That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says fear is kin to both envy and a guilty conscience.

County Democrats will name the county judge Saturday in a party runoff election that also features two commissioner races. Actually the winners are party "nominees" for the November general election, but the judge and one commissioner have no other party nominees to face in the fall. The Demo winner in precinct 2 will have a Republican opponent in the general election.

Interest still seems to be strong for the runoff election, especially for the county judge's post. Incumbent Judge Hank Williams ran second to challenger Sam Morgan in the first primary, and there has been much speculation as to how the chips will fall in the runoff.

One big factor could lie in the voter turnout. The first Demo primary drew 2,965 voters, but observers think the count may be no more than half of that this time around. Both candidates appear to be working hard to get their supporters out for the runoff, however, and the total could be more than anticipated.

A story in The Thursday Brand, submitted by the high school journalism staff, carried a list of students and their future plans — college, military service, marriage, or work. Someone called our attention to the fact we left out Chuck High, who signed an athletic scholarship to attend Tarleton State. The list prepared by the students was not intended as a complete, official roster, and there are probably others who were not included.

One of the biggest troubles with success these days is that its recipe is about the same as that for a nervous breakdown.

The Brand said farewell to the graduates this week and today's issue has the story on commencement. Many of them plan to go to college, and a recent state survey revealed that 50 per cent of the seniors in Texas had such plans. The survey also showed, however, Hereford's financial institutions as well as many business offices will also close in recognition of the holiday. A sausage and egg breakfast will be open to the public from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. Monday at the Hereford Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall in Veterans Park. The event, sponsored by the local VFW Post, will pay tribute to America's war dead. The holiday is one of six recognized by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. The other five are Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day.

Swim Signup Starts Friday

REGISTRATION FOR beginner swimming instruction, for either children or adults, in the first session of the summer water safety program sponsored by Deaf Smith County Red Cross Chapter, is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon Friday at the city pool in Dameron Park.

Mrs. Bell Named Pioneer

Mrs. A.G. (Lena) Bell, 93, was honored as "Pioneer of the Year" when the Mid-Plains Pioneer Association held its annual meeting here Saturday at the Bull Barn. A RESIDENT of Hereford, or Deaf Smith County, for almost 72 years, Mrs. Bell was selected by a MPPA committee and was presented a plaque by KPAN Radio. The association held a business meeting Saturday morning and pioneers enjoyed a covered-dish luncheon. Wayne Thomas gave the welcome at the meeting, and Caldwell Hicks, now of Pampa, was to give the response. Mrs. Bell, the former Lena Daniel, came to Hereford in August, 1902, from Cooke County. "Ma" Daniel had been a widow for a number of years when her brother, W.B. Robinson, persuaded her to come to Hereford with her daughters — Lena and Nora Alice.

MRS. DANIEL leased the Hereford House, and she and her daughters operated the hotel for a year. When the owners wanted the hotel back, Mrs. Daniel moved her family to a rooming house, which she operated for some time as the "Cottage House."

Lena was married to Allan G. Bell on Sept. 10, 1903. Her husband had moved to the county in 1901, but had lived in Castro County since 1894. They lived in Hereford while their children were in school, then moved to a ranch in the northwest part of the county in 1933. He died in an auto accident in 1941.

MRS. BELL resides at 604 W. 3rd St.

While parents and relatives beamed with pride, 274 Hereford High School seniors walked across a platform in Whiteface Stadium at 8 p.m. Thursday to receive their graduation diplomas.

Babette Stengel, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Stengel, Summerfield, received the Outstanding Senior Award, a presentation made each year to a graduating senior who the faculty feels demonstrates all-around student the presentation was made by HHS Principal Jerry Don George.

Valedictory and salutatory addresses were delivered by Layne Young and Paul Galley, respectively.

Andrew Wingert, senior class secretary, acting on behalf of the graduating class, gave a check to HHS principal Jerry Don George to buy a new school mascot, a mounted Whiteface Bull head.

The old mascot, now mounted above the library entrance, will be removed to another area of the school. The old mascot has been with the school since 1956.

Following presentation of the class by Roy Hartman, school superintendent, diplomas were given to each senior by Hugh Clearman, board of education president.

Music accompaniment for the ceremony was provided by the HHS concert band under the direction of Randy Vaughn and the HHS mixed choir, directed by Fred Ratliff.

Vaughn also played a flute solo, "Movin' On."

Invocation and benediction were given by Dr. Jordan Grooms, pastor of the First United Methodist Church and the Rev. J.L. Bozeman, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, respectively.

After commencement, seniors attended an all night party at the activity center at West Texas State University in Canyon.

The spring term will officially close Wednesday with a faculty, administrative and staff in-service session lasting from about 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Special recognition for continuous service will be given to eligible school employees at an 11:30 luncheon in the HHS cafeteria. Pins will be awarded for 10, 20 and 25 years of continuous service.

Old Library Closes Soon

Transfer of the hundreds of books from rooms on the first floor of the county courthouse to the new Deaf Smith County Library has begun with closing of the old facility Friday. Loaded carts will be pulled across the street to the building, just north of the courthouse, where empty shelves are ready.

DATE OF opening the library in the new location is uncertain. Gwen London, librarian, has announced that books due for return before the date is determined will not be subject to penalty.

She had invited library patrons to check out as many volumes as they wished before the close Friday, and return them to the new library later.

"We are getting a lot of books moved this way," she said Friday, "but there are still many to move and we can't tell now just how long it will take."

SINCE THE MOVE is a short one, books are being stacked directly from the shelves to carts which will be pulled across the street by the small tractor used for courthouse grounds work. The books will then be in order to place in the new shelves.

Workmen are still busy with the finishing touches on the new $400,000-plus building which will not be formally dedicated until July 4, according to present plans.

Original plans were to leave the basement area unfinished for a time, but county commissioners at a late April meeting decided to have that work completed since funds were available. The basement contains a small auditorium with stage area.

Moving Days

162 Ballots Cast Absentee

A total of 162 absentee ballots for Deaf Smith County's Democratic primary runoff election had been cast by 5 p.m. Friday, a spokesman for the county clerk's office said.

ABSENTEE voting began Wednesday and will continue through Tuesday, with the polls to be closed Monday, Memorial Day.

The polls, located in the county clerk's office, are open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Since the runoff stems from a Democratic party primary, only persons belonging to the Democratic party are eligible to vote, according to Article 15.49 of the 1974 Texas Election Code. Violators will be liable for fines of $100 to $500.

PERSONS expecting to be out of town election day, Saturday, June 1, may vote by casting absentee ballots.

RACES and candidates involved in the runoff election include the office of county judge, H.C. (Hank) Williams, incumbent, and Sam Morgan; Precinct 2 commissioner, Austin Rose Jr. and Clinton Jackson; and Precinct 4 commissioner, James Voyles and M.W. (Webb) Blankenship.

Tornado Twists Near City

THE TORNADO siren for Hereford blew about 9:55 Friday night, and although a tornado was reported headed for the city, Hereford only got a trace of rain, and a lot of excitement.

A Department of Public Safety trooper reported a tornado on the ground six miles northwest of Hereford in the Yucca Hills area. The report said the tornado was moving in a southerly direction.

THE SHERIFF'S office relayed the report to the Hereford police department and the alarm went out. The fire siren, tornado siren, and civil defense siren were all sounded.

Besides the tornado north of town, a tornado southwest of Hereford was reported, only two miles from the city limits. Various other sightings were reported about the city, but none were confirmed.

Eastern New Mexico and the Panhandle of Texas were busy areas for weather watchers Friday evening. A Tucumcari radio station reported several twisters in that area, including one in the back yard of the radio station owner.

VEGA was without electrical power and suffered extensive glass damage from high winds and hail that swept through that town. The Hereford DPS trooper who sighted the cyclone north of Hereford was enroute to Vega to assist in a traffic accident investigation west of that city.

The storm continued along I-40 and hit Amarillo a few minutes later. A radar sighting of a tornado southwest of the city caused tornado sirens to be blown there. The twister went back into the clouds however. The city was deluged with rain and hail, causing some damage and flooding.

IN THE HEREFORD area, only small amounts of rain came from the storm. Most areas to the west of town reported no rain at all. The city of Hereford itself received only a trace of rain, and a light hail shower about midnight.

Dawn reported one-half inch of rain, but to the west of Dawn a report of one and seven-tenths was received. North of the community, water was reported over several roads.

H.L. Hershey, 13 miles northeast of Hereford, reported only four-tenths of an inch of rain, but said enough golf-ball size hail fell to cover the ground.

THE ONLY damage report received by the sheriff's office Saturday morning was some window breakage in the Milo Center area.

Rich History Buried In Packard Debris

By KERRIE WOMBLE
Brand Staff Writer

Soon after the stock market crashed in 1929, a flour miller in California received a letter which would have a marked effect on the prosperity and very survival of the Hereford area.

The influential communique, which was from an ambitious man named H.W. Packard, was directed to H.E. "Harry" Danforth in Los Angeles. Packard requested that Danforth leave his supervisor job at a large mill in order to enter a business venture in a small dusty burg on the Texas Panhandle. Packard proposed to finance the purchase of the old Roy Rogers Mill in Hereford if Danforth would agree to manage and operate the grain mill.

Dan accepted the terms and thus ensued the rich, 35-year history of Packard Mill.

PACKARD Mill, a familiar landmark on South Main Street, is now just a pile of broken boards. Packard, Danforth and many of the mill employees did not live to see the structure fall to its knees before the ruthless march of progress. However, that mill, which literally saved some residents from starvation during the Depression, remains etched in the memories of Hereford pioneers.

Mrs. Danforth recalled those first years in Hereford during the "Dirty Thirties". She said, "We had a hard time getting started because we were new here and just had to prove ourselves. It was discouraging at first for my husband as he was used to working in a large mill. We didn't have electricity and had to get all our power and lights from a tractor belonging to a Mr. Lusk.

"As time went on, things got better and farmers from New Mexico and all over the Plains starting bringing their wheat to exchange it for flour. At times there would be long lines of trucks waiting to unload their grain."

Mrs. Danforth continued, "The farmers knew he (Danforth) made good flour and they seemed very happy to exchange their produce for flour or cornmeal. Packards soon had trucks carrying flour all over the Plains, including New Mexico and some in Colorado and Arizona.

"The mill carried Mr. Packard's name and it milled a number of different brands of flour, cornmeal, breakfast food bran and all kinds of feed grain. During the mid-thirties, they added the big mill, which housed the elevator, scales and office," she recalled.

"The mill was a one-man operation for awhile and our two little girls would bring my husband his lunch. He bought Mr. Packard's interest in the mill later on and we ran it until late in 1944 and then sold it to Frank Gyles."

BYRDIE FELLERS went to work at Packard Mill in 1949 and was employed there under Gyles for the following 13 years. She remembered the mill as an informal business that was a mutual gathering place for local ranchers and farmers. She said, "Mr. Gyles befriended so many people that they were always dropping in for a visit around the office or the old warehouse."

The original mill structure was renovated a number of times throughout the years. According to Mrs. Fellers, the millhouse received alteration improvements "about half a dozen times" during her 13-year tenure. During this period, the mill focused its service on the tri-state area of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. For many years, it held the distinction of having the largest sales of Ralston-Purina Feeds. Due to this success, Gyles discontinued the flour industry in 1952 in order to concentrate on the feed market.

NATIONAL EVENTS sometimes reached the small business. One example was the loss of several employees due to the Korean War. Packard Mill reflected the American economy as grain prices dipped and rose with the national market.

"People really shouldn't complain about prices now," Mrs. Fellers stated. "Why, I can remember when we had to pay $3.15 for 100 pounds of milo back in the early 50's."

Mrs. Fellers said that the quail and pheasant which now populate the area were ordered through Packard Mill by local farmers and ranchers. "We also had a lot to do with the presence of ducks and geese around Hereford," she commented. "The farmers used the ducks and geese to clean insects from the cotton crops, but," she laughed and added, "those birds incurred a woman's wrath because they could ruin her yard."

MRS. FELLERS recounted some of the unique experiences she gleaned while at Packard's.

"One winter we had ordered a bunch of baby chicks for some customers, but it was too cold to keep them in the warehouse. So, we had to bring them into the office until they could be picked up. Sometimes there were as many as 500 baby chicks in my office at one time."

Another Packard Mill anecdote was literally a "sticky situation," according to the former employee. "We had bought a tankload of molasses and stored in concrete containers in the warehouse. Unfortunately, the company neglected to mention that the molasses would leak through concrete storage units," Mrs. Fellers stated.

"The next morning, molasses was everywhere. Of course it drew in flies by the millions. You wouldn't have believed the mess! We laughed about it," she paused and added, "later."

BENNY WOMBLE recollected an episode with the mill in the early 1930's. "My brothers, Johnny and Baker, Dad (Troy Womble) and I loaded up our old bobtail wagon with wheat and took it to Packards. Mr. Danforth ground it free of charge and even provided the sacks."

He continued, "We then delivered the flour to all the needy widows in town and poured it into the ladies' flour bins."

MRS. BESS Werner was very familiar with the personnel and "goings-on" at Packard Mill. Recalling her role as a farmer during the Depression, she said, "I would drive my old pick-up to town to get sacks of flour and feed. I knew the Gyles brothers and Mr. Danforth quite well. I can remember waiting in line for the miller to grind my wheat," she commented.

"I fed my pigs, chickens and cattle with grain from Packard's for many years. I raised White-Leggins chickens back then. Every morning I would go out and gather 30 dozen eggs to sell and that was how we made it through the Depression. As a matter of fact, I used to trade cream to Packard for flour."

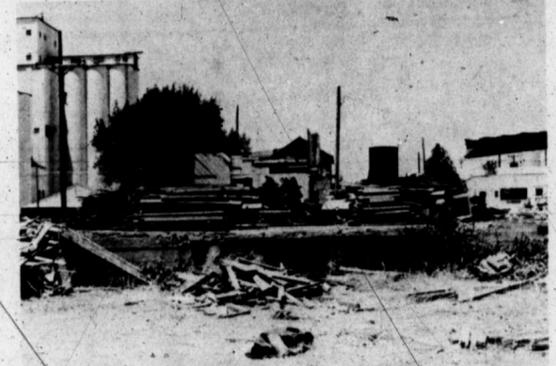

Mrs. Werner was acquainted with the mill long before it was purchased by Packard and Danforth. "I was bookkeeper at the old Harrison Elevators (now Pitman's) across the street from the mill from 1914-1919. I watched a lot of the goings-on in that area of town."

"There's a lot of history wrapped up in that part of Hereford and especially Packards. The mill is really a picturesque old building, don't you think?"

MRS. WERNER had been house-bound since breaking her hip several months ago and didn't know that "that picturesque old building" is gone.

SURVEYING BUSINESS at Packard Mill during the 1930's, H.E. Danforth served as chief miller at the local landmark for many years. Under his management, the mill supplied flour and feed grain for several states on the High Plains.

REDUCED TO RUBBLE, Packard Mill on South Main Street is now just a memory to Hereford residents. The familiar structure occupied the land near the railroad for more than 70 years and influenced many agricultural aspects of Hereford.

Walter F. Johnson, president of First Abilene Bankshares, Inc., has been elected to Hereford State Bank's board of directors, according to a joint announcement by Harlan VanderZee and Marvin Carlile, Hereford State Bank president and board chairman, respectively.

Walter Johnson

First Abilene Bankshares, Inc., is an Abilene based multi-bank holding company which recently acquired all the outstanding shares of Hereford State.

Johnson is also president of First National Bank of Abilene. He has been president of the Abilene bank since January, 1964. He served as president of the Texas Bankers Association in 1967, and has served on many state and national banking committees during his banking career.

from surplus and undivided profits to capital accounts. The transfer will be reflected as $1 million in capital and $500,000 in surplus, the spokesman said, and will have the immediate effect on increasing the bank's loan limit to a borrower to $375,000.

Carlile, also president of Tullia's First National Bank and board chairman for Kress's First National Bank, has been elected to the board of directors of First Abilene Bankshares, Inc.

Reared in Stonewall County, Carlile was graduated from Peacock High School and attended Abilene Christian College. He has served on the board of trustees of Abilene Christian College since 1966. His many civic honors and activities culminated in his election to Man of the Decade in Tullia last year.

Carlile began his banking career as a bookkeeper in the Peacock Bank and later helped organize a bank at Girard. He then served as manager of the bank at Roby. From Roby, Carlile moved to Tullia in 1939 as executive vice-president and chief executive officer.

Johnson is currently chairman of the Regional Advisory Committee of the 11th National Bank Region for the Comptroller of Currency. He is vice president of the Texas Research League, and has been a member of the board of trustees of McMurry College in Abilene for several years, and is a member of the board's executive committee. Honson has served as president of Abilene Chamber of Commerce and United Fund, and is chairman of the Industrial Foundation. He was elected Abilene's Outstanding Citizen in 1968.

A Hereford State Bank spokesman said Friday the state banking commissioner had approved the bank's request to transfer $1.5 million

Drug Charges Dismissed

Charges have been dismissed against two Albuquerque men arrested May 11 for possession of marijuana and dangerous drugs.

Stephen R. Matthews and Paul A. Schafer, both 18, were apprehended by Hereford police on that date. The patrolmen noticed the youths drinking beer in Dameron Park, and then searched the youths' car, finding alleged drugs.

COW POKES By Ace Reid

"I don't see why every body is so upset over this Watergate wiretapping thing — old lady Jones has been a listening in on the party line here for thirty five years and we ain't mad!"

County Sessions Slated

Agendas for two county meetings have been announced for the coming week, with the Deaf Smith County Commissioners meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m., and the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board convening Tuesday morning at 7 a.m.

Commissioners usually meet on the second and fourth Mondays of the month, but the second meeting of May was changed to Tuesday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

The jail and the library will figure prominently in the commissioners' court session Monday. The sheriff will meet with the court to discuss proposals for jail improvements under a Criminal Justice Council grant, and commissioners will discuss a recommendation of the juvenile board to renovate a corner of the present jail.

County commissioners will also discuss a "planned use report" on federal revenue sharing funds, and handle other routine business matters.

Directors of the hospital district will study a renovation recommendation submitted by architects; hear reports from the finance committee and medical staff, and receive a briefing from the hospital administrator on other matters.

Temptation may overwhelm anyone but not those who intelligently avoid temptation.

One way to become intelligent is to remember not to believe everything you see in print.

Police may be unnecessary in the perfect world but in the meantime law and order depend upon police.

Too much hard work kills the desire to play.

Hereford Man 'Spiked' Splintery Path To Top

By JIM BELEW
Brand News Editor

He shook his head as the girl, a telephone company field representative, made the last connection of wires in a new phone installation.

"Sometimes I wonder if women's lib hasn't gone too far," he said, jokingly. Phil Barkly, 84, of 821 S. 25 Mile Ave., asked the girl if she could climb a pole with spiked boots. She said she could.

BARKLY NATURALLY was surprised at learning women were now engaged in a business he knew to be rough—at least as he remembered it. He was a lineman for various companies from 1909 to 1921, working in the mountain states of Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico.

He first began his career by digging timber holes in Colorado Springs, Colo., where the winter was so severe it had frozen the ground to a depth of five feet. "I was 18, just a kid, and soft," Barkly said. "The first day I had to grip the bar and shovel so hard that when it came time to quit for the day, my hands had to be pried loose by another worker."

HE SOON started climbing poles, mainly because it paid better—$45 and room and board. He was scared, but managed to make it up, he said, because of encouragement from a "grunt," a lineman's assistant who stays on the ground. "He was a bleary-eyed, red-necked Irishman named Mike Donovan, who the company wanted to make into a lineman but couldn't because he didn't like to climb.

"Donovan stayed on the ground and called out instructions. He'd been in the business a long time and so his help got me off to a good start," Barkly recalled.

THE FIRST day, he set 14 miles of telephone line, walking from pole to pole, each one 130 feet apart.

Soon the young lineman was going from state to state, wherever there was work. Unlike some of his fellow workers who depended on hitching rides on boxcars to their new jobs, Barkly rode the cushions," slang for a train's passenger section.

Once on a job site, he worked until the pole was up—regardless of the weather, which sometimes made any kind of work seem impossible. "Once, I remember," he said, "we worked all day in 35-below-zero-weather in Montana."

Weather was not the only problem. Linemen of those times faced, Barkly recalled, a far more common, and usually more painful one was climbing split or cracked poles. Because of the pole's cracked or split surface, a climber's hooks might come loose from the pole, forcing the lineman to slide down or "burn" the pole, trying all the way down to re-set his hooks.

"If a fellow burned too many, he didn't last long," Barkly said. "Those splinters could sure tear a man up."

And yet, despite the danger of splinters, some of the linemen would race each other down the pole, purposely burning it by taking out their spikes, and, with a safety strap around the timber, plummet to the ground.

Barkly said he remembered one fellow who could set a pair of pliers on the cross-bar at the top of the pole, hit the tool with his head and beat the falling pliers to the ground.

"COMPANIES TODAY require a man to take off his spikes after climbing down from each pole, then put them on at the next one," Barkly said. "We walked from one pole to another with ours on."

Barkly, who quit his lineman career in 1921 to go into business for himself as an automotive electrician, climbed his last pole 15 years ago to disconnect a line from a house he was moving. "I borrowed a pair of hooks—I didn't think there'd be anything to it, the pole was only 30 or 40 feet high. Anybody watching me would've thought it was the first pole I'd ever climbed. I just barely got up and down."

Up and down, in borrowed hooks, at age 69?

QUITE a feat for any ex-lineman—male or female.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

BY VERN SANFORD

PFD could be the most important thing in your life. At least it could be if you'd keep it handy. Or better yet—wear it.

It is a new-specifications life-saving device for use by anyone (young or old)—in, on, or around water.

PFD is short for "Personal Flotation Device". You'll hear the term used often from now on. Having one handy is important—but wearing it is 10 times more so.

It's really any kind of approved life-saving outfit designed for an individual to wear—if it meets the new requirements outlined here.

An approved PFD that attaches to one's body will do far more good than an approved seat cushion and will last for years, especially if worn.

If left lying around the boat or on the beach it becomes dirty and unattractive to the point you don't ever want to wear it. So, keep it clean!

If worn while aboard a boat it will get less wear, tear and abuse than when trampled on, stuck in a corner among junk and rubbish, or sat upon as a cushion.

From this you can gather that we're not hep about seat cushions as life preservers. Frankly—NO! They are about the poorest excuses ever conceived for life-saving devices.

Main trouble with seat cushions as life savers is you need to take one with you when you fall overboard, or leave someone in the boat to toss the cushion to you. Even then its usefulness is based on the fact that you can swim, at least far enough to reach the tossed-at-you cushion. And of course it's presumed that you weren't konked in the head and knocked unconscious when you went overboard.

All of which points to the fact that you need a real, honest-to-goodness life preserver, a slip-over outfit that straps to you (under your arms and around your body) . . . and has sufficient flotation in back to keep your head above water. That's "PFD" numbers I, II and III.

Can you imagine youngsters carrying along seat cushions as they run up and down the beach or gather rocks and shells at the shoreline?

Of course the point we wish to make is that life jackets are life preservers; seat cushions are seat preservers. Let's keep them in their proper place.

As stated earlier you'll be hearing more about PFD. It becomes mandatory on October 1, as a new requirement of the U. S. Coast Guard. Bless 'em—they're going to save your life in spite of you. You won't wear life jackets voluntarily.

Unfortunately the new law won't apply to boats under 16 feet in length, so 67 per cent of the U. S. boat owners will not be affected by the rule changes. But just wait—if you too don't use an approved Personal Flotation Device, voluntarily, you'll be next—if you don't drown in the meantime.

Four types of PFDs are included in the approved stock of life preservers.

All four are much alike as to buoyancy, except Type I which must sustain at least 20 pounds. Specs for Types II and III call for 15.5 pounds of buoyancy and Type IV, 16.5 pounds.

Unfortunately the latter is the buoyant cushion, again—designed to be thrown to a person in the water. But the new regulations do require that it be in addition to Types I, II and III on boats of 26 feet and longer.

After October 1 manufacturers will be required to specify the Type number on each Personal Flotation Device they offer for sale. Just remember that Type IV is the cushion; Type III is good, Type II is better; and Type I is the very best. So—value your life accordingly. Buy the best!

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Mail That Offends

Three years ago, Congress offered a new kind of protection to people who wanted to stop "sexually oriented" advertisements from arriving in their mail. Anyone so inclined could place his or her name on a special list to be kept by the Post Office. Sending such ads to those on the list was made a crime.

By now, with thousands of names on the list, enough time has gone by for this law to be tested and clarified in the courts. To begin with, the basic idea has been held constitutional, even though it involves some limitation on the freedom of the press. The Supreme Court has ruled that, just as a householder can bar unwanted salesmen from his doorway, so he can bar unwanted ads from his mailbox. The Court said the advertiser's right to communicate does not outrank the right of the householder to be let alone.

To hold otherwise, added the Court, "would make hardly more sense than to say that a television viewer may not twist the dial to cut off an offensive or boring communication."

Publishers also complained of the expense of having periodically to "cleanse" their mailing lists. But a federal court decided, in another ruling, that this was a burden the law could legitimately impose.

"(The) cost of complying with the statute," said the court, "is less than one cent per name, a fraction of the cost of postage, and is not unduly burdensome."

What about the risk that penalties will be imposed on the innocent, for mailings sent by mistake? One worried printer raised that point in court, saying that computer errors might subject him to punishment unfairly.

However, the court said the statute would simply not apply in those circumstances. There would be no criminal offense, the court observed, when there was no criminal intent.

Health Care Ills . . . and High Prices

By Bernard E. Nash

Since early this year, the Senate health subcommittee has been conducting hearings—which are expected to continue into the summer—on why drug prices are so high.

To middle-aged and older Americans, this is a topic of particular concern. It has been estimated that persons between the ages of 45 and 64 spend at least twice as much for medications as does the average member of the nation's younger populace. After 65, the ratio rises to nearly three-to-one.

Bernard Nash

In cooperation with the Senate committee, the American Association of Retired Persons and its Pharmacy Service initiated a unique survey of older pharmaceutical consumers who were urged to write about their experiences, complaints and suggestions. At the time the survey was launched, it was not expected to turn into an open forum on the quality and economics of health care, but so great is older America's concern that that's exactly what happened.

Thus far, there have been nearly 2,000 responses, representing a pretty fair sampling. I think, of how older Americans feel about how their health care needs are being met. The responses are being forwarded to the committee's chairman, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), for inclusion in the record of the committee's investigation.

While some letters praised the medical and pharmaceutical professions, most respondents—whether financially secure, impoverished or average middle class—seemed to feel victimized in one way or another by the failings in our health care system and by the personal avarice of some of its practitioners. Fearing reprisals from nursing home and other medical personnel, a few requested anonymity. In order to protect them from any embarrassment that might result from their frank comments, the writers of letters quoted in this column will not be identified, although documentation will be provided for the Senate committee.

In summary, these points were stressed repeatedly throughout most of the letters:

- The need for out-of-hospital Medicare coverage of prescription drugs, eyeglasses, hearing aids and dentures;
- Inequities in Medicare and Medicaid benefits;
- Unreasonably high prices charged for medications supplied by nursing homes;
- The vast difference between low prices paid for American-made drugs in foreign countries and higher prices charged here, and the wide variance in retail pharmaceutical prices here;
- Some doctors' refusal to prescribe medications by generic names instead of by more costly, trademarked brand names.

"One drug I take" is quite expensive," wrote one retiree, "so, instead of taking four a day as prescribed, I take two. I feel I have to cut down . . ."

Another asked: "Why is a doctor allowed to charge you for samples he doesn't have to pay for?"

There were innovative suggestions, such as this one: "Allow some kind of compensation or encouragement for those who are willing or want to care for patients in their own homes. . . . Have some kind of self-help organization for families of such cases to share and help each other cope with the mental anguish."

"I am one of those elderly persons who is burdened with paying extortionary prices for my trying to hold on to life" was the way one respondent described herself, while another argued that: "A person must first be able to afford a doctor before drugs become a problem. $25 for an office call lets me out!"

One thing that especially impressed me was the large number of people who—knowing their letters might eventually be seen by Sen. Kennedy—added a few words of encouragement for the Senator's 12-year-old son, Teddy, Jr., who has been waging his own personal health battle against cancer. These postscripts may have little to do with the critical issue of drug prices, but they say something about older Americans—something very nice.

A Weekly Report Of Agri-Business News

Compiled From Sources Of The Texas Department of Agriculture
John C. White, Commissioner

Onions on the Way . . . Poultry Production Down, Income Up . . . Lamb Prices Increase . . . More Credit? . . . Dry in Some Places.

TEXAS' ONION crop may not be a bumper one, but it's expected to be 18 per cent above last year's crop, reaching 3,675,000 hundred pounds, compared to 3,120,000 cwt. in 1973. That's about 175 cwt. per acre from 21,000 acres. Onion supplies from Texas fields are expected to peak from now until about mid-May.

The harvest is in full swing in the Rio Grande Valley, and was expected to begin in the San Antonio-Winter Garden area in late April, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

FIGURES ARE IN on the 1973 production of broilers, chickens and eggs. Texans' income from these three categories of the poultry business was $268 million, 54 per cent more than during the 1972 marketing year.

Broiler production in 1973 was 173,330,000, down three per cent from 1972, but prices were better in 1973 and broiler income was up 56 per cent over 1972.

Egg production in Texas during 1973 was 2,496 million eggs, down seven per cent from 1972; but income was up 53 per cent in 1973 over a year earlier, reaching $113 million. The average price for eggs in 1973 was 55.5 cents a dozen compared to 33.7 cents in 1972.

Texas raised 10 million head of chickens (excluding broilers) in 1973, compared to 11 million in 1972. Cash receipts from chickens totaled $5.9 million, 26 per cent more than a year earlier.

PROSPECTS IN THE poultry business show there may be fewer broilers going to the market. Broilers placed in the State during the week ending April 6 totaled 3,872,000 chicks; three per cent fewer than a year ago and two per cent lower than a week earlier. Eggs put in incubators numbered 4,683,000 in the same week, six per cent below the same period in 1973 and two per cent below a week before.

FOR THE FIRST time since January, the press reported lamb prices increased sharply during the week ending April 11. Texas springers were up to $41.44 a hundred, and oldcrop lambs in feedlots were up to $39 a hundred. There were 89,000 sheep and lambs for slaughter on feed in lots with capacity of 2,000 head or more in Texas. That was four per cent fewer than were on feed April 1, 1973. Placement of sheep and lambs during March totaled 31,000 head.

MORE CREDIT may be available in rural areas under provisions of the Rural Development Act, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Farmers Home Administration is authorized to guarantee private lenders that they will be repaid for up to 90 percent of any loss they take on loans for a variety of rural development purposes. That may increase the flow of rural credit from private banks according to the USDA.

SOME RAIN fell recently over sections of the State, but it is still dry in many areas. Cotton planting is about 11 per cent complete over the State, but some farmers from the Blacklands south are reported wanting rain before planting.

that only 20 per cent of the jobs available upon their graduation from college will require a college education. The Advisory Council report said 80 per cent of the jobs that will be available in 1978 or 1979 will not require a college degree, but will be for persons with technical and vocational skills.

It appears, from this report, that we're sending students to college to educate them for jobs that won't exist by the time they get out of school. The problem of underemployment and overeducation will continue until those who influence students in their career choices give more realistic educational advice. That's the word of the Advisory Council study.

Non-Stop Bible Marathon Features Reading Instead of Running

Marathon is a word which evokes a wide range of events in the mind's eye—from the famous Greek foot race to the dances of the twenties. One seldom considered, however, is a Bible-reading marathon. Two such Bible readings have been the subject of some interest in England in recent months.

A continuous public reading of the entire Bible took place at Easter in Millmead Centre in Guilford, England, from 9 p.m. Sunday to 5 p.m. the following Thursday. This Bible marathon was organized by the Guilford Baptist Church, which has an average congregation of 600 people and is known as Millmead Centre.

Brian Thorne, manager of a Christian bookstore in Guilford, coordinated the event. He said: "This was the most thrilling event I've ever been responsible for, with over 350 readers and many more people listening to the reading of the complete Living Bible. The results have been long-lasting with a deepening and continuing love of His Word."

Although most readers were from the churches and the community, there were "celebrity spots" at noon and in the evening, featuring such people as Malcolm Muggeridge, well-known English journalist, and Cliff Richard, England's biggest "show business" Christian. Richard also prepared several Bible reading spots for telephone subscribers who could dial-a-reading.

The Living Bible, used in the marathons, has been the top non-fiction best seller in this country for two years and is also the No. 1 Bible of England, with over two million sold there.

After this auspicious start, another Bible-reading marathon was instituted at Bromley Christian Supply Centre, near London. The recent enlargement of the centre by volunteer workers from several countries called for a dedication of some sort. The idea of a Bible marathon was considered appropriate because of the large number of Bibles sold through the centre.

This second Bible marathon, or read-through, as some called it, was begun at 8 a.m. on Monday morning, with readers changing each 15 minutes. Reading continued non-stop until midnight each night, with representatives of a broad cross-section of the community taking part.

The Living Bible was read in this marathon, too. The enthusiastic participation of

TV COMMENTARY

NBC seems to be in a great hurry to choose a permanent replacement for the late Frank McGee on the "Today" show. Before anybody gets the full-time contract, network officials will take an on-camera look at many prospects.

NEXT SEASON there will be only one survivor of the once popular prime time variety show, dating back to Ed Sullivan's beginnings. Carol Burnett's hour will stand alone, being carried on CBS. Experts are saying that the TV variety will not fade completely out; it is probably just a cyclical decline.

"The Rookies" will be on the heat again for ABC next season.

EIGHT OF THE TEN documentaries called "The American Experience" are on the shelf at NBC, awaiting a decision by its sponsor to buy air time for it. This may not happen, since sponsor was reportedly disappointed with the first two programs.

AUSTIN, Tex. — A General Provisions article of the proposed new state constitution — including a controversial right-to-work section — finally has received committee approval.

The long-delayed section will go to the Constitutional Convention for consideration when delegates return to work next month.

Heatedly opposed by organized labor, the right-to-work provision would place in the constitution the present statutory ban on compulsory union membership as a requisite to holding a job.

Another controversial section of the article would allow the legislature to authorize state debt to finance a "superport" and housing for the elderly.

The committee threw out another earlier decision to allow a separate statewide vote on whether pari-mutuel gambling should be prohibited by the new constitution.

same period in 1973.

Still another change in the General Provisions article would allow homeowners to refinance their property to obtain funds without losing their protection against bank holding companies would be left up to the legislature.

During more than three months of deliberations, the committee heard 231 witnesses in 22 public sessions on 96 proposals covering 31 subjects.

Convention President Price Daniel Jr. expects all work of the body to be wrapped up by the second week of June.

MORE SPEEDERS — An increasing number of Texas drivers are violating the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit, Col. Wilson E. Speir, Texas Department of Public Safety director, reports. Speeding arrests by the Highway Patrol during March were 109 per cent greater than in March 1973, Speir said.

In March 1974, 58,760 speeding cases were filed, compared to 28,111 a year ago. Passenger car drivers received 43,264 of the tickets and truck drivers 14,849. Speir appealed to all motorists to obey the speed law. He said the number of traffic deaths has begun to rise again after a decline.

Insurance companies are raising doubts premiums will drop with the lowered speed. They point to increases in hospital and repair costs.

EXCHANGE PROPOSED — Agriculture Commissioner John C. White discussed with Iran and Saudi Arabia ambassadors a proposal for direct exchange of agricultural commodities for fuel and fertilizers.

Under the plan, Texas and U.S. farm products would be bartered through a coordinating agency for an assured supply of petrochemicals for agriculture. Also offered is technological assistance to the two countries in developing their own agricultural resources.

COURTS SPEAK — A Kerrville school teacher who lost his job for refusing to shave his beard should be reinstated, the State Supreme Court held. But the case may go on and on in further appeals.

The Court of Criminal Appeals upheld a prison sentence given a Dallas mother for whipping her small children for taking money from her purse.

A federal district court at Tyler refused to order reopening of Waller County voter registration to benefit students of Prairie View A & M University.

A pre-trial conference was held April 24 in gubernatorial candidate Frances "Sissy" Farenthold's campaign finance lawsuit against Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

AG OPINIONS — Names of persons complaining of air pollution emissions and their statements to the Texas Air Control Board are public records, Atty. Gen. John L. Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded:

A county judge whose term has less than a year to run can be a candidate for the state senate.

Texas Water Quality Board is authorized to reimburse employees for travel expenses incurred in disseminating information on pollution and its control, to contract with federal agencies for funds to conduct sewage plant training and to subcontract with other agencies for actual performance of the training.

A retail store using electronic equipment for cashing checks of customers is not illegally engaged in banking.

A county can contract with a city for rural fire protection even if the county is co-terminous with a rural fire protection district.

An order by a county health department instructing a cafeteria to cease operations due to health violations is public information.

APPOINTMENTS — Governor Briscoe named 24 members to the advisory council on early childhood education. The council will help formulate standards for accreditation and teacher certification at the pre-kindergarten and kindergarten levels.

Gordon R. Wynne Jr. of Wills Point was named treasurer of the Democratic national party conference or mini-convention December 6-8.

Robert R. Shelton of Kingsville was sworn in to a six-year term on the Texas Public Safety Commission succeeding Marion T. Key of Lubbock.

Wesley L. Hjernevik, former deputy director of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity has been named new State Welfare Department deputy commissioner for management.

ABSENTEE VOTING BEGINS — Absentee voting for the May 4 primary elections began April 15 and will continue through Tuesday, April 30.

Those who expect to be absent from their county of residence only on election day may vote by personal appearance at the county clerk's offices.

Those who will be absent during the time for personal appearances and on election day can make application to county clerks for obtaining an absentee ballot by mail to an address out of country. Mail ballots also are available to the sick and disabled or those unable to vote election day due to religious belief.

SAVING POSSIBLE — A proposed new multi-peril policy for commercial establishments can save up to 30 per cent on insurance premiums, according to the Texas Insurance Advisory Association.

The proposal is subject to approval by the State Board of Insurance. Most states have such plans in effect, allowing commercial property owners to deal with a single company instead of half a dozen or more.

Comings And Goings At King's Manor

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Carlile of Amarillo were guests of Ophelia Dotson. They also visited other friends at King's Manor-Leota Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Sharp of Childress and Mrs. Wright of Friona visited Anna Blake last Saturday at King's Manor.

Mrs. Lair spent Mother's Day with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bell, and family. The Lair families from Canyon visited in the Bell home in the afternoon.

Maggie Hamilton spent Mother's Day with her grandchildren in Plainview. Tom and Jan Hamilton had their baby, Bob, christened at the United Methodist Church. Maggie returned home Monday.

On May 17 cherubim from St. Anthony's school under the direction of Sister Edith Dominguez, came and sang for Manor residents. The first graders came equipped with simulated ice-cream cones and pictures representing their songs. They sang with gusto and beautiful abandon. Ice Cream Man, Lady Bug and two poems to Old McDonald and Frere Jacques.

Their religious numbers were I'm Special, Jesus' Message to Me and The Lord's Prayer.

This group had done considerable memorizing for pupils so young. What good training they are having in stage presence and related accomplishments. Please come again.

This is the Merry Month of May when "A young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love". But at King's Manor our fancies lightly turn to thoughts of outings or picnicking.

And glory be, this time it took place without benefit of the usual pesty interference of ants, skeeters or gnats. (A bit of grit in the mouth though. How else?)

Nineteen of our residents took off by car Wednesday morning and drove first to the hothouse just north of Canyon on the Lair property, operated by the Jim Irwins.

Mrs. Irwin guided us through the place where plants are watered, fertilized and air conditioned by one operation of a central box. We were presented with two lovely kalanchoe plants. Especially attractive were the mums, geraniums and African violets. From here we drove on to the retreat spot for Polk Street Methodist Church people, a commodious building located on a bluff overlooking a small canyon.

A fried chicken lunch was served us on the cool veranda. Then into our cars and home to the Manor complex where our beds were waiting for our daily siesta.

Boys To Assume Governing Posts

On Tuesday, June 18, Stan Fry and Craig Nieman will be among 872 Texas boys to take over the duties of the State Capitol in Austin for the 1974 session of American Legion Boys State, announced Lynn Steward, Department Commander.

Delegates will converge on Austin and commence registration at 2 p.m., Wednesday, June 12, at Jester Center. Following an evening meal the new citizens of Boys State will assemble for orientation in their respective Boys State cities.

Highlight of this year's program will be the appearance of top leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The program sponsored by The American Legion, Department of Texas, is an annual event in which the organization teaches boys the responsibilities of citizenship in actual "do it yourself" type program from which comes its motto, "Learn by Doing."

The 872 boys will be housed in 18 Boys State Cities with each city further divided into two precincts, one for the Federalist and one for the Nationalist political party. Each Boys State City is named in honor of a Past Department Commander of the Legion who is now deceased. F.C. McConnell of Austin Post No. 76 is Chairman of this year's program and Dr. Firman Haynie, also of Austin, is Director.

The American Legion is stressing its belief that youth should be offered a better perspective of the practical operation of government; that the individual is an integral part of, commensurately responsible for, the character and success of his government. Boys State is an activity of high educational value, born out of a need for youth training in practical citizenship.

Citizens must remember that whether we of this generation like it or not, the young men and women attending high school and college now will eventually be the chosen leaders of this land. Boys State brings future goals within sight by developing civic leadership and pride in American citizenship; by arousing a keen interest in the detailed study of our government; by stressing the importance of maintaining our form of government and bringing a full understanding of our American traditions and beliefs in the United States of America to the more than 28,000 youths throughout the nation who participate this year.

"Boys State is one of the outstanding youth training programs of the Americanism Commission of The American Legion," Commander Steward stated. "Not only do the youths learn more about the functions of government but also they see the importance of the role played by each good citizen in discharging his basic citizenship responsibilities in voting. They soon discover how the quality of government is related directly to active interest of each citizen."

On Tuesday, June 18, the citizens of Boys State will visit the State Capitol and actually sit in chairs of the office to which they were elected and run the state government for a day.

KPAN Receives Highest Award

Hereford radio station KPAN received the public Service Award, the highest award given by the Texas Association of Broadcasters (TAB) at TAB's annual convention held recently in Acapulco.

The Public Service Award has been awarded for the past 15 years and KPAN is one of two stations in the state to have received it more than twice.

Among the activities cited in the presentation was KPAN's continuous efforts in broadcasting special events by remote control on a local and regional basis; the station's support of education through the donation of time and its scholarship program; the station's editorial and news support of the community; and the community involvement of staff members over a cross section of community endeavors.

The plaque was presented to KPAN owner Clint Formby and was inscribed, "Presented for outstanding public and community service exemplified in its efforts throughout the entire year in behalf of the area it represents."

Radio station KFJZ of Fort Worth placed second and radio station KBOX placed third in competition for the award.

Television station KTBC of Austin was chosen as the state's outstanding television station.

Recognized At Stanton

These students from Stanton Junior High recently received honors for outstanding achievements during the past school year. Awards were presented to (L-R) Richard Waters, Soil Conservation Award, Texas Safety Association Honor; and Daughters of American Revolution Citation; Larry Landers and Judy Wright, American Legion Awards and James Mays, Outstanding Student for 1973-74.

Class To Study Human Relations

Unique courses on understanding human behavior and developing multi-culture techniques are being offered this summer by the West Texas State University School of Education.

Human Relations Seminar, Phase I, will meet for approximately three hours each afternoon from June 4 to 21 for three hours of graduate credit.

"The purpose of the seminar," said WT Human Relations Coordinator Jack Nance, "is to assist in the improvements of one's effectiveness as a leader and to facilitate the development of human skills." Nance further explained that this is a process of learning about the understanding human behavior in organizations and learning to apply and use that knowledge and understanding.

Registration for the Human Relations Seminar will be June 3 during the regular WTSU Summer School enrollment.

The Multi-Culture Education Seminar will be offered again the second summer session from July 16 to August 2. Enrollment will be limited and participants will be reimbursed for tuition, fees and materials. For three hours graduate credit, the students will be helped to develop materials and techniques for all classes of varying cultures. A letter of intent is needed to insure enrollment prior to registration July 15.

For more information, contact Jack Nance, Human Relations coordinator, West Texas State University, Canyon, Tx. 79016.

AC Sets Up Reading Lab

Amarillo College is going to great lengths to help students get a running start on the fall semester.

Once such measure is a reading lab designed for students at all levels of reading proficiency to improve their reading rate, comprehension, vocabulary, and general study skills.

This is one of the eight-week phases offered through the Operation ACESS program.

Greta Schauland, reading lab instructor, said that an immediate diagnosis will be made to determine the level at which the student needs to begin.

"From that point, the student will be able to proceed at a pace consistent with his desires and needs," said Miss Schauland.

Miss Schauland is in the process of developing the reading program at AC. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree in English from the University of Iowa in 1968 and will complete her master's at Drake University in education and reading this summer.

She said that students will receive individualized instruction on pacing machines and reading accelerators as well as working with materials designed to help them increase their rate and comprehension.

"At present we have two large pacing machines," said Miss Schauland. "This is a controlled reader supplied with a set of films and shown on a screen." It is turned at a particular rate of speed by the instructor.

The lab, located on the third floor of the AC Library, is equipped with 15 reading accelerators.

"These are individually operated also," said Miss Schauland. "After the students complete their lesson, they are questioned as to comprehension."

In addition to rate and comprehension, students will be able to expand their vocabulary through word analysis.

"Through this process, they take an unknown word and try to determine its meaning and pronunciation," said Miss Schauland.

Another device, Flash-X, will be provided for student use. This enables an individual to increase his perception and recall.

The student sees a set of two or three scrambled letters in 1-25 of a second and must recall what he saw. Students can increase up to seven or nine characters.

Several materials are being supplied by the Science Research Associates. "We'll be using their reading books which are at different levels of instruction," said Miss Schauland.

Students will have individual assignments written on cards that will refer them to books, material on file, or the machines.

"Students enrolled in the lab will receive individual counseling," said Miss Schauland. Dr. Gene Byrd felt that a need existed in the community for such a program.

Dr. Byrd, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said, "Many common comments of college teachers is that their students do poorly because they can't read."

"This reading lab is set up to aid students at all levels in their reading from those who have reading ability deficiencies to those who are good readers but want to improve their speed," said Dr. Byrd.

This is a regular college credit course and will be expanding to more than just one course. Several sections will be offered in the fall, and a similar reading program will be offered through Adult Vocational Education and Community Service programs.

"This is the most appropriate place to start to get the right mental attitude for reading challenges in the future," said Miss Schauland.

the Board of Ministry Report on Ministerial Education Tuesday afternoon, to be followed by the Report of the District Superintendents.

Wednesday's morning business session will include Council on Ministries Reports and Advance Specials, and ordaining of elders and deacons.

The Board of Ministry Reports will be presented Wednesday afternoon. A Health and Welfare Agencies Dinner, an official session of the conference, is slated Wednesday evening at the Amarillo Senior Citizens' Center at 1300 South Polk Street.

Thursday's agenda includes the Board of Pensions Report and Board of Ministry Reports, Report of the Statistician, Conference Treasurer and Council on Finance and Administration, and Board of Ministry Reports on equitable salaries, conference relations policy and lay pastors' committee.

New pastoral appointments will be read at the evening session on Thursday by Bishop Carleton.

Methodists To Solve Delegate Situation

The Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church will take action on equalizing the number of lay and clergy delegates when it gathers in Amarillo at Polk Street United Methodist Church June 4-6.

The conference will develop its own plan for increasing the number of lay members in keeping with the decision of the denomination's 1972 General Conference that called for an equal number of lay-clergy delegates in the 76 annual conferences of the nation.

Theme for the 65th session of the Northwest Texas Conference will be "Never Failing."

Dr. Alsie H. Carleton, bishop of the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Annual Conference, will preside over the three-day session.

Conference preacher will be Dr. J. Kenneth Shamblin, minister of St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Houston.

A dinner meeting and caucus for special appointees has been scheduled for Monday, June 3, between 6 and 8 p.m. with Dr. Robert W. Thornburg and Dr. James E. Kirby speaking. Dr. Thornburg is from Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. Kirby from Oklahoma State.

Preceding the official opening session of the conference on Tuesday morning (June 4), the Conference Council on Ministries will hold an 8 a.m. meeting.

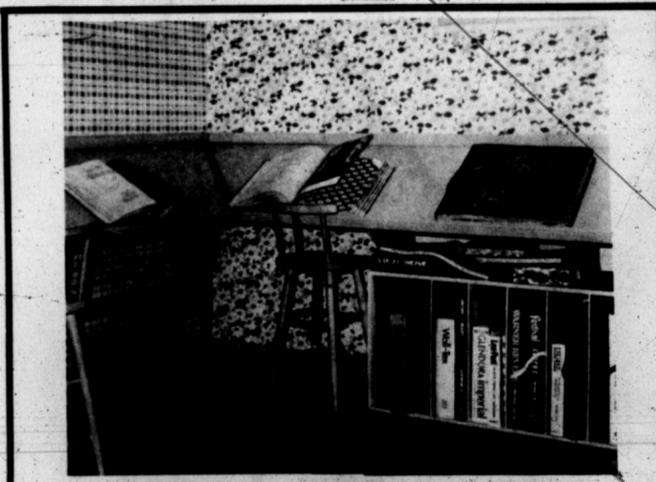

The opening session of the conference is scheduled for Tuesday at 10 a.m. with the Service of Holy Communion and the Memorial Service. Rev. A.B. Coggrell from Vernon First Methodist will deliver the morning sermon.

Dr. Shamblin is slated to preach Tuesday evening, Wednesday morning and evening, and Thursday morning. Dr. Thornburg will speak for

Get ready to see a remarkable change in the landscape of this country over the next few years. Windmills will spring up across the countryside as air-power becomes an alternative source of energy. The idea isn't as absurd as many would believe. Windchargers were commonplace on farms and ranches in the late 30's until cheap gasoline and diesel fuel became available and the REA expanded its service.

that windmills will never replace the oil, coal and nuclear powered electric generating plants of today, nor do they see windmills becoming a practical source of energy for individual homes. Windmill supporters do believe that air-powered generators will be useful as a supplemental source of energy and that, by the year 2000, windmills could be producing as much as 1 per cent of our total energy requirements.

Scientists estimate that a windmill with 50-ft long blades would generate 100 kilowatts in a 20 mph wind. But the same blade would produce 800 kilowatts in a 40 mph wind. Another experimental design with 125-ft blades moving 200 mph at the tips would produce 1,000 kilowatts in a 20 mph wind.

ONE EASTERN ELECTRIC utility has concluded that a 250-kw windmill would not only be feasible, but also competitive with 30 cents per gallon fuel oil. The utility is paying 24 cents per gallon now. Offshore drilling rigs are also likely locations for windmill generated electricity. Another experimental scheme calls for a 1,000-kw windmill hooked up to an air compressor which would pump air under pressure into abandoned oil wells or mines. Electricity would then be generated during peak periods by releasing the air to power gas-turbine generators.

NEWS REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Nixon's decision to release to the public as well as a House committee transcripts of lusty conversations on Watergate was a master stroke in his public relations struggle with the Democratic Congress.

Even James Reston, New York Times columnist (and the Times has been all-out against the President) admitted the Nixon move was a brilliant one. In releasing this spicy data to the public, Nixon took away its exclusiveness from House Judiciary Committee investigators—who would have liked to periodically release tidbits and get headlines for months.

Nixon knew he was faced with another showboating politicians' committee, set to utilize television and all the spice. He had gone through that with Sam Erwin's Watergate Committee in the Senate.

The Judiciary Committee has a hundred lawyers, all frothing at the mouth to uncover anything uncoverable and win national headlines. Since the committee is Democratic-controlled and this is an election year, Nixon knew he was up against the inevitable sensationalism and rumor, which has so far been a major addition to the admitted scandal of Watergate.

Therefore, he released transcripts of private presidential conversations on a scale never before done by any President in office. And when he offered to allow Committee Chairman Peter Rodino and the ranking Republican member of the committee to hear all tapes the committee has requested—to verify that his transcripts were complete and accurate, he struck another telling blow.

A hit heads for home-run territory in the first hours of a marathon slow pitch softball game being played in Hereford's Veterans Park. The Hereford Men's Slow Pitch Softball League will play until Monday night, or 72 continuous hours, in an effort to raise funds for the newly organized

Tourney Signup Still Open

Registration is still open for the Partnership Tournament to be played June 1 and 2 at Hereford's city course, according to course pro Cal Garrett. Although the tourney will be limited to 100 teams, there have only been 60 entrants to date for the 36 hole contest. Registration will be cut-off at 100 teams, or late Friday afternoon. Eighteen holes will be played Saturday, and eighteen Sunday, with the teams being flighted after the first day's round. Entry fee for the low-ball tourney is $45 per team. Saturday night a barbecue for the contestants will be held in the Knights of Columbus hall, with a party to follow.

Hereford Amateur Athletic Association. Soon after this shot was taken, the players were soaked with rain and hail that fell Friday night. All persons are invited to watch or participate in the game.

Swim Classes For All Ages At WT

The West Texas Swim Team Program for all ages initiates its first season this summer with registration June 2 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the WTSU Activities Center. Head Swim Coach Bruce Bove described the competitive swim training classes as a great place "for exercise and companionship" and summer fun. Morning and afternoon swim practices will be held Monday through Friday through August 18 (11 weeks), and will consist of conditioning, stroke instruction, starts, turns and instruction in other pertinent areas.

The morning class will be specifically for swimmers with competitive backgrounds, and runs from 8 to 10 a.m. The afternoon class begins at 4 p.m. for swimmers who wish to learn the techniques of competitive swimming, with special emphasis on stroke training. The classes are open to all ages. "They don't have to be good swimmers," Bove noted, "but they do need to know how to swim."

The West Texas Swim Team is affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Union, and members will have the opportunity to compete in a number of local, state-wide and national swim meets throughout the summer. The team will practice in the WTSU 50-meter pool located in the Student Activities Center. Each swimmer will be given individualized instruction and attention. For one student 11 years and older, the monthly fee is $10 pool rental, $8 for coaching and $2 for equipment. The second swimmer from a family pays pool rental and coaching, and the third pays only pool rental. For swimmers, 10 years old and younger, the monthly fees are $5 pool rental, $8 coaching and $2 for equipment with a similar graduated charge decrease with each additional family member. The pool rental fee is based on two practices per day, and will be adjusted if only one is desired.

Coach Bruce Bove has coached swimmers of all ages, from six years through college-age men and women. Currently head swimming and diving coach at West Texas State University, Coach Bove has served as head swimming coach at Boeing Swim Club in Kansas City, Kansas. He also served as assistant swimming coach at the University of Kansas for two years and head diving coach and assistant swimming coach for the Amarillo Public Schools.

Bove's 14 years of experience began in Kansas, where he swam in various clubs through high school. He then accepted a swimming scholarship to the University of Kansas, where he competed for four years and was captain of the team his senior year. In 1970, he was selected to the "All Big-Eight" Swimming Team in the 500 and 1650 yard freestyle events.

City Tennis Registration

A city tennis tournament held in Hereford June 27-30 will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. There will be six divisions of play in both singles and doubles, in men's and women's divisions, as well as a mixed doubles. Deadline for entries is June 25, and must be turned in either at the Chamber of Commerce or at the Brogue in the Sugarland Mall. For more information, contact tourney directors Steve Thomas and Burns Hamilton of the Chamber of Commerce office.

Rocket Car To Run At Drags

A 330-mile-per-hour rocket car, Army versus Navy, and a mad Canadian that jumps trucks in a car are just a few of the upcoming events at Amarillo Dragway.

Strip manager Tuggie Tuckness has lined up a summer-full of fun for car enthusiasts of all types, as well as a summer program of National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) drag racing.

Jon Paxson, drag racing's "Rocket man," will bring his hydrogen peroxide-powered car to the dragstrip Sunday, June 2. The super-lightweight car is capable of speeds up to 326 miles-an-hour in the quarter mile, and covers the distance in 4.8 seconds.

The Irwindale, Calif., based car is not like some of the jet-cars of earlier years. Instead of a bulky, heavy jet engine, the rocket car is powered by a small rocket engine in a lightweight chassis.

The car's builder claims it if it was stood on end and fired, the car would go 45 miles straight up!

Safety devices on the car include a double cut-off-brake system. When Paxson straps himself in the car, he attaches a cable to each hand that pulls an engine cutoff and drag-chute release. Then if one fails, the other is available as a backup.

Because of the machine's light weight, not only does it accelerate quickly, but it also stops quickly. When the chutes are pulled, two pop out behind the car, and it stops from 300 miles-an-hour in the length of a city block.

An Army versus Navy night will help to kickoff the weekly Friday night racing program this summer. Since the all-volunteer armed services came into being, both the Army and Navy have been active in drag racing as a promotion to gain enlistees.

The Army has procured Don "The Snake" Prudhomme and the Navy has signed Tom "The Mongoose" McEwen to battle it out with their fuel dragsters that Friday. Along with the pro racers, the Army will fly in helicopters that will drop frisbee-like flying saucers on the crowd.

Ken Carter, the Mad Canadian, will attempt a world record auto jump on Sunday, July 7. Carter will try to jump 13 trucks in an automobile.

74 WT Season Tickets on Sale

Orders for 1974 West Texas State University season football tickets are now being accepted by the athletic department ticket office.

Those persons who hold season football tickets from 1973 have until June 15 to renew those ticket locations.

Orders which are presently being received will be assigned ticket locations on a first come, first serve basis following the June 15 deadline for renewals.

The Buffaloes host five opponents this fall, including three Missouri Valley Conference rivals. The Buffs open their season on the road Sept. 14 at Des Moines, Iowa, against MVC opponent Drake.

The Buffs open their home schedule Sept. 21 against New Mexico State University, another conference foe. Other home games are Sept. 28 against Wichita State, Oct. 5 against Southern Mississippi University, Nov. 2 against Lamar University and Nov. 16 against North Texas State University.

Wichita State and North Texas State are the other two conference opponents at home for the Buffaloes of coach Gene Mayfield.

The games against New Mexico State, Wichita State and Southern Mississippi start at 7:30 p.m., while the final two contests—against Lamar and North Texas State—will have a 1:30 starting time.

Season tickets for the five home games are $25 for chair seats and $20 for bench seats, which is a savings of one dollar per game on tickets purchased by the individual game. The regular price of chair seats is $6, but when purchased as a season ticket the price is $5. Bench seats regularly sell for $5, but are $4 when sold as season tickets.

West Texas State faces six opponents on the road this fall, including three MVC members. Besides Drake on Sept. 14, the Buffaloes play at Tulsa Oct. 19 and Louisville Nov. 30 in other MVC games.

Non-conference road games are against Idaho Oct. 12, Utah State Oct. 26 and Tampa Nov. 9.

Season ticket requests should be sent to the West Texas State University Ticket Office, P.O. Box 4, W.T. Station, Canyon, Tex. 79016. The athletic ticket office number is 656-3436.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS Grange made pro football

By BILL CONLIN
Copley News Service

Would today's effete football players, who complain about a Monday night game and then "doubling back" to play again on Sunday, understand Red Grange?

It is doubtful.

But the game owes much to Grange, the Wheaton Iceman who made football professional.

He was the first big name in the business and, launched by promoter C. C. Pyle, he showed the starving pioneers how to make chicken salad out of feathers.

In just two weeks, after his senior year at University of Illinois, Grange played this schedule:

City	Opponents	Attendance
Chicago	Columbus	28,000
St. Louis	St. Louis	8,000
Philadelphia	Frankford	35,000
New York	Giants	65,000
Washington	Washington	8,000
Boston	Providence	25,000
Detroit	Detroit	6,000
Chicago	Giants	18,000

A year later, having caught lightning in a bottle, Grange was in Sacramento, playing against Ernie Nevers in old Moreing Field.

Anything for a buck. But he made pro football.

At last accounting, Grange was in rich retirement at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Old Iceman has earned it.

Imagine that gruelling schedule of 1926, starting immediately after Thanksgiving, when the redhead contracted to play eight games in 15 days!

Were the old-timers made of sterner stuff?

Not necessarily, but they were a different breed.

The carryover owner of Pittsburgh Steelers, Art Rooney, who is presently everybody's hero, best explains it:

"In the old days, we'd have a meeting — me and Tim Mara (New York Giants), George Halas of the Bears, Bert Bell of the Eagles, Charley Bidwell of the Cardinals and George Marshall of the Redskins. We'd sit around and discuss what to do, and then we'd do it. Now, every owner comes into a league meeting with one squad of lawyers and one squad of accountants. One man can't run it anymore."

Apocryphally, there is a story told about Rooney, when the NFL held one of its early meetings in a New York hotel. It was to be an all-day session, and lunch had been ordered. Rooney excused himself to go to the bathroom. He never returned. Later, they found him at the Belmont race track.

No, football folks in a rough game and business don't pamper themselves, except with attorneys and business agents.

But the old order changeth, from the days of Red Grange, and there are many notable instances.

Consider the incidental of quarterbacks "warming up," which has come to be a common practice along the sidelines.

Many years ago we interviewed Y. A. Tittle, then with the 49ers and a pretty fair country passer. How many years ago, we don't recall, nor the circumstances. We do recall it was in the old Sacramento Hotel, because we dragged Y. A. out of a banquet and we both sat on the balcony, opposite the old KROY radio studios, and the conversation went something like this:

Q — You, along with other quarterbacks, have a very valuable arm. It makes you $25,000 a year. Why don't you breed, like baseball pitchers, take better care of it?

A — I dunno. Just never thought of it. I'm a football player. Those pitching prima donnas you talk about throw curves and knuckleballs. Maybe they need the clinical attention.

Q — It would seem that football throwers, just like baseball pitchers, would be susceptible to sore arms. Your wing ever hurt?

A — Naw, except at the beginning of the year, or when you go in cold. We're different, I tell you, we're football players. And we're used to pain. If I didn't ache after a game, it wouldn't be Monday.

Q — You've thrown a million passes, more or less, on the money. But wouldn't it improve your accuracy to warm up and practice tossing at a spot?

A — I really don't think so. You see, a passer doesn't throw a football out of a regular stance. He throws off-balance, over-hand, side-armed and sometimes when he's standing on his head.

Q — But you use the same arm all the time. Don't you worry about straining it, getting a sore arm?

A — Never thought about it. I just go out and throw. Kickers don't warm up, do they? No, we just go out and throw. But you might have a point, since you bring up the baseball analogy of pitchers.

Q — I hope you don't succumb to the baseball syndrome. Ever been in a ball club's clubhouse? Every pitcher, and there are 10 of them, has his arm and shoulder in the whirlpool.

A — I'm not a baseball pitcher. I'm a football thrower. I don't need to warm up.

That was, as we now estimate, 12-15 years ago. QBs then were less valuable. They were, in the case of Y. A. Tittle, only making 25 big ones a year.

H<sup>3</sup> / HUSTLE HUSTLE HUSTLE

By Bill Albright, Executive Vice President Deaf Smith County Chamber Of Commerce

Hustlin' Hereford High! Inez and I watched the class of '74 graduate on Thursday night. No, we didn't have any of our own in the class. Yet we felt a kinship to all those fine young folks who walked away with that precious diploma. That may sound a bit strange considering we've had five of our own graduates from other high schools. But there's a special brand of pride connected with Hereford High School and its been evident to us during our first year in Hereford.

I'd like to share with you some observations which I believe are indicative of a proud institution. Conduct at athletic events reflects a high degree of sportsmanship; no booing of opposing teams or close official decisions, providing and serving soft drinks to visiting bands, mature conduct and courtesy in the stands; enthusiastic team support by the student body.

During school hours, I've had the privilege to visit the high school. Hall conduct is a good measure of overall attitude and I found no pushing, running or yelling-courtesy prevails; I've talked to groups in the classroom and in the auditorium. Their response has been alert, courteous, interested and intelligent. I've met these same students on the streets and in the shops and stores of Hereford and the story's the same courteous, respectful, decent and clean.

I think the greatest tribute to our High School was summed up in remarks made by Jesse Owens, World Famous Olympic Track Star, following the All Sports Banquet last month. He said he had not seen a finer group of young people in all his travels—he was impressed with their dress and grooming, their total appearance, their pleasant attitude, their courtesy and their confidence; and without boisterousness, strutting and swaggering. He said it was refreshing and reassuring to be with people like that. I told him that we are very proud of our greatest natural resource, our young people and that they reflect the general spirit of our entire community.

There's one more thing I think you'd like to know. Inez and I counted a total of 22 elementary and secondary schools that our children have attended over the years. These schools are located in 15 different communities in California, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana and Germany. Now that doesn't make us experts by any means but it surely gives us a broad perspective on public education. What I'd like you to know is that the Hereford Independent School System is the finest we have experienced. And that goes a long way toward producing a superior class of high school graduates.

So congratulations to the Class of 1974. You are well prepared to enter a world of competition as you retain the values, knowledge and spirit you've demonstrated at Hereford's Hustlin' High, and as you apply that all important ingredient of Hustle Hustle Hustle.

Plains region, youth and sponsors from the Hereford branch will congregate at Plum Creek near Lake Meredith Saturday.

There, the junior high and high school age students will trek across the hills and plains in the area for several miles, walking and pulling handcarts as did hundreds of the Mormon pioneers who headed from Iowa and other areas towards Salt Lake Valley in Utah.

The project has been planned by youth in the church's seminary program, a class of religious instruction for students 14 to 18 years of age.

In addition to the trek, participants will eat pioneer food and conduct pioneer dancing and games. The days activities, to begin about 10:30 a.m., will conclude in the late afternoon with a speaker and a testimony meeting for the youth.

Youth To Sample Pioneer Struggles

Young members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormons) will get a chance to taste the struggles and hardships endured by early members of the Church and by participating in a pioneer trek.

Joining others from the Lubbock Texas Stake, which includes most of the Texas Panhandle and part of the South

HHS Unveils Round-Up '74

Round-Up '74, the Hereford High School yearbook which was recently presented to students, revealed Franklin Higgins and Debbie Gamez as Most Handsome and Most Beautiful.

Higgins and Miss Gamez were selected from four other nominees by Joe Namath, quarterback for the New York Jets. HHS students nominated these classmates for the honors: Cindy Hairgrove, Nancy Barrett, Miss Gamez, Jim Marsh, John Stoy and Higgins.

The 264-page annual was compiled by a staff of students sponsored by Mrs. Elaine White. The book, which was divided into nine sections, centered around the theme "Awakening".

Santa Fe Income Up $10 Million

Net income of Santa Fe Industries, Inc., for the first four months of 1974 was $37.5 million or $1.46 per share, compared with $27.3 million or $1.07 per share for the same period in 1973, John S. Reed, chairman and chief executive officer, reported at the company's annual meeting in Chicago.

Reed reported that Santa Fe Railway, Industries' largest subsidiary, experienced a turnaround in April due to freight rate increases, consisting of fuel surcharges and a 4 per cent general rate increase granted in March. During the first three months of this year, railway operating income was down compared with 1973, although business volume was slightly higher than last year. In April operating income exceeded April of 1973 by 18 per cent, although carload volume handled was approximately equal to last year's. "An additional rate increase which is expected to be effective early in June should assure that the remainder of the year for the railway will follow the pattern set in April," he predicted.

In discussing the rest of Santa Fe's transportation group, Reed reported that trucking operations are being conducted at a modest profit and Chaparral Pipeline remains profitable, which leaves Gulf Central Pipeline remains profitable, which leaves Gulf Central Pipeline as the only present deficit operation of consequence. Volume of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer handled by Gulf Central is growing, and demand is quite high, but there is simply not enough ammonia available at the present time to make the line profitable, he said.

Turning to the natural resources group, Reed noted that for the first time in the history of Santa Fe Industries, in the first four months of this year income from petroleum operations just about equaled income derived from all other subsidiaries combined. He said this had led to an expansion of staff and capital devoted to exploration and development of new energy supplies.

The company obtained its first interest in offshore Louisiana mineral leases as a member of a successful bidding group during the federal government's recent lease sale. Test drilling is now getting under way on these tracts.

Santa Fe plans to participate in future bidding for offshore leases and is evaluating opportunities in Alaska and elsewhere. Steps are also under way to market a portion of the 370 million tons of low sulphur coal owned by Santa Fe in New Mexico.

Over 83 per cent of the outstanding stock was represented in person or by proxy at the meeting. Four directors were elected for three-year terms. They were Ernest S. Marsh, retired chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Santa Fe, Chicago; John T. Rettaliata, chairman of the board, Banco di Roma, Chicago; Edward F. Swift, executive vice president and director, Esmark, Inc., Chicago; and Arthur W. Woelfle, president, chief operating officer and director, Kraftco Corp., Glenview, Ill.

History Alive At WT

The daredevil stunts of Hollywood cowboy Tom Mix and the smell of popcorn wafting from an antique popcorn wagon will be just a few of the Sunday afternoon "living history" summer programs planned at the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum.

"Museums are not places for dead objects and dead exhibits," says Dr. James Hanson, associate director of the Museum. "It is a live part of the community. We want to encourage public involvement in history."

The programs will run every Sunday afternoon June 2 through August 25, with showings at 2:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the Museum Annex's lower floor.

On June 2, the program will be "Ranching on the Spur Ranch," a film about early ranching which will be introduced by WTSU History Professor Garry Nall.

Hanson noted that most of the programs will be introduced by experts in the fields to "set the stage, and to show the significance and the place in history."

Later programs include two films on Palo Duro Canyon June 9, performances by the musical drama "Texas" cast members June 16, a 1914 Tom Mix film "In the Days of the Thundering West" on June 23, the Museum's Popcorn Wagon out on the lawn June 30, and "The Return of Draw Egan," a 1917 William S. Hart movie on July 7.

Address Is Important

A news article in The Thursday Brand brings to light a problem that needs to be corrected in our community. The problem is "misplaced street addresses", and it is a situation that firemen and police have been aware of for some time.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain reported that a number of incorrect street numbers can be found on South Main, Avenue K, Westhaven, Cherokee Drive and 25 Mile Avenue. City Manager Dudley Bayne reports the best way to solve the problem is for individuals with incorrect numbers to change them.

It might not be so bad if an out-of-town relative, or friend couldn't find your address, but if an emergency should arise an incorrect house number could result in property damage, injuries or deaths. The fireman, police, ambulance drivers, or doctors may need to find the address without delay.

If you know your house or business number, to be incorrect, takes steps to see that proper identification is made.

Pride Has Rewards

At a time when interest rates are going out of sight, homeowners may be reluctant to borrow money for repairs and renovation of their homes.

But a savings and loan company official was quoted in an area newspaper as saying this could be the best investment a homeowner or owner of rental property could make.

Value of a home depends not only on its state of repair, but the condition of homes in the same block, up and down the street. Once repairs are neglected, the tendency is for neighbors to put off making repairs and the lack of pride grows like a cancer.

Money spent in repairs and upkeep, even at today's high interest rates, is a good investment. Without repairs, the decrease in value of the property will soon amount to more than the repairs would have cost. Mowing the lawn and pruning the trees is also a sound investment, because outward appearances, at least, of their houses. Property values in the neighborhood are maintained. Not far away, maybe in the same section of town, other property has been neglected. The lawn has died out; weeds are growing and trees are full of dead limbs.

Some occupants — owners or renters — think so little of their property that cars are parked in the yard and trash is littered around the place. There is a place for pride, even in a rented home.

The cure is not so much in community action but with the individual occupant, and the owner of each piece of property taking the steps to restore pride. The financial return is worth the effort.

Handouts Vs. Hand Labor

Known as one of the richest men in the world, Jean Paul Getty commented a short time ago that, "I think money invested in a company that gives employment to people and good merchandise at a reasonable price is better invested than it would be in charities. I think people want jobs more than they want charity. If I am remembered at all, it will be because I created a lot of jobs for a lot of people."

Getty's words express a fundamental truth that many explain in some measure the dismally low esteem in which a majority of Americans hold their elected public officials today. For longer than most of those now living can remember, candidates for public office have promised bigger and better handouts to the people. Government gifts, grants and subsidies touch practically everyone. The welfare state has bred inflation, bitterness and corruption: It seems that the bigger and more costly the social programs become the less confidence the people have in those who propose and enact them.

Someday the politicians may learn the truth of Getty's words, that "... people want jobs more than they want charity." They also want individual independence, which they cannot have under a welfare state system.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

"Streaking by college students makes more sense than ... lying down in front of Army trucks. And it's a wonderful way to tell the boys from the girls, which we haven't been able to do for a decade. But how come photographers never get on-coming pictures of streakers at work? All of them are rear view pictures. If I had assigned a photographer to cover a parade and he came back with a picture of its disappearing in the distance I'd fire him. Newsweek ran a picture of a dozen streakers ... taken from the rear, of course. It looked more like a platter of Parker House rolls. Remember when if a kid in college had a B.A. it was only a college degree?" HEPPNER, ORE., GAZETTE-TIMES

"I thought when young that when I got to be grown I would make decisions for myself. It was a low blow when I grew up to discover that most decisions are influenced by many circumstances, over which we have little or no control." DUKE, OKLA., TIMES

"Passing laws as a remedy for just any problem has become something of a habit, it would seem. But the futility of legislation, either in changing human nature or focusing attention on potentially better ways to achieve, keep slapping supporters down. In looking back, we may note that the strength of ... the nation is mainly dependent on the ability of ordinary citizens to respond to problems, individually and collectively. With so much confusion in the air, hopefully most residents will want to help reach a solution, rather than add to the problem." AUBURN, NEBR., PRESS-TRIBUNE

"The pollsters seem to keep busy these days asking people if they approve or disapprove of the President's performance of his official duties. This may serve a good purpose, but we wonder if they couldn't ask a new question for a change: "like do you or do you not approve of our congressman or senator's performance in office? ... If we supposedly have three equal branches of government, why not give equal attention to the actions or inactions of the legislative or judicial, along with the executive?" LENNOX, S.D., INDEPENDENT

The Impact Behind Memorial Day

The history of our Nation is a history of courageous men who put personal liberty above all else—and who were willing, if need be, to lay down their lives for it.

From the War For Independence to, and including the recent Vietnam War, whenever Americans have seen the dignity of the individual endangered by totalitarianism, they have not hesitated to take up arms to protect the precious freedoms on which our America was founded.

THIS YEAR, as we honor the memory of all Americans who, down through the years, have given their lives in the cause of human freedom, let us remind ourselves of our constant obligation to guard well the ideals and principles for which those Americans fought and died.

Some Americans believe it is fashionable today to be "right on" with the left liberal movement and political militant groups in ridiculing anything connected with patriotism, law and order, the military and patriotic holidays in general. Americans who ignore or even ridicule our war dead should be reminded that they have their free speech and their good life today only because of the sacrifices of those who were willing to fight and, if necessary, to die for those precious rights.

Those who are continuously nit-picking and finding fault with our Nation today, should count their blessings and imagine what America and Europe would be like if Germany had won in World War I or II. If these dead had not given their lives in the winning of it, God knows how vile and brutalizing to mankind the past half century could have been!

ONE READS OF battered babies and remember young Americans who were killed in war, before they could know the joys of fatherhood, and wonder if they would have fought with the same determined spirit had they known that the freedom for which they were fighting would be so cruelly abused.

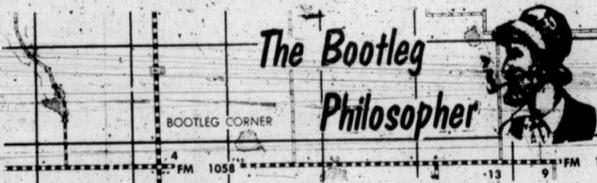

It would be a sad mockery indeed if, through indifference or plain neglect, we, the living, ever permitted the way of life for which Americans have given their life's blood to be destroyed by the very ideologies against which those Americans battled to the death.

The sincerest tribute we can pay to America's war dead is to appreciate what our American system of individual freedom, opportunity and enterprise really means to each of us. The Americans who died for our Nation believed in a better future. It is up to you to "Be Counted Again" and work for this future!

Fact and Opinion

According to the Arizona Farm Bureau Federation, "Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz contends America will always be a good place to buy food products because: 'We haven't learned yet on our farms how to goldbrick on the job. We haven't learned yet how to have two drivers in a tractor cab. We haven't learned yet to punch the clock at 40 hours. We haven't learned yet to go out to the cow and say, 'Look, Bossy, I've got to be gone over the weekend. Let's shut her off for three days. As long as we haven't learned these things, we're going to be a good source of food and fiber for all the peoples of the world.'"

"The drunken driver," reports a publication of the Farmers Elevator Mutual Insurance Company, "is the most deadly killer on the highway. At any given time, it is estimated that only four or five percent of the drivers on the road are drunk. However, this group is responsible for at least half of the highway deaths that occur each year."

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith grass farm on Bootleg corner discusses progress this week, but we can't tell whether he's for or against it.

Dear editor:

It doesn't concern me but I was interested in a brief news item I read the other day reporting that printers on the New York Daily News, the country's largest newspaper, were on strike against automation.

As I understand it, some bird who wasn't satisfied to leave well enough alone has invented a printing process that almost eliminates printers, especially Linotype operators. It uses some sort of photo process which I'm not about to try to comprehend. I haven't figured out yet what makes a telephone work, when it does.

ANYWAY, seeing a threat to their jobs, the Linotype operators struck, forgetting I guess that when the Linotype was first invented the hand-set printers struck for the same reason, just as I suppose the scroll-writers did when hand-set type was invented, or the wandering minstrels did when the scroll-writers appeared. If they'd left the minstrels in charge we wouldn't have had all this trouble.

Some people contend that progress is like the frog trying to get out of a well by falling back five feet every time he jumps but just as he nears the top somebody adds two more feet to the well curbing.

And even if by some Herculean effort he someday actually does clear the top and land in the open, most likely he'll find somebody waiting there hungry for frog legs.

However there is such a thing as progress. Have you ever stopped to think how few frogs are now confronted with the task of jumping out of wells because most people now get their water through pipes?

Oh, there are some backward countries still using open wells and I suppose from a theoretical standpoint you, can say no frog is free till all frogs are free, still. I believe I'd rather have an open well than to go thirsty, even if I have to get my frog legs at the supermarket.

I'm not sure this makes sense but I guess you could clear it up by furnishing your readers an edited transcript of it.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Talk of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

FOOTNOTE TO HISTORY — Kennedy County once was known as "America's Forbidden Kingdom."

For almost 90 years the huge South Texas county (1,407 square miles) literally was "off limits" to anybody but invited guests. No highway crossed the vast county and armed guards kept a careful watch on the fences that marked the borders.

The feudal-like "kingdom" had its beginnings in the 1850's when the five families whose ranch holdings comprise most of the present county made a pact that they would never permit a railroad or a highway to cross their property. In 1921, when Kennedy County was created by the Legislature from parts of Cameron, Hidalgo and Willacy Counties, it encompassed the headquarters of the Armstrong, Garcia, Kennedy, King and Yurrias ranches.

Creation of the new county didn't affect the old pact. The ranchers still agreed that they would never permit a road across their lands.

For almost 20 years travelers between Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande Valley had to make a 100-mile detour around Kennedy County. The highway simply made a 90-degree turn at the county line. Trespassers were kept off ranch roads by the guards.

In 1940, the ranchers relented and U.S. Highway 77 was built across Kennedy County. Even today, however, that segment of the road which crosses the county is one of the loneliest in Texas. The 57 miles between Riviera, in Kleberg County on the north, and Raymondville, in Willacy County on the south, doesn't even boast a gasoline station.

TEXAS FIRST? — Clarence English, the great-great-great nephew of Daniel Boone, inherited some of his ancestor's adventuresome spirit. Mr. English may have been the first Texan to take a bride 2,000 feet above the earth.

On July 14, 1928, English and Miss Myra Mae Childress of McKinney, Collin County, were married aboard a tri-motored Ford airplane as it circled above Dallas. Then they had the pilot fly the wedding party of ten over to the bride's home in McKinney before returning to Dallas for the wedding reception.

The bridegroom, a pioneer in the bus and trucking industry in Texas, was a pilot himself and was one of the first Texans to use a private airplane for business trips.

TEXANS AT LARGE — One of England's highest paid models is a native of Harlingen who stands only 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weighs 240 pounds.

She is Fran Fullenwider and she has been posing for advertising photos in London for 15 years. She also does television commercials for everything from sleeping pills to furs.

Ms. Fullenwider claims to be the fattest model in the world.

AERIAL STOCKYARDS — Houston's International Airport has the only facility in Texas from which cattle may be air shipped out of the U.S.

Built and operated by the Texas Department of Agriculture, the air shipping station includes pens that will hold up to 300 head.

The livestock is checked by a veterinarian, fed and prepared for flight and then moved from the pens to a plane especially equipped for their comfort in travel.

Main Street, U.S.A.

By Bert Mills

Infringement of an individual's right of privacy — the right to be let alone — has been challenged by scholars for decades but the demands of our modern world have chipped away at this cornerstone of democracy until there is little left.

It used to be true that the Federal government intruded only slightly into the affairs of its citizens. But now Big Daddy knows practically everything about everybody, or can find out, and the right of privacy seems about to disappear. The computer is responsible to a major degree.

Back in the '30's, a Social Security law was enacted. It was a good idea, to provide minimum income for the elderly. But every worker had to have a number and ever since the use of those numbers has multiplied. Now most people have memorized their own number because they have to use it so often for reasons unconnected with old age benefits.

If you take a job, you must supply your number. If you don't have one, you must get one to be employed. When you file your Federal and State tax returns, they must bear your Social Security number. Likewise when you open a savings account, buy stocks or bonds, apply for an automobile license, etc.

Most people are so used to giving out their Social Security number that they don't object. But if they stop and think they will realize they have sacrificed a bit of their personal liberty. In fact, they have allowed Big Daddy to use those nine numbers in all sorts of ways.

Most laymen don't understand computers nor have any comprehension of what can result when everybody has a number, as practically every adult American does today. By feeding these numbers into a machine, the Federal government can practically write a person's life history.

The Census Bureau, of course, has your number. It also knows when and where you were born, who your parents were, how many brothers or sisters you have or had, when you were married, if ever and to whom, where you have lived, and a great deal more. Unlike other agencies, however, Census does not disclose its personal information, even to other branches of government.

The Social Security Administration, which gave you the number in the first place, knows your entire work history, even if you are self-employed and not an employee of somebody else. Social Security also knows your age, your family situation if you ever applied for benefits, and a great deal more.

Internal Revenue Service, using that same Social Security number, knows all about you and your dependents from the time you became a taxpayer. That information can be used against an individual, for reasons other than collecting taxes. If you ever registered for military service or served in the armed forces, Selective Service, the Department of Defense, and the Veterans Administration know about you. The Federal Bureau of Investigation not only has your number but probably your fingerprints as well. Maybe the Central Intelligence Agency also has your number, or the Passport Office, Customs Bureau, or any of scores of other departments and agencies.

The list could go on and on but the point is obvious. The right of privacy isn't what it used to be. Rep. Jack Kemp (R-N.Y.), a former pro football quarterback who is now one of the brightest young men in Congress, has delved into the right of privacy and published a discourse on the subject.

He has also sponsored a series of bills to curb the power of Uncle Sam to infringe on personal liberties. His bills include a Right to Financial Privacy Act, a Code of Fair Information Practices, and a bill to forbid disclosure of a person's Social Security number without that person's express consent, unless required by a specific provision of law.

The Kemp bills are all gathering dust in various Congressional pigeon-holes. But if the voters had their way, Congress would act to stem the governmental onslaught on the right of privacy.

Junebug Christened 'Meanest Around'

BY ROBERT L. HANEY
The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station

"Junebug" or "May beetle" may be what most farmers call one of the most common, destructive insects on the Texas Rolling Plains. Its common name is carrot beetle and entomologists call it Bothynus gibbosus but it's a destructive nuisance by any name.

Though not so numerous on the High Plains, it's still the main hold up to commercial sunflower production.

It is found all over the U.S., northern Mexico and southern Canada but it seems to do especially well on the High and Rolling Plains. On the Rolling Plains it may sometimes number several hundred thousand beetles per acre.

THE CARROT BEETLE not only destroys carrots; it goes after beets, potatoes (sweet and Irish), celery, parsnips, small grains, corn, tomatoes, peppers, cantaloupes, watermelon, cotton, and commercial sunflowers. And it also feeds on the roots of a large number of native plants, further boosting its numbers. Much secondary damage to desirable plants is caused by skunks, possums, coons, and coyotes digging up the beetles for food.

This pest is so numerous and destructive that the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station has several scientists researching ways to control or contain it. One of these is an entomologist, Charlie E. Rogers, at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Chillicothe-Vernon.

Rogers says so far no chemical they've used seems to faze the carrot beetle. It just keeps right on digging innumerable holes in the ground, eating roots, and killing or damaging whole fields of plants. But the Experiment Station will test other chemicals, until an effective one is found.

MEANWHILE, on the biological front things look more encouraging. Rogers says TAES researchers have discovered two species of parasitic flies and one species of mite that parasitizes adult beetles. Also, three or four species of ground beetles were found hatching among carrot beetle eggs. The larvae of these ground beetles prey on the immature carrot beetles. And, as yet unidentified fungus or bacterium killed a large number of both carrot larvae and adults. Eggs are sometimes attacked by a fungus and fail to hatch.

"Though as yet no chemical seems to control this pest," Rogers says, "we will continue to check for one that does. And we will expand our search for natural enemies of the beetle that, perhaps with our help, can multiply and bring this pest under control."

"MEANWHILE, our past research indicates some measures we're taking to combat this pest:

1. Clean cultivate in and surrounding field crops to eliminate native sunflower and careless weed, the natural host plants of adults. This will also reduce the breeding sites of the carrot beetle and prevent the accumulation of organic material in the soil which larvae feed on.

2. Light traps or homemade devices combining lights and tubs of water to drown beetles can help keep numbers down. Light traps we use are standard USDA 40 watt black light models. The bucket of each trap has two insecticide strips for killing trapped beetles. These strips are changed every seven days. The most beetles we've caught in one trap in one night were an estimated 45,000.

Forum Invites Area Cattlemen

Area cattlemen planning to attend the Polled Hereford Day — U.S.A. at Storm Ranch, Dripping Springs, Texas, on June 6 should make their overnight reservations with Wood Creek Lodge, Wimberly, Texas 78766, according to the event's host Lynn Storm.

The lodge is located about 15 miles from Storm Ranch, and Polled Hereford Day attendees should probably get their reservations in right away, Storm said.

The event will be one of a series of unique, regional summer activities across the U.S. that are designed to keep cattlemen informed about the latest developments in the beef cattle industry. Registration at 8 a.m. will be followed by a session on estimating the breeding value of beef cattle, a concept emphasized at the 1973 American Cattleman's Conference. Persons attending the Catches often average 10,000 to 15,000 per night between April and November.

3. We avoid placing regular lights around holding pens for cattle. Beetles congregate around lights and manure furnishes organic material they like for breeding sites.

WORK ON the carrot beetle is also being done on the High Plains at Lubbock. George Teetes, TAES entomologist, says the carrot beetle is the principal obstacle to expanded production of oilseed sunflowers on the High Plains. Though the carrot beetle infestations are not as severe on the High Plains as on the Rolling Plains they're still very destructive. This difference is apparently due to tighter soils and the lack of availability of alternate hosts.

Teetes says that this year part of their work will be determining principal areas of infestations. This will be done with small plantings and light traps.

"The full potential of sunflowers on the Plains has been recognized but will be difficult to assess until the carrot beetle is contained," concludes Teetes.

Price Drop Still Plagues Farmers

Texas Farm Bureau President J.T. (Red) Woodson has expressed strong concern over rapidly declining farm prices.

"Together with steadily increasing production costs, the disastrous drop in farm prices since mid-winter has caught farmers and ranchers in a deadly cost-price squeeze," the farm leader said.

The Farm Bureau president said a number of factors were responsible for the decrease in farm prices, including government intervention, food boycotts, truckers' strike, increased crop yields around the world, and increased plantings in the U.S.

Woodson said farm prices for eight major commodities are down an average of 27 per cent from 1974 highs. He pointed out that production costs are up 16 per cent in the past year.

The farm leader said that Farm Bureau, which has 2.3 million members nationally including 152,000 in Texas, would be pushing strongly to keep world markets open to U.S. farmers and to prohibit price-depressing government-held food reserves.

"It's about time that prices came down more in retail markets," Woodson said. "We have seen some retail price declines, but not in keeping with the actual drop in farm prices."

Woodson said statistics released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture show the dramatic decline in major farm commodities from 1974 highs. These include: wheat, down 43 per cent; corn off 22 per cent; soybeans, decreased 20 per cent; hogs, down 37 per cent; grain fed cattle, off 18 per cent; eggs, off 43 per cent; broilers, down 9 per cent; and cotton down 25 per cent.

Campaign Against Smut

Approximately 50 local residents assembled last week at Community Center to express concern about and take action against obscenity and pornography in the community.

The anti-smut group was represented by local churches, county and city law offices and the district attorney's office.

Elected to direct the campaign were Thomas Albracht, president; Susan Saul, secretary; Theresa Artho, treasurer; Walter Pierson, financial chairman; Rex Easterwood, legal advisor; Bill Hubson, public education.

The group voted to announce

Swine Course Hosts Experts

Research in Missouri and production techniques from Indiana will be among the slate of new ideas offered Texas swine breeders and pork producers during the 22nd Annual Swine Short Course at Texas Tech University Thursday and Friday.

Dr. B.N. Day of the Animal Husbandry Dept., University of Missouri, Columbia, will discuss "Breeding Problems — Some Possible Solutions" during the two-day short course sponsored by Texas Tech's Department of Animal Science and the Texas Pork Producers Association.

Day's research interests lie in the area of the physiology of reproduction. He will describe his research efforts in maximizing production in breeder sows to gain more and better pigs per litter and his efforts in breeding program management to give the producer more control over breeding cycles in his swine herd.

"Management of Feeder Pigs — Purchase to Market" will be the theme of a presentation by John L. Cox of Yeager and Sullivan, Inc., Camden, Indiana. Cox will discuss the firm's practices as an order buyer for feeder pig operators and the firm's own feeder pig operations.

In addition to Day and Cox, researchers from Texas Tech and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, pork producers and swine breeders will report and discuss current findings in swine production and management.

Discussion topics include a report on progress on baby pig and other research; pit ventilation of confinement buildings; dietary supplements and feeding management research; feeder pig production research; and biology and lice control in swine.

Registration for the short course will begin at 9 a.m. Thursday in the foyer outside Chemistry Auditorium 38. All short course sessions will be in that auditorium.

The short course will begin at 9:45 a.m. and continue through 5 p.m. A banquet is scheduled that night at 7 p.m. in the Texas Tech University Center Ballroom.

Short course sessions will resume at 8:30 a.m. Friday. The meeting will close at noon that day.

Concurrent with the Swine Short Course will be a meeting of the Texas Porkettes women's auxiliary to the Texas Pork Producers. The Porkettes will meet at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the Blue Room of the University Center. The women will join the men for the afternoon short course lecture sessions.

Friday, the Porkettes will meet at The Museum of Texas Tech at 10 a.m. where they will tour the Ranch Headquarters outdoor ranching museum. Registration fee for the Swine Short Course is $5.

Scout Earns Elite Honor

Stacy Hacker was awarded the coveted Eagle Award, the highest rank in the Boy Scout regime, during a Court of Honor Monday at First Christian Church.

Bill Phillips, representative of Llano Estacado council, presented the honor and was assisted by Troop 151's Scoutmaster, Floyd Bailey. Hacker, who is just completing his sophomore year at Hereford High School, is a member of Leo Club, the Whiteface band, the varsity football squad and the Order of the Arrow. He is a junior deacon at the First Christian Church.

Price Fight Halts Cotton Contracts

Forward cotton contracting for the 1974 season is currently at a standstill with growers seeking 60 cents a pound and buyers willing to pay only 45, reports Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

As a result, only about five per cent of Texas growers have contracted as compared to 16 per cent this time a year ago. In the lower Rio Grande Valley, which grows six or seven percent of the state's total, 99 per cent was contracted earlier in the year at 65-70 cents a pound. Upper Gulf Coast counties contracted some acreage at around 60 cents, and in the Winter Garden area, acreage was signed up for 60-65 cents.

Since then, however, prices have dropped. Warehouses and processors are stacked up with the 1973 crop. For the time being, farmers — confronted with rising costs — and buyers, facing a drop in the market, are playing a waiting game.

On the High Plains, where around 80 per cent of the state's cotton is grown, no one is even talking about the new crop. "Compresses and warehouses are 90-120 days behind schedule in processing and shipping. When that crop starts to move, maybe then buyers will start thinking about the new crop."

White expressed some concern about High Plains cotton, which is currently being planted. "If they don't get more rain, there could be a drop in harvest," he said.

Spokane Proves It Can Be Done

By ARCH BOOTH

"There's no use trying, Alice said: 'One can't believe impossible things.' 'I daresay you haven't had much practice,' said the Queen. 'When I was your age, I always did it for half-an-hour a day. Why, sometimes I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast.'"

If you were the 79th largest city in the country, would you take on the mammoth responsibilities of staging a World's Fair? Of course not! It couldn't possibly succeed.

But that's just what Spokane, Wash., did. And it is succeeding.

Expo '74 opened there May 4, with nearly everything right on schedule. Officials expected 400,000 visitors for the entire month of May. The total swelled to 75 per cent of that figure in the first 10 days.

Spokane planned carefully. The fair is not a frivolous, expensive diversion to be used once and discarded. Out of it, the city will get a rebuilt core area, where before there was urban blight; a 50-acre riverfront park; an opera house, and a convention center. Also, the U.S. pavilion will continue in use as an environmental data communications center, which squares nicely with the fair's theme: "How Man Can Live, Work and Play in Harmony With His Environment."

FURTHER, while the fair facilities themselves cost about $80 million, the fair and related redevelopment efforts triggered a building boom resulting in over $500 million in private sector investment in Spokane during the 1972-74 period.

Perhaps the most remarkable part of the story — in this age of government grantsmanship — is that the project was financed almost entirely by the businesses of Spokane and the State of Washington.

The Spokane business community put up $1.2 million in seed money to get things started, supported special Expo '74 business taxes — at both state and local level — and bought a multimillion-dollar private debenture program to finance Expo operations until the money started coming in.

In addition to the business-backed special taxes, contributions, bond issues and funds for new developments, three railroads donated much of the land for the fair site — land which happened at the time to be under their tracks. Besides kicking in the land itself, the railroads incurred the cost of building new facilities for themselves elsewhere.

They'll get some of it back from appreciation of land they still own adjoining the redeveloped area. Nevertheless, asking a railroad man to tear up his tracks — even in a good cause — is asking a lot. The railroads, by the way, are the Union Pacific, the Milwaukee Road, and the Burlington Northern.

Expo's president, King Cole, calls the project "an impressive example of private enterprise urban renewal." And indeed it is.

BUT THE OBSERVER is also impressed with the cooperation among businessmen, fair officials and governments at all levels. The city, state and national governments worked smoothly and efficiently with each other and with the private sector to get things done.

The general manager of Spokane's Chamber of Commerce, George Reitemeyer, put it this way:

"We are blessed by a perfect partnership between the business community and area government leaders, who are practicing an economic philosophy dedicated to serving the society of man and preserving his environment. In the vernacular of youth, we're putting it all together. And it's working."

Do high radio and television towers have a tendency to draw lightning and thereby lessen the danger to lower structures and trees nearby?

Yes, high metal towers will often draw electrical discharges from clouds passing low overhead. So will especially tall buildings. Since the electrical charges of clouds are attracted by the nearness of high grounds, like transmission towers, these towers often pull the lightning that would otherwise discharge later elsewhere.

If you live in the vicinity of very tall buildings or high metal towers these structures will act as the old lightning rods—draw the lightning and ground it harmlessly.

The tendency of these tall towers to attract lightning is recognized to an extent that builders install special lightning devices to carry off the frequent bolts that strike them. During a lightning storm stay away from such structures, tall trees and other high objects which might suddenly become a ground for electrical discharge from the clouds.

Smelter Ruins Converted For Highways

By DAN M. SLAK
Texas Highway Department

Northeast of Dumas in central Moore County staunchly endure the remains of a defunct zinc smelter.

A trip there resembles a tour through a deserted Hollywood studio. Smoke stacks, uninhabited buildings and other weird-looking structures that served unknown but imaginable functions lean remarkably well against the wind.

Occasionally creaking metal shingles unhitch themselves and clap thunderously to the ground. Penetrating the dusty surroundings, the noise then abruptly scatters in the Panhandle breezes.

Mounds of clay pots strewn with steel and lumber scraps and pieces of ore and slag behemothly bodyguard the 30-acre property that until about two years ago was an active American Zinc Co. smelting plant.

The debris from this dormant zinc smelter near Dumas will be crushed and utilized as highway construction material. The conversion operation is pictured at left as Texas Highway Department workers feed the waste materials into the "grizzly" and the "scalper". At right, Henry Gallegly of Dalhart examines the beautiful piles of "connies" which will be mashed and used as a base layer for roads near Dumas in Moore County.

THESE HILLS OF useless debris, destined to tarnish the view of adjacent farmlands and other landscapes, are about to transcend their downtrodden fate. Environmental protectors eager to cry "eye sore" are having to focus their critical pupils elsewhere.

The pots and other waste materials, ugly industrial fossils, are going, after being crushed, back close to the earth as a base material under asphalt on highways being reconstructed in Moore County.

The residue-turned-base material is being utilized in rebuilding U.S. Highway 87-287 and State Highway 152 in Dumas, a project that also includes installation of badly needed storm sewers and curb and gutter.

"TO DATE all the tests run on this material have indicated that it will produce an excellent base, asphaltic concrete and surface course aggregate," claims Allen L. "Les" Ledbetter.

"The rough texture promises to result in a riding surface that will afford a very good skid resistance, one of the principal aspects of road building material in these times of 'safety-mindedness,'" says Ledbetter, the Highway Department's Amarillo District construction engineer.

"The dark color of the material will produce an excellent contrast to our white or yellow centerstripe and especially our white-colored shoulders."

Asserts Ledbetter, "The only poor 'test' run on the old heap pile is that of quantity. I wish we had ten million tons well distributed around the Panhandle of Texas!"

Cooper & Woodruff, Inc. of Amarillo, Highway Department contractor on the job, is the firm crushing the waste material and the firm reconstructing the highways.

The Pendleton brothers, W. R. and Clark A., of Nearby Sunray, business entrepreneurs, acquired the zinc smelter. The Highway Department has the option to purchase and use the residue stockpile for road building material.

AT THE SMELTER six miles northeast of Dumas on Earm Road 119 the crushing operation hums. Conveyor belts to the huge crushing machine crisscross and circle to preplanned destinations.

Dump trucks unload into the "grizzly" of the crusher. From the "grizzly," where the waste material is automatically separated by its size, the debris heads for the "scalper." Lumber and other unusable pieces of scrap are "scalped" from the conveyor trail, that is, pulled by hand.

As if the waste-material was being carried by a string of ants it continues on its way. A magnet that revolves and which is set above and perpendicular to one conveyor belt catches unwanted metallic objects and discards them.

Primary object of the crushing metal jaws is the clay pot — the "connie" (short for condenser and pronounced either koh-nee or kon-ee). The cone-shaped objects, most of which are now broken apart, were used in the zinc extraction process at the smelter. The "connies" were baked in igloo-shaped kilns, the doors to which were bricked shut before the pots were fired.

When baked properly the "connies" turned a predictable shade of red.

Actual Highway Department laboratory tests run in Amarillo and Austin on the waste base material included those for durability, plasticity (swelling and shrinkage), skid resistance and graduation.

"ALL WE'RE doing is reclaiming waste material and using it for an excellent base," declares Henry L. "Low" Gallegly of Dalhart, THD resident engineer on the project. "We're recycling, redoing waste material."

As Gallegly explained, the crushed pots and rubbish will be used as flexible base, asphaltic stabilized base and asphaltic concrete wearing surface — that is, the surface ridden upon.

Highway Department engineers estimate the cost of recycling the unusual matter and placing it on roadways being reconstructed "about normal" compared to producing and utilizing more common materials.

The zinc smelter debris is man-made. For a base material on Texas Panhandle highways, road builders generally prefer naturally conceived gravel of caliche. Caliche is a crust of calcium carbonate that forms on the stony soil of such arid regions as the Panhandle.

ACCORDING TO A.L. McKee, THD Amarillo District Engineer, "Good road building materials are becoming scarce in many areas. The Texas Highway Department is always looking for new sources of good material."

"In some areas of the country the highway departments have been accused of contributing to the degradation of the environment. Members of the Texas Highway Department have always been alert to any possibility to improve the environment, happy to contribute to the enhancement of the environment," adds McKee.

Most Highway Department personnel are concerned with the environment. While others retrieve aluminum beer cans and some collect bottles and paper for recycling, the Texas Highway Department is reclaiming and regenerating waste material in Moore County.

As one highway engineer theorized, the Texas Highway Department may be creatively redeeming a possible environmental blight.

Museum Has Visitors . . .

While John A. Wilson, a museum consultant with the Texas Historical Commission, was visiting Deaf Smith County Historical Museum this week, there were other visitors at the windmill which is part of the museum's outdoor display — a crew making some repairs on the mechanism of the big wheel. Against drifting light clouds a workman is silhouetted in the photo at right. Above, Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, left, see an exhibit in front of the General Store replica as Mrs. Henry Sears, president of the County Historical Society, points out especially interesting items. Wilson, with headquarters in Odessa, visits museums over West Texas to criticize, evaluate, advise and pass along ideas among the many small museums springing up throughout the area. He complimented the Historical Society here on keeping the museum true to its theme of county history and pioneer life, and offered no criticism after his tour.

Pitman-Johnson Wedding Ceremony Is Conducted

The marriage of Miss Jaime Ruth Pitman of Hereford and Gary Ray Johnson of Amarillo took place in an early evening ceremony Saturday in the Presbyterian Church sanctuary, with the Rev. Roger Knapp, pastor, reading the service.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas Pitman, 515 Long Street, and Mr. and Mrs. R.O. Johnson of Pampa.

Miss Tammy Laughlin was Miss Pitman's maid of honor and the bridegroom was attended by his father as best man.

Bridesmaids were Mrs.

Marsh McCormick Pitman, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Tommy Jochetz of Pampa, sister of the bridegroom. Chip Taylor and Darrell Sublett were the groomsmen.

Brothers of the bride, Marsh McCormick Pitman, John Kirk Pitman and Joseph Clay Pitman; her cousin, Charles Johnson of Amarillo, and Tommy Jochetz served as ushers.

Small members of the wedding party were the flower girl, Kimberly Emerick; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Emerick and the ring bearer, Duncan Sensenich, son of the Terry Sensenichs of Trenton, Missouri. Both are cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Charles Jones presented organ selections, Sanctus (Gounod), Bach's Fugue In G Minor and Wachet Auf, and Cia Cona (Bextehude). For the bridal processional she played Trumpet, Voluntary and as a recessional Trumpet Tune, both compositions of Purcell.

A fan of white roses, on the church altar made a background for the wedding party, flanked by swirled candelabra set in emerald foliage. Hurricane lights burned on either side of the aisle.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, was gowned in white peau de soie with empire bodice and full sleeves of Alencon lace. The skirt, falling straight to carpet length in front, was shaped into soft fullness on the sides then into a circular train edged with narrow lace.

The standing collar was lace, as were ruffles at the wrist extending over her hands. Her bouffant veil, held by a cap applied with duchesse lace, was long enough to cover the train and had a border of the same lace edging.

She carried an heirloom pendant belonging to Mrs. W.E. Dameron, a part of bridal costumes in her family for four generations. Her bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and Bristol Ferry was an old-fashioned nosegay.

Peach-tinted organdy dresses were worn by the bridal attendants, fashioned with puffed sleeves and wide flounces around the hemlines. Trim was white lace, and their picture hats were of horsehair braid with white satin bow and flowers. They carried nosegays of peach Wauburn Abbey and Bristol Ferry.

The flower girl's frock was also of the airy peach organdy, topped with white embroidered organdy pinafore.

After the ceremony the wedding supper was served in the home of the bride's parents, where exotic flowers emphasizing peach and tangerine shades were arranged in the rooms and courtyard.

Two large groupings of tropical foliage with clusters of blooming plants gave a garden effect in the courtyard, where Hawaiian blossoms and leaves were arranged in the fountain. The flowers included torch ginger, bird-of-paradise, croton and ti leaves, fern and anthurium.

More of these, with cattleya and vanda orchids, statice, snapdragons, carnations, gardenias, peonies, gladiolas and other summer flowers were used in the foyer, living and dining rooms and library.

Miss Kimberly Dameron of Salida, Colo., was at the guest registry. Mrs. Tom Williams of Oklahoma City and Mrs. David Emerick served the white-iced wedding cake which was set with a silver troth-cup, gift to the bridal couple from friends, on a table centered with an epergne arrangement of orchids, white and pink roses, and snapdragons, statice and Bristol Ferry.

The cloth was in peach color with white accents. On the punch table another silver epergne held mixed spring flowers as a centerpiece.

Destination of the couple for a wedding trip was Dallas. Mrs. Johnson traveled in a white linen suit with kubuki sleeves, pinning on a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

After the trip the Johnsons will be at home in Amarillo.

Guests at the wedding from other cities included Mrs. J.L. McCormick of Amarillo, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Johnson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Novak, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Sensenich, aunts and uncles; Mrs. W.O. Ray of Shamrock, the bridegroom's grandmother, and Miss Laura Ray, his aunt, from Shamrock.

Parties preceding the wedding ended Saturday with a brunch and a supper for members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. William S. Dameron and her daughter, Kimberly, of Salida were hostesses for the brunch.

The supper at Hereford Country Club had as hostesses the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J.A. Pitman, her aunt, Mrs. J.A. McWhorter, and her great-aunt, Mrs. Don Taylor of Amarillo.

SERVICE YEARS MARKED — Virginia Thomas, who has been an operator for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Hereford the past 24 years, was honored for 35 years of service by other company personnel at a luncheon in the employes' lounge Thursday. She was with the Bell company 11 years at Floydada before she came to Hereford. Former co-workers came to the luncheon from Hart, Texhoma and other places. Mrs. Thomas and her husband, E.A. Thomas, live at 513 Knight.

George Schmidt of Amarillo, the bride's uncle, sang wedding selections. More and The Twelfth of Never, accompanied by Miss Charlene Weaver. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white bonded lace gown designed with a scoop neckline and fitted waist. A sheer ruffle bordered the neckline and the full sheer sleeves were gathered to ruffles at the wrist.

Her full length tiered bridal veil was attached to a bow headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white sweetheart roses and babybreath. As a good luck piece she wore a pearl drop necklace on a gold chain. The maid of honor wore a forget-me-not blue dotted Swiss dress fashioned after the bridal gown and carried a nosegay of buttercup yellow flowers.

Bridesmaids' dresses, also designed after the bridal gown, were blue flowers. Bridal attendants wore wide-brimmed hats to match their gowns.

Miss Stephanie Fortenberry, cousin of the bride, invited guests to register at the reception held in the dining area of the church.

Brenda DeGraff served punch from the refreshment table centered with a spring bouquet. The bridegroom's cousin, Miss Connie Ormsby of Canyon, served the three-tier white cake trimmed in blue. A stairway led to the top of the cake where an arch was arranged over miniature bride and bridegroom figurines.

For her traveling costume the bride wore a green dress with a white pointed collar and white band around the sleeves.

After a short wedding trip, the couple is at home at No. 103 Ponderosa Apartments, in Canyon.

First Aid Class Open

A first aid course open to women and men of the community as individuals rather than as employee or club groups is being planned by the public affairs committee of Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, if enough interest is shown.

Mrs. Eugene Sparks, chairman, asks those who are interested to contact her so the possible enrolment can be determined. A minimum of 12 persons is required for a class. This would be a standard first aid course with John Gilliland as instructor. It would be held in evening meetings, twice a week for five weeks in two-hour sessions.

Date of beginning will depend on response by possible class members, Mrs. Sparks says.

Years Ends At Supper

A patio party entertained members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, and their families Friday evening, ending a year of chapter activities.

Wedding At Ft. Hood Is Of Interest

The marriage of Miss Patricia Elaine Willier and Terry Lee Wright in First Armored Division Memorial Chapel at Fort Hood Saturday is of interest to Hereford friends of the bride, who is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Conklin and often has visited in their home at 335 Avenue K.

She is the daughter of Sgt. 1/c and Mrs. Glen D. Willier. His boyhood spent in Hereford, Willier attended school here before his Army career began. The family lived in Germany during many of Miss Willier's school years.

The wedding was solemnized in a setting of white and purple flowers and candies. A reception followed in West Ford Hood NCO Club. After a two-week honeymoon at Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will be at home in Spartanburg, S.C.

Take care of your garden. Keep out the weeds and Grasses. Fill it with beauty and color. By growing annuals and giving correct maintenance.

An annual is a plant which completes its entire life cycle from seed germination to seed production in one season.

A biennial, a plant which typically starts from a seed and produced vegetative structures and food storage during the first season, then develops flowers, fruits and seeds during the second season. However because of climatic conditions such as drought or unusual variations in temperature, the complete cycle from seed germination to seed production may be completed in one growing season.

Perennial, a plant which lives for several or many years, and after reaching maturity typically produces flowers and seeds each year. Perennials are classified as herbaceous if the top dies to the ground each winter, and as woody if the top persists as in shrubs or trees.

A gardener should know the above definitions. In planning and planting gardens it is helpful to know the differences in flowers planted.

A floriculturist of Texas A&M University says in an article on annuals that "the annual outshines all other plants grown in Texas gardens," in color, variety and beauty of form. Annuals have been grown in gardens since the beginning of gardening, and have a very important place in our gardens.

Annuals can be grown from seed or plants. Some should be planted in the fall (larkspurs) and others with the coming of springtime, (zinnias), and can be repeated in late fall for color and beauty. Many gardeners plant a spring and a fall garden, by rotating plantings of annuals.

An advantage which the annual gives to the gardener is that their growth cycle is quick and, when weather conditions have destroyed growing plants, such as hail, or a late freeze.

Some of the popular annuals grown in our area are petunias, pansies, delphiniums, calendulas, poppies, stock, snapdragons, and sweetpeas (these do better if planted in February).

Nasturtiums are a genus which climbs or grows dwarf. Foliage and blossoms are very attractive and the stems and flowers are edible. They add a tasty lift to a tossed salad, and the florets are lovely for decorations.

Other annuals which can be planted in the fall are marigolds, periwinkles, ageratum and verbenas; they grow off quickly and give abundant bloom in the summer and through fall or until killing frost. Often if some of these are planted in a sheltered place they are not killed and will therefore grow and flower.

Another reason some of these are petunias, snapdragons and verbenas. Annuals plants can be purchased from nurserymen by the dozen in box-like containers, or thru an exchange of homegrown plants with neighbors. If planted, use care in sowing the seed, cover lightly. It may be necessary to thin plants, but time and effort can be saved if not planted too thick.

When transplanting it is recommended that rootone be used to promote growth and produce a better plant; Ortho Upstart or Rapid-grow may be used instead of the rootone.

When transplanting another suggestion is that the tips be pinched, this aids in making a stronger and more productive specimen. Many horticulturists suggest the addition of an insecticide to the soil. This will give added protection from insects for many weeks. However do not use systemics on fruits and vegetables. Follow directions carefully.

The time for transplanting or

Hereford has many beauty spots; take time to drive around and see some of them. Roses are especially pretty. A lovely showing of Peace roses is at the Owen Seamands home, 145 Texas, the fashion roses are out in full array at the Ralph McCullough home, 139 Texas.

I'm amazed at the many beautiful lawns, especially since we are having no rainfall. It is most refreshing to ride around town and see the well kept and lush lawns.

The rose garden and lawns created a most inviting scene for guests at a tea at Mrs. Kathleen Palmer's 149 Liveoak. Congratulations to the winners of the Beauty Spots this month, they are both very deserving. Also every good wish to the high school graduates of '74.

Troy Womble got us off to a good start.

Like that first kiss, who can ever forget your first customer? We haven't. Our first customer, Troy Womble, who then farmed sizeable acreage south of Hereford, brought the first wheat of the season to our elevator.

That was in 1930. And you can be sure that we gave Mr. Womble the Red Carpet treatment.

This started a tradition. One of service and fair play. We try to treat all of our customers with the same enthusiasm and personal attention we gave Mr. Womble that June day 44 years ago.

We have changed in some ways. Improvements. Increased the size of our facilities, installed the latest equipment, adopted the best systems of handling, marketing and accounting. You have to improve to grow and...

We grew up with the agri-business

SAM MORGAN

Democrat
For County Judge

I WANT YOU TO KNOW

I announced for county judge because I believe I can do a better job than the incumbent is doing. If I am elected, I will be an independent, fair and impartial judge. No law firm, no county official nor any individual will make my decisions. I will seek help from many sources and arrive at my own decisions based on the facts.

I PLACE A GREAT VALUE ON FRIENDSHIP

I value your friendship, thoughts and prayers more than a vote for county judge. I want your vote, I feel that I am worthy of it, but I want your friendship regardless of how you vote. I hope to always retain my sense of true values. I refuse to become involved in dirty politics.

CAMPAIGN LAWS

The law requires each candidate to make a report of all people who contribute to his campaign fund. I have not checked to see who contributed to my opponent. I do not think it is any of my business who contributes to him. Nor do I resent his contributors. I am proud to be a citizen of my country where a person can do what he feels is right and within the law.

VOTERS WILL BE THE JUDGE ON JUNE 1st.

I will abide by that decision with a clear conscience and a willing attitude. The people who voted May 4th clearly indicated they want a new Judge. You who vote on June 1st will decide who is to be judge for the next four years.

I SOLICIT YOUR VOTE FOR BETTER COUNTY GOVERNMENT

By SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

IN FICTION a librarian is always the prim and proper type, even when she is the heroine in which case she is pretty, prim and proper. We are apt to type people in the frames laid down by fiction, so we usually don't expect a librarian to be a motorcycle enthusiast.

But Lorene Newman is, and she has taken plenty of more or less humorous barbs since she had a spill from her motorcycle and has been wearing a cast on an arm and a bandage on her forehead.

When courthouse employees gave a coffee in her honor Friday, on her retirement as Deaf Smith County librarian, the needling about the cycle accident cropped up again in, of all places, the icing on the cake! It was decorated with a drawing of a motorcycle and a woman's figure hurtling through the air.

Every time I see one of the elaborately decorated cakes that some people make, like the women in the Sweet And Fancy Club, I'm amazed at what can be done with cake icing.

Even with a pencil I can't sketch, and my idea of cake decoration is to put on sort of straight one of those "Happy Birthday" candies that you can buy, so pictures on cakes look impossible to me.

One of the most impossible was served at the dinner on First United Methodist Church's 75th birthday this spring. Made by Barbara Pittard, it was a scale model of the whole church—plant, steeple and all, with windows and doors indicated by icing. I keep wondering how many cakes she baked to put together to get in all the wings of the sprawling building.

A GRANDSON of the Glenn Nelsons was born Thursday in a Santa Monica, Calif., hospital, and as Helen reports the event, it's only incidental that he is the son of Olen and Connie Nelson. He was named Gregory Allen and he weighed seven pounds, one ounce. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Vinetz of Los Angeles.

ON THE honor roll of the college of business administration at the University of Texas at Austin are the names of two Hereford students, Mark Jeffrey Kendall was listed with no street address, but David Thomas of 206 Sunset is the Wayne Thomases son.

THE BACHELOR of arts degree was conferred on Thomas Luther Lesly of Hereford Saturday in spring commencement exercises of Western State College in Gunnison, Colo.

When the average American shouts for unity, he means that others should fall in line with his views.

NO DELIVERY - NO DEED

Even if a deed is properly executed, it doesn't become effective until it is delivered to the buyer and accepted by him. Take the case of the 80-year-old man who signed, sealed and acknowledged a deed; to his nephew and placed it in an old tin box in his room. He died shortly thereafter and deed was discovered. In a contest with other heirs over the property, the nephew lost because there had been no delivery of the deed.

Until the deed is delivered, the title remains with the seller, and he may change his mind and destroy the deed with impunity. But once properly delivered and accepted, a deed passes title and cannot be revoked. Your best protection in the area of deeds is your lawyer. He will see to it that it's properly drawn and executed - and protects you as far as his legal eye can see. Advice... do-it-yourself tactics in this technical area could have horrendous results.

S. VIETNAM & AID

COAL & CONTROLS

The Cost of Living Council has lifted wage and price controls from the $5 billion coal industry. The move reportedly would substantially increase coal production.

Food prices expected to rise again in April.

Toy Gun

Grocer Hawkins put up no resistance as the youthful robber cleaned out his cash register. To Hawkins, the young man's pistol was all too real.

But in fact, the pistol was a toy. When the robber was later caught and brought to trial for "armed robbery," he insisted that the charge would not stand up.

"The simple truth is," he told the court, "that I was not armed at all. That gun I had couldn't hurt a flea."

Nevertheless, the court decided he was guilty as charged. The court said what mattered was not the actual character of the gun but the way it looked to the victim.

Most courts agree. That is, they view the holdup weapon "through the eyes of the beholder." They reason that the essence of the crime is putting the victim in fear, which can be done as effectively with a gun that only looks deadly as with one that really is.

There have even been cases of "armed robbery" in which the robber had no weapon at all. Thus: another holdup man terrified his victim merely by showing a menacing bulge in his coat pocket.

Yet, a court decided this was enough basis for a charge of armed robbery. The court said the fear that the robber had a gun, plus the fear that he might use it, was all that the law required by way of intimidation.

Still, the fear must be at least of physical harm—not of a lesser form of pressure. Suppose A says to B:

"Unless you hand over $500, I'll get you in trouble with the Internal Revenue Service."

If B pays off, A may be guilty of some offense—but not robbery. As one court put it:

"There can be no robbery without violence. The menace must be of a sort to excite reasonable apprehension of danger. Threat of prosecution for a crime is regarded as insufficient (because) a man in the hands of the law is not legally presumed to be in danger of bodily harm."

An old European custom has it that if women draw a plowshare around the village at night, that will drive away epidemics!

IN MEMORIAM

1776 - 1974

... The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the stream which seaward creeps.
On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deed redeem,
When, like our sires, our sons are gone.
Spirit, that made those heroes dare
To die, or leave their children free;
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.
