

Commission Ratifies Hall-Land Purchase

Architect's Sketches Studied at Meeting

By PAUL SIMS
 Managing Editor

The city commission got two proposals from an architect.

The mayor and city manager got some criticism.

And everyone got a guided tour.

It all happened in a special session Tuesday when the Hereford City Commission ratified the purchase of property bought last year for a new $600,000-plus city hall.

Architect Tommie Huckabee of Andrews, hired by City Manager Dudley Bayne to draw up plans for the new building, presented two sketches—dubbed Scheme 1 and Scheme 2—to commissioners.

Scheme 1 is for a one-story city hall with between 15,000 and 16,000 square feet—approximately three times as large as the two-level structure which has housed city offices for 52 years. The proposal calls for a total cost of $667,800, including architect and engineer fees of $37,800, of $667,800.

The city hall will be bought from revenue-sharing money allocated to the city by the federal government over the next few years. The city presently has approximately $221,000 in unused revenue-sharing money and expects at least another $200,000 by the time construction is supposed to begin in September.

Scheme 2 is for a one-level building with more than 17,000 square feet. The plan, if accepted by the commission, would result in a building costing $689,725, including architect and engineer fees of $39,000.

Both sketches examined by commissioners included a police station nearly four times as large as the 1,327 square feet not being used by the department.

Both sketches also included wheelchair ramps and easily-accessible public restrooms—two 1980 requirements of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for public buildings. The present city hall has neither ramps, public restrooms nor an elevator, another requirement of HEW for public buildings with more than one story.

Commissioner Emory Brownlow said it probably would cost as much to bring the present building up to federal standards as it would to build a new one.

Brownlow said he favors the construction of a new city hall but added that the commission may have been improper in purchasing land for the building last year with a vote.

"When was it authorized to buy this land? And was there never a purchase price authorized?" Brownlow asked.

Mayor Bartley Dowell read the minutes from the March 7, 1977 public hearing when the commission first discussed plans for a new city hall. The minutes did not include a vote of the commission authorizing the purchase of property between 3rd and 4th streets and Lee Street and Miles Ave.

"I don't see where it says the commission is going to build a city hall," Brownlow said.

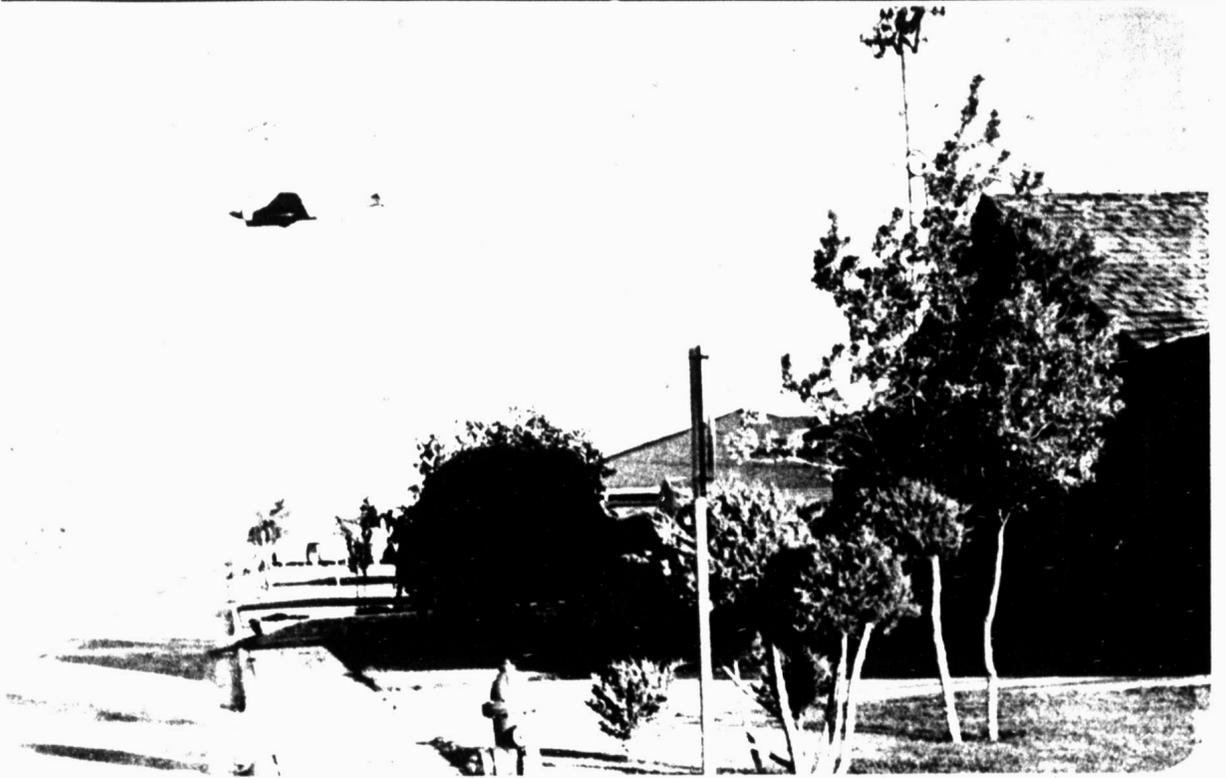

However, the minutes included the following sentence: "Sears (Mayor Jim Sears) said that since no one was present, the money should be used for a new city hall."

That portion of the minutes made reference to the fact that no one from the public attended the hearing to dispute the new building, even though the meeting had been advertised in the newspaper, as required by law.

"All four of the commissioners—and you were sitting right here at the end of the table—said that this is what we need to do," Dowell said to Brownlow.

"I don't think a commission has ever made a motion. It says in the minutes that money has been committed, but it doesn't say a vote was taken," Brownlow

Aerial War on Mosquitoes

Hereford residents awakened to the roar of an airplane engine early this morning, as Mosquito Control of the Southwest, a Plainview-based aerial operation, began to spray the city. The job was completed later today. The spraying service last week postponed flying over Hereford until today because of high morning winds. Mosquitoes, meanwhile, had become quite a problem inside the city after late May rains created numerous breeding grounds throughout the Panhandle. (Brand photo by Bob Nigh)

Bakke Earns Admittance to Med School

White Discriminated Against

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today ordered a California medical school to admit Allan Bakke, deciding that the school had illegally discriminated against him because he is white.

The court, in a splintered decision that yielded six separate opinions, ruled that the University of California's medical school at Davis is not barred from taking race into account in a future admissions program.

Bakke successfully sued the university after his application to the university's medical school at Davis was rejected in 1973 and 1974.

He charged that the medical school's special admission program which reserved 16 of the 100 openings in each entering class for "disadvantaged" students was really only an impermissible racial quota.

Under it, Bakke charged, less academically qualified blacks, Hispanics and Asian-Americans were admitted ahead of him.

Bakke, a 38-year-old civil engineer who lives in Sunnysvale, Calif., and works for the nation's space agency at the Ames Research Center in nearby Palo Alto, never had to prove that he would have been admitted if the school had not had a special admissions program.

The university conceded that it could not prove Bakke would have been excluded if the program had not existed.

A state trial court ruled that the special admissions program violated the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection and also the portion of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 that outlaws racial discrimination by institutions receiving federal funds.

The California Supreme Court upheld the trial court's ruling in favor of Bakke on the constitutional grounds only, choosing to ignore the federal law question.

Bakke's vigil has not been a lonely one. The ruling was anxiously awaited by civil rights leaders and constitutional scholars who claimed it could be the court's most important verdict on race relations since segregation was outlawed 24 years ago.

At stake, they said, might be the future role racial minorities play in American society as well as billions of dollars worth of programs in government, education and private business aimed at making up for past injustices.

Bakke's case, one of the most publicized ever to reach the nation's highest court, began in 1974 when he sued the University of California.

Rejected as an applicant to the university's medical school at Davis in 1973 and 1974, Bakke charged that he had been turned down solely because he is white.

He claimed that the university had

Plainview Shooting Probed

PLAINVIEW (AP) — The FBI, the Texas attorney general's office and a Hale County grand jury will all take part in an investigation of the fatal shooting of a Mexican-American man Sunday by a reserve sheriff deputy.

An FBI spokesman in Dallas said Tuesday that his agency joined the probe when asked by Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue to investigate the incident for possible civil rights violations.

Charles Cypert, suspecting a driving-while-intoxicated case, stopped a car driven by Tim Rosales at a rural intersection because it was missing two tires and was running on the wheel rims.

According to Tue, Cypert pulled his gun when he found a "taped pipe" in the car. The sheriff said Rosales bolted, and when Cypert caught him, the two struggled for the officer's automatic pistol, which discharged and killed Rosales.

Tue said a preliminary autopsy on the body of the 25-year-old Hale Center man revealed that the single fatal shot entered the right side of Rosales' head near the hairline and exited downward at the base of his skull.

Cypert, a six-year veteran reserve officer, has been suspended from duty pending an investigation and has been hospitalized for observation of a heart condition since the shooting.

"I don't have anything to say about it," Cypert said. "You'll have to contact the sheriff."

Reaction from Mexican-Americans has been swift.

Ruben Bonilla, executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said he asked Texas Attorney General John Hill to investigate the

Rioting Continues In Border Town

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Violence erupted again early today in this riot-torn border town as a group of students stormed Boys Town, a red-light district on the outskirts of Matamoros, burning one night spot and causing heavy damage to two others.

A few miles away, helmeted, machine-gun-wielding federal troops continued their vigil in the charred, debris-strewn site of a student riot Monday night that caused an estimated $2 million damage.

Police said only one person was injured in the Boys Town incident when a group of youths stormed the Golden Palace night club, ousted customers and set fire to the building.

As they fled, they hurled rocks, bottles and other items through the windows of at least two other night spots, police said.

Monday night's melee claimed three lives and injured 30 others. Two teenagers were gunned down as swarms of students mobbed the town plaza protesting the alleged beating death last week of a 15-year student who had been in police custody.

Three Matamoros police officers have been jailed in connection with the incident, but the students dragged Mayor Antonio Cavazos Garza into the plaza and demanded that Police Chief Emiliano Del

Shuval, Atkinson Honored

District Attorney Andy Shuval and assistant DA Schalan Atkinson Tuesday were given a going-away party, attended by approximately 100 persons who presented gifts to the parting officials.

Shuval has resigned, effective Saturday, after eight years as Deaf Smith County's prosecutor to become executive director of the Prosecuting Attorneys Coordinating Council in Austin.

Ms. Atkinson's resignation, effective Friday, will permit her to pursue a private law practice in Hereford.

"There are rumors going around that I'm leaving town, but they're not true," Ms. Atkinson said today. "More than likely, I'll be staying in my office here in Hereford."

Shuval received a painting of the Deaf Smith County Courthouse from those at the farewell party in the county library. Judges, attorneys and courthouse officials and employees comprised the biggest portion of the crowd.

222nd District Judge Wesley Gulley unveiled the painting by Charles Lyles.

County Judge Sam Morgan presented Ms. Atkinson a plaque of appreciation.

Shuval, who in his new position will direct the council's activities in improving the quality of prosecution in the state, was defeated in May's Democratic primary by attorney Roland Saul.

Saul was appointed this week by Governor Dolph Briscoe to fill out Shuval's unexpired term.

MRS. GLADYS BRALY

Gladys Braly Services Thursday

Following a lengthy bout with cancer, Mrs. Gladys Braly, 67, of 507 E. Third St., died last night in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Services will be conducted at 3 p.m. Thursday in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Bob Strice, associate pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

A resident of Hereford for twenty years, Mrs. Braly was born Sept. 29, 1910. She married Cecil Braly Feb. 23, 1935 at Paducah.

The couple came to Hereford from Childress in 1958. He was manager of the Western Union office here until he retired in 1971 after 50 years of service with the company. Mrs. Braly was employed for

Housewife Killed By Errant Bullet

IACOMA, Wash. (AP) - Peggy Ann McClain, who had worried about the safety of the streets around her suburban Parkland home, died in her own living room when a bullet tore through the front door on her 58th birthday. It was fired by a police officer during a shootout with a drug suspect outside.

"It was fast. We heard the noise, looked and shut the door," Mrs. McClain's husband, Sam, said Tuesday. A bullet penetrated the one-inch oak door and struck Mrs. McClain in the back.

"It's funny. Just the other day, she was telling a neighbor that you could no longer feel secure in Parkland," McClain said. "You didn't feel like you could go out and take a walk at night like you used to."

Mrs. McClain had spent a quiet evening in front of the television, celebrating her 58th birthday with her husband and son Saturday night.

Pierce County Sheriff George Janovich said Tuesday that ballistic tests showed the fatal bullet came from a .357-caliber revolver assigned to Deputy Richard Knabel.

"My mom's dead... over an $800 drug bust that became a full-scale war right on our street," said Dwight McClain, 34, who held his dying mother in his arms on their living room floor while police continued to fire at the fleeing suspect.

A Fort Lewis soldier, Spec. 4 Owen M. Arnett, 21, has been named in warrants charging deadly assault and the sale of controlled substances. He is still at large.

Princess Caroline To Marry Today

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) - Francois the Crafty, who disguised himself as a monk and conquered Monaco in 1297, had it easy compared with the left-out people still hoping for an invitation to the wedding of Princess Caroline.

All Caroline's Grimaldi ancestor had to do was pull down his hood, sneak through the gates and kill the guards with a sword hidden under his robe. It earned him the sobriquet Francois the Crafty.

Now 681 years later, his ghost may be chuckling as he watches Monaco's 80-man royal guard throw a tight cordon around the palace to drive away gate-crashers.

Caroline Grimaldi, 21, will marry Paris playboy-financier Philippe Junot, 38, in a civil ceremony Tuesday and a Roman Catholic religious service Thursday.

Palace authorities warned the 100 persons invited to the religious wedding and the 600 invited to a royal ball Tuesday night that their invitations would be examined closely before they are admitted.

Monaco's 300 policemen - an unusually large force for a 375-acre country with only 40,000 inhabitants, 4,500 of which are citizens - was deployed at every street corner.

Reliable sources said Grace was "harassed and worn out" by friends, would-be celebrities and professional snoopers appealing for reconsideration for a spot on the guest lists.

Aircraft have been cautioned to fly no lower than 4,900 feet above the palace during the wedding "just in case they contain photographers," said palace spokeswoman Nadia Lacoste.

Jackson Says Bill Has Little Chance

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., says a Senate-passed measure intended to prevent President Carter from boosting oil import fees probably will never become law.

But Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, says the damage to the administration's prestige abroad may already have been done.

The Senate's 49-39 vote on Tuesday to deny federal funds for an import fee program could seriously undermine the president's position at next month's economic summit meeting in West Germany, Jackson said.

Carter has indicated he may take direct action to raise the price of oil - possibly through a new import fee - if Congress continues to delay action on his 14-month-old proposal for a tax on domestic crude oil, which would have the same effect.

The Senate voted to strip Carter of that option by tacking the fund-blocking amendment by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., onto an appropriations bill for the Treasury Department which would handle the import fee program.

The Senate vote, Jackson said in an interview, "is a most unfortunate development at a time when our strongest allies have been raising questions about our will to make some sacrifices and cut down on imports."

20th-Century Fox To Sue Over Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The forces of 20th Century-Fox are facing those of Universal studios in a real-life U.S. District Court battle over "Star Wars."

Fox contends in a federal suit that Universal's upcoming ABC television series, "Battle Star Galactica," infringes upon its copyright of "Star Wars," the most profitable movie of all time.

The movie, first released on May 25, 1977, has grossed more than $216 million in the United States and Canada.

Fox seeks an injunction to bar MCA, its subsidiary Universal, and ABC from broadcasting the weekly series in September.

ABC plans to air a three-hour movie opening the "Galactica" space adventure series and follow it with a two-part show before going into the weekly series. Universal has said it will release the movie theatrically in foreign countries.

The Fox suit filed last Friday contends that "the defendants MCA and Universal have copied the Galactica feature from plaintiff 20th Century's copyrighted photoplay 'Star Wars.'" It asks the court to stop the theatrical release of the movie and the TV series.

"Galactica" has been touted as ABC's big new hit of the season. The three-hour movie cost a reported $7 million and the weekly budget has been reported as $1 million, which would be a record for television.

Lions to Induct Officers

Members of the Hereford Noon Lions Club will get together at 7:30 p.m. Thursday night at the Community Center to install officers for the coming year and to recognize the efforts of the men who served the club as officers within the past twelve months.

Buddie Evans will hand over the title of "Boss Lion" to Gayle Cotten at the "Installation Party," one of the few night-time meetings the club has throughout the year.

Other new officers to be installed include vice presidents Dickie Geris, John David Bryant, and Sid Shaw; secretary Nicks Fariss; treasurer Calvin Jones; Lion Tamers Speedy Nieman and Mark Andrews; Tail Twisters Bob Nigh and Temple Abney; and directors Tom Robinson and Don Hicks.

Besides Evans, outgoing officers include vice presidents Cotten, Charles Watson, and Dewitt Seago; secretary Nieman; treasurer Bryant; Lion Tamers Fariss and Tommy Bowling; Tail Twisters Shaw and Jones; and directors Geris and John Thames.

In addition to the new officers already named, Chuck Boyd and Ben Harris are carry-over directors for the club.

The new officers will have about a month before the Lions undertake their biggest project of the year in July. The club's annual carnival will be held on the Bull Barn parking lot July 24-29. Evans, as immediate past president, is chairman of the carnival.

Rotarian of the Year

Buddy Peeler, station manager at KPAN Radio, was named Rotarian of the Year during the Hereford Rotary Club's annual Ladies' Night and Installation Dinner Tuesday at Hereford Country Club. Peeler, a Hereford Rotarian for the last 10 years, is program chairman for the club. Also honored at the dinner were Jack Nunley and Roger Ruland who received pins for 22 and seven years perfect attendance. [Brand photo]

Riots

Toro also he fired. Del Toro submitted his resignation Tuesday morning but city officials refused to accept it. Instead, they agreed to suspend Del Toro pending the come of an investigation by State General Attorney Even Garza Mascorro into the student's death.

Neither Garza or Del Toro could be reached for comment late Tuesday.

A third death was reported from Monday night's violence when officials discovered charred remains in a judge's office in the city jail building.

U.S. Consul Francis Arenz said he talked with eight U.S. citizens who are being held in the jail. The Americans reported they were unharmed but said jail guards panicked and fired haphazardly when the turmoil began Monday night.

Jail official Antonio Perez Trevino said 10 prisoners escaped and four were injured during the fracas.

"It's Matamoros turn to catch hell," Arenz said, referring to recent similar violence in other northern Mexican towns.

A spokesman for Tamaulipas Gov. Enrique Cardenas Gonzales said the show of military force, combined with the suspension of Del Toro, apparently calmed the agitated students.

Local union members called for a general strike Tuesday to show support for the city administration. Some stores are closed but it was business as usual in sections of town popular with American tourists.

Several arrests were reported Tuesday night as looting continued in sections of downtown.

The marauding bands of students overturned a Brownsville reporter's unoccupied small car, shattering the windshield.

Some local observers said the violence was politically motivated, but Edmundo Lozano, the governor's spokesman, downplayed the significance of recent political problems in northern Mexico. He said the rioters apparently were more interested in looting.

"It's similar to what happened in New York. Once the crowd starts, madness," he said.

The spokesman also said officials recognized one of the riot leaders as a Communist from Monterrey.

"We consider there's a bunch of people that have made of this a profession. They are good. They know what they are doing," Lozano said.

"After the first stone was thrown, they exploded. Suddenly there were thousands of bricks ready to be used."

Officials were not overly concerned about a cache of weapons missing from the charred city jail. He said witnesses reported that many of the weapons were apparently taken by youths who did not know how to use them.

Officers Installed

newly-elected president and Julian Berry is outgoing treasurer. Not pictured are secretary Joe Kerr and treasurer Ken Rogers. Roger Ruland gave the program during the meeting, a talk on Hereford Rotary Club history. [Brand photo]

City Hall

Commissioner Dickie Geris agreed with Brownlow that "the commission should have voted."

Brownlow told Bayne, who was not present in the meeting last week when the questions were first raised concerning the land purchase. "I don't think it's your authority or Bartley's authority to say what we're going to pay for property."

The property in question cost $93,825. Bayne said, "If you had this question, why haven't you raised it before?"

Brownlow said he had received numerous calls lately asking him about the legality of the property purchase.

made him a victim of illegal and unconstitutional "reverse discrimination" by accepting less qualified minority applicants.

In 1969, one year after it opened its doors, the medical school launched a special program to "increase opportunities in medical education for disadvantaged citizens."

No whites have been admitted under the special program, although 245 asked to be considered. School records show that the program has accepted only blacks, Hispanic or Asian-Americans.

Bakke charged that the school's affirmative action program included his competing for 16 of the 100 seats open to first-year students each year he applied. A state trial court and the California Supreme Court agreed with Bakke. They said the school's program amounted an impermissible racial quota, and that Bakke would have to be admitted.

Now 38, Bakke has remained on the outside looking in. The Supreme Court postponed the effect of his victory while it considered the pros and cons of government's taking race into account while trying to help disadvantage minorities.

The Yolo County trial judge who first heard Bakke's case ruled that the school's "raceconscious" program viola-

"And I want to know why this particular architect?" he added.

"I've been here 22 years," Bayne said. "And I've never run over anyone or pushed anyone on the commission, especially over a $600,000 city hall. What I've done is exactly what I thought I was supposed to do."

Dowell said that "by a technical point, it wasn't done right. But we did—in good faith—what we thought was right."

Geris and Brownlow agreed that the commission should receive a state attorney general's opinion on what it should do to correct the matter. "We better get it done right when we do it,"

Brownlow said. City Attorney Earnest Langley told the commission it probably had two options—ratify the purchase of the property or disavow it, in which case Bayne would be responsible for any possible impropriety.

Brownlow made the motion to ratify the purchase, and the commission voted unanimously to do it.

During the meeting, Bayne guided those in attendance through City Hall, pointing out cramped quarters in the police station, leaky spots in the ceiling throughout the building and the absence of public restrooms.

shooting.

In a telegram to Hill Bonilla said, "Six Mexican-Americans have now been killed in West Texas in the last 13 months while under police custody... This epidemic of systematic denial of a person's civil rights cannot be tolerated any longer."

Tue said Rosales had a "knee-high police record," which was turned over to Texas Rangers.

A woman who declined to be identified said she witnessed the arrest from her home, but did not see the shooting.

"The policeman looked like he was trying to search him (Rosales)," she said. The 36-year-old Mexican-American woman said, "But the man didn't want to go to jail or to be searched. He kind of grabbed at the policeman's hands."

"The officer pulled his gun and grabbed him by the hair and put the gun to his head. But then he (Rosales) just kind of walked away, not ran. The officer put his gun up and it looked like he talked on the car radio."

"The man was coming to my house and I closed the door. I had so many kids in the house, you know... so I closed the door."

The woman said when she next came to the door, she saw Rosales' body sprawled in the corner of her yard.

Lapidary Demonstrations Staged in Henson Home

Members of Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club assembled Monday evening in the home of their club president, Dale Henson, for a working demonstration.

Henson demonstrated several lapidary techniques with the help of Sam Morgan, Cecil Lady and Jack Nunley. Members studied the method for preforming a cabochon (a precious oval cut rock), tumbling rocks, sawing polished rocks and other lapidary interests. Henson and Lady used their equipment for the demonstration and each member brought a lapidary project for discussion. The club dispensed with their normal business meeting in order to devote more time to the demonstration, however, there were several additional items which received attention.

A number of guests were introduced, including Mr. and Mrs. Tim Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Meyers of Canyon, Carrie Mae Doak, Henry Weddel and Roy Martin. All of the guests joined as club members during the meeting.

Also, a gift was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nunley in appreciation for their assistance during a recent trip to Lake Meredith. Plus, a letter of farewell was received from two members, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Williamson, who recently moved to Amarillo.

In addition to those already mentioned, members present for the recent demonstration included Messrs. and Mmes. Burt Brown, Preston Gee, Bud Cawthon, Jake King, Bud Newell, Julian Perrin, Weldon Roberson, Delbert Ruland, Garth Thomas, Wayne Elmquest and Baxter London. Also in attendance were Clarence Boots, Betty Rice, Becky Ruland, Eunnie West and Ruby Hickman.

The lapidary club's next meeting is scheduled July 24 in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Ann Landers Tyler Teen Writes

DEAR ANN: I am sick and tired of reading letters from people calling you names and complaining about something you printed. For example: The Sex Test.

For openers: You did not devise the Sex Test, nor did you endorse it. You merely printed an updated version which was submitted by three Dayton teenagers who felt you had an obligation to your young readers to let America know where they are coming from.

No one was forced to read the test or take it. Apparently loads of teens wrote to say you were some kind of creep because they scored badly.

These same kids call you "Mother" or "My Best Friend" until you give them advice they don't want to take. Then all of a sudden you are a kook, a nut or a dumbbell. To all those sourballs who griped, I'd like to say: If you don't like Ann's advice, keep quiet. Remember, you asked for it. -- Tyler Texas Teen

DEAR ANN: Thanks for your loyalty, but actually I don't get upset when readers disagree with me. Sometimes they are right, and when they are, I don't mind admitting it. Please read the next letter. It has an interesting twist to it.

DEAR ANN: I was sorry you let the cabal of dissenting mothers change your mind about bathing babies in the kitchen sink. You were right the first time and should have stuck to your guns.

In your first answer you cited the possibility of a baby accidentally turning on the hot water/faucet. Well, that's exactly what happened to my child when I bathed him in the kitchen sink. He was severely scalded and I'll never forgive myself. Next time don't be so quick to back off. Ann. -- San Antonio Mom

DEAR MOM: At least 30 mothers had the same experience and wrote to tell me about it. This is not a huge number, but enough so that I am printing your letter and repeating my original warning. Mothers! You wouldn't wash your dishes in the bathtub -- so why bathe the baby in the kitchen sink?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman who works in this rather small office loves to gossip. I really don't trust her because she seems to have so much to say about everybody. I've often wondered what she says about me behind my back. I have tried to avoid getting chummy with her but she has a way of getting people to like her whether they want to or not.

Yesterday I had a birthday. This woman came by my desk with a gift. I was so stunned, all I could say was "thank you." After I regained my composure I returned the gift unopened and told her I couldn't accept it. She asked, "Why?" I replied, "A gift should be given to a friend by a friend." She said, "Well, I'm your friend." I told her I didn't think of her that way.

Now I'm afraid I was a little rude. How can I patch this up? -- Second Thoughts On The Third Floor

DEAR SECOND: To refuse to accept a gift merely because you aren't especially fond of a person is a slap in the face. Nothing in your letter indicates that this co-worker ever did you any damage.

I think you should go back to that woman and apologize. In fact, you should bring her a gift and tell her if she hasn't returned yours you'd like to have it.

Kwahadi Indians Plan Performances

The public is invited to view the renowned Kwahadi Indian dancers, who have just returned from a 3,000 mile performing tour of seven states, in their summer ceremonials during July.

Craig Hamman of Hereford is a member of the interpretive Indian dancers group.

The dates for the performances are July 7, 8, 14, 15, 21, and 22. Each performance will commence at 8:15 p.m. at the Kiva building, Plains and Bellaire St. in Amarillo. Admission will cost $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students, and children aged 3 and under will be admitted free.

Advance tickets may be reserved now by telephoning Craig Hamman at 364-3784. Ticket delivery is free.

The Kwahadis perform authentic Indian dances in authentic costume. Some of the dances to be included in the summer ceremonials include: Flag Song of the Kiowa, Hopi Belt Dance, Eagle Dance of the Pueblos, Buffalo Dance, Apache Crown Dance, Dance of the Midnight Warriors, Ghost Dance of the Plains, Maya Quetzal Dance, Aztec Dance of the Sun, Yaqui Deer Dance, Hoop Dance, Shield Dance, Trapped Eagle Dance and Black Elk's Prayer.

CLOTHING PROJECT

A 4-H Clothing Project is made up of at least six "Learning Experiences". The six projects are chosen by your group and the leader from the pamphlets of "In the Know with Clothing" which are done by Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and are worked on in the group as well as by yourself.

Here are some tips on four of the six pamphlets chosen by one of the 4-H groups:

Buying Shoes: Your old shoes are the best guides to your next purchase. They've been through the mill with you. Take a good look at how your old shoes fared, and you will learn what errors to avoid the next time you pick a pair. Your shoes show normal wear if the wear is distributed evenly along the sole, with slightly more wear along outer edges of heel and sole. The pamphlet describes wear areas and corrections that can be made on the next purchase. Always try on both shoes each time you buy to be sure the shoes fit properly.

Face Facts: What does your reflection tell you? Are you taking care of your complexion? Skin is like a delicate plant. It needs moisture, proper food and careful handling to thrive. It is important to know how to care for the skin so that the image you see in your mirror reflects a clear healthy complexion. Tips for proper care are included in "Face Facts".

Posture Parade: "Posture" is the way you hold and control your body as you stand, sit, or walk while carrying out the day's activities. Your mannerisms create certain impressions about you without a single word being said. "Body language" is a form of non-verbal communication which expresses something about you. What kind of impression are you making? Exercise and hints to improve your posture are shown to assist you.

Sewing: Sewing begins with you - to begin sewing, start with yourself. You are the most important party of any sewing project. What do you like? What looks best on you? What size do you wear? Choose a fashionable pattern that you like and that is easy to sew. Look in the pattern book for accessories tips also. Your completed garment can be modeled in the County Dress Revue to be held July 17.

Class Reunion Planned

The 20th reunion of the Hereford High School graduating class of 1958 is scheduled here this weekend and all alumni are urged to participate.

Reunion festivities will be launched Friday evening with a dinner at Hereford Country Club, beginning at 7 p.m. Charlie Bell and his band will be providing dance music.

On Saturday morning, the 1958 female alumni will be guests for a coffee in the home of Betty Ferguson Martin, 206 Ranger Drive. The coffee will begin at 10 o'clock. At the same time, the male members of the class will be gathering in the coffee room of Hereford State Bank.

Concluding the reunion will be a picnic Saturday evening in the new part of Veteran's Park. The 1958 classmates and their families are asked to bring basket lunches to the park at 5:30 p.m. Beverages will be provided.

The capacity for one new computer mass storage system is 472 billion characters. That, according to National Geographic, is enough information to fill a stack of punched cards 621 miles high.

'Gift' Check Traps Ensnare Consumers

COLLEGE STATION - Comparison shop to avoid falling into the "gift" check trap, advises a family resource management specialist.

Several companies are using this "gift" check method to sell merchandise. Linda McCormack with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, says.

For example, the consumer will receive a $200 "gift" check in the mail. The consumer can only use the check-plus an additional $69.95 from the consumer-for a particular company's merchandise.

Anyone can become susceptible to this sale pitch. After all, it's not every day an individual receives a $200 "gift" check, the specialist explains.

However, it is important for the consumer to know the true values of the product before purchasing. It's not realistic to expect a company to absorb two-thirds of the cost of their own product, she points out.

Reactions of some consumers who have received the various products were that the product was fair in quality, but not worth the price. The product is often lower in cost at local discount stores than the mail-order product.

Other consumer complaints are the following:

(1) non-shipment of product, (2) an additional freight charge that the consumer is informed of after the order has been sent, and (3) questions concerning the true value of the product.

If a consumer has already ordered a product and has not received it yet or wishes to receive a cash refund, they should first write to the company. Mrs. McCormack says.

If not then satisfied, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, 1315 Lavaca, Eppright Bldg., Austin 78711, or regional offices located in Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio.

Limitations Part of Growing Old

COLLEGE STATION - Accept limitations brought on by older age and adjust to these limitations for happy and full retirement years, advises a family life education specialist.

Growing older imposes some limitations on physical and mental abilities, Vivian Blair explains.

"An individual cannot alter their personal expectations until this admission is made.

"After this fact is accepted then an older adult can change from tennis to bowling or give up certain yard work," the specialist says.

Mrs. Blair is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Not only older adults, but every stage of human life requires adjusting.

For example, the very young child has to adjust to attending school.

A teen-ager has special problems he did not have before his teen years.

The young adult must adjust to new responsibilities of work and perhaps marriage.

Everyone has adjustments to make. Each individual must make these adjustments personally and no one else can do this for him. Mrs. Blair adds.

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Cleatis Hayes of Lockney, former Summerfield residents, are the parents of a son, Cody Lee, born June 20. He weighed 7 lb. 5 oz. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Guy Walsler of Hereford and Mr. and Mrs. G.A. Hayes of Lockney. Great-grandparents are Mrs. Lee Curry of Hereford and Mr. C.R. Walsler, also of Hereford.

Mr. and Mrs. Armando B. Perez, Jr. are the parents of a daughter, Beatrice, born June 23. She weighed 9 lb. 11 1/4 oz.

Viet 'Boat People' Survive Long Odds

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) - They survived. The odds seemed terribly against it five months ago, 12,000 miles from this prosperous city of trees and large, white houses. Then, the 50 of them - men, women, children - were aboard a weather-beaten, 30-foot fishing boat that arrived at Khlong Yai, Thailand, after five stormy days at sea. They were among a multitude of Vietnamese boat people fleeing their Communist-run country. They had no fuel, no water, no food - finally, no hope. The Thais had toughened their policies. The Vietnamese would not be given refuge. That's when the world saw the boat people through a camera's lens. Photographer Eddie Adams, an Associated Press special correspondent, found them and went aboard their leaky craft. But he was ordered off by Thai police and as he reluctantly left, the Vietnamese started weeping and shouting in fear. An old woman pounded her head with her open palm and cried, "I will die, I will die, I will die." A mother of five; Nguyen Thi Yen, cradled a sick child in her arms and pleaded for help. Ellen Kinh Tieu Vien, once a Saigon teacher, saw Adams as a guarantee the refugees would get help. Once he was gone, police towed their small craft out to sea. Adams watched the boat disappear, a white shirt fluttering at its bow as a flag of truce. Adams' pictures and story on the "boat with no smiles" were in American newspapers last winter. He never saw the people again. But they survived. "Some one was protecting us. Even a pirate turned out to be a protector," explained Ellen, who so unhappily had watched Adams leave their boat in Thailand. She and some of the others are now in the United States. A Roman Catholic agency in Tampa, Fla., has found an apartment for Nguyen Thi Yen, and she is studying English. She has learned that her husband, who stayed behind for lack of money, is alive in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon. And last Sunday, Ellen sat in Christ the Redeemer Church in Adrian and sang hymns. "They are not Christians," sponsor Margaret Jean Sparks said of Ellen and her family. "But they appreciate our feelings about religion and come to church with us. They say they believe our God protected them and helped get them here." The frightening adventure was described by Ellen in an interview. It began with the adults paying about 25 ounces of gold each to be smuggled from Saigon. Then came a trail of country roads to Vietnam's southern coast, a surreptitious trip to Phuoc Quoc island and finally the dash to Thailand crammed into the tiny boat. "We had been warned of pirates, but didn't meet any until after the Thai police had dragged us back into the ocean," said Ellen. It was then that four armed men aboard a motor launch ordered them to stop. "I could tell they were pirates," said Ellen. "They screamed obscenities at us...The leader was strong and slim, about 40 years old, with dark glasses and wearing an old U.S. army jacket. They were Thai, but some spoke a little Chinese and Vietnamese." The pirates demanded gold but didn't get enough. They threatened to kill all aboard. "We cried, we begged, I knelt down on my knees," said Ellen's then-fiance, Cuong Chiem. "We had heard pirates were killing boat people. We pleaded for our lives." The leader was unexpectedly merciful. "Maybe it was because there were mostly children aboard," said Cuong. "He told us the only way to get refuge was to scuttle our boat and throw ourselves at the mercy of the authorities." Several hours later about one mile off shore and near midnight, holes were punched in the bottom and we abandoned ship," Ellen said. But they found the water was up to their chests and the sea bottom rocky. They have deep scars on their legs from wounds suffered as they stumbled and fell while wading ashore. Cuong said the Thai police were at first angry but later sheltered the group in a camp - including the newborn baby that Nguyen Na and his wife named Freedom in hopes the voyage would end with that. It did. All 50 qualified for sponsorship in the United States. A

Lutheran group sent Ellen Vien and Cuong Chiem to Adrian in May, and they were married a few weeks later. Their landlord was best man and local businessmen donated a bridal gown and tuxedo. Along with Cuong's 9-year-old brother and Ellen's two sisters, the couple settled in an apartment in an old white frame house. The city of about 28,000 people - a quarter of them Chicanos who came here since World War II - is a few miles northwest of Toledo, Ohio. Its money comes from agriculture and automotive plants. Its theater is said to be the oldest west of Washington. "We're middle America in the best sense, very conservative in some ways, but progressive in human needs," Mayor Norman Haft said of his city. "We're Bible Belt, but we're cosmopolitan." The Vietnamese go to local schools, and the adults hope to start vocational training soon. Ellen wants to be a secretary, her sister a nurse. Cuong hopes for a job in one of the automotive factories. "What we can't stand is not working," said Cuong, who added that he had labored seven days a week in a small textile plant he owned near Saigon. They try to keep in touch with the boat. Most are scattered around the United States. "They know they are free now," said their sponsor, Mrs. Sparks. "But they need something more, they need assurance that they are loved. That is what we are trying to give them."

Chiefs Facing Confidence Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gen. David C. Jones, the new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, faces from the start a crisis of confidence among other top military commanders. Not since the Kennedy years have senior military officers been so critical of their boss, the country's highest-ranking military officer. Without their support, success would be difficult to achieve. His critics, spread among all the services, argue that he didn't fight hard enough for the B-1 bomber and that he bent too easily to his civilian superiors during the four years he was Air Force chief of staff. Jones disputes them and says time will prove them wrong. Jones has been acting chairman for four months, since Gen. George S. Brown was found to have cancer. Without ceremony, he formally became chairman on Wednesday, a day after Brown retired. So the military jury isn't in on Jones' performance as the nation's highest ranking officer. But the officer-critics aren't waiting. Much of the grumbling centers on the debate before President Carter's decision to cancel production of the advanced B-1 bomber. Detractors say Jones did not stand up for the B-1; that as Joint Chiefs chairman, he must show them that he will stand up steadfastly for the military on important issues affecting national security. Responding to the criticism in a recent interview, Jones said he knows of the "innuendoes," but is undisturbed. "I believe that time will show that I will be forceful in expressing my own views and advancing the views of my colleagues in a way that will influence events," Jones said. "I've been called a team player. I agree with that description. That is the best way to get things done and to have influence within the administration." On the B-1 issue, Jones said: "We fought hard; we made our case. But the decision went against us... It is really not our role to try to get a decision overruled" by going back-door to Congress - "unless we decide we can serve better out of uniform." One Air Force general defending the new chairman dut said many officers turned on Jones because "he refused to go around the president and the secretary of defense and fight for the B-1 through powerful senators, and he wouldn't let the Air Force do it." "He did the only thing an honorable military officer can do," said the general, who did not want to be identified. "When a decision is made, you salute and carry it out to the best of your ability." Jones became Air Force staff chief in 1974, and was a hard driver. This may have bruised some feelings. Said one general: "He keeps the staff pretty well shaken up, to make them examine things. Nobody can outwork Dave Jones. He's quite a reader and student of contemporary literature on management." But this general, displaying mixed feelings, also said Jones lacks warmth. "He doesn't engender great personal affection," he said. That appraisal was echoed by other officers who now work for Jones and who, like him, asked anonymity. Jones, an intense man, concedes the point: "I find that the way to persuade is to really know every issue. I ask an awful lot of questions" and that, he says, might grate on some staff officers. There are admirers who say Jones' quest for excellence probably traces to his sensitivity about having no college degree in an era when diplomas counted heavily toward high military rank. Jones links his work habits to growing up in North Dakota as "a child of the Depression." His weekday workday is 12 hours. He spends much of Saturday in his Pentagon office, and then takes home a full briefcase for Sunday reading. He says he's "a little of a health nut," that he runs three to five miles a day and plays tennis in the evenings with son David - "my best friend." He and his wife, Lois, also have two daughters, Susan and Kathy. Approaching 57, Jones looks 10 years younger. He is slim. His hair is full and brown, without a trace of gray. He still flies when there is time. As a bomber pilot, he flew 29 combat missions in the Korean War and his medals include the Distinguished Flying Cross. While senior officers outside the Air Force have less at stake with the B-1, they seem to be disturbed by what Jones' role in that dispute could bode for them. They all refused to be quoted by name, but their views were reflected in a recent newspaper column by retired admirals Elfrid L. Zumwalt and Worth Bagley.

"The story is current among Jones' military peers that he has been known to alter his military advice to conform to the perceived views of his civilian superiors," they wrote. However, Zumwalt and Bagley said. "Other military leaders consider Jones to be a fine officer with an excellent operational record." The two retired admirals said they watched Jones as deputy Air Force commander in Vietnam and later as Air Force commander in Europe: "His performance in both jobs was superb." The last such grumbling in the officer corps was in 1962 when President John F. Kennedy gave the top job to Army Gen. Maxwell Taylor. Taylor was Kennedy's White House military adviser and many officers considered Taylor a "political general." That distrust persisted, to some extent, throughout Taylor's 22 months as chairman. A big test for Jones will be the officers' appraisal of his success in safeguarding U.S. security, as they see it, in any new agreement with the Soviet Union on limiting strategic nuclear arms.

Tug Tragedy Makes Record Book

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - A giant tug-of-war that resulted in injuries to 200 schoolchildren and teachers will be listed in the next edition of the Guinness Book of World Records and then retired, according to a letter sent to the school. The record for the most participants in a tug-of-war - 2,200 - will be secure because no other attempt to break it will be accepted, wrote B. Waites, assistant sports editor at Guinness, in a letter to the Harrisburg Middle School. "For the sake of the injured children involved it is our intention to recognize your tug-of-war in our forthcoming edition," she said. The letter was sent to William Kenchon, the math teacher who suggest having the tug-of-war that took place June 13 to relieve the tension of year-end examinations. During the competition, the nylon rope snapped and went whizzing through the hands of the participants, burning flesh and ripping through bones and tendons.

Coyness Will be Out in Reagan Political Camp

WASHINGTON (AP) - Next time, Ronald Reagan won't be coy. Word from the Reagan camp is that the gosh, gee and maybe phase won't be repeated when it comes time to talk about running for president in 1980.

Reagan was a bashful candidate-in-waiting for months before he challenged then-President Gerald R. Ford in 1976. In the next campaign, he will not be facing the problems that confront a candidate trying to wrest nomination from a president of his own party.

Perhaps as important, his associates sense a new commitment and a new realism as Reagan looks at the prospect of another campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

He knows, says one, that neither fate nor a draft is going to get him that nomination. There is a shadow organization ready to surface and go to work, perhaps as early as next winter. There have been candid discussions of his pluses and problems.

Age, for example. He will be 69 years old at the time of the next presidential election, 70 shortly after the next inauguration. He has been told that opponents in a new campaign would almost surely raise that as an issue, but that it can be handled so long as his health is sound and his performance vigorous.

On the plus side, there is a new life in one of Reagan's favorite issues: government spending and taxes. He is making the most of Proposition 13, and of his own effort as governor of California to put a constitutional cap on state taxes. In 1976, his call for a reduction of $90 billion in federal spending through a transfer of programs to state and local jurisdiction, to be financed or rejected there, became a campaign problem. Now it looks like an asset.

His schedule already reads like a campaign itinerary: Miami, Wilkes-Barre and Philadelphia in the last few days; Santa Barbara, San Diego, Salt Lake City, Spokane, Indianapolis and Scranton in the next three weeks.

Reagan plans to campaign almost full time for Republican candidates during September and October. By congressional election time, he will have covered 25 to 30 states.

That kind of effort builds the political credits a presidential candidate can call in when his own campaign begins.

In addition, Reagan's Citizens for the Republic, the conservative political action committee founded with the balance of his 1976 campaign treasury, is at work in the congressional elections, providing money and research to selected Republicans.

Its support will go to an increasing number of candidates in the months ahead, again, building contacts and credits that could be useful two years from now.

None of this puts Reagan into the 1980 contest. He says it is too early to talk to another bid for the nomination.

However, for the 1980 Republican primary elections, it would not be Reagan vs. The President. It would be an open nomination, probably with a big GOP field, and the Reagan people say they like the odds in that kind of competition.

President's Populist Instincts Aroused Over Gains Tax Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)-There's nothing like a tax bill to arouse Jimmy Carter's populist instincts and elicit presidential outrage against martini-swilling businessmen and tax-dodging millionaires.

But he seems to be having trouble convincing the American people, all those middle-income, burden-bearing taxpayers, to share his outrage and transmit it to Congress.

Last winter, he took out after businessmen and their now legendary three-martini lunches.

"I don't care how many martinis anyone has for lunch, but I am concerned about who picks up the check," said the president. "I don't think a relatively strong minority has some sort of divine right to have expensive meals, free theater tickets, country club dues and sporting event tickets paid for by heavier taxes on everybody else."

But the American people didn't rise up and march on the saloons.

Now it's 3,000 millionaires who are staying rich at the expense of the rest of us.

"The American people want some tax relief from the heavy burden of taxation on their shoulders, but neither they nor I will tolerate a plan that provides huge tax windfalls for millionaires and two bits for the average American," Carter told a news conference on Monday.

His target this time was proposals to reduce the rate at which profits on sale of such items as houses and stocks is taxed.

Carter's rhetoric emphasized the rates at which capital gains are taxed.

He singled out the proposal being pushed by Republicans in Capitol Hill, with growing Democratic support, to cut the tax on capital gains from a maximum 49 percent to a top of 25 percent.

The president's numbers sounded politically irresistible.

"Three thousand millionaires should get tax reductions averaging $214,000," he said. "The other 99 and one-half percent of our taxpayers would not do quite so well."

That's pretty strong stuff. But one may get an uneasy feeling that a high percentage of those middle-income families did not pay any capital gains taxes unless they sold a house without buying a more expensive one.

And those people who did get hit with capital gains taxes on the profit from the sale of the family homestead or think they might sell it soon might end up sympathizing with those 3,000 millionaires.

Where Carter seems to have a better chance of generating broad public support is on the question of whether capital gains should be covered by the law requiring that people in the highest brackets pay a minimum tax regardless of how many deductions and credits they may claim.

The two capital gains proposals now under consideration in Congress, one sponsored by Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis., the other by Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., would remove all or part of capital gains income from the minimum tax law.

Any compromise between Carter and Congress is likely to focus on that provision.

Prisoner Exchange Snagged in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) - U.S. Embassy officials made temporary release from a prison of American businessman Francis J. Crawford as the Soviet government ordered two American correspondents to appear in a Moscow court today on slander charges.

Crawford, arrested June 12 on charges of currency smuggling, was to be delivered to embassy custody in exchange for two Russians accused of spying who were released Monday to the Soviet Ambassador in the United States. But Soviet authorities delayed his release, saying they had to study documents presented by American consul Clifford Gross.

U.S. officials said they were still hopeful Crawford would be released by the end of the day and that Soviet officials told Gross they would call the embassy when they were ready to free the American businessman.

interrogated Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth for 12 hours and accused him of collecting secret scientific information. He had completed his assignment in Moscow and was allowed to leave the country.

Crawford has been held in Lefortovo prison where Toth was questioned.

Embassy sources said they knew nothing of the release exchange before it was announced in Washington.

The Russians, who are employees of the United Nations, were released by a federal judge to the custody of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Marrow Transplant Could Save 3 Year Old

NEW YORK - Nine-year-old Louis Ciardulli has beaten medical odds by surviving past the age of 3 with a rare bone-hardening disease called osteopetrosis.

Now doctors have told the boy's family that he can have a bone transplant from his 4-year-old sister and may be able to fulfill his mother's prediction that he'll "live to be 83."

Sometimes next month Lisa Ciardulli will go with Louis to Memorial Sloane-Kettering Cancer Center in Manhattan, where doctors will operate on both - taking bone marrow from Lisa and transplanting it into her brother.

"The doctors called and told us they had good news," said Joseph Ciardulli, the children's father. "Our daughter was the same bone marrow type as Louis."

Doctors say the only danger to Lisa would be from the general anesthetic used in the transplant operation, which is expected to take nearly four hours.

And, says Dr. John Rosen, "if nothing is done there is no doubt Louis is going to die."

Rosen said most children suffering from osteopetrosis do not live beyond the age of 2 or 3 but Louis is "somewhat unusual."

His parents say that despite his affliction, Louis leads "a pretty normal life," attending PS 201 and doing well in school.

The doctors have told the Ciardullis to be prepared on a few days notice to take both children to the hospital. They want to perform the transplant before the end of July because Louis already has lost the sight in one eye and they hope to save the other.

Ciardulli, who is a bus driver, says Louis will have to be in complete isolation for seven weeks after the operation, living "like a boy in a bubble" because of the danger of infection.

The Ciardullis were told two years ago that the operation might be possible. At that time doctors at Johns Hopkins medical school in Baltimore used laboratory animals to test the surgery. Since then, Ciardulli says, the surgery has been performed on humans.

Gary, Larry Landers Named To Honor Roll

PLAINVIEW - Gary Landers, a Wayland Baptist College junior, has been placed on the Dean's Honor Roll for the 1978 Spring semester with a grade point of 4.00. This past year he was president of the biology club.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Landers, Rt. 2, 205 Higgins St., Hereford.

Another son, Larry Landers, has been placed on the Dean's Honor Roll with a 3.76 grade point. He is a freshman.

Co-Op To Get Loan From REC

WASHINGTON, D.C.-Mid Plains Rural Telephone Co-operative will receive a $1,633,000 loan and 2 percent interest from the Rural Electrification Administration, Congressman George Mahon's office told The Brand.

Yanks Snap Bosox Skein in Marathon

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees were beat but not defeated. "I was as tired as I've ever been," said Yankees third baseman Graig Nettles. "I was in the dugout and said, 'Let's win this thing.'"

Nettles came to the plate with one out and Roy White on first base in the bottom of the 14th inning to face the fifth Boston Red Sox pitcher, Dick Drago.

He lined his 13th home run of the season into the right field bleachers to give the Yankees a 6-4 victory in a 4-hour, 7 minute game that extended into the early morning hours.

"All I wanted to do," said Nettles, "was hit it far enough to score Roy."

Nettles' homer not only scored White, but it also snapped a five-game Boston winning streak and cut the Red Sox' lead in the American League East to 8½ games.

The Yankees got Reggie Jackson to second base via a walk and a sacrifice bunt in the 11th inning. Pinch hitter Jim Spencer then lined a single to right, but Evans' perfect throw to catcher Carlton Fisk cut down Jackson at the plate.

Ron Guidry started the game for the Yankees and, after leaving in the seventh with none out and the bases loaded, was in serious danger of losing his first game after 12 consecutive victories.

Guidry actually left with a 3-2 lead, but when reliever Rich Gossage yielded a two-run single to Rick Burleson, both runs were charged to Guidry and the Yanks trailed 4-3.

But Jackson got Guidry off the hook when he tied the game 4-4 in the eighth on a bloop single to center that scored Thurman Munson, Sparky Lyle, 6-1, tossed three innings in relief to get the win.

In other AL games Tuesday night, Toronto swept a pair from Baltimore, 6-2 and 9-8; Milwaukee downed Minnesota 13-6; Detroit clobbered Cleveland 6-1; California nipped Kansas City 5-4; Texas trimmed Oakland 3-1 and Chicago defeated Seattle 10-6.

Toronto 6-9, Orioles 2-8
Dave McKay and Alan Ashby knocked in two runs each, and John Mayberry hit his 13th homer to make Dave Leman-cyzk, 2-9, the winner for Toronto in the opener.

The Blue Jays scored a run in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter Sam Ewing's RBI single to win the nightcap and hand the Orioles their sixth straight loss. Victor Cruz, 1-0, who got a save in the first game, was the winner of the second. Rico Carty had four RBI, three of them with a homer.

Brewers 13, Twins 6
Larry Hise and Dick Davis both hit solo homers and Paul Molitor and Sal Bando had two-run doubles to lead Milwaukee in its romp over Minnesota and move the Brewers into third in the AL East, 9½ games back of Boston. Bando's third-inning RBI double broke a 2-2 tie.

Andy Replogle, 4-1, was the winner in relief, and Twins starter Dave Goltz, 5-5, who was chased in the sixth by a Don Money's RBI double, got the loss.

Tigers 6, Indians 1

Detroit scored all six of its runs in the first inning, highlighted by Rusty Staub's two-run homer, and Dave Rozema, 3-4, tossed a nine-hitter for the win. Phil Mankowski also singled in two runs for Detroit.

Dave Freisleben, 0-1, was charged with all six runs, facing six men and failing to retire a batter.

Rangers 3, A's 1
Bobby Bonds scored once and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly as Texas won its seventh straight. Dock Ellis, 7-3, who did not allow an earned run in eight innings, and reliever Reggie Cleveland combined for a five-hitter.

Bonds scored the eventual winning run in the fourth on Jim Sundberg's single, and Bump Willis also drove in a run.

Coaches' Meeting Saturday

Managers or coaches of all women's softball teams in the area have been asked to attend a meeting at 2 p.m. Saturday at the ballparks at Ave. H and 15th according to Toby Torres, women's league organizer.

"We need to have all coaches present in order to know just how many teams we will have in the league," Torres said. "We will discuss league fees and work out a schedule," he added.

Collier, Sox Pony Winners

Man Collier was the man of the hour last night as the Red Sox clipped the Tigers 5-1 to win the local Kids, Inc. Pony League baseball title. Collier turned in a no-hitter on the mound despite being scored upon, and aided his own cause with back-to-back homers in the first and third innings.

The Tigers ruined Collier's shutout in the fourth when Alfred Ball wound up on third after an error by Sox first baseman Ricky Valdez. Ball then scored on a wild pitch to give the Tigers their tally.

At no other time did the losers threaten to score as Collier kept them at bay, earning 11 strikeouts along the way.

Collier gave the Sox a 2-0 lead in the first with a homer on a 2-2 pitch. The big blast scored teammate Scott Simmons, who had opened the game with a single off Tigers starter Rod Simon.

Collier's second round-tripper in the third made it a 4-0 ballgame, and Simmons added a fifth run in the fourth after reaching on an error.

The win gave the Red Sox a 12-1 overall record as champs of the league. The Tigers closed out at 7-7. Rounding out the league were the Twins (6-6) and Indians (2-11).

The league's all-stars and all-star coaches will be named at the Kids, Inc. banquet at the Bull Barn Friday night.

Kuhn Survived By 'Sound Judgement'

By NOEM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

In baseball parlance, Bowie Kuhn figured to be a quick 'out.' His predecessor, Gen. William Eckert, was sacked three years into his seven-year term, miscast and browbeaten by the Lords of Baseball.

Kuhn's reign started out like it might be even shorter.

"In six weeks, Kuhn has done more to destroy baseball than all its enemies in 100 years," charged Judge Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Houston Astros, when Kuhn let stand a Montreal-Houston trade after Dunn Clendenon threatened to retire rather than join the Astros.

But Kuhn, now in his 10th year, has kept his cool and his job despite one of baseball's stormiest periods, an era punctuated by player strikes, the advent of free agency and skyrocketing salaries.

EL... did he survive? Through sound judgment, according to 82-year-old Warren Giles, one of baseball's "old guard," a man who served 18 years as National League president.

"I question whether Judge Kenesaw Landis would be as effective under the conditions which exist today," said Giles, referring to baseball's legendary iron-fisted czar.

"Landis assumed authority and nobody questioned it. The players association has changed a lot of things."

"They had some rights due them for a long time and now they are going too far the other way," said Giles, who lives in retirement in Cincinnati.

"He has been a good commissioner. He has made some unpopular decisions and sometimes he has used a poor selection of words, but he has handled the issues well. He is trying to prevent money from becoming the dominating factor in deals. Otherwise, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

and the game suffers." Giles, who was almost named commissioner in 1951, thinks baseball was wise "not to take a member of the lodge and give him power."

"Even then I felt it was not good judgment to take some inside the ranks. The commissioner has to have great authority because baseball is a partnership of competitors. And that's a pretty tough body to rule."

He feels the job demands good judgment - and wrist slapping when necessary. He believes Kuhn, a longtime legal adviser for the National League before replacing Eckert, has acted firmly, but fairly.

During his tenure, Kuhn has

Ashe, McEnroe Fall at Wimby

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Defending champion Bjorn Borg and former champion Jimmy Connors continue on their collision course today after another ex-Wimbledon champion, Arthur Ashe, and a youngster with a rosy future both crashed.

Last year, 19-year-old John McEnroe had to pre-qualify and shocked the tennis world by reaching the semifinals. This year things were different as the youngster, in only his second week as a tennis professional, lost to Erik van Dillen, a 26-year-old Californian better known as a doubles player.

Another American teen-age star, 15-year-old Tracy Austin, also discovered how difficult life can be when you are expected to do well. She took nearly two hours, and three hard-fought sets, to overcome a relative unknown - Dianne Desfor - in her first-round match.

Top-seeded Borg of Sweden meets Peter McNamara today while second-seeded Jimmy Connors will go up against another Australian, Kim Warwick.

Van Dillen, out of the game for four months last year with a leg injury, had to pre-qualify this year. But he responded by dumping McEnroe, seeded 11th, out of the tournament after five pulsating sets, 7-5, 1-6, 8-9, 6-4, 6-3.

Austin overcame Desfor 6-1, 6-8, 6-4.

Afterwards, Austin, who has three years of high school still left and is still an amateur, said: "There is more pressure on me than a year ago, but I try not to think about it."

Unlike McEnroe, although seeded No. 9, Austin is not expected to do tremendously well.

"I would like to win a few rounds, sure," she said, "but if I play as long as Billie Jean King, I could be coming back for 20 more years."

The pressures on McEnroe are far greater. He reached the final at Queen's Club last week in his first-ever pro tournament, and many felt he could have done even better at Wimbledon this year than he did last.

Persons wishing more information on the class may contact the YMCA at Sugarland Mall or by calling them at 364-6990.

After his match, McEnroe still looked shocked at having been knocked out so early.

Steve Docherty, ranked No. 33 in the United States, upset Ashe, the 1975 Wimbledon champion, 8-9, 9-8, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5.

Otherwise Tuesday went in favor of the seeded players, including three Americans - Brian Gottfried, who downed Britain's John Lloyd 6-1, 6-8, 8-6, 6-4; Roscoe Tanner, who riled ownership by nullifying deals which some contend is an abuse of his power. A movement was a foot last spring to oust Kuhn, primarily because his critics feel he has entered areas the owners consider their private domain.

Giles supports Kuhn's stand of nullifying deals "that are not in the best interests of baseball."

Kuhn's loudest detractor over the years has been Charlie Finley, the Oakland As' maverick owner who has hauled Kuhn and baseball's hierarchy into court on several occasions.

"Finley wouldn't think God could make a good commissioner," said Giles.

came from two sets down to beat Egypt's Ismael el Shafci 8-9, 1-6, 6-2, 9-7, 6-2, and Sandy Mayer, who stopped Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

Three favored women contenders - defending champion Virginia Wade of Britain, Billie Jean King and Martina Navratilova, the exiled Czech - scored easy wins Tuesday. Top-seeded Chris Evert was scheduled to open her campaign against Helen Anliot of Sweden today.

Y Tennis Class Set

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA will conduct a tennis class for youth at the high school courts July 10-14 according to program director Weldon Knabe, who will act as instructor for the classes.

The classes will last one hour, 9-10 a.m. daily, and is limited to 20 participants Knabe said. Cost of the class is $5 for YMCA members and $10 for non-members.

Persons wishing more information on the class may contact the YMCA at Sugarland Mall or by calling them at 364-6990.

ATLANTA (AP) - Golfers using the public course in Piedmont Park have more obstacles than treacherous greens or sand traps - a group of young people who meet regularly at the fourth hole to drink wine and beer, toss Frisbees and enjoy the fairway sunshine.

'Shocking' Move Provides SF Win

By BEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

No matter which way he's pulled strings or pressed buttons this year, the manager of the San Francisco Giants seems to have made all the right moves.

Like Tuesday night, Joe Altobelli, who has his surprising Giants riding atop the National League West, pinch-hit for a player with four hits and got a grand slam homer out of his replacement. He also got some fine pitching from Vida Blue and that resulted in a 9-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Altobelli made his usually astute moves Tuesday night, but the one that shocked just about everyone in the San Diego Stadium was when he put Jack Clark up to hit for Terry Whitfield in the seventh inning. Whitfield had gone 4-for-4 up until that point.

Heity Cruz, the first right-handed hitter, walked to load the bases - and then Clark followed with his grand slam to highlight a five-run inning and send the Giants on their way.

Blue, the mainstay of the tough San Francisco staff, hurled a six-hitter for his 11th victory.

In other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Atlanta Braves 3-0; the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Montreal Expos 1-0; the New York Mets stopped the Chicago Cubs 7-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals took a double-header from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-0 and 6-1.

Astros 7, Reds 4
Joe Niekro held Cincinnati to six hits in seven innings and Enos Cabell drove in three runs as Houston defeated the Reds and snapped a five-game losing streak. Niekro allowed only a run-scoring single by Joe Morgan in the third inning until he lost his control in the seventh and yielded five hits and three more runs. Joe Sambito pitched the final two innings for Houston, gaining his sixth save of the year.

Dodgers 3, Braves 0
Ron Cey broke a scoreless tie with a three-run homer in the seventh inning, powering Los Angeles over Atlanta behind the seven-hit pitching of lefthander Doug Rau. Bill Russell, with his second hit of the game, and Steve Garvey, with his third, were on base when Cey connected against Dave Campbell for his ninth homer of the season.

Phillies 1, Expos 0
Dick Ruthven hurled a seven-hitter and Greg Luzinski smashed a home run off hardluck loser Hal Dues as Philadelphia blanked Montreal. The game-winning hit by Luzinski in the seventh inning was only the second allowed by Dues, who struck out five and walked one. Aside from Luzinski's homer, Dues allowed only a questionable third-inning single to Bake McBride in seven innings.

Ruthven, 4-7, walked only one and struck out five in his third complete game of the year.

Mets 7, Cubs 2
John Stearns belted a three-run homer in a four-run first inning and Pat Zachry pitched a six-hitter as New York defeated Chicago. Stearns' blast into the left field seats a Wrigley Field, his sixth of the season, capped the rally against loser Dennis Lamp, 2-9.

Dave Kingman had a hand in both runs off Zachry, 9-3. In the seventh, Kingman tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Steve Ontiveros and in the ninth the Cubs' outfielder homered.

Cardinals 2-6, Pirates 0-1
pete Vuckovich and Buddy Schultz combined on a seven-hitter and Garry Templeton hit a solo home run in the first inning to lead St. Louis over Pittsburgh in the opener of their doubleheader. It was the first shutout suffered by the Pirates this season.

George Hendrick and Jerry Mumphrey drove in two runs each and Pete Falcone notched his first victory of the season in the Cardinals' second-game victory.

Cubs Down Sox

By The Associated Press
Bob Clark's 18th home run of the season paced the El Paso Diablos to a 7-6 Texas League baseball victory over the San Antonio Dodgers Tuesday night.

In other Texas League action Midland defeated Amarillo, 11-5. Tulsa shut out Shreveport, 6-0, and Arkansas edged Jackson, 5-2.

El Paso pitcher Chuck Porter, picked up the victory, his fifth straight without a loss. Rick Sander, now 4-6, was tagged for the loss.

Amarillo batters slugged 10 hits, including two sixth-inning home runs, but could not overcome four errors as the Gold Sox lost to the Midland Cubs. Dane Ilerston and Paul O'Neil had homers for Amarillo in the sixth inning. Jeff Albert, now 4-5, was the winning pitcher. Gary Pickert, now 5-7, took the loss.

Don Rainer hurled his fourth shutout of the year as Tulsa's Drillers whitewashed Shreveport, 6-0. Dave Rivera helped by slamming his 10th homer of the year for the Drillers in the eighth. The two-run blast was the fifth Rivera has hit off of Captains pitching so far this season.

WANTED
Experienced accountant for all accounting procedures for subsidiary of national company. Good future and good benefits. Send resume including salary history to Box 1367, Hereford, Texas 79045.

A success story.

Once upon a time there was a merchant. You probably know him. Because he is very successful and always seems to have lot of business, even when things seem slow everywhere else.

best when repeated regularly. Consistent advertising builds dividends. He realizes that people buy all year, around. Many stores sell blankets and furs in the summer and air conditioners and grass cutters in the winter.

There are a lot of reasons why he is successful. But one of the biggest is that he advertises regularly, even when things seem slow everywhere. You see, he realizes that he is open every week of the year and wants customers every day. He realizes that advertising is designed to build business and it works

Think you know who this success story is about? Well, to tell you the truth, it's about many of the merchants in Hereford. They all have one thing in common, though. They advertise regularly in the Hereford Brand. Isn't it about time you became a successful merchant?

Brown Signs New License Agreements
AUSTIN -- Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has signed agreements with two neighboring states, New Mexico and Louisiana, for mutual recognition of restricted-use pesticide applicator licenses.
The purpose of the agreement is to issue licenses or certifications on a reciprocal basis to non-resident commercial, non-commercial, and private applicators who have passed tests and met other requirements of the two states.
"We initiated this agreement to help cut some of the red tape in dealing with Federal programs. The requirements in both states had to have approval from the Environmental Protection Agency, which regulates national pesticide statutes. The training and qualifications for applicators are essentially the same for all states," Brown said.
Applicators who use hormone-type herbicides will still be required to comply with the special laws of each state, Brown added. "Also, if we feel that commercial or private applicators require additional training, we are authorized to request this."
Applicants under the reciprocal agreement must pay all fees and satisfy all other licensing requirements of the reciprocating states and agree to abide by all pertinent pesticide laws.
In case an applicator's license or certification is suspended or revoked by either state, proper state authorities must be notified.

Chinese Weapons Shopping in Europe

PARIS (AP) - Chinese envoys in gray Mao suits are seen moving around Western Europe more and more these days on "shopping expeditions" for the newest missiles, jets and tanks to modernize their outdated army.
To date, as far as is known, no contracts have been signed. The arms-seeking tours coincide with a pledge by the new Chinese leaders to bring China up to the level of other major industrial powers by the year 2000. The expeditions also reflect China's hostility and suspicion of its neighbor, the Soviet Union.
"China intends to buy weapons in Europe if they are of a technologically advanced level and the European countries are willing to sell to us," Deputy Foreign Minister Yu Tsian told an Italian correspondent visiting China recently.
The Chinese posture on Western arms reverses a position from the Cultural Revolution under Mao Tse-tung which held that Western arms shouldn't be imported by China, rather should be produced at home.
The United States is resolved not to sell weapons to China, in part for fear of antagonizing the Soviet Union. But Washington appears to have concluded that arms sales by its European allies make good sense to improve relations with Peking.
The Chinese are inspecting military and other high-technology goods in a number of European weapon-producing nations, including France, Britain, Sweden, Switzerland, Belgium and West Germany.
France and Britain, which have sold military equipment to Peking in the past, have emerged as the most eager and best qualified by far for major weapons sales and export of military production licenses, European experts say.
Wu Shiu-Chuan, deputy chief of staff, reportedly told a group of Japanese military specialists last month that China already has agreed to buy "a certain number" of French anti-tank missiles.
The Chinese also are negotiating for possible purchase of French Milan missiles, a shortage tactical weapon, as well as for Mirage fighter-bombers and AMX-30 tanks, the experts report.
French officials routinely refuse to discuss prospective arms sales, even with friendly diplomats, and in the world of arms deals generally the rule is "don't talk about it."
But Olivier Stirn, France's secretary of state for foreign affairs, told the Western European Union this week that Paris wants to do business with China "in all fields."
The Carter administration is itself reviewing U.S. policy on sales to China of military-related equipment such as large computers and communications gear. A recent report from Washington said the United States has agreed to sell China airborne equipment for geological exploration that it refuses to sell the Soviet Union because of potential military applications.
Any Chinese purchases require prolonged negotiations, experts say, because of lingering uncertainty among some factions of the Peking leadership about the wisdom of buying Western arms.

Business Community Professes Fear of Wage-Price Controls

NEW YORK (AP) - They don't believe the President when he states he has ruled out wage-price controls as a way of dealing with inflation. Promises are political, politicians are practical, they say.
"They" are a huge segment of the big business community who have listened to President Carter's repeated avowals and then developed contingency plans for the very eventuality.
The attitude, repeated in interviews with executives, in economic newsletters, in seminars and the like, has the destructive quality of bringing nearer the thing feared, i.e., growing inflation and controls.
Nobody is likely to prove it, but price increases in some industries, perhaps smaller but more repetitive than in other years, are viewed as defensive or anticipatory measures against a future price freeze.
Why the suspicion? Richard Nenneman, senior vice president of Girard Trust of Philadelphia, who has repeatedly written about the possibility and even the efficacy of controls, has a simple explanation.
"Because," he says, "whatever policies are in place don't seem to be effective enough to get the job done."
Eventually, he maintains, inflation will be seen as so deadly an enemy that every practical measure will have to be considered. Controls, therefore, cannot be ignored as one of the possibilities.
Present anti-inflation measures fall into the two broad categories of fiscal and monetary measures. Overly severe monetary policy almost inevitably leads to recession, so it has limitations.
Fiscal policy also has limitations, one of them right now being the reluctance of Washington to cut back on legislation enacted during the 1960s, and the political unacceptability of higher taxes.
As an alternative, the President has taken to jawboning, which some people consider to be a stage before controls. The jawbone, they note, can be used to cajole, but it also can be used to club.
There is always a question about the benefits of jawboning while the basic causes of inflation remain in place. The big budget deficit is one of these, says Nenneman. It could undermine the jawboning effort.
"I do not want to be considered a champion of controls," he said, lest anyone believe he isn't fully aware, and fearful too, of the marketplace disruptions that could accompany wage-price controls.
But, he continued, if we enter the winter with the economy sagging and with prices still rising, then the Carter administration will have to seriously consider the imposition of what is called an incomes policy.
Combined with fiscal and monetary strategy, the limited good that these controls might bring, said Nenneman, could be enough to turn the tide.
Faced with the reality of continued inflation and the economic, social and political disruptions it brings, Nenneman feels we cannot, and quite likely will not, ignore the possibility of an incomes policy.

Endangered Species Status Involves Mounds of Red Tape

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
You've probably heard of the snail darter - the minnow that damned a dam in Tennessee. But did you know about the orange-footed pimpleback pearly mussel? Or its relative, the rough pigtoe pearly mussel? Or the pink fairy armadillo?
Like the snail darter, the two mussels and the armadillo are officially listed as endangered or threatened species, along with 661 other animals and 17 plants.
How did all these creatures get on the list? Who goes around counting them? What do they do that makes them important?
An endangered species is one "that is in danger of extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range," said John Spinks of the Interior Department's Office of Endangered Species.
The species does not have to be an important one; it does not have to make any contribution to the environment. "It merely has to exist as a biological entity," Spinks said.
Plants and animals which may be heading toward extinction, go on the "threatened" list, he added, explaining that a threatened species is "something that hasn't reached a basket case stage."
There is a complex procedure involved in deciding whether something is endangered or threatened. "We don't just say, 'Ah! This looks good,' and list it," Spinks said. "There is a very specific process."
When the office learns of a potentially endangered species through an environmental or other group, or from a scientist, for example - it begins an investigation using "accepted sampling techniques for various types of organisms."
Spinks said the techniques depend "on which kind of critter it is." In some cases, where a species ranges over a wide area, the counting is complicated. In others, where a species is limited to a confined area, the creatures "are counted directly one by one."
If the agency believes a species qualifies for endangered or threatened status, it makes a proposal and publishes it in the Federal Register. Comment is solicited and analyzed. "Depending on the kind of feedback we get, we go to a final ruling process which might actually list the species," Spinks said.
"Our objective is not to put things on the list, but to get things off the list," he added, explaining that the agency has managed to build up the alligator population to the point where the reptile's status has been downgraded from endangered to threatened.
There are more creatures waiting to take their places. About 1,800 plants and 100 animals are under consideration.
"There may be as many as two million full species of organisms," Spinks said. "Perhaps 10 percent 200,000 might qualify for listing."
Congress is trying to figure out a way to get the Tennessee Valley Authority's $119-million Tellico Dam going again, following the Supreme Court's ruling that work on the project had to stop because it threatened the snail darter's existence. But the problems may be just beginning. The orange-footed pimpleback pearly mussel is threatened by construction of another dam in Tennessee.

Senate Ratifies New Tax Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate reversed itself and ratified a tax treaty with Great Britain Tuesday after nullifying language that critics said would reserve the right of U.S. states to tax foreign corporations as they see fit.
The vote was 82-5.
The Carter administration and Senate leaders had worked out compromise language nullifying the controversial section.
By a 49-32 vote on Friday, the Senate refused to approve the treaty by the two-thirds majority required by the Constitution.
It was only the 20th time in history that the Senate had rejected a treaty on a direct vote.
Failure to ratify came as a result of the 44-34 defeat of a treaty reservation offered by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.
The Church proposal would have prevented implementation of treaty language limiting the ability of states to tax foreign corporations on the basis of their total earnings, not just revenue generated within a state.
Church and his supporters said the provision not only would cost the states tax revenue but would limit their constitutional authority to impose taxes on foreign corporations investing in the United States.
Opponents of the Church reservation said the provision actually would increase state revenue because it would trigger a substantial increase in foreign investment.
Following the treaty's rejection on Friday, Church said Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal had told him the administration would rather have a treaty containing the Church reservation than no treaty at all.
The tax treaty, negotiated during the Ford administration, updates a previous pact ratified after World War II.
The treaty's other provisions deal with a wide variety of tax issues and generally are intended to prevent both double taxation and tax evasion.
Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate the treaty contains a major concession by the British - a refund to U.S. corporate shareholders of the so-called advanced corporation tax.
The congressional Joint Committee on Taxation estimates this provision would return about $375 million to U.S. investors and corporations for the years 1973-1978 and an estimated $90 million a year thereafter.

Henley Regatta 'Royal'

By JEFF BRADLEY
AP Sports Writer
HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (AP) - Americans have invaded Henley again, turning this quiet town by the banks of the River Thames into a mass of makeshift dormitories in preparation for the annual Henley Royal regatta, which starts Thursday morning.

The Henley towpath at present is oddly reminiscent of wartime England - one hears as much American as English, said veteran English rowing correspondent Desmond Hill of the Daily Telegraph.

A total of 25 American boats will vie for the honors in a field of 231 entries in Henley's 13 events. The finals are on Sunday.

Most interest centers on the Grand Challenge Cup, Henley's prize trophy, won last year by the University of Washington Huskies.

They are back to defend the title and have a first-round bye before facing Northeastern University of Boston, Mass., in semifinals.

Syracuse University of New York, winner of the U.S. Inter-collegiate Rowing Association (IRA) championship this season, also has a bye. The Orangemen row in the semifinals against the winner of an interesting clash between the British national crew and a heavyweight eight from the Trakia Club, Bulgaria.

The U.S. Coast Guard

eightman crew, winners of the Dad Vail regatta for small American colleges, are seeded in the Ladies' Challenge Plate, and the other five U.S. crews in that competition are Trinity College of Hartford, Conn., winners in 1976; Florida Institute of Technology, Harvard University, Yale and the Syracuse University lightweight crew.

The other big event for eightman coxed boats is the Thames Challenge Cup in which the University of Washington's second eight may have the toughest challenge of Thursday's opening day program.

The Huskies face Neptune Rowing Club of Ireland, which beat them last weekend in a warmup at the Nottingham, England, regatta. Other crews in this event are Northeastern University's freshmen, the Potomac Boat Club from Washington, D.C., and the second eight from Trinity College.

Henley has been the scene of an annual regatta since 1839. The site was chosen because it is probably the only straight mile along the twisting River Thames.

The course measures 1 mile, 550 yards in all, and there is only room for two shells at a time, which is why four days are needed to arrange heats for all the entries.

Lietzke, North, Bean Challengers to Watson

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) - Tom Watson came to this affluent Chicago suburb in 1974, a freckle-faced 24-year-old in search of his initial first-place paycheck on the professional golf tour. He got it.

On Thursday, Watson returns in search of his 10th pro victory and the $45,000 first prize to keep him on the top of the tour's earnings list for 1978. He also will be seeking his second straight Western Open title.

Although the big names - Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Lee Trevino, Arnold Palmer - will be missing from the $225,000 event, Watson will not be lacking for competition on the tough 7,083-yard, par-72 Butler National Golf Club course.

The tour's hottest golfers will be trying to block him from becoming the sixth player to win the Western three times in its 75-year history. He won it last year with a 5-under-par 283.

Bruce Lietzke, winner of the Canadian Open last Sunday; Andy North, who grabbed the U.S. Open title a week earlier, and Andy Bean, who won the Memphis Classic and the Kemper Open the two previous weeks, are in the 150-man field that includes one amateur.

Johnny Miller, who finished strongly to tie for second in last year's Western, one stroke behind Watson, also is entered. He tied for fourth at the U.S. Open.

Six of this year's top 10 money-winners are entered - Watson, Bean, Hubert, Green, North, Bill Kratzert and Hale Irwin.

Irwin and Al Geiberger, the other winners in the four years the Western has been played here, also will compete. Irwin has had special success at Butler, finishing fourth, first, third and 17th in his four tries.

It is a demanding layout.

"I like the course, although some guys don't," says North.

"I appreciate a course where you're close to winning if you shoot par. Par is designed as something to shoot for."

The course can be a disaster to golfers who put too much faith in first impressions.

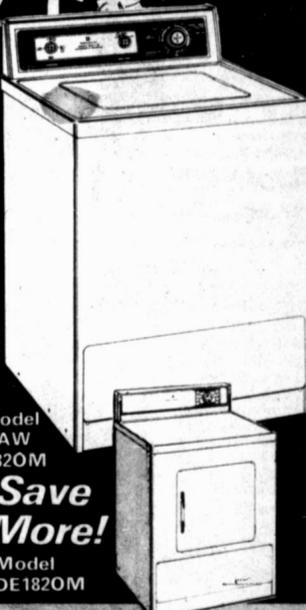

The first hole, a 371-yard par-4, presents a good chance for a birdie, although a narrow creek runs in front and behind a green which is not large. The par-5 second hole measures 566 yards and, if the wind is light, can be reached in two by long hitters. Birdie could be commonplace.

A powerful tee shot is needed to clear the dogleg to the par-4, 459-yard 17th hole. Three sand traps border the green and a low shot could skip by it.

The final hole, a dogleg to the right, is considered the toughest at Butler. A controlled tee shot is needed and water that runs along the left side near the green requires a good second shot at the hole.
