

Bakke Ruling Prompts Racial Questions

Guided Tour of Plant

Ron James (with hard hat), marketing director for Thermonetics Inc. in Guymon, Okla., guided a contingent from Hereford through the plant Wednesday afternoon and told the small group that the company plans to begin construction of its two plants in Deaf Smith County prior to next February. Thermonetics processes cattle manure into methane gas, the only such commercial operation in the world, according to James. Thermonetics also produces cattle feed and fertilizer. (Brand photos by Paul Sims)

WASHINGTON (AP) Allan Bakke's long wait is over, but what the future holds for U.S. race relations is far less certain in the wake of his unanimous Supreme Court victory.

The quiet California civil engineer, described by his lawyer as "a private man who felt he had been dealt with unfairly," will enter medical school in September, four years after he charged he was denied admission because he is white.

The only comment from Bakke, who works at a space agency research center at Mountainview, Calif., was that "We are pleased with this decision."

A deeply divided Supreme Court ordered the University of California on Wednesday to dismantle a special admissions program at its medical school at Davis and to admit Bakke, who at 38 may be older than some of its future instructors.

In a 5-4 decision, the court ruled that the school went too far in considering race when it set aside for blacks, Hispanics and Asian-Americans 16 of the 100 seats in its entering classes the two years Bakke was refused admission. He was turned down in 1977 and rejected again in 1978.

By the same 5-4 vote, however, the court said some more limited consideration of race in college admissions policies may be tolerated under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., who wrote the main opinion straddling both views, provided the crucial fifth vote for each of two distinct court factions.

The message appears clear to all colleges and other institutions receiving federal money and therefore falling under anti-discrimination provisions of the 1964 law: affirmative action programs aimed at helping minorities may not include fixed racial quotas or rigid racial goals.

What the court's 154 pages of its separate opinions mean for the hundreds of affirmative action programs now in effect in government and private business produces no such clarity.

Initial reaction by government officials responsible for enforcing those programs suggests that nothing will change. "The status quo was maintained in private employment cases," said Attorney General Griffin B. Bell.

That view was echoed by Eleanor Holmes Norton, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which handles 40,000 anti-discrimination complaints annually in enforcing compliance in private enterprise. She said the court "clearly believes that race-conscious remedies are necessary and constitutional.

"Quotas of 'reverse discrimination' amounts 'Bec' to whites who claim they are victims of illegal or unconstitutional racial bias already are in the legal pipeline and may provide some answers. That could take years, however.

Lawyers for those complaints and attorneys for the minority civil rights movement will pore over the Bakke decision in search of clues to the high court's view of other forms of affirmative action.

Westwood's splintered ruling will make the task an arduous one. The Bakke decision, in terms of complexity and sheer verbiage, provides a stark contrast to the court's 1954 decision which changed the course of American life by outlawing racial segregation in public schools.

That ruling was announced in a single, unanimous opinion of 11 pages.

But there was no question as Justice Thurgood Marshall observed, that Westwood's Supreme Court decision would rank with only two or three in the past century in their profound impact on the course of the country's troubled race relations. In an impassioned dissent, the court's only black justice expressed concern that the court was turning away from its commitment to true racial equality.

Powell was joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John Paul Stevens, William H. Rehnquist and Potter Stewart in noting that strict racial quotas or goals, such as those used at the Davis medical school, violate the 1964 law.

Powell then joined Marshall and Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun in ruling that some affirmative action may be proper.

One clue to the court's view of what might be acceptable was contained in Powell's opinion, when he cited as a model the affirmative action program now used at Harvard University.

He said it was designed not only to assure racial and ethnic diversity in the student body but also to select students with a broad range of talents and geographic backgrounds.

The attorney general, speaking in President Carter's behalf at the White House, said affirmative action had been enhanced by the court's ruling. "That's what we need the president, and he seemed to be pleased," Bell said, adding that "I gave him a copy of the opinion for his night reading."

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says it's funny how boring a person is when you want him to listen.

"My kid is so spoiled," said one disgruntled father to another, "that the only way I can punish him is to take away his grandmother."

SOME DEAF SMITH County Chamber of Commerce members flew to Guymon, Okla., Wednesday to get a preview of a new industry which is scheduled to be located in Hereford. The group toured the Thermonetics plant which manufactures methane gas from cow manure, as well as the by-products of fertilizer and cattle feed.

Such an industry is a "natural" for Hereford since it is the "cattle feeding capital of the world." The company reports that engineering and research is holding back the announcement of a construction date, but the timetable calls for work to begin before next February.

THE SUPREME COURT has given its long awaited ruling on the Allan Bakke case. To most Americans, the result was that Bakke won, that the law of the land has recognized the legal concept of reverse discrimination. Millions of citizens don't really know on what basis or how Bakke won, nor will they care.

But to minority leaders, many lawyers and academics, the ruling was the most important precedent since Jesus delivered his Sermon on the Mount. It is clearly a landmark case; however, it appears that only time will let us know how important the decision really is.

One of the great disservices that television, and the press, does in reporting such events is instant and superficial analysis. As a result, details that are painstakingly set out in the court's opinions are ignored in favor of sensationalized and distorted representations of what has been said.

Much of the discussion on the "boob tube" last night centered around the question of whether the court's decision would end affirmative action and, perhaps just as importantly, racial quotas. Some minority leaders feel the decision is a giant setback for affirmative action, a much-used term which many Americans could not define.

As we understand it, "affirmative action" means a commitment by society to protect those who are not likely to be protected by the political process. The principle came from a belief that our society could survive only so long as the

Official Tells Local Group:

Thermonetics Plans Construction By February Near Hereford

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

GUYMON, Okla.—Thermonetics Inc. will have to begin construction of a $6 million methane-producing plant near Hereford before next February or one of its contracts with a local feed yard will expire, the company's marketing director told a small group of Hereford businessmen Wednesday.

James told the group of chamber of commerce representatives, who flew to Guymon to tour the Thermonetics plant, that the company will construct two plants—one at a cost of $6 million and the other for $3 million—outside of Hereford as soon as the Guymon plant improves its production.

Thermonetics is the only commercial operation in the world which produces methane from cattle manure.

If Bill Approved

Feed Yards Might Charge Percentages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee has approved legislation newly backed by the Carter administration to help stockyards make more money when cattle prices are high.

And, despite a setback this month, livestock prices are expected to remain relatively high for two or three years.

The measure, forwarded to the full House by voice vote Wednesday, would allow stockyards and commission agents accepting livestock on a consignment basis to charge a percentage of the animal's value as their fee.

The department's judicial officer had ruled a few years ago that the Packers and Stockyards Act required that such fees be on a per-head basis, even though both types of fees have been in use for decades.

The original 1921 act contained size requirements for a stockyard to be regulated and those covered all charged by the head. But when size standards were dropped 20 years ago some 1,600 yards came under it and most of these used the valued-based tariff.

The bill, in effect, would overturn the ruling and recognize the differences among those regulated since 1958 by Amending the act to say that percentage-based fees cannot be banned

"Right now we're producing 400,000 to 500,000 cubic feet of methane a day. We need to double that before we can build the plants in Texas," James said.

"We don't have much time, though. Our contract with Pitman Feed Yards (west of Hereford) expires in February. We need to build before then."

The $6 million Deaf Smith County plant will be west of Hereford; the $3 million plant east of the city. Thermonetics has contracted feed yards in the county to supply manure, which will be processed into methane, cattle feed and liquid fertilizer.

The Guymon plant currently provides enough methane to People's Gas in Chicago to service 3,500 homes in that city. James said the company also is selling 30 to 40 tons of Calfeed a day, "but we're engineered to sell a great deal more than that."

Thermonetics actually is located nine miles outside of Guymon, in Optima. The plant is adjacent to Master Feeders, a

Special Session Chances Lessen

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There may or may not be a special session of the Texas legislature, state officials said Wednesday.

"Every day that passes lessens the chances of a special session," said a close associate of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby who has been in on all negotiations.

Earlier, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he still has not made up his mind. He might have something to say later this week, but it might be next week before he decides whether to call the 181 lawmakers back to Austin.

"I want to be sure we have our homework done," Briscoe told reporters.

Meanwhile, three House committees began studying tax-relief measures that could be considered either at a special session or by the 1979 Legislature.

Speaker Bill Clayton announced that the House Ways and Means Committee and the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments would begin public hearings on tax relief measures July 5.

Clayton said the hearings would be part of "a continuing effort to provide proposals for tax relief for the sixth Session in 1979 or any special sessions which might be called."

Clayton was one of the original backers for a special session, following the passage of Proposition 13 in California.

However, representatives of Hobby and Clayton have been unable to agree on legislation to consider at a special session. Briscoe said he will not call one unless he is assured it will be successful.

Bodies Discovered In Gangland Execution

BOSTON (AP) - A janitor was finishing his morning cleaning job at a downtown discotheque when he made the grim discovery - the bodies of five men, mutilated by shotgun blasts, lying in a tiny, bloodsoaked office.

Police said Jerry Robinson had stumbled onto the results of a gangland execution carried out late Tuesday or early Wednesday in a dispute over illegal drug dealing.

"In all my years as district attorney, I have never witnessed a more shocking crime," said Garrett H. Byrne, who has been Suffolk County district attorney since 1984.

"Some of the victims' scalp and parts of their heads were blown away," Police Commissioner Joseph Jordan said.

The victims, among them the owner and manager of Blackfriars, had been sitting around a desk in the bar's basement office playing backgammon when one or more gunmen opened fire, police said.

Byrne said the "massacre... had all the earmarks of involving the trafficking of heavy narcotics."

One of the victims was Jack Kelly, 34, of Framingham, night manager of the club. Kelly was an investigative reporter for WNAC-TV for almost three years until he was fired in 1976. While a reporter, he sometimes boasted of his underworld sources.

Senate Tries To Break Ties With Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate is asking President Carter to break diplomatic relations with Cuba while at the same time saving him from a severe new restriction in making foreign policy decisions.

In dragged-out debate Wednesday over a $1.9 billion foreign operations authorization bill, the lawmakers voted to urge a severing of the low-level ties established with Havana last year until Cuba removes its military forces from Africa.

Tacked onto the bill is an amendment by Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., the demand was virtually identical to a pending House-Senate resolution that condemns Fidel Castro's government for its Soviet-supported military actions in several African countries.

Over the objections of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who called the move "cutting off our nose to spite our face," the Senate first turned back a move to kill the proposal, then approved it by a surprising 53 to 29 margin that crossed party lines.

The measure is not binding on Carter but merely expresses the "sense of Congress" that "all economic and diplomatic relations" with Cuba be ended. Even so, said one Senate aide, "it clearly shows the feelings in Congress about Cuban actions in Africa."

The United States and Cuba agreed to set up official "interest sections" in each other's capitals last September, and McGovern said that even with its limited size and mission, the U.S. presence had paid dividends for U.S. citizens and their families in Cuba, while serving as a useful source of information.

Explosion Kills 2 In Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) - A powerful bomb exploded today in a crowded open-air market in the Jewish sector of Jerusalem, killing two persons and wounding 28, police said.

Seven of the wounded were reported in serious condition.

A police spokesman said several suspects were detained for investigation. Mayor Teddy Kollek said he thought the bombing was linked to the arrival of Vice President Walter F. Mondale Friday for a four-day visit.

The blast destroyed a vegetable stand in the Mahane Yehuda market, near the Jaffa Road in West Jerusalem about three-quarters of a mile from the walls of the Arab Old City. The market was crowded with persons shopping for the Sabbath.

Several peddlers' sidewalk carts were also destroyed, and two nearby shops were damaged. Fruit, vegetables and charred wooden crates were scattered about.

The police closed the market and sealed the area. They refused to give any information about the construction of the bomb or how it was planted in the market.

"I heard a boom and then I was thrown back," one shopper told Radio Israel. "Everything I was carrying was blown out of my hands. I heard screams and shouts, and I got up and ran away."

Hitchhiker Leaves Baby

UVALDE, Texas (AP) - A healthy 13-month-old child is being cared for in a hospital here today while welfare officials attempt to locate her mother's next of kin.

A truck driver from Memphis, Tenn., said a young woman hitchhiker and her male companion left the blond-haired, blue-eyed baby girl in his rig when he dropped them off at Mountain Home Wednesday.

Curtis King said he thought the young woman was kidding when she asked him if he'd like to have the baby.

"I told her sure, but kind of in a kidding way," he said from the Uvalde police station, where he took the infant after he dropped off the young couple.

declined to review two decisions by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals that said USDA's judicial officer's per-head position was valid.

The next day, USDA endorsed a revised proposal, close to its own, sponsored by Rep. Ray Thornton, D-Ark.

Thornton said that small auction barns would be the main businesses affected. Four marketers in his state and one in Texas had challenged the per-head ruling in court.

In 1976, Bergland said, regulated contaminants and improve the process. Right now, we just can't process enough manure. We haven't been able to make a good slurry from the raw manure," James said. "But we've made headway."

Anaerobic bacteria, which thrive in an oxygen-free environment, break solids in the slurry into amino acids, producing methane in two huge digesters. The methane is piped into a gas meter to determine how much is produced, then is sold to People's Gas.

Thermonetics also raises cattle, owning

We know now that the court has ruled that a state medical school is barred from conferring or denying the privilege of admission solely on the basis of an applicant's race. That makes sense, and it is not a new principle. It was stated as constitutional doctrine 28 years ago.

changed and prices hold up throughout the year.

Thornton's original proposals this year would have sharply reduced the number of markets subject to USDA regulation - from 1,980 to 103 - but those sections were dropped when Bergland came around to accepting the thrust of the bill.

USDA would retain the power to ban stockyard charges if found to be unjust or discriminatory and to prescribe specific rates for stockyard services, using a system selected by the stockyard owner.

Giant Digestors

Two large digestors at Thermonetics are used to turn cattle manure into valuable methane gas. Thermonetics' Guymon, Okla., plant currently produces between 400,000 to 500,000 cubic feet of methane daily--approximately one-half of the plant's capacity. The company plans to construct two plants near Hereford as soon as the Oklahoma operation reaches its capacity.

Family Harmony Sought By 'Full-Time Homemaker'

By DIANNE BANNER
Brand Staff Writer

Born in Chihuahua, Mexico, Mrs. Noe Orta had a misconception of snow, having only seen pictures of the white, fluffy stuff. In 1963, she and her ten brothers and sisters came to Deaf Smith County with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Herrera, during a snowstorm, which dumped three feet of snow here.

"By the looks of pictures of snow, I always thought it was sweet. We ate it and all we got was a cold," she said.

The snow has come and gone many times since the diminutive Maggie Herrera came to Heretford, where she met and married Noe Orta, who is now employed by The Ink Spot.

Mrs. Orta described herself as a "full-time wife and mother."

"My goal in life now is to be a good wife and mother. I probably haven't reached this goal yet, but I'm trying—very hard," she commented.

Mrs. Orta has strong feelings concerning child abuse.

"Some women think that because they can bear a child, it makes them a mother, but this isn't true. It is the motherly instinct that makes you love a child, and loving and raising him or her is what makes you a mother. I am so heartsick when I see a child abused. I get into a very sad mood and walk around for weeks in a daze...I have nightmares about it too," she said.

The 24-year-old homemaker is the mother of an 8-year-old son, Noe Jr. He is a third grader and will be attending Bluebonnet Elementary School.

"My husband and I are very satisfied with our boy. From the beginning of our marriage, one son is all we wanted. I feel that I can concentrate better on being the mother of one. In this way, I can give him more love and attention. We are very proud of him," she said.

At the age of four months, her son was being read story books.

"I wanted him to love to read because it is so important and I love it also," she said.

Before her child began kindergarten, he was reading and could repeat his ABC's.

"Bible story books are good for children," she said. "In the newer ones, sex is talked about in a way that the child will understand and not get the wrong attitude. This is why parents need to talk to their children about sex. They shouldn't learn on a street corner. What a child learns and keeps in his heart needs to be right because you never go against the feelings of your heart," she added.

The 5'2" petite woman described herself as "moody and stubborn."

"I really am lucky because my husband isn't picky. When I am moody, I don't feel like cooking and he understands; he will eat a sandwich. When I do get into gourmet moods, he'll eat everything I prepare," she said.

Healthy plants decorate the tidy home of Mrs. Orta's. She commented that she "likes to baby her plants."

"It might seem strange, but I think plants need a mate, just like we do," she said.

Her father owned an apple orchard in Mexico and taught her that one plant alone will not be as healthy as a plant with a companion.

"I murdered my rubber plant," she said, frowning. "It had been in my bedroom for a long time and I decided I wanted it in my living room...it died," she explained.

The Orta family members attend Jehovah's Witness Hall. The couple assisted in constructing the newly-erected building.

"We really out-did ourselves! The hall is beautiful and we're very proud of it!" she said.

Mrs. Orta preaches house to house three mornings a week for the organization.

Other hobbies of Mrs. Orta's are jogging and sewing.

"It was hard for me to get used to jogging. The first week I really hated it, but when you're my height and have digestive problems, it isn't wise to diet, so jogging is the answer. A lot of people don't like to jog either, but it is like everything else - all it takes is self-discipline," she said.

Mrs. Orta would like to share one of her family's favorite dishes.

Ann Landers Uniforms Professional

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in the office of a small hospital in Illinois. The RNs and I have a had a running argument for two years. It isn't mandatory any more for the nurses to wear their caps and uniforms, and very few do on our shift. I think this is a terrible mistake. When nurses work awfully hard for those caps; moreover, it is very confusing to patients when they are not in uniform.

When patients ask questions of office personnel and cleaning women, we tell them they should ask a nurse. They invariably say, "Who ARE the nurses?" We must then describe them: "She's the one with the red hair," or "the tall one with glasses."

Our nurses work side by side with the aides taking care of the patients...yet I've heard many people say, "I never saw a nurse the whole time I was in the hospital." We are all waiting to hear what Ann Landers has to say on this subject. How about it? — Staunch Beat Outnumbered

DEAR STAUNCH: There's something professional, competent-looking and reassuring about a gleaming white, well-fitted nurse's uniforms, complete with the cap perched on the head. It stands for something, in the same way that the collar of a religious order stands for something.

Anyone can wear a blouse and skirt or a house dress. They look ordinary.

Hospitals that do not insist their nurses wear uniforms lose a great deal. For sure there is much more confusion among the patients. They FEEL better when attended by a nurse in uniform. That uniform gives them confidence that someone trained is looking after them.

And let's face it, not everyone has taste. The uniform can be a great help to a woman who doesn't know how to get it all together. Such women should welcome the solution provided by the old regulations. I hate to see them go.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night we went to a church supper. The food was set up buffet style. Guests were supposed to help themselves and then sit down at tables for eight which were set up all over the hall.

When supper was announced I looked all over for my husband and couldn't find him anyplace. Finally I got into the buffet line with my sister and her husband. When I reached the vat of spaghetti I saw him - and my face turned ten shades of red. My husband had pulled up a chair to the buffet table and was packing the food in like there was no tomorrow.

I told him to get up and carry his plate in line with us, but he paid no attention, so I moved on. But, Ann I have never been so embarrassed in my life.

On the way home I told him he behaved like a pig and no wonder we weren't invited out much. He said I had no sense of humor and THAT's why we had so few invitations.

I'd appreciate a word from you on this subject. — Still Blushing In Longview

DEAR LONGVIEW: Humorous people get invited out more than pigs. I'm in your corner, dearie.

CONFIDENTIAL to Dead End: The end that's dead is in your head. Stop wasting time and energy trying to pin the blame on "the guilty party." Devote your time to another project. No wound will heal if you continue to pick at it.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

One of the most often-asked questions in the world is, "What are friends for?"

People ask it and they don't even think about it. Usually, the question is asked when they've been stuck with some inconvenience. No one has addressed themselves to the answer of "What are friends for?" -- until now.

Friends are for not going on a diet when you are fat, getting a tax refund when you had to pay or having a good time at a party to which you haven't been invited.

It's being pregnant at the exact same time as you are...not a month before.

A friend is for telling you about your old boyfriend who is now a tormented priest, but not mentioning the boyfriend who married a beautiful girl and is an executive with Texas Instrument with stock options.

Friends are for siding in with you when your husband buys you an electric clipper to shave the dog's rump for your birthday and not pointing out how your husband is a good provider, is not a chronic boozier, and doesn't fool around with other women.

Friends are for not pointing out that people who wear their blouses on the outside have something to hide.

Friends don't write you a letter and won't write again until you respond because it's "your turn."

Friends can't stand all the people you can't stand at the same time and for the same reasons.

Friends are for having children who do not speak metric like a native Met, sneak gum out of her purse and deny it and put catsup on everything she cooks to kill the taste.

Friends will not tell you what they really think even when you make them swear to tell you what they really think.

Friends are for talking you into a dress you would kill for...even when you can't afford it, you can't wear a slip or bra with, it doesn't fit and it makes you look like a bean bag chair from the rear.

A friend will hear you say on the phone, "I've got to go now; someone is at the door," and believes you.

What are friends really for? If you have to ask, you can't afford one.

Longtime Rebekahs Honored

The IOOF Temple at 205 East 6th Street was the setting for a reception in honor of three 50-year veteran members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228. The event took place Friday, June 23 marking the 50-year anniversary of two of the honorees.

Ursalee Jacobsen and Verna Sowell were initiated into the lodge June 19, 1928. Ruth Rogers came into the lodge January 3, 1919 and was re-instated March 21, 1928.

A short comedy skit "The Perfect Lodge Meeting of Fifty Years Ago" was staged by members of the local organization, complete with costumes from the 1920's.

The story of the first organization for women, started by the American Indians, was given by Susie Curtsinger. Since those first meetings of the Indians squaws, many women's clubs and organizations have come into being, the Rebekah Lodge being one of the first.

The honorees were each recognized for her work throughout the past fifty years as the jewels were presented.

Mrs. Rogers was honored to have her husband, Arthur, pin a corsage on her.

Marcus Jacobsen pinned the jewel on his mother, Mrs. Jacobson and Mrs. Sowell received her jewel from her sister-in-law, Helen Sowell.

All three Rebekah sisters have served as Noble Grand, the highest office in a local lodge, as well as in several other positions. "Friendship, Love and Truth, the three links of Rebekah-Odd Fellowship, have been practiced by these members. They are still active in the task of caring for the sick and needy of this community," stated a Rebekah member.

Helen Sowell sang "Memories" as a fitting climax to the program of the evening.

Out-of-town visitors came from Muleshoe and Amarillo, with visitors as well as members attending from Hereford. A total of 32 guests were present.

A success story.

Once upon a time there was a merchant. You probably know him. Because he is very successful and always seems to have lot of business, even when things seem slow everywhere else.

There are a lot of reasons why he is successful. But one of the biggest is that he advertises regularly, even when things seem slow everywhere. You see, he realizes that he is open every week of the year and wants customers every day. He realizes that advertising is designed to build business and it works best when repeated regularly. Consistent advertising builds dividends. He realizes that people buy all year around. Many stores sell blankets and furs in the summer and air conditioners and grass cutters in the winter.

Think you know who this success story is about? Well, to tell you the truth, it's about many of the merchants in Hereford. They all have one thing in common, though. They advertise regularly in the Hereford Brand. Isn't it about time you became a successful merchant?

Paul Harvey News

Woodward and Bernstein,
Where Are You?

The crime infinitely worse than Watergate: members of Congress taking bribe money from a foreign government to put the interests of that government ahead of our own.

The Korean bribery scandal is about to be swept under the rug with a Senate Ethics Committee mildly critical of only one senator—and he is dead.

The House Ethics Committee finds nothing more serious than what they call "ethical impropriety."

Woodward and Bernstein, where are you when we really need you?

Leon Jaworski says up to two dozen congressmen could be punished or expelled by their fellow House members because of their involvement in the South Korean influence-buying scandal.

There is evidence that eight congressmen were given envelopes—directly or indirectly from South Korea's ambassador—stuffed with hundred-dollar bills.

But the last we've heard from the House Ethics Committee is that there is "insufficient proof."

As recently as last January, the Justice Department's top prosecutor was expecting the indictment of four more former congressmen. Asst. Atty. Gen. Civiletti said that bribery was involved and violation of election laws and mail fraud and perjury.

Now we are told that the worst any member of Congress, past or present, need fear is a slap on the wrist for "impropriety," for "violating the ethical standards of Congress."

Congressman Donald Fraser of Minnesota heads a subcommittee investigating South Korean relations and he has seen evidence that South Korean intelligence planned to infiltrate our White House, Congress, the Pentagon, our State Department and our news media—seeking thus to reshape U.S. policy from the inside.

The obvious purpose was to spend a few hundred thousand dollars to influence our Congress to appropriate more millions of dollars for South Korea.

But now we are told—and in this congressional election year—that there is "no proof" that the plan was carried out.

I have seen a list of 58 members of Congress who are cultivated by South Korea; 42 of those lawmakers admit some form of contact with South Koreans. That is roughly one-tenth of the entire membership of the House half of Congress.

There is a South Korean list of 30 senators who were selected for gifts or cash or both.

Again the club-like atmosphere of the Congress has smothered self-investigation.

Woodward and Bernstein, where are you when we really need you?

Publisher Katherine Graham of the Washington Post has said publicly: "We must ask ourselves if we would have been altogether tenacious in our investigation of Watergate if the President had been anybody other than Richard Nixon."

If what's been dubbed "Koreagate" escapes the X-ray eyes of the investigative newshawks, that question will have answered itself.

China Reviving Legal Rights

HONG KONG (AP) - China's new leadership is reviving legal institutions and talking favorably of "human rights" in what one American legal expert says is a campaign to convince millions of Chinese that speaking out won't mean arrest and torture as before.

Professor Jerome A. Cohen, associate dean of the Harvard

Law School, said the campaign's ultimate aim is to get all China's people to participate in making the country a modern power by the year 2000.

Cohen, director of Harvard's East Asian legal studies department, just returned from China, where he met officials of the new institute of law of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and saw a criminal trial in Shanghai.

In an interview with The Associated Press, he said China's leaders realize that to get the enthusiastic participation of the masses, they must develop a legal system "with some kind of minimum security and order so that people will have confidence that they will not be subjected to arbitrary deprivations or sanctions by the state."

Modern China's 29-year history has witnessed vast pendulum swings with periods of relative freedom followed by periods of severe repression.

Cohen said the court's intellectuals, scientists, educators and professionals desperately needed now in China's modernization plans were hardest hit by these "pendulum swings" and are most wary about speaking out again.

subjected to torture," he added. "They feel they can't put forth any ideas, make any innovations, articulate any genuine criticism without a month or a year later suffering severe consequences for what they were asked to do."

To overcome this, Cohen said, the Chinese leadership has recognized that the country needs a complex legal system to ensure that there is "a population of specialized and talented people who feel good enough about the state to enthusiastically participate in its development."

"For this reason, they're using the term human rights again and they're using it in precisely the term we mean it. Now they're talking about political and legal rights - not economic and social rights."

He said the People's Republic of China is still a Communist dictatorship but it "is trying to moderate the worst excesses and go back to the degree of freedom that existed in the 1950s."

Misuse of Statistics Economic Problem Area

WASHINGTON (AP) - Since this huge economy of ours is steered by statistics, the statistics had better be verifiably correct or else the economy is liable to run upon some reefs.

That we have come aground a few times is obvious, but seldom have we been able to measure clearly the contribution made by the statistical steering mechanism. But it's a factor, as we may yet learn.

"A problem that in my judgement is growing is that lawyers pass laws for areas where statistics don't exist," said Joseph Duncan, whose job it is to oversee and establish policy for the use of numbers.

As director of the Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, Duncan is concerned, for example, by the absence of employment and unemployment statistics for local urban areas.

Undeterred, Congress nevertheless passed the Comprehensive Training and Employment Act, with certain funds to be distributed on the basis of joblessness. Legislators, he said, assumed there were figures.

In truth, he concedes, there is even some question about the national jobless rate, now just over 6 percent. Based on the criteria used two decades ago, he said, some feel it is overstated by 2 percent.

Nevertheless, the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill sets as a national goal the reduction of unemployment to 4 percent, a situation Duncan calls a "misuse of statistics."

Duncan deals with numbers of seriously as a linguist deals with words. They must be used precisely. They must be alive, meaningful. They must communicate. "Statistics should be responsive to users," he says.

A fellow of the American Statistical Association, Duncan assumed his present role in January 1974, after having produced a report while at Batelle Memorial Institute on the integrity of federal statistics.

He has put a priority on coherence, issuing at the end of 1977 a job title manual that attempts to bring order to a chaotic situation in which different departments called similar jobs by various names. Under his guidance the Standard Industrial Classification Manual, which codifies the different types of business enterprises, is also being revised, again with coherence one of the major goals.

But perhaps the largest undertaking now is "A Framework for Planning U.S. Federal Statistics for the 1980s," a comprehensive review of the total statistical system, the first since the 1930s.

In the works for the past four years, it is scheduled for publication this summer. "I reviewed every word in it," said Duncan of the 1,200 pages of materials that deal with every conceivable problem.

The Gross National Product, the total output of goods and services, is also being examined as part of a separate project, the purpose being to improve the data base by interviews with economists and businessmen.

Reverse Discrimination Lawsuits are Pending

WASHINGTON (AP) - Dozens of lawsuits that challenge programs that give preference to racial minorities as unconstitutional discriminatory against whites are waiting in the wings now that the Supreme Court has decided the Allan Bakke case.

The "reverse discrimination" suits attack "affirmative action" programs in education, government and private industry.

And some of the suits challenge programs giving women preference in hiring and promotions.

Los Angeles County authorities seek review of a successful suit, by members of the California construction industry, that struck down a $4 billion public works law passed by Congress last year.

The law earmarked 10 percent of the money for minority businesses. That portion of the bill sparked federal lawsuits by white-owned businesses in California, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Montana.

Each claimed the law was unconstitutional because it denied equal protection to white-owned businesses by establishing a racial quota.

A three-judge federal court in Los Angeles said the law was invalid and that Congress should not pass laws similar to it.

The California case was the first to reach the Supreme Court.

Also pending before the justices is a challenge to an affirmative action program adopted four years ago by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. to end discrimination against women, blacks and others who often claim they don't get a fair chance in the job market.

The affirmative action was challenged by three unions that claimed it ignored collectively bargained seniority rights.

The case has been viewed as a potential major test of the right of the government, which sued AT&T in 1973 over employment bias, to fight discrimination in private industry.

Making its way up to the Supreme Court is the case of a Grammercy, La., worker who claims his employer denied him admission to a special training program because he is white.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last November ruled that the training program violated federal law because it discriminated against whites in employment and promotion at predominantly black Alabama State University.

Johnson upheld a white English professor who accused the school of racial bias. Johnson was the Carter administration's first choice to be FBI director but turned down the offer because of poor health.

Pending before the Colorado Supreme Court is the case of Philip Dileo, a New York City native of Italian descent, seeking admission to the University of Colorado law school.

Dileo claims his coming from a poor family should qualify him for the law school's special admissions program as a "disadvantaged" applicant. Dileo says the school limits the program to blacks, American Indians, Asian Americans and Hispanics.

and came up with several leads, but we really don't have anything at this point," Limke said.

He added that ballistics tests on a .22-caliber rifle discovered in the pickup ruled it out as the murder weapon. Investigators said that a missing .357 Magnum pistol probably was used in the killings.

Agents believe the pickup was driven to the motel parking lot immediately after the slayings early Thursday and left there after credit cards and money of the victims were taken, Limke said.

A check with airline booking agents to see whether any of the stolen credit cards were used to purchase airline tickets "turned up nothing," he added.

A motorist spotted the bodies of Air Force Sgt. Melvin Lorenz and his wife Linda, also an Air Force sergeant, last Thursday along Interstate 35 near Purcell, about 30 miles south of here.

Officers found the body of Richard Lorenz, 12, Lorenz' son by a previous marriage, on Friday in knee-high weeds just north of where the other two bodies were discovered.

Police said the family was headed from their San Antonio home to Spiritwood, N.D., for the funeral of Lorenz' mother when they were slain.

Their pickup camper and two dogs were missing. The vehicle and dogs were discovered Monday in the parking lot of an Oklahoma City airport motel.

The prints were taken from the bloody interior of the truck cab and around the pickup's tailgate, investigators said.

Briscoe Says Tax Limit Proposal Would be Eyed

By JACK KEEVER, Associated Press Writer. AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Wednesday if he calls a special legislative session, he will ask legislators to consider proposals to limit taxes.

Several advocates of a special session on tax relief contend that lawmakers should stick to more specific issues that already have been debated at length, such as abolishing the sales tax on utilities.

Briscoe said a proposal is being drafted to require a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to enact a tax increase.

He said, however, he has not decided whether to call a special session, and it may be next week before he makes up his mind.

"I want to be sure that prior to a session adequate homework has been done, and that is exactly what's being done," he said.

Briscoe talked to reporters as he left his office to attend a meeting of the Natural Resources Council in the nearby Senate chamber.

He said California - Texas' chief rival for business investment - had a two-thirds vote requirement on taxes in its state constitution, which has "helped improve its business climate."

"That is a step forward" for California, he said.

Although he supports a limitation on state spending, Briscoe said "technically it is difficult to write" a bill tying it to inflation and population growth.

He said he had read newspaper articles quoting some senators as saying they were opposed to a special session, but he had not polled legislators on their preferences.

Briscoe said his legal counsel, former Sen. Don Adams of Jasper, was preparing analyses of tax relief proposals for the governor.

"What are the odds for a special session?"

"I wouldn't want to be in a position of making odds at this time," he said.

How close is he to making up his mind on a special session?

"How close? That's probably impossible to answer," said Briscoe.

The first bicycle was invented in 1839 and weighed 59 pounds. It is estimated that more than 200,000 bicyclists a year pedal along the 14-mile, scenic bike path from Washington, D.C., to Mount Vernon according to the Bicycle Manufacturers Association.

The Department of Interior is providing $5 million funding to convert more than 73 miles of abandoned railroad rights-of-way to bike trails in Arkansas, California, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and Virginia.

Cey's Eye Sharp, But Glove More Impressive

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Ron Cey had just hit his second three-run homer in two nights, both of them game-winners for the Los Angeles Dodgers, but everyone was talking about his fielding.

Cey had a tough play to help keep Atlanta from scoring in the fourth inning and an even tougher play to get the final out of the game in the Dodgers' 3-2 victory over the Braves Wednesday night.

"That's why he's been an All-Star third baseman," said knuckleballer Phil Niekro, 8-9, who lost another tough one as he went the route for the Braves and gave up just three hits.

In the fourth, Cey fielded a grounder in foul territory behind third and forced Biff Pocoroba at second before Steve Garvey made an over-the-shoulder catch of a bases-loaded foul pop to end the inning.

And with two out in the ninth and the tying run on third, Cey charged a slow chopper by Gary Matthews and fired to Garvey to get the fleet outfielder for the final out.

Cey's homer, his 10th of the season, came in the third and was off a high knuckleball, one of Niekro's few mistakes of the game. The homer scored Bill Russell, who bounced a single up the middle, and Garvey, who walked. After the third, Niekro limited LA to Dave Lopes' single.

Cey has provided all the firepower in the Dodgers' two victories over Atlanta in this series. Tuesday night, the Dodgers beat Atlanta 3-0 on Cey's three-run blast.

In other National League games, St. Louis shaded Pittsburgh 7-5 in 11 innings, Chicago nipped New York 9-8 in 10, Philadelphia downed Montreal 7-5, Houston blanked Cincinnati 3-0 and San Francisco split a twinbill with San Diego, winning the opener 4-2 and losing the nightcap 4-1.

Dodger starter Burt Hooton, 7-6, went six innings and got the victory, and Terry Forster, the third Dodgers pitcher to work in the 100-degree heat, got his 10th save.

Cards 7, Pirates 5
St. Louis extended its winning streak to three games, matching its longest of the season, on Ken Reitz's two-run double in the 11th. The double drove in Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez, who scored three runs for the Cards, including one on a solo homer in the second.

Roy Thomas, the fourth St. Louis pitcher, won his first major league decision, working two innings.

Cubs 9, Mets 8
Ray Burris, 5-5, normally a starter, quelled a ninth-inning rally by the Mets and got the victory in the 10th when Mick Kelleher's bases-loaded suicide squeeze scored Dave Kingman.

The Cubs had snapped a 5-5 tie with three runs in the eighth, including Kingman's two-run single, but the Mets knotted it again with three runs in the ninth. Elliott Maddox's two-run homer keyed that rally. Reliever Butch Metzger, 1-3, was the loser.

Phils 7, Expos 5
Garry Maddox drove in three runs, two with a homer, in Philadelphia's five-run seventh, to make Jim Lonborg, 7-5, a winner. Maddox also singled in a run in the eighth.

Lonborg gave up one run on four hits through six innings, and Tug McGraw, the third Phils pitcher, got his fourth save. Reliever Mike Garman, 0-3, was the victim in the seventh inning and took the loss.

Astros 3, Reds 0
Tom Dixon, 4-3, hurled a four-hitter and did not allow a Reds runner past second. Joe Morgan had two of the Reds' four hits, a pair of doubles. Bob Watson provided all of Houston's offense with a three-run homer in the seventh inning off Fred Norman, 8-5.

Giants 4-1, Padres 2-4
San Francisco made a loser of Randy Jones, 5-7, in the first game as Larry Herndon had four hits and scored two runs. Jim Barr, 4-4, gave up six hits in 7 1/2 innings and drove in a run with a bases-loaded sacrifice bunt in the second inning.

San Diego salvaged a split on Dave Winfield's two-run homer in the first and some strong relief pitching by former Giant John D'Acquisto, who got his fifth save. Jerry Turner also drove in two runs with a single in the sixth.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Harry Howell, former general manager of the defunct Cleveland Barons of the National Hockey League, says he will decide by next week whether to coach the Minnesota North Stars.

Alan Daugherty, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Daugherty of 833 Blevins, had a goal in mind when he joined the local American Legion baseball team for the second year a few weeks back.

And, the Hereford High School senior-to-be achieved his goal when he won a starting position at second base for the Redbirds. "Alan is probably the most improved fielder on the team," legion coach Joe Don Cummings said. "He came in and just took over second and kept it."

Daugherty, who would like to play baseball when he travels to college a year from now, also has played seven years of Kids, Inc. baseball in Hereford.

Brewer Fans Voice Approval of Sweep

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Lung for lung, Milwaukee fans will match their long-yell power with any others in baseball.

"These fans are really fantastic," said Jerry Augustine after listening Wednesday night to some of the lustiest cheers ever to ring through venerable County Stadium.

"One of the largest home crowds in Brewer history - 39,283 - showed its appreciation and enthusiasm for a double-header sweep over the New York Yankees. Augustine, especially, got an earful, since he pitched the 7-2 clincher after the 5-0 opening-game victory.

As Augustine wrapped up his neat seven-hitter, most of the fans stood and chanted, "Augie! Augie! Augie!" The cheering and chanting continued until the last Brewer had walked off the field into the dugout.

Brewer fans certainly have had something to cheer about this season, with their team currently in second place in the American League East, 12 games over the .500 mark. Before this year, the best they could do was seven games over the break-even level. That was last year.

In other American League games, the Oakland A's edged the Texas Rangers 2-1 in 15 innings; the Detroit Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians 4-3 in the first game of a double-header before losing the nightcap 2-1; the Chicago White Sox stopped the Seattle Mariners 4-3; the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 and the California Angels turned back the Kansas City Royals 9-5.

Ben Oglivie smashed a three-run homer in the seventh inning and Mike Caldwell hurled a six-hitter to lead Milwaukee's first-game victory. The Brewers won the nightcap as Sal Bando singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning, helped the Brewers overtake the Yankees for second place in the AL East.

A's 2, Rangers 1
Mike Edwards' 15th-inning single scored pinch-runner Rob Picciolo from second, base to lead Oakland over Texas. Wayne Gross opened the 15th by drawing a walk off losing pitcher Len Barker, 1-3.

Picciolo ran for him and advanced to second on a sacrifice. Barker then walked Glenn Burke and got Joe Wallis on a fly ball before Edwards singled to left to end the 4-hour and 2-minute marathon.

Winning pitcher Pete Broberg, 8-6, held the Rangers scoreless on two hits over the final five innings.

Tigers 4-1, Indians 3-2
Ron LeFlore cracked a pair of RBI singles to lead Detroit over Cleveland in the first game of their doubleheader. Detroit took the lead for good with three runs in the third inning, when LeFlore had one of his run-scoring hits.

Andre Thornton drilled a tie-breaking RBI single in the sixth inning to give the Indians their second-game victory. Thornton's hit made a winner of Mike Paxton, 5-4.

White Sox 4, Mariners 2
Jorge Orta hit his 10th homer of the season, a three-run blast in the sixth, to lead Chicago over Seattle. Orta's homer wiped out a 2-0 Seattle lead, scoring Ralph Garr and Bob Molinaro ahead of him. Garr and Molinaro had singled with one out off Seattle loser Glenn Abbott, 3-5.

Blue Jays 3, Orioles 2
Jim Clancy and Tom Murphy combined on a five-hitter and Rico Carty smashed a two-run homer to lead Toronto past Baltimore and a sweep of their four-game series. The loss was Baltimore's seventh in a row. The Orioles had won 18 of 20 games going into last Friday night's game in Boston, where they started their losing streak.

Toronto's four-game sweep, including a 24-10 victory Monday night, and a double-header sweep Tuesday night, represented the team's longest winning streak in its two-year history.

Angels 9, Royals 5
Dave Chalk collected four hits and drove in a pair of runs to lead California over Kansas City in a game delayed 40 minutes by a power failure.

Kansas City starter Paul Splittorff was knocked out in the second inning, when the Angels scored for four runs to hand the left-hander the loss.

'Six Crowns' Has Regal Parentage

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Quick, all you mathematicians out there; add one Triple Crown to another Triple Crown and what do you get? Six crowns, naturally - and a race horse.

The horse is a beautiful chestnut 2-year-old filly, daughter of two great racing champions - Secretariat, who swept the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1973, and Chris Evert, who won the filly version of the Triple Crown in 1974 by capturing the Acorn, Mother Goose and Coaching Club American Oaks. Her name: Six Crown, naturally.

Unraced, this regally bred filly is being carefully nurtured at Aqueduct and pointed for her maiden race in late summer, probably in August at Saratoga. Meanwhile, the young woman for whom she was named will be striving to retain her position as the world's foremost woman tennis player by recapturing the Wimbledon title during the next fortnight and repeating her triumph in the U.S. Open.

Chris Evert, the race horse, was retired from breeding purposes in April 1975, after winning 10 of her 15 starts, earning $679,475 and scoring a 50-length triumph over Miss Musket in a $350,000 match race at Hollywood Park.

It was ordained that she should be mated with Secretariat, hailed the greatest race horse of the generation, who accented his Triple Crown campaign with a 31-length victory in the Belmont Stakes. He later was syndicated for $6.1 million, then a record.

"A marriage made in heaven," hard boots said of the contrived romance which produced the first and only offspring of two Triple Crown winners.

Chris Evert and Six Crown are owned by Carl Rosen, head of Puritan Fashions, Inc., manufacturer of all those smart-looking dresses that the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., tennis star wears on center court.

"You know the old cliché," commented Rosen, who spurred the suggestion of Claiborne Farm's Seth Hancock to mate the filly champion with a more experienced stallion, "Breed the best to the best and hope for the best."

Six Crown's racing career will be watched with the keenest interest.

"We have great hopes for her," said Rosen's trainer, Joe Travato. "She is a magnificent looking animal, favoring her mother more than her father. She is training nicely."

Optimism is reserved. Thoroughbred breeding is a fickle and risky exercise which has no predictable or guaranteed result.

"The genetic pattern," says Edward L. Bowen, editor of the magazine Blood Horse in Lexington, Ky., "is that breeding navigates toward the norm."

"The mating of two great race horses, as in the case of Secretariat and Chris Evert, can be expected to produce a quality offspring but unlikely one as good as either of them. Two ordinary horses might well produce a superior racer."

Fidrych To Rejoin Detroit

DETROIT (AP) - Pitcher Mark Fidrych was expected to rejoin the Detroit Tigers in Cleveland today after undergoing "vigorous manipulation" of his ailing shoulder in a session with a New York specialist.

Orthopedic surgeon Dr. Maurice Cowen was sought out by the Tigers after he helped restore the pitching arm of Yankee Don Gullett.

Fidrych has been sidelined for two months.

"I have no projection on when he can pitch," Detroit Manager Ralph Houk said after Wednesday's double-header split in Cleveland. "He may start throwing. It all depends on him."

Cowen, affiliated with the Lenox Hill Hospital in Manhattan, said he agreed with previous diagnoses of tendinitis.

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The Soviet Union beat Panama 82-79 and the University of Maryland downed the Latin All-Stars 79-72 in the opener of an international men's basketball tournament Wednesday.

Women Dominate Play At Wimbledon Today

By ROBERT JONES
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden swings back into action at the All England Lawn Tennis Club today, but the day really belongs to the girls.

Second-seeded Martina Navratilova, former champion Billie Jean King and Virginia Wade, the defending champion, all play at Wimbledon today.

Navratilova takes on Pam Whytcross of Australia. King plays Marie Pinterova of Czechoslovakia and Wade meets Lesley Bowrey of Australia.

Borg, who had his difficult match in the first round Monday when the 6-foot-7 American Vic Amaya took him to five sets, was to have played Peter McNamara of Australia in his second round match Wednesday. But the match was scheduled last and never got on court.

While Borg had to wait a day, Jimmy Connors, the one-time "bad boy" of the world's tennis courts, is relaxed, happy and at ease with himself. He had under his belt what every aspiring Wimbledon winner craves - a really hard match in the early rounds.

Kim Warwick, a big Australian with a telescopic reach, took Connors to four sets in the second round of the men's singles here Wednesday before Connors won in four sets 6-3, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4. The match took just under 2½ hours, and not until the very last game could Connors relax.

"If I can play like that, I'll be more than satisfied," said Connors. "Everything was going good and I feel relaxed - the little ones are the toughest; the big ones I can handle."

Connors has a free day Thursday, and he'll be spending it away from Wimbledon.

"It's tiring to hang about when you're not playing," is his philosophy. "After practice I'll have some tea, then go home." Connors is seeded second here this year, just behind Bjorn Borg, the Swede who is trying to emulate Fred Perry in the middle 1930's and win three Wimbledon in a row.

Connors was one of 10 men's seeds who played and won Wednesday. The others were Wojtek Fibak of Poland, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, Ilie Nastase of Romania, Roscoe Tanner, Brian Gottfried and Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States, Raul Ramirez of Mexico and the Australian pair John Newcombe and John Alexander. Alexander's match was a first-rounder.

The only seed to lose Wednesday was Buster Mottram of Britain. He was beaten in three sets by Frew McMillan of South Africa and joins the U.S. trio of Dick Stockton, Arthur Ashe and John McEnroe all of whom lost in the first round - on the sidelines.

In the women's singles, both top-seeded Chris Evert and third-seeded Evonne Goolagong had drawn first-round byes and played their opening matches in the second round Wednesday. And both won easily.

Evert beat Helena Anliot of Sweden 6-1, 6-0 - a score that didn't do full justice to the Swedish girl's efforts. She scarcely played a bad shot throughout the match, but Evert was always that much better.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - It's now up to the 138 voting members of the PGA Tour to decide whether to build a Players Club near here as a permanent site for the Tournament Players Championship.

The Tournament Policy Board of the Professional Golfers Association approved the golf club project Wednesday at Chicago. The result was announced here by a spokesman for the PGA Tour.

He also said the Tournament Players Championship will carry a $400,000 purse next spring. It will be played at the Sawgrass resort, site of the tournament in 1977-78.

The Players Club is planned at Inlet Beach southeast of Jacksonville and adjacent to Sawgrass.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Kansas City outfielder Al Cowens, runnerup last year for American League Most Valuable Player honors, will be sidelined for at least two weeks with strained knee ligaments, a Royals' spokesman said.

Cowens, who hit .312 and led the Royals with 112 RBI last year, injured his knee sliding into second base against the California Angels Monday night.

The Royals were already crippled with the loss of John Wathan, a right-handed-hitting first baseman-catcher who is on the disabled list with a partially separated shoulder.

'Tentative Agreement' Reached on Move

By DAN SEWELL
AP Sports Writer
Buffalo Braves managing partner John Y. Brown and Boston Celtics owner Irving Levin were to meet in Los Angeles today to begin drawing up papers for a deal to swap ownership of their basketball teams and move the Braves to San Diego, informed sources say.

Two well-placed National Basketball Association sources told The Associated Press that a "tentative agreement" was reached between the two owners Wednesday. Brown confirmed late Wednesday that the two had discussed a possible shift, but had no further comment. A member of Levin's family said Levin would be unavailable for comment until sometime today.

Celtics Assistant General Manager Jeffrey Cohen denied the reports.

Levin has met with Brown to help him expedite a move of the Braves to the West Coast. Levin says people have put two and two together to make incorrect assumptions about things. I don't believe there's anything so it," Cohen said.

However, Braves' co-owner Harry Mangurian of Fort Lauderdale, who owns a chain of furniture stores, confirmed late Wednesday night that the shift seemed likely to take place.

"This is a very complicated, complex transaction. There are any number of things that could cause the deal to fall through. But right now things are going very well," Mangurian said.

He added, "The deal makes sense from both sides. Levin would like a team near his home, and John and I are excited about rebuilding at Boston. The Celtics are a legend, and it would be very exciting to be part of it."

If worked out, the transaction would be subject to approval from the NBA Board of Governors.

Astros' Terry Doesn't Have Puhl With Fans

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - There may not be a position for Houston's Terry Puhl on the National League All-Star team this season but the surprising second year outfielder has "voted" himself to the top of the NL batting race.

Puhl is losing out in the All-Star balloting to Cincinnati's George Foster, Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski and Los Angeles' Rick Monday, the top three outfield picks in voting by fans.

But following Wednesday night's game in the Astrodome against Cincinnati, Puhl was outperforming them all with a .332 batting average and an nine-game hitting streak.

"I get myself into a frame of mind that they are not going to get me out," said Puhl, who has taken on the added responsibility of playing centerfield for injured Astros star Cesar Cedeno. "I just think about hitting the ball hard."

"Of course, you've got to have the techniques and not swing at bad pitches but it's mostly a mental thing. I'm a streak hitter and once I get a few hits it increases your confidence. When you believe you're going to get hits you will."

Puhl is very confident when he steps up to the plate, but he figures fate made it possible for him to become an instant starter for the Astros over the final 60 games last season.

"They had always been looking for a leadoff hitter so that kind of paved the way."

said Puhl, whose powerful line drives make him a natural leadoff man. "Plus they were 17 games out of first place at the time so they had nothing to lose."

finishing with a .301 average that included a 17-game hitting streak.

"I'm just thankful I've been able to hit with some consistency," Puhl said. "I'm not a home run hitter so I just try to make contact and hit the ball hard."

The Sure Cure for TV Violence

COMMENTARY Donald F. Graff

No laughing matter

By Don Graff
A judicial comment is not necessarily a judicious one. It can be exactly the opposite, as Connecticut Common Pleas Court Judge Walter Pickett is the latest member of the bench to demonstrate.

Judge Pickett is in the news as a consequence of a rape hearing at which he presided. On the basis of evidence that one of four men arrested in the abduction and assault of a woman had not been able to rape the victim, Pickett ordered that he not be bound over for trial.

What makes the incident news is the comment with which the judge accompanied his decision: "You can't blame somebody for trying."

A number of organizations and individuals are now blaming the judge and want to make him answer for the remark, possibly with his job.

The outcome of a somewhat similar incident in Wisconsin last year can provide no comfort for Judge Pickett. Judge Archie Simonson drew a connection between permissive public attitudes, the prevalence of revealing female attire and the sexual arousal of a youth charged with assault. The negative reaction to this exercise in judicial opinion led to a recall election which removed Simonson from his post.

Rape obviously is not a subject to be treated lightly these days. It never was. As a criminal act, it is more than a form of assault — it is the defilement of a personality with psychological consequences usually far more serious and long-lasting than the physical.

Much of the male public still may not be fully aware of the true and repellent nature of the crime, but a more enlightened attitude is to be expected of the learned judiciary. It is thus especially offensive when insensitive and ill-informed comments are delivered from the bench.

Judge Pickett defends his remark as appropriate "in the context" in which it was made. He notes that there was an attempt, but no action and therefore no reason to bind the man over to court for trial.

It is not, however, the judge's decision which is the primary issue but his remark in connection with it. In the context of the court record, it would appear to have been uttered with some degree of facetious intent.

Which only compounds the offense.

There isn't the least thing funny about the subject, judge. Here's another explanation for the decline in college entrance examinations which has concerned educators of late.

Women. To be precise, average women.

The popular theory has been that contemporary high school students are not being as well educated as their predecessors and so were not doing as well on the tests.

Now a study at the University of Wisconsin-Madison comes up with another possibility. In the past, when higher education enrollment had a pronounced male tilt, more average men than women took the tests. Now, with more women pulling score levels down. This doesn't mean that women are less qualified, the study emphasizes, only that more of them consider themselves as qualified to handle college-as-their-average-male-peers.

Involved Chain of Events Led to Capsule Tragedy

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Thirteen men died in a Gulf of Mexico storm two years ago because of an involved chain of events that started with engine failure and a snapped towline, a Coast Guard board of inquiry said Wednesday.

The men drowned when what was thought to be an unsinkable escape capsule capsized in an unexpected storm in April 1976.

The board's findings on the sinking of the drilling rig Ocean Express were released in a 90-page marine casualty report that recommended stiffening some maritime safety laws and instituting others.

Primary blame for the sinking of the Ocean Express was put on accidents involving two of the tugs that were towing the Odeco Inc. drilling rig to a new site in the Gulf of Mexico.

At a critical point when waves were cresting 10 feet high, an engine on the Gulf Knight failed and a towline from the Gulf Viking broke, the board said.

"This allowed the Ocean Express to drift broadside to the boarding seas," the report said.

The crew, except for the man in charge of moving the rig, abandoned the Ocean Express in two survival capsules.

A capsule containing 20 men capsized and 13 men drowned inside it. The other seven were plucked from the water, and a helicopter picked the barge mover off the decks of the Ocean Express as it capsized and sank in 167 feet of water.

The board attributed the capsizing of the escape capsule to heavy seas which pitched men not wearing safety belts to the low end of the enclosed boat.

The report said it was impossible to determine whether a nylon line had been attached to the top of the capsule and the Gulf Viking. There were some who said the line had been attached and that the capsule was jerked upside down by it.

Among other factors the report cited as contributing to the accident were that:

-There was no device for throwing another towline from the rig; towlines were attached to unsuitable spots on the Ocean Express, and "efforts to secure another towline...were extremely unprofessional."

"The practice of communications in French between the tug masters is not considered in the best interest of safety," and the mate of the Gulf Viking was not licensed and not required to be.

"The chain of command aboard the Ocean Express was not clear.

Several things occurred to reduce the seaworthiness of the Ocean Express, including flooding and equipment shifts that made the rig list.

Baker Raps Act

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Jim Baker, Republican candidate for attorney general, told a professional journalism society Wednesday that the state Open Records Act "has no teeth."

"There is no penalty provision if an agency refuses to comply with a request for a public document," Baker said in remarks prepared for a luncheon address to the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

"A state official would have more incentive to comply with the law if he were at least liable for a fine in case of a bad faith refusal in the face of a ruling by the attorney general," Baker said. "And if that compliance still wasn't forthcoming, then the attorney general could use his discretionary powers under the act to sue that agency in order to obtain complete compliance."

"I think it is axiomatic," he said, "that a free people and a free press have access to public documents. It's the best way to hold our public officials accountable. It's the only way to follow their actions. A strong Open Records Act means a stronger press, a better informed public, and a better state government."

Baker said his opponent, Democrat Mark White, had "flip-flopped" on the Open Records Act, saying Dec. 9 that the present law "has sufficient remedy" and stating May 2 that "...presently there is no sufficient penalty for the obstinacy demonstrated by some public officials."

Corrections Director Calls Court Ruling 'Dangerous'

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - The director of Corrections termed as "dangerous" Tuesday the Supreme Court ruling that the news media and the general public have no constitutional right to know what is going on behind prison walls.

W.J. Estelle Jr. said the TDC will continue its present policies of remaining as open and accessible as possible.

The court's Monday ruling could be applied to other government institutions such as mental hospitals as well as prisons.

"My opinion is this is a dangerous ruling," Estelle said. "The public has a legitimate interest in the operations of its public institutions and the press has a legitimate role in providing information to the public to satisfy that interest."

Estelle said that institutions also have a legitimate interest in communicating to the public via the media positive aspects of the operations - such as new programs - and negative aspects - such as internal overcrowding.

"It is essential that those avenues of communication remain open," Estelle said.

"Therefore, the Texas Department of Corrections will continue its present press policy of remaining as open and accessible as possible so long as the general conditions that security and order be maintained within the institution and that the institution's substantial interest in the rehabilitation and welfare of the inmates is maintained."

The Monday 4-3 ruling reaffirmed two 1974 rulings that denied news organizations any special right of access to prisons or other government-run institutions which the general public does not enjoy.

Estelle's reaction was released through Ron Taylor, an executive assistant.

"I think we have a good relationship with the media in terms of being as open and accessible as possible," Taylor said.

"We want to keep it that way and want the media to know we are going to do so."

Holiday Gas To Be Higher

HOUSTON (AP) - Texas motorists will find gasoline prices about a penny a gallon higher this July 4 holiday weekend than they were on Memorial Day.

The American Automobile Association reported Wednesday a survey of 236 service stations across the state indicates average regular grade prices of 61.7 cents a gallon at full service pumps and 55.4 cents self-service.

The comparative Memorial Day weekend averages were 60.8 cents full service and 54.7 cents self-service.

An unleaded full-service average of 64.6 cents compares with 63.7 cents in late May, while the self-service average of 60 cents compared with 59.3 cents.

A premium grade full service average of 66.4 cents is up from Memorial Day's 65.7 cents. The self-service average increased from 61.4 to 62.2 cents.

The AAA said motorists should have no supply problems this weekend. All the surveyed stations plan to be open Saturday, 92 percent plan to operate on Sunday, 99 percent on Monday, and 85 percent on Tuesday.

Fort Stockton again will have the highest prices in four of the six categories, including 71.9 cents for full service premium, 70.4 cents for full service unleaded, 57.9 cents for self-service regular, and 64.4 cents self-service unleaded. No Fort Stockton average was reported for self-service premium.

Ozona had the highest regular grade full-service average, 67.5 cents, while Abilene had the highest premium self-service at 66.7 cents.

The state's lowest averages were reported in Brownwood, Brownsville, Huntsville and Port Arthur.

Brownwood had the lowest regular full service average at 58.4 cents, while Brownsville had the lowest premium at 62.9 cents and the lowest unleaded at 61.6 cents.

Huntsville had the lowest self-service averages of 51.9 cents for regular and 55.9 cents for premium, while Port Arthur had the lowest unleaded at 54.9 cents.

Diesel prices ranged from a low of 51.9 cents a gallon in San Antonio and Kerrville to a high of 59.9 cents at Austin.

Local Farmers Look at New 'TexRed' Variety Wheat Here

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

Local farmers were given an opportunity to examine a new hard red winter wheat variety developed by three seed firms during harvesting operations at the Vincent Gallagher farm at Summerfield Tuesday afternoon.

George Warner Seed Co. of Hereford, Harpool Seeds Inc. of Denton and McGregor Milling and Grain Co. of McGregor announced the release of the new "TexRed" wheat variety.

The variety was developed cooperatively by the three seed firms.

Dr. I.M. Atkins and Dr. Fred Alston of the Warner staff cooperated in local work in development of the new variety.

According to Dr. Atkins, the new variety is recommended "especially for the irrigated wheat producing area of the High Plains where storm and hail are major problems."

The new variety has been developed for storm resistant characteristics.

Dr. Atkins pointed out that notes on plant lodging taken at three different locations showed that the TexRed variety averaged only 11 percent lodging, compared with a 41 percent lodging rate for Centurk wheat.

"During an 80 mile-per-hour wind and hail storm at Hereford in 1975, TexRed shattered a trace, whereas Centurk variety wheat showed 18 percent shattering," the plant breeder explained.

"TexRed has averaged about one pound higher test weight than Sturdy variety wheat under a wide range of conditions, and is a strong gluten wheat capable of producing high quality bakery flour. It matures at about the same time as Sturdy variety wheat," said Atkins.

Warner officials reported that the new variety has yielded especially well under irrigation, with the new variety turning out the best yields in several general tests.

The officials also reported that the new variety is a late maturing type, that performs well under livestock grazing. The height of the plants is reported to be about the same as Sturdy variety, and TexRed is shorter than standard height varieties.

The wheat grown on the Gallagher farm was planted at a rate of about 90 pounds per acre with 100 pounds of nitrogen applied.

An additional 125 pounds of 13-39-0 dry fertilizer was also applied, and the wheat was irrigated four times.

According to Warner officials, the yield from the Gallagher farm was 70.86 bushels per acre.

The plant breeder reported that seed will be available following this year's harvest.

Tech Dean Taking Experience To New Job at Ag Dept. SEA

LUBBOCK - Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of Texas Tech University's College of Agricultural Sciences, will take years of experience in both agricultural education and research with him in his move to Washington, D.C., as director of the newly-formed Science and Education Administration (SEA) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The main functions of SEA concern coordinating research, teaching and extension programs across the country, including governmental research, and research and extension programs in universities and colleges, Bertrand said.

Most of those universities are land-grant institutions, he said, and Bertrand has had a number of years' experience with land-grant universities.

He received degrees from three land-grant universities, Texas A&M University, the University of Illinois and Purdue University. He taught at two land-grant institutions, Purdue and the University of Georgia, for a total of 16 years. He has been dean at Tech since 1971.

Bertrand's duties at SEA will be to direct the activities of the nine sections and to provide information to the Secretary of Agriculture, the assistant secretary, Congress and the White House on matters concerning agricultural research and education. Bertrand will answer directly to assistant secretary of agriculture Rupert Cutler.

The SEA is mainly a re-organization effort, Bertrand said, bringing together already existing agencies. Two new sections were created to handle programs in higher education and human nutrition.

The Higher Education section will provide support and funding to programs of agricultural education in colleges and universities. The Human Nutrition Center will provide support for research and will develop educational materials for the area of human nutrition.

Bertrand has also had several years' experience in the area of the development of food and nutrition information through service on the Board of International Food and Agriculture Development since the Ford Administration.

The other seven sections, already in existence, include Cooperative Research, which administers funds to agricultural experiment stations; Federal Research, the largest section, which directs funds for "in-house" research; Extension Services, which governs the state extension programs, including the 4-H programs; Technical Information Systems, which is the national agricultural library and its supporting branches; and three administrative offices, Joint Planning and Evaluation, Program Management and Administrative Management.

Two advisory boards also provide input, Bertrand said, the National Agricultural Research and Extension Users Advisory Board, made up of laymen, and the Joint Council on Food and Agricultural Sciences, consisting of scientists.

"I am very excited about this job. I see it as a means of pulling together operations previously working separately," Bertrand said.

Bertrand will take up his duties in Washington, D.C., July 10.

"I am pleased to have been a part of Texas Tech's growth, particularly in the College of Agricultural Sciences," Bertrand said. "The faculty and staff have done an outstanding job in teaching and research and I am positive they will continue to do so."

During Bertrand's tenure as dean, Texas Tech became the only non-land-grant university in the country to offer the doctoral degree in agriculture.

Dr. William F. Bennett, associate dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences, has been named interim dean until a permanent appointment is made.

Dimmitt Facility Opening

DIMMITT - Emphasis on the growth of the vegetable processing industry in Castro County will be highlighted here tomorrow with the opening of this city's second vegetable processing shed.

The Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce will conduct ribbon cutting ceremonies at 10 a.m. at the new Dimco Industries vegetable processing plant, located on Highway 86, east of the Dimmitt city limits.

The $1 million vegetable facility will begin processing onions following the ribbon cutting tomorrow, and will begin processing potatoes, lettuce and carrots as they come in season in the local area.

During peak season, the new plant will employ 125 workers, with an additional 150-175 field hands employed. Peak employment is expected to be reached in mid-July, during the height of the local potato harvesting season.

The new plant is owned by a corporation of Dimmitt area farmers including Truman Touchstone, Jerry Watts, Carl Bruegel, Ben Holcomb and Allen McClure.

Roy Lyles will serve as plant manager, and the facility will ship area vegetables to states including Florida, Georgia, Oklahoma, Kansas, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Texas.

Touchstone, president of the corporation, explained that additional emphasis is expected to be placed on vegetable production in the Dimmitt area in coming years.

"The economics of farming have discouraged the over production of grain crops such as corn and wheat. Also, the increased emphasis on water conservation makes the production of vegetables even more attractive," Touchstone commented.

Weakening Beef Market Expected

COLLEGE STATION - Texas and the nation's cattlemen are enjoying a bit of prosperity these days due to improved cattle markets. The situation might change a little, however, during the second half of the year, believes a livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Ed Uvacek foresees a weakening in cattle prices in the third quarter of the year (July through September), with some strength returning as the year's end approaches. This improved market could easily carry into the new year.

"Fed cattle prices will probably be at their lowest levels in September or October and then should begin to gather strength once again," he contends. "Prices of feeder cattle will follow the same basic pattern. In fact, the feeder market will remain dependent on the fed cattle market price level."

Weakness in the fed cattle market this fall could easily cause feedlot cattle coming out then to lose money, notes Uvacek. "This could really hurt the feeder market since most cattlemen will be selling their 1978 calves about that time. Fortunately, feeder cattle numbers are down sharply this year, so this should help feeder prices somewhat."

The marketing specialist believes that beef prices will come down somewhat in response to some consumer or retailer resistance. "It is somewhat difficult to justify the present price levels simply on the basis of supply and demand. Supplies are not off that much, and it's difficult to believe that consumer demand has increased that much in such a short period of time."

Beef production should only be down about 2 percent during the July-September period from that same period a year ago. Although fed cattle marketings should be up substantially, the reduction in total beef production will be caused by a decrease in non-fed steer and heifer slaughter and much lower cow slaughter levels. This same quarter, however, will have increased quantities of pork, broilers and turkeys. Overall, total meat supplies could be up 3 percent from a year ago, says Uvacek.

Corn Growers Urged To Attend NCGA Meet

Corn growers should pre-register and make hotel reservations now for the National Corn Growers Association annual meeting, July 16-19, at the Hilton in Lincoln, Nebraska, according to John W. Curry of Victoria, Illinois, NCGA president and Allen Kreuzer of DeWitt, president of the Nebraska Corn Growers Association, hosts for this year's annual meeting.

Registration cost is $75 for a couple or $50 for a single, which includes luncheons, women's programs, evening meals, tours, and speakers. Anyone staying one day should pay $37.50 for a couple or $25 for a single. Registration checks should be sent to:

National Corn Growers Association
815 Office Park Road Suite 202
West Des Moines, IA 50265
Phone (515) 225-8840

Hotel reservations can be made by calling directly to the Lincoln Hilton, (402) 475-4011. Monday's speakers will discuss new markets and uses for corn and farm legislation. Tuesday's speakers will discuss weather, marketing, and energy.

In addition, a full ladies program is planned for Monday and Tuesday.
The Sunday evening "Welcome to Nebraska" party and the Monday night "sweet corn roast and barbecued windsor loin dinner" are included in the registration fee.

The meeting concludes Wednesday with a tour of the University of Nebraska tractor testing station.

Horse Congress Deadline Nears

WACO - July 1 is the penalty-free entry deadline for the National Youth Horse Congress, scheduled in Waco, July 22-29. Members of 4-H Clubs and other youth who plan to participate should complete entry requirements before that date.

This is the word of Congress officials, who indicate that the seventh annual show should attract approximately 3,000 entries from throughout the nation. The Heart O'Texas Fairgrounds will be the Horse Congress site.

A special 4-H category will be held in the method demonstration contest and in horse judging. The show is open to any unmarried youth 18 or under as of Jan. 1, 1978.

The 4-H method demonstration will consist of one individual or two team members, and their subject must pertain to some phase of the horse industry. A maximum of 15 minutes will be allowed for each demonstration, officials announce.

In the horse judging division, a team will consist of three or four members.

Horse Congress events will follow this schedule: Open All-Breed Horse Show, July 22-23; 4-H horse judging and method demonstration contests, July 24; Quarter Horse Show, July 25-26; Welsh Show, July 27; Pony of the Americas Show, July 28; and an Appaloosa Show, July 29.

Complete entry information may be obtained by writing to Marilyn Dundon, 3940 Clear Cove Lane, Dallas, Texas 75234, or calling her at (214) 247-7032. The NYHC is a nonprofit organization dedicated to horse lovers.

Vegetable Contracts Down

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department says that processors have contracted for 1 percent fewer acres of vegetables for freezing and canning than they did last year.

A report Friday said that about 1.66 million acres of the major vegetable crops grown for processing have been contracted this year, compared with 1.67 million in 1967.

Larger acreages were shown for green lima beans, snap beans, beets for canning, cucumbers, green peas and winter spinach. But acreages were less for sweet corn, spring spinach and tomatoes.

The Dimmitt Chamber of Commerce will conduct ribbon cutting ceremonies at 10 a.m. at the new Dimco Industries vegetable processing plant, located on Highway 86, east of the Dimmitt city limits.

The $1 million vegetable facility will begin processing onions following the ribbon cutting tomorrow, and will begin processing potatoes, lettuce and carrots as they come in season in the local area.

When a portable electric drill is rated as one-quarter inch, it does not refer to the size of the bit it will hold, but to the size of the bit's shank. Thus, a half-inch bit with a quarter-inch shank will fit in a quarter-inch drill.

Every year, the American Council of Life Insurance says, over 350,000 heart attack deaths occur before the stricken person can be taken to a hospital.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, June 29, the 80th day of 1978. There are 85 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1966, North Vietnam's capital, Hanoi, and principal seaport, Haiphong, were bombed by the United States for the first time in the Vietnam War.

On this date: In 1577, Flemish painter Peter Paul Rubens was born. In 1776, the Virginia state constitution was adopted, and Patrick Henry was made governor.

In 1880, France took control of the South Pacific Island of Tahiti.

In 1941, former Polish Premier Ignace Paderewski died in New York at the age of 80.

In 1946, the British arrested more than 2,700 Jews accused of terrorism in Palestine.

Also in 1946, rioting broke out between Yugoslavs and Italians in the city of Trieste.

In 1970, the last of the American ground forces which had moved into Cambodia were withdrawn.

Ten years ago: A Southeast Airlines plane was hijacked over Florida and diverted to Cuba, and the pilot, a Cubanborn U.S. citizen, was held as a deserter.

Five years ago: Former White House counsel John Dean completed his testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee, unshaken from his central charge that President Richard Nixon had taken part in a cover-up.

One year ago: Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the Carter administration was committed to seeking full diplomatic ties with China.

Today's birthdays: Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands is 67. Black activist Stokely Carmichael is 37. Composer and conductor Leroy Anderson is 70.

Thought for today: An American man without American cookery would gradually waste away and eventually die - Mark Twain, American writer, 1835-1910.

Charlie's 'Angels' Postpone Move

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - A stooped, shabbily-dressed, elderly black man shuffled into the Southern Manor Nursing Home last week and handed a wadded dollar bill to 88-year-old Charlie Lawson. He left before anybody could ask him his name.

Meanwhile, Oscar Wyatt Jr., head of the giant Coastal States Gas Corp. in Houston, called to donate $1,200. A Waco, Texas, bail bondsman sent $100 and the crew of the USS Coral Sea is taking up a collection.

They are among dozens of persons from across the nation who have contributed money after learning that Lawson has been ruled too healthy to receive Medicaid payments and would be evicted from his nursing home.

Lawson is blind in one eye, nearly deaf and has hardening of the arteries, but doesn't receive daily medication or treatment. Therefore, state Medicaid officials said he was no longer entitled to the $462 monthly payments that have financed his 15-month stay at the home.

He was to have been evicted by Father's Day and would have been forced to live alone on only $160 per month in Social Security payments. His son and grandchildren were unable to support him and are appealing the decision.

"We have enough money now for Charlie to stay for seven months. If all of the pledges come in, we'll have enough for him to stay from now on, or until the pledges stop," said Marsha Jones, a registered nurse consultant at the home.

The Northside Lions Club and Ronald Freed, owner of the nursing home, donated enough money for Lawson to avoid eviction by June 18. When The Associated Press sent the story nationwide, donations began pouring in.

"I think this is just wonderful," said the gentle, smiling Lawson. "I'm ashamed of it. I'm ashamed for them to have to help me, but I tell you right now, they sure have helped me. I knew there were more good people in the world yet. They couldn't have been any nicer.

"I'm so happy I can stay here. I sure do appreciate it."

Along with his $100, the black bondsman in Waco included a touching note to Lawson, a white man.

In broken grammar, the bondsman wrote: "I am a Black Man . . . after all Charlie is a Man and I am a man. Regardless of race, Creed or Color, God want us to help those that need help, and he said he will return our blessings in Double Folds. If at anytime I can be of further service to Charlie, you, or anyone, or any Nursing Home, do not hesitate to call upon me. I assure you it will be a Pleasure."

The popular Lawson helps nurses care for his fellow patients whenever possible and is constantly attempting to boost morale. The vacant faces of the elderly patients light up when the friendly Lawson walks past. Ms. Jones said the fragile mood of the patients darkened when they thought Lawson would have to leave.

Carter Reveals Faith Philosophy

NEW YORK (AP) - As President Carter describes it, there's a continual tension between a person's inner convictions and his external public life, and the individual ideals usually surpass the performance, but they keep pushing onward!

It's a zone of conflict, he says, "because there is a difference between our private inward life and our public outward life, no matter how broad the scope of our participation in public affairs."

"Leaders have to be careful not to be too timid," he says. "Sometimes the best way to avoid failure is not to try very hard, not to be in the center of a noble effort, or to quit soon enough so you will not be associated in the end with disappointment."

He was talking, in an unusually candid way, with fellow Southern Baptists last weekend and he laid out his feelings about the interplay of his religious faith and duties of office.

He compared it to the push-and-pull of the connecting rods on wheels of an old-fashioned steam locomotive, such as once went through his hometown of Plains, Ga., in his boyhood, pushing forward, pulling back, yet carrying the train forward.

It's like that in public life, he suggested, and he quoted the late theologian Rhenhold Niebuhr about the inevitable difference between personal moral principle and the collective conduct of societies.

"The expectations and demands of a person are a much higher standard," Carter said. "A person should have as his goal, complete agape love. The most we can expect from a society is to institute simple justice."

Basically, he said "there is no conflict that prevents bringing one's personal religious life together with the political arena."

Tech School Creates Position

LUBBOCK - The College of Education at Texas Tech University has "streamlined the administrative structure of the college" by creating a new position, associate dean for programs, according to Dr. Robert H. Anderson, dean of the college.

Selected for the position, effective Sept. 1, was Dr. Billy E. Askins, who has been director of advisement.

A reorganization in the college made the new position possible. When the resignation of a former associate dean for Student Services was announced, there was "a veritable groundswell of support for Askins from both students and faculty," Anderson said.

Anderson said Askins has a strong record of accomplishments and a strong interest in his new role. "He and I have had a good working relationship, and I'm looking forward to our administrative partnership," Anderson said.

Askins, with Texas Tech since 1967, received a B.S. degree in secondary education from East Texas State University, Commerce, an M. Ed. in educational administration from Midwestern State University, Wichita Falls, and an Ed. D. in secondary education from North Texas State University, Denton.

Askins has published numerous journal articles in his field and has served Texas Tech in a variety of administrative roles, including director of advisement, assistant chairperson of curriculum and instruction, and director of student teaching.

As a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve, Askins serves as liaison officer and coordinator for the Air Force Academy for the West Texas area.

Job Fascinates Aquarium Trainer

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) - Anybody who has ever tried to housebreak a puppy, and tried and tried and tried, can only marvel at what Curt Horton accomplishes.

Horton is a trainer of whales and dolphins and seals, wild creatures made to do as he commands. He is as fascinated with his job as all who watch in awe as he does it.

"I got into this work by accident," he said. "Now I know it's what I want to do. I can't imagine ever getting tired of it."

Horton works at the Mystic Aquarium, an ironic institution for this town.

Mystic is a salty old coastal village, a restored whaling port. Tourists climb aboard antique whaling ships, built in an earlier day for the killing of sea creatures, then walk down a cobbled street to the aquarium, built for the care and study of them.

Several times a day Horton puts his charges through their paces. At the touch of a finger to a fin, or at the sound of a whistle, dolphins jump through hoops, seals catch balls, whales leap and cavort.

"It isn't quite right to say that what we do is teach an animal to do a trick," Horton said, "although they indeed do tricks. What we do, technically, is called behavior modification."

"It takes a lot of time and a lot of patience and it is based simply on rewarding them when their behavior is what you want it to be and withholding reward when it isn't."

When the creatures get good at it, according to Horton, they take on a certain independence, like pampered movie stars.

"Take Sassy, for instance. She's a dolphin. She has four behaviors and she knows I call for them in a certain order and give her a nice fat fish after each one."

"Sometimes, just to be ornery, she will do all four in succession without stopping, as if to say 'Let's get it over with.' When there are people watching it can be embarrassing."

"That's nothing compared with Kimo. Kimo is my favorite dolphin.

"There will be a big crowd, and I have to talk to them, explain the behavior I'm going to demonstrate. Kimo will hear me begin and will go down to the bottom and not come up for five minutes, six minutes, seven minutes, leaving me up there trying to ad lib. Yes, he does it on purpose, sort of telling me to kiss off."

Horton, who is 28, began working with sea mammals - he corrects you if you call them fishes - six years ago when he answered an ad for a curator at a small Cape Cod aquarium.

"I didn't know what a curator was so I applied. I found out that a curator was somebody who cleans fish tanks."

New 155-hp 4640

Lots more than power from a big-job tractor

Big-power jobs demand something equally important—big-job strength. And strength is the 4640's strong point. Evidence is everywhere...a bigger engine, longer wheel-base more weight, new 4-pinion differential, bigger final drives, bigger drive axles. Even the drawbar is bigger and heavier than on the model it replaces. Now, bigger cooling systems are used for both engine coolant and transmission/hydraulic oil. Stop by the store for more details on the big-job strength of a 4640.

Advantages of full face
By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 17 years old. Last year I had my nose done. Since then I have gained 20 pounds. It seems mostly on my face. I went back to the doctor to see if this was because of the nose job. He said definitely not. I then went to my regular doctor and had a thyroid and metabolism test done which was normal. I really watch my diet but have not lost any weight. I am 5 feet 4 and weigh 130. If I could only lose the weight off my face it would save many tears.

DEAR READER - Many of my readers who are somewhat older than you would like to have your problem - getting rid of the fullness in their face. The usual problem a person has with dieting is that the fat leaves the face first causing a wrinkled and shrunken appearance of the face. In these instances it seems like the last area to lose fat is always the waist and hips area.

There are hereditary or familial characteristics as to which regions of the body accumulate fat. A tendency to have a full face is not necessarily bad and can be a great advantage to you as the years go by. Perhaps you should count your blessings. There is no such thing as spot reducing and the way to lose the fat off your face is to be relatively thin all over. However, you should not overdo that because that can lead to serious health problems.

I would suggest that you try to limit your sweets, starches and fats in your food and I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet to give you a basic sensible plan that you can follow. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long,

'Basic Training' Urged for Children

By CONNIE GRZELKA
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - If basic training works for the Army, the Navy, the Marines and the Air Force, why not apply a similar concept to the rearing of children, suggests author Lois Gould.

Contemplating the future of the still visionary "liberated family," Ms. Gould explains that such a system would rest on this simple base: "That mommy doesn't have full responsibility for the rearing of the children."
Ms. Gould, whose collection of essays on contemporary living, "Not Responsible for Personal Articles," has just been published, urges that children be trained to be self-sufficient as early as possible.

"The simple fact is that most kids can do more than most parents think they can. But unless they have to, they won't," she said in an interview here. The "basic training" checklist she provides is geared to attack the long-held belief that the mother is the sole keeper of the flock:
"As soon as the child is old enough, he should be responsible for his own maintenance. When he runs out of socks, he can turn on the washing machine. He can clean his own room, prepare his own breakfast, fix his own lunch for school. He can help out with shopping for groceries - it helps the family and offers a consumer skill and a survival art the child should learn early," she says.

Ms. Gould, 40, a former newspaper reporter and author of seven books including the best-selling "Such Good Friends," is married to a Manhattan psychiatrist and is the mother of two teen-age sons. Although Ms. Gould's latest book takes a humorous, reassuring look at such topics as the Equal Rights Amendment, the impact of television heroines, party-giving, pornography and etiquette for liberated persons, her personal view of the state of the feminist movement is a dark one.

"Many gains have been made, but we can't trust them and sit back and relax," she says. "Each one of these could be withdrawn, simply because women are still not making the decisions in these cases."
"I think we get ecstatic too easily," she adds, urging caution in celebrating the strides of feminism. "We must never assume that anything is permanently won."
One example she cites is the "very active and relaxed" day care program sponsored by the government during World War II and abolished after the war: "Rosie the Riveter, the national heroine, died of unnatural causes along with the day care program. Thirty years later we still don't have a day care program."

There are still huge gaps between groups of women, but there needn't be because they have more links and bonds than they have differences, Ms. Gould believes.

Language Gap Grows

CHICAGO (AP) - Winston Churchill once said the Americans and the British were "two peoples separated only by a common language."
Now, says a British expert on the subject, the language rift is becoming so wide that in 200 years or so the Yanks and Britons may actually need interpreters.

Robert Burchfield, chief editor of the Oxford English Dictionary, said several factors - among them continuing immigration to the United States - are responsible for the differences in the way the two peoples speak the king's English.
Burchfield said physical distance alone accounts for wide variations in the way people talk.

England you have "bobbies" and in America they're "cops." Its a sticky wicket, or a tough row to hoe, and on and on.
Imagine, then, says Burchfield, what it may be like in 200 years.
Burchfield, a New Zealand-born lexicographer who teaches English at St. Peter's College, Oxford, also had these observations on the language in an interview Monday:
-Black dialect has replaced Yiddish as the most profound influence on American English.
-Americans are not "eroding" the English language, as classical scholars often argue, because language is not "like a vegetable that can rot."

-Native Americans, or Indians, who contributed such words as "skunk," "squaw," and "wigwam" to American English are no longer changing the language.
Burchfield is on tour to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Oxford University Press. He edits the 13-volume Oxford English Dictionary which contains definitions of 414,825 words.

While the United States continues to receive immigrants, Britain to a greater extent has closed her doors, Burchfield noted.

Once immigration stops, "the language freezes itself, to some extent. Immigration brings linguistic change."
So that today you have people on one side of the Atlantic saying "telly" and people on the other saying "TV"; in

TSTI Approves Budget

AMARILLO - Texas State Technical Institute Board of Regents met on the Harlingen Campus June 26, and approved an 18 million dollar operating budget for 1979. The Amarillo Campus' operating budget will be $2,924,584...Waco Campus $9,680,758...Harlingen Campus $2,995,192 and the Sweetwater Campus...$1,256,707. The TSTI System operating account will have a budget of $658,895 and $504,796 will be held in a reserve account. That brings the total operating budget to $18,020,932.

In other business, regents approved a lease agreement with B&B Overhead Door Company for building 9508 on the Amarillo Campus. The first years lease will be at a cost of $300 per month with an option to renew after the first year at a cost of $315 per month.
TSTI Board members also approved revised plans and specifications for construction of the Electronics Technology Center at the TSTI Waco campus and gave authorization to advertise for bids.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 44-year-old woman and I have been told that I frown a lot. Now I notice that my eyebrows are drooping. I have been trying to keep my brows up but find that hard to do. Is there an exercise that can help or creams or conditioners?
DEAR READER - If you'll look at yourself in the mirror you'll notice that the exercise that you do to lift the eyebrows actually wrinkles the forehead, so I don't really think that you're going to get an awful lot of help in raising your eyebrows by exercising them. The same applies to use of creams or conditioners.
If it is true that your eyebrows are drooping, you could have some minor cosmetic surgery. These are called brow lifts. A skilled cosmetic surgeon can easily lift the eyebrows and take out a little excess skin without leaving any significant scar. It is a fairly simple procedure.
For further information I suggest that you contact a plastic surgeon who does cosmetic surgery and get his advice as it applies to your particular condition.

stamp, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper? P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
The Health Letter I'm sending you also suggests that you exercise and a regular exercise program could help you immeasurably in controlling your weight. You can learn to do a sport well, regardless of how bad you may be to start with. If you could develop an interest in tennis, for example, playing tennis regularly would help you use a lot of calories - provided you avoided the habit of snacking before, during and after the game.

DEAR POLLY - Please tell me how to remove wine stains (in this case red wine on a cotton and polyester shirt) that I have tried washing in warm water and detergent with no luck.
My Pointer concerns whitening old heirloom linens and laces that are so lovely and fragile. I grate a bar of pure soap and add water to make a jelly that I apply to the stains or discoloration. Then hand wash using only warm water. This has worked for me many times.
DEAR ANNETTE - You may have "set" the stains by washing in the warm water. Cold water will usually remove fresh stains. If your fabric will take it, hold a tea kettle of boiling water high above the stain and pour through it until removed. A rubber band will hold the fabric taut around the rim of a bowl. - POLLY

Troublesome wine stain
By Polly Cramer
POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is with messy grocery carts that have candy wrappers, facial tissues and other litter in them. - S.M.
DEAR POLLY - My Pointer concerns shelling nuts so that the shells do not get all over the counter. Put the nuts in a plastic bag, hold the opening together with one hand and tap the nuts with a hammer. The shells cannot fly around. - DOROTHY
DEAR POLLY - I take care of those pesky little bugs that get into cornmeal, flour, pancake mixes, etc. by putting a stick of unwrapped spearmint gum in the container or box. Now I do not have to throw away good food. - ELLA
DEAR POLLY - I would like to tell Mary that her used scouring pads will not rust if she keeps them in an old plastic margarine container. They stay rust free to the very end. - S.C.B.
DEAR POLLY - I got tired of replacing drawstrings in sweat shirts, jacket hoods, etc. after they had worked their way out during the wash. Now my simple solution is to pin the two ends of each such string together with a safety pin (but do be sure it is rustproof). This has saved me a lot of time and frustration. - JANET
DEAR POLLY - In order to get more use out of creamy lotion or liquid makeup keep the bottle upside down on your makeup tray. When ready to use the contents will be at the top of the bottle or jar. - MIMI

Cat Orphanage Started By Washington Couple

YELM, Wash. (AI)
Christopher the cougar was a television star before a tight shooting schedule and a short temper made him unwelcome in Hollywood. Today he lives in an orphanage for exotic cats whose owners have had enough of their tempestuous tabbies.
Terry and Shelley Starns run the Cougar Mountain Breeding Compound and Sanctuary here.
The Starnses love cats. They have slept with two bobcats on their bed and now Mrs. Starns is rearing two 2-week-old cougars in the house, nursing them with a bottle and special formula.
The compound shelters 33 felines, ranging from a lion to an African leopard and bobcats. Overpopulated zoos also place cats with the sanctuary when homes at other zoos are impossible to find.

Mrs. Starns says the secret to rearing wild animals is to do what their wild mothers do - administer a little discipline.
"In the wild, a mother will whack a disobedient kitten and send the kitten rolling over five or 10 times," she said.
"I don't administer that kind of discipline, but I have a little thong, a rubber slipper, and I give them a spanking when they deserve it."
Christopher appeared on nationwide television commercials as the cougar atop the Lincoln-Mercury sign and also in the TV series "Six Million Dollar Man."
The commercials and strict schedules and Christopher had to perform on days when he wasn't in the mood. He finally rebelled and bit his trainer.
For this he was blacklisted from show business. He would have been killed if he hadn't been rescued by the Starnses.

who maintain a particular cautiousness around the temperamental has-been.
But Mrs. Starns completely trusts the cats she raised from kittens, such as Cassandra the leopard. She holds Cassandra in her arms and the leopard licks her hands and paws.
When she takes Poppy, a 9-month-old cougar, for a walk, the cub begs to be carried.
Cassandra and Poppy will lick her hand, but they won't nip her. They get spanked when they put their teeth on her.
Tina the bobcat suffered an identity crisis. She was reared in a home by a couple who later decided they had to get rid of her.
Tina had never been out of the house and was incensed when she was placed in a pen with other bobcats.
"She thought she was a person," says Mrs. Starns.
