Who's Atop Money Heap?

NEW YORK (AP) -Americá's wealthiest person has a wallet so fat that he with a "b" - on a single bad venture and still come out richer than Rockefeller.

Forbes magazine has come up with the Forbes 400 - a list of who's got it, and who's got more, when it comes to money. The illustrated list takes up 86 pages of the magazine's Sept. 13 issue.

Who is the wealthiest American? Forbes says it's Daniel K. Ludwig, 85, a resident of New York City who made his money in shipping.

Of the top 12, five are sons and daughters of legendary Texas oil man H.L. Hunt. The rest of the list is a mix of wellknown names - it takes both hands to count the du Ponts and those who somehow avoided the limelight, despite their moley.

It's no longer fashionable to flaunt wealth, the Great Depression paving nixed that, and "a majority of the people on it would have preferred not to be listed," Forbes said. So it relied on estimates and a score of business executives and journalists to come up with what it called a "tentative rather than authoritative" list.

The list shows that oil and blood mix well - nine of the top 12 richest people made their money in oil and six of the nine inherited their for-

Ludwig, however, built his fortune in the 1930s by taking contracts he had arranged to ship oil for the seven biggest oil companies and using them as collateral for loans to build the ships. He built the first supertankers, at lower cost in Japan, and is now "buying savings and loans," the magazine said.

He "sank (a) probably unrecoverable $1 billion into (an) Amazon jungle pulp empire," Forbes said, but "his net worth is still above $2 billion."

Aside from Ludwig, those in the top 12 who did not make their money in oil are Forest Mars Sr., 78, ranked seventhrichest, and David Packard, 70, who ranked 11th.

Mars runs the world's largest confections company, M&M Mars Inc. His net worth was put at $1 billion. Packard, starting with $538 in capital and a small garage, built what became Hewlett-Packard Co., which makes electronic equipment and

"They've told me, 'You are the one advocating it. Here's your chance to make it work.' I've got an added incentive to perform because I'm an Indian."

Since 1977, Apodaca has been superintendent at the Tigua reservation, one of only two reservations in the state. The other is the Alabama-Coushatta reservation near Livingston in East Texas. Although only about 1,100 Indians live on the two reservations, Texas is estimated to have an Indian population of about 40,000 — 10th largest in the country.

Apodaca will replace Walt Broemer, who has supervised the state's two Indian tribes for the past 25 years, Fifer said. He said Broemer has retired, but has leave time accrued through Nov. 8.

"We all agreed that this would be the best thing," he said. "This was mainly what the Indian tribes and the Indian people wanted. They don't want any non-Indians telling them what to do."

Fifer said the appointment of Apodaca was the first step in the commission's plan to turn administration of the tribes totally over to Indians.

"We're going to see some more commissioners be Indians if we can get the governor to appoint them," he said.

Arafat Ready To Leave Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) -PLO chief Yasser Arafat and other top guerrilla leaders prepared to leave Israeliringed west Beirut Saturday in an heaviliy guarded convoy bound for Syria under close supervision of the international peacekeeping force.

Details of Arafat's departure were shrouded in secrecy for security reasons, but reports circulated Friday in Beirut and Damascus of his imminent departure. Under the evacuation plan worked out by U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, Arafat has until Sept. 3 to leave Lebanon, the Palestine Liberation Organization's Middle East power base for the past 12 years.

Arafat's initial destination was thought to be the Syrian capital, but there have been reports he eventually may go to Tunisia. Sources in Tunisia said President Habib Bourguiba has offered his estate at La Marsa to Arafat.

It also was reported Arafat would attend an Arab summit conference tentatively set for Sept. 6 in Fez, Morocco.

Lebanese radio stations and the Bahrain-based Gulf News Agency said King Hassan of Morocco asked President Reagan for a personal safe conduct guarantee for Arafat. In Washington, Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes said he heard of the report but had "nothing on it." He did not elaborate.

Missing Soldier May Be In Hands Of North Koreans

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - An American soldier is missing in the demilitarized zone that divides North and South Korea and "may be in the hands of the North Korean Army," the U.N. military command said Saturday.

A command spokesman said the soldier was on U.N. civil police duty inside the demilitarized zone when he disappeared. Ten North Korean soldiers were seen in the area "apprehending an individual who may be the missing man," but that this had not been confirmed, said the spokesman, who declined to be identified.

He said a message had been sent to North Korean military authorities requesting that if the soldier had strayed into the northern side of the DMZ, he be returned to the U.N. command as soon as possible.

As of mid-afternoon Saturday there had been no response from the North, the spokesman said.

Wall Street Trading Frenzy May Shape Economic Recovery

NEW YORK (AP) - The unprecedented trading frenzy that is sweeping Wall Street may play an important role in shaping an economic recovery from a numbing recession.

More than a half billion shares of stock changed hands on the New York Stock Exchange this past week, representing more than $16.5 billion in investments.

All that money just was not pulled out of thin air, nor was it taken from underneath a mattress.

For the most part, say economists, the funds "churned" through the financial markets, being taken from one investment and put into another.

But what has analysts interested is what stock sellers will do with the money they received for the shares they sold to eager buyers and whether the sharp gains in the value of those investments will spill over into a spurt in consumer spending and business investment.

Since Aug. 12, when it stood at a 28-month low, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks has climbed 106 points, or by about 13 percent.

Sandra Shaber, a senior economist at the private consulting firm of Chase Econometrics, said the increased value of household financial assets resulting from the stock market rally is an important influence on. consumer spending.

With stock holdings worth more and interest rates down sharply from the start of this summer, people feel richer and are more likely to spend their current income, she

"One thing motivating people (to invest) is that this trend may continue," Mrs. Shaber said.

But she added a note of caution, saving long-t terest rates, a key to revitalization of the depressed housing industry and a rekindling of corporate investment, have been slower to fall than other interest rates in the recent declines.

The renewed interest in stocks "may be a reflection of people's views on how the economy may perform in the future," said Robert Parry, chief economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles.

"It's all part of the picture of a situation where things are becoming more favorable for the consumer," Parry said.

A major beneficiary of two straight weeks of record trading are the nation's brokerage firms. An industry rule of thumb is that on any trading day in which volume exceeds 40 million shares, brokerage houses are past the breakeven point and are making money. Trading exceeded 100 million shares four times in the past week.

Donald Maude, chief financial economist at the investment firm of Merrill Lynch & Co., said the trigger of the market's August stampede, falling interest rates, "should build the foundation for an economic recovery."

Rates continued to retreat this past week as banks nationwide adopted a 13.5 percent prime rate and the Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate a half point to 10 percent, both the lowest level since autumn of 1980.

The prime rate, the base upon which banks compute interest charges on shortterm business loans to their most creditworthy corporate clients, stood at 16.5 percent as recently as July 19. The discount rate, which stood at 12 percent on July 19, is the interest charged by the Fed on loans to banks and savings and loans.

Declines in both the prime rate and the discount rate tend to lag behind reductions in other interest rates.

Maude said the viability of a recovery depends on rates remaining at current levels or slipping lower. But he warned rates might begin to rise again, threatening another economic slowdown early next year. Meanwhile, signs of economic weakness continued to appear. The Labor department said 608,000 Americans filed initial claims for unemployment compensation benefits in the week ended Aug. 14, the largest weekly total since the end of May.

Dun & Bradstreet Corp., a private credit-information service, said 572 businesses failed in the week ended Aug. 19, the highest level since the early 1930s. The average weekly rate of 459 failures so far this year is the highest since the 1932 average of 612.

The National Association of Business Economists said the economy has begun a "slowmotion" recovery that will be weaker than earlier expecta-

Savings for a rainy day have been climbing steadily in the United States for most of the past two decades — but not at as high a rate as total personal income of Americans. #### Ex-Girlfriend Turns State's Evidence Against 18-Year Old ABILENE, Texas (AP) -The capital murder case against Wayne East took · a dramatic turn when a former girlfriend said she saw the 18-year-old defendant stab an elderly woman in the throat with a knife, then ransack her home for valuables to steal.

The state rested its case after Friday's testimony from Dee Dee Martin, 18, who also had been charged with murder in the Nov. 23 killing of Abilene artist Mary Eula Sears, 77. Miss Martin spent five hours on the witness stand after prosecutors offered her a plea-bargain. She agreed to a 20-year prison term, with a favorable probation recommendation, on a reduced charge of burglary.

"shock or some kind of daze" after she saw East plunge a hunting knife into Miss Sears' neck as the elderly woman sat in a chair.

"Wayne had his left hand over her mouth" and was holding the knife at her throat.

"Wayne cut her ... with the five earlier sworn statements hunting knife ... and hit her on the side of the face," she testified. "Can you live with whatever happens to Wayne East, based on your testimony?" special pro-secutor Rusty Ormesher ask-

"Yes, sir. It's the truth," she said.

The night before the incident, she said, she was with East, whom she had known for about a month and a half. They injected drugs and drank beer, she said, and later that night East told her he was planning a burglary to get more money for drugs.

"The person was not supposed to be home," she said.

The next morning, "about sun-up," they went to the Sears house, she testified. Miss Martin said she stayed outside in the car until she heard a scream, then went inside to find East struggling with the elderly artist.

"He took her into a bedroom and put her in a chair. At first, he was messing with this drawer, then while she was in the chair, he stabbed her in the neck."

When she "saw the knife go in her neck, it affected me very badly. My mind was blank like I was in shock," Miss Martin said.

She said East sent her to the front door to get rid of a visitor. She returned to the bedroom to find East "digging through a dresser drawer" when Miss Sears looked up and asked for help. That is when she left the house, she said.

Later that day, she said, he saw East carrying "a ring" which has been identified as belonging to Miss

Ruling Promised By Tuesday In Braniff Pensions Cutoff

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A bankruptcy judge is taking the weekend to ponder the proposed shutdown of Braniff International Corp.'s pension funds, but one of the pensioners filed suit to try to keep him from ruling.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers promised a ruling by Tuesday after hearing two days of testimony in Braniff's plan to dissolve its four pensions and turn them over to a federal agency for future administration.

However, retired Braniff Airways pilot W.P. McDonald on Friday asked a federal judge to block such a ruling. saying Flowers does not have jurisdiction to decide whether Braniff can do away with its pension plans.

Braniff suspended operations May 12 and filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code the next day. On Aug. 20, the company asked permission to reduce payments to pensioners and, eventually, get rid of its pension plans.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., established by Congress in 1974, said it was prepared to assume responsibility for the four pension funds, but at reduced benefits.

More than 100 former Braniff employees crammed into Flowers' courtroom Thursday and Friday as company officials testified reducing the pensioners' payments was the only way to guarantee all participants would receive some payment. Braniff Treasurer and Vice President Robert Ferguson said liabilities of the four funds far outstripped assets. Under the Braniff proposal, retired pilots' monthly checks would be cut from $3,000 to $1,000. McDonald said such sharp reductions, without prior notice, would "work a hardship" on those involved.

"We have enjoyed that retirement for, in my case, for a year and a half," said retired Braniff pilot John Hutton. "Now, it's being cut down to about one-fourth to one-third of what we're used to and this happens - bang! - just like that."

"We're going to have to make some arrangement to pay the bills, buy food and so on - this is a shock and we haven't adjusted to it yet," said Hutton's wife. Adele.

McDonald's attorneys filed their request to block

Flowers' ruling with U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon, who will be on vacation until

Meanwhile, the pension benefit agency in Washington said it would give former Braniff employees an unusual opportunity to comment on the future of the pensions plans, which represent machinists, pilots and executives.

Just Call Me 'Breezy'

A person's name is important - that's one of the first items you learn in the newspaper

Names are sometimes funny nouns .. the pronounciation and spelling do not always match. This crossed our minds after we penned an article in the last edition and credited some information to the Lubbock-Avalanche Journal entertainment critic.

We must not be too impressed with the man because we misspelled his monicker throughout the piece. Just to set the record straight, the man's name is "Kerns", not "Kearns".

However, we consider ourselves as an expert at knowing about the misspelling of one's name. Brisendine has been misspelled and mispronounced more than it has been spelled or pronounced correctly.

As a matter of fact, we were trained as a child to answer most roll calls if a strange look appeared on the pronouncer's face. They could pronounce the longest Polish monickers; they had no trouble whatsoever with Spanish surnames and - on a few occasions - we have seen them breeze through Russian names with no problems.

We're talkig six-syllable names, here folks, and they never stuttered or even stopped to draw a breath .. until they hit "Brisendine".

We coult tell. Their eyes would widen, their mouths gape, and the stuttering would begin. Sometimes it was totally embarassing to sit through minutes of some teacher or coach trying to work the name out syllable by syllable, only to botch it up.

Life can be tough when you grow up known chiefly as that fellow with the funny last name.

We have never really understood the problem. After all, we managed to learn the name and could pronounce it clearly by age 10. We even learned to spell it correctly, most of the time, by age 12. So, what's the big deal?

All this is our way of apologizing to the many people who have seen their names misspelled in the pages of this paper. We realize the importance of correctly identifying everyone, and we are embarrassed each time there is an error, but we hope you realize that it's never intentional.

The Penultimate Word

THEY DID SOMETHING RIGHT

Congress is finally doing something right. They voted last week to build themselves a new gymnasium. I know some folks won't think that is a big deal, especially since they already have two gyms for their use. I know some will be skeptical about their making such a move at this time. I know some of the poor and the aging will wonder about the move since they just got their programs cut. I know others will wonder about a government that has been hollering about balanced budgets and high government spending, now building something that seems frivolous.

I also know we will never know how much the thing cost. The Rayborn Office Building was given the go ahead with an appropriation of One Million Dollars and such other funds as needed. No one knows how much other funds were needed nor where the other funds went. I have heard that it cost more than the Pentagon, but no one knows. By the way, there is a gym in the Rayborn Building.

I know some will make fun when they find out the neat little underground train system these guys ride from their offices to the capitol vill now run to the new gym. I know it looks funny to see fat men ride a train to a gym so they can exercise. Some red-neck will say "Let 'em jog along the tracks and they won't need a gym."

All of these arguments miss the whole point. The gym may be one of the best things to happen up there in years. Granted, it is frivolous. Granted it will cost a ton. Granted it comes at a time of recession (that is a political word which means depression). But look at the other side.

Be grateful for graft. If it weren't for graft we might be getting all the government we are paying for. With the new tax raise, which isn't a tax raise but gets us anyhow, there must be somewhere for them to spend the money. Had you rather them build a gym or expand O.S.H.A.? Right?

The most important point is ... the best place for any congressman to be is in a hot tub. When he is soaking in the tub we are safe. When he is in his office writing laws we are not safe.

National Survey Results Given

By Richard L. Lesher

WASHINGTON -- The response to my recent readers' survey on critical national issues has been outstanding. To date, I have received well over 4,000 replies from every corner of the nation, and they are still pouring in.

The results reveal substantial agreement among readers--and pointed disagreement with many policy directions currently popular in Washington, D.C.

To summarize, you told me in no uncertain terms that deficits should be reduced by cutting spending, not by raising taxes; that business tax incentives are important to spur growth and jobs in the private sector; that environmental regulations can be streamlined without sacrificing health standards; that Social Security should be reformed by including federal civilian employees in the system and by considering some curtailment in future cost-of-living increases; and that a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget should be passed.

Finally, if the nation responds to the availability of Individual Retirement Accounts the way readers say they have or will, then we are on the verge of an exciting savings revolution in this

By the way, we said at the outset it was not a "scientific" survey but why not have a survey based on the same rhetoric by which our laws are made?

I will be asking for your views on other issues periodically in the future. Thank you for taking the opportunity to talk back to me. I, in turn, will pass your message along.

Here are the complete results to date:

1. Which course should Congress pursue to reduce large budget deficits that have system from possible

5. Civilian federal employees, including members of Congress, are not now required to pay into the Social Security system. Should they be required to participate in Social Security along with the rest of the work force?

We walked to school from the house, which was about three-quarters of a mile from that citadel of learning "Columbus Grade School," on the city's South side.

Well, one day we joined another couple of neighborhood boys and "forgot" to show up for school. We had the time of our lives.

We explored the area around the creek which ran through nearby Rotary Park, even doing some skinny dipping in the waterway. (How we could stand that rancid water then is a mystery to me now, and I cringe each time we go by it to this day and view the green water which flows down it).

Anyway, we had a big ol' time and thought we had it made. I mean, we hadn't even been caught, and no one was the wiser, right?

Wrong! As we got ready for bed that night, anticipating going to school the next day and gleefully spreading the tale of our adventure, what should happen? The phone rings. It's dear old classmate Sherry.

"Is Bobby feeling better," she asks my mom? "I hope he is well enough to come to school tomorrow!"

Well, if you don't think that raised some eyebrows around the house."

I don't think that old belt that my mother used as an enforcer ever got a better workout than it did that evening.

Still, Sherry was a good friend most of the time, even if she was just a girl.

I suppose she's still living in the city, and I know she's making a wonderful parent. After all, she had all that practice early in life.

Dear Editor:

Some people were downright disgusted with the man who encouraged his 9-year-old daughter to sue the crackerjack company because there wasn't a toy in the box she bought like there was supposed to be. That man ought to be ashamed of himself, they said.

Those people don't understand. That man was merely teaching his daughter to get along in the present world. Anybody who can't find somebody else or some company to sue these days is behind the times.

For example, I had a flat on my pickup the other day. Picked up a nail on the road near my place.

I'm now planning on suing the tire company for making a tire that won't resist a nail. If I lose that case, I'll sue the manufacturer of the nail. A company is responsible for

Smith County grass farm on the contractor who built the road. If he hadn't built it, I wouldn't have been driving on it. In legal terms he was guilty of creating an inviting hazard.

If I lose there, I'll sue the State Legislature for voting the money to build the road. If it hadn't, the contractor couldn't have built the road and I wouldn't have had a flat there. If by then my lawyer says he's tired of all these suits and quits, I'll get another lawyer to sue the first one for failing to live up to the principles of equal justice for all. By the time I appeal all these cases through the lower courts and they finally get to the Supreme Court, somebody is going to wish I hadn't had that flat tire, although I'm afraid it'll be me, which will be unfair because I had no chance to

Immigrants Should Obey Our Laws Or Automatically Be Deported

Thousands of immigrants in the United States, mostly from Cuba, persist in their practice of a religious rite called Santeria.

I will spare you graphic detail, but Santeria is a mixture of African folk religion and Spanish Catholicism fashioned by slaves. It involves the ritual slaughter of animals. Some Haitian immigrants ceremonially mutilate animals.

And these groups, in the United States, demand their right to do so in the name of "religious liberty." How far should any country go in altering its own traditions to accomodate out-LANGUAGE! siders? Because ours is a nation of immigrants and their children, any prospect of Draconian measures to limit immigration or to preserve our traditional culture appears contracdictory.

So we have hurried -perhaps unwisely - to open our borders to almost limitless legal and illegal immigration. Until, the situation beyond remedy or repair, our Congress decides the only way to resolve the problem of illegal immigration is to make the illegals legal.

This amnesty for millions we cannot even accurately count would make illegals further eligible for welfare, unemployment pay, housing subsidies, food stamps, medical care and - for their children - a free education. And IN THEIR OWN

Richard Rodriguez, son of Mexican immigrants, who has accumulated degrees from Stanford and Columbia and Berkeley - - and in London on a Fulbright -- says foreigners in the United States should be taught English only. He says teaching the language of the ghetto or the barrio tends to keep those young people out of the mainstream, evades majority society, solidifies a feeling of public alienation.

To come to the United States because it is what it is and then to try to change it into something which it is not is at least impolite and ungrateful, at worst seditious and subversive.

To perpetuate heathen rites such as animal sacrifice in the name of "religious liberty" ignores limitations which Americans have already legally placed on that prerogative.

Our Supreme Court has ruled that polygamy is a no-no, whatever religious group seeks to justify it.

Blood transfusions have been court ordered over the objections of religious groups which oppose those.

In our representative republic, Americans are not free to do what they WANT, they are free to do what they OUGHT

This brings us to the immigrant's obligation to discipline himself in accordance with the customs, mores and laws of his adopted country. As our Congress moves to legalize the illegals, may I suggest a study of the system adopted in Switzerland and West Germany.

There, illegals may stay and work - but they are not sanctified with a halo of legality. This way, the first time any one of them breaks the law of his adopted land he is automatically deported. It has worked there.

Harrelson Transferred To Hospital to Await Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Prison officials, worried about the health of convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, have transferred him to a Missouri prison hospital to await trial in the slaying of federal judge John H. Wood Jr.

Harrelson, 44, began "not eating well" shortly after Chief U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions began ruling against the defense on several pre-trial motions last week, U.S. Marshal Bill Jonas said Friday.

Although prison officials did not specifically characterize Harrelson's protest as a hunger strike. Jonas said that Harrelson told his guards that "he doesn't like us. He doesn't like the food and he doesn't like the way things are going." Jonas said Friday that Harrelson was transferred from the Federal Correctional Institute at Bastrop to the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo. because prison officials "were afraid it would develop into a physical problem." Harrelson's courtappointed attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr. of Brownsville, was not available to comment

Lunchboxes Common at School or Work:

Fall fashions make their debut with the beginning of school. New clothes, shoes, ribbons and bows are seen in the latest colors and styles. And one style that will be more noticeable than ever this fall will be the lunchbox. From school children to career people, many are opting to take their lunches to school or to the office. Several reasons for choosing to pack a lunch, rather than eat in the cafeteria or at a restaurant, are cost, calorie counting, control over the type of foods the family consumes, and preference for certain foods.

If you're in charge of packing lunches for your family, and you want to be sure that the lunches you pack will stay fresh and wholesome until lunchtime, just follow these few basic guidelines:

Keep hot foods hot, cold foods cold. Vacuum bottles are the best choice for hot foods. Pour hot drinks or soups into the bottles while boiling hot; the vacuum seal will keep it hot until lunchtime.

If sandwiches are frozen when packed, they will help keep other foods in the lunchbox cool.

You can improvise your own lunchbox cooler by filling a small plastic margarine tub with water; cover and freeze until solid. Pack the container in the lunchbox to keep foods cool until ready to eat. Discard melted ice and recycle the container.

Pack lunches in a lunchbox rather than in a paper bag. Boxes, especially insulated ones, hold the cold better than a bag. They are also easier to keep clean. If you use a bag, be sure to use only those bought specifically for lunches. Don't recycle grocery or shopping bags. Make sandwiches ahead and freeze for up to two weeks. Pack them into the lunchbox straight from the freezer. They will thaw by lunchtime and stay fresh three to four hours after thawing if kept wrapped. Frozen sandwiches shouldn't by unwrapped until ready to eat because frozen bread dries out quickly after thaw-

Prepare most foods the night before and refrigerate until ready to pack the lunches. Pre-chilled foods are less likely to spoil or to lost their freshness.

Few things in this country have changed as much during the past few years as public attitudes on drunk drivers. It is a change we can all be thankful for.

Most of that change, in my opinion, can be attributed to the organization of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), and the attendant publicity and editorial support they have received from our newspapers. They have succeeded, where others have failed, in drawing attention to the tragedy that has claimed the lives of thousands of Texans.

It was not long ago, for instance, when some public officials who ought to lead by example were openly contemptuous of our laws against driving while drunk. Much of this problem started nine years ago when my opponent became Lt. Governor and helped pass the law reducing the egal drinking age from twenty-one to eighteen years of age. Now Mr.

Hobby, feeling the heat of irate parents and loved ones, and perhaps personal remorse, has said he favors tougher drunk driving laws-another switch from a previous position. Political promises, however, are easily made. If a politician can't get excited about an issue of this magnitude in nine years, it seems unlikely that he would get excited and pursue corrective legislation in another four years.

So I hope the Mothers Against Drunk Drivers will stick to their guns, and I hope they continue getting support from the people of our state. Their efforts to put an end to this carnage on our highways has my support, and I hope it has

Of one thing we can be reasonably sure: Starting next year we will have a new Lt. Governor, and that will make it easier. If you have thoughts on this subject, please write me at 1213 W. 34th, Austin, 78705.

Ayala Burglary Trial Scheduled in October

(AP) - A judge has scheduled an October trial for boxer Tony Ayala Jr. on a burglary charge.

Ayala, the World Boxing Association's No. 3-ranked junior middleweight, waived arraignment Friday and District Judge Mike Machado set his trial for Oct. 25. Ayala is scheduled to fight Roberto Duran Nov. 19.

Ayala, 19, is undergoing treatment for alcohol and emotional problems at the same clinic near Los Angeles that treated former First Lady Betty Ford and Minnesota Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer.

Machado said he did not require Ayala to appear in court Friday because defense attorneys said the 28 days of treatment he is taking in California includes injections of a chemical that would make it dangerous for him to

Although there are no official scoring results in scrimmages, the Herd hit paydirt four times and Clovis tallied once in the practice session at Clovis. The controlled scrimmage helped prepare the Herd for its opening game here Friday night against Pampa.

The Whiteface defensive crews came on strong in the session. The first unit gave up five first-downs in the second series. The lone Wildcat tally came when the second unit hit a long pass, then punched

Brewers Widen AL East Gap

By TOM CANAVAN Associated Press Writer

Rickey Henderson has left Lou Brock's major league stolen base record in the dust. The Milwaukee Brewers are threatening to do the same thing to their rivals in the American League East.

Henderson of the Oakland A's stole four bases Friday night to break Brock's eightyear-old single season mark of 118 steals, but it wasn't enough as Jim Gantner delivered a two-run single in the eighth inning and Milwaukee edged Oakland 5-4 to move 61/2 games in front of second-place Boston in the

Raiders Show Vast Improvement

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -When Jerry Moore took over at Texas Tech a year ago, he knew there would be some hard times before the Red Raiders made an impact again on the Southwest Conference football race.

"We were thin in most areas but particularly along the line of scrimmages," he said. "It really began to show on us late in the season."

He added, "We'd play games close but just didn't have the depth to stay with most teams...we'll be better this year."

With a solid recruiting year behind him and the return of redshirt quarterback Jim Hart, the Red Raiders should show vast improvement.

However, the Red Raiders could show tremendous improvement and still have trouble making waves in the highly competitive SWC race.

Moore just hopes his team can dodge the injury jinx which struck time and again in 1981. "When the injuries hit we players to regroup last year," said Moore Because of injuries, Tech started 45 different players just didn't have enough

during the season. "It was disappointing to come so close to winning so many times and not be able to do it," Moore said.

His main concern in 1981 is 'experienced depth in the offensive line. Another one is that our second-team line doesn't have much varsity experience.

"Another concern is not having a proven punter yet." However, Moore is enthusiastic about the Red Raider season, which starts Sept. 11 against New Mexico in Albuquerque. "I think our overall defense will be a plus," he said. "I look across the line and I see a lot more depth than last

"I think we also have good talent and depth at running back, fullback and tight end." Reddie Wells, Dale Brown, averaged 90 yards per game, heads the running back corps which includes Robert Lewis, reddie Wells, Dale Brown, Greg Lambert, Mark Williams and Jerry Zachery.

Wells averaged 5.9 yards per carry in 1981 and Lewis 3.9 yards per try. Hutchison gained 5.5 steps every time his number was called.

The key to the Red Raiders is how Hart performs and whether Gabriel "Senor Sack" Rivera returns to his old form in a switch from defensive tackle to noseguard. Hart was sensational in spring practice but will be carrying a heavy burden. He must pass well to take the heat off the Red Raider tailbacks.

Moore is optimistic going into the 1982 campaign.

"I think our defense will be a big plus for us," he says. "I think we will have a better team in 1982 than we did in

Tech was 1-9-1 in 1981 and Moore has yet to win his first SWC game.

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have found out in training camp how coach Tom Landry felt about them missing the Super Bowl by a point last year.

Middle linbacker Bob Breunig said it best: "There has been as much hitting in training camp as I've ever seen. I think coach Landry upped the tempo to give us some mental toughness."

The message is clear to the Philadelhia Eagles, Washington Redskins, New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Conference Eastern Division: the Cowboys won't be resting on their championship throne in 1982. Landry is still hot about the 28-27 NFC title loss to the San Francisco 49ers and when the Cowboys came home Friday after six weeks in Thousand Oaks, Calif., they had behind them one of the toughest camps in history.

'We had a Super Bowl caliber team ... the best team we've had since 1978," said Landry. "But we didn't come through when it counted."

For two consecutive years, the Cowboys have lost in the NFC title game. "Tom doesn't like it," said Cowboys' quarterback Danny White. "He doesn't want the same thing to happen to us in the 1980s that happened to us in the '60s."

The Cowboys lost two National Football League title games in the late 1960s to Green Bay, then blew their first Super Bowl appearance to Baltimore on a late field goal. Only in the 1970s did Dallas shake the stigma of "next year's champions," winning Super Bowls from Miami and Denver.

There are other reasons for Landry's heavy whip hand. The Cowboys lost four games in the second half last

Normally, Landry's teams are strong in the final 30 minutes.

'You think Tom hasn't thought about that?" said a sideline observer in Thousand Oaks. "Look at him out

Landry has been as active in camp drills as anyone can remember, getting down into the pit with the young linebackers, showing them how to use their hands.

"I'm not as strong as you guys, but let me show you what I mean here, OK?" said Landry, jumping into a blocker and applying the proper defensive technique. Training camp has been a 10-letter word for the intense," said defensive tackle Randy White. "Tom certainly has everyone's attention."

Tex Schramm, club president and general manager said, "I know how Tom feels because I feel the same way. The loss to the 49ers hurt as bad as any we've had since that Ice Bowl game at Green Bay when we were a young, struggling team.

"He's determined not to let it happen again."

Danny White said, "The way the season ended last year was a valuable lesson for us to learn and coach Landry is going to make certain we don't forget it.

"We had a tendency not to worry about each and every play because we always thought we could make up for it later. We would sort of nap every now and then. Now, we'll play every play like that is the one that can win the championship."

Mayfield Has Come Full Circle

By JAY JORDEN Associated Press Writer

Former West Texas State University head coach Gene Mayfield has come full circle this year for the start of the schoolboy football season as he returns to the high school where it all began, in Levelland.

Mayfield's hiring and 23 returning lettermen may reverse a streak of 10 losing seasons for the 1-AAAA team, which faces competition from defending state champion Brownwood.

Mayfield, 53, will bring six seasons of coaching experience from the WTSU Buffaloes to the Lobos, who finished 0-10 last season. Mayfield began his career in Levelland in 1953 as an assistant coach.

He was hired at WT to pump new blood into the Buffs. After a year-long stint away from coaching, he says he hopes he can use the same approach to end a 10-season losing streak for the Lobos.

"I thought I might enjoy getting back into coaching, and if there is a challenge, it's in Levelland, Texas,' Mayfield said.

Levelland opens its season against Lamesa on Friday.

The Brownwood Lions are top-ranked for Class 4-A in The Associated Press Schoolboy Preseason Poll and headed for an eighth state championship. Coach Gordon Wood has led the Lions to seven state titles since he moved to Brownwood in 1960.

Gainesville and Fort Bend Willowridge are ranked second and third, respectively, in the AP poll.

In Class 5-A, quarterback Craig Stump will once again head up second-ranked Port Arthur Jefferson's fighting with nine winning seasons and two playoff appearances. But they will have to get used to the idea of taking on the Temple Wildcats, who have maintained an unblemished district mark over the past half-dozen seasons and a 100-15-1 record. And Mayfield says he will have to get used to the idea of coaching high school football instead of shaping up a college team's backfield.

He said it took him a while to decide to make the switch.

"At first, I thought I wasn't interested and I told them that," he said. "Then, as time passed, and they kept getting back in touch with me, I weakened a little bit. I haven't done anything in several months, and inactivity isn't good."

At WT, he led the Buffs to a 24-39-2 record. He was also head coach at Littlefield and Borger, and coached at Odessa Permian from 1965 to

H & R Block Income Tax Course Begins

Thousands of people with spare time are earning money as tax preparers in the growing field of Income Tax Service.

H & R BLOCK is offering a Basic Income Tax Course starting September 9. Classes will be held at the H & R BLOCK office at 127 West 3rd.

For 12 weeks, students will study all areas of tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced BLOCK personnel will teach current laws, theory and application as practiced in their offices coast ot coast. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. The course is programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students find this course interesting and challenging.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications of any kind. The course is ideally suited for housewives. retired persons, teachers or anyone wanting to increase his tax knowledge.

While qualified graduates of the course will be offered job interviews, they are under no obligation to accept employment with H & R BLOCK. There are franchises available to residents of small cities as well as job opportunities locally. Registration forms and brochures for the Income Tax Course may be obtained by contacting the H & R BLOCK office at (806) 578-4382.

While the summer drought is especially plaguing ranchers, it's also causing problems for farmers, especially those with late-planted crops, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Though Cotton Crops Sharply Lower, Inventories Weigh Heavily on Market

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new analysis says that large inventories are still weighing heavily on the U.S. cotton market, indicating that producers may be a long way from better times.

The report, issued Thursday by the Agriculture Department, said that while the cotton crop is sharply lower than last year's, the total supply is "down only slightly" because of a big buildup in inventories in 1981-82.

Moreover, total "disappearance" of cotton domestic use plus exports is expected to rise only slightly in the 1982-83 marketing year which began on Aug. 1.

"So, while there is a good chance that stocks on Aug. 1, 1983, will be lower, they still could be relatively large, unless the crop deteriorates or demand improves considerably by mid-1983," the report said.

tions, the 1982 cotton crop is expected to produce about 11.1 million bales, down 29 percent from the bumper 1981 harvest of 15.6 million bales - a 28-year-high.

"Given abandonment of about a third of the planted area in Texas and widespread compliance with the acreage-reduction program, the harvested area is estimated at 9.5 million acres, 31 percent below 1981," the report said.

"Although the average yield per harvested acre is forecast at a record 563 pounds, the yield per planted acre is 60 pounds below last year because of the large abandonment."

Earlier reports indicated that cotton farmers planted about 11.5 million acres for this year's crop, indicating that two million acres have been abandoned. Last year, plantings totaled 14.3 million were harvested.

Cotton exports in 1982-83 are forecast at approximately 6.7 million bales, virtually unchanged from last season, the report said.

"As of Aug. 12, the U.S. export commitment shipments plus outstanding sales - was around two million bales, 10 percent below a year earlier," it said. "China, which was the thirdleading importer of U.S. cotton in 1981-82, had yet to purchase U.S. cotton for delivery this season."

In a weekly export report issued later on Thursday, however, the department said new sales of cotton during the week of Aug. 12-19 jumped sharply to 301,500 bales, led by South Korea, Japan and Taiwan.

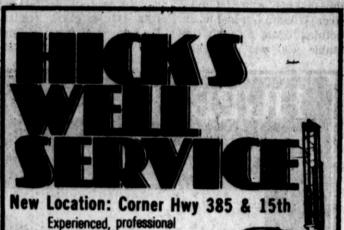

Those new sales helped close the export gap but the total still trailed year-ago

Domestic textile mills are expected to used around 5.6 million bales of cotton this season, about 300,000 more than they did in 1981-82, the analysis said. But that estimate could be too high if textile activity doesn't pick up soon, it added.

"Prospects of continued high stocks, even in the face of sharply lower production, are pressuring cotton prices. New-crop futures prices were around 66 cents a pound in mid-August, slightly less than a year earlier and eight cents below the 1982 high reached in July."

Late Planting Causing Harvest Jitters

WASHINGTON (AP) -The late planting forced on farmers by 1982's wet, cold spring is producing noticeable jitters among some crop watchers who fear that late-maturing corn and soybeans may suffer when frosts arrive this fall.

According to the Agriculture Department's current forecast, the corn harvest will be a record of 8.32 billion bushels, up 1 percent from the previous high of 8.2 billion harvested last

Soybean production is estimated at 2.29 billion bushels, up 13 percent from last year and 1 percent more than the previous record of reported 45 percent dented. 2.27 billion bushels produced' compared to 15 percent a

A new crop production report will be issued by the department's Crop Reporting Board on Sept. 10, reflecting field conditions the first of the

Meanwhile, weekly progress reports issued by the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility show that the fall harvest of corn and soybeans will be later than usual in some key production areas.

The latest report issued Tuesday covered the week Aug. 16-22. It said that "corn was in good-to-excellent condition in parts of the Corn Belt and Southeast and fairto-good in other areas."

Further, the report added: "Cool temperatures in the western Corn Belt again slowed development of the already late crop."

The report does not attempt to forecast crop production, but it does provide a look at the stage of development for various crops. For example, the later corn stages include dough and dent - indications of the kernel development.

"In the 17 major producing states, 66 percent of the corn was in or past the dough stage, and 29 percent was in or past the dent stage," the report said.

Collectively, the 17 states were at the same stage of dough development as they were at this time last year when the harvest went on to be a record. The rating of 29 percent in the dent stage was two percentage points ahead of the year-ago pace.

"Corn was 42 percent dented in the eastern area, nine points ahead of average, and only 12 percent dented in the western region, 14 percent later than normal," the report said.

For example, in the eastern Corn Belt the Ohio crop was percent in the dent stage, compared to 15 percent a vear ago.

But in Iowa, only 11 percent of the corn acreage was reported dented, compared to 23 percent a year ago. The Nebraska crop was 10 percent dented against 25 percent a year earlier.

Soybeans also showed the effects of the late spring, with development ahead of last year in the eastern Corn Belt and behind in the west. In Ohio, for example, 95 percent of the soybeans have developed seed pods, compared to 60 percent a year

The Nebraska crop, meanwhile, was only 65 percent in the pod stage, compared to 95 percent a year ago.

The big harvests predicted this year will put a heavy strain on storage space, but there should be ample transportation to help move grain and soybeans from one area to another, says the Agriculture Department.

"As expected large feed grain and spring wheat harvests join winter wheat in storage, nearly all on-farm storage is likely to be filled,"

Mexicans Complain About Americans

MEXICO CITY (AP) -Mexican officials say talks have started with their U.S. counterparts on an agreement to prevent bargainhunting Americans from buying up scarce Mexican food products in border areas and aggravating Mexico's economic crisis.

But a U.S. Embassy official who declined to be identified said Friday that American diplomats had no knowledge of such negotiations. There was no immediate comment from Washington.

Since the last devaluation of the peso three weeks ago, Mexican storekeepers have complained that American shoppers have been stripping their shelves bare.

"In effect, talks have just started on the subject with a view to implanting restrictions on the movement of basic products across the border," Mexican Commerce Department spokesman Jose Lara Torres said in a telephone interview Friday.

Torres said there was good will on both sides and the talks appeared "to have no difficulty." He declined to give details.

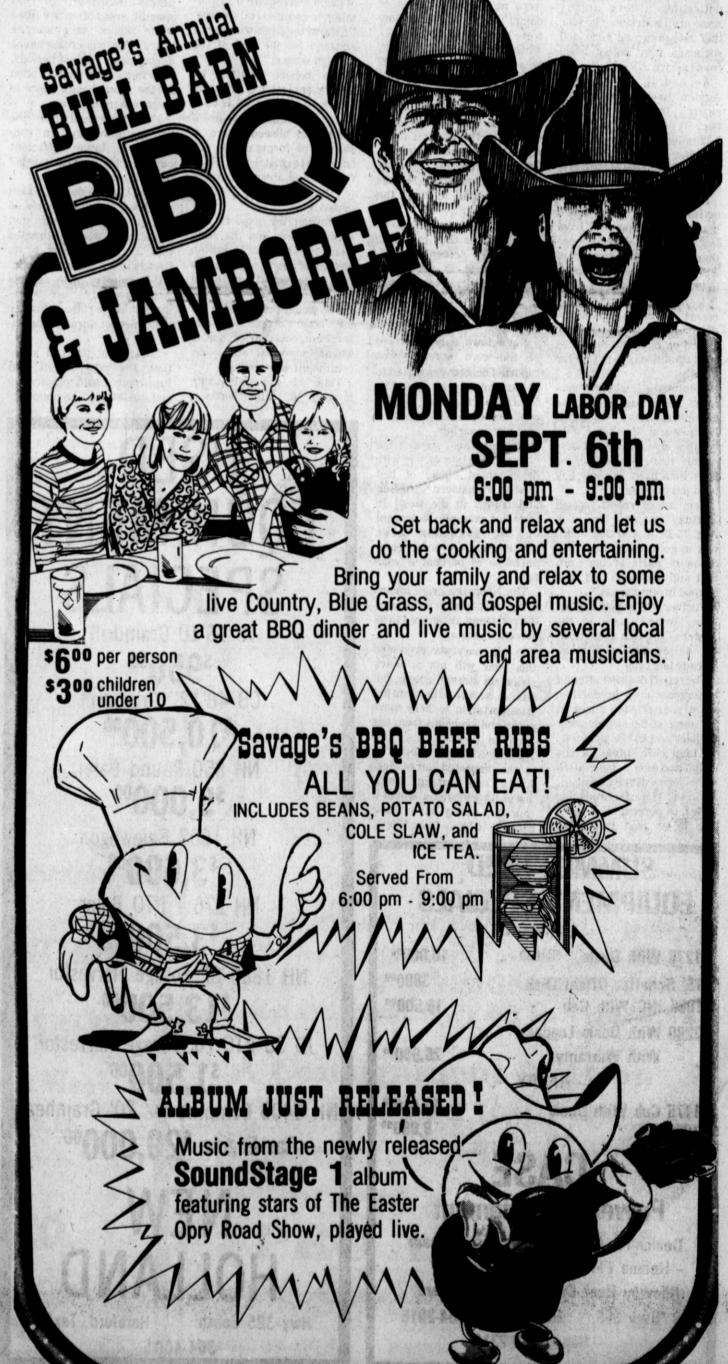

Another Mexican source. who requested anonymity, said the dwindling consumer items are sugar, cooking-oil, crackers, cornmeal and flour, pastas, tortillas, canned goods, eggs, salt, rice, bread, soaps and detergents and may include gasoline and diesel-oil.

"The idea is for Mexican customs agents to stop Americans from taking these items out of the country, and for U.S. Customs to cooperate on the other side by putting up posters and otherwise informing Americans of the new regulations," he said. The peso devaluation Aug. 5, the second in a year, effecPreneed Arrangements A Protection for Everyone

Chilly weather gets hot looks with Kari Maddox wearing cherry cargo shorts pulled over royal blue tights and cherry leg warmers. A matching corduroy vest by Pep is worn over a rugby stripe t-shirt in cherry, royal blue and jade green.

Shirly can't lose in an outfit by Willi Smith. The three-quarter pants topped with a raglan sleeved blouson is in old favorite -- 100 percent cotton denim. Khaki knee socks and navy flats are a kick, too.

The prairie is cold in winter, but the look itself is warm. Barbara Fong layers a multi-color wool plaid prairie skirt by Ann Stevens by adding a red wool Outlander sweater and a navy tabard. Bone toned hose and navy pumps complete an outfit that's going places.

Old and New Styles Good Fashion Picks

School starting, football games, and cooler breezes make a gal want to start wearing new fall clothes even before the weather really gets chilly.

Styles for this season include classics and a few new ideas taken from the old.

The popular prairie skirt has been updated for winter simply be being made of wool; walking shorts in tweed keep a sporty, but warm look; the mini-skirt makes a comeback in perky colors and comfortable knits; the Santa Fe look is put into fall colors; and, borrowed from the men, tuxedos are "in" for women's party wear.

The streamlined business suit is always in style and the leotards and leggings worn by dancers for years are out of the studio and into the streets.

Here's a quick look at what's new in town for this season.

Stepping out in style, Kari can party in a jazzy tuxedo by Enchante. The black corduroy jacket and black cotton vest (don't forget the bowtie!) are worn over a tucked white cotton blouse. Pin striped corduroy pants have a cumberbund waisthand

Coming up into the world, Shirly McCulloch has the Santa Fe look in fall shades of purple, green and red. Her brushed cotton two-piece by hirshies is dressed up with ribbed green hose and red pumps with bows.

Campus clothes have class when Sharon wears gray tweed walking shorts and a white dressy blouse. A Nordic design cardigan in gray, black and white warms up the outfit, accented with a maroon herring bone scarf and gray pinstripe knee socks by Espirit de Corp.

It's in the pocket easy for Barbara, wearing a sweater knit mini-skirt, top and leggings by East Side Clothing. Gold, maroon and turquoise print on a black background makes fun-time fashion when snazzed up with black patent shoes.

Wedding Vows Spoken in Garden Setting

The garden of the E.B. ouse was the setting for the marriage of Miss Beth Frye and Mitch Guinn Saturday afternoon. Doug Manning, retired pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated at the services held in the gazebo, which was decorated with hanging baskets of Boston ferns, yellow mums and English ivy.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Frye of 144 Liveoak. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Guinn of 105 Ave. B.

Sandra Fairweather was maid of honor and Mark Walton was best man. The bride's neices, Terri and Traci Reiter, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Reiter, were flower girls.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a fulllength poly organza gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and short puff sleeves. Embroidered net trimmed the neck, bodice and sleeves of the gown.

A satin sash complimented the waistline in which a fulllength skirt fell into a chapellength train. Both the skirt and train were edged in embroidered net.

A picture hat of white chiffon completed the bridal ensemble. She carried a cascade of European white roses, clusters of white daisies, stephanotis and baby's breath laced with white picot ribbon and lace with greenery

As good luck pieces, the bride wore a pearl necklace belonging to her sister, Anne Reiter, and a blue garter worn by another sister, Janet Welty, of Amarillo, at her wedding.

The bridesmaid was attired in a gathered floor-length gown of yellow dotted Swiss with short puffed sleeves. The round neckline was accented with a ruffle and a satin sash

IOWA CITY, IOWA, - The 1982-83 edition of the College Planning - Search Book, just published by The American College Testing Program, helps students, parents, and counselors organize and simplify the task of making plans for college.

This unique and comprehensive college guide which has sold nearly half a million copies since it was introduced in 1975- is actually two books in one: a college planning workbook and a college resource book.

The Planning Section presents eight "Steps for Successful College Planning," a practical approach to exploring, comparing, and selecting colleges.

This section helps students answer typical questions "How can I find the right college for me?" "How do I apply for financial aid?" It contains logs, outlines, and worksheets to help students chart their progress as they move through the planning process.

Aids in Selections, Comparisons

In a compact readable format, the Search Section displays up-to-date facts supplied by more than 3,000 twoyear and four-year institutions. In a matter of minutes, readers can compare colleges in terms of size, costs, majors available, student characteristics, and other important factors.

The 1982-83 College Planning - Search Book is available from ACT Publications, P.O. Box 168, Iowa City, Iowa 52243. Students can also order the book when they register for the ACT Assessment. The price is $6, postpaid.

Specialist Considers Traits Of Successful Families

COLLEGE STATION -Handling the ups and downs of every day living seems to be easier for some families than others, says Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

What makes one family more capable or successful than others?

Taylor says that research studies in the past 10 years have identified several common traits among many successful families.

"Members are united; they are all working toward the same goals. They value their family ties and spend time ATTENTION same goals. They value their working and playing together, getting to know each other better," Taylor

Additionally, she says, within strong and successful families, there is a respect for individual differences, autonomy, separateness and independence.

"Individuals are encouraged to develop personal competencies and skills through independent pursuits, rather than the family doing everything together and stifling creativity. In united families, there is a feeling of both togetherness and separateness," Taylor says.

Successful families also have definite, clear values that are known to their children. "These values become part of the family's way of life as they are examined, discussed, practiced and altered when necessary. A basic set of common values provides directions for dayto-day decisions confronting family members, "Taylor

In successful families, parents assume the role of Facing teacher and model and take their responsibilities seriously. Most of these parents have high self-esteem and tend to build self-respect and selfconfidence in their children. These parents also trust their children and expect to be as important to their children as their children are to them

problems realistically and openly is another trait of successful families. They exhibit optimism and are flexible in looking for and trying solutions to problems, the specialist says. They seem to be the most capable of adapting to crisis situations.

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Executive Director Special thanks to all of the volunteers that participated in the Jubilee events this past week. The Swim-A-Cross was held Thursday at the Elk's Lodge pool and Friday at the City Pool.

Swimmers were Ruth Romero, Eileen Buhunin, Maria Tamez, Ethan and Valerie Burelsmith, Dalene York, Earlene Cook, and Mitchell and Wesley Taylor.

Craig and Susie Bainum, Sally Walker and Mary Jane Burrus of the Disaster Team competed in the chili cookoff, and the Uniformed Volunteers manned the chili dog booth at the park. Those volunteers were Lottie Wertenberger, Mildred Brown, Ruth Romero, Alice Gilleland, Hattie Gallagher, Wert Hope Torres, Wertenberger, Dale Henson, Bertha Dettmann, and Audine Dettman.

Jake and Ruth King drove the van in the parade. Thanks, again, to everyone who helped.

The Family Health and Home Nursing class will begin in October. This class is for anyone interested in the health of their families or friends. The class will teach basic principles of home nursing, illness, threats to health and life and what to do about it and how to stay healthy.

Please call the office for further information about this class.

Ann Landers

Seek Treatment at Once

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old high school senior. A few weeks ago my boyfriend told me I might have VD. He took me to a free clinic at the public health department where they don't even use names, just numbers.

I was scared out of my wits and wanted to leave, but a friendly nurse who noticed how nervous I was called my number before I could get out of there. She looked about Mom's age and was very kind and friendly and made it easy for me to ask questions. She answered them all and gave me some booklets to read.

After I saw the doctor that same nurse put her arm around me and said if there was something I didn't understand I could phone her. She then gave me her telephone number. That woman really made me feel that someone cared. I will never forget her.

I now know that VD must be taken care of by a doctor. It will not go away on its own. If it isn't treated, it will only get worse and cause some terrible things-even death.

I hope this letter will enocurage others who think they may have VD to go and get treatment. When I asked my boyfriend how come he went to the health department, he said, "I read about it in Ann Landers' column two years ago." So thanks from both of us. We owe you a lot.-A Girl In Little Rock

DEAR GIRL: I am glad you wrote to tell your story. It gives me another chance to urge my readers, if they suspect there is any chance of VD, to see a doctor at once. If you don't have a doctor, look in the phone book under "board of health." Call for details and ask if an appointment is necessary.

Don't be ashamed. VD is sickness. No one will judge you or give you a lecture on morality. The only concern is to make you well. And it's almost always free.

DEAR ANN: I don't express myself very well, but I am begging you to print my

NEW BOOKS AVAILABLE THIS WEEK: Novels of love and adventure head the list of new books available this week at the library. "Western" by Frank Yerby is a saga of the Great Plains.

The Old West lives again in Frank Yerby's stirring, passionate saga of Ethna Lovejoy, Harvard-educated Massachusetts Yankee who travels west to Kansas in 1866 to become a homesteader and Anne Jeffreys, the women he meets on the way and mar-

Ethan's intelligence and inventiveness bring him an early, deceptive success, but only after many lean years of struggle and tragedy is he able to enjoy it. Ethan is haunted and obsessed by the brother he was forced to kill during the Civil War and by love for Nora Curtiss, a young Kansas schoolgirl.

"Western" is a tale of love. honor and revenge which Yerby weaves in his inimitable style. His canvas is as broad as the prairie itself. His characters are vivid and varied - a gallery of the farmers, card sharks, blacksmiths, saloon keepers, and women who tamed the Great Plains.

"Home of the Brave" by Joel Gross also heads the list of new books available this week at the library. Gross has also written two bestsellers entitled "The Books of Rachel' and "Maura's Dream." "Home of the Brave" is a novel of the American spirit and of the men and women who struggled, fought, loved, and built a great nation.

First, we meet Virginia Taylor, a high-spirited indentured servant and John Colabackwoodsman who rescues her from virtual slavery. England wilderness of 1636, become lovers, and found a home, Safe Haven, on the Connecticut shore. Throughout their lives we follow the course of American history with flesh-and-blood characters alive to romance, ambition, and love of family. Other new books available this week at the library include "While Paris Danced" by Patricia Wright, which is a

A third place award went to the committee for a state report of work in family relations, which keyed on the problem of teenage pregnancy.

The membership and leadership committee, under direction of Mrs. Arvilla Neal of Kerville, received a third place award for special leadership efforts which addressed the need of visually handicapped men and women in Kerr County.

Goal of the project was to improve the quality of their adapted homemaking skills and assist them in leading a happier, more independent life. The award also reflected membership expansion through organization of new clubs and study groups.

Special recognition also went to a number of Texans who have been active in club work for 50 or more years.

Mrs. Suzy Jansky of Freeport, association district director for Extension District II, represented Texas in a two-day legislative workshop at the national con-

Scouts Return From Colorado Backpacking Trip

Boy Scout Troop 52, spon-sored by the First United Methodist Church, recently returned from a backpacking trip along the Continental Divide in Southern Colorado. Nine boys and three adult leaders made the trip, which covered approximatley 30 miles of trails in five days. Included in the adventure were Michael Foster, Chris Hinger, Jimmy Gowdy, Cory master Bud Thomas and

Fox, Jay Beene, Rick Alley, Shaun Moore, Brian Thomas, Steven Sims; Assistant ScoutCraig Hinger; and Scout-master Neal Lemons.

The group's first campsite was at Trailhead above Wolf Creek Pass, approximately 11,000 feet above sea level. The following day they hiked nine miles to Archuletta Lake near Timberline, at about 12.000 feet.

"To hike nine miles with a full pack after only 18 hours to get used to the altitude is a real character builder," noted Lemons. "The physical fitness program for the trip paid off."

nearby Mount Hope (12,827 feet) while the other boys relaxed and fished at Archulette Lake.

The boys hiked seven miles to Beaver Meadows the following day and to Hot Springs on the West Fork of the San Juan River, (another seven miles) the next day, enjoying the hot mineral baths that evening.

The final day, the boys hiked seven miles to a campsite near the junction of the West Fork of the San Juan River and Wolf Creek.

There was only one injury on the trip. One of the scouts hurt his foot and a horse was brought to carry him. The injury did not prove to be a serious one.

Each scout carried his personal gear plus his share of the food supply and tents. Food was pepared by the boys and consisted mainly of freeze-dried items supplemented with trout and wild strawberries, raspberries, and huckleberries.

A high adventure trip of this nature is being planned as an annual event in the Boy Scout's outdoor program, which already includes 5 or 6 two and three day campouts. a week-long summer camp at Camp Don Harrington near Amarillo, and a week-long scool spring break super trip, featuring a week of canoeing

Ice Extravaganza

High-flying Richard Ewell, U.S. Junior Men's Champion, astounds audiences with his dynamic performance in Ice Capades' all-new revue,"Light up the Ice." Ice Capades comes to the Amarillo Civic Center Sept. 23-26 for three evening performances and three matinees.

Knits Are Right For Active Youngsters

NEW YORK (NEA) -Knits have always been right for active youngsters, and now they've taken on such fashion assets as cotton-acrylic fleece, ethnic themes, the jogging suit, the rugby-striped soccer shirt and even the new mini, or "skimp."

All these themes appear in the fall Health-tex collection, one of the largest, and usually rather conservative, knit collections for children. Pre-teens will love the longtorso dress, rib-knit in the blue bodice, with the gathered skirt of reverse fleece striped in hyacinth and rose. Health-tex also knits coordinated separates in jacquard fleece, with a ruffled-shoulder top, a yoke-waist miniskirt and a jaunty knicker, with Scandinavian-type

At Today's Child, Carol Mercado designs knit separates to wear together or apart. The knit tunic, stripe-banded around the knee-length hem, with pushup striped sleeves and striped turtleneck yoke, makes a skimp in itself. The soft knickers are attached to striped legs that look like tights or can be pushed up.

At Garanimals, there's a whole collection of tops knit like sweaters, styled like blouses. A pink knit with short puffed sleeves is pin-tucked below the lace-ruffled neck, a blue pointelle-knit top with rib-cuffed short sleeves and ribbed hem, has a ruffled lace collar, and a third style is in a lace-trimmed sprig print, with a drawstring peplum and sweetheart neckline.

Fall children's outfits can be all-knit or knits combined with other fabrics, such as sturdy denim pants with embroidered, ruffled knit anywhere, winging out from shoulders, running up and down, edging necklines and yokes, and often knit themselves. When pants are knit, they're usually in jogging style, with ribbed cuffs or

Ice Capades Comes to Amarillo Next Month

Ice Capades celebrates with a festival of lights in their dazzling new ex-travaganza, "Light up the Ice," opening Thursday, Sept. 23 through Sunday, Sept, 26 at the Amarillo Civic Center for six shows.

Opening the show with all the glitter of a glamorous Broadway opening night and the excitement of a Hollywood premiere, the Ice Capettes and Ice Cadets will "Light up the Ice" with a brilliant balance of exciting skating and theatrical effects. Spotlights illuminate the ice and focus on the unique skating talents of Tommy Miller.

For kids, Ice Capades brings to life "Alice at the Wonderland Ball," an adaptation of the fabled fantasyland of Lewis Carroll. Through the looking glass steps Alice, into Danceland, where she meets the Queen of Hearts, the White Rabbit, the Mad Hatter and all the storybook characters of the famous fairytale.

Featuring Carrie Rugh as Alice, and the Corps de Ballet as giant playing cards, Ice Capades lives up to its reputation for presenting beauty and the best in live entertainment.

A feeling of frosty fantasy is fashioned by Jennifer Eckman as the Crystal Star. Robert Wagenhoffer as the Comet, Tony Paul and Terry Pagano as the Space Visitors as well as glacial gods and goddesses in luminescent silver and turquoise space creations in "Journey to the Ice Age."

From the future to the past. Ice Capades takes a musical trip to the 40's, 50's and 60's in "Juke Box Jamboree." Jiven' gals and guys get the joint a -jumpin' with up-beat skating to the lively tunes of yesteryear. Ice Capades is 'at the hop' with the world's largest jukebox and dancers strutting atop a stack of 78's.

"Juke Box Jamboree" generates a display of exciting skating by Ice Capades' stars Richard Ewell, Judy Shaull and the adagio artistry of Tony Paul and Terry Pagano.

With the enthusiasm and skill of drum majors and majorettes, the Ice Capettes and Ice Cadets are assembled for "Precision on Parade." With the excitement of a passing parade, the Corps de Ballet cheers the entrance of U.S. National Junior Champion Carrie Rugh. Viola! For a breathtaking finale, Ice Capades presents the enchantment of "Paris by Night." Stalk the star-lit streets of the magic city; gaze on the twinkling lights of the Eiffel Tower; and, capture the fantasian flight of a flock of doves as they soar to the Arc de Triomphe.

The exciting new pair team of Frank Sweiding and Beth Flora take us on a "Paris Holiday" and the entire cast of Ice Capades is on hand for a special 'Au Revoir."

Providing comedic counterpoise throughout the show is the slap-stick humor of those capering clowns Biddy and Baddy. One of the newest members of the Ice Capades family is World Champion juggler Danny Rosen, who is sure to delight audiences, and Tommy Miller's brand of comedy will definitely leave the audiences in stitches

Tickets for the newest edition of Ice Capades will be available when the Amarillo Civic Center Box Office Opens on Monday, Aug. 30. Prices are $6.50-$7.50-$8.50 with substantial discounts for youths and senior citizens at certain performances. For more information, call

Fun Fashions for School

NEW YORK (NEA) They used to say you had to put youngsters into jeans because that's all they would wear. Now children's designers have found the secret of getting the small fry into real clothes. You make them fun, like dressing up in things found in an attic on a rainy day. Back-to-school fashions include many of these costume ways to dress. Buster Brown brings back the oldfashioned suspender jumper, in navy corduroy, with a demurely sprig-printed ruf-fled blouse. From colonial times, they take their brown poplin knee breeches and flounce-hemmed tunic top.

An entirely modern fun clothes look is influenced by Norma Kamali, a designer still avant-garde enough to be something of an exotic in adult fashions, but apparent-ly a natural for children. The look is seen mostly in 7-14 sizes, such as Carol Mercado's Creslan sweatshirt fabric separates for Today's Child, in gray striped with magenta, teal or black. Vertical ruffling edges both sides of the top, while the gathered mini skirt is hem-flounced.

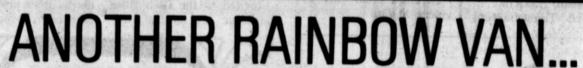

Leon Max goes even further with a Kamali-style triple-layered look for preteens, starting with a biascut mini-dress, over legwarmer tights, and under a wrap jacket with rope sashing. John Henry adapts the look for smaller girls by simplifying it to a jade floral straight skimp and matching leg warmers.

Western, or "prairie" looks continue strong in the fun clothes category. With leather so popular, but rather expensive for children's fashions, designers are using a polyurethane look-alike, as in Youngland's prairie skirt and vest, with a Victorian-style print blouse, all for pre-teens. Leatherlike accents appear on country styles, such as the black leather patch pockets on red corduroy overalls at Yves St. Laurent for Girls. A red and black checked flannel shirt goes with the overalls. Classics start with Florence Eiseman, who sets the standard with clean-cut silhouettes comfortable for a child to wear, and such favorites as jumpers, dresses pleated from shoulder to hem and cardigan sweaters with bright applique trims. Her plaids are authentic tartans - Princess Margaret Rose, Ancient MacNeil, Erskine and Royal MacBeth are this year's choices, in an easy-care wool blend. They're used for a tuckedfront jumper, front-pleat skirt and such pants news as knickers and shorts.

Garanimals also likes classics, in a collection large enough to include fun fashions, too. All kinds of jeans and classic pants mix with simple, striped knit tops or fun prairie-style

Oilman Out to Save Endangered

By PHILIP BRASHER Associated Press Writer

THE PERSON NAMED OF THE PE

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) A battered yellow jeep bounces along the road, winding through hilly, lush fields where an experiment is planned to save one of the world's most magnificent and seriously endangered beasts - the black rhinoceros.

At the wheel is Tom Mantzel, a tanned, balding Fort Worth oilman whose hobby encompasses this unusual 1,500-acre spread.

"Close your eyes and you would think you were in Africa," a passenger observes. The lay and climate of the land an hour's drive south of Fort Worth are considered similar to terrain and temperature in central and southern Africa.

A dozen species of endangered and rare wildlife. about 600 animals in all, roam the refuge: Arabian oryx, addax from North Africa and water buck from East Africa. Fallow deer, sable antelope, axis deer, aoudad, red stag sponsored by the African Fund for Endangered Wildlife to raise money for barbecue are several hundred moneyed and animalloving Texans, who Mantzel hopes will donate enough money so he can fly two to four pairs of rhinoceroses from Africa to Texas. The fund predicts the black rhinoceroses will be extinct at the end of the decade. Because of extensive hunting, their numbers have dwindled from 200,000 10 years ago to fewer than 20,000 today, the group says.

Poachers kill the huge animals for their horns, treasured in the Middle East as material for carved dagger handles and in Asia for grinding into a medicinal powder.

An eight-pound black rhinoceros horn brings $2,500 to a poacher and 10,000 percent more when carved or ground up, says Julia Harte. director of fund-raising for the New York-based wildlife

"You have game rangers that make $60 a month, so when a black rhino walks by, you can see the incentive to kill it," she said.

Mantzel's project is ambitious - capturing and flying out the animals is expected to cost more than $100,000 - and the rewards will not be immediate, he

The rhinos eventually will be bred and some of their offspring sold or traded to zoos.

"We're talking about twoand-a-half years until we get back any offspring," Mantzel said. "They'll be putting us in a pine box when we have herds...it's a project that will Mantzel's is the first such project, said Ms. Harte.

The black rhino "is the (most) endangered animal on the African continent," she added. "In the 1970s over half the rhino population was killed. The black rhino fared even worse. It's been estimated the nine of 10 were killed."

Mantzel has declined to discuss details of his project. African governments might demand more money for the. animals if they know how much he plans to spend or might refuse to release them if angered by publicity, he

Ms. Harte said the group hopes to raise the $100,000 from the fund-raisers at Glen Rose and in Houston and San Antonio. A fourth is scheduled for San Francisco.

An Italian truck manufacturer, Iveco, is underwriting the benefits - $15,000 for the Glen Rose barbecue alone and is building two custom trucks that will eventually transport the animals from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport to the ranch after they arrive from Africa, Ms. Harte said.

Mantzel plans to fence off up to 300 acres for the rhinos. They will be separated to prevent in-breeding. He is developing a herd of the Grevy's zebra in the same

The 35-year-old Texan is vice president of marketing for the American Quasar Petroleum Co. of Fort Worth, a job he said finances what is now a $50,000-a-year operation at the ranch.

Profits from selling the nimals are turned back into the ranch, but many of their offspring are not sold. Mantzel trades the young for new pairs he can crossbreed or for different species.

Now he is confident his new venture will succeed.

"There are a great many obstacles, politically, monetarily and otherwise," he said. "But unless we approach them we won't know whether we can overcome them."

Woodsman's Lifestyle Took its Toll on Him

By JAY JORDEN Associated Press Writer

HILLSBORO, Texas (AP) Self-styled woodsman Henry Burton Merrill was described as one of the handsomest men in Texas and a champion rodeo rider who married the daughter of a district judge.

But when Merrill was arrested by sheriff's officers on murder charges this month, the bearded hunter was caked in dirt and wore tattered clothing. He had been fighting gangrene in one leg.

Friends said Merrill liked to trade hunting stories and drink beer with them around a campfire after a day of leading them to his favorite Brazos River fishing holes.

But then something inside the 52-year-old recluse snapped and he began to fight with his drinking buddies. The skeletons of two of them were found buried this month less than 200 feet from his openair campsite.

Merrill, who had lived off mostly what he could hunt and trap, showed signs that his lifestyle had taken a toll on him when he appeared before a justice of the peace in Hillsboro, southeast of his isolated river camp.

His unkempt hair and the scar from a nasty wound he had received when a chainsaw slipped belied the fact that Merrill once was a prominent Johnson County citizen.

But sheriff Brent Button said Merrill served time in prison for stealing a saddle and riding gear. That's when his personality began to change, he said. Merrill was divorced and became a her-

Hill County sheriff's officers and Texas Rangers, acting on an anonymous tip. made their grisly discovery more than 10 feet deep in an abandoned water well.

One of the bodies was still dressed in decaying clothing and boots, said Justice of the Peace R.F. "Skinner" Wallace of Hillsboro. Diggers also found a skeleton resting in a fetal position, along with some animal bones.

"One of the bodies looked pretty well intact still," Whitney Justice of the Peace Leonard Webb agreed. "I'd say it had been there two years. The clothing and all was still intact. The other was just bones."

County District Attorney Dan Dent said that Tommy Rogers, in his 40s, of Cleburne had been shot in the back, in the side of his neck and perhaps in the heart. Rogers, a used car salesman, was the brother of a Cleburne attorney.

Another man, 37-year-old Jerry Van Pendley of Cleburne, was arrested at a Waco hospital and charged with murder in connection with Rogers' death.

The other victim, Bobby Carroll Walker, 32, a Rio Vista construction worker, also had been shot, Dent said. Their remains, which had been prey to scavengers, were found in sand beneath tin cans, brush and other garbage near the bottom of the 30-foot-deep well, said Wallace.

It took sheriff's officers part of two days to recover the remains, which were then sent to a forensic laboratory at the Dallas County medical examiner's office for analysis and positive identification.

Rogers and Walker, who had been reported missing by their families, were identified by medical and dental records supplied to pathologists.

Neighbors in the isolated Hill County community of Blum, six miles southeast of the well, said they could not picture the soft-spoken Merrill as being capable of murder. But he was known throughout the county for his unconventional lifestyle.

"It's real strange," said Wallace "To my recollection, there's never been anything else like this in the history of Hill County. I've heard of it in other places, but not here."

One of Merrill's fishing companions, Delbert Pool, said he couldn't believe two other friends of the hermit could have been killed.

"The idea scares me to death," Pool said, sitting by rill used to drink beer.

He said Merrill recently met with him on the same porch steps.

'Burton Merrill has always been a friend to me ... He never acted like he wanted to come up against me," Pool said as he recalled the three years in which the two fished together.

In fact, Merrill often supported himself by selling his catch and trapping animals in the rough brush country owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that served as overflow land for the river.

"Money was just no factor to him ...," Pool said. "If he had money, he would just spend it on beer and snuff, and then he'd be broke again. He'd shoot his food - rabbits, squirrels, quail ... He was a hermit."

Judge Webb got to know Merrill through friends who said he offered to give them some pointers on hunting beaver.

"I had seen him and talked to people who knew him pretty well," Webb said. "He was pretty well known in this community and close friends of mine had been to his place. Prior to his divorce, he was very well regarded and prominent."

Merrill moved to a delapidated seven- by 12-foot

Folks called the shanty the "chicken house."

Merrill "had five or six campsites all along the Brazos River," said Wallace. "But the place he spent the winter in was the chicken house. I think that's what it used to be before he moved into it and trapped."

The hunter was arrested last February on charges that he had stolen $10,000 worth of furs from a trader in Brown County, said Wallace. He is scheduled to be tried Sept. 7 on a felony theft charge.

"When I arraigned him on the charge, I found that he had cut himself earlier with a chainsaw," said Wallace. "The saw went right through his overalls above his right knee, and he had not treated it at all.

"The sheriff took him to the hospital so he wouldn't lose his leg, and I had to leave the courtroom and go down there to arraign him because he couldn't walk then," the judge said.

In the latest court apparance, Merrill's forearms were covered with dirt, his grey beard was untrimmed and his thick, black hair was uncombed, Wallace said. Merrill said he couldn't afford a lawyer and asked Wallace to appoint one.

His appearance was different from the man friends said Merrill once was. "They tell me he used to be one of the handsomest men in BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) - Ted Chabasinski was 6 years old when doctors clamped electrodes to his temples, and jolts of electricity sent him into convulsions. They did it about 20 times over a period of weeks and then locked him away in a mental hospital for 10 years.

Chabasinski doesn't think he was crazy. He thinks his treatment was. Now an articulate, 44-year-old activist for mental patients' rights, he has authored what may be the nation's first ballot initiative aimed at banning electroconvulsive therapy, or ECT.

The Berkeley municipal vote is an outgrowth of a nationwide movement, led by former mental patients and some psychiatrists, protesting alleged psychiatric abuse of unwilling patients.

Advocates of the ban say it would halt a widely used technique that allegedly burns the brain and damages the memories of helpless patients.

Leading psychiatrists deny that the therapy, also called electroshock, causes brain damage or long-term memory loss. They say banning it could leave thousands of chronically depressed, even suicidal patients without help.

The Coalition to Stop Electroshock collected about 2,500 signatures - they needed 1,400 - to place the issue on Berkeley's Nov. 2 ballot. It would make anyone performing the shock treatments subject to six months in jail and a not sure why the convulsions $500 fine.

"I think it's a very sympathetic issue," Chabasinski said. "Basically, they're going ahead and causing brain damage just to subdue peo-

But leading psychiatric organizations disagree sharp-

"It's a very important procedure in psychiatry, sometimes life-saving, and one of the most effective treatments for depression," said Dr. Howard Gurevitz, president of the California Psychiatric Association.

"It's an unusual kind of thing to have a public initiative about," said Dr. Robert Campbell, vice president of the 27,000-member American Psychiatric Association. "We think it's inappropriate."

Gurevitz said he's certain that doctors and patient groups will organize to fight the measure. "I think we certainly should respond to it," echoed Campbell.

Electroconvulsive therapy involves a quick jolt of 70 to 150 volts in order to create a convulsion similar to an epileptic fit. Each patient generally receives six to 12 treatments.

Patients are given drugs to eliminate pain and muscle spasms, which before the advent of muscle-relaxing drugs were sometimes so strong that patients broke bones.

DIAMOND MYSTERY -

Gregory Harrison

"The Zertigo Diamond Caper," a mystery drama is now in production in southern California for broadcast during the 1982-83 season as a special presentation on the "CBS Children's Mystery Theater." Adam Rich stars as a blind 12year-old who helps solve the theft of the world's largest diamond. Jane Elliot and David Groh co-star.

NUKE AFTERMATH Jason Robards will star in "The Day After," a fourhour "ABC Theater" presentation, which will dramatize the devastating effects of a nuclear attack on an American city. Robards will portray a physician who must offer aid and comfort to the wounded and dying following a nuclear attack. The drama will air during the 1982-83 season.

CANNON BLASTS -Dyan Cannon will star in

"Having It All," an ABC-TV movie to air during the upcoming season. She'll play a successful bicoastal fashion designer - who has a husband on both coasts. Her fun-filled double life begins to unravel as both men slowly and unwittingly set the stage for a joint meeting. The hubbies will be played by Barry Newman and Hart

Deadly wind

The cyclone that hit Darwin, Australia, on Christmas Day 1974 reached wind speeds of up to 160 mph. The storm killed 50 people and destroyed 90 percent of the city on Australia's remote north coast. An airlift evacuated half the 45,000 population.

Sean Connery is the mar-shall in "Outland," which will appear Sept. 2 on the Movie Channel. The film is about miners in a company town on Jupiter's third moon who suddenly become alternately homicidal, then suicidal.

The new federal marshall from Earth discovers that the reason for this violent behavior is that the mining company that owns the town has been secretly giving the miners a drug that allows them to do tremendous amounts of work before it drives them insane. The marshall must then confront the company, which controls everything on the moon including all the officials except him. Even the miners who depend on the company for obs refuse to help him. Connery does a good job as the marshall who must go it alone n this sort of outer space version of "High Noon."

Actually, Connery gets a little more help than Gary Cooper did in "High Noon." While Cooper went it alone because it was the right thing to do, Connery seems to be acting more out of stubbornness than a sense of justice. In any event, "Outland," with its non-comic book grittiness, is a welcome change from most of the new breed of sci-fi movies.

Metric System Faring Poorly

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) The metric system, a way of life in most of the world, could prove to be the Edsel of American measurement.

Because of a combination of industrial resistance, consumer dislike and public apathy, the meter appears to be running out.

It has been a "tremendous flop," says the former head of a state council set up to preach the system as the way of the future.

"People want to keep their quarts and gallons and that stuff," said Glenn Brown, first and former chairman of the Texas Metric System Advisory Council.

The 1977 Legislature set up the council to aid in a national effort to convert to metric. At its first meeting in December 1977 someone suggested council members should be briefed on the system so they "would not be put on the spot" with a quick question about how it worked.

As of Sept. 30, the federal equivalent of the board goes out of business. President Ronald Reagan, while thanking federa! board members for their efforts, realized Americans want little to do with the way most of the rest of the world measures things.

The state council is scheduled to remain in business until next August. But Charles Forester of Austin, a board member, expects it to "just about fade away."

"There was a real need a few years ago for a Metric Advisory Coencil because it did appear we'd be involved in the conversion process," said Forester. "I don't know what the reason is that it did go away. Maybe inflation. The American public had other things to think about." Forester said the main purpose of the council was to react to business questions about the metric system. Arlington Stadium (but not "There was nothing, basically, to respond to," said Forester, supervisor of weights and measures for the Texas Department of Agriculture. Brown said many industries - including the one he represents - found the cost of conversion prohibitive. Brown is executive vice president of the Dairy Products Institute of Texas, a metric resister.

"It's not worth all that ex-tra cost to the consumer at a Price, a member of the comtime when everyone is paying plenty for everything," he

William Nicol of Dallas, the current chairman, says the conversion is underway. He favors mandatory conversion. Chuck Newell of the Texas Industrial Commission, and the metric council's "staff," said there has been some conversion.

"Look on the shelves in your grocery store. Look at what you buy and how it's measured," he said.

Nicol said conversion-bylaw would go smoothly.

"Australia went mandatorily, cold-turkey metric and within six weeks everybody was completed converted and comfortable. It would go just as smoothly here if the United States ever had guts enough to do it," he Nicol and other metric backers say the big reason to convert is that most other nations - many of which do business with Texas companies - measure in metric.

"We're bitching about not being able to sell our products. It's because we're not metric. That's not the whole cause, but you don't try to talk to the Mexicans in English when you are trying to sell something. You have to speak Spanish," said Nicol, who is in the industrial scales

For $10 million, according to Nicol, the State Highway Department could put metric distances on road signs. But Ernest Kanak, supervising traffic engineer, says Texas motorists won't have to worry about making the conversion to metric signs.

"My guess is that it would not occur in Texas unless it was something that came about nationwide," he said.

As Nicol points out, the metric system has crept into some aspects of Texans' lives. The liquor industry has been quicker to convert than most. Metric gas pumps were popular in some parts of Texas for a while, but that popularity has faded.

Some athletic measurements have gone metric. The outfield walls at the Astrodome in Houston) show the metric distance from home plate.

Nicol is proud of the metric conversion in track and field, where the change was made to conform to the measurements in international competition.

But Clebune Price, University of Texas track coach, says it's been a failure, no matter how you measure it. "By 1985 or 1986 we'll be mittee that sets such rules for college track and field. "I just don't think people understand meters. I don't," he said. "I was on the committee when we voted to go to meters. I thought the whole country was going to meters. Obviously we're not."
