league record by making his 13th straight relief appearance.

"The guy deserves to get a shot at the record," said Hough, 10-8 after winning his first game since July 12. "He earned the right, he's been down in the minors for eight or nine years (eight) and to come up and have a chance at a major league record is legitimate."

"Not every game that he's come in this year has been easy. He's been in some losing situations, in some close situations."

Hough got Lonnie Smith to fly to left and hit Willie Wilson to open the ninth. George Brett hit a soft liner to right for the second out before Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine summoned Mohorcic.

"I didn't think I was going to go in," said Mohorcic, who tied the record set by Mike Marshall of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1974. "Charlie was pitching great. He deserved to finish it. I didn't really care about the record."

"I'll take it. It's something only one other guy has done so that's something."

Hough stopped a four-game Texas losing streak, and pitched the Rangers another game closer to California in the American League West. The Angels led by four games after losing Wednesday at Detroit, 3-0.

Hough had lost four in a row, and gave up 12 runs in his last start.

"That's the biggest thing tonight, is picking up a game," said Hough. "It's been pretty frustrating for me. I've pitched pretty well against them, especially in this ballpark. I was around the plate all night."

Valentine was counting on Hough to return to form.

"It was exactly what the doctor ordered," Valentine said. "I knew it was a matter of time before we got that kind of effort and performance out of Charlie, and I don't think it's the last time we'll see it."

Hough gave up a single to Lonnie Smith leading off the Kansas City first. Smith moved around on a groundout and passed ball before scoring the Royals' only run on a wild pitch.

Hough walked Jorge Orta with two out in the first, and then retired 18 batters in a row before Frank White reached on a bunt single with two out in the seventh. Jim Sundberg had an infield hit in the eighth for the only other Kansas City hit.

Geno Petralli singled to start a four-run rally in the third off Royals starter Scott Bankhead, 6-7. Petralli scored on Steve Buechele's double. Oddibe McDowell walked and Scott Fletcher, who drove in three runs on three hits, followed with a two-run double. Fletcher scored on Gary Ward's sacrifice fly.

Ruben Sierra added an RBI single in the sixth. Fletcher and Ward had run-scoring hits in the seventh.

In other American League games, Detroit shut out California 3-0, Boston beat Minnesota 9-1, Toronto defeated Chicago 4-1, Milwaukee tripped Cleveland 6-3 and New York beat Seattle 5-2. Oakland at Baltimore was rained out.

Tigers 3, Angels 0
Walt Terrell was within one out of a no-hitter. Then, Wally Joyner made sure — again — that the California Angels were not part of history.

Terrell pitched 8 2-3 hitless innings Wednesday night before Joyner lined a clean double to right field as the Detroit Tigers beat the Angels 3-0.

"I'm not disappointed. I just wanted to win the game," Terrell said after finishing with a one-hitter.

For Joyner, it marked the second time in his rookie season that he had broken up a no-hitter with a ninth-inning double. He spoiled the bid by Texas' Charlie Hough with a one-out double on June 16.

"I thought about the Hough game, not in the on-deck circle, but in the bottom of the eighth inning," Joyner said.

"I didn't want to walk off the field knowing that I made the last out of a no-hitter. That would have been embarrassing. I was relieved a little bit. I knew it was a base hit right away."

Terrell, 11-9, had retired 16 straight hitters before Joyner came to bat in the ninth. The left-handed Joyner pulled Terrell's first pitch into the right-field corner.

"I'd throw the same pitch to him again — maybe a little more inside. You can't second-guess yourself. If you do that, you're not going to last in baseball," Terrell said.

The Angels had not come close to a hit at Tiger Stadium before Joyner doubled. And while Terrell's teammates stuck with superstition and did not talk to him about his progressing no-hitter, they were talking among themselves. Right fielder Kirk Gibson and shortstop Alan Trammell even bet on it.

"When we took the field to start the ninth, I said to Trammell, 'A buck, you choose,'" Gibson said. "Trammell said he'd do it. I'd have paid a buck to see him do it. Jeez. He just hung a slider with nothing on it."

Pittsburgh's Rhoden pitches 5-hitter

Astros lose to Pirates, 4-1

By The Associated Press

The one constant in the Pittsburgh Pirates' last-place season has been the excellence of pitcher Rick Rhoden.

Rhoden pitched a five-hitter for his fifth victory in his last six decisions as Pittsburgh ended a four-game losing streak Wednesday night by defeating the Houston Astros 4-1.

"That's why other teams insulted us when they made trade offers for him," said Pirates Manager Jim Leyland. "There aren't many staffs in baseball where he wouldn't be the No. 1 or No. 2 guy. He's not some guy who fills out a staff."

"He was a walking pennant for somebody," said General Manager Syd Thrift.

The Pirates rejected trade offers for Rhoden, who expressed a desire to pitch for a contender.

"I can't think of one good player I was offered for him," Thrift said.

Rhoden's RBI single also started a four-run second inning and ended Pittsburgh's streak of 21 consecutive scoreless innings.

"It seems like there have been three or four games this year where I've gotten hits and we've had big innings," Rhoden said. "I think good hitting pitchers are usually good athletes. They're not just one-dimensional players."

"Rhoden should be a lesson for all the pitchers on our staff," Leyland said. "He fields his position, he's a good hitter, he holds runners on and he can survive on nights when he doesn't have his best stuff."

Wednesday was one of those nights. Rhoden put three of the first four batters on base but escaped the first inning with just one run scoring. After allowing a single to John Mizerock in the fourth, he retired the last 16 batters in order.

"I finally got an easy inning in the fifth and settled down from there," Rhoden said. "Before that I didn't have much. I was lucky they only got one run in the first."

Rhoden, 14-7, walked one and struck out five to win his third consecutive game.

With one out, R.J. Reynolds singled off Knepper's glove and Rafael Belliard was safe on third baseman Denny Walling's fielding error. Rhoden then bounced a single up the middle to score the first run.

Knepper, 15-9, failed in his attempt to become the National League's first 16-game winner. The loss was just his second in his past seven decisions.

Barry Bonds walked to load the bases and Bonilla doubled inside the third-base bag.

Houston went ahead in the first on Davey Lopes' double and Craig Reynolds' RBI single.

In other National League games, it was Cincinnati 3, St. Louis 1; Atlanta 8, Chicago 3; Philadelphia 1, San Francisco 0 in 10 innings; New York 7, Los Angeles 5; and San Diego 3, Montreal 2.

Reds 3, Cardinals 1
Buddy Bell, usually satisfied with making solid contact, is showing that he's also capable of carrying some thunder in his bat.

"The home runs are a surprise," Bell said after his sixth homer in seven games carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

An infield hit by Bell, an error, another infield hit and a soft single by Bo Diaz gave the Reds a 1-0 lead in the first. They extended the lead to 3-0 in the fifth when Kal Daniels tripled and Bell followed with his 15th homer, three less than his career high for a season.

Cincinnati right-hander Bill Gullickson, 10-8, pitched shutout ball for eight innings against the Cardinals. A leadoff homer in the ninth by Andy Van Slyke, who went 4-for-4, accounted for St. Louis' only run.

Phillies 1, Giants 0
Don Carman retired 24 straight San Francisco batters before Bob Brenly hit a sun-aided double leading off the ninth, then Philadelphia won it in the 10th on Juan Samuel's homer.

Carman, who has spent most of his career in the bullpen, was trying to become the 16th major-league pitcher to throw a perfect game. But Brenly's long drive, which went off the glove of center fielder Milt Thompson, ended his hopes.

"When it was first hit, I was sure it was going to be a home run. I was thinking about going from a perfect game to a loss in one pitch," Carman, 6-4, said.

Mets 7, Dodgers 5
New York, leading the NL East by 18 1/2 games, posted its first series sweep in Los Angeles since 1968 by beating the Dodgers for the third straight time.

Sid Fernandez, 14-4, won for the ninth time in his last 11 decisions although he gave up all five Los Angeles runs in the fifth.

Braves 8, Cubs 3
David Palmer pitched and batted Atlanta past Chicago.

Palmer, 9-8, allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings and combined with Jeff Dedmon on a six-hitter. Palmer also keyed a 17-hit attack by the Braves with three hits and three RBI.

Padres 3, Expos 2
Hot-hitting Kevin McReynolds homered twice in support of Eric Show as San Diego edged Montreal.

McReynolds hit an opposite-field drive to right in the fourth inning and a two-run homer deep into the left field seats in the sixth to account for all of the Padres' runs.

Show tackles various subjects

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oprah Winfrey is taking her brand of hands-on, emotionally involved talk show to a national audience in September.

Viewers in 130 cities will have the opportunity to see why her Chicago show zoomed from third place to first in the ratings and moved ahead of Phil Donahue's highly regarded, nationally syndicated "Donahue."

Miss Winfrey, nominated earlier this year for an Academy Award for her supporting performance as Sofia in "The Color Purple," hugs and cries and laughs and relates on a personal level with the people on her show.

Her show, like "Donahue," tackles such provocative subjects as sex, divorce, rape, battered women and incest.

"People have the power to make a difference in their lives," she said. "We want to let people know that. That's the beauty of good television. Good television should inform and inspire as well as entertain. So much of television is simply mindless."

Miss Winfrey, 32, appears to be challenging Donahue's position on top of the syndicated talk shows. According to King World, which is distributing her show, Miss Winfrey and Donahue will be head-to-head in 25 percent of the cities.

"That's a challenging thing," Donahue told an interviewer in New York. "We're on a more competitive street now than we've been on. We're up. We're fascinated by the attention that's been generated. We think it's good for the daytime schedule."

Miss Winfrey, interviewed shortly after she arrived on a flight from Chicago, said she has nothing but respect for Donahue.

"Without Donahue this show wouldn't be possible," she said. "He showed that women have an interest in things that affect their lives and not just how to stuff a cabbage. Because of that I have nothing to prove, only to do good shows. ... I say, he's the king and I just want a little piece of the kingdom."

She is an outgoing woman with a slightly larger-than-life theatrical flair for gestures, expressions and reactions. She was wearing a hand-painted blue suede dress, white cowboy boots and dangling gold earrings.

"I always wanted to be an actress and it was only happenstance that brought me to television," she said. "Quincy Jones saw me in Chicago and cast me for 'The Color Purple.'"

Miss Winfrey was born in Mississippi, where she lived with her grandmother until age 6, when she was sent to live with her mother in Milwaukee. When she was 13, her mother had her committed to a juvenile detention home as a runaway. But the home had no room for her and she was sent to live with her father in Nashville, who imposed strict discipline.

At 19, when she was a college sophomore, she was a television reporter and had two years' experience on radio. In 1976 she moved to Baltimore as a news anchor.

POLLY'S Mexican 'vanilla:' dangerous bargain

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — What do you know about Mexican vanilla? A neighbor who just returned from Mexico says she bought a large bottle very inexpensively. I heard that vanilla from Mexico is not very good. What's the truth? — PAULA spices; cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg are especially good in apple butter. Use one teaspoon spices to each four cups puree.

DEAR PAULA — Not only is so-called "Mexican vanilla" not very good; it's not even vanilla — and it could be dangerous! You can get real vanilla in Mexico (the vanilla plant is a native of Mexico), but it's no less expensive than buying vanilla in the U.S. "Bargain" vanilla is likely to be coumarin extract, which comes from tonka beans, not vanilla beans. Or, it may be real vanilla with coumarin mixed in. Either way, coumarin has been outlawed as a food or food additive in the United States since the FDA determined in 1954 that it is a poisonous substance that could damage various organs of test animals, particularly the liver.

Stir over low heat to dissolve sugar. Then pour the mixture into a large casserole, Dutch oven or non-stick roasting pan. Bake the puree uncovered in a 275-degree oven until the mixture is thick enough to mound in a spoon. This may take two to three hours, depending on the moisture content of the fruit.

Apple butter may also be cooked on top of the stove, but I find it burns easily before reaching the proper consistency. Baked apple butter may be somewhat darker in color, but it's much easier and requires much less attention on your part.

Ladle the apple butter into hot, clean 1/2-pint canning jars, leaving 1/2 inch head space. Wipe the rim of the jars with a damp cloth and cover with canning lids and rings. Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

DR. GOTT Tracking down a deficiency

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Do you believe in body wisdom? I have developed a craving for carrots and eat about a pound a day. I'm not pregnant. What could my body be lacking that the carrots provide?

DEAR READER — Often our bodies tell us, through cravings, that we are deficient in certain substances. I believe in body wisdom — to a degree. But a pound of a carrots a day might cause you to develop carotenemia, the presence of too much carotene in the blood and tissues. This may cause a yellow or orange cast to the skin. I suggest that you have a medical examination and let the doctor determine which, if any, nutrients you may be lacking.

DEAR DR. GOTT — During delivery, I tore my cervix, which was repaired with stitches. Seven weeks later I expelled some gauze that had been placed there during the stitching. Is this standard procedure? What damage could result?

DEAR READER — Someone didn't carry out a sponge count in the delivery room. That gauze should have been accounted for at the time of the stitching. If you have had no more problems and have had adequate obstetrical followup, there has been no damage. However, you might mention the incident to your obstetrician, who probably will want to be more careful in the future.

DEAR DR. GOTT — It could just be an obstinate pimple, but I'm scared that I might have skin cancer. Sometimes it bleeds, sometimes it just looks like a big pimple. What should I do about it?

DEAR READER — Have it removed by a surgeon or a dermatologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — When I visit a new doctor for the first time, do I have the right to ask what medical school he went to, how long he has practiced and at what hospital he served his internship? If he refuses to answer, where can I get this information?

DEAR READER — You have every right to ask the doctor directly. In my opinion, any reputable M.D. or D.O. (osteopath) should be eager to divulge the sources of his or her medical training. If your request is refused, beware. However, you can obtain this information (or confirm a doctor's credentials) by making an inquiry to the county or state medical (or osteopathic) society — or you may write directly to your state's licensing agency. The data about a doctor's training are required for licensing.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I just had the displeasure of learning that I have been infected with herpes II. Can my uninfected mate take the new drug acyclovir as a prophylactic?

DEAR READER — I am not aware of any studies that have confirmed the value of acyclovir as a preventative. Perhaps the manufacturer can give you further information.

Handmade guitars touch tradition

By STELLA WINSETT
Denton Record-Chronicle

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Some places and things shine with an almost tangible patina of time. Great cathedrals, paintings by the old masters and natural wonders like the Grand Canyon can give a sense of events and efforts long past to the present.

That sense of being connected to history and tradition is an everyday experience for Christopher Savino. Savino follows in the centuries-old tradition of handmade instrument building.

Not only does Savino build his instruments entirely by hand, they are built in the traditional method, without the use of power tools. With a few minor exceptions, his workshop could be a duplicate of any such workshop in the last few hundred years.

"It's kind of an exciting feeling, knowing you are part of a line of history, whether I ever get to be known or not," said Savino, who specializes in building classical guitars.

"I enjoy knowing that I continue to be a part of the history of guitar making and that I continue to grow with it. Of course, where I started is hundreds of years down that line."

Savino began building his first classical guitar in his native Cleveland in 1982, when he studied with master violin-maker Peter Horn. That guitar, shown on the cover of the latest Dallas Classic Guitar Society brochure, sits in his workshop along with instruments he is building, restoring or repairing and next to the jazz guitar he uses as a professional musician.

"I do quite a bit of repair and restoration work on all types of instruments," said Savino, who builds his guitars in the Spanish method — from the bottom up. "But I mostly build acoustic guitars. As a musician I am fascinated with the immediate response and intimacy of the instrument."

Intimacy is a word Savino also used to describe the methods he uses to build his guitars. He uses original designs for his guitars, which are built on handmade forms, and he never uses power tools.

"I use a lot of traditional methods," he said. "There is a lot to be said for handling the wood throughout the process. It would be nice to produce more instruments, but I wouldn't be pleased if I had to compromise on the quality of the instruments. I also get a sense of gratification from the feel of the tools in my hand. Even if I used power tools for some of the steps, I still would have to put a lot of hand work into it."

"Really, most of the process can't be duplicated by machine, not if you want a fine quality instrument with a beautiful tone. You must have a

Ferrysburg tired of gay jokes

FERRYSBURG, Mich. (AP) — The mayor of this Lake Michigan city, irritated by the snickers of outsiders, believes it's time the town dropped its much-maligned name.

"We're quite often confronted with defending the name," said Leon Stille, leader of an effort to mothball Ferrysburg and rename the city. "To be quite candid, we want to get away from the tongue-in-cheek comments."

Stille says the name-change movement started because of the negative connotations attached to "fairy," derogatory slang for a homosexual. Comedian Bob Hope once made a joke about the town.

But some residents say Ferrysburg, named after two brothers who mapped the area in 1857, is a perfectly good name.

In November residents will be asked whether they want to replace Ferrysburg with West Spring Lake, the favorite of three alternative names presented to voters in an informal advisory ballot Monday.

refinement of all the individual parts for that, and you have to get that refinement by hand. If it takes physical effort, that makes it much more satisfying. I like to have a direct connection."

It takes about 300 hours of work to complete one classical guitar, said Savino, depending on the weather. The hand-rubbed French-polish finish, which helps give the bright, brilliant sound Savino works toward, is composed of 30 very thin layers. It sometimes takes a month of one hour of work per day to complete the finish — longer if the weather is wet, which inhibits the drying process.

"I make it known right off that any date I may give for completion is not a guarantee. I won't rush a job if the conditions are not right," he said. "I have to be honest in my work, and I don't feel the desire to compromise. There always will be a need for inexpensive instruments for students, but as an individual maker my goal is to make the finest instruments possible for people who want refinement in playing as much as I want to refine my guitars and my playing."

Savino, who moved to Denton in 1982 to attend the North Texas State University School of Music, has been playing guitar since high school. He plays some classical guitar, but mostly plays jazz. He and Paris Johnson teamed to form the group Romantic Knights, which plays throughout the North Central Texas area.

Savino said his desire to make quality instruments partially arises from the great pleasure he feels when he is constructing one of his guitars and partially from his desire for excellence as a player.

"The most important thing to me is to love doing what I'm doing, to have the satisfaction to be able to do it, expand and grow with it," he said.

"I'm not doing this because I think I can make a killing or I want to be famous. This is me. This is what I want to do for a long time. After all, Stradivarius did not make his best instruments until he has in his '60s."

Donahue specials all rate in top 20

NEW YORK (AP) — Phil Donahue couldn't beat a Bill Cosby rerun but daytime's favorite talk-show host was a big hit in prime time, putting all five segments of his series "The Human Animal" in the top 20.

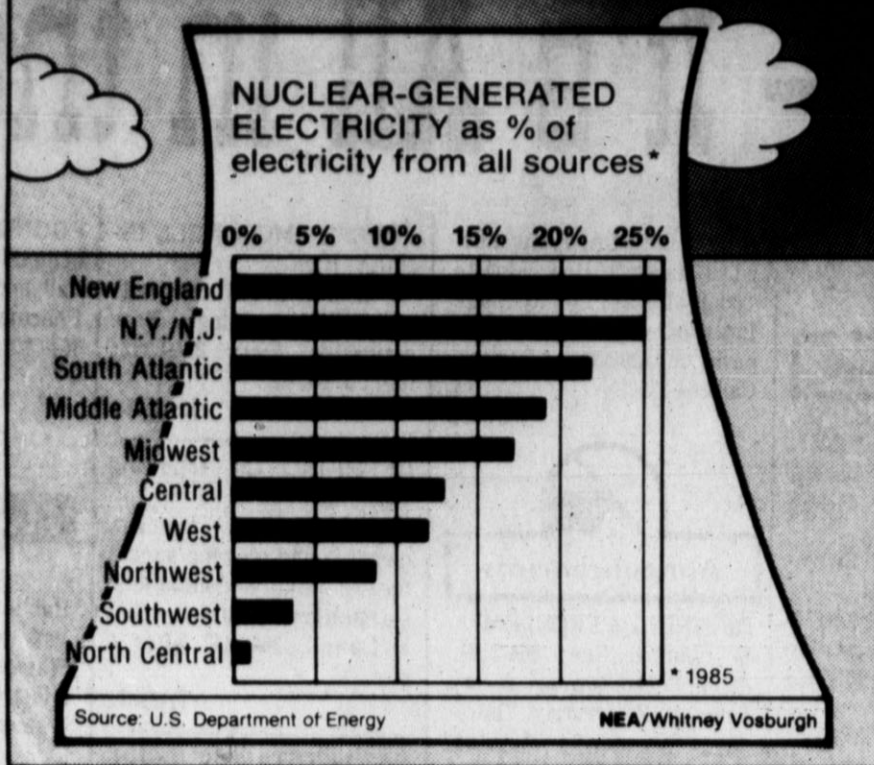

The first episode, "Love and Sex," pulled the biggest numbers with a rating of 20.8 and a 37 percent share of the audience in its 10 p.m. time slot.

Although the audience shrank in succeeding days, according to figures released Tuesday, "The Human Animal" averaged a 16.1 rating and 30 share while winning its slot every night.

It was the first time NBC had swept the 10 p.m. slot since "Shogun" six years ago.

Docs order dogs for some patients

BOSTON (AP) — That doggie in the window might be just what the doctor ordered.

Nearly half the 3,000 psychologists, psychiatrists and family doctors polled in a survey released Wednesday said they have prescribed pet therapy for their patients, most commonly for emotional illnesses.

Dogs were recommended by 94 percent of the prescribing physicians and cats by 71 percent, according to the survey conducted last month by Market Facts Inc. of Chicago for Kal Kan, a pet products company.

In recent years, pets have been used with a variety of settings such as in recreational therapy at the Veterans Administration Center in Salem, Va., at Children's Hospital in Denver to cheer young patients and at North Miami General Hospital to stimulate psychiatric patients.

Franklin M. Loew, dean of Tufts University College of Veterinary Medicine, when told of the survey, said pets could be promising therapy but more studies need to be done.

"First of all, I think there are some people who are so excited and enthusiastic about this new way of treating depression that they're saying, 'Take two cocker spaniels and call me in the morning,'" he said. "We haven't quite got to that point yet."

Dewayne Darby, a family doctor in Jefferson City, Tenn., who responded to the survey, said: "Taking care of pets keeps (patients) from concentrating on their own problems. It makes people remember feelings of warmth and love that they may not realize they could still experience."

Respondents to the survey, which has a 5 percent plus-or-minus margin of error, came from 43 states. Thirty-nine percent were psychologists, 31 percent psychiatrists and 27 percent family practice physicians.

The survey was released in Boston, where the Delta Society, a Renton, Wash.-based research organization, began a four-day conference on the interactions of people, animals and the environment.

Group fights for fair taxes

By JIM LUTHER AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On July 17, the day congressional negotiators began writing a compromise tax-overhaul plan, a labor-financed research organization got the lawmakers' attention by disclosing that many of the nation's biggest, most profitable corporations had been paying zero tax.

Two previous editions of that report by Citizens for Tax Justice had prompted a flood of protests to members of Congress demanding that something be done. The latest volume apparently assured that something would be done.

The compromise tax bill includes a stiffened minimum tax on corporations designed specifically to make profitable companies pay their share.

"The ability of ... highly profitable corporations to pay little or no tax undermines respect for the entire tax system," the Senate Finance Committee wrote in recommending a tougher minimum tax.

"This bill really does catch them," said Don Massoglia of Peat Marwick accountants in Washington. "It throws out a big net to snare those who are reporting big earnings on their financial statements but not on their tax returns."

In its latest report, Citizens for Tax Justice found that 42 of 250 giant money-making companies surveyed had paid zero federal income taxes in each of the years 1982 through 1985;

130 corporations paid no taxes — some even got refunds — in at least one of the five previous years.

The 250 companies had profits totaling $388 billion in 1982-1985 and together paid federal taxes of 14.9 percent, about the same rate paid by the average $45,000-a-year family.

Corporations keep two sets of books; one for tax purposes and the other for reporting to shareholders. For accounting reasons, those two sets of books can give different pictures of a company's finances. The bill aims to bring the two closer.

"If a company tells its shareholders that it made $100 million in profit, this bill is going to require the corporation to pay some tax to Uncle Sam," said Jeff Spinner, co-author of the most recent Citizens for Tax Justice report.

Even with the minimum tax it still would be possible for a profitable company to pay no tax in a given year, but only a slight chance, authorities say, although some could sharply reduce their liabilities.

The bill repeals the investment credit but keeps depreciation basically intact.
