

Commissioner Questions City-Hall Land

Brownlow Also Asks Mayor About Hiring of Architect

BY PAUL SIMS

Commissioner Emory Brownlow Monday night questioned Mayor Bartley Dowell and City Attorney Earnest Langley concerning what the city paid for property to be used as the site for a new city hall and who authorized an Andrews architect to draw up plans for the building.

The grilling highlighted an otherwise dull meeting of the city commission, which appointed Melvin Jayroe to replace N.D. Bartlett III on the Tax Equalization Board and agreed to seek a contract with a Plainview insect-control outfit to spray mosquitoes from the air.

"The question's been asked to me about this property we purchased," Brownlow said. "Nobody's every said to me what we did pay for the property. I want to know the date and what minutes the property purchase was in."

Langley said that he "had never given it much thought," adding that City Manager Dudley Bayne probably authorized the purchase of buildings on the block between Lee and Miles and 3rd and 4th streets—the proposed location for the $600,000 city hall to be constructed out of revenue-sharing funds.

Brownlow also questioned the fact that Andrews architect Tommy Huckabee will present tentative plans for the new construction during a special commission meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 27.

"Supposedly, we're already having blueprints drawn," Brownlow said.

Dowell answered, "Not really."

Brownlow asked, "Then, what are we meeting for next Tuesday night?"

The mayor replied, "He's got ink sketches."

Brownlow asked Dowell, "Who authorized this architect to draw plans for the new city hall?"

Dowell said the architect had not yet

Discussing Patients

Patients—actually, the lack of them—were discussed this morning by the Deaf Smith County Hospital District board of directors during their regular monthly session. The board, in other business, appointed an acting administrator for the hospital, purchased liability insurance and added three new doctors to the emergency-room rotation. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

Deaf Smith General Continues To Live with Patient Shortage

A patient slump in 1977 at Deaf Smith General Hospital continued in May, hospital administrator Ron Welty told the county hospital district board of directors during a regular meeting early today.

Patient days in May totaled 711, compared to the same month a year ago. Patient days for the fiscal year which began last Oct. 1 totaled 6,930 through May 31, down 236 from the previous year.

This fiscal year's average daily census for adults and children has been 28.5 compared to 29.5 in 1976-77. Welty had predicted an average daily census of 35 for the first eight months of this fiscal year when he prepared the budget last summer.

The May and year-to-date operating statements for the hospital reflected the decrease in the number of patients. Total patient revenues for May were $132,093, more than $40,000 (24 percent) down from the budgeted figure for the month. Year-to-date revenues totaled $1,255 million, down 10 percent from the forecasted figure.

The hospital lost approximately $26,000 in May from operations, according to Welty. Total operating expenses in May were $150,089. The year-to-date total is 2 percent higher than what was budgeted "due to higher than expected supply costs—seven percent above forecast—and repairs due to breakdowns," Welty said.

The hospital's total expense per patient day in May was $205.30, compared to $143.53 in the same month of 1977.

In other business, the board appointed nursing director Glenda Sims as acting hospital administrator, effective July 1, authorized Welty to purchase liability insurance for hospital malpractice and heard a report from Dr. A.T. Mims, chief of the hospital medical staff.

Mrs. Sims will act in the absence of Welty, who has resigned—effective July 1—to pursue business interests. Welty told the board he would assist a new administrator when someone is hired.

The board has received applications for the position for more than two weeks and has narrowed the list of candidates.

Welty told the board the malpractice insurance, which provides coverage to all facets of the hospital, would cost $16,372. Board president H.A. Cavness said the policy was "the best available," and the directors approved a motion to buy the insurance.

Welty said the hospital plans to purchase an emergency generator for $25,000 to $30,000 to replace an existing unit. Cavness said the newer generator was a necessity in case of a power blackout at the hospital.

Dr. Mims said the medical staff has appointed three physicians for rotation in the hospital emergency room—Drs. Eugene Holm, David Hodgson and Chand Basker, all from Amarillo. They will begin emergency room duties on July 1.

Mahon Calls Cotton-Dust Standards Highly Inflationary, Damaging to Industry

WASHINGTON D.C. — Congressman George Mahon labeled as "highly inflationary" and "damaging to the cotton industry" new cotton dust exposure standards announced by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration Monday.

A controversy over the promulgation of these standards has been raging over a period of years, and Mahon has been in the forefront of efforts to prevent the imposition of unreasonably strict and expensive standards where a demonstrated health risk had not been established.

The Mahon confirmed reports that the cotton dust standards have been the topic of a heated debate within the Carter administration in recent weeks and expressed disappointment over the president's decision to move forward with the standards as proposed by OSHA. Mahon said, "I am disappointed that the president has apparently failed to follow the advice of his chief economic advisors who warned that the standards as written by OSHA will be highly inflationary and will impose a heavy burden on the cotton industry. I had hoped some of the less expensive and more reasonable alternatives suggested by the Council on Wage and Price Stability would be adopted."

Mahon mentioned that he had appealed personally to the President regarding the standards, as well as other top government officials, including Dr. Eula Bingham, Assistant Secretary of Labor for OSHA; Robert Strauss, the President's chief inflation fighter; and Charles Schultze, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

In commenting on the effect of the standards on the cotton industry, Mahon said, "The impact on cotton gins will be relatively minor in comparison to the effect on cottonseed oil mills and textile manufacturers. The textile mills will bear the brunt of the regulations, and I am afraid many mills, rather than spending huge sums required for plant modification and other improvements necessary to meet the standards, will shift from cotton toward increased use of synthetic fibers. This would have a serious economic impact in all cotton-producing areas."

Mahon explained that the new standards would not be as restrictive as originally proposed for cotton gins, because gins will be exempt from a specified exposure limit. However, he said that gin operators will be required to inform their employees of the health risk associated with exposure to cotton dust and also to provide an annual medical examination for each employee. He expressed approval of reasonable and practical efforts to reduce health risks to industry employees.

Mahon cited OSHA's own figures to demonstrate the huge amounts of capital necessary to implement the engineering controls required by the standards.

"According to OSHA projections, the cottonseed oil mill sector alone will be required to make an initial investment of $45 million for the purchase of new machinery which, in some instances, is not now available and may not become available in the future. In addition to the capital costs, an annual expenditure of $15 million for operational costs and interest payments will be necessary."

An isolated hailstorm swept across a narrow area of the far northern portion of Deaf Smith County last night, causing some damage to crops before passing into Oldham County and wreaking more havoc with crops in the vicinity of the Wildorado community.

Heavy clouds built in the southwest and traveled to the northeast, dumping small hail and rainfall of over an inch in some localities.

High winds accompanied the storm. Bill Cleavinger reported .50 inches of rainfall at his home five miles south and three miles west of Wildorado, but pointed out that 1.50 to 2 inches of rain fell just a short distance south of his home.

"The hail was small, but there was a lot of wind with it. It started falling around seven last night, and apparently was concentrated in a narrow area," said Cleavinger.

Cleavinger indicated that fields were too wet for him to make a close inspection this morning, but that the wheat crop in the area of the storm suffered heavy damage.

"The wheat crop was cut up pretty badly. Sugar beets and milo lost some leaves, but should grow back okay. But that wheat...there's no growing back for it," he stated.

A spokesman for Deaf Smith Feedyards 21 miles northeast of Hereford reported heavy pea-sized hail in that vicinity as well, but stated that he knew of no severe crop damage offhand.

The Mark Hicks farm 19 miles north and five miles west of Hereford reported hail damage to corn in a narrow area in

HOW WOULD YOU like to live in the state of North Texas with Lubbock, Plainview or Amarillo as the capital?

Mrs. Carol Ellis of Friona believes such drastic action may be the best way to get adequate representation in Austin and Washington for this region, and she has mailed out letters to newspapers throughout the area.

She proposes a separate state consisting of the Panhandle and portions of West Texas with a southern border on the Andrews and Martin county lines and perhaps an eastern border including the counties of Childress, Cottle, King, Stonewall and Fisher.

Before that could happen, a lot of people would have to go along with the proposal. She points out that when Texas joined the Union, it retained the right to divide up into five states. It shouldn't concern us, she says, whether or not the rest of the state would remain as one or divide up into four more states.

It's now a new idea, and the division has been jokingly presented on other occasions. We believe Mrs. Ellis is serious, however, as she writes:

"I wonder if others in our area share my feeling that our part of the state is sadly neglected in representation in Austin and Washington? Because we are not a densely populated area, we are sitting here with virtually no government in our behalf. We have a very small voice (or none at all) in state and national governmental affairs, as compared to the big city, densely-populated areas downstate. Ours is mostly an agricultural economy as compared to the oil and industrial sections of southern part of

Energy-Stamp Idea Nixed Before PUC

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An economist for a Texas consumer's group told the Public Utility Commission on Monday that energy stamps for the poor would "set class against class."

A commission staffer asked Frederick Wells what he thought about energy stamps to help the poor offset rising utility costs, and he replied:

"I support it in theory all right, except it ends to set class against class with the working poor paying for the unemployed. Also, it has all sorts of administrative problems. Generally, I'm not very interested in that."

The Branding Iron Hereford Lawyer Works to Improve Colleges

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Learning on the college and university level in Texas is a critical concern of a Hereford attorney who in 1969 accepted a governor's appointment to a state board responsible for upgrading the system of higher education.

"I can see a real need to provide, for young people and adults, a system of higher education that meets the needs of the individual and overall economic and cultural needs of our state," says Wayne Thomas, a member of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System since his 1969 appointment to fill an unexpired term.

Governor Dolph Briscoe re-appointed Thomas to the board in 1971 and again this year. His present term will expire in 1984.

A 1965 statute created the board to maintain a quality level of education in public senior colleges, universities and junior colleges. Thirty-three senior colleges and universities and 53 junior colleges are under the jurisdiction of the 18-member governor appointed board.

The board, as a result of another act of a licensing agency for private institutions, approving or disapproving the degree-granting authority of those colleges.

"In that respect, it is our purpose to be sure that the state's private institutions are being given equivalent courses of study that would be present in a public institution," Thomas said.

"As to public institutions, the board has a goal of, number one, to provide quality higher education in Texas without unnecessary duplication in the same fields of study. Number, at the same time, the board provides access to higher education for students of this state at a cost which they can afford—keeping down the cost of education and at the same time maintaining quality education.

"The board has an awesome responsibility. The magnitude of it not only includes the role and scope of degree offerings, but any building program that includes a cost of more than $100,000 must be approved by the board itself."

Thomas said his service on the board which has included a 1971-72 stint as chairman "has been a challenge and worthwhile—it provides me a means of being some service to the people of this state."

The board is required by law to meet every three months in Austin. However,

Sandoval To Testify About Manpower Funds

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) - Eliseo Sandoval - who has previously balked at testifying about alleged misuse of federal Manpower funds - has agreed to testify against men he allegedly conspired with.

Assistant U.S. attorney John Smith said here Monday that Sandoval, the indicted director of an Edinburg anti-poverty agency, will aid prosecutors in exchange for their agreement to drop all but two federal charges against him. Sandoval reportedly pleaded guilty to the two remaining charges.

"We've reached an agreement in principle," Smith said.

Sandoval, who parlayed federal grants and a smooth demeanor to make the Associated City County Economic Development Corp. an influential agency, was named May 9 in multiple federal indictment here.

Eight indictments charged he misused public funds. Five indictments named him and business partner Nick Ramirez, former director of the Hidalgo County Manpower program - on charges of conspiring to steal federal funds and obtain improper loans.

Another indictment named Sandoval and Ramirez on charges that they conspired to funnel federal funds into their private business. That true bill also named Fernando Salinas, director of the Greater South Texas Economic Program Inc. of Jim Hogg County; A.M. Fernandez, director of South Texas Enterprise of Jim Hogg county; and Ed Romeros, former ACCEDC auditor.

Examiners' Secretary Refutes 'Clubiness'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners has denied that clubiness among doctors keeps the board from punishing those who prescribe pills for drug abusers. Dr. Bryan Spires, chief operating officer of the board, sharply differed with policies officers who said a code of brotherhood among doctors makes the board ineffective.

The officers were quoted by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in a Sunday story as saying that as many as 300 Texas doctors pump millions of dollars in amphetamines into the illegal drug market annually.

"I believe from the bottom of my heart that this business of a code of brotherhood... is just not true. Physicians, by and large, are more interested in getting rid of the rotten apples than anyone I know of. A big problem is keeping board members from crawling over the board table and physically assaulting some of the physicians who have appeared for disciplinary hearings," Spires told a news conference Monday.

The Star-Telegram said 10 doctors account for a third of the illicit pills obtained by Fort Worth drug abusers.

It quoted authorities as saying doctor-written prescriptions provide a third of the illicit pills obtained in San Antonio, half in Houston and a fourth in Dallas.

Agencies Can Pay For Discrimination

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - State agencies legally can pay back wages to persons who validly claim employment discrimination under federal civil rights laws, Attorney General John Hill ruled Monday.

His opinion went to Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, chairman of the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

Discrimination claims are filed with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which attempts to resolve them through conciliation. If agreement cannot be reached, and the EEOC finds discrimination did occur, the state agency can be sued.

Schwartz asked Hill to determine whether payment of back wages in such cases was blocked by a Texas constitutional provision forbidding payments of claims unless provided for by pre-existing law.

"In our opinion, Title VII of the U.S.

Civil Rights Act of 1964 constitutes pre-existing law for payment of back wages to persons who have been the subject of unlawful employment discrimination," Hill said.

"Once employment discrimination is shown, back pay should be awarded when necessary to make victims of discrimination whole...The absence of bad faith on the part of the employer is not a sufficient reason to deny back pay," Hill said.

Administration Warns Soviets for Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is warning the Soviet Union that it must agree to a ban on killer satellites or the United States will not hesitate to escalate the arms race in space.

"We're the world's most technically advanced nation," an administration official said on Monday. "We can achieve a system that is of higher quality and better than theirs."

He said he hoped the two countries would agree to curb anti-satellite systems before the superpowers engage in a new and "unhealthy" space arms race that could cost each nation billions of dollars.

The official, who asked not to be identified, briefed reporters on a new national space policy recently drawn up by President Carter. The policy is dedicated to continuing U.S. technological supremacy in space, with strong emphasis on military systems to counter possible Soviet threats.

Early in his administration, Carter made a public appeal to the Soviets to outlaw satellite-destroying systems. But that nation has staged five tests since then and has given no signs it intends to forgo the killer satellite system.

Morals, Darter Discussed

"The Sliding Morals of Our Country" and the controversial snail darter were subjects of the table topic session during the regular meeting of the Hereford Toastmaster's Club Monday morning.

Prepared speeches given by Dr. Milton Adams and Lester Nixon touched on building vocabulary and the history of the Coca Cola Company. Toastmaster of the Day was an affiliate member from the Dimmitt club, Bill Danovick.

During the table topics session, a few Toastmasters selected at random were asked to stand and speak on a selected subject. Bob Wear expressed his thoughts on the snail darter, saying that the small fish that has held up construction of a dam in Tennessee was a nuisance to society. Dan Welty made a rebuttal when he was asked to take the darter's side.

Topicmaster Bill Allen then switched the discussion to the morals of the United States, prompted by his recent trip to Six Flags and the dress of people there.

Doctor Adams urged each Toastmaster to increase his vocabulary through the use of Greek and Roman derivatives, much as science and medicine are called upon to do. The title of his speech, "Build Your Vocabulary as the Men in Technical Fields," was voted the best prepared speech.

Lester Nixon entitled his speech "History of a Hobby". He told how a pharmacist named Pemberton invented a soft drink in his spare time and how the invention has come to be the most popular soft drink in the world.

Victor Cantu was greeted as a guest of the Toastmasters and was enlisted as the club's newest member.

The 6:30 a.m. meeting saw the exchange of the president's gavel as past president Bill Allen handed his duties over to B.J. Gilliland, who will serve in that role for the next six months.

Paul Harvey News Civil Servants--Servants Again

Some of California's "civil servants" can't get used to the idea of being "servants" again. They are so accustomed to throwing their weight around, demonstrating their arrogant authority, that they'd forgotten: in this country they are not the government, we are!

What I'm about to say must be prefaced with some word of appreciation for the selfless employees of federal, state and local government who have worked hard, eaned their salaries, performed their jobs well.

But they-the hard-working ones-must be more embarrassed than most of us when they see California's public service employees' unions pleading with that state's Supreme Court to outlaw Proposition 13 as "unconstitutional."

Soon, therefore, we can expect a court verdict on whether this really is a government "of, by and for the people."

Or whether it has become something less which some entrenched bureaucrats think they would prefer.

Only part of the public outrage is directed toward the size of recent property tax increases. Perhaps the larger part is directed toward the dictatorial tin gods often encountered by taxpayers when visiting City Hall or the County Building.

Farmers have seen "public servants" who don't know beans about farming intrude on their barns, barnlots and bookkeeping with arbitrary edicts? "Do it this way or else!" Taxpayers are fed up with picketing schoolteachers demanding higher and higher wages while delivering less and less education.

And the inexcusable waste and danger of cross-town school of us can't afford. This nationwide regurgitation which was triggered June 6 in California is more than just resistance to high taxes-it includes resentment of the indignities and intimidation that taxpayers have had to take from public officials and employees who have tended to turn our representative republic into a bureaucratic dictatorship.

And the very idea that California's government workers and schoolteachers are now court-fighting for their right to continue riding the gravy train is the most certain evidence that mass firings are long overdue.

Telephone Service Helps

Smokers Who Want To Quit

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - For Memphis residents trying to stop smoking, help is as close as the telephone. And would-be quitters across the state soon may be able to dial up to avoid lighting up.

Day or night, in the state's largest city, Dial-a-Puff answers at 278-8003. "Congratulations," a reassuring recorded message says. "You're a winner because you're going through the lonely and anxious steps of putting your cigarettes away."

"Remember, any discomfort you are experiencing, physically or emotionally, is natural during the period of cessation from smoking. They're all indications that you are successfully making the passage from smoking to not smoking. If you would like someone to go through the passage with you, or if you have any questions concerning the positive step of kicking the habit, please leave your name and number. One of our concerned ex-smokers from the Tennessee Lung Association will contact you."

TLA executive director William F. Busse of Nashville explained the idea in an interview. "A number of organizations and people have tried a variety of things, so we came up with the idea of having a 24-hour telephone service," he said. "We initiated it here in Memphis to test it out and see how it works, hoping that it will go statewide. We know of no other places that have tried it, so it's really an experimental program. But it looks like it's going to be a good one."

Dial-a-Puff began the second week in April at an initial cost of $5,000, Busse said. He'd been toying with the idea for years. In the first 90 minutes there were 54 calls.

There is even a number for backsliders, 278-8004. That recording suggests substituting something like exercise or eating fresh fruit or vegetables for smoking.

Branding

it has found itself meeting an average of 10 times a year-often on campuses of the state's colleges and universities.

Among the projects undertaken by the members have included Texas Tech's law school and school of medicine, both of which were approved by the board.

Thomas, in 1976, was invited to speak to the Alabama Senate, House and governor concerning the Texas board. "They were looking into creating a board similar to the one in our state, and I spoke to them about it."

His work on the board has landed him an appointment to the National Association of Governing Boards of Colleges and Universities, a 10-member committee responsible for coordinating higher-education programs throughout the country through the exchange of ideas.

Thomas has lived in Deaf Smith County since 1929. He attended West Texas State University and law school at the University of Texas at Austin. In 1952-53 Thomas, while serving in the Air Force, prosecuted and defended court-martialed servicemen as a judge advocate officer.

"That was good experience for me," Thomas said. "It was different from what I am doing because I prosecuted and defended people in criminal matters."

He now specializes in estate planning and probate law, and says he's glad to be doing it in Hereford.

"I think Hereford's the greatest. Hereford is, was and will be, in my opinion, a community that has a positive, progressive attitude which allows for the development of an individual, whether it be in a profession or business.

"In addition to the economic climate and attitude towards the economy, on an equal par with that, would be the community has an atmosphere conducive to good family relationships. I'm talking about churches, schools and medical facilities."

Thomas, a deacon at First Baptist Church, is active in church work, having taught a Sunday School class for 20 years. He and his wife, Mary, have three children-David, a 24 senior law student at UT-Austin; Shyla, 21, a four-year pharmacy student at the same university; and Trent, 14, a La Plata Junior High freshman.

In the morning, Thomas jogs 9 miles. "I've missed only six mornings in 15 years. I believe in jogging."

Now. Earlier, two Washington economists, Charles King and John Rettenmayer, said each class of electricity customer should pay its own way.

Six commission examiners listened to testimony in the second week of a hearing on different ways to determine electric rates.

Three days next week - including one night session - have been set aside for the general public to make known its views.

"There is a nationwide propensity to overcharge commercial and industrial users, especially the commercial class, and to undercharge the residential class," said King, representing the Texas Retail Association.

"One can write it off to politics, and that is the predominant cause," said King.

King said lifeline rates instituted in California to ease rising power costs on the poor have been "something of a disaster" in that "massive subsidies" have been obtained by raising non-residential costs.

Lifeline rates are supposed to provide at low cost the minimum electricity necessary to maintain a modest quality of life. One problem in California, King said, is that vacation homes of wealthier residents also benefit from lifeline rates.

"Each class should pay its own way," said Rettenmayer of the General Services Administration.

He said if a class of customer must be subsidized, the money should come from a governmental agency and "not be hidden in service costs."

"Society is better off," he said, "if everyone pays his own way."

Philip Mause, also of Washington, said the commission's objective - "once the revenue requirement has been fixed - should be the maximization of the internal efficiency of the electricity generated for use and not the maximization of social welfare. That should be left to the Legislature."

Mause represented the League of Women voters.

This commission is new and the staff is relatively new," said Rettenmayer, "and the commission has an opportunity to assume a leadership role in this country." He urged it to do so.

"A few years ago, when we began to speak up for some necessary legislation here in the Panhandle, the state managed to re-district our whole area, and thus cut off what little voice we had in state politics. For instance, our area is badly in need of water legislation. But the politicians in the southern part of the state don't need water, so they are willing to let our multi-million dollar agri-industry die for the lack of it."

Why is Plainview offered as the site for a state capital? Mrs. Ellis notes: "Since Lubbock and Amarillo have never been able to agree on anything, I would propose that our state capital be located in Plainview, which is pretty much the center of the area anyway."

In conclusion, the Friona woman says: "I do wish the people of this area would give this some serious consideration," and she adds, "Just think about it folks, we might not have to wait 15 years to get our highways built-and we could even abolish Daylight Savings Time."

"He's authorized to do something," Brownlow said. "He's drawing plans and he's going to charge something."

"Why aren't we saying to three architects that we've got to have this? It's my opinion that this man has been employed, but it is also my opinion that the commission hasn't officially employed him."

"I'm tired of these people calling me and asking me about this city hall when I don't have an answer to these questions. Who authorized us to buy the land?"

To this day, I don't now what we've spent. I don't think we've been informed, and I've got something better to do with my time than to come up here and say 'yes' and 'no' and then go home."

Dowell told Brownlow to write down his questions "and we'll have answers next Tuesday."

Mosquito Control of the Southwest, an aerial-spraying company in Plainview, has applied to the Federal Aviation Authority for approval to spray over Hereford. Commissioners agreed to grant a contract for aerial application of insecticide when the FAA approved the company's request.

The FAA requires separate applications for each city that a mosquito-control outfit is seeking to spray.

Dowell authorized bids Monday for 50 new trash containers to replace or add to existing containers, a steam cleaner for equipment used by the city street department and valley gutters and curbs.

Several gutters and curbs intersecting streets and alleys were damaged by the weather.

that vicinity, with up to 1.75 inches of rainfall.

Hail was also reported near the Ford community, with concentrations spotty, and heavy damage to crops was reported at the Billy Hodges farm.

The Farmer's Corner branch of Hereford Grain Corporation reported .25 inches of rainfall, with .50 inches of rain in an area 16 miles north and two miles east of Hereford.

The corn crop was also reported to have been stripped by pea-sized hail in that area.

Faye Williamson at the Ford community reported that pea-sized hail fell on her husband's farm 20 miles north of Hereford for approximately 15 minutes, while rain and high winds continued for about 30 minutes.

Mrs. Williamson estimated that about .30 inches of rain fell, and reported that her husband was in the field checking the extent of crop damage this morning.

"We had some tree limbs torn down and the crops have been stripped of a lot of their leaves. The hail didn't last that long, but it sure seemed like a long time because we were thinking about what it was doing to the crops," Mrs. Williamson stated.

A spokesman for Worthan Farms in the Milo Center area reported that hail fell up to 30 minutes in that vicinity, and that the pea-sized hail had stripped leaves from crops and gardens.

The spokesman reported one inch of rainfall from the rapid-moving storm, and stated that water was still standing this morning after the downpour.

The storm dumped light showers just north of Canyon and in Amarillo as it continued to the northeast, accompanied by brilliant lightning bolts.

While heavy weather hedgedhopped over scattered northern portions of the county, the city of Hereford failed to receive any precipitation from the storm front.

The weather forecast for West Texas calls for partly cloudy conditions through Wednesday, with widely scattered thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight.

A cooling trend was noted, with Panhandle highs expected to reach only into the mid-80's tomorrow, after last week's hot temperatures.

Tonight's low is expected to be 62 degrees.

Congressional Plans Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Senate is expected to take a record-tying sixth anti-filibuster vote this week as it continues struggling with controversial labor law revisions.

Meanwhile, the investigations into South Korean attempts at influence-peddling are likely to produce new developments in both houses of Congress.

And the House plans to spend its week spending billions of dollars.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd intends to call for the vote on choking off the filibuster on labor law revisions on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Five previous attempts by those wanting to end debate have fallen two votes short of the 60 needed.

The most anti-filibuster votes ever taken on one issue came in 1975, when the Senate failed six times to break a deadlock over a contested new Hampshire senatorial election.

Byrd has not said how long he intends to keep the Senate at work on the Carter administration-backed measure if the filibuster isn't broken on the next try.

The legislation calls for stiffer penalties against labor law violators. It also gives unions new leverage in their drives to organize workers, by establishing deadlines in representation elections and giving organizers permission to enter a company's premises under certain circumstances.

The Senate ethics committee is expected to report this week on whether there is evidence to support testimony of South Korean businessmen Tongsun Park, a central figure in the influence padding scandal. Park said he gave either $5,000 or $10,000 to the late Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign and up to 41,800 to Sen. Birch Byrd, D-Ind.

The House ethics committee may decide Wednesday whether to begin proceedings against four congressmen to determine whether they violated House rules in connection with money from Park.

Mayors Awed By Revolt

ATLANTA (AP)-The country's mayors are asking themselves why they are taking all the heat from the taxpayers' revolt.

"Local governments consistently have balanced budgets while states and the federal government often operate without tight management and fiscal reins," Chicago Mayor Michael Bilandic said Sunday.

As the U.S. Conference of Mayors annual convention here attacked a mounting tax crisis sparked by California's passage of Proposition 13, Bilandic complained that states are building up "irresponsible" surpluses and the federal government has been running a deficit for over a century.

"Yet the only governments being called upon to increase their fiscal responsibility are local governments, the only unit which is truly responsive to the people it serves," Bilandic said.

The problem as dramatically illustrated by California's Proposition 13, is that local government relies heavily on the property tax.

Special Counsel Leon Jaworski listed possible violations by former Democratic Whip John J. McFall of California; and Reps. Edward J. Patten, D-N.J., Charles H. Wilson, D-Calif., and Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., congressional sources say.

This commission is new and the staff is relatively new," said Rettenmayer, "and the commission has an opportunity to assume a leadership role in this country." He urged it to do so.

The property tax hits the average citizen in a particularly sensitive spot of the American dream - home ownership - and it is set locally, the level most accessible to quick and tangible redress.

"People told us they were voting for proposition 13 because it was the only way they had to strike at the state and federal governments," said Mayor Arnold Rue of Stockton, Calif.

Mayor David Vann of Birmingham, Ala., said the voters really were lashing out at inflation.

AKN Associated Press-NBC News poll showed inflation was the No. 1 concern of the 1,600 people interviewed by telephone last Monday and Tuesday. Thirty-seven percent cited it as the biggest problem and 47 percent said inflation has cut their standard of living.

But it is local government in California which is going to lose

Swimming Classes To Begin

A Water Safety Instructors Class is scheduled to commence tomorrow at the City Pool. The class will be taught by Debbie Hoover and Steve Murray of Lubbock. Anyone who is 17 or older and has a current Lifesaving certificate can enroll in the course. Classes will be held from 6:30-9:30 p.m. Also, the Red Cross's third session of swimming classes for children and adults will begin June 26 with registration scheduled from 9-11 a.m. Friday at the pool. Further details are available from Katie Miller, 364-2554.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a reader out there who hasn't at one time or another suffered the agonies of a consumer lemon.

Maybe it was a sewing machine that only worked in reverse, during a full moon, when oysters were in season.

Maybe it was a vacuum sweeper that picked up pennies, pins and small dogs, but unfortunately not dust.

Most likely, it was a car that was assembled on New Year's Day and had an early retirement wish.

I never understood why manufacturers could not bring themselves to admit, "Folks, you got a real brow-wow here, and we've tried to fix it, but we're going to have to replace it!"

Everyone has their own entry for the Lemon Olympics. For me, it was a washer that didn't. In three years, I had 28 service calls. I not only knew my repairman, Hal, by name, I knew the ages of his children and their names, how much his house payments ran, what his wife said to his mother when she put on a hard hat to clean the oven, and how he didn't know how much longer he could put off prostate surgery.

Basically, my washer had four cycle settings: WASH, SPIN, SOAK and HAL. He was the most dependable. A week without Hal was like a week without clean clothes. He became such an intricate part of our lives, my husband came home one night and said, "I'm taking the first two weeks in August for our vacation, okay?"

"Suit yourself!" I shrugged, "but remember Hal is taking the last two weeks of July and that means we'll be an entire month without a repairman."

When my husband and I discovered I was going to have another baby I dreaded telling Hal. He had told me once before that the washer was working to capacity and anything additional would send it over the edge.

Hal and our washer would have drifted through life with the Bombecks had it not been for a stroke of luck one day at the country fair sulky races. A horse which bore the trade name of our washer paid $48 to one. With the winnings, we bought a new washer of another brand.

It was hard saying goodbye to Hal. My husband and I visited him when he had surgery but after we rehabbed the good old days of spin, wash, thermostat, pump and leaks, we ran out of conversation.

4-H'ERS ACCIDENT-PROOF THEIR HOMES

Because more people are hurt at home than anywhere else, home safety is a yearround emphasis in the National 4-H Safety Program. To accident-proof their homes, boys and girls enrolled in the 4-H safety projects and activities to learn to:

-Store all medicines, household cleaning products, and bug sprays out of the reach of small children.

-Keep stairways and heavy traffic areas well lighted and free of clutter.

-Avoid wearing loose-fitting or flimsy clothing near kitchen stoves and wipe up spills right away.

-Use a sturdy step-stool or ladder for climbing and wear shoes that give good support and traction.

-Have faulty electrical or heating equipment repaired immediately.

-Make a family fire escape plan and practice it.

In the home, on the farm and highway, in the community and during recreation, 4-H members 9 to 19 years of age learn-by-doing-to think and practice safety at all times. They learn to identify hazards, correct them and educate others to become more safety conscious. The 4-H Safety Program encourages a variety of practical activities, including workshops, contests, film, skits, slide and puppet shows, home inspections and community safety campaigns.

4-H members, clubs and counties can earn awards for their accomplishments in the program, which is conducted by the Extension Service and supported by General Motors. Recognition for members includes eight $1,000 scholarships at the national level, an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for one member per state, and four medals of honor in each county. Four clubs per county and 10 clubs per state can win certificates of recognition for outstanding community and local safety programs. And a $25 cash award goes to the one county in each state conducting the best safety program.

Awards are donated by General Motors and arranged by the National 4-H Council. Winning members, clubs and counties are selected by the Extension Service.

For more information on the 4-H Safety Program, contact the county Extension office, at 364-3573.

Ann Landers
 Reader Questions Letters

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How come some days your column is fascinating, bright and lively--and loaded with insight, as if you have been endowed with the ability to look into the heads of the people who write to you? Your responses are direct and to the point. You cut through all the garbage and get right to it.

Then there are days when I quit reading after the first paragraph--a dull letter about some teenager with pimples or a woman who loaned her neighbor a steam iron and can't get it back. Trivial! Or worse yet, some idiot who wants a snappy comeback to a clod who asks, "How much did you pay for your house?"

How do you explain the fact that you're so terrific some days and on other days you're a sleeping pill? Do you take little vacations and let someone fill in?--Jus' Wunnderin' In Grand Island

DEAR GRAND: I do take little vacations (I'd have to, or I'd go bananas) but nobody "fills in" for Ann Landers. Every word of this column is written by me. The same goes for every speech, every booklet, and every magazine article that appears under my byline.

Please remember I write for an audience of 60 million daily readers. These people have a wide range of interests. They represent every segment of society--intellectual, economic, and social. They are from six years of age to 103.

Every column can't score a bullseye for every reader. You may be bored by the advice to a teenager with pimples, but to HIM it's of vital importance. I've been turning out seven columns a week for 23 years. This is an awesome responsibility. It's also a backbreaking job, but I love it.

I appreciate your praise for the days when you think I'm good and I accept the blame for the columns that bore you. They all come out of the same head. Thanks for writing. I'll bet many others out there have had the same questions on their minds. (P.S. Skip the next letter. You'll surely consider it a sleeping pill--but to the lady with the problem, it's important.)

DEAR READERS: Remember that woman who kept gasoline in her desk at the office to remove bubblegum from her hair? Well, I've had several telephone calls from authorities around the country, informing me that it's a bum idea.

Storing gasoline anyway can be extremely dangerous. One caller, Dr. Francis R. Russell, a retired chemical engineer from Exxon in New Jersey, went so far as to say that merely rubbing the hair with gasoline could cause the hair to ignite. He explained that the hazards are greater in a dry climate, but it could happen even in New Jersey.

Jerold Z. Kaplan, M.D., Director of the Burn Center at Alta Bates Hospital, with the American Burn Association in Berkeley, Cal., telephoned to warn my readers that gasoline can cause an instant explosion if it came into contact with a plug or light switch.

So--this is to tell one and all--do NOT use gasoline to remove gum from hair. I hope the lady who is keeping gasoline in her desk drawer will get rid of it immediately and replace it with nonflammable cleaning fluid. Or better yet, she should stop chewing bubble gum on the job.

If you take your pet with you in the car, remember: On a hot summer day the inside of a car heats very quickly. On an 85 degree day, for example, the temperature inside your car--with the windows slightly opened--will reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes. In 30 minutes it will go up to 120 degrees. On warmer days it will go even higher.

A dog's normal body temperature is 101.5 to 102.2 degrees Fahrenheit. A dog can withstand a body temperature of 107-108 degrees Fahrenheit for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage--or even death. The closed car interferes with the dog's normal cooling process, that is, evaporation through panting.

If your dog is overcome by heat exhaustion, you can give immediate first aid by immersing him or her in cold water until body temperature is lowered.

About 80 percent of the nation's roads and streets are paved today, compared with 1921 when only 14 percent of the thoroughfares in the United States had pavement, says the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Missionaries Killed in Bush-Station Attacks

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (AP) - It was night in the Rhodesian bush and Gunvor Pallson, a Swedish schoolmistress, was in her bungalow when the dreaded knock sounded at her door.

It was the first inkling of another guerrilla attack on another school, a death notice for two more missionary teachers.

When the 10 to 15 gunmen finished their raid, two young British women teachers were dead, caught in a single burst of automatic weapons fire. Miss Pallson, the 37-year-old vice principal of the Salvation Army's secondary school for black girls, survived with minor wounds.

The raid was the latest in a series of attacks on bush stations that left 19 white missionaries dead and closed dozens of mission schools and hospitals since December 1976. It was then that the retired Roman Catholic bishop of Bulawayo, Adolph Schmitt, 72, and two nuns were shot to death on a lonely road - the first to die in the guerrilla campaign against white missionaries.

The Salvation Army school had been kept open after guerrilla threats or raids closed four major missions run by the Roman Catholic, Anglican and Methodist churches in the surrounding area of southwest Rhodesia.

The raids and abductions of pupils occur in areas infiltrated by guerrillas of nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo and his political ally, Robert Mugabe.

The effect of the six-year guerrilla war on the vastly more numerous schools run by the government's black councils has been even greater.

Tony Smith, in charge of the government's still-segregated black state school system, says guerrillas have forced the closing of about 800 schools, and thrown 200,000 children - a fifth of the expected enrollment - out of class. Forty-five black teachers employed by the councils have been killed.

But to the Christian churches, the attacks are a cruel and puzzling response to nine decades of spreading literacy, medical care and Christian beliefs among 6.7 million blacks. In recent years missionaries have endorsed greater rights for blacks in Rhodesia.

Some churchmen claim the raids are on outgrowth of the indoctrination they say communist countries have handed guerrillas along with arms: wipe out Christianity before making Rhodesia a black-run, Marxist state.

Others maintain that many young militants look upon missionaries as people who brought Christianity and education but tampered with tribal tradition, although well meaning, and instilled a sense of inferiority for some about Africa's past.

Hardest hit has been Rhodesia's missionary giant, the Roman Catholic Church. All but three of the slain white missionaries were Catholics. Guerrilla activity has forced the closure of nine of 38 major black Catholic secondary schools, including some of the oldest in the country.

The church pioneered biracial education in Rhodesia by desegregating its white schools about 15 years ago.

At its missionary peak, before a state ruling 10 years ago forced churches to hand over most mission primary schools to local councils, the Catholic Church controlled the education of about 200,000 children.

The Catholic hierarchy also has been the most outspoken critic of the white-minority government, replaced three months ago as a prelude to black rule by a biracial interim administration, which has not been accepted by the guerrilla leaders.

In the past year and a half, 11 Catholic priests and nuns have been deported - five fewer than the number whose deaths the military blame on guerrillas.

"There are some guerrilla insurgents who are much in favor of the Catholic church as having stood up for the rights of the oppressed," the Rev. Richard Randolph, British Jesuit secretary of the Catholic Bishops Conference, said in an interview.

"There are other insurgents who have an antipathy for all organized Christianity, particularly the highly organized Christianity of the Roman Catholic Church," he added.

Anglican Bishop Robert Mercer of Matabeleland, whose vast diocese includes all of southwest Rhodesia, discerns a deliberate campaign against the churches.

"Their guerrillas' instructions are that a Marxist utopia is imminent," he said.

"In this there must be no divided loyalties. Therefore the church and missions must be destroyed."

Mercer added that everytime a school is closed, "it is a victory for the terrorists and it means more children without schools. But you can't go on risking the lives of other people's children."

Aussie Blasts Dallas

DALLAS (AP)-The best thing Australian Gary Duncan can say about Dallas is that the people here are "open and friendly."

But otherwise, Duncan, whose company sent him here on business for six months, said Dallas is "a totally charmless city that exhibits the worst of what I expected American culture to be."

He criticized the city for what he said was its "lack of public transportation, mediocre restaurants, hot weather, lack of promenades or parks "where people gravitate," lack of European films and international news in the newspapers and an "unsophisticated" populace.

"Everything's new-it's just exploded like a tidal wave to the suburbs," said Duncan, who was sent here from Melbourne by Trans-Australian Airlines for "six months of training at an electronic firm that markets a new computer system the airline bought."

"The buildings look like something erected fast and cheap to give maximum financial return. Nothing seems to be constructed to last."

Duncan, who lives in an apartment in the northern suburb of Richardson, said when he first got here he was amazed he could not ride a train or bus to downtown Dallas, 15 miles away.

"It was really a shock," he said. He bought a motorcycle to get around town on, but once he got downtown, he said he was not impressed.

"I went on a Saturday and couldn't get out fast enough. It's pretty obvious everybody else feels that way, too," Duncan said. "It was practically deserted. There's no place which attracts people to wander, no place where people naturally gravitate, no promenade or park."

He said most of the food is "rubbish," especially hamburgers - "they're standardized and covered with sauces to mask the bland taste of the meat."

Duncan says Dallas residents are uninteresting to talk to because they "get everything too easy."

"What can you say about people who are happy? I find them uncritical in matters which don't pertain to making money. They're happy, unsophisticated people-let's leave it at that."

"I haven't met too many people who talked about books or plays or music. If you went to Israel, for example, you'd think you were on another planet."

Practically everyone there is interested in what are called the arts, matters of the mind - not just earning more dollars or having an extra dishwasher.

"But their the Israeli attitude is conditioned by the threat of not being alive. I don't think people in Dallas have suffered enough. They get everything too easy."

Duncan says his six months will be up in September, and he will stick it out until that time. But not one day more.

Court Won't Intervene In Fed Milk Battle

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Supreme Court Monday refused to intervene in a dispute growing out of the government's six year battle with Associated Milk Producers Inc. over an alleged attempt to corner the nation's milk market.

The justices let stand a ruling that AMPI records surrendered to a federal grand jury may be transferred to a federal judge in St. Louis who is presiding over antitrust suits against the milk producers cooperative.

AMPI lawyers contended that the documents, given to a grand jury that investigated obstruction-of-justice charges against AMPI in 1975 and 1976 without returning an indictment, cannot be used in unrelated litigation.

The federal government filed an antitrust suit against AMPI in early 1972, charging that the cooperative violated federal laws in seeking control of the milk industry.

Some 15 similar suits were filed against AMPI by private competitors, and all the cases as well as the government's suit were assigned to U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver in St. Louis.

In 1974, some of AMPI's competitors who had filed suit complained that the San Antonio-based cooperative was destroying and concealing evidence while pre-trial proceedings were under way.

A federal grand jury was convened in Texas the next year to investigate possible obstruction of justice by AMPI in connection with the milk monopoly cases.

AMPI's efforts to thwart the grand jury probe proved futile and the cooperative had to hand over numerous business records.

But after exhausting its 18-month life, the grand jury returned no indictments.

In a letter to its presiding judge, however, the federal panel recommended that all evidence collected during its investigation be made available to other courts investigating antitrust charges against AMPI.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears of San Antonio in 1976 ordered that an inventory of the grand jury materials be transferred to Judge Oliver for such use as Oliver deemed appropriate.

Only those materials Oliver found a "compelling need" to see would be transferred to him, Judge Spears said.

Shortage of Oil, Gas Rigs Brings 'Premium' Buyers to Companies

HOUSTON (AP) - Ted Rogers says he wants no part of a black market if one exists in the current shortage of oil and gas drilling rigs.

Rogers is president of National Supply Co., the world's largest manufacturer of drilling rigs.

A backlog of orders for new rigs has caused delivery delays of 12 months or longer and there have been reports a few who placed orders in early 1977, are now taking delivery and reselling them at premiums as much as $1 million above the manufacturer's invoice.

Rogers acknowledges National has had some attractive offers in recent months.

"We've had offers from would be buyers to pay premiums ranging up to 20 percent for favorable delivery," he said.

"We don't know whether these offers were all that serious or whether they have been testing us, but it didn't make any difference. We should and did refuse them."

A 20 percent markup of a $5 million rig would amount to a $1 million premium.

In addition to turning down premium offers, Rogers said, National also seeks to qualify would be buyers as end users, not middlemen.

But the lag time between placement of an order and delivery continues to grow.

Rogers said rig package deliveries followed orders by two to three months at the end of 1976.

"Now, 18 months later, deliveries at National are running 14 to 15 months behind orders," he said.

More drilling rigs are now in use than at any time since late 1958.

The last three weekly surveys on active rotary drilling rigs have set new 20-year highs of 2,293, 2,288, and 2,286.

Such averages represent an increase of more than 130 percent when compared with the postwar low of 970 set in late April 1973, just months before the start of the Arab oil embargo.

The drilling industry rebounded, however, and finished with an average of 1,196 rigs in use in 1973 and boosted that to 1,472 in 1974 and to 1,659 in 1975. The average dropped to 1,658 in 1976 but jumped to 2,002 last year.

Hughes Tool Co., which conducts the weekly survey, originally forecast a 2,125 average for 1978 but later boosted the estimate to 2,175, a level that would be the highest since a 2,429 average was recorded in 1957.

Rogers said National reacted to the Arab embargo by moving as rapidly as possible on an expansion that boosted production capacity about 50 percent. Originally, the expansion was to have been spread over several years.

National had idle capacity about a year, Rogers said, between the expansion completion in 1975 and the start of the current buildup in demand for rigs.

A.J.R. Petersen, marketing general manager for drilling equipment, said National does what it can within the limits of the tight market to accommodate customers so long as it is not at the expense of the next buyer in line.

Petersen said equipment is being drawn from National's own plants and from licenses around the world to maximize the meeting of delivery commitments.

"Major components for the next rigs we ship out of Houston will come from our Stockport, England, plant," he said.

"More than half of the production from that plant, a facility operated for the last 50 years to meet Asian and European drilling equipment demand, is now shipped to Houston to fill domestic orders."

Delivery premium offers also were quite common in the 1950s when drillers were hard pressed to meet new demand while trying to retire old equipment that had served through World War II years.

"During such periods, we hope we have learned something about serving those who need the rigs to drill rather than those who see the opportunity to speculate and make a fast buck," Rogers said.

Israel Cabinet To Keep Land

JERUSALEM (AP)-The Israeli cabinet has refused against to promise to relinquish the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, saying Israel will negotiate the status of the Territories five years after a peace agreement.

The cabinet, after a month-long debate, adopted a policy statement Sunday which said that after five years of the limited self-rule Israel has promised the 1.1 million Palestinians in the two territories, "the nature of relations" between Israel, Jordan and the two territories "will be considered and agreed upon at the suggestion of any of the parties."

There was no immediate comment from Egypt. But President Anwar Sadat has never modified his demand that Israel agree to withdraw unconditionally from all the Arab territories it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

A Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman rejected the Israeli declaration, saying the Palestinians would "continue the struggle...to liberate our homeland and set up our independent state."

The Israeli cabinet's 14-5 vote for the policy statement was a victory for Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who threatened to resign rather than accept an outright commitment to give up the two territories taken from Jordan and Egypt.

The statement evaded a U.S. proposal that Israel agree to discuss the "permanent status" of the territories after the five year period. The Carter administration hoped this would signify enough give by Begin to get the Egyptians back to the negotiating table. But Israeli officials said this implied a commitment to decide the sovereignty of the two territories, and Begin contended that such an advance commitment would undermine Israel's position in future negotiations.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the U.S. government "will be consulting with each side about how to proceed on the basis of the Israeli response and the view developed in our exchanges with Egypt. At this stage we are not going to characterize either the Israeli response or the Egyptian views."

Begin proposed in December that the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza elect a governing council and have limited autonomy for five years while Israeli military control of the areas continued. Sadat rejected the plan at the time, and the new cabinet statement attached two conditions to the proposal which presumably will also be unacceptable to the Arabs.

One specifies that autonomy will not be granted until "the establishment of peace," or apparently until Israel, Egypt and Jordan agree on a peace treaty.

The other is that more than a million Palestinians living in the Arab states would have no voice in the governing of the territories or the future negotiations. Only the elected representatives of the West Bank and Gaza Palestinians would be involved.

Carter Pleases Castro

WASHINGTON (AP)-Cuban President Fidel Castro says President Carter is an honest man, but national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski "is irresponsible, adventurous and is a liar."

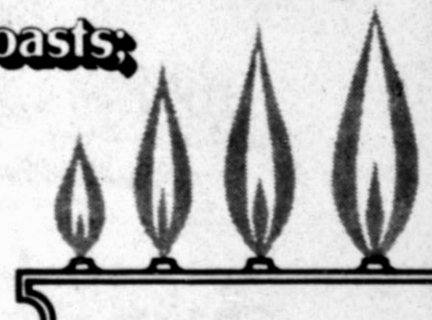

Castro said he has a "good opinion of Carter" and does not doubt "Carter's seriousness, his personal honesty and his intellectual capacity."

The Cuban leader spoke in an ABC News television interview with Barbara Walters, broadcast Sunday.

Castro described Carter as "the only president in the last 20 years to have made some positive gestures toward us" and said he would like to see him re-elected in 1980.

But when referring to Brzezinski, Castro said: "These four things, he is a man with a lot of prejudice in his opinion. He is a man who does not master international problems. He ignores the realities of today's world and it seems to me he plays with war."

HOW
TEN YEAR PROTECTION

Hereford Area's first HOW home is sold... Builder, Lester Merritt (left) with his agent, Melvin Jayroe, along with Gene Campbell who sold the home.

First HOW home purchased!

The first family in the Hereford area to purchase a home protected by the National Home Owners Warranty Program is Mr. & Mrs. Dwight Jones who are moving in Hereford. Major structural defects in the home are included in the first year's protection.

In the second year each home in the HOW program is further protected against major structural defects, with from the third through the 10th year, each home under the warranty is protected by HOW's national insurance plan covering major structural defects that would vitally affect the use of the home.

In addition, under the HOW warranty which protects the Buyer's new home (as well as all other new homes built by a HOW builder), if for any reason the builder cannot or will not fulfill his warranty obligation during the first two years, the insurance coverage arranged by HOW Corp. assumes the builder's responsibility to his customer.

Also, if during the warranty period, the buyer and builder have a dispute they cannot resolve, the HOW program provides for arbitration and independent arbitration procedures. Custom Built Homes issues of several dozen builders in America and the Poshville area, who have voluntarily become part of the HOW program, a nationally insured, 10-year owner buyer's protection program.

The Jones purchased their HOW protected home from Lester Merritt of Amarillo, who is registered with the HOW Corp. of the Texas Poshville Builders Association. Their new home is located at 237 Juniper Street.

Here in the Poshville, HOW is a subsidiary of the Texas Poshville Builders Association (TPBA), and offers through its voluntarily registered builders a 10 year

High Court To Study Children's Legal Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed Monday to expand its study of whether children have a legal right to challenge their parents' attempts to commit them to mental hospitals.

Laws in Georgia and Pennsylvania that had allowed parents or guardians to act for young children in seeking treatment for mental illness were struck down as a violation of the youngsters' constitutional right to due process.

The justices said they will review Pennsylvania's state laws on the issue when the study the constitutionality of similar Georgia laws next year.

The issue is an important one, with two competing rights at its heart: one protecting children from unjust legal actions and one allowing parents or guardians to rear their children as they see fit.

But a three-judge court in Pennsylvania ruled last May 25 for the second time that the state laws still violate the Constitution. State officials quickly appealed, asking the Supreme Court to consolidate their state's controversy with the pending Georgia case.

The federal court in Pennsylvania ruled in a lawsuit filed on behalf of all children facing parental commitment that every child admitted by parents to a mental facility, whether public or private, must be provided two adversary hearings no later than three days after commitment.

The first hearing is to determine the probability of whether commitment is necessary; the second, a more specific study of the need for commitment.

The justices already had agreed to review the lower court ruling that struck down the Georgia law. Today, they added the invalidation of the Pennsylvania laws to their consideration.

Man's Name Prompt Criticism Fire from Caesar's Palace Officials

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) - At some point, perhaps September, Caesar Crimi is going to have to go to court to defend his name.

Not that Caesar Crimi has a bad name. It was good enough for his grandfather before him, it was the name his mother chose for him when he was born, and in his 38 years he has done nothing to shame it.

That is why he was surprised when a man came to his beauty parlor last year and demanded that he change it.

"Cease and desist, he told me," Caesar Crimi said. "Cease and desist within five days. Can you imagine being told to cease and desist using your own name? What is this, Russia?"

Birth Certificates Being Faked To Give New Life to Fakers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Birth certificates record life. A fake one can be used to start a new one.

The counterfeiting of birth certificates has flourished, for they lead to a paper identity - driver's license and Social Security and credit cards.

Carroll gave examples in the health department publication, Texas Health Bulletin: "The Rev. Luis Herman Acedvedo-Cuevas of Houston was sentenced to eight years in prison for allegedly violating the immigration laws by making and selling $2,500 packages of 'spurious documents' to illegal aliens, most of whom had been born in South America."

Also in 1977, a Dallas couple, Domingo and Anita Rodriguez, were sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to obtaining and selling fraudulent birth certificates for $700-$800 to aliens.

Patricia's Mom Discounts Rumors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Patricia Hearst's mother Monday termed "totally ridiculous" a report in Newsweek magazine that her daughter plans to marry a former bodyguard.

Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner. Shaw has refused to comment on the story.

Newsweek quoted unidentified sources as saying the couple could be wed before Miss Hearst leaves prison.

Carter Proposes Combining Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter Monday proposed combining the government's five emergency preparations and disaster relief agencies into a single office in his latest effort to streamline the federal bureaucracy.

Administration, the Federal Preparedness Agency and the Federal Insurance Administration and the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration.

Unless the Senate or House votes to disapprove the plan, announced this afternoon by the president in a personal appearance in the White House press room, it will go into effect within 60 legislative days.

The White House, in a statement on the combination of the existing agencies into one office, said: "The current fragmentation of these programs has caused redundancy and inefficiency in the federal effort and confusion on the part of states and localities."

Hiring Oder Examined

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed Monday to judge the validity of a court order forcing Los Angeles County's fire department to accelerate its hiring of blacks and Mexican-Americans.

Mexican-Americans who have applied unsuccessfully for county fire department jobs sued the county in 1973.

Their lawsuit charged that written examinations given all applicants were discriminatory because they had a disproportionate adverse effect on minorities - a higher percentage of blacks and Mexican-Americans failed the tests.

In a case with great potential impact on the minority civil rights movement nationwide, the justices said they will consider what proof of bias is needed in many job-discrimination lawsuits.

Company Must Spend Millions in Program

WASHINGTON (AP) - General Electric Co. will spend $32 million on back pay and employment programs for women and minorities as part of an agreement reached with the government in a job discrimination case.

The out-of-court settlement is one of the largest reached between a company and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The agreement includes upgrading wage rates for some factory jobs held predominantly by women, retroactive payments to employees who have filed job bias complaints, and creation of several programs aimed at expanding job opportunities for women and minorities.

An EEOC spokesman said the agreement does not represent an admission of job discrimination by GE. The original complaint accused the company of broad discriminatory practices in hiring and promotion.

Scott Triggers Sox Rally Over Yanks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

You can fool all of the sluggers some of the time, but not all of the sluggers all of the time.

George Scott, for instance. The Boston Red Sox first baseman had gone down on strikes his first three times up against New York Yankee pitcher Monday night. Then came the fateful eighth inning.

"When you strike out three times in a row," said Scott, "the law of averages is in your favor. Sooner or later, you're going to make contact."

The "Boomer" finally lived up to his nickname, smashing a tie-breaking single that triggered a six-run rally and started the Red Sox to a 10-4 victory.

The meeting was the first of the 1978 season for the fierce rivals of the American League East Division and was typical of past battles at colorful Fenway Park.

Along with rain that delayed things at the start for a while, it had all the thunder expected.

"It's a good win for us," said Boston second baseman Jerry Remy, "because now we can't be swept in this three-game series."

He added: "I don't think there's a game in which we can be counted out, not with our lineup."

In other American League games, the Oakland A's edged the Texas Rangers 2-1; the Kansas City Royals nipped the Cleveland Indians 6-5 and the Seattle Mariners beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4. In the only National League game, the Chicago Cubs trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4 in 10 innings.

Carlton Fisk, who keyed a three-run fourth inning with a single, started Boston's game-breaking eighth with a double off the famous "Green Monster" wall in left center against reliever Rick Gossage. Fred Lynn was walked intentionally to bring up Scott. The big slugger fouled off a bunt attempt and then singled to center, scoring Fisk to snap a 4-4 tie.

Dwight Evans sacrificed and Butch Hobson walked, filling the bases. Rick Burleson singled, scoring Lynn, with Scott also coming around as right fielder Reggie Jackson bobbled the ball for an error. Remy knocked in Burleson with a double and Jim Rice, the AL RBI leader, brought in Remy with the sixth run of the inning with a single.

The victory, Boston's 20th in its last 25 games, improved its East lead to seven games over Baltimore and dropped the defending world champion Yankees into a tie for third place, eight games back.

"We have 90-odd games to go so we can't be over-confident," said Burleson, who had a double and a single, scored two runs and drove in one. "Last year we beat them a lot here and they still won the world championship."

Said New York Manager Billy Martin: "We had hoped to take three straight but now we're going to have to try to win two of three. But even if they win all three here, it's a long season. It's a long way to go."

Steve Renko and two relievers combined on a three-hitter and Jeff Newman hit a tie-breaking homer in the eighth to lead Oakland over Texas and end the A's 11-game losing streak. The blast broke up a pitching duel between Renko and Texas' Jon Matlack.

Renko went seven innings before yielding to Bob Lacey, who required relief help himself in the ninth from Elias Sosa. Sosa recorded his 10th save of the season after pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

"My fastball was going good for me tonight," noted Renko. "I threw a lot of fastballs. I got in trouble in the third when he walked three Rangers to load the bases, but I threw a couple of balls that were close and could have gone either way. But Campaneris hit the ball hard to Mario Guerrero, shortstop, and he turned it over for two. That's what you've got to have, good defense and picking each other up when you get in trouble."

Royals 6, Indians 5
Clint Hurdle drove in one run and scored two more to pace Kansas City over Cleveland. Hurdle helped the Royals overcome a 2-0 deficit with a run-scoring double in the third inning and came home moments later on George Brett's single as the Royals scored four runs.

The performance improved Hurdle's current hitting streak to eight games, something he attributed to "being more comfortable at the plate."
"He's swinging now," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, "just letting it all hang out and swinging."

Mariners 7, White Sox 4
Designated hitter Bob Robertson's three-run homer capped a five-run third inning and paced Seattle over Chicago. Mike Parrott allowed only three hits and worked the first five innings to gain his first major league victory, while Jack Kucek took the loss.

Dan Meyer launched the third inning with a one-out single off Kucek. After a pair of walks loaded the bases, Bill Stein singled in two runs. Robertson, former Pittsburgh slugger who sat out the 1977 season because of back surgery, then followed with his second homer of the year.

"There's some question if I can play first base consistently," said Robertson, "but I believe I can DH forever."

Cubs 6, Pirates 4
Manny Trillo's two-run double capped a three-run rally in the 10th inning and led Chicago over Pittsburgh. Two Pirate errors opened the door for the Cubs' rally. Pinch-hitter Mike Vally reached first when third baseman Mario Mendoza misplayed his grounder. Pinch-runner Rudy Meoli moved to second as first baseman John Milner made an error on a sacrifice play and eventually came around to score the tie-breaking run on Larry Bliittner's double.

After Dave Kingman was walked to fill the bases, Trillo doubled to score Gene Clines and Bliittner.

Ali Impressed With Brezhnev

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, who has been trading verbal punches lately with the Carter Administration, traded bear hugs with boxer Muhammad Ali.

The former world heavyweight champion said that during his 35-minute private meeting with Brezhnev Monday the Soviet leader asked him to serve as his unofficial ambassador for peace to the United States. Ali also said Brezhnev had given him a private message to convey to someone in the United States. Ali declined to discuss it further when he was asked whether the message was for President Carter.

Ali, who has met Carter, former President Gerald R. Ford and Queen Elizabeth II of Britain, was the first American athlete to be received by Brezhnev, Soviet officials said.

Ali, looking ambassadorial in his pin-striped black suit, was greeted by a smiling Brezhnev who ushered him to a long, green-topped table and presented Ali and his wife Veronica with a watch, a painted box and a copy of his wartime reminiscences, "Malaya Zemlya," inscribed: "To Muhammad Ali, for happy memories, L. Brezhnev."

"I know Brezhnev. I've met Brezhnev," Ali exclaimed later to reporters after the meeting. "This is the biggest honor I've ever had in my life."

"I gave him a hug and kiss on both cheeks - that's a great honor for a Negro from the United States, a Negro who had trouble eating in white restaurants a few years ago."

The boxer said he told Brezhnev that "... I didn't realize from the pictures I've seen and the things I've been told that he was such a quiet and meek gentleman."

At Soviet government expense, Ali has visited Moscow and his central Asian cities of Tashkent and Samarkand, where he prayed in a Moslem mosque and praised Soviet racial harmony.

Ali said he told Brezhnev that during his week touring the U.S.S.R. he has found the Soviet people "as human and as loving as any people on the planet."

Ali told the news conference he was impressed by Brezhnev's desire for peace, and that he also told the Soviet leader, "President Carter and the American government want nothing but peace."

"Our country's too beautiful to be destroyed by bombs and killing people. Nobody wants war. Nobody can win," Ali said.

Lopez Helping LPGA Exposure

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) - Nancy Lopez, the hottest item in professional golf in the last 33 years, is trailing sparks with her meteoric success this year.

The entire Ladies Professional Golf Association is benefitting from the 21-year-old record shattering rookie, already the richest rookie player - male or female - to use a set of golf clubs.

Lopez, fresh off her fifth triumph in a row, a two-stroke victory over Jane Blalock and Debbie Massey at Rochester's Locust Hill Country Club, leads the field for this week's LPGA event.

"It's given us a superstar, a real celebrity," said Betsy Rawls, a Hall of Famer and now the LPGA tournament director who is setting up this week's lady Keystone Open.

"The women's tour had been growing by leaps and bounds without her. But she's really given us a boost. People come out just to see her. She's got a quality that attracts people. They like to watch her play," said Rawls, winner of 54 tournaments in her 25 years as a touring pro.

With Arnold Palmer-like flair, Lopez has won five straight tournaments, more than any other woman in the 28-year history of the LPGA. Only Byron Nelson, who won 11 straight events in 1945 on the men's tour, has won more in succession.

Locals Win At Track Meet

A massive field endured stifling heat and the tediousness of long periods of idle waiting Saturday to compete in the Hereford Kiwanis AAU Track Meet, which was held at Whiteface Field.

The local team, sponsored by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA and coached by YMCA program director Weldon Knabe and Stanton Coach Roland Trevino, had two winners at the large meet, which dragged through the early-morning hours on into the evening.

Large numbers of entrants in the younger divisions' 50- and 100-yard dashes made the day a long one as some events had as many as seven heats. The top seven times from the heats were

Kitchens' Win

Local brothers duo Keith and Kelly Kitchens put together rounds of 63-67-130 last weekend to win the Championship Flight of the Doc Rander Memorial Partnership Golf Tournament at the Castro County Country Club in Dimmitt.

The Kitchens' led the first day of play by one stroke over J.J. Butler - Coyle Winborn, who carded a 71 Sunday to finish second at 135. All scores were higher Sunday due to windy conditions.

Dimmitt basketball coach Ken Cleveland teamed with Don Lantz to claim First Flight honors with a two-day total of 141.

The Kitchens' effort was 12 strokes under par for the par 72 course.

Redbird Win Easy; Tough One Coming

Hereford's American Legion Redbirds made it a sweep of Vega Sunday with an 18-0 lambasting of their neighbors to the north. The walkaway win followed a 15-0 win by the 'Birds over Vega Saturday.

Ernie Suarez hurled a one-hitter at the Vega nine, an effort which followed a no-hitter spun by Hereford's Kevin Bunch Saturday. "Ernie pitched a great game," legion coach Joe Don Cummings said. Suarez struck out 11 in four frames before leaving for reliever Chris Hill.

Hill had little trouble in that final frame, holding the losers hitless to save the Suarez win.

The 'Birds tallied five times in the second and added four runs in the fourth before putting the game on ice with nine tallies in the fifth frame. Bunch and Suarez led the team at the plate with a double each (in going three-for-three for the day). Suarez plated four runners, while Bunch added three RBIs.

Richard Waters and Alan Daugherty helped the Hereford cause with a pair of RBIs apiece.

The win left the Redbirds with a 5-1 season mark, best in the South Zone of District 18. Hereford has an important date with Amarillo High (4-2) at 6 p.m. Wednesday at Whiteface Field.

"We're hitting the ball a lot better now," Cummings said. "Wednesday's game is very crucial to us."

Bunch currently leads the team in hitting with a .583 average (7-12), with Suarez right behind with a .538 standard (7-13). Four other Redbirds are at or above the .300 level, including Hill (.385), Daugherty (.333), Ron Plummer (.308), and James Dudding (.300).

Bunch and Suarez also top the team in RBIs with seven apiece, while Waters is just one behind with six and Hill another notch back with five. Dudding has the single home run for the team this year, while Suarez and Waters have rapped one three-bagger each.

As a team the 'Birds are hitting at a .365 clip with 37 hits in 108 times at the plate. Hereford has scored 47 runs (7.8 per game) with 33 runs batted in behind a total of nine doubles, two triples, and one homerun.

Violence Corrects Itself Says Doak

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

DENVER (AP) - There is no need to legislate against violence in sports, insists former Heisman Trophy winner and all-pro footballer Doak Walker. "Leave it to the players," adds Walker. "They will police themselves. From my experience, I found that the guys who persisted on trying to get in some dirty tricks never lasted very long."

Walker was a triple threat backfield star at Southern Methodist University in 1945, 1947-49, taking a year out to serve in Uncle Sam's Army, and he won college football's highest award, the Heisman Trophy, in his senior year.

From SMU, he went into the pro game with the Detroit Lions, playing six years, making all-pro and sharing in three divisional and two National Football League championships.

"At Detroit, we had what we called the 'dead dog play,'" the Doaker explained. "If one of our guys got unnecessarily roughed up, we would go back in the huddle and say, 'Dead dog 36.' The ball would go one way, the other 10 would go after number 36. Number 36 wouldn't give us much trouble after that."

Since retiring from pro football at age 28, Walker has been treated very well by life. He is a success in the construction business in Denver, married a former Olympic skier Skeeter Werner and active on both the ski slopes and the golf courses.

A member of the Cherry Hills Country Club, he served as a volunteer locker room attendant for the U.S. Open Golf Championship, won dramatically here Sunday by young Andy North.

Walker, a trim, athletic 190 pounds but beginning to gray around the temples, spent as much time talking football as golf with the battery of sports writers who descended on this mile-high city last weekend. "Personally, I never cared much for violence," the former all-around star said. "I remember when I played in Texas high school championship game for Dallas' Highland Park against Port Arthur, there was a kid on that team that gave me a terrible working over."

"After the game, my mouth looked as if the dentist had taken a drill and cleaned it out. I honestly don't know how I kept any teeth in my mouth at all."

Still an avid fan in this hot-bed of the Super Bowl runners-up Broncos, Walker said he believed modern football players were a richer but not a happier breed.

"I don't think ball players have as much fun today," he said. "They play because of the money. It's the high salaries that keep them around."

Twisters Win, 3-0

Emilio Romero, Jr. tallied twice and Juan Rodriguez added a third goal as the Hereford Twisters outlasted the Clovis Pumas 3-0 last Sunday in area soccer play.

Representatives of the two teams, as well as members of several other area teams, will meet in Hereford Wednesday night to set up a formal league. Officers of the league will be elected, and a formal schedule will be drawn up according to Twisters spokesman.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Lecithin facts

DEAR DR. LAMB - I found your columns on high blood pressure helpful and I reduced some 15 pounds and got off high blood pressure medicine. With my normal blood pressure I suspect I wouldn't have needed to take medication in the first place if I had done this earlier.

I have a different opinion about your remarks about lecithin. You state that lecithin is a combination of triglycerides and choline. That is all. I believe lecithin also contains inositol and other B vitamins. Although I realize that the lecithin is digested before it can be absorbed in the blood stream, meaning it is broken down into the fatty acids and choline, I think we probably need the choline and the inositol.

It is true that choline is found in meat, eggs and livers but many doctors advise us not to eat too many eggs or liver because of their cholesterol content, so how about using lecithin as a good source of choline and inositol?

DEAR READER - I'm glad you benefited from your weight reduction and wish more people would do the same. I can't say that I'm so pleased about your lack of knowledge about lecithin. Lecithin does not contain inositol and it does not contain any B vitamins whatsoever. Wherever you got that information, you should discard it. Lecithin is lecithin just as I have described it in the past.

It's true we do need choline but I suspect that you do not realize that choline is present in many other foods. There is an abundant amount of choline in lean meat. And it's perfectly all right for people to eat a moderate amount of lean meat from which all the fat has been removed even if they're on a low-fat diet. Also cereals contain a reasonable amount of choline, 50 to 100 mgs in a three-and-one-half ounce portion. And if you want to be a real "health nut," wheat germ is one of the highest sources of choline, containing 350 to 400 mgs of choline.

Now I'm not recommending that people run out and eat special foods to get choline. Why? Because your body can manufacture choline anyway. If you're getting an adequate amount of protein in your diet all your body has to do is use two amino acids, glycine and methionine, to make all the choline your own body needs. Since your body can make the choline you need if you're on a sensible diet, paying good money for additional amounts of it that won't be used is really a rather useless exercise.

So, in summary, you don't need to eat eggs or liver or take lecithin to get your choline and you're not getting one single blessed vitamin or inositol from lecithin tablets. Facts are facts.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Arteriosclerosis, to give you a better understanding of blood fats involved in fatty-cholesterol blockage. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Research To Be Studied By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) - A meeting has been scheduled by the Agriculture Department next month to look over agricultural research, extension and teaching activities.

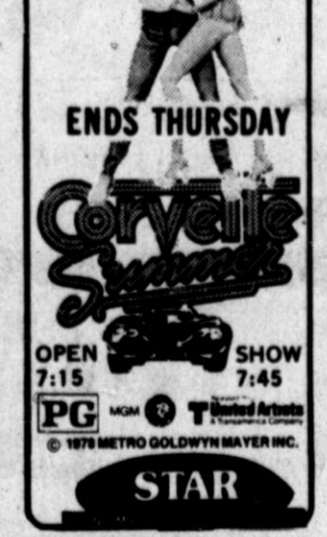

The department said that the Joint Council on Food and Agricultural Sciences, a group that was formed in April by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, will meet here July 13-14.

Topics to be discussed include a summary of proposed priorities in food and agricultural sciences. Other items on the agenda include basic genetic research, budget and appropriation developments, international development programs and forest resources research.

Co-chairmen of the council are Assistant Secretary of Agriculture M. Rupert Cutler and John S. Robins, dean of agriculture at Washington State University.

Leo Likes All-Star System

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Lunch for Leo Durocher was a plate of vanilla ice cream and a glass of milk, a kind of bland combination for the guy who once was baseball's most combative personality.

But there is still some pepper left in Leo, and it doesn't take much effort to find it. Just knock the All Star vote process, the way Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson did last week, and Durocher is all over you, ready to attack.

How about it Leo, don't you think the players would do a better job voting for the teams than the fans do? That's what Anderson said last week.

Durocher frowned at the question and you got the feeling that if there were dirt around to be knocked, your shoes and pants would have been awfully dirty at that particular moment.

"I like the system the way it is now, with the computer card voting," he said. "What's Sparky's beef? Doesn't he think the team the fans name is good enough?"

Well, essentially, what Anderson is saying is that the fan vote is influenced by expanded media exposure of certain teams. "Anybody that's been in the playoffs or World series the year before, I promise you, look at his ballots the next year. Television exposes them to 90 million people."

That's why players like Greg Luzinski wandering through a so-so season, and Johnny Bench, who's been out of the lineup for three weeks with back woes, still lead in the vote totals. But Durocher thinks that when the balloting, sponsored by the Gillette Company is completed, managers Tom Lasorda of the National League and Billy Martin of the American League will have solid, representative teams for the July 11 game in San Diego.

"No matter who the fans pick, for either team, I'll tpe what's left over and I'll give you a battle," said Durocher, a bit of fire in his eye. "Let's say you're managing the National League team. Who's your third baseman? Rose? Okay, I'll take Cey. And then what do you do with Schmidt and Reitz?"

"Who do you want at shortstop? Concepcion. Fine. Give me Bowa. There's only room for three outfielders but I can give you a half dozen who ought to be there. Who do you start? Foster, Luzinski and Monday? Okay, but then I'll take three others who are just as good. How can you keep Parker off, or McBride? What about Burroughs?"

Now the juices were flowing. It doesn't take much to get Durocher going, even with only ice cream and milk for fuel.

"Let me tell you, the All Star Game is some spectacle," he said. "Anybody who turns down the honor when he's invited is making a big mistake. Some guys say they'd rather have the three days off but that's bunk. I've had the three days off and let me tell you, I'd rather be at the game. Anytime."

CINCINNATI (AP) - Pete Rose, the Cincinnati Reds all-star third baseman, and his wife of 14 years, Karolyn, have separated, an attorney for Rose has confirmed.

"They hope it's temporary and that they'll get back together again," attorney Reuven Katz said Monday.

No legal proceedings have been started, the attorney said. Rose and his wife were married in January 1964. They have two children: a 12-year-old daughter and an 8-year-old son, Pete Jr.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - Syracuse University's basketball team will play a series of exhibition games in Italy next month, including contests against the Soviet and Yugoslav national teams.
