Texas Voters Return to Polls Saturday

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

Texas voters decide Saturday a bitter political contest that mixes name identity. past political successes and campaign charges in a mish-mash that has many voters confused.

As a result, a low turnout is expected to decide the sole statewide Democratic runoff, between John Poerner and Jerry Sadler for the remaining two years of a term on the Texas Railroad Commission.

Also on some bailots, and expected to increase the turnout in some areas, are six hot district Congressional races - five Democratic and one Republican.

In the Tyler area, there is a runoff for chief justice of the 12th Court of Civil Appeals between Larry Starr and J.W.

There also will be local runoff races in which Democrats will complete nomination of two candidates for the state Senate and 13 for the Texas House.

for legislative posts. If there is a headliner race Saturday it has to be the lowkey Democratic runoff between Sadler and Poerner. The winner meets Republican James votes cast. Poerner had 28 percent. Some have called the current race a replay of 1976 when Sadler led a field of primary candidates but lost to present Commissioner Jon Newton, 531,444 to 272,794, in the run-off.

Sadler led a field of four Democratic candidates in the first primary with 48 percent of the more than one million

W. Lacy, 53, Midland, in November.

Sadler called both Newton and Poerner tools of the major oil companies because of contributions to their campaigns. Sadler has spent less than $7,000 against Poerner, only a fraction of Poerner's campaign expenditures. Newton and Poerner each claimed Sadler, 70, was a political has-been whose chief attraction to voters is the name "Sadler" which has been before voters 12 times as candidate representative and land commissioner. Sadler, stoop-shouldered and usually with a wad of tobacco tucked back in his iaw, has made infrequent campaign appearances. He has turned down in-depth interviews and refuses to let reporters travel with him.

SURE, BEEF PRICES are too high . so are prices on other foods, and housing, utilities, medical care, furniture, clothing, and postage stamps-just to mention a few

The Labor Department released figures on the Consumer Price Index this week, and most of the news stories coming out of Washington centered on the record increase in beef prices for April. No mention was made of one of the major causes of inflation-government spend-

Statistics are interesting in making comparisons, but we must remember what we're comparing. Beef prices went up 6.6 percent in April. The average American consumes 10 pounds of beef a year, so perhaps a family of four paid 40 cents more for round steak in April.

The percentages reflect a .7 percent increase in rent. At that rate, the family of four paying $150 rent would pay $1.05 more for rent. And the increase in rent is more likely to stay up, whereas the price of beef is likely to come down again.

Comparisons could be made all up and .down the consumer price index. If a renter was not hit with an increase, he'd be more inclined to complain about food prices. A wise man once noted something to the effect that "your view of a stage play depends on where your sitting in the audience.

Community Action Paid Families' Utility Bills

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

The federal government paid the overdue utility bills of 172 Deaf Smith County families, some of whom were apparently able to pay for themselves, over a four-week period in April and May, The Brand learned Thursday.

The money--$15,000--was allocated by the federal government through the Carter administration's emergency energy program to the Deaf Smith County Community Action Agency for distribu-

The original allocation was $6,000 with the stipulation that the money must be spent in two weeks. Jean Patty, Community Action coordinator in Hereford, received an extension of two weeks and an additional $9,000 to implement the program in Deaf Smith

"There were so many people in need, we got an extension of two weeks from Mr. A.A. Burnett (Panhandle Community Action director) in Amarillo, Hereford was allocated a little over $6,000, but I got approval from Mr. Burnett to get $15,000 because I had such a need here in Deaf Smith County," Mrs. Patty said.

She added that the additional money came from funds not being used in other Panhandle counties

"These were funds appropriated to pay utility bills for people who can't work, who are physically unable to work, and mothers with underprivileged children. The money came out of the HUD (Housing and Urban Development) program from the president's office to help the elderly and people of low income catch up on their gas, light and water bills," Mrs. Patty said.

"It certainly did help a lot of them -some were horribly behind and some were cut off. We went ahead and paid their cut-off fee.'

A ceiling of $250 was placed on money to be used for each individual family. Mrs. Patty said that several Deaf Smith County residents were $190 to $200 behind in their gas bills.

Hereford City Manager Dudley Bayne and managers of both Southwestern Public Service and Pioneer Natural Gas told The Brand that some of the families receiving assistance were not indigents. "It looks like we're not encouraging anybody to do anything," Bayne said. "If we are, we're encouraging them to do

3 County Contests To Be Decided

A new county judge and justice of the peace will be elected, tantamount to November's general election, Saturday when Deaf Smith County voters go to the polls for the second time in two months.

The local winners in Saturday's Democratic primary runoff will be assured of election since there are no Republican candidates.

The only statewide race to be voted on by Deaf Smith County residents will be for the unexpired term of railroad commissioner. John Poerner and Jerry Sadler are seeking that position after eliminating three other candidates in last month's primary.

Republican voters will cast ballots Saturday at La Plata Junior High School for U.S. 19th Congressional District candidates George Bush Jr. of Midland and Jim Reese of Odessa. The winner will face Democrat Kent Hance of Lubbock in November's general election.

Still in the running for the county judgeship are Glen Nelson and L.B. 'Scat'' Russell who were the top vote getters in a field of four candidates last Nelson is the county justice of the peace and a former automobile parts salesman, while Russell is an automo salesman and ex-superintendent of Walcott Schools. Russell also is a former principal at Hereford High School and

Justice of the peace candidates are policeman O.K. Neal and restaurant owner Paul Abalos, the survivors from a seven-man field in the May 6 primary.

A third local race will be for Deaf Smith County commissioner, Precinct 4, a position sought by incumbent James Voyles and city commissioner Stan Fry, owner of a sheet metal business in Hereford.

Polling place numbers are listed on voter registration cards. Those voting sites for the Democratic runoff are as follows:

No. 1--Courthouse Driver's License Examiner's Room; No. 2--commissioners courtroom; No. 3--Zinser residence, west of Westway; No. 4--Simms Community House; No. 5--Hereford Community Center; No. 6--Ford School; No. 7--Dawn Community Building: No. 8-- Walcott School: No. 9-Bippus Community House; No. 10--Wildorado Church; No. 11-Northwest Elementary School.

Registered voters who did not cast ballots in the May 6 primary are eligible to vote Saturday. However, persons who voted in the Democratic primary may not vote for a Republican, or vice-versa.

Carter Considering Beef-Cost Plans

By DON KENDALL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter's advisers are urging him to consider action to help cool off rising retail beef prices, including the possibility of opening the door to unrestricted imports of foreign hambur-

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Thursday that a plan involving several options will be submitted to Carter today for his review this weekend. However, Bergland said he did not know when Carter would decide on a course of Beef prices have led an upward climb in food prices so far this year and some administration officials have suggested that more foreign beef might help cool the spiral.

Cattlemen, however, say the higher prices are just now helping them recover financially after losing money for almost four years. Bergland said after a meeting at the White House with some other administration leaders Thursday that "no vote was taken" among those attending on how to handle beef imports. Further, he told reporters, "there's no dramatic action we can take to roll back prices" of beef to retail levels of last year.

The meeting included Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and Robert Strauss. Carter's chief inflation fighter.

Bergland said three alternatives are being readied for Carter's review. including: leaving the current beef import quota system the way it is for at least 60 days to 90 days in order to see what happens; renegotiating agreements with the 13 countries now providing beef so they can ship more to the United States; and suspending all restrictions immedia-

A 1964 law prescribes controls on imports of fresh, frozen or chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat meat based on U.S. meat output. Nearly all of the quota-type meat is low-grade beef used to make hamburger. Australia and New Zealand are the major providers.

For some years, the United States has negotiated annual "voluntary restraint" agreements with the countries to keep their meat shipments below a maximum level which would trigger stiff U.S. import quotas under the law.

Over the years the imports have represented about 5 percent to 7 percent of U.S. domestic beef production. This year's allocation, for example, is about 1.3 billion pounds.

Bergland said, if the quotas were suspended entirely or the agreements renegotiated, up to 250 million pounds of additional beef could enter the United States in the second half of this year.

The impact of the additional beef would have little significant effect on consumer prices, Bergland said. However, it might prevent further beef price increases after July 1 and possibly save consumers about 5 cents a pound by the end of the year.

The agriculture Department's composit retail price of choice-grade beef now is more than $1.60 a pound, up from about

El Paso Man Charged With Killing Youth

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) - The FBI has apprehended a man charged with the beating death of a 3-year-old boy who became the subject of public concern after his body was found on an Ohio roadside last October.

Edward Gene Fields, 29, was taken into custody Thursday by the FBI on a federal warrant of flight to avoid presecution.

He was indicted March 2 in Ashland. Ohio on charges of involuntary manslaughter, endangering children and felonious assault in connection with the death of Artenchy Williams III whose case drew the attention of the 20,000 residents of the northeastern Ohio city.

Fields has been arraigned before a U.S. Magistrate, in El Paso, and held in lieu of $100,000 bond.

The Williams child, whose body was found along Interstate 71, remained unidentified for almost four months until the boy's father, Artenchy Williams II, of Memphis, read newspaper accounts of the youngster's funeral and told police he believed the dead boy was his son.

The funeral had been arranged by members of the community who paid for a casket and burial plot. The grave marker donated by elementary school students was inscribed "Ashland County's Little Boy Someone Cares

A warrant was issued for Fields after the boy's mother Yvonne Williams, 23, who is separated from her husband, told authorities that her male traveling companion beat the youngster and refused to let her obtain medical help.

Carter Denies Report On Arms Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, pledging to push aggressively for a new arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union, today denied a published report that he has placed a freeze on the arms negotiations.

Carter called the report damaging to the country and to his own credibility.

The president took the unusual step of summoning reporters on short notice to his Oval Office in the White House to deny the report in today's Washington Post. The report, quoting authoritative government sources, said the administration "has effectively frozen the strategic arms limitation talks SALT for the time being."

Carter said "this story is totally inaccurate." and added: "It damages our country; it damages my credibility; it damages the prospects for the continuation of the basic policy of our government, which has not changed since I came in office: that is to proceed aggressively with SALT discussion."

Carter said it is his objective "to conclude a SALT treaty as early as possible, without delay because of political considerations and to make sure that that treaty, when concluded, was in the best interests of our country."

Carter, who ignored attempts by reporters to ask questions, said the possibility of a freeze in SALT negotiations has never been discussed, 'even informally.

He said at the outset he understood that "inadvertent inaccuracies" sometimes would creep into news accounts and added that he accepts that.

The legislation, which provides credits against college, elementary and secondary school tuition, now goes to the Senate, which has shown itself even more favorable to tuition credits than the House.

The House-passed measure would allow a taxpayer to subtract directly from his income tax 25 percent of his tuition outlays, within limits.

The maximum credit in the case of college or other postsecondary tuition would be $100 this year, $150 in 1979 and $250 in 1980, for each students. At the lower educational levels, the maximum would be $50 this year and $100 in each of the next two. The program would end after three years unless Congress renewed it.

Pending in the Senate, with the approval of the Finance Committee, is a measure providing credits up to $500.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he does not think a veto could be overridden.

Katy Railroad Stays Alive After Period of Near Disaster

By CLYDE M. REED Editor and Publisher Parsons, Kan., Sun

PARSONS, Kan. (AP) - A continuing upturn of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Katy Railroad's fortunes is leading the line, once beset with all kinds of financial woes, away from its grimmer days of marginal status.

That's the conclusion which close observers of the Katy are reaching as increased revenues provide the fuel for a sharp break with the past.

R.N. Whitman, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of the Katy, outlined many of the developments in a visit to Parsons Wednesday night during an inspection trip on the railroad. Parsons is an important operating point on the Katy.

Beyond the brighter outlook in general, Whitman disclosed here that the Katy would begin work next April 1 on the rebuilding 100 miles of its mainline between Parsons and Paola, Kan., at a cost of between $6 million and $7 million. The project is expected to take nine months to complete with a crew of 75 to 80 persons.

More significant than the news itself to the railroad's fortunes was the disclosure that the work would be financed by "internally-generated funds." That the Katy is able to spend its own dollars says a lot about the condition of a railroad that has survived on federal loans in the not-to-distant past.

Whitman also said that the Katy had launched a program of spending $250,000 a year for the next five years for improvement of its Parsons terminal. That yard is the key to most train operations on the railroad.

The Katy's overall goal is not an immediate showing of profit, Whitman said, but "the bottom line as long as heavy track work continues for another three years" will be a "first-class railroad with ample locomotive power and an improved car

Whitman said that was the objective of both the Katy's management and its owners, Katy Industries Inc. Katy Industries is a diversified concern that controls the railroad together with numerous industrial and service affiliates.

"We have put a lot of money into this railroad," Whitman said, and predicted that more will be spent on reaching its goal.

Whitman was the director of the Federal Railroad Administration before he went to the Katy on July 1, 1970, as its head man. His headquarters are in Dallas, Texas.

A 1978 capital improvements budget of $19 million is the biggest in the railroad's 106-year history, Whitman said. It will include the delivery of 11 new locomotives and an outlay of $8 million for new freight cars. Seven of the locomotives will be delivered to Parsons in August, and the remaining four in October.

While the Katy is getting on its own financial feet, three federally-guaranteed loans for a total of $35.5 million in recent years nonetheless has been instrumental in providing track and roadbed, and bringing about locomotive-and freight-car betterment.

The first loan under a new federal program of assisting ailing railroads was made to the Katy in 1975. It was for $19 million. Whitman said $6 million of that loan will be repaid by the end of this year.

By the close of 1978, 60 percent of what the Katy chairman termed its "main corridor" will have been

The mainline between Durant, Okla., and the Gulf of Mexico will have been completely renewed by the year's end. Work on the line between Durant and Waco, Texas, now is under way, and the Kathy's chief project at the moment.

Most of the proceeds from the first loan to the Katy by the U.S. Railway Association and the Federal Railroad Administration was spent on 110 miles of track improvements in south Texas, and most of the second loan of $12 million will go for projects between Waco and Durant. Locomotive work in the Katy's Parsons shops also was financed by the first loan.

A third loan for $4.5 million, only completed this, week, will be spent on 40 miles of track work between Waco and Temple, Texas. That work will be done this year.

Katy revenues have grown from $101 million in 1975 to $117 million last year, and a total of $130 million has been projected for this year, Whitman said.

Two new coal-burning electric generating plants served by the Katy will contribute much to improved revenues for the railroad.

The first will be a plant of the Lower Colorado River Authority at LaGrange, Texas. The Katy will move coal from Montana to Fort Worth, Texas, to LaGrange. Four 110-car trains will begin to move on the Katy in December.

The other plant is under construction by the Grand River Dam Authority at Pryor, Okla. It will be a $500 million facility and operations are expected to start in 1982.

Other movements of coal, tied to current energy needs, also are giving a boost to the Katy's income.

The Katy is a 2,200-mile southwestern railroad that runs through Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. It avoided bankruptcy during the 1930s when other southwestern railroads went into receivership and has managed to remain solvent in more recent times, although not without perilously close calls because of depleted revenues.

New NBC Movie Features Former Star of I Spy'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Once upon a time, there was a series. "I Spy," with Bill Cosby and Robert Culp as spies. Sunday night, Cosby returns to hush-hush work in a two-hour NBC movie, "Top Secret."

It is different than "I Spy." Cos now is a New York art dealer who secretly does special work for Uncle Sam, When

O'Hair Suit Dismissed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A federal judge has dismissed atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair's suit demanding a crackdown on church bingo games.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts said Mrs. O'Hair did not assert she had been "injured in any way by any actions or omissions" of the defendants named in the suit.

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that a citizen cannot contest the policies of a prosecuting authority unless he himself is under prosecution or is threatened with it, Roberts

Mrs. O'Hair filed the suit against Travis County Attorney Jim McMurtry and District Attorney Ronald Earle. Her lawyer, David Horton, said no decision has been made on whether to appeal.

The suit asked for an injunction to force prosecution of church-run games and asked $1 million in punitive damages.

Mrs. O'Hair won a landmark decision in 1963, when the U.S. Supreme Court banned prayer in public schools.

Bill Reagan said the district, with an enrollment of 200,000 youths, would have to eliminate the jobs of 130 blacks and 1,000 white teachers.

The Urban League has asked that the proportion of Mexican-American teachers, now 5 percent, be increased to reflect the school district's 23 percent Hispanic enrollment.

J. Don Boney Jr., director of the league's education committee and once the No. 2 administrator in the Houston school district, said a recent study found "a racist school system and one where minority students are getting an inferior education."

The study will be released next week, he said, pinpointing the district's "75 one-race schools."

Boney said the Urban League had asked district officials to assign teachers based on the ethnic background of each student body.

Currently, 54 percent of the district's 10,000 teachers are white, 41 percent black and 5 percent Mexican-American.

Latest enrollment figures in the nation's fifth largest city show 44 percent black, 32 percent white, 23 percent Mexican-American, and 1 percent others. Reagan said the league's recommendations "would put the district in a crisis situation because there are not the necessary numbers of qualified Mexican-American teachers to replace blacks and whites.".

He said a declining birth rate is contributing to a drop in enrollment of blacks and whites, while the Mexican-American pupils are increasing at a rate of percent per year. Economic Index Rises In April

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government measure of economic trends increased 0.5 percent in April amid prediction of strong growth this spring, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The moderate increase in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a drop of 1 percent in January, an increase of 0.6 percent in February and a decline of 0.1 percent in March.

Government economists expect the economy to grow at a robust annual rate of 8 to 10 percent in the second quarter after declining by 0.4 percent during the severe winter.

The Federal Reserve Board fears that the economy may grow too rapidly, and it has been trying to limit the money supply to keep inflation from getting out of hand.

However, the biggest contributor to the April increase was a 0.4 percent increase in the money supply, which the government wants to keep in check. Also increasing were stock prices, factory orders and building permits.

Meanwhile, Cos and McGee arrive at a hamlet. He asks where is the hotel. And is told: "There is no hotel. You're staying with me. Our cover is that we're lovers." She also berates him. Each time they're in her apartment she berates him. Berate No. 1 is that field spies take all the risks

"Not him," she laughs. "He's a pussycat." She points out some people at the party. Not all are pussycats. She says: "See the face over there? He owns the drug traffic."

In mid-party, Cos chases a young waiter, Gino, because Gino's hair is falling out, a sure sign of plutonium poisoning. But Gino gets away. Cos returns to the party, and an angry McGee takes him home.

Berate No. 2 occurs: "If you're supposed to be the best. no wonder we're in trouble around the world. We're supposed to be undercover. right? I mean, that's the way the senators set up the thing."

Meanwhile again, Cos and McGee are on Murphy's trail. I can't say how they got wise to him, it'd spoil everything, but they go to his place. Too late. He is tied to the chair and dead. At this point, McGee says: 'Somebody's juiced him. Looks

"I don't think it adversely impacts on me. I think he would his nomination of U.S. District Torres while in custody. tend to draw as many votes from the Democratic opposition as from me, maybe more," Tower told a news conference.

Tower said Grover was going into the Senate race without much of the support Grover had when he ran a close second to Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the 1972 governor's race. 'Most of the people who were active in Grover campaigns in the past have gone out of their way to express support for me...Most of his financial centributors are my financial contributors," Tower said.

Tower devoted much of his news conference to issues that he said Texans were discussing with him during Congress' Memorial Day break.

He said there is "great concern over the state about the so-called labor reform act.' which shortens the wait for union representation elections in businesses and factories.

The bill, which Tower and others have been trying to kill with a filibuster, would "have a deleterious effect on the good abor-management climate in Texas," he said.

He said his Democratic opponent, U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, voted for the bill in the House and against crippling amend-ments. Tower called Krueger's yetes "anti-Texan in charac-

. Tower said he is hearing many objections to a proposed U.S. Treasury Department rule requiring serialization of all firearms and more reporting by gun dealers.

With computerized records, he said, the rule would "make it easy to determine who had purchased a gun" and "would amount to national gun registration."

Justice of The Peace

Democratic Runoff 3, 1978

Fellow Citizens:

My name is O.K. NEAL and I am a candidate for the Democratic Nomination for the office of JUSTICE OF THE PEACE for Deaf Smith County.

I have been a police officer for approximately eight years, the last four years here in Hereford. During this time, I have attended over 600 classroom hours of instruction on Law, Law Enforcement, and Psychology. In addition, I have completed four semesters of college toward a major in Law and a miner in Psychology.

I am an Emergency Medical Technician and one of only eight people in the Hereford area to hold a National Regis instead of only being licensed through the State. I feel this would be beneficial in the JP's duties as Coroner.

I am one of only three Spanish speaking officers on the Hereford Police Dept. and one of only two Spanish speaking candidates for this office.

During these past eight years, I have had many opportunities to work with people in less than ideal circumstances. The person feeling he should not have received a ticket, the member of a minority group that feels he has been discriminated against, the man and wife who cannot settle their differences without outside help, and the family that has lost a loved one through tragic circum pelice officer's er a JP's job. You cannot learn to handle these tional situations in school or from books. Experience, handling and seeing others handle these situation only good teacher. I have personally been involved with each of these situations not ence, but many times during the past

I realize that wheever the citizens of this county elect, they will expect him to be fair. I firmly believe in the concept of "All are innecent until preven guilty" and premise to uphold

I also realize that the office hours of a public servant are 24 hours a day, seven days a week. I promise to be available during those times, as I have been working the same "shift" for eight years. I have no outside business interests that might interfere.

I would be henced to represent Deaf Smith County as Justice of the Peace. I premise, if elected, to held this effice with honer and dignity, and to do the best job I possibly can. I would appreciate your SUPPORT and INFLUENCE and, most of all, your VOTE JUNE 3, 1978 in the Domocratic Run-off Election. THANK YOU VERY MUCH.

Miss Jorde Featured In Musical Recital

Kathlee Palmer, 149 Liveoak, presented Marta Marie Jorde in recital Sunday afternoon. Miss Jorde, a soprano, presented songs in German, French and English ranging from the popular and sacred to the classical. She is the daughter of Jo Ellen Jorde, Rt. 5, and Keith Jorde, Carefree, Ariz.

Miss Jorde is twice winner of superior ratings at the music festival. She will be a junior at Hereford High School, where she has been active in choir, tennis and Christian Athletes' Society. She will be a member of the drill team next year.

Friends and family enjoyed fresh fruit punch and tea cakes after the recital. The table had appointments centered around vellow daisies, Miss Jorde's favorite motif. There was a centerpiece of yellow and white daisies, the service was antique china with a flower theme and

VOTE PAUL ABALOS THIS COMMING SATURDAY JUNE 3, 1978, THE RIGHT MAN FOR THE JOB.

UDECIDE

On June 3, Texas voters will elect one of two men as the Democratic candidate for Railroad Commissioner:

Jerry Sadler, 70, is a twice-defeated former Land Commissioner. Here's what three of the state's leading newspapers have to say about him:

The Austin American-Statesman: "Voters deserve to know whom they will be choosing between in the runoff June 3. Poerner is not a household name; Sadler is. But Sadler has a sorry record in state government. He is the only person ever censured by the Texas House of Representatives (for failure to cooperate with an investigation). He became notorious for attempting to choke then-State Rep. Jake Johnson. He was defeated at the polls in 1970 and lost to Jon Newton in a race for . Railroad Commissioner in 1976. And now he's back again."

The Dallas Times Herald: "Sadler has made Texas government a universal target of ridicule and derision."

The San Angelo Standard Times: "Under Sadler, the Railroad Commission just might become the laughing stock he once made of the General Land Office."

IS THERE REALLY ANY CHOICE?

The Railroad Commission regulates the oil, gas and transportation industries in Texas. Our energy and utility rate problems demand vigorous and responsible leadership. We need John Poerner to fight for Texas and protect what is rightfully ours.

John Poerner, 45, is a respected businessman and rancher. John Poerner was elected to three successive terms in the Texas House before being named Executive Director of the Governor's Committee on Aging and Director, Education Resources of Texas.

His honors include being named "Citizen of the Year" in his hometown of Hondo, receiving a "Distinguished Legislator" award from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, and being named to the "Agriculture Hall of Fame" at Southwest Texas State University.

He was recently appointed to the Railroad Commission by the Governor.

"Poerner is a solid, competent individual with a record of 10 years of dedicated public service," says the Houston Chronicle. "(We urge) his election."

Reception To Honor Smiths

The Rev. Prentice D. Smith pastor of Greenwood Baptist Church, and his family are leaving Hereford to assume the pastorate of a larger church at Mabelton, Ga.

His congregation will honor the Smiths with a reception from 2-5 p.m. June 4 at Hereford State Bank. The church invites all members of the community to honor the Smiths before their departure.

Rev. Smith, who has resided in Hereford 81/2 years, is a recipient of the honorable commission to serve the World Baptist Mission Board, which interviews and endorses missionary candidates. He and his wife, Jo Ann, have three children.

Ann Landers A Few Facts

DEAR READERS: Dale D. Armon, President of Pet Rescue, Inc., in Bloomingdale; Ill., asked me to pass on this message. I do so in the hope you will do more than just read it. Please take it seriously.

With springtime comes the birth of hundreds of thousands of unwanted kittens and puppies. If you care about animals you will have your pet spayed or neutered and kept on leash. Here are some heartbreaking facts: Every year approximately 60 million abandoned and unwanted animals are slaughtered through humane societies at the staggering cost to the American taxpayer of $500 million dollars!

Approximately 10,000 kittens and puppies are born each hour. Nine out of ten have no homes to go to. Fifty percent will never live to see their first birthday. These figures do not reflect the homeless, suffering orphans that die of starvation and thirst or those hit by cars.

People will say, "But I can find homes for all my litter." After they are born, they find it's not so easy. Everyone thinks baby kittens and cuddly puppies are so adorable, but somehow they aren't so cute when they become cats and dogs.

Parents, please don't let the family pet have a litter just so you can show your children the miracle of life! All you teach them is that life has little value. DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sending you something that appeared in the Washington Post recently and I hope you will read it and take note. It ran in a box on the editorial page and was headed "SOME ADVICE FOR ANN LANDERS."

"Ann Landers' recommendation regarding an illiterate husband must be responded to, for the wife who wrote may still be 'In a Dither' about getting him the help she wanted. Ann's suggestion to 'contact a grade school principal and inquire about testing for learning disabilities' may meet the same fate as the wife's attempt to 'get him to go to night school.' (He was not interested.)

"This man may have unfortunate memories or fears about school and has tried to 'fool people' simply because he does not want them to know he cannot read and write. He might seek help if he knew he could have private, free tutorial help.

"The National Affiliation for Literacy Advance of Laubach Literacy International comprises 450 groups actively mending literacy problems with trained volunteer tutors working with non- or new reading adults on a one-to-one basis.

"The individual teaching, based on personal attention and concern for the 'student' or 'learner', plus interview-testing and the use of easy, controlled, practical, adult materials, has proven a successful method of teaching adults to read for many

Time To Plan for Fall

COLLEGE STATION - Although the fall season seems far away, it's time to plan for some color for the home landscape this fall. Chrysanthemums can fill the bill.

"Chrysanthemums can provide color and variety in the fall months after many annual flowers have passed their prime, says Everett Jane, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Rooted cuttings of chrysanthemums planted in late May or early June will have a shorter growing season resulting in smaller plants that need little staking if properly pinched."

this into the top 6 inches of soil. "About six weeks after planting, apply a sidedressing of one-half pound of ammonium sulfate fertilizer per 50 feet of row and water thoroughly. The additional fertilizer will promote vigorous growth during the summer. You may want to reapply fertilizer in mid-Aug-best because it lessens the the plants to conserve soil moisture and reduce weeds.

> "To produce compact plants with many flowers, pinch out the terminal inch of each new shoot when it is about 3 inches long. This causes the lateral buds to grow, thereby producing short, compact plants that require little or no staking," notes the horticulturist.

Some plants may need to be pinched back as much as three times, but they should not be pinched back after late July."

Argentines Entere World Cup Play

By GEOFFREY MILLER AP Sports Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - Argentines, in the grip of soccer fever, cheered their national team into action for the first time in the World Cup today, while worried European fans looked to two young and untried Italians.

The blue and white striped Argentine team, one of the top favorites of the Cup because it is playing at home, was to face Hungary in Group 1 at the famed River Plate stadium in Buenos Aires.

Italy lined up against France in the same group at Mar del Plata with Antonio Cabrini, 20, in defense and Paolo Rossi, 21, chasing goals upfield. Neither had ever been in a starting line-up in an international game before.

First signs are that it will be a World Cup for new teams and new faces. Argentina has never won the trophy, and some of the teams that have won it need young blood.

At the River Plate stadium Thursday a crowd of 77,000 chanted derisively as West Germany, the defending champion, and Poland struggled to a 0-0 tie.

"Get them, out," the fans yelled as an uninspiring game slowed down to a deadly crawl in the second half

Germans longed for the majestic touch of Franz Beckenbauer, the polished team captain who had led the team to its triumph in the last World Cup in Germany in 1974. Without him, and without two other former Cup stars, Paul Breitner and Gerd Mueller, the German team looked a poor shadow of its onetime self.

Beckenbauer now plays for the Cosmos of the North American Soccer League.

Helmut Schoen, the German coach, pleaded before the start of the tournament for all 16 teams to use/attacking tactics. He confessed he was disappointed when his own team failed to take his advice.

"We wanted to win, playing in our own style," Schoen said. 'Somehow we played too defensively, which we never

AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) - Tonight was the night the Seattle SuperSonics figured they'd win it all.

Instead, they find themselves deadlocked with the Washington Bullets in their best-ofseven National Basketball Association championship series and another trip to Landover, Md., ahead of them.

The Sonics held a 2-1 lead in the series entering Game 4 Tuesday night at the Kingdome. If the Sonics had won that game, they'd have been playing for the title tonight.

But the Bullets spoiled those plans when they rebounded from a 15-point third-quarter deficit and outlasted the Sonics in overtime for a 120-116 victory that squared the series and snapped Seattle's 21-game home win streak.

So now it's down to best-of-three series with Game 5 set for tonight in the Coliseum, the Sonics' regular home court, and Game 6 on Sunday at the Capital Centre in Landover.

Way Into Lead

The seventh game, if necessary, would be played in Seattle on Wednesday night.

"We're ready to go," Sonics center Marvin Webster. "The loss won't change the outcome of the series, only delay it. I'm still confident. We know we can beat this team." "We wanted to end it here.

We just had to postpone it a couple of day, that's all," said Seattle guard Fred Brown. "Tuesday night was just minor setback." A minor setback for Seattle maybe, but a major step in the right direction for the Bullets.

"No matter what happens Friday night, we're going back home. I like that a lot," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. Tonight's game hinges on which team can put its game plan into action.

"If the Bullets play - and I've maintained this from day one we're tough to beat," said

Lenny Wilkens. "We have more ways of winning. I we play the way we are capable of playing, we will win."

A significant change occurred in Game 4, however - one the Bullets feel could carry them to the title. After relying almost exclusively on forwards Elvin Hayes and Bobby Dandridge for scoring in the first three games, they took a cue from Seattle and got balanced scoring, with seven players finishing in double figures.

"They got seven guys involved, and that's trouble." said Brown. "That's way too many people involved."

"It's not what the Sonics do to the Bullets, but what we do to ourselves," said Hayes, the club leader this series with 95 points and 51 rebounds.

Ex-Farmer Goes Back to Old Life

GOODHUE, Minn. (AP) — "It was time," said Chuck Schwartau, "to practice what I'd been preaching."

After an absence of nine years, Schwartau has quit his $18,700-a-year job as extension director for Winona County and

'dropped back in." For Schwartau the decision was not to switch careers. It was a decision to go home — back to the family farm bought by his grandfather more than a half-century ago, back to neighbors who are mostly cousins and uncles. Back home.

For a man familiar with all the vagaries of farming - the costs, the pitfalls, the marketing problems - Schwartau's words echo a familiar, idealistic strain:

"I want to be able to reap the 11-124-tfc profits from my work. If it's a loss, it's the result of my own work, my own fault - nobody to blame but myself."

Like many young farm boys of his generation, Schwartau, 28, grew up with the desire to get away from farming. "I think I was very typical of my generation," he said.

At college in St. Paul, attending the University of Minnesota, he started thinking again of a career in farming. 'There was always the feeling that I'd like to farm someday. The question was when,'

Schwartau's entrance into farming is also typical: through inheritance. His father died of cancer eight years ago and the family sold the implements and tractors on the 160-acre homestead. His mother remained on the farm acreage, while the

Bronze plaque won't shine

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I would like to find a cleaner that will polish the bronze plaque on my husband's grave. It is very dull due to the weather and the sprinklers so I hope you can tell me what will restore the shine. — FLORENCE

DEAR FLORENCE — Bronze is cleaned just like brass but it may take a lot of work to restore this plaque if it has been there for a time. Use a good brass or metal polish. A brush will have to be used on any lettering or carved designs. After you have attained the desired shine it might be well to spray with two or three coats of lacquer. Perhaps the monument company that installed the plaque will have some other ideas for you. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — After buying a new Thermos bottle put a label on the bottom that tells just how many cups the bottle holds. You will eliminate a lot of future measuring.

This has helped me many times. — CATHY DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those people who leave their grocery carts either in front of or next to the car so that you have to move them in order to park your car in the market lot. — MRS. W.C.D.

DEAR POLLY — In answer to B.L.'s problem of "cutting" margarine or butter in with dry ingredients like sugar, cinnamon, etc., this is done by using two knives scissor fashion. Or try a potato masher. But one should not beat or mix with a spoon. — PAMELA familiar with that old "rub with lemon juice remedy" but what if you do not have any lemons or cannot stand the smell of them? I have a handier and easier answer. Take a

Hemorrhoid variations

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My problem is hemorrhoids. I am embarrassed to discuss them with anybody. They bleed a great deal at times. I have used local preparations for years but nothing seems to help. I am afraid to have an operation because of bad reports I have heard about it. My brother-in-law had his removed by a doctor who used rubber bands. No operation, not hospitalized, no anesthesia, no pain. He is still very happy with it two vears later.

My surgeon just passed it off with "Oh, that's an oldfashioned method. We get too much scar tissue that way." I'd rather have scar tissue than hemorrhoids. Do you recommend this meth-

DEAR READER - Hemorrhoids are simply varicose veins of the rectum. They pop out because the veins are overstretched. Anything that exerts pres-sure on the veins around the rectum can cause this. An extreme example is the pressure of the fetal head as it passes through the pelvic area during birth. Constipa tion with straining at the stool is another major cause. Obesity contributes to the problem, as do other factors that increase the pressure inside the abdomen and prevent drainage of the veins from that area. There are internal hemor rhoids — which bleed — and external hemorrhoids which cause pain and itching. The pain fibers are in the external area, hence the internal hemorrhoids often do not produce any symptoms until one day a person bleeds.

You should never ignore rectal bleeding because even if it is from a hemorrhoid the pressure behind the vein causing the hemorrhoid may be a tumor. Let your doctor decide what is causing the bleeding. Cancer of the rectum is too common to ignore such an important sign.

Yes, rubber bands can be used to tie off internal hemorrhoids. It is an office procedure but cannot be used in all cases. It depends a lot on the extent of the hemorrhoids. And despite your brother-in-law's glowing report and equally misleading reports in popular lay magazines it is not al-ways painless. The internal hemorrhoid is grasped by a pair of forceps and pulled into the instrument used. The tight rubber band is slipped over the hemorrhoid. It may cause pain for six to seven days, and you have to be on the lookout for bleeding for about two weeks afterward. Only one hemorrhoid at a time is operated upon. You might ask to see a proctologist. Your family doctor could send you to one. Your own case will have to be evaluated before it can be determined if it would be suitable to do this in your injections are also used in some cases to scar off the offending vein or veins. You may get by with a change in habits. Improved bowel habits and the use of stool softeners often decrease the pressure and hence the bleeding and other problems that occur. I am sending you The Health Let-ter number 2-1, Spastic or Irritable Colon and Constipation, to provide some tips on good bowel function. This should be helpful with or without hemorrhoids.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspa-per, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. But remember before you can choose the right course your doctor will need to review exactly what your own problem is since there is a world of difference in hemorrhoids.

Hill Says Evaluations Are Public

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - A state evaluation report on a private college is public record, Attorney General John Hill said Thursday.

Kenneth Ashworth, commissioner of higher education, requested Hill's opinion on whether to release an evaluation report on Ambassador College in Big Sandy.

The state uses such evaluation reports in deciding whether to certify private institutions to grant degrees.

"It is our decision that the information requested is public." Hill wrote.

Ashworth said Thursday the college is a branch of Ambassador College in California, operated by Garner Ted Armstrong. A private citizen requested the report, which was prepared by faculty members from public and private universities and a staff member from the state college coordina-ting board. Ambassador College had objected to release of the report on grounds it would violate the college's privacy. "The right of privacy is designed primarily to protect the feelings and sensibilities of human beings, rather than to safeguard property, business and other pecuniary interests," Hill wrote, "The information in this report does not infringe upon any individual's privacy

Hawaiians Soaking Up Sun

HONOLULU (AP) - Residents of Hawaii are soaking up the sun in more ways than one as solar energy projects sprout in increasing numbers across the islands.

Government and private sources spent $2.5 million on solar demonstration projects in Hawaii last year, compared to $160,000 for 1975 and 1976, according to a state government

Nearly 2,000 solar-operated water heaters have been installed in homes and businesses across the state in the past three years, a Hawaiian Electric Company survey showed.

Sales may jump if a federal tax credit for solar energy devices is approved. Local residents are waiting to determine the tax credit, said Tom Brennan, Pacific representative of the federal Department of Hawaii residents are already entitled to a state tax credit of 10 percent of the cost of a solar y device.

Solar energy is not a new concept here. Some families built homemade solar water heaters in the early 1900s, taking advantage of Hawaii's yearround sunshine.

The islands' position near the Equator allows them to receive intense radiation since the sun is directly overhead for part of the year. With government dollars and pleas for energy conservation adding incentive, the number of firms installing solar heating units has grown from eight to nearly 30 in one year, according to the State Energy Office.

In using the sun's rays for energy, collectors placed on rooftops absorb the rays. They are used to heat water, to heat or cool indoor air, and to produce electricity. Of the various uses, solar water-heating is the most economically feasible now, according to federal and state officials.

Among the businesses adding solar collectors are four Waik-

The solar water-heating sys-tem installed last August at Banyan Street Manor, a 55-unit Honolulu apartment building, provides up to 66 gallons of hot water daily for each unit.

Mounted atop the three wings of the apartment building are 164 solar panel collectors, each about three feet wide by six feet long. The sunlight is absorbed by the collectors, which

Unwieldy Equipment Gives Pole Vaulter Travel Woes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) - Airline reservation agents cringe when they see Larry Jessee coming. So do cab drivers and It's not that Jessee has a bad temperament. Or bad breath.

It's the baggage he brings with Jessee is a pole vaulter. The primary tool of his trade doesn't fit in a gym bag. He must carry his poles wherever he competes. When some airline people see those 161/2-foot poles, they treat Jessee as though he's John Ringling North trying to check one of his circus elephants.

Often they are absolutely right. A 16½-foot item won't fit in a 15-foot compartment without some encouragement.

While most passengers are concerned only about what time a plane departs when they check the timetable, Jessee must examine the fine print. He has to be concerned about what kind of plane he's on. "If it's not one of the big ones, a 747, a DC10 or an L1011, it's gotta be a stretch 727 or a 707," he said on a visit to his parents in Miamisburg, Ohio. The poles won't fit on the smaller planes." Making a reservation on the proper aircraft doesn't always solve the problem for the 26-year-old, globe-trotting Jessee.

"What happens sometimes is that you're sitting in the airport and they announce: 'We've had an equipment change.' That's when I go crazy "he said.

But getting the poles aboard airplanes is just half the battle for the El Paso, Tex., resident, last year's national AAU indoor

What going to camp is like

Soon many of you will be going to camp.

The Mini Page talked to campers to find out what it's like.

Going to camp is leaving home and being on your own . . .

getting homesick and finding out everybody else does at some time or other . . .

living together in a group . . . putting on silly skits . . .

learning to do things you have never done before . . .

building campfires and roasting marshmallows . .

listening to stories and singing writing letters home and hoping you will be getting some . . .

cleaning your cabin . . . winning awards . . .

proudly wearing your camp T-shirt learning camp traditions and passing them on . . .

eating in mess halls and sleeping in bunks . .

making friends and exchanging addresses.

Going to camp is growing up a little . . and having fun.

What things would you like best about going to camp?

Going to camp is making lanyards and other things in arts and crafts . . . and taking them home as souvenirs.

Going to camp is going swimming every day so you might not have to take a shower or bath!

Princess Leia (Carrie Fisher) after her big hit, STAR WARS

Carrie Fisher is used to the fame that being a star brings. She was brought up in a show business family. Her mother, Debbie Reynolds, is an actress. Her father, Eddie Fisher, is a singer. Her mom and dad were divorced when she was a baby.

After finishing STAR WARS, Carrie moved to New York City.

She likes the big city because it gives her privacy.

She took piano lessons, exercise and acting classes.

Because she dropped out of school when she was 15 years old, she now studies with a tutor.

Carrie loved being in STAR WARS, not just because it made her a star, but because of the people she met.

She is very close to her mother. She has a brother named Todd.

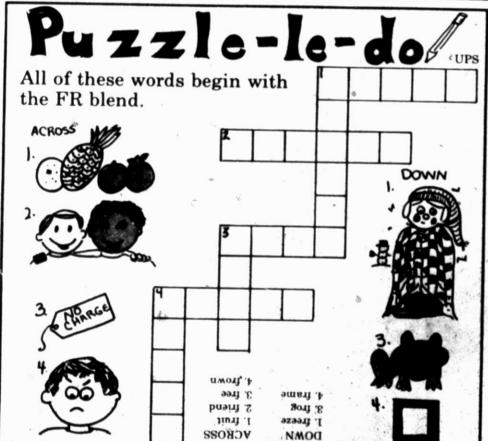

She is making a new movie, "Beatles 4-ever." Richard Thomas who played "John-Boy Walton" is also in the film.

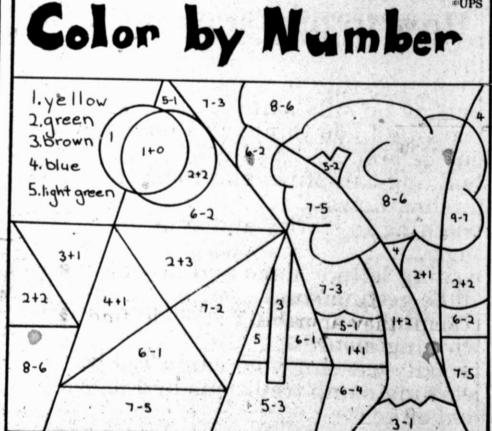

Her hobby is watching old movies. She also enjoys going to new ones.

Science Mystery? Mystery: Can you make a medicine dropper sink or float without touching it? Finding out:

- 1. Fill a soft-drink bottle to the brim with water.
- 2. Fill a small glass medicine dropper with enough water so it will just barely float.
- 3. Put the dropper in the bottle as shown.
- 4. Put the palm of your hand tightly over the mouth of the bottle and press down. What do you see? Can you make the dropper stay in the middle of the bottle?

Clue: As you press down, water enters the dropper and makes it heavier than water, so it sinks.

Basketball camps are very popular. Like many sports camps, they are often run by college coaches. The kids sleep in the dorms and use the college gym. The boys above are going through a drill.

Learn Enough to make a difference

Many boys and girls and adults, too, will be working on their favorite sports at summer camps.

They are hoping to get better at soccer, tennis, basketball, football, and other interests.

"I want to learn enough to make a difference," one camper told The Mini Page.

How to pick a camp

- 1. Know what your needs are. More and more kids are going to day camps.
- 2. Meet the director and members of the staff. A well-run camp has good counselors.
- 3. Visit the camp. See if it meets all the safety rules.
- 4. Many camps, but not all, belong to the American Camping Association. This group puts out directories of camps they approve. You might find their directories at your library.
- 5. Write the camps you are interested This camper likes canoeing. in. Don't expect your parents to send you to a camp they can't afford.

What kind of camp would you like?

Homesick tips

The Mini Page asked some kids what advice they would give to campers who get homesick.

- 1. Try not to think of home.
- 2. Get interested in something.
- 3. Bring along a teddy bear or some other favorite toy
- 4. Talk to your counselor. Remember, getting homesick is just a part of growing up. It happens to everybody. Don't worry about it. You will
