County approves 1986-87 budget

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

After over three months of deliberation, Deaf Smith County Commissioners passed the 1986-87 county budget of $3,784,095 Monday by a 4-1 vote during a regular meeting of the commissioners court.

The only commissioner to vote against the budget was Austin Rose, who had previously been the only commissioner to vote against a seven percent tax rate increase.

"The only reason I'm voting against it is because it holds a tax increase," said Rose.

Commissioners began discussing the budget in early April. During the first stages of the budget hearings, commissioners considered a three percent increase in county taxes.

Commissioners then called all department heads into budget hearings asking them to cut their budgets to the bare minimum. Following those meetings and cuts, commissioners felt a three percent increase would not do.

Commissioners then made a motion to raise taxes by seven percent. The increase passed in July.

The tax increase raises the county tax rate to .4385 from .4099 per $100 valuation on property.

During the last commissioners court meeting, a motion made by Commissioner Bill Bradley failed to receive a second. During Monday's meeting, Commissioner James Voyles seconded Bradley's motion after very little discussion.

"We need to do something with this budget today," said Voyles. "I'm going to go ahead a second your motion."

In other business the commission; -Discussed operation of the County Veterans Service Officer with department head James Jesko.

Jesko reported to commissioners the progress of the office and discussed the possibility of working with other area counties on a co-operative program. Commissioners instructed Jesko to look into the proposal for a future meeting.

-Agreed to an out-of-court settlement with Texas Rural Legal Aid for $9,750. The settlement stems from a case involving Pedro Cervantez. Cervantez was arrested in 1979 and charged with being an illegal alien. Cervantez was able to prove he was a citizen and filed a suit against the county for damages.

District Attorney Roland Saul advised the commissioners Monday to accept the settlement to save the county money.

-Tabled a suggestion by County Auditor Alex Schroeter concerning hiring an outside firm to audit the county revenue sharing fund. Commissioners stated that they would like to discuss the matter with Senator Lloyd Bentsen before making the decision.

Bentsen urges cuts for DOE dump

Another effort to pinch the pocketbook of the Department of Energy was initiated Monday by Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

In a story by correspondent John Carter, the Amarillo Daily News reported that Bentsen wants to slice federal funding for the nuclear waste repository project to $380 million. That would defer specific site characterizations for one year.

Bentsen addressed his proposal to the appropriations committee chairman, Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, and asked for more time to study DOE activity.

The committee is to consider today the energy and water development bill which includes DOE funding for 1987. Research for the three sites considered for a nuclear waste repository - Deaf Smith County, Texas; Hanford, Wash., and Yucca Mountains, Nev. - is set at $677 million.

Earlier attempts by Texas and Oregon congressmen to defund DOE were unsuccessful in the House.

Bentsen, in his letter, told Hatfield that serious questions have been raised about the DOE's ability to implement the Nuclear Waste Polic Act, which mandates the repository.

He asked for a review of high level waste options while continuing to research other disposal capabilities.

Bentsen requested pressure on DOE to increase funding for consultation in the three states where the sites are located.

Sales tax revenue dips 19.2 percent

Hereford's sales tax payment for the month of June was down 19.2 percent from the same time period last year, according to a report from the state comptroller's office which showed a statewide drop of .14 percent in payments mailed.

June sales netted Hereford a check for $65,035.52 from the one-cent tax on sales that month. In June of 1985, the city netted $80,478.74.

The year-to-date total, however, shows a 1.60 percent increase for Hereford. Payments to date in 1986 total $416,974; in 1985, the comparable total to date was $410,400.

Dimmitt showed an approximate 4 percent decrease in sales. That city's year-to-date collection, however, stands at 22.68 percent above 1985 to-date revenue. The monthly payment dropped from $17,927 to $17,270.

Friona's June payment dropped by 17 percent from last year's equivalent. Its slump went from $14,496 for 1985 June payments to $12,166 for June 1986. The year-to-date total has shown an 8.36 percent drop.

Canyon showed an increase of 27 percent. Sales there drew $45,560 from the one-cent tax in June. Last year's comparable payment was $32,976. Canyon's year-to-date collections are 7.14 percent above that of 1985.

Amarillo showed a slight drop in revenue. Its payment was for $1,327,068, 8.2 percent below the comparable month in 1985. Year-to date collections for Amarillo are up 1.32 percent.

Hose Cutting Ceremony

Hereford firefighters and Mayor Wes Fisher use a rescue tool to cut the hose that ceremonially opened the new fire station Sunday afternoon. Approximately 150 people toured the station during open house. Firefighters cutting the hose are, from left, Ronnie Bell, Jay Spain, Fisher, and Tim Homer.

Summit planning continues

MOSCOW (AP) - Top American arms negotiators caucused at the U.S. Embassy today, then began a second day of special arms talks with Soviet officials. But they refused to disclose any details of the discussions.

When asked to characterize the eight hours of talks held Monday, Paul Nitze, special arms control adviser to President Reagan, replied, "They were serious talks. That's all I can say."

Nitze, who heads the American team, said his delegation expected to leave Moscow later in the day.

When asked whether he saw any sign to support a comment Monday by the chief Kremlin negotiator, Viktor Karpov, that the Soviets "would do anything" for an agreement on a new superpower summit, Nitze said, "No."

The Kremlin has said it wants some assurance of progress toward an arms control accord before it agrees to schedule another meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Reagan and Gorbachev met in Geneva Nov. 19-21, and agreed to hold a second summit in the United States this year.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze are to meet in the United States on Sept. 19-20 in what is being billed as an effort to set an agenda for a summit.

New shuttle design agreed upon

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Engineers have taken a big step toward resumption of space shuttle flights by developing a rocket engine that should prevent failures like the one that destroyed Challenger, a NASA source says.

The source, a space agency engineer who spoke on condition of anonymity, said tests are planned on a fundamentally redesigned solid rocket engine.

If the engine passes, builder Morton Thiokol Inc. could deliver new engines by December 1987, and shuttle flights could resume as early as spring 1988, the source said.

A presidential commission blamed failure of a solid rocket booster joint for the Jan. 28 disaster that killed seven Challenger crewmembers. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration grounded the shuttle fleet until the design flaw could be corrected.

The source said the engine was redesigned by an engineering team at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where a news conference on the solid rocket booster was to be held today.

Engineers at NASA and Morton Thiokol will use the new design in a series of rocket model tests. If the design passes those tests, there will be full-scale test firings next year, the source said.

The commission said Challenger exploded because two O-rings became unsealed and permitted superheated gases to burn through the wall of a propellant tank. Fuel and oxidizer from the tank erupted in a fireball.

Soviet defectors given a tryout

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — A husband-and-wife high-wire act who defected from the Soviet Union may have the spark of greatness in them, says a circus impresario who has offered them a paid tryout with the Greatest Show on Earth.

Bertalina Kazakova and Nikolai Nikolski are celebrating their 14th wedding anniversary today by considering the offer, which they say they probably will accept.

Kenneth Feld, president of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which bills itself as the Greatest Show on Earth, met for two hours with the couple Monday and said he would make them featured performers if they can design a spectacular tightrope act in the next two months.

"I am not able right now to see what they can do," Feld said. But, "I sense a spark in them that I find in the great performers."

Ms. Kazakova and Nikolski, featured performers with the Moscow Circus, were granted political asylum in the United States last week. They defected while in Argentina.

Feld offered to build the couple the necessary rigging at the Ringling circus' winter home in Venice and provide them with food, shelter and spending money until mid-October so they can demonstrate their abilities.

"If I like what I see, they'll be with the Greatest Show on Earth next year," he told reporters.

Feld met with the couple at the Lakeland Civic Center, where he is producing a show.

Ms. Kazakova, who speaks some English, said she is finding that American life is very different from life in the Soviet Union and added that she and her husband have been surprised that so many people want to help them here.

"There is more freedom here," she said.

Smoking ban called

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences is calling for a ban on smoking aboard at least some commercial jetliners, concluding cigarette smoke poses health and safety problems, according to government and industry sources.

The recommendation, contained in a report to be made public this week on overall air quality in aircraft cabins, is expected to revive a long-standing debate over whether the government should further restrict smoking aboard large jetliners.

The issue has been largely dormant since the Civil Aeronautics Board voted two years ago to ban smoking on all flights of less than two hours. The board almost immediately reversed itself and the order was never put into effect.

The CAB opted, instead, to prohibit smoking only on small commuter flights of 30 or fewer seats. Airlines are required in the larger jets to provide special smoking and non-smoking sections.

According to the sources, who asked not to be identified by name, the report by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences will call for a smoking ban on at least some of the large jetliners where there now is no prohibition.

The Academy of Sciences study on cabin air quality was ordered by Congress.

Tobacco industry is gearing up to counter the National Research Council findings. The Tobacco Institute says it is preparing to make public its own "scientific study of 65 in-flight air tests showing that the current smoking rule on commercial airliners effectively minimizes the exposure of passengers seated in no-smoking sections to environment tobacco smoke."

The issue also has prompted the concerns of Congress. Recently Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, introduced legislation that would prohibit smoking on all public conveyances, including commercial aircraft.

Results of the air quality study are to be presented to the Federal Aviation Administration.

Reagan ventures to farm country

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, less than two weeks after approving subsidized sales of U.S. wheat to the Soviet Union, is making a one-day outing to his native Illinois to lend moral support to financially pressed Midwestern farmers.

Outlining Reagan's plans before today's trip, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the aim was "to demonstrate his interest in the problems that are faced in agriculture."

Former resident serves TDA

By CINDY SMITH, Staff Writer

Former Hereford resident Suzy Woodford, rural coordinator for Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, will give a presentation entitled "Inside Austin" tonight at a dutch-treat dinner at K-Bobs.

Woodford will begin the presentation at 7:30 p.m. on Garry Mauro, Texas Land Commissioner, and Jim Mattox, attorney general.

Woodford was skeptical about the outcome of the special session. She said it looks like the main proposal is to cut the budget, and the House of Representatives has rejected the governor's request for a temporary sales tax increase.

How will the outcome of the session affect Hereford? Woodford says it will be in plenty of ways. "If they cut the Texas Highway Department, this would affect the number of highway patrolmen Hereford has. And the Mental Health Mental Retardation (Family Services Center) could definitely be impacted by any cuts in that budget. And if there are any cuts in the education agencies they would certainly be felt there too," she said.

Woodford said if the education agencies are cut - Governor White doesn't want education cuts - it would probably be in some of the programs mandated by the HB-72.

She also is concerned about cuts which would slice into the state Dept. of Agriculture.

Woodford explained that Hightower has had a very aggressive marketing program called "Taste of Texas" which introduces Texas products to other states and international markets.

The producers involved in distributing the Texas products have seen a marked increase in their sales. "We certainly don't want to see his marketing program cut," said Woodford.

Woodford says the November election is coming along well although "the Republicans said they were going to target Hightower for defeat and put enough bucks in it to burn a wet mule."

Woodford said that Hightower is a grass-roots politician and that he realizes that his campaign needs a grass-roots organizing.

"We've tried to get a county coordinator in each of the counties to talk about the politician, hand out brochures, and put up signs," said Woodford.

Woodford has been politicking since she was a child. She was Deaf Smith County's Democratic chairman in 1982.

"After the election I decided we elected a lot of good state politicians. I love politics and government and decided Austin is where I should be," she grinned.

Since then, she has worked for Public Servant Conduct Advisory Committee and was administration assistant for Common Cause, a non-profit, non-partisan citizens lobbying group. She now is a state board member and membership chairman.

"The reason I went to Austin is nians who were very vocal about Khomeni that lived in my neighborhood. I'm sure they're dead because they spoke out and you just can't do that over there.

"Iran made me really appreciate democracy and freedom and understand how hard you have to work to keep it," said Woodford.

SUZY WOODFORD Campaigning for Hightower because I love campaigning," admitted Woodford. She was also campaign manager for Brad Wiewel, an attorney in Austin that she got into the runoff for the state representative position.

Being a new kid on the block didn't stop Woodford there. She then became West Texas Fields coordinator for Senator Lloyd Doggett's campaign, of which she was also Texas' rural coordinator.

Woodford was also administration assistant for Tommy Adkisson, state representative from San Antonio, during session and after that it was Hightower time.

"Politicking is people, people do have to get involved, and people can make a difference," said Woodford.

During 1972 through 1980 she was also involved in politics and barely escaped from Iran before the refugees were caught.

"I witnessed a parallel, when Khomeni came to power, between the Shiites fundamentalists and the right wing religious fundamentalists we have here today in America," said Woodford. "The thing I learned in Iran was that once you lose democracy you can't get it back.

"I want the fundamentalists to have the right to believe the way they want to but I also want to have the right to have my own beliefs without being killed or thrown in jail for it," she said.

Woodford said "I have absolutely no idea what happened to the Ira-

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

On Friday, Aug. 1, there were 37 ads for garage sales in the Hereford Brand. The City Commissioners have discovered another way to make money at our expense. They want a $10 permit for every garage sale you have. And to top it off they want to limit us to two sales per year per person.

I figure every one but the City is going to lose. The average ad is run for two days in the Brand. The Brand charges a minimum of $4.40 to print a 20 word ad for two days. If garage sales are limited they are going to have a loss of revenue. The Brand is a fine small town paper. I would hate to see it not be able to keep up the excellent work.

If you take $10 X 37 the answer is $370. Now that's what I call profit! All the City will have to do is hold out their hands and the money will fall right into it. No sweat, blood or tears. Because they won't be the one's to crawl around in the attic, clean out the closets, or wade into the storage shed for all the treasures you want to sell. They won't have to price each item, or get up at the crack of dawn to be open at 8 o'clock. And they sure are not going to be the ones to stand out in the heat all day.

Also what if it rains all weekend. Will you have to put another $10 for the next weekend? You bet you will, because your permit is good for only seven days. That excludes the next weekend. That's what I call easy money. As usual at the hard working people's expense.

Also what difference does it make on how many sales a person has per year? If it's the cars parked on the side of the street, there are other things you can do in your home to cause a parking problem-such as a bridal shower, a club meeting, or just a family cook out.

Personally, I don't care how many sales my next door neighbor has. She has done a lot of neat things with the money. Like going to Mississippi to see her parents. Other people use it to balance a tight spot in the household budget. One young lady in Hereford held one for college money. There's lots of reasons. And I can't see any reason for the City of Hereford getting a piece of the cake. Whatever happened to free enterprise?

I want everyone to know I am not writing this for the sake of my own garage sales. I have a hangup about having one or even going to someone else's. My husband loves them. In fact he held one a couple of years ago. The hottest going item of the day was coffee cups. Come to think of it, he should have another one. There's lots of things we could part with.

Oh! By the way, I stayed in the house with a good book and the swamp cooler that day.

Thank you
Linda Collier

P.S.

Will the city of Hereford have to hire extra policemen to enforce this new law? What about an extra clerk in City Hall to keep up with the paper work? What about the sales that are not in the paper? Who's going to go around to check them out?

Don't ignore 'night sweats'

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor seems reluctant to tell me why I have drenching night sweats. At present I am taking Hydrochlorothiazide, Persantine, Lanoxin, and am being withdrawn from Prednisone. I have had four or five transient ischemic attacks. Do you have any idea of what might be causing the night sweats?

DEAR READER — Drenching night sweats may result from many types of infection that can be serious. Prednisone can mask infections, so during the time you are stopping the medicine, manifestations of inflammation (such as night sweats) can become evident.

Rather than being reluctant to discuss this problem with you, your doctor may simply not know why you are having night sweats. That's unfortunate, because I think you need to know. I suggest you sit down with the doctor and express your concerns. If he or she seems unenthusiastic about investigating your problems, ask for a referral to a specialist in internal medicine. Night sweating is a symptom that should not be ignored.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A year ago I was in the hospital for tests for amaurosis, having had what my doctor said was a light stroke. I still have the blurs and objects appear over my field of vision. What is my next step to clear my vision?

DEAR READER — The term "amaurosis" refers to visual disturbances, including black spots and loss of certain visual fields, from causes outside the eyes themselves. Amaurosis can be due to diseases of the optic nerve or brain from alcoholism, diabetes or kidney diseases; it has been reported to occur after emotional shock and may be inherited.

POLLY'S POINTERS How to use those plentiful pumpkins

DEAR POLLY — We planted pumpkins and it looks like we're going to have a bumper crop! Any ideas for using all that pumpkin? — MRS. D.G.

DEAR MRS. D.G. — Try this pumpkin biscuit recipe: Mix together two cups flour, 1/2 cup dry non-fat milk, 1/4 cup sugar, four teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Cut in 1/2 cup shortening until crumbly, then blend in 3/4 cup mashed pumpkin and one tablespoon water until ingredients are moistened. Knead about ten times on a lightly floured board, then pat into an eight-inch square. Cut into 16 two-inch biscuits. Place on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake at 425 degrees for eight to 10 minutes, or until the biscuits are golden brown. Serve warm with butter or butter flavored with a little maple syrup. Delicious!

Don't forget that you can cook and mash that pumpkin, then freeze it for future use. Packed in airtight freezer containers, the pumpkin keeps well for more than a year and can be used in pies, cookies, breads and as a hot vegetable seasoned with butter, salt, pepper and spices. I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Freezing Fruits and Vegetables," which gives complete instructions for freezing most produce. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Recently, a reader wrote about the difficulty of getting an angel-food cake out of the pan. Before preparing the cake, rinse the pan with cold water, turn it upside down on the counter while you mix your cake, then put in the batter. When the cake is baked, turn the pan over the neck of a bottle to cool. Drape a wet tea towel over the bottom and sides of the upside-down cake pan and let the cake cool completely. When cool, loosen the sides of the cake by running a thin-bladed knife or spatula between the cake and the pan. A light tap on the bottom should bring the cake out perfectly. — FRIEDA

Contact MADD

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know there are many men and women who have this problem but are reluctant to write. It is extremely difficult for me to put this down on paper but I feel I must.

My son killed a young girl while driving drunk. Two years later, my best friend's daughter, who also was driving drunk, killed her roommate. When the second accident happened, I had a five-hour talk with my friend. We unburdened ourselves to one another. It was wonderful for both of us because it was the first time we had ever opened up our feelings about the agony and guilt we felt. My friend said she hadn't had a good night's sleep until we talked about our feelings. I told her the same was true of me.

We are both heartsick for the mothers and fathers who have lost their children, but we suffer, too. We are the parents whose sons and daughters have killed people while driving drunk. We have no choice but to forgive our children and live with the nightmare every day.

My friend and I want to do something constructive. Talking to one another is fine but we would like to do more than just talk. Is there a group we might join to help get drunk drivers off the streets and highways and, at the same time, give us the peace of mind that comes from doing something positive? —KINGS PARK, N.Y.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you get your best phony letters from Yale but this one is for real. I'm not a Yale but I'll be a freshman in the fall. Please put this letter in language that will not offend anyone. I need help and this isn't the kind of problem you can talk to just anybody about. My folks have no idea. In fact, I've never told anyone.

To put it bluntly, I cannot urinate in front of anybody. I have had this problem for as long as I can remember. For the last two years (I have been in boarding school at Hotchkiss) I always waited until I was alone or could get a private stall. I don't know of any other kid who has this weird hang-up. I have to get over it soon because I will be living with a lot of guys and I would die if anyone found out about it.

I feel abnormal when I see guys relieving themselves without giving it a second thought while I stand around like a nerd waiting for a private place. I've been reading you ever since I was in the eighth grade and I think you are a very sincere and smart lady. Please help me. —ANONYMOUS FREAK IN CONN.

DEAR ANON: You are not a weirdo or a freak. What you have is called a "bashful kidney." I have printed letters about this problem before. The inability to urinate in the presence of others is purely psychological and no big deal. When you get to Yale talk to a counselor about it. Once you find out why you developed this inhibition you will be able to free yourself of it.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Reports

TIME FOR TALK OVER

AUSTIN — The Legislature convened last Wednesday to begin a historic special session aimed at solving the state's budget woes, everyone seemed to be in agreement that spending should be reduced before any alternative solution is considered.

Such a conclusion wasn't very hard to reach. Any responsible government will make sure its financial house is in order before discussing new taxes or other revenue-raising measures. No government has a right to ask for taxes if it is wasting a penny of the taxpayers' money.

But, saying let's cut the budget and actually cutting it are two different things entirely. When people talk about slashing the budget, and we include ourselves, they are talking about cutting programs they don't like, programs that benefit the "other guy."

History has proven time and time again, though, that there is no "other guy." Every program disliked by one person is supported by another. Whenever budget-cutting time rolls around, lawmakers usually are able to agree on the elimination of only a handful of programs or agencies. That almost certainly will be the case as the Legislature tries to cut the state's $3.5 billion deficit.

After the few consensus cuts, there is nothing left to do but implement across-the-board spending reductions. The House Appropriations and Senate Finance committees currently are investigating a $1.3 billion, across-the-board cut.

The $1.3 billion figure was chosen because it is the amount of spending that must be eliminated if the state is to avoid writing hot checks during the next six months. That would allow the rest of the deficit to be addressed when the Legislature convenes in regular session in January.

While $1.3 billion in cuts wouldn't be as devastating as $3.5 billion, they still would do a lot of damage. Consider the impact on the following areas.

Panhandle and South Plains school districts could lose between $4 million and $5 million in state aid. The Amarillo Independent School District alone could lose as much as $1.6 million in state aid under the $1.3 billion reduction plan. Remember, too, that districts will have to make up the loss in state aid somehow, most likely through increased local property taxes.

The universities that serve our area also may be dealt a serious blow. West Texas State University could see a $1.7 million, or 14.6-percent, reduction in its budget. Texas Tech University would lose $10.9 million (17.7 percent) of its money, and Tech's Health Sciences center would have $5.3 million (13.9 percent) lopped off its budget.

Our schools wouldn't be alone, either. The Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse may have to absorb a $1.6 billion (33-percent) cut, which almost certainly would lead to the elimination of its Amarillo office and the discontinuation of many services to regional alcoholism and drug-abuse treatment centers.

Texas Agricultural Extension Service may have to take a $13 million cut, which amounts to 47.8 percent of its budget. That deep a cut almost certainly would devastate critical state services to our farmers and ranchers.

Frankly, the list of the cuts and their effects could go on at length. We think, however, we have given you a pretty good overview of what the state is facing. If the Legislature does implement a $1.3 billion cut, it will be difficult to protect some of the programs that are important to our district. The best we can hope for is to make sure all parts of the state share the burden of cuts equally.

Please do not interpret this dire picture, though, as a call for new taxes. We're not ready to support increased revenues yet. Instead, consider this a call for thoughtful reflection and for your advice. We've got a tough job to do during the next 30 days, and we could use your help.

Let us know how you feel about the budget cuts and about new taxes. Write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

Lap safety belts can cause severe injuries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should rear-seat automobile passengers buckle up or unbuckle?

Government safety experts say they can't agree in the wake of a new federal study indicating that in many crashes the lap-only safety belts, which are found on the rear seats of most cars, often cause more severe injuries than they prevent.

The National Transportation Safety Board revealed Monday that a study of 26 frontal auto accidents involving rear-seat passengers who wore the lap belts showed that in many cases the belts themselves caused the most serious injuries.

The NTSB study acknowledged that its sample of accidents was statistically small, but concluded that the samples clearly show that lap belts often restrain the wearer in a way that causes serious head, spinal and abdominal injuries because of the concentration of impact forces and the "jackknife" effect of the torso across the belt.

"In many cases, the lap belts induced severe to fatal injuries that probably would not have occurred if the lap belts had not been worn," the NTSB report said, although it stopped short of urging such belts not be used.

But Patricia Goldman, the NTSB's vice chairman, told reporters the safety board "is unable to state with confidence whether passenger vehicle occupants should be advised to use lap-only belts or not" in light of the findings.

Ms. Goldman emphasized that the answer was to require automakers to install shoulder-lap belts, such as those required on front seats, in the rear seats as well. Some foreign automakers already provide such belts, and several U.S. manufacturers have plans to soon phase them into their cars.

Nevertheless, tens of millions of cars are expected to have only lap belts on rear seats for years to come and the mere suggestion that those might better go unbuckled brought immediate reaction.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued a statement disputing the validity of the NTSB study. The agency, which regulates auto safety, called it "a specific search for cases in which belts failed" and an unfair sample of all types of accidents.

"Everything we've seen points out clearly and consistently that you're better off with the lap belt on," NHTSA Administrator Diane Steed said in an interview. She said there have been numerous studies that have found the lap-only belts reduce the risk of death and serious injury when all types of accidents are considered.

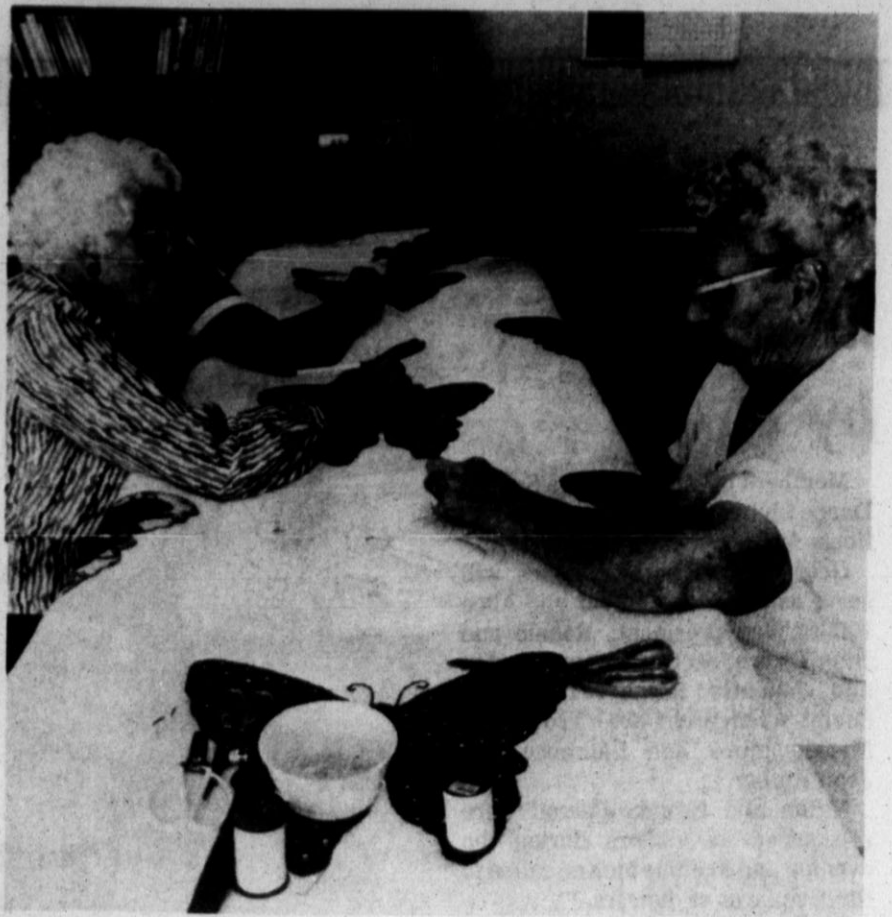

"While lap belts are far from optimum, and in some cases they can make things worse... it is still wise to keep the belts on," said Brian O'Neill, director of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

But he acknowledged in some accidents the belts may be harmful, although he suggested those drawbacks are outweighed by other accidents such as those in which a person not wearing a belt might be ejected from the vehicle.

Auto safety experts say about half of all fatalities occur in frontal crashes in which the drawbacks of the lap-only belts are greatest, while about one-third involve rollover or occupant ejection.

Three states — California, Massachusetts and Washington — require that rear-seat passengers use their lap belts, while New York and Minnesota require youngsters to be buckled when in rear seats.

A half-dozen foreign manufacturers already equip their cars with rear-seat shoulder belts. General Motors Corp. plans to equip some of its cars with such belts next year and all cars by 1989. Ford said it plans to make them available within a few years.

High school agricultural programs declining

HOUSTON (AP) — Education reforms and the depressed farm economy are taking their toll on the Future Farmers of America, a vocational club that is losing students after its recent boom in secondary-school membership, officials say.

But FFA enrollment dropped to 92 students last year, and agriculture teachers now must teach other subjects.

Statewide, enrollment fell 3.5 percent from 55,336 students in 1985 to 53,380 students this year, said Jay Eudy, the Texas Education Agency's director of agricultural education.

In the fall, Cooper expects to teach biology for the first time since joining the Cypress-Fairbanks Independent School District 22 years ago.

Texans put state pride on record

DALLAS (AP) — Three Texans singing the oil patch blues in a country song say they're trying to "pump the pride back" into the Lone Star state.

Bob Autrey, Tracy Kite and Robert Owen wrote the song, "Angry Texas Eyes," which has played on radio stations in Austin, Midland and Odessa.

They blame the energy crisis on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, citing a "bitter feud about the price of crude."

"We're trying to pump the pride back up in Texas," said Autrey, 38, from Lake Worth, a suburb of Fort Worth.

The chorus of the song is, "This gusher of doom OPEC's staging is enraging Texans' lives. Our double-barrel sights are upon you, and, son, they're angry Texas eyes."

The song vilifying outsiders follows the tradition of, "Freeze a Yankee," a popular ditty during the energy crisis of the 1970s. Autrey said he hopes the song will strike a sympathetic chord with Texans who have felt the downturn in the state's economy.

"Let's get Texas tough," he said.

"Let's show 'em we mean business. We need our Texas boys working."

The three songwriters began their task after seeing the effects of high unemployment in West Texas and losing jobs and businesses themselves. They recorded the song in Nashville, Tenn., several weeks ago, using personal savings and some financial backing.

Autrey described the tune as "up-tempo country," and said "it's really from the heart."

He said OPEC members are gutting the Texas oil industry by setting artificially low prices.

The song calls on Texans to tap into the revolutionary spirit, with the line, "Remember the Alamo. When all odds are wrong, we get Texas strong. Just ask Mexico."

The Gulf of Aden separates Yemen and Somalia.

10-year-old at home driving a flying machine

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Fifth-grader John Hill has to prop himself up on three pillows when he takes the controls of a Cessna 172, but he says flying the four-seater is plain sailing.

"It's easy," said the 10-year-old Arlington elementary school student. "You just give it the gas until you get to 60 mph, you pull up the steering wheel and you go up."

"And, oh yeah. You got to keep the plane in the middle of the runway."

John, who learned how to drive a car when he was seven, says he wants to be an astronaut when he grows up. In the meantime, he drives a car in the parking lot at his father's business and flies airplanes.

His father, Johnny Hill, noted that his son doesn't drive without a licensed driver along as passenger and doesn't fly without flight instructor Mike Fields.

"He has to be 15 to solo legally," said Fields, who works for Cothran Aviation. "If he were old enough, John could complete the requirements for a pilot's license within a year."

John said he has trouble convincing his friends that he flies an airplane. He started in December 1985, when he asked his parents for flying lessons.

"We didn't think he would really stick with it," said his mother, Pat-sy.

Rose sets another hit record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Exactly eleven months after he set baseball's all-time hit record, Cincinnati Reds player-manager Pete Rose established another National League mark with his tenth five-hit game.

His double and four singles in a 13-4 loss to the San Francisco Giants Monday night also provided some evidence that, at age 45, he can still hit — an assumption that could keep him playing in a limited role for one more season.

"I'd love to get hot and be able to knock in some runs and score some runs and get the team hot," Rose said, after his first five-hit game in more than four years.

The performance raised his average from .204 to a season-high .222 and started to fulfill a pre-game prophecy that he's got a hot streak ahead that could ward off retirement for another year.

Before the game, Rose reiterated that he'll wait until the end of the season to decide whether to fulfill the remaining year of his player contract. He said he'd retire as a player if he had to make the decision based on his performance so far, but he might return as a pinch-hitter and part-time player if he does well the last two months.

He then went out and drove in three runs with his five hits, moving him ahead of Max Carey for sole possession of the National League record. The magnitude of the loss took the joy out of the moment.

"When you get hits and knock in runs, you like to win," he said.

"Usually when I have a good day, we win. When you have a game like this, you want to forget about it."

Rose had benched himself in the last week and a half to give Nick Esasky a chance to start hitting. Rose's last start resulted in an 0-for-3 performance against Los Angeles Aug. 2, and he walked during a pinch-hit appearance Aug. 6.

His last hit was in a 1-for-5 effort against San Diego July 30.

He said he was surprised only at the magnitude of his success Monday night.

"No one knows how I'm swinging the bat because I haven't played in 10 days," Rose said. "But I've felt good in batting practice, and I see the ball well when I pinch-hit. I'm surely not tired, because I only have 200 at-bats."

Rose wouldn't be surprised if he continues to hit well the rest of the season.

"I've always been a pretty good August and September hitter," he said.

Sturgeon wins fourth straight 10-K run

Jesse Sturgeon, a runner from San Antonio, won the 10-kilometer run in Hereford for the fourth summer in a row last Saturday morning.

Sturgeon's winning time in the Greg Black Memorial 10-Kilometer Run was 34:06, a minute and four seconds off his record time of 33:02 set in 1984.

His other wins in the 10-kilometer run in Hereford were in 1983 with a time of 33:16, and in 1985 with a time of 34:12.

This year's race, along with a two-mile run, was the second time it was known as the Greg Black Memorial 10-Kilometer and Two-Mile Fun Run. From 1981 to 1984, the races were known as the Town & Country Jubilee 10-Kilometer and Two-Mile Fun Run.

Other winners in Saturday's races were: Lorraine Anthony, Hereford, women's 10-kilometer run, in a time of 55:26; Todd Baldwin, Amarillo, men's two-mile run, in a time of 10:50; and Lisa Garza, Hereford, women's two-mile run, in a time of 14:39.

Division winners in the 10-kilometer run were: Richard Sanderson, men's 13 and under; Glenn Patchen, Boys Ranch, men's 14-19; Clay Davis, Hereford, men's 20-29; Jesse Sturgeon, men's 30-39; Larry Higgins, Hereford, men's 40-49; Harold Ritchey, Amarillo, men's 50 and over; Melanie Wilburn, Hereford, women's 14-19; Lorraine Anthony, Hereford, women's 30-39; and Joanne Kendall, Amarillo, women's 50 and over.

Higgins' time was 39:33, breaking the record for the men's 40-49 division. The old record was 39:58, set by John Elchie of Groom in 1983.

Eric Nears The Finish Line

Eric Black displays a proud smile as he nears the finish line in a race named after his father, the Greg Black Memorial Two-Mile Fun Run. Eric finished 35th out of 41 runners who completed the race in the men's division. Behind him is his grandfather, Charles Hoover. Hoover placed 22nd in the race in a time of 15:09. After he finished his run, Hoover went back along Fifteenth Street and ran with his grandson, to motivate Eric to finish the race. (Brand photo by Gary Christensen)

Animator's book turns into animation empire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From a little bear cub named "Kissyfur" created for his son, Phil Mendez has fashioned an animation empire — four prime-time cartoon specials, two Saturday morning shows and offshoot merchandise such as books, clothes, dolls, Halloween costumes and toys.

His total investment: $7,000 from savings and a like amount lent by a friend.

"It all started because my son Christopher couldn't get his sisters to read a book to him," Mendez said. "He was 4 at the time and I said I'd make him a book that he could read."

He drew a book of pictures about a bear cub and his troubles with a honeypot. The pictures told the story, without a single word to trip up a preschooler. Mendez called the book "Kissyfur," the way Christopher pronounced his name when he had a tooth missing.

Mendez's $14,000 was a wise investment. A programming executive at NBC saw the book and ordered four "Kissyfur" specials.

"After I had the books printed I gave one to Christopher and I had 1,999 copies left," he recalled. "A friend of mine owns a bookstore and he took 30. They quickly sold out and they kept selling."

"Phyllis Tucker Vinson, who's in charge of Saturday morning programming at NBC, saw the book and asked if I'd do a Saturday morning show. I said no. I'd worked as an animator at the Disney Studios and Hanna-Barbera and done commercials for Dancer Fitzgerald Sample advertising agency and I knew what quality was. And I knew the quality of the Saturday morning shows."

They compromised and Mendez produced the four specials for prime time.

The "Kissyfur" Saturday morning animated series will make its debut on NBC in September. Mendez has a second animated show starting at the same time.

Publishing company to publish pornography report

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Christian publishing company will sell a paperback reprint of a report on pornography by the U.S. Attorney General's commission so the public can better understand the issue, company officials say.

"I think a lot of people are still in a time warp when it comes to pornography. They're still thinking it is 1956 and we're dealing with Playboy centerfolds," said Charles "Kip" Jordon, executive vice president of Word Publishing.

The federal report is the result of a 14-month study by an 11-member panel appointed in May 1985 by Attorney General Edwin Meese III. The final draft was released July 9, and it contains 93 recommendations for controlling pornography.

The commission reviewed current findings, held public hearings, heard testimony from those who said they were pornography victims and other witnesses, read or viewed samples of pornography and visited "adults only" businesses.

"We're trying to remain as balanced as possible in this and still remain feeling human beings," Jordon said. "We don't want this to be perceived as some kind of right-wing religious crusade. But what is chronicled in this report goes well beyond what most people would ever imagine."

The $9.95 paperback will be available Sept. 5, and it will contain 2,235 separate magazine titles and 725 books found in pornography shops, Jordon said. Word will distribute the book to both Christian and mainstream bookstores.

Jordon said Word expects some feedback from Christian bookstores on the book, but added that the "enormous outcry" against the findings of the attorney general's commission in advance of its publication convinced Word to distribute the report.

"All we're saying is that the First Amendment applies to both left-wing and right-wing organizations," Jordon said. "Certain groups and publications have sought to impose their own censorship on the findings of this committee. We just don't want it to be submerged."

Dr. James Dobson, a Word author, was a member of the panel that studied the materials. Jordon said Dobson kept Word officials apprised of the commission's findings.

Jordon said major New York publishing houses refused to distribute the report, which prompted Word to publish it in a condensed version.

Of pornography charges

Sheriff found guilty

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for suspended Montague County Sheriff Harry Walker say they plan to appeal their client's conviction on four counts of sexually exploiting minors.

Walker was convicted Monday on charges of mailing child pornography and faces up to 40 years in prison and a $1 million fine. Sentencing is scheduled for Sept. 12.

"Of course, he's disappointed in the ruling," attorney William Bratton said Monday night. "We believe the law was not designed to cover the situation relating to Walker — namely, the statute should be designed to cover those who do business through the mail for profit."

Bratton said he expects the conviction to be reversed because of "outrageous conduct" by the government and alleged constitutional violations in the amended 1984 federal statute used to convict his client.

"The approach will be to attack not only the legality of the statute, but also the application of the statute to him," Bratton said.

The trial was held before U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer after both sides agreed to a written stipulation of testimony. Walker waived a jury and asked the judge to decide the case, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Denver McCarty.

Walker was arrested May 1 at a Montague County post office and was indicted by a federal grand jury in Dallas later that month.

The sheriff was arrested after undercover agents began corresponding with people whose names were found on a mailing list seized by Los Angeles authorities, McCarty said.

Buchmeyer found Walker guilty on the four counts and set sentencing for Sept. 12, McCarty said.

Witnesses whose testimony was introduced included a Tulsa, Okla., police investigator and two postal inspectors, McCarty said.

Evidence included photographs, fingerprint and handwriting samples and magazines.

McCarty said there was little disagreement between attorneys on the facts of the case, but Walker's attorney had raised questions of free speech and right to privacy in pre-trial motions.

"This way he gets to appeal to the 5th Circuit," McCarty said.

Walker has been jailed since his arrest.

Glenn Whately, a sergeant in the Montague County Sheriff's Department, was sworn in as acting sheriff June 13. Acting on a suit filed by Montague County District Attorney Jack McLaughy, State District Judge William Hughes Jr. signed an order suspending Walker without pay.

In 1326, Edward II, King of England and the first Prince of Wales, was murdered by his wife, leading to a rebellion by his 15-year-old son, who became Edward III.

Maximilien Robespierre was beheaded in France in 1794.
