Jubilee Junction moved to Bull Barn

Due to flooding

Flooding in Dameron Park led Chamber of Commerce officials to change Saturday's Jubilee Junction to the Bull Barn.

Heavy rains early Friday pooled in the middle of the park, where the fair-like event was to be held in conjunction with the Town & Country Jubilee.

But showers haven't dampened parade plans.

Fifty-two entrants have signed for a slot in the 1986 Town & Country Jubilee Parade, but chairman Hawk Krieg expects a last minute rush to stretch the line by about 20 more.

The stream of color, bands and horses will depict the theme of the Jubilee - Texas...My kind of state.

As part of the Sesquicentennial, two men from Bordertown, South Australia, will be the honored guests of the parade. Ian Hensley and Keith Willis, who visited Hereford earlier this year, have returned for the Jubilee weekend.

Saturday's display of commerce and clubs begins at 10:30 a.m. in the Hereford High School parking lot, following the judging which starts at 9:30. No entrant arriving after 10 a.m. will be eligible for judging, but may be in the parade.

The parade will move south on Avenue F to Park, west on Park to Main, then South to Second Street.

Winning entries will be marked with banners. First through third place awards will be given for the categories of float, vehicle, riders club, commercial and organizational. Children in costume or on bikes will be given ribbons. Grand prize winners for best of theme and best overall will be given plaques to note the Sesquicentennial year.

Jubilee events started last weekend with the Greg Black Memorial 10K and Fun Run. Today the event kicks into high gear with:

DOMINOES, CARDS

The Hereford Senior Citizens has invited the town to play dominoes, 42, bridge, and Skip-bo in tournament style starting at 7 p.m. today in the Senior Citizens Center.

JUNIOR RODEO

The Hereford Young Riders Rodeo opens tonight in the Riders Club Arena. Showtime is at 7 p.m. today and Saturday. Fourteen events are planned for the youth.

Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children 6 through 12 years and for senior citizens. Children under 5-years are admitted free.

JUBILEE OF ARTS

The Hereford Community Center is booked with artists and craftsmen for its free show which was to open today at noon and run until 6 p.m. The show continues from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday.

Other exhibits at the Center include the Genealogical Society, King's Manor, Deaf Smith County 4-H, the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, and the Jubilee Quilt Show.

The Toujours Amis Study Club will man a concession stand at the Center with sandwiches, candy, soft drinks and praline, chocolate and strawberry crepes.

JUBILEE JUNCTION

More than 50 booths—including one for babysitting, a petting zoo, games and food—will open at noon in the Bull Barn following the parade.

Parade honors will be presented at noon by emcee Charlie Bell. Then the musical entertainment begins, including the Hereford Day Care at 12:10 p.m.; and at 12:30 p.m. are Sherry, Emily and Ronda Fuston with Wendy Connally, Mandi Douglas and Natalie Andrews. True Love performs at 12:45 p.m., a group of singers from the Hereford Senior Citizens Association are on tap at 1:05 p.m. and Hereford Bluegrass and Old Tyme Music begins at 1:45 p.m.

At 2 p.m. the 4-H Bucket Calf Project winners will be announced by Davy Vestal, 4-H agent.

From 3:30 p.m. until 4 p.m., Valiant will play country-western music, then shift to Top 40 at 4 p.m.

Tax overhaul may add to deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional efforts to write a sweeping tax-overhaul compromise are threatened by a new estimate that the legislation would add $17 billion to the government's flood of red ink, Sen. Bob Packwood said today.

"I'm just not sure where we go from here," Packwood, the chief Senate negotiator, told reporters today. His remarks came after he and Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the top House negotiator reached a stalemate Thursday night.

"He and I almost cried last night," Packwood said.

He refused to declare the landmark legislation dead but said that unless a basic agreement on the package is reached before Congress adjourns for a three-week recess, it could be in trouble.

"It is critical we get this out" before the recess "so that special interests won't have three weeks to hit us over the head" with proposals to change the package, he said. "If any part of it gets upset, the whole package is out."

Unless the problems are worked out, Packwood said, "this is a chance that won't come again in 50 years."

Packwood held out hope that problems with the bill could be worked out today. The House and Senate delegations scheduled separate sessions to make a final try at agreement, but there was pessimism about the prospects for progress.

The problem boiled down to this:

—The Joint Committee on Taxation, which provides non-partisan technical advice on taxes to the House and Senate, produced a new estimate late Thursday that the bill would worsen the deficit by $17 billion over five years. President Reagan and congressional leaders have agreed the bill should bring in the same revenue as present law.

—Packwood said negotiators would have no trouble making up $7 billion of the shortage on the individual tax side. But senators were absolutely adamant against raising corporate taxes an additional $10 billion to bring the bill into balance. They simply refuse to believe the revenue estimates they are getting, Packwood said.

—Rostenkowski refused to ask House conferees to agree to a compromise with the $10 billion shortage, even though Reagan agreed, Packwood said, not to criticize Congress for that. The shortage would be made up in September.

When the impasse was reached Thursday night, Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "It's a blow to us to have been so close, but yet so far."

The two chairmen had all but agreed on some key points—such as the level of business taxes to be included in the final package—but other items continued to be a problem as Congress prepared to leave town.

Wholesale prices dropped last month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices dropped 0.4 percent last month as fresh declines in gasoline prices more than offset slightly higher food costs. For the first seven months of 1986, wholesale prices fell at an annual rate of 6.2 percent.

Prices had held steady in June and, in fact, have fallen for five months this year.

Gasoline prices, after rising 2.9 percent in June, plunged 19.3 percent last month. That was the largest decline since a 22.0 percent drop in March.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index for July did not reflect the temporary agreement reached last week by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to cut production and raise prices—an action analysts say will add 10 cents or so to retail gasoline prices by summer's end.

Food prices rose 1.9 percent last month.

The biggest increases were a 10.5 percent rise for poultry, a 6.4 percent gain for beef and a 5.1 percent rise for pork.

Analysts said that the higher prices for these meats resulted from unusually hot weather, which resulted in the fewer animals being brought to market.

Prices for goods other than food and energy rose 0.3 percent.

If last month's 0.4 percent drop continued for 12 consecutive months, it would be equivalent to an annual price deflation rate of 4.9 percent.

The overall Producer Price Index stood at 288.0 in July, meaning that an assortment of goods that cost $10 in 1967—the base period—would have cost $28.80 last month.

In July 1985, the index was 294.8—meaning that prices for an identical assortment of goods fell 68 cents over the year.

The Labor Department index reflects the wholesale prices that domestic producers receive for their finished products. It does not include the prices of imports or costs charged by service industries and professions, such as restaurants and doctors.

Thus, the wholesale price calculation usually shows less inflation than

Texas House debate today on spending

AUSTIN (AP) — House members today looked at the spending cut plan that is a keystone of Speaker Gib Lewis' proposal to solve the state cash-flow problem without a tax hike.

Lewis has predicted the $632.3 million in cuts would win approval in the House, although its fate is uncertain in the Senate where Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby is pushing a tax-and-cut plan. House debate was set to begin today.

On Thursday, the state's largest business association backed Lewis' no-tax stance.

"Let's get the fat out first," Texas Association of Business Chairman George Baur of Houston told a news conference.

Also Thursday, Lewis backed off some from his proposal to take $1.1 billion from two trust funds dedicated to education, and the House Appropriations Committee voted to cut the price of personalized license plates.

The appropriations committee, which sent the $632.2 million budget-cut plan to the floor, Thursday approved a bill that would reduce the price of personalized license plates from $75 a year to $40 a year.

The plates had cost $25 a year until the 1985 Legislature hiked the fee to $75.

About 151,000 Texans a year bought the plates when they cost $25. Only 51,000 bought them when the fee went to $75.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, who won committee approval for his bill to reduce the fee, said it could mean increased revenue of about

Discipline bill set for final vote

AUSTIN (AP) — A school discipline bill backed by educators has won tentative House approval despite complaints from a lawmaker who says it makes it too easy to suspend students who commit minor infractions.

The measure won voice vote approval Thursday in the House, and faces another vote before going to the Senate, which approved a similar measure in 1985.

Gov. Mark White on Thursday expanded the call of the special session to allow consideration of the discipline bill.

Sponsor Bill Haley, D-Center, said it is needed to restore disciplinary power taken from teachers and administrators in the 1984 school reform bill. But Rep. Al Granoff, D-Dallas, who opposed portions of the measure, said it would allow suspensions for students who should be forced into in-school detention.

"To say it's discipline, and scary, to say to a problem-making 14-year-old, 'You can have a three-day vacation' is a joke," Granoff said during Thursday debate. "To tell them, 'You have to sit in a classroom and study' is (the real) punishment."

Firefighters makes progress

By ARTHUR BUCKLER Associated Press Writer

Firefighters reported progress in the battle against lightning-spawned blazes that have charred 345,000 acres in five Northwestern states, but forest fires still burned out of control in Oregon.

"It's really looking good," said Bert Hart, a U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokesman in Utah, where firefighters gained ground against flames that had blackened about 25,000 acres of trees and brush.

Rain and cooler weather helped bring Montana's largest fire under control late Thursday, while Nevada's biggest grass fire was out.

In Idaho, where scores of forest fires burned, crews sweating to save $30 million worth of timber brought a 10,400-acre blaze near Goodrich under control Thursday and drew a fire line between other flames and 70 houses north of Boise.

Since Aug. 2, fires sparked by lightning in the tinder-dry Northwest have scorched more than 560,000 acres, said Dave Damron of the Boise Interagency Fire Center, the national fire command post.

Meanwhile, in northern California's Mendocino National Forest, a 100-acre timber fire of unknown cause was 60 percent contained Thursday and full control was expected late today. Two air tankers, two helicopters and 270 firefighters battled the blaze near Lake Pillsbury, said fire dispatcher Diana Corkill.

More than 11,000 firefighters were on the fire lines throughout the West Thursday with support from thousands of additional personnel and supervisors.

In Oregon, 175 fires were raging over nearly the length of the state east of the Cascade Mountains in the Wallowa-Whitman, Malheur and Umatilla national forests, the U.S. Forest Service said.

Better weather, however, helped firefighters contain range fires on federal land in Oregon's Malheur and Harney counties, where 86,500 acres of sage and grass had burned, said BLM spokesman Bill Keil.

Crews in north-central Nevada snuffed a 16,200-acre range fire near Winnemucca and ringed a 4,000-acre brush fire. The progress freed many of the 300 firefighters in the state for battle in Oregon and Idaho.

Cooperation pledged in drug war

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are announcing the largest drug war ever along the Mexican border as the president of Mexico winds up a U.S. visit, but an Army general says Cuba is also involved in the drug trade.

The new U.S.-Mexico venture appeared off to a rocky start, however, as word came Thursday that a Drug Enforcement Administration officer had been detained by Mexican police.

Police in Guadalajara held Victor Cortez Jr. for an hour or two Wednesday and released him after he was identified as a U.S. agent, Mexican officials said.

But Attorney General Edwin Meese told reporters Thursday there were reports Cortez had been "allegedly mistreated."

Terry Burke, special agent in charge of the DEA's Phoenix, Ariz., office, charged that Cortez had been beaten after being kidnapped "apparently from a public place" and detained for up to seven hours.

The New York Times, in today's editions, quoted a senior American official as saying Cortez was "tortured — severely beaten and worse." Another official said, "They used a cattle prod and more."

House is completing defense bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is driving toward completion of a Pentagon budget bill that would sharply limit major Reagan administration defense programs, amid a dispute about who best represents the public will.

After a week of controversial actions, the Democratic-controlled chamber was expected to give final passage today to the bill and then head home for a three-week Labor Day recess.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Thursday that the House, which on several votes generally split along party lines, was "expressing the will of the American people."

O'Neill criticized President Reagan because he said Reagan "has no defense policy ... except taking everything everybody at the Pentagon wants and buying it."

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said, "We're going to have an adequate national defense, but we're going to have a lean, mean military."

But at the Pentagon, spokesman Robert Sims disputed O'Neill about who expresses the public will.

Camp helps children with cancer

DAUPHIN, Pa. (AP) — A year ago, David Brumbaugh gave himself up for dead after learning he had bone cancer at age 15.

Depressed, he headed for a camp for young cancer patients, where he thought the campers would sit around pitying each other. He figured wrong.

This year, David is back for a week at Camp Can-Do, in the central Pennsylvania woods. His cancer is responding to treatment and he's counting the days until October, when his chemotherapy is scheduled to end.

"Nobody could tell me I wasn't going to die," he said Thursday. "I just had to go along with the treatment and trust the doctors."

They told him his hair, which fell out during the early stages of treatment, would grow back, and it did. They told him his strength would gradually return, and it did.

The doctors took care of everything but removing David's doubts. Camp took care of that this year by helping him decide to try out for the soccer team when he starts his junior year in high school in suburban Philadelphia next month.

Domino Pros

Serious practice by these fellows should be a warning to the domino rookies planning to play in tonight's tournament at the Senior Citizens Center—Cecil Lady, Pete Caldwell, Frank Huckert and Dub Curts-inger are regulars at the table. Play begins at 7 p.m. In conjunction at the center are tournaments in bridge, 42, and Skip-bo.

PRICES

the Consumer Price Index. Due out later this month for July, that index includes prices for imports and services, areas that have shown an annual inflation rate of around 3 percent for most of the year.

While lower inflation has been good news to consumers, salaries have also been growing slowly.

"Wages and salaries were only up 2.7 percent in the spring quarter. That was fine so long as prices were falling," said Sandra Shaber, an economist for Chase Econometrics, a private forecasting service.

"But once inflation edges back up to 3 percent or more, this will translate what might have been OK increases in salaries into declining purchasing powers. Earnings have been so weak that even a modest increase in inflation will wipe out real gains."

The Labor Department added these other details on wholesale price activity in July:

—Heating oil prices fell 17.2 percent. Natural gas prices were off 0.5 percent.

—Prices for new cars rose 0.5 percent.

—Fresh fruit prices were up 2.1 percent while vegetable prices gained 1.3 percent. Egg prices rose 5.2 percent, a further reflection of the effects of the summer's heat. Coffee prices fell 0.2 percent. Alcoholic beverage prices held steady.

All the figures are adjusted to removed periodic, predictable seasonal effects, except for the index number itself, which is unadjusted.

DEBATE

$600,000 a year and would make many Texans happy.

"I think it's ridiculous to make 100,000 people angry for no reason at all," he said.

The bill now goes to the full House.

A portion of Lewis' plan drew opposition Thursday from Frank Raines, a New York investment banker, who said Texas' bond ratings could suffer if money is withdrawn from the Permanent University Fund and Permanent School Fund.

Lewis wants to use $1.1 billion from the funds to replace general revenue that could be used elsewhere. Now, as opposition is mounting from White, educators and some lawmakers, Lewis indicated the plan might have stalled.

"Whether or not we will push for passage of that is yet to be determined," he said.

"I never want to see Texas lose any of our bond ratings," Lewis said. "I'm not ready to forget about it, but let me say it is not now a No. 1 priority. It's back on the back burner."

Clergy backed Rehnquist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although criticisms of Supreme Court Justice William H. Rehnquist were raised over his dissent in a case against Bob Jones University, most of the country's religious leaders backed his position.

In the case, the court upheld revocation of tax exemption of the fundamentalist university because it prohibited interracial dating, claiming religious grounds for it. Rehnquist, the lone dissenter in the 1983 case, was criticized for it at U.S. Senate hearings on his nomination as chief justice. At the time of the case, however, mainline Protestant and Roman Catholic leadership defended the university's exempt status.

While opposing the institution's racial policies, they contended that to penalize it for holding them under its religious premises posed a threat to religious liberty in general.

Catholic bishops contended that the ruling could be invoked to deny their church's tax exemption because of alleged sexual discrimination against women in Catholicism's refusal on religious grounds to ordain them.

Arizona has most Jews

NEW YORK (AP) — Florida has slipped behind Arizona in registering the biggest growth in Jewish population.

The 1986 American Jewish Yearbook says the number of Jews in Arizona increased by 15,000 last year, beating the 11,500 increase in Florida, which the largest gain a year earlier, 80,000 compared to Arizona's 4,000.

But Florida's total of 570,320 Jews still far exceeded Arizona's 68,285. Florida remained the state with the third-largest concentration of Jews in proportion to population, 5.2 percent, led only by New York's 1.9 million, 10.8 percent, and New Jersey's 430,570 or 5.7 percent.

The yearbook, published by the American Jewish Committee, puts the overall U.S. Jewish population at 5.8 million.

Mini-city set up for exhausted firemen

ENTERPRISE, Ore. (AP) — After 70 hours of firefighting, Dede Hathhorn went home to a mountain clearing transformed overnight into a bustling community where she could shower, charge supplies and eat a steak dinner.

Behind the front lines of fires that have burned 285,000 acres in Oregon alone, a web of federal, state and local agencies is creating temporary modern oases in the wilderness for 8,000 firefighters, many of them young and thousands of miles from home.

"We envisioned what it would be like to have 1,500 people living here. Then we started going through the processes to deal with that," said Ralph Perkins, logistics chief at the Sled Springs Base Camp in the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest.

On Thursday, plywood booths labeled "Planning," "Group Support" and "Commissary" stood at the edges of the compound, along with a semi-trailer equipped with showers and portable toilets.

A satellite-computer system linked the camp with suppliers in La Grande, 60 miles away, speeding the arrival of needed equipment. Boxes of shovels, stacks of axes and piles of helmets awaited the arrival of still more firefighters.

Crews coming off a 12-hour shift or waiting to go back to the lines lunched at tables covered with red-and-white checked oilcloths. Others rested in tents and sleeping bags clustered in a field and the cool shade of the forest beyond.

"When you bring in people from as far away as Virginia and Georgia, they're tired when they get here," said Ron DeHart, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman at the Wallowa Command Center in Enterprise. "You've got to rest them, outfit them and get them out on the line. It's like putting an army together."

Hathhorn, a rookie soldier in the fire wars, strapped on a backpack and helmet for the trip back to the line with the rest of her Missoula, Mont., crew, part of a firefighting elite known as the Interagency Hotshots.

"We have a good crew, so it's kind of like summer camp a little bit," she said. "Summer camp and a chain gang mixed together."

Thousands of lightning strikes during a 12-hour period Sunday started fires across the Northwest, and Hathhorn's crew was one of the first on the scene in the hard-hit Blue Mountains.

For 70 hours, they caught sleep where they could and lived on water and MREs — Meals Ready to Eat, a contemporary version of the World War II C-rations and a repast that gets old fast.

Ann Landers Ex's sleep together

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just had to write after reading about women who continue to have sex with their ex-husbands, because I am one.

"Joe" and I were divorced last year. One month later he was in my bed. I thought I was the only woman in the whole world who did this. From your column I learned otherwise.

You are wrong when you say it is "the path of least resistance." There are other reasons. Both my ex and I are terrified of getting a venereal disease. I don't sleep around and he knows it. If I thought he was alley-cattin', I would stop seeing him at once and remain celibate for the rest of my life. (I'm 42.)

Though we get along extremely well sexually we found it impossible to live together. So you see, Ann, there are other reasons for sleeping with one's former spouse.—A READER IN EASTERN MONTANA

DEAR READER: Thanks for your comments. My mail indicates there are an awful lot of ex's sleeping together and some of the reasons they give would twirl your turban. One woman wrote, "He rents a room in my house. On weekends we sometimes get drunk together and forget we aren't married."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just finished reading Eileen Stevens' letter about fraternity hazing and wanted to let you know that hazing is not merely a problem at college or even in high schools, but also in junior high.

My son Norman, 12 years old, a sixth grader, was a victim of a type of hazing called "trashing." That is when a group of kids (boys and girls) pick out one kid to put in a trash can against his or her will. When Norman was attacked (there's no other way you can describe it with one kid against six) it was lunchtime—just outside the principal's office. They locked his arms behind his back and tried to put him in the trash can. Of course, he resisted and fell, hitting his mouth very hard on the can.

Norm has a mouth full of braces, so you can imagine how bad his mouth and braces were torn up. This happened six months ago and he still has problems with his teeth.

I believe every kind of hazing should be banned. Not only is it dangerous but humiliating. Any child who feels he must put up with hazing in order to be accepted has a serious problem.—C.D. IN S.C. VALLEY

DEAR C.D.: How right you are. One of the aspects of high school and college hazing that has been overlooked is the willingness of the victims to put up with humiliation and degradation in order to "Belong." How sad.

As for junior high "trashing," the school authorities should visit harsh punishment on every child who is involved in this cruel pastime.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently one of your medical consultants discovered AIDS victims were not eligible to be organ donors. This is only partly true.

Eye banks desperately need the eyes of AIDS patients for medical research. So, please, Ann, tell your readers who may be interested to contact Dr. Emile J. Farge, Executive Director of Lions Eyes of Texas Eye Bank, Texas Medical Center, 6501 Fannin, Suite C-307, Houston, Tx. 77030.—E.J.F.

DEAR E.J.F.: Thanks so much for letting us know.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS Do UPC symbols have any value?

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Is it possible to check your sources to see if the UPC symbols, now on all packaging, can be turned in for some sort of credit? I have been cutting them off every package for some time and have two coffee cans full. Even if the "claim center" will only allow the cash to go to a favorite charity, at least some good will come from them rather than just tossing them out. — VICKI

DEAR VICKI — Except for specific refund offers, there is no redemption program for UPC codes in general. The codes are strictly a device for manufacturers' and retailers' use in pricing and inventory procedures for products and have no intrinsic value.

Some of your codes, if you can identify the products they're from, may be useful for refund offers found in magazine ads, on package back, and on refund forms distributed in supermarkets, but you'd have to search out these offers to make use of them. Unless you're saving codes for such refunds, there's no point in keeping them indiscriminately. Sorry. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Here is a tip for keeping roses fresh after cutting and bringing them into the house. I cut the stems on an angle and put a pinch of sugar in the vase of water. Then I remove the lower leaves. The stems should not touch the bottom of the vase. I keep them in the refrigerator at night and they stay fresh a week or longer. — R.C.

DEAR POLLY — A good way to clean dust out of drapes is to place the drapes in the dryer along with a big wet bath towel. Run the dryer ten minutes. Remove the drapery pins before placing the drapes in the dryer. Re-hang them immediately upon removing them from the dryer. — HELEN

Pitcher Dale Mohorcic appears in 8th straight game

Rangers score 8-2 victory over Brewers

By The Associated Press
Rookie right-hander Mike Loynd said he and other members of the young Texas Rangers starting pitching rotation have been falling down on the job lately.

But if they'd been doing their job, teammate Dale Mohorcic wouldn't be in the American League record book today.

While Loynd picked up his second victory without a loss in the Rangers' 8-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers on Thursday night, Mohorcic tied an American League record by pitching one inning in relief.

That gave him appearances in eight straight games, tying the record set in 1953 by Bennett Flowers of the Boston Red Sox.

"A lot of relievers could have done it," said Mohorcic, a 30-year-old rookie. "It's not like Babe Ruth or Bob Feller. The way things were going, we needed to use a lot of guys early."

Loynd's seven-inning stint, in fact, was the longest by a Ranger starter since Charlie Hough went eight innings on July 28, a stretch of 14 games.

"If Mohorcic continues to pitch well for us — and he's been outstanding," said Ranger manager Bobby Valentine, "he'll be in every game."

It may already seem to Mohorcic that he's been in every game. He's appeared in 15 of the past 17 and has allowed only three earned runs. He notched five saves during that time.

The Rangers erupted for six runs in the second inning, five of them charged to All-Star left-hander Ted Higuera, 15-8, who gave up hits to all five batters he faced in the inning.

The big blow in the inning was Ruben Sierra's three-run homer — his seventh of the season — off reliever Chris Bosio.

"Higuera either has it or he doesn't," Brewers manager George Bamberger said. "Sometimes he starts slow and gets better as the game goes along. Tonight he didn't."

Gorman Thomas drove in both Milwaukee runs, one with a single in the first and the other with his 15th home run leading off the ninth off reliever Greg Harris.

The victory was Texas' eighth in 12 games against Milwaukee this season.

In other AL games, it was Boston 11, Kansas City 6; Chicago 8, Detroit 2; Baltimore 12, Cleveland 2; and Minnesota 14, Seattle 1.

Red Sox 11, Royals 6

The Boston Red Sox, carried by their pitching most of the season, figure it's about time their bats came alive.

Averaging just 3½ runs per game since July 26, the Red Sox collected 18 hits Thursday night in an 11-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals that improved Boston's lead to four games over New York in the American League East.

"We've got 48 games left," said Dwight Evans, who had one of Boston's three homers. "We have to win about 35 of them. We're starting to swing the bats and we have the pitching. Going down the stretch, it looks real good."

Rangers 8, Brewers 2
Texas collected five consecutive hits in the second inning off 15-game winner Ted Higuera before Ruben Sierra capped the six-run rally with a three-run homer off Milwaukee reliever Chris Bosio.

Higuera, 15-8, whose shortest stint in 24 previous starts this season was 2-3 innings on June 23, was relieved without retiring a batter in the second, and he was charged with five runs.

Dale Mohorcic pitched the eighth inning for Texas and tied an American League record with appearances in eight consecutive games. The record was set by Boston's Bennett Flowers in 1953.

Orioles 12, Indians 2
Storm Davis pitched his first complete game since April 20 and was backed by a 17-hit Baltimore attack, including four by Lee Lacy and three by Eddie Murray, that handed Cleveland its fourth straight loss.

Lacy extended his hitting streak to 15 games.

Twins 14, Mariners 1
Mickey Hatcher knocked in four of his career-high five runs with a double in Minnesota's four-run third inning and a single in the seven-run fourth against Seattle.

With seven-hit pitching, Mark Portugal, 3-8, posted his first complete-game victory of the season.

White Sox 8, Tigers 2
Ron Hassey drove in three runs with two doubles and Jose DeLeon continued his comeback with his third victory in four decisions as visiting Chicago bombed Detroit.

"It's so good to have some runs," said DeLeon, who allowed four of the Tigers' six hits in 5 1-3 innings. "It's hard to believe I'm 3-1 and last year I was 2-19 (at Pittsburgh). Everything has been so good for me here."

Anderson, Hatcher surface as heroes

Astros rally to defeat Dodgers, 3-2

By The Associated Press

Just when the Houston Astros thought they didn't need another hero, two more surfaced to aid in yet another late-inning come-from-behind victory.

Larry Anderson's three innings of perfect relief and center fielder Billy Hatcher's outstanding defensive work helped Houston to a 3-2 victory Thursday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the Astrodome.

Dodgers ace Fernando Valenzuela was pitching a two-hit shutout through seven innings with a 2-0 lead when the Astros scored three runs in the eighth to record their third victory of the four-game series.

With the win, the Astros increased their division lead to five games over the San Francisco Giants.

"The chemistry is right on this team, and (Astros manager Hal) Lanier is making all the right moves," Hatcher said. "Look how many close games we've been in."

Houston has won nine out of its last 12 one-run games and is 14-6 in one-run games at home this year. The Astros have won 19 games this year in their final at-bat.

The Astros have won 13 of their last 17 home games. Nine of those victories have come in Houston's final at-bat.

"We know we have the ability to score at any time and that's the key," said the Astros' Glenn Davis. "It helps when you believe you can win at any time during the game."

Anderson entered the game in the sixth and held the Dodgers at bay, giving the Astros a chance for another miracle.

"Here we are, two runs down, and Larry gives us three perfect innings," said Hatcher. "Everyone is just waiting for his opportunity to contribute and when Larry got it, he did the job."

Hatcher himself sparked in the fourth with a running shoestring catch of a Mike Scioscia line drive, holding a Dodger rally to only two runs.

Dickie Thon led off the eighth with a single to center off Valenzuela, who had uncharacteristic control problems throughout the game despite having yielded only two hits through seven. For the game, Valenzuela walked six and was often behind the batters.

After one out and consecutive singles by Bill Doran and Hatcher, Phil Garner hit a grounder to second that Steve Sax fielded to his left for the second out. Davis then lashed a game-winning single to center.

Naturally, Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda was dejected.

"This wasn't what I planned," Lasorda said. "It was a tough loss. Fernando pitched outstanding ball. Unfortunately, they got key hits."

Valenzuela was more humble. "I stayed behind the hitters and it caught up with me. For any pitcher to stay behind is tough," he said.

In other NL games, Atlanta beat

Duke Snider, the famous "Dook of Flatbush," hit the last home run for the Brooklyn Dodgers in Ebbets Field. He did it against Robin Roberts of the Phillies Sept. 22, 1957.

In 1980, New York Yankee southpaw pitchers won 68 games to establish a major-league record.

Rick Horton and Pat Perry teamed on a three-hitter and Andy Van Slyke hit a two-run homer, giving St. Louis a second-game victory and a split of its doubleheader in New York.

In the first game, Kevin Mitchell hit a two-run homer and singled home the tiebreaking run in the ninth inning.

Braves 7, Padres 3

Ken Griffey hit a two-out grand slam that broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning and sent Atlanta past San Diego.

Reds 2, Giants 0

John Denny pitched a three-hitter and had an RBI single, sparking Cincinnati over visiting San Francisco.

Denny, 10-10, walked none and fanned eight, including striking out the side in the ninth inning.

Pete Rose went 3-for-4 for the Reds. Rose has eight hits in his last 11 at-bats and has raised his average to a season-high .229.

Expos 5, Cubs 4

Tom Nieto, Montreal's reserve catcher, hit his first home run of the season with two outs in the bottom of the 10th inning, leading the Expos past Chicago.

Nieto fouled off several 3-2 pitches from Ron Davis, 0-1, before homering over the left-field wall. Davis, who entered in the ninth inning, was making his first appearance for the Cubs since being acquired in a trade with Minnesota this week.

Phillies 8, Pirates 7

Von Hayes led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run, lifting Philadelphia over Pittsburgh.

Kent Tekulve, 5-1, pitched one inning for the victory, the third straight for Philadelphia.

wants him.

One thing hasn't changed. Doug Flutie is still short.

The computerized world of professional football is built on numbers. Talent scouts look at a quarterback with numbers like 6-foot-4 and 215 pounds to help decide if he has potential. Numbers describing actual performance sometimes are ignored.

Sure, Flutie finished his career with a Division I-A record of 10,579 yards passing. Sure, he completed 60.4 percent of his passes as a senior. Sure, he threw for 27 touchdowns that year. But wasn't he also

5-foot-9¾ inches as a senior? "He doesn't have the height and, you know, after four years of it here I really get tired of talking about it," Jack Bicknell, his coach at Boston College, said. "The people who say he's too small, you're not going to change their opinion."

Bob Woolf may try. He's Flutie's attorney, an experienced, determined negotiator about to embark on a severe test of his skills.

On Tuesday, the New Jersey Generals of the USFL gave Woolf permission to talk with the NFL about Flutie, who is under a personal services contract to Generals' owner Donald Trump.

Woolf's first call will be to the Los Angeles Rams, who own Flutie's NFL rights. The Rams have quarterback problems but they have said they don't think Flutie will help. If they turn a deaf ear to Woolf, he will ask the Rams to allow him to talk to other clubs.

"Don't you think Washington would be perfect?" Woolf asked. "There's a lot of places like that."

There also are places where coaching staffs feel they would have to change their offense substantially to allow Flutie to see past tall defensive linemen and utilize his scrambling ability. They're reluctant to do that.

"They can say I'm prejudiced, but I know what a well-released ball does," Bicknell said. "I know what a winner does. I know how a winner acts and I laugh when these guys say you've got to change your whole attack to accommodate Doug Flutie. That's a bunch of baloney.

"They treat him as a sprint-out quarterback who never dropped back in his life."

The popular rap against Flutie, though, may not be shared by all NFL teams. None of them could comment before the Generals gave him permission to talk with the Rams. And the other NFL teams risk charges of tampering if they speak publicly while the Rams still hold his rights.

But the man who once was the king of college football, who could turn seemingly certain defeat into victory and who thrilled crowds with wild and wonderful plays is now a man who wants to be wanted.

"He's such a proud kid," Bicknell said. "He's somewhat frustrated." NFL clubs are well into their training camps with the season schedule to start on Sept. 7. Flutie spent part of this week back at Boston College's Alumni Stadium.

The seats, once filled with fans cheering his heroics, were empty. With a few friends, he threw a football and caught some passes. He waited and wondered where, if anywhere, he would be throwing a football in the NFL.

"If a team doesn't have a quarterback who can take them to the Super Bowl, they should take a look at Flutie," Bicknell said.

If no one is willing to look, even as an attempt to draw crowds, he has a last-resort proposal. It's based on some other numbers in Flutie's life — the $8.25 million value of his contract with Trump — and Bicknell's confident it would show that Flutie can succeed in the NFL.

"I told Doug once, 'buy a team and hire me as a coach and we'll go prove it,'" he said.

DR. GOTT Trepanners are holier-than-thou

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

People sometimes do weird things to themselves. I'm not referring to the vanilla-variety of self-abuse with drugs, alcohol and cigarettes; I'm talking about the more bizarre and unusual — putting a hole in your head, for example.

Amanda Feilding lives in London. She is a mother, a painter and political activist. Recently she ran for Parliament. The major plank in her platform was that trepanning operations should be made available and paid for by National Health, the subsidized health program run by the government of England.

Trepanning is an ancient form of surgery in which a hole is bored in the victim's head through the bone of the skull. The founder of the trepanning movement is a Dutch academician, Dr. Bart Huges. He believes — and Mrs. Feilding agrees — that's one's state of consciousness is related to the volume of blood in the brain. Ever since humans stood upright, gravity has forced the flow of blood out of the brain, according to Dr. Huges. This unfortunate biological heritage has convinced the trepanners that modern men and women lack sufficient circulation to achieve a condition of raised consciousness.

Although Dr. Huges claims that this lack of balance can be temporarily altered by standing on one's head or using drugs, he urges citizens to adopt a more permanent solution. By making a hole in his skull with an electric drill, the Dutch savant claims to have been freed from neurosis and egoism. Wacky, you say? That's not all: Trepanners believe that once an infant's "soft spot" grows over, the skull inhibits blood pulsations to the brain, and this causes adults to lose touch with dreams, imagination and intense perceptions.

Amanda Feilding bought the whole ball of wax. After repeatedly helping her boyfriend put a hole in his own head (because he seemed to have difficulty getting the knack of it), she performed her own trepanation. The entire event was carefully recorded on movie film.

First she shaved part of her hair; next, she made an incision with a blade on her scalp. Finally, dressed in a blood-splattered white robe, she attacked her own head with an electric drill. As blood spurted from her wound, the scene faded out with Amanda triumphantly smiling and advancing toward the camera. The film is called "Heartbeat in the Brain," and it has been shown to audiences of doctors and interested spectators.

Just the description of it gives me the willies. According to an article in the medical magazine MD, viewers in London were "dropping off their seats one by one, like ripe plums." For her part, Ms. Feilding said she reached a state of mental freedom and serenity that has persisted since her self-mutilation.

I don't know about you, but the whole perforated-head doctrine strikes me as being 22 degrees south of preposterous. Nonetheless, these weirdos have lectured widely in Europe and America. Amanda Feilding garnered 139 votes in Chelsea during her attempt at a Parliament seat. Perhaps this is what voters want; ((Instead)) instead of bonehead politicians, citizens prefer politicians with holes in their heads. There is a certain irony in this news, given the recent pronouncements by world leaders with respect to nuclear war, terrorism and defense initiatives.

If one hole confers serenity, wouldn't two holes ensure total harmony? Three holes could produce a lackadaisical euphoria. Eventually, people would be walking around with skulls like eggcrates, pumping potential voters' hands, smiling with a silly sense of emotional prosperity. Valium, Librium, gin and joints would become passe ... if trepanning worked.

Until we're certain about trepanation, you'd better carefully feel your political candidate's cranium to check for defects, especially if he appears too happy or whimsical. And by all means, stay out of Chelsea, England. The zaniness might be catching.
