Labor camp leaders: 'Can't take it anymore'

Entire water district board calls it quits

By SHAWN COCKRUM Staff Writer

LABOR CAMP - When Monday morning's meeting of the Deaf Smith County Fresh Water District No. 1 began, there were four water board supervisors, a tax assessor, a water operator, and a secretary. Almost two hours later, there was nobody left to complain too.

All but one of the supervisors, Maria Vasquez, were at the meeting held at the Texas Migrant Council School building, but according to board president Maria Alejandre, Vasquez and the other board members have officially turned in their reisgnations to be effective

"We just can't take it anymore. We have been getting harassing phone calls and they (Labor Camp residents) have broken into my house," Alejandre alleged.

The desision to resign came after almost two months of complaining from Labor Camp residents about their water bills.

A group of almost 60 Labor Camp residents attended the Aug. 4 Hereford City Commission meeting seeking help from the city. City officials told the group that there was nothing the city could do. City officials said that the Labor Camp water board is a totally selfoperating organization.

Since that advice from the city, the water board has held two meetings, Monday's meeting and a meeting held Aug. 13. During the Aug. 13 meeting, the audience became unruly and the meeting had to be stopped.

President Alejandre began yesterday's meeting by stating that if any persons in the audience got out of order, the meeting would be stopped until that person left the building.

"This meeting has to be run this way," said water board attorney R.C. Hoelscher. "If anyone has to make a comment, raise your hand. You can make a comment only if the board wants you to make a comment."

Alejandre said that during the month of June, the water board collected $4,500 in water bills. She added that the water district was forced to spend $4,741 in pump and tank

Alejandre also stated that the sewer lines needed $900 worth of repair. "They are putting too much into the sewer lines. We have found Coke bottles, suspenders, belts, shirts tied up in knots, toys, and many more things in the sewer lines. The only way they could have done it was to open the manhole covers and throw things down."

During the meeting, the water board discussed a slight decrease in the rates and lowering the minimum monthly bill, but the motion was tabled. Supervisors did decide, however, to lower late fees. Under current standards, the late fee is 20 percent of the bill. The board decided to lower the late fees to 10 percent becoming effective Oct. 1.

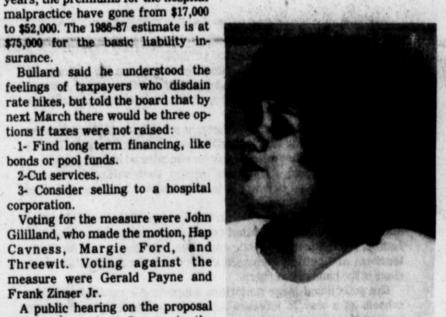

Following the decision to drop the late fees, members of the audience began to question the board about the high cost of the water and demanded that the bills be lowered. Residents claimed that they were paying for water that is not being used and that the meters are not being read correctly. Alejandre said that there was no way the meters could be read wrong and informed the audience that the water officer was quitting because of the harassment.

"We are all going to quit," said Alejandre. "We can't handle this."

Angela Villerreal, a spokesperson for the residents said, "The reason the people are mad is because Blanca (Hernandez) said in the paper that the people want everything for

Hospital tax rate set at 12.5 cents

By JERI CURTIS Managing Editor

Citing higher liability insurance costs, a heavy burden of indigent care, and a cash flow problem, the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board passed a proposal to increase the entity's tax rate by 2.6 cents per $100 valuation. Under the proposal, the rate would be raised from the current 9 cents to 12.5 - a hike of 26.7

That rate would bring in $595,500. The board also opted to shave $360,360 from the budget worksheet, during Monday night's meeting.

Deaf Smith General Hospital is projecting a budget of approximately $6 million for 1986-87. About 8 percent of the hospital's revenue budget is from tax revenues:

Those cuts and the tax increase still would leave DSGH with a short-

Ag union seeks investigation of pauper assistance

The International Union of Agricultural and Industrial Workers -represented by attorney Stephen C. McIntyre of the Texas Rural Legal Aid- has petitioned before the Deaf Smith County Commissioners to investigate the county's procedures in supplying assistance to pauper farm workers.

The petition, brought before the commissioner's meeting Monday, also asks the county to contact five other counties to review procedures and to insure that administration of the couny support assistance system is proper.

"Legitimate concern" of the union and its director, Jesus Moya, that the fundamental principals of fairness and provisions for the needy are in jeopardy.

In July, McIntyre requested all public records concerning providing assistance to indigents and the administration of that provision. McIntyre's review of the documents listed 13 problems with the program.

Included in the complaint was that there is no written notice of guidelines and standards used to evaluate applications for assistance. Earline Cook, director of the Social Services office, noted that her office does not wish to betray confidence of applicants, but she does have on file all the applications made and notes on why there were denials. She said no applicant who has been refused assistance has asked for an appellate hearing, also an item McIntyre found to be a problem.

In the petition, it noted a Hockley County policy that states the term "support" means more than food, clothing and living quarters. It also means "all that is necessary to bodily health and comfort," which includes health care bound to be paid by the county.

Cook said she has contacted a social services worker in Bexar County who is securing policies from all Texas Counties for review.

State policy provides that a county is liable for all resident paupers. Cook said she requests proof of residency such as a rent reciept or a utility bill.

Applicants also must provide personal information about the family, a history of employment and public assistance income and a next of kin to locate in case of emergency. It is voluntary information for an applicant to give church affiliation.

Commissioners took no action on the matter, but asked Cook to confer with District Attorney Roland Saul.

In other action at the regular meeting Monday, the commissioners:

Approved an audit of the Justice of the Peace office. Elected to replace a retired employee in Precinct 1.

Volcanic fumes continue

YAOUNDE, Cameroon (AP) -Soldiers in gas masks today searched villages and the surrounding countryside for more victims of the toxic fumes that escaped from a remote volcanic lake, killing at least 1,200 people.

Reports from the stricken region. its remoteness compounded by muddy roads, described a surreal scene of human and animal corpses strewn about an otherwise peaceful-looking panorama.

Britain's Independent Television News interviewed the Rev. Richard Suttle, a Roman Catholic priest who works at the Cameroon Church Mission 40 miles from the disaster area.

"Three villages were pretty well completely wiped out and all the peo-ple were killed," he said.

"The hospitals are completely full. They're trying to erect tents for the homeless and the evacuees. There are a lot of orphaned children whose parents were killed," said Suttle, whose nationality was not disclosed.

The French news agency Agence-France Presse quoted the Rev. Fred Tern Horn, a Catholic missionary in the disaster area, as saying, "It was as if a neutron bomb had exploded, destroying nothing but killing all life. In the first village we went through, we saw men, women and animals stretched out dead on the ground, sometimes in front of their huts or in their beds, sometimes on the path."

Paul Biya, president of this tropical nation in West Africa, told a news conference Monday that casualty figures were incomplete, and that a commission would try to establish an exact number.

Biya ordered the dead buried immediately to avert the threat of disease and said troops were trying to prevent people from entering the disaster area.

He said army teams were searching the 6-square-mile disaster area in northwest Cameroon for more victims, but that at least 1,200 people had died since the poisonous fumes were released Friday, and up to 300 others had been hospitalized. Biya, who toured the disaster site

Sunday, said he had been told the gas has subsided, but added, "Still, we have to be careful." Earlier, Information Minister Georges Ngango told reporters that military reports from the scene gave a preliminary death toll estimate of at least 2,000. An explosion deep in Lake Nios, about 200 miles northwest of Yaounde, apparently cracked open the lake bottom and released the gases Friday night, Biya said. He did not elaborate on the nature of the explosion, which apparently was a volcano-like geological phenomenon. "Some heard the noise but did not realize poisonous fumes were released," Biya said. Others fled, and soldiers were helping many

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - El Paso County Judge Pat O'Rourke says he will choose his words more carefully when giving orders in

After a two-hour hearing Monday, a peace justice dismissed a disorderly conduct complaint filed against O'Rourke by private security guard Johnnie Dopson.

Dopson, 27, alleged O'Rourke had used profanity two months ago during a confrontation at Ascarte Park.

The guard says he didn't recognize the county judge, who was wearing shorts and sunglasses and was riding a bicyole. After the decision by Justice of the Peace Tom Rosas, O'Rourke quickly apologized to Dopson and shook his hand.

"In giving an order, I should use my vocabulary in a better way," O'Rourke said. "I've learned my lessson - choose my vocabulary more thoughtfully."

O'Rourke's apology and the court hearing satisfied Dopson. "I wanted to show him a point, that you can talk to people in different ways, using other language," Dopson said. "When you're in the public you have to watch what you say and how you act."

Third inmate of week executed

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - A man who trashed his death row cell when his mother's visit ended said only, "I love you," today as he became the third Texas inmate executed in a week, for killing a woman by burying her alive.

Chester Lee Wicker, who would have turned 38 on Thursday, was pronounced dead at 12:20 a.m., about 10 minutes after he was injected, said Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"He said he was going to make the best of it," Mattox said. "He realized it was not a pleasant thing for everyone involved and was concerned about his mother and her well-being."

Wicker was sentenced to death for abducting, trying to rape, and then choking and burying alive Suzanne Knuth, 22, whose car broke down at a Beaumont shopping mall April 4, 1980. She was abducted as she walked home, and her body was found 18 days later, buried face down at a beach.

Wicker made no final statement. His lone personal witness, Judith Lamblion, a friend and spiritual adviser, told Wicker his mother sent

"I love you," were his only words before he took a couple deep breaths and stopped moving.

The American Civil Liberties Union, acting on his behalf, tried to halt the execution on grounds that Texas unfairly assesses the death penalty, contending the convicted killer of a white person is more likely to be sentenced to death.

Americans willing to buy education

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Americans are willing to pay higher taxes for improvements in public education, according to two polls released today.

The parallel surveys of Americans generally and top business executives were to be presented at the National Governors' Association, which has proposed a new round of education reforms in its ananual meeting that ends today.

Seventy-seven percent of Americans would pay higher taxes for education, according to the Louis Harris and Associates poll. Twenty percent oppose higher taxes to pay for educational improvements.

Sixty-four percent of business leaders were willing to see corporate taxes raised if it would lead to better education, the other Harris poll said.

The surveys were conducted for the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy, a panel that released a report in May proposing radical restructuring of public education, with higher pay for many teachers and putting increased control over local education decisions in the hands of teachers.

The polls found large majorities supporting a revamping of the schools as a way to increase American productivity and remain competitive in world markets.

Soviet's fight against 'narcomania'

MOSCOW (AP) — After years of dismissing drug abuse as virtually non-existent in socialist society, the state press is now chronicling how "narcomania" affects many young Soviets' lives.

Recent newspaper articles have echoed urgent calls by law enforcement officials and sociologists to deal more openly with a problem that the Soviets once said only existed in the West.

One sociologist said abuse of illegal drugs such as hashish cuts across all social strata, and a major general in the national militia, or police, suggested addiction be treated as an illness rather than a Along with this more modern approach, the Soviet press has printed horror stories apparently designed to scare young people away from drugs. An article in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya recounted the gruesome experiences of Moscow teen-agers who made their own narcotics from stolen medicine.

Two teens died of overdoses or poisoning, the article said, describing a basement hideout where young men were injecting themselves with drugs.

"It would be an illusion to think we can deal with this problem only with the militia," the government newspaper Izvestia wrote. "The struggle should be organized everywhere - in colleges, schools, technical schools and medical organizations."

Disaster report presented

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Soviet Union has shut down about half of its Chernobyl-type nuclear reactors for modifications, according to a Soviet official reporting on the disaster at the Ukrainian atomic power plant.

The official, Valery A. Legasov, made the comment Monday on the first day of an international meeting hearing a Soviet report on the April 26 Chernobyl accident, which killed 31 people and sent radioactive debris around the world.

Legasov, head of the Soviet delegation to the conference, did not say how many reactors were involved, but an annex to the Soviet report indicated 18 reactors of the Chernobyl design exist in the Soviet Union, including the damaged No. 4 unit at the Ukrainian power station.

"About half (of the reactors) are in a shutdown position to carry out the measures proposed in order to increase their safety. Legasov told reporters after making a five-hour presentation to nuclear power experts from 50 countries.

The Soviets previously denied that any similar reactors had been shut down because of the Chernobyl disaster, the worst on record at a nuclear plant.

Taft considers selling five stations

CINCINNATI (AP) - Taft Broadasting Co. on Monday said it was considering selling its five independent television stations, including ones in Houston and Dallas, and has hired a financial adviser to evaluate the prospects.

Taft Chairman Charles S. Mechem Jr. said the company has made no decision regarding disposition of the five stations.

"We are seeking to determine the best course of action," Mechem said in a prepared statement.

"Taft's five independents are all located among the country's 13 largest markets, and three of those stations command the No. 1 ranking among independent stations in their markets. Each is an asset of unusual value."

The Cincinnati-based Taft, which owns 12 television stations nationwide including its network affiliates, said it has hired the New York investment counseling firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co. as its financial adviser.

Taft's independent TV stations are WTAF, Philadelphia; WDCA, Washington; WCIX, Miami; KTXA, Dallas; and KTXH, Houston.

Taft Broadcasting also owns radio and cable television stations, produces and distributes television and motion picture programming and animated entertainment and holds interests in amusement parks.

Poverty rate dips slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's poverty rate dipped slightly last year as real family income rose by 1.3 percent, the Census Bureau reported today.

The poverty rate in 1985 was 14 percent, down from a 1984 rate of 14.4 percent, the bureau said in its annual report on money income and poverty status of Americans.

That represented 33.1 million Americans living below the poverty level, down from 33.7 million a year

The poverty threshold for a family of four in 1985 was $10,989.

The bureau said that median family income in 1985 was $27,740, up 4.9 percent from 1984. After adjusting for inflation of 3.6 percent, there was a real increase in the median family income of 1.3 percent.

Median family income means that half of all families earn more than that amount and half earn less.

Family income was up for both black and white families but there was no statistically significant change for hispanic families.

Dear Ann La ders:

Only desparation would make me write a letter like this. I need help and you offer the most anonymous way to get it.

The problem is my wife. I have loved her from the beginning of our relationship and we have been married 20 years. But she no longer looks like she used to and she doesn't feel the same either. She has become so heavy that the fat actually hangs on her body.

I used to be proud of the way she looked, and I told her so often. Now all the pride and warm feelings are gone. I am ashamed that I can't accept her for her fine qualities, but I am completely turned off by those rolls of fat across her middle and on he hips. Then I get mad because I know she doesn't have to look like

The woman eats twice as much as she should and never passes up the rich and fattening foods. She refuses to go on a diet. Exercise is out of the question. She will never stand if she can sit. She wouldn't think of walking if she can ride.

I have told her how I feel but it makes no difference. She doesn't want to talk about it and she doesn't want me to talk about it either. The romance has gone out of our lives and I am bitter. I am also disappointed, hurt and angry. Yet I still love her and I want my old girl back.

Dear Hurting: There is nothing you (or anyone else) can say that will make your wife lose an ounce. People who eat excessively must WANT to do something about it. Until they reach that point, nothing will change.

I strongly suspect there are other things about your wife that turn you off. Many men love their overweight wives. Some even make excuses by saying, "I like a woman with some flesh on her bones."

I suggest that you get some counseling. You need to explore your feelings and get to the bottom of your anger and resentment. Maybe when you understand yourself better your attitude toward your wife will change and she will want to slim down to pleae you. Meanwhile, has her doctor spoken? She needs to hear from a physician that so much excess weight can shorten her life.

Rangers score 4-2 win over Red Sox

By CHARLES RICHARDS Associated Press Writer

After coming from behind to beat Boston and deny Roger Clemens his 20th victory of the season, the Texas Rangers will be "real fired up" for the rest of the series, Texas relief pitcher Dale Mohorcic says.

Monday night's 4-2 triumph, behind dramatic late-inning tworuns homers by Ruben Sierra and Geno Petralli, enabled Texas to remain three games behind California in the American League West.

"We beat their two best pitchers tonight. We pitched a great game," said Mohorcic, 2-1, who held the Red Sox scoreless after coming on in the eighth inning for Texas starter Bob-

We matched Clemens pitch for pitch, and then we let Geno and Ruben take over," Mahorcic said.

Witt struck out six and walked five in seven innings, his only trouble coming in the fourth inning when he surrendered three of his walks.

Mike Greenwell led off the fourth with a walk, scored on Rich Gedman's double, and Gedman later scored on Bill Buckner's basesloaded smash off Witt's glove.

Despite the loss, Boston kept its six-game lead atop the A.L. East.

Clemens was sailing along with a two-hit shutout in the eighth inning, but Sierra hit a one-out single and pinch-hitter Petralli drove Clemens' first pitch into the rightfield bleachers.

Boston Manager John McNamara brought on Calvin Schiraldi to face the Rangers in the ninth.

Schiraldi had five saves and a win in his last six appearances and struck out the first two batters he faced in the ninth. But then he walked Larry Parrish, who had struck out three times against Clemens, and gave up the game-winning homer to Sierra.

"Nothing as big as this one," Sierra said in broken English. "I was looking for a fastball and that's what

"Schiraldi was bound to give up one sooner or later. And that wasn't a cheap hit, either," McNamara said.

Clemens, who went 7 2-3 innings May 25 before losing a no-hitter, walked three and allowed only four hits. He also struck out 10 batters for the sixth time this season.

"I was throwing the ball well and I still felt strong going into the eighth. I didn't know anything about Petralli when he came up to bat. I figured he was just a slap hitter. I guess I just hit his bat."

Petralli, a reserve catcher, hit only the second homer of his major league

"I'm not a home run hitter." Petralli said. "He's a great pitcher, but I got around on it and hit it well. I knew when I hit it that it had a chance."

Ranger Manager Bobby Valentine said, "That was some game. That game may best characterize this team this year. They just don't quit."

The victory was Texas' fifth in a row at home and was the 10th time that Texas won at home in the bottom of the ninth or later.

In the other games on a light AL schedule, Kansas City shut out Chicago 2-0, California beat New York 5-3 and Oakland topped Detroit

Royals 2, White Sox 0

Frank White's two-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning broke up a scoreless duel between Jose DeLeon and Scott Bankhead, 7-7. Bankhead combined with Bud Black on an eight-hit, two-walk shutout. Black retired five straight batters for his sixth save.

DeLeon, 3-3, left after the eighth having, allowed three hits.

Angels 5, Yankees 3

Two home runs by Doug DeCinces, two RBI singles by Bob Boone and 3 2-3 innings of hitless relief helped John Candelaria raise his record to 7-2. Vern Ruhle, Gary Lucas and Donnie Moore followed Candelaria. Moore got the last three outs for his 17th save.

New York starter Joe Niekro, 8-9, lasted only 4 1-3 innings, failing for the 10th straight start to get past the sixth inning.

Astros get past Chicago, 3-2

Chicago Cubs relief ace Lee Smith doesn't miss many save opportunities.

He'd earned 24 saves in 30 chances until Monday night when the Houston Astros pulled out another victory in their final at-bat, defeating the Cubs 3-2 on Craig Reynolds' clutch eighth inning single off Smith.

It was the 20th time this season the Astros had won a game in their final at-bat.

It's been that kind of year for the Astros, who increased their lead in the National League Western Division to eight games over secondplace Cincinnati and San Francisco.

Milwaukee wants some respect

MILWAUKEE (AP) Milwaukee, which advertises itself as a great place on a Great Lake, was not about to take it lying down when it was left in a big lurch by a new church.

This city of 636,000 is waging a guerrilla war against Chicago for the headquarters of the new Evangelical Lutheran Church in America - a prize that was once Milwaukee's but was wrested from it by the behemoth with which it shares Lake Michigan.

So groups of Milwaukeeans have banded together this week to proclaim their city's virtues - while at the same time taking note of Chicago's vices.

Three Lutheran churches are meeting in the Midwest this week and are expected to agree to merge to create the new church, which with 5.3 million members would be the nation's fourth-largest Protestant denomination.

But the merger is the result of years of negotiations, carried on by a 70-member commission that voted in February to locate the church offices in Milwaukee - a compromise between those who wanted Chicago and

The decision caused an uproar. and the commission was forced to reconsider in June. When Chicago was the choice, Milwaukee burned.

"I think there was a sense of being jilted," said the Rev. Robert Duea, leader of the effort for Milwaukee. The headlines in Milwaukee newspapers, he said, were "just slightly smaller than Pearl Harbor."

The Rev. William Lazereth of New York City, a member of the commission that made the selection, said Chicago was the logical site for the "national center of an international church." It is easier to reach by air, he said, had more seminaries and afforded more ecumenical contacts.

"In no way is this meant to be a reflection on Milwaukee," he said.

But that is just how Milwaukee - a city which is struggling to improve its image - took the decision.

"They say that the church should be in a world-class city. Milwaukee's world class. It IS," insisted the Rev. William H. Truby.

By coincidence, the largest of the three churches that plan to merge the 2.9 million-member Lutheran Church in America - is holding its annual convention in Milwaukee this week.

The others are the 2.3 millionmember American Lutheran Church, meeting in Minneapolis and the 110,000-member American Evangelical Lutheran Churches, meeting in Chicago.

Truby is chairman of the committee that organized the convention for the host city, and when he welcomed the delegates Monday he was sure to give his home city a plug.

Milwaukee, he said, is a city of "cleanliness, good government ... some of the best restaurants in the United States ... good roads, a modern airport - from which, by the way, you can fly direct to almost every city in the USA."

Delegates arriving in Milwaukee this week have faced questions from taxi drivers and others who wanted

Tax reform slaps charities

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas charities stand to lose millions of dollars under the proposed income tax reform bill because taxpayers will have to itemize to deduct money they give to the poor, worried officials said. The United Way of Texas alone could suffer up to $25 million in contribution losses over the next five years, UWT executive vice president Bill Link said.

"It's like a slap in the face," said Beverly Schneider, comptroller of Houston Catholic Charities. "This city is one with many economic problems, and after cutting off funds, the government expects us to take up the slack helping people in need."

Because of the reform bill, many taxpayers are expected to stop itemizing because they won't be able to write off Individual Retirement Accounts, consumer interest and sales taxes, analysts say.

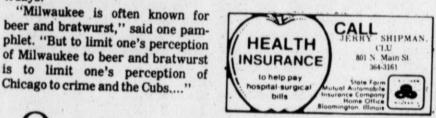

In turn, since they need to itemize to do it, they will probably not make as many contributions to non-profit organizations, says Steve Delphin, spokesman for UWT's parent group based in Alexandria, Va.

"Congress is giving us (charities) conflicting messages," Delphin said. "First they cut programs, like day care and food programs, saying volunteer groups can pick up the slack. And now they are taking away the incentive to give to charities."

But some officials say most people who contribute are not looking for a tax writeoff.

Only about 20 percent of American taxpayers itemize under the current tax law, said Jack Devore, Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's press secretary.

"It's like President Reagan said, the individual is going to get a tax cut of about $1 billion, and they will have enough money in their pockets that they'll give for the right reasons," Devore said.

Some charity organizers agree.

"The bill will have no great bearing on us," said Maj. Neil Saunders, a Salvation Army spokesman in El Paso. "People who give little items want to see people use it, and those are the people who give us the majority of our items."

At Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Colin French, director of planned giving said the impact would be "very slight." French said his office is scrambling to make use of the current tax code before it expires.

"We will see a decline in the amount given over the next two years as the tax bill is phased in, but people who are more interested in creating something other than tax deductions will continue to give," he says. "People will give just for the love of the school."

Still, others fear that donations will drop, causing a shortfall in their already strained budgets.

At the University of Texas system, administrators said fewer contributions could adversely affect growth and improvement in higher educa

Paul Youngdale, director of development, said state universities receive an equal amount of state funds to maintain their facilities. But it's the donations that make a difference between an excellent school and a good one, he said.

"It will hurt us because we are going to get fewer large gifts that we have used to endow a professor," Youngdale said. "And that's how you get and keep good people within the university."

Other charities are starting donation campaigns and hoping for the

"I expect we'll receive one of the biggest clothes contributions between Christmas and New Year's when people know they only have a few days left to deduct this year," said Steve Lufburrow, president of Goodwill Industries in Houston.

"But I hope people's caring will overcome their deduction concerns and they will continue to give," he said. "I think they will."

Over the last two years, our peers have judged our fresh, new and innovative advertising ideas as the - best in the Panhandle of Texas.

-THIS YEAR, THE VERDICT-WAS THE SAME!

In advertising competition with other daily newspapers across the region, the Hereford Brand won honors in the use of graphics, layouts, special sections and copy writing.

THE POINT?

Dure, we're patting ourselves on the back, but those same pats can turn your retail ideas into profitable retail sales. The next time you have a message to convey, pick the winning choice!

We reach thousands every day!

CHICAGO (AP) - Three books using a new approach toward helping people understand symptoms should help them avoid needless trips to doctors and emergency rooms, says the American Medical Association.

The books, developed by the AMA, use diagrams and flow charts rather than text to give readers an idea about what their ailments mean and what to do.

"The books are not an attempt to teach self-diagnosis," says the nation's largest organization of doc-

"Rather, they have been developed to help people take more responsibility for their own health and the health of their children, so they can make informed decisions that may save them needless trips to the doctor."

The 9-by-11-inch paperbacks are titled "Men: How to Understand Your Symptoms," "Women: How To Understand Your Symptoms" and "Children: How To Understand Their Symptoms."

Each retails for $9.95 and contains illustrated sections on the body systems, medication guides and first aid and emergency treatment. Symptom charts are organized in recognition of the problems each group experiences.

In the children's book, for example, new parents can learn if their infant's pattern of awakening during

JUSTICE

FOR ALL ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Victims of dishonest lawyers in New York State can recover their losses by filing a claim with the Clients' Security Fund.

It provides a remedy for people who have no other means of obtaining restitution from lawyers who misuse their money, securities or other property.

Since 1982, the fund has reimbursed more than $3 million to 852 clients of 91 disbarred attorneys, according to Eleanor B. Alter, chairwoman of the fund and a partner in the firm of Rosen-man Colin Freund Lewis and Cohen. Last year, 62 percent of all awards were fully reimbursed.

the night is normal or if it could signal problems such as colic or an earache. Th also charts normal growth patterns and describes adolescent problems and milestones in puberty.

The women's book covers general medical topics, ranging from a runny nose and sore throat to weight changes and depression. It also covers topics in sex, fertility and childbirth, such as painful intercourse and how to judge when labor begins.

In the book for men, general medical topics such as back and neck pain and digestive disorders are followed by sex and fertility topics such as erection difficulties and contraception.

Frank Campion, head of the AMA's consumer book program, said the books' flow charts resemble computer logic, which has been used to teach medical decision-making in underdeveloped countries.

"The actual origin of this charting system goes back to 15 years ago, where somewhere in England, they tried to teach the system to the paramedic personnel in the Third World," Campion said in a recent in-

"The idea was that someone (using the charting method) could go to a remote part of the Congo and could say, 'Well, this person has to go to the hospital, and this person just needs rest and plenty of water."

The books can perform a useful service for patients and physicians, Campion said, particularly because people seem to be more interested in health and medicine these days.

"The young married woman who is pregnant has thousands more questions for her gynecologist than my wife did when she got pregnant for the first time," he said. "Both patients and physicians are very conscious of how medical care costs have risen and how informed decision-making can save needless expenditures."

AUSTIN - Ten days have elapsed since lawmakers came to Austin to wrestle with the state's $3.5 billion budget deficit, but the possibility of a consensus solution to our problems seem as remote now as they were when we first arrived.

Our three state leaders remain at odds over the best way to resolve the budget deficit. Gov. Mark White wants a temporary increase in the sales-tax rate combined with about $1.4 billion in budget cuts. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby wants a permanent sales-tax hike in concert with $600 million in cuts. House Speaker Gib Lewis advocates spending reductions only with no new taxes.

Thrown into the mix is State Comptroller Bob Bullock's tax plan, which calls for a vast expansion of the sales-tax base and a reduction in the sales-tax, mineraltax and corporate franchise-tax rates. Bullock makes no budget-cut recommendations in his plan. A closer look at the tax plans reveals only marginal differences between White's and Hobby's. Both say new taxes are necessary to solve our budget woes but stress the increases must come in tandem with budget cuts. The governor, though, is willing to cut a little deeper than Hobby

White advocates a temporary increase from 4.125 cents on the dollar to 5.25 cents, with the higher rate remaining in effect only until Aug. 31, 1987. Hobby, sensing that Texas' economic situation isn't going to get better anytime soon, wants the sales tax permanently increased to 5 cents and the gasoline tax raised from 10 to 15 cents per gallon.

For better than a year, Bullock has been reminding Texans that the fastest-growing segment of our economy - the service area - is comptroller has his way, all that will change significantly.

His plan specifically would remove all sales-tax exemptions except those for food, medicine, child care, wholesale products, ag supplies and charitable or educational activities. In addition, the corporate franchise tax would be determined by gross receipts, not capital, all mineral production would be taxed and bingo games would be subject to a 3 percent gross receipts tax.

This would be coupled with a lowering of the sales tax rate to 3 or 3.5 percent, the franchise tax to between one-third and one-half of 1 percent, the oil and natural gas production taxes to 4.4 percent and the motor vehicle sales and rental taxes to match the sales tax.

Bullock estimates his plan would generate up to $1.5 billion in new revenue for fiscal year 1987, the year suffering from the $3.5 billion shortfall, and up to $4.8 billion for the 1988-89 biennium. It would not affect significantly Texans' low per-capita tax burden, which would increase from $705 to $727 per person. The state would rank 42nd nationally in per capita tax burden.

The comptroller's plan has some advantages politically. It would raise revenue while lowering most tax rates, a trick that could help politicians who find themselves in a tight political squeeze as it becomes apparent budget-cutting alone will not eliminate the deficit.

Perhaps the only negative aspect of the Bullock proposal is that it removes too many exemptions, such as the one for advertising sales. If advertisers are forced to pay sales tax, they will either pass the cost along to their customers or advertising purchases. reduce Either way, there would be an adverse economic impact at the worst possible time. That's our only major quarrel, though, with a that deserves serious consideration.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) -Your wife has been spotted at local restaurants with another man. Will you confront her?

Your ill, elderly mother asks you to turn down an excellent job offer 500 miles away. Will you move anyway?

Your boyfriend has no religious faith, but you do. Will you marry

A Grand Rapids company is marketing a religious game that presents players with these and 257 other moral dilemmas. Will consumers buy it? "Absolutely," says Randy Scott, president of Rainfall Toys Inc., a 3-year-old company specializing in religious games and toys. "There's much more of an awareness of ethics right now, and this game really creates the environment to pose the moral dilemmas that people struggle with," he said. The $14.99 game, called "Choices," includes question-and-answer cards and requires players to support their answers with Biblical references. It also encourages them to debate the Players can thumb through a Bible or refer to a sheet that provides parts of Scriptures relevant to the situa-

Mrs. Farrell says the game may make it easier for families to talk about sensitive topics.

The game is the latest addition to Rainfall's product line, which includes action figures of Biblical characters, animated video Bible stories, a quiz board game called "Bible Challenge" and a line of characters called "Kingdom Crit-

Satellite dishes rattle Poland's military government

SZCZECIN, Poland (AP) -Zdzislaw Zniniewicz fiddled with his television set as he sat down to watch the news. After a few adjustments, the announcer appeared speaking in English, from the United States.

The broadcast was "CNN Europe," from the Cable News Network in Atlanta, beamed from a satellite to a 5-foot-wide metal dish in Zniniewicz's backyard.

The picture switched first to Moscow and a report on the Aug. 18 speech by Soviet leader Mikhail S.

Gorbachev announcing an extension of his nuclear test ban moratorium, and then to Washington for U.S. reac-

With his satellite antenna. Zniniewicz has a choice of 21 channels from Western Europe and North America. If he had his way, every Pole would have a similar selection.

"This is another epoch in com-munications," he said. "You cannot avoid technological progress."

Not everyone in the Polish government agrees with Zniniewicz, a businessman whose private company SVENSAT is Poland's sole producer of satellite TV antennas. Most of his dishes are now exported to Western Europe.

Poland's Communist authorities are debating how to meet the challenges of satellite technology. which threatens to further erode their official monopoly on information.

More than 100 satellite receiving dishes operate in the country, according to Polish press reports, most of them in private hands despite a new law strictly regulating their use.

The dishes are another headache for a government that faces a lively underground press and has already lost control over private video recorders - there are believed to be more than 300,000 in the country.

For now, the government appears to have decided to accept the spread of satellite dishes while trying to make Polish TV more attractive.

In a resolution adopted at its conwas nothing like reality. gress in July, the Communist Party said satellite TV should be developed "within the framework of cooperation with socialist countries." Polish newspapers have reported that a Soviet satellite will be placed in orbit by the end of the decade to broadcast TV signals to Eastern Europe.

At the same time, the party said, the quality of Polish TV programming should be radically improved so it is more attractive to audiences, and thus more competitive with foreign broadcasts.

Since the congress, the head of the state radio and TV committee, Miroslaw Wojciechowski, has been replaced by Janusz Roszkowski, who had directed the official PAP news agency, in what is seen as an attempt to strengthen the party's hand in setting priorities for state broadcasting.

ment's Public Opinion Surveying Center, excerpted in the party weekly Polityka July 26, concluded that Polish life as depicted on Polish TV

A poll conducted by the govern-

There are signs that Poland may adopt a more liberal media policy like that of Hungary, which improved the quality and openness of its broadcasting after concluding that if Hungarians do not get answers from their own TV they will seek them from foreign broadcasts.

Unlike Poles, Hungarians living near border areas can pick up Austrian TV, and few satellite dishes are in use in the country.

The widespread impact of Western TV is difficult to assess. Some Western officials maintain that Hungary and East Germany, which receives West German TV signals, have found that Western broadcasts provide harmless escapism that poses no threat to political stability.

Other officials argue that if such organizations as Radio Free Europe or the British Broadcasting Corp. begin native-language TV broadcasts, satellite TV would pose a much bigger problem to closed societies.

An official at the Board of Central Radio Inspection, Col. Wladyslaw Urbanski, said in an interview that 200 applications for satellite dishes had been filed.

Garbo signature sold

NEW YORK (AP) - An autograph of actress Greta Garbo on a tiny slip of paper sold at auction for $880, the auction's organizer said.

The signature, in ink on paper measuring 21/2 inches by 11/2 inches, was bought by a Florida collector. said Herman Darvick, president of Universal Autograph Collectors'

Club, which sponsored the sale Sun-

Signed photos of singers Michael Jackson and Madonna brought in $110 each, while a signed photo of President Reagan sold for $66 and a document signed by King George III brought in $200, he said.

Pavarotti on diet

PESARO, Italy (AP) - Opera tenor Luciano Pavarotti says he's sticking to a strict diet but still can have an occasional plate of pasta.

"I have already lost 10 kilos (22 pounds)," the Rome newspaper La Repubblica quoted him as saying in an interview in his summer home in Pesaro, an Adriatic resort.

His diet, he said, allows "three tablespoons of oil a day, vegetables, a little fruit, a hectogram (little less than four ounces) of bread, three hectograms of meat, no alcohol, no sugar. All this adds up to about 2,000 calories a day."

"But if I feel like a plate of pasta, I can do it," he added.

Scottish chemist Charles MacIntosh gained immortality by lending his name to waterproof coats he made by pressing two rubber-coated fabrics together.

Synthetic rubber was invented during World War II to replace the natural rubber supply that had been cut off by the Japanese. Seven tire companies cooperated with the federal government in building a synthetic rubber factory in Baton Rouge, La.

Cocker spaniels, for the third year in a row, top the list of America's 120 most popular breeds, according to Better Homes and Gardens. Nipping at the cocker's heels are nine other breeds, including: poodles, Labrador retrievers, Doberman pinschers, beagles, chow chows, miniature Schnauzers and Shetland sheepdogs. The American Kennel Club compiles the yearly list from newly registered dogs.

pleted units in the city's South Boston section.

He would like to see his effort duplicated by construction unions elsewhere in the country.

"The beef is: If you are poor, you could get subsidies: if you're rich, you don't need them. These houses are for the $2 bettor," he said. While trying to preserve close-knit, working-class neighborhoods, he expressed another hope - that his homes would improve the image of organized labor. "Unions have been painted as a self-interest group," said McIntyre, who left school after the 10th grade to lay brick.

Ten years later, he became a full-time union officer. Displaying promise, he was selected 20 years ago for a union management course at the Harvard Business School.

"Our aim is to work on the grassroot neighborhood level so that people begin to understand that unionism is a force for good in their community," he said. General construction, plumbing and electrical contractors for his projects are selected by the respective craft union and must pay union scale wages, McIntyre said. "The contractors are not hitting home runs, but they're making a profit and the homebuyer gets a house 40 percent below market rate."

Such a saving is significant. In greater Boston, the seventh-largest U.S. metropolitan area, the average home now sells for about $150,000, second highest in the nation, the National Association of Realtors says.

The savings are made on development costs, he explained. None is passed on to the buyer because the Bricklayers & Laborers Non-Profit Housing Co. has "zero overhead," he said. There are no paid employees.

McIntyre, who conducts all negotiations, juggles the papework and fields customer complaints, receives only his vice president's salary from the ricklayers union.

He found a local by lend $1.2 million without collateral. It did so in an arrangement he calls "compensating balances," in which the union pension fund placed an amount equal to the loan at the bank in certificates of deposit that earned 6.5 percent to 7 percent interest. The loan rate was then set at 8 percent, saving the housing project 3 to 4 interest rate points.

The first project got under way after Mayor Ray Flynn sold 23,000 square feet of land, the site of an old public school, to McIntyre's nonprofit firm for $1.

"Construction began last September and was completed in May," said Bill Rawn, 42, a lawyer-turnedarchitect who designed the $69,900 houses with two bedrooms, bay windows and combination living-dining rooms with 11-foot ceilings. "And that is incredible. That's faster than what the big guys do."
