The "suspect", who was actually a newspaper reporter, was bound to the chair by a cord-like device around his midsection, another around his chest, a strap around his left bicep and two finger attachments.

The suspect chose the number "31" to write on a sheet of paper under the direction of the examiner, who tacked the number to the wall and told the reporter to look at it.

The examiner, sitting behind the suspect, turned on the machine, told the suspect to answer "no" to every question, waited a few minutes, then

"Did you write the number 28?"

"Did you write the number 29?"

"Did you write the number 30?"

"Did you write the number 31?"

"Did you write the number 32?"

The examiner turned off the machine and loosened the devices which held the

The reason for the aforementioned demonstration was to give the reporter an idea of what it is like to be attached to a polygraph--a lie detector. Art Burton, the examiner and also chief deputy with the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office, recently was licensed by the state to conduct such tests and, more importantly, interview real

"I guess I've probably run 25 or 30 subjects," said Burton, who had to pass a test in July to receive his state certification after completing a six-week course last January at Baxter's School of Lie Detection in San Diego, Calif.

'This thing already has proved to be very valuable to local law enforcement agencies. It is a very important investigative tool."

Burton is the only qualified examiner in Deaf Smith County. And, based on his report card in school, he may be a most qualified examiner--Burton finished at the top of a class of 16 law enforcement officers in San Diego.

In the school, Burton learned how to interpret charts, mechanics and calibration of the instruments and scoring systems.

Heavy Rainstorm Soaks Hereford Area

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

An early morning shower slipped into Deaf Smith County from the west today, dumping large accumulations of moisture on the srawling dryland spreads in the westernmost portion of the county, while depositing up to an inch of moisture on much of the remainder of the Hereford

In Bond Hearing for Davis

The rains will prove timely for dryland wheat farmers here, many of whom were waiting for a shower to store additional soil moisture prior to sowing their winter wheat crop.

The moisture should also bring on the dryland sorghum crop, and although it will delay harvesting of ensilage corn in some localities, the rainfall may help thwart a late season surge in the spider mite population in area corn and grain the outcome of the bond hearing. Tuesday, Haynes retraced much testimony already given in the hearing when he questioned Ron Jannings, the FBI's case agent in the investigation of the purported plot by Davis to kill Judge Joe Eidson and 14 other persons.

Jannings testified federal authorities became involved in the investigation of the alleged scheme after the state's chief witness told them Davis' "hit list" included the name of his younger brother, Bill, who was to have been kidnapped and killed.

Jannings said David McCrory told FBI agents Davis had discussed with him a plan to have his brother kidnapped from New England Vermont or Connecticut, killed and the death made to look like a scuba diving accident in Virginia.

The agent's testimony was the first, courtroom mention of details of the alleged plot against the younger Davis, though evidence surrounding the story had been released by prosecutors in an interview last week.

Jannings was the first defense witness called when the prosecution rested its case Tuesday morning after calling only two witnesses - McCrory, who spent four days on the stand, and Texas Ranger John Hogg, who was questioned only briefly about details of the investigation that led to Davis' arrest.

The agent said federal interest in the (See DAVIS, Page 2)

Congress Pressured To Vote for Tax Relief

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress, which usually weighs tax bills for their effect on a "typical family of four," is under pressure to vote tax relief for 5 million Americans who don't fit that Twenty-three senators have signed a bill by Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., that would cut taxes for unmarried family heads at a cost to the Treasury of more than $600 million a year in tax revenues.

The Senate Finance Committee will consider the Packwood bill next week as it begins work on its version of the tax cut package recommended by President

At issue are unmarried heads of households with at least one dependent. Eighty-five percent of these families are headed by women, most of them divorced

Such heads of household already qualify for a lower tax rate than do single people with no dependents, but not as low as that allowed married couples filing a joint return.

However, the head of household may use only the $2,200 standard deduction allowed a single person, not the $3,200 deduction given a married couple.

As a result, a single parent with a dependent generally will pay about 10 percent more in income tax than if he were married. Packwood says the average income of a one-parent family is less than half that of the two-parent

Firefighters Ignore Help Pleas As Part of Indiana Town Burns

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) - Fire raced through a half-block area of downtown Anderson today as striking firefighters refused pleas to help fight the blaze, the fire chief said.

No injuries were reported. Early. reports indicated at least four buildings, including the county prosecutor's office, were destroyed across the street from the Madison County government complex.

The fire, believed to have started in the Courthouse Lounge, a tavern that had closed for the night, was being fought by Chief Ed Ballinger and eight probationary officers, with assistance from several neighboring volunteer departments.

There was no immediate indication as to what caused the fire.

It was the second emergency in this central Indiana city of 71,000 - the state's eighth largest - since the 144 firemen went on strike Saturday night in a pay dispute.

About 25 striking firefighters responded Sunday night after the roof on a busy downtown movie theater collapsed under the weight of heavy rains. Three persons were injured, one critically, and 80 other patrons scrambled through exits to

The firemen, however, set up picket lines Monday and vowed to ignore future emergency calls. Supervisory personnel, who had helped answer calls the first three days, joined strikers on picket lines Tuesday.

Ballinger, who had said he was confident the strikers would respond to emergency calls even after they vowed not to, went on the department's radio today to urge firefighters to help. Many of them were on a picket line outside the fire station at the time, but Ballinger said there was no response.

The city safety board was called into emergency session today with the city council to consider possible legal action against the strike.

Both firefighters and police are seeking a 12 percent pay raise, while the city has offered 6 percent. Base pay is $11,700 for both departments.

Police have been on a work slowdown, responding only to emergencies since

Texas Asks for Veto Over Waste Storage

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General John Hill asked the U.S. Department of Energy on Tuesday to grant Texas veto power over storage of nuclear wastes in or near the state or transportation of radioactive debris through Texas. Hill noted that the department has proposed nuclear waste material in New Mexico, 25 miles from the Texas border. He said most of the waste stored there would move through Texas.

The attorney general also said the energy department is studying locations in Randall and Anderson Counties for possible storage sites.

"At my request the energy department has held public hearings in Texas on the proposed New Mexico waste disposal project. Based on these hearings and my office's monitoring of the Texas studies. I am convinced that Texas needs the veto power over these projects." Hill said.

He said he was not seeking a ban on federal nuclear waste disposal projects. but "guarantees that Texas will have the final say over this matter of vital importance to the health, safety and peace of mind to the people of Texas."

Migrant Association Ends Health Program

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - The troubled Southwest Migrant Association, a target of an examination by a federal agency, has closed its health care program and clinic that served 10,000 poor migrant farm families, officials say.

The termination of the program was described Tuesday as temporary by association officials. But a $300,000 federal grant to finance the program for its ninth year is being delayed and Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials say funding might be stopped.

HEW, which provides the health care funds, has also demanded the return of federal money diverted by the association from one program to another, according to an Aug. 3 letter to the SWMA from HEW Regional Administrator Floyd A. Norman.

The letter concluded that the association would not be able to repay the unspecified amount of funds and cited an instance in which the SWMA bank account was overdrawn by more than $45,000.

An examination of the association's records, Norman said in the letter, uncovered other alleged management irregularities.

Bandera Flood Victims Complain to Tower

BANDERA, Texas (AP) - Bandera County flood victims, filling a school cafeteria used 26 days earlier as a temporary morgue, have complained to Sen. John Tower of confusion and delays in federal flood-relief programs.

But the Republican senator, a candidate for re-election, told the gathering Tuesday that new relief money should soon be on its way.

Tower visited the Hill Country areas damaged Aug. 2 by the destructive floods that killed 25 persons and listened to the complaints of the victims.

State and federal officials later told Tower in Kerrville that problems existed in the relief programs, but were being

"Everybody's been sitting, waiting for all the relief we were supposed to get," said one of more than 100 persons who crowded into the Bandera Junior High School cafeteria. "A lot of people, especially older folks, simply do not know what they should do."

Bandera County Attorney Ron Jackson said, "People here can't get a straightforward answer and see the result of any answer they do get. Some would prefer a definite 'no' on help. They would at least know for sure."

Tower said he would talk to federal officials to help cut red tape, but avoided making promises. "All we can do is leanon the bureaucracy. We can't dictate to them what to do," he said.

Dollar Drops Again In Tokyo Exchange

TOKYO (AP) - Word of the huge U.S. trade deficit in July drove the dollar down nearly six yen at the start of trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange today. It recovered less than a yen to close at 189.725, 2.4 percent lower than Tuesday's closing rate.

The drop, the biggest since the 1973 revaluation of the yen, came after similar action on the European and New York markets following the announcement that the American trade deficit in July was $2.99 billion, nearly double the June amount.

The dollar fell 1.4 percent against the West German mark in Europe Tuesday, 2.4 percent against the Swiss franc and 1 percent against the French franc. It continued its steepest fall in later New York trading.

About $1.17 billion of the U.S. deficit came in trade with Japan, compared to $1-billion deficits in both May and June. The total U.S. deficit with Japan so far this year is $7.49 billion, compared to $8.1 billion for all of 1977.

Trading in Tokyo ended Tuesday before the Washington announcement, and the dollar closed on the Japanese foreign exchange market at 194.30 yen, 10 yen above its record low. Trading opened today at 188.50, and dealers said importers began buying, which pushed the U.S. currency at one point back above 190. Then there was another slippage, and this continued to 189.35 in trading with other Asian markets after the Tokyo market closed.

"What's happening is that tenants are emerging as a more significant force as far as the Legislature and public officials are concerned. It's rather obvious that the very much vaunted savings of Proposition 13 are not being passed on to all the tenants in California," Brown said.

Since June 6 when Californians approved Proposition 12 which required an average 57 percent cut in property taxes posters denouncing landlords have begun to appear on buildings.

There is evidence that landlords have not passed tax savings along to renters. And tenants - there are 11 million renters in the state - are increasingly demanding that rents drop along with landlords' taxes.

But the state Senate on Monday defeated a bill that would have forced most owners of rental property to roll back

SUSIE TIEFEL

Mrs. Henry (Susie) Tiefel, who came to West Texas from Indiana in 1910 and made her home here for more than 65 years, died last night in Deaf Smith General Hospital at the age of 91.

Services for the pioneer resident will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday in Rose Chapel of Gililland-Watson Funeral Home. The Rev. George Belford, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Mack McCarter, pastor of First Christian Church will officiate. Interment will be in West Park Cemetery.

1887 near Brazil, Ind., she married Henry Tiefel July 14. 1905 at Brazil. The couple came to Texas in 1910, settling near Friona on the Wentworth place where he and his brother. Edward, ran cattle and sometime worked at their trade as carpenters. In 1913 the Tiefels moved to the Dawn Community, living first on the Neil place and then at Green Valley Ranch, southeast of Dawn.

Mrs. Tiefel was active in the Lutheran church and spent numerous hours making quilts which she donated to Veterans Hospital at Amarillo and Girlstown USA. Her leftover quilt scraps were used by the retired nurse for making doll quilts for the VFW to use at Christmas in Operation Santa

Last December "Fred" became involved with a divorced woman in our social circle. This was his third affair (that I knew of) and I thought it would blow over if I remained calm and pretended not to notice. This is how I had dealt with the others -- but I misjudged the situation. Last week he asked for a divorce so he can marry her.

I am no longer in love with trust many years ago. To complicate matters we are Catholic. I realize the Church has softened its position on divorce but it still bothers me.

I'm writing to you because I need to know what you think divorce will do to our children. I confided in my mother and she insists that I owe it to them to keep our marriage together -regardless. Mother pointed out what has happened to the children of some of our divorced friends. I countered with examples of children from "happy" homes whose lives were just as badly messed up. Eggs, Fryers, Fish Priced Well Now

COLLEGE STATION -Eggs, fryer chickens and frozen fish products highlight this week's budget buys at Texas grocery markets, according to Gwendolyne Clyatt.

Mrs. Clyatt is a consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Price-quality trends this week include the following: POULTRY - Eggs are plentiful, and prices are low. Fryer chickens are probably the most-often featured item at FROZEN FOODS - Frozen fish products rate careful consideration becauseof their 'built-in' nutritious value and their time-saving feature.

BEEF - Best values generally include chuck roasts and steaks, round and sirloin steaks and ground beef.

Don't overlook boneless meat because of its higher price--it offers more servings from each FRESH FRUITS--Prunes are one budget-wise attraction. Select fresh prunes with full color--a deep blue-black--and a pleasing aroma. Nectarines of good quality are moderately priced.

For careful comparison shoppers, other choices are cantaloupe, honeydew melons, grapes, peaches, bananas and watermelons.

FRESH VEGETABLES--Good values are possible, but most are moderate-price items.

They include corn, carrots, cabbage, cucumbers, green peppers, dry yellow onions and potatoes.

CONSUMER WATCH-WORDS: Liver--beef, pork and calf--is an exceptional source of essential nutrients, and it makes low-cost meals.

Few gains seen for women

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Despite the increasing sophistication and skill of organized groups promoting women in politics, 1978 is shaping up as a mixed year at best for women seeking election to Congress.

The bright spot is the likelihood that Maryon Allen, the widow of Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., will become the first woman elected to the Senate in her own right since Margaret Chase Smith of Maine left office six years ago.

Mrs. Allen, who was appointed to the Senate upon her Mrs. Allen, who was appointed to the Senate upon her husband's death earlier this year, is heavily favored to win the special election to fill out the remaining two years of his term.

In Kansas, 45-year-old Nancy Landon Kassebaum, daughter of 1936 GOP presidential candidate Alf Landon, has at least a fighting chance to defeat Democrat Bill Roy has at least a fighting chance to defeat Democrat Bill Roy in the November Senate election, even though he has a sizeable headstart in campaigning and fund-raising.

She defeated eight other candidates to win the GOP Senate nomination, and is regarded as a serious contender by political experts of both parties.

A third woman Senate nominee, Democrat Jane Eskind of Tennessee, has little hope of beating Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. Kathleen Sullivan Alioto, a Boston school board member, could have a shot if she should win the crowded Democratic primary for the Senate seat now held by Republican Edward Brooke.

In the House, however, three of the 18 women now serving are either retiring or running for other office and two others, Reps. Helen Meyner, D-N.J., and Martha Keys, D-Kans., have tough races. D-Kans., have tough races.

A half dozen other women — three Democrats and three Republicans — have already won House nominations in California, Maine, Indiana, Rhode Island and New York but none is a shoo-in for November.

they now hold, and have little chance of making more than a one or two-seat gain.

Maine's muddy political waters

One of the hottest Senate races of the year, the Maine contest between incumbent Democrat William Hathaway and GOP Rep. William Cohen, could be muddied by the presence of three "independent" candidates on the ballot.

At first it looked as though Hathaway would benefit from the confusion, since conservative Hayes Gahagan was considered likely to draw right-wing votes away from liberal Republican Cohen. But now an erstwhile Democratic perennial candidate Plato Truman, has joined the fray and may pull an equivalent number of Democratic votes from Hathaway.

The third independent is a former GOP fundraiser with a grudge against Cohen, and is not likely to be a factor.

Class by education

Education — not income level or occupational status — is now the "key factor in defining today's class divisions" in America, according to an intriguing political analysis by Everette C. Ladd Jr. in the new issue of "Public Opinion," a monthly published by the American Enterprise Institute. Examining a wealth of polling data, Ladd concludes that the chief social and ideological schisms of the 1970s no longer occur between the "haves" and "have-nots" as in the New Deal era, but between Americans who have some longer occur between the "haves" and "have-nots" as in the New Deal era, but between Americans who have some college education and those who do not.

On everything from life style questions (abortion, homosexuality, women's liberation, pornography, etc.) to domestic programs and foreign policy issues, the college-educated hold consistently more "liberal" views than their high school and grade school compatriots, Ladd found.

In only one area do the old New Deal alignments still hold — trade unionism. "While high school and grade school graduates are notably inclined to more conservative views, they are also notably supportive of unions,"

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Major league baseball umpires could walk off the field again today if a ruling at an injunction hearing in federal court here allows them to strike.

A court injunction was issued last Friday, forcing the umpires back to work after a one-day walkout. Amateur umpires were used in their place. It was the second umpires' strike in major league baseball history.

Lee MacPhail, president of the American Legue, and Chub Feeney, president of the National League, were expected to attend the federal court

Broken Promises Lead To Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) - Marvin Webster says broken promises are the reason he is now a member of the New York Knicks.

The 7-foot-1, 240-pound pivotman, who led the Seattle SuperSonics to the National Basketball Association championship series last season before becoming a free agent, says he was all set to sign a new contract with the SuperSonics last Friday.

"We had reached an agreement, but some things turned out not to be true.' Webster said at a news conference at Madison Square Garden Tuesday. "I thought we had agreed on certain things, but when we sat down I saw that was not the case."

Webster and his agent, Larry Fleisher, then reopened negotiations with the Knicks, who had been after Webster all summer long, especially after failing to lure Bill Walton from Portland. They met with Knicks President Mike Burke over the weekend and signed a contract on Monday.

"The Knicks sat down and told me things and they turned out to be true," said Webster.

"I respect that. They treated me honestly. That's why I'm here. It wasn't a matter of money at all. It was the way I was treated."

But the money didn't hurt. Knicks officials would not reveal the precise terms of the contract, but Madison Square Garden President Sonny Werblin did say it made Webster the highest paid Knick ever. Bob McAdoo currently earns $500,-000 a year, while Webster's contract has been estimated at $3 million over its five-year duration.

"I consider myself a pretty good center and expect to be paid as such," said Webster. But really, money was not the decisive factor."

Fleisher, however, said he had an agreement with Sam Schulman, president of the Sonics, but that the club's board of directors then turned the deal

"I was in total shock," Fleisher said. "And I said there was no way Marvin could go along with the deal."

Schulman said the major hitch which prevented Seattle from signing Webster last week was the center's insistance on a three-year no trade item to be included in his contract.

Schulman said other provisions of agreement Seattle offered Webster included a whirlpool bath, a new car, an unlimited number of airline tickets for Webster's parents so they could come to Seattle and see their son play and time off when Webster's wife had a

"I was willing to give him all of those," Schulman said in a telephone interview from Chicago. "But the no-trade agreement - that's what broke

Boerne Youngster Too - Puny For Baseball

SPORTS

BOERNE, Tex. (AP) - Mel Kimbro is simply too puny for Little League baseball or junior high football. After all, the 12-year-old stands only 4-foot-4, weighs a mere 61 pounds and was born with a clubfoot.

So he makes up for it by riding bulls - big, ill-tempered Stingray, Crazy Eight and Sidewinder.

The gritty Kimbro, who underwent three operations to straighten a twisted right foot and spent his first five years in a cast, was the 1977 American Junior Rodeo Association Reserve World Champion in his age classification.

And he won the bullriding championship two weeks ago in the AJRA Finals, scoring a record 83 points only two days after Stingray had jerked Kimbro's right arm from its socket. His prize money last year totaled more than $6,000.

"I've just always wanted to do what my dad did," said Kimbro, whose father, Clyde, was a professional bullrider and rodeo performer for 22 years. "I was never afraid of the bulls."

"I didn't even think Mel would ever walk right, much less be a championship bullrider. He couldn't even wear boots. And then he had the bone deterioration three years ago, said Kimbro's mother, Carol.

The bone deterioration in Kimbro's right foot threatened to cripple him. "The doctors wanted to amputate three toes on the foot, but I wouldn't let them. It finally healed up." said the seventh-grader, whose right leg is two inches shorter than the other.

And if his medical problems weren't enough, the surly bulls have been rough on Kimbro's wispy frame.

Last year in Odessa, a bull kicked Kimbro in the shoulder, fracturing the collarbone. And for good measure, the bull planted a hoof in the middle of Kimbro's face, breaking his jaw. Three days later, a heavily-taped Kimbro rode in the AJRA Finals.

Kimbro broke a bone in his left ankle two months ago courtesy of a bull named Little Yeller - and refused a cast. And then he suffered the dislocated shoulder two weeks ago.

Even while he had a remedial cast on his right foot. Kimbro talked about riding bulls like his father, said Mrs. Kimbro. "He starting talking about it by the time he was four. He rode ail of my furniture. I couldn't keep any furniture." said Mrs.

"I'd put on my daddy's spurs and ride the arm of the couch," said Kimbro. "I'd rope the dogs and cats. We couldn't get many to stay around the house."

Clyde Kimbro, who says his son has a natural knack for bullriding, built a rodeo arena for Mel on the family's Hill bulls, weighing more than 1,100 Country ranch. Mel was riding pounds and carrying names like 500-pound bulls in local 4-H years old and turned pro at the age of 10. His father retired from fulltime competition last year and is devoting much of his time to coaching his son. The two plan to open a bullriding school

School officials excuse Kimbro, an "A" student, to travel to rodeos in New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma. He uses his prize money to buy his own bucking stock on which to practice and pays his parents 40 cents per mile to transport him.

Here it was just the second preseason tilt for the World Champion Dallas Cowboys and the game plan read like the details for the Normandy

"I felt sorry for the rookies trying to learn it all, but Coach Tom Landry is determined to be ready for the early regular season opener," said Waters. "Anyone not ready gets towed under.'

Landry has his sights on a fifth Super Bowl and would dearly love to become the first coach of three Super Bowl champion teams.

It's going to be a dose of the same old Cowboys for opponents in the National Football Conference Eastern Division with every reason to believe it will be even harder to keep pace with master craftsman Landry's

The legendary Bud Wilkinson replaced Don Coryell at St. Louis. Wilkinson's problems include replacing elusive running back Terry Metcalf, who went to the Canadian Football League, and All-Pro offensive lineman Conrad Dobler, who was traded to New Orleans. The Cardinals also need to plug a defense that permits more points than quarterback Jim Hart can offset.

The New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles were 5-9 last year but there is optimism in both camps. Giants Coach John McVay put the eighth best defense in the NFL on the field last year, but the offense could generate only an average of 12.9 points per

The Cowboys' biggest problem right now is finding a place kicker to replace Efren Herrera, who had contract problems and was traded to Seattle.

Tryout Jay Sherrill, who missed two field goals and an extra point against Pittsburgh, was placed on waivers Monday and was not claimed by any other club. The Cowboys coaches say they will decide this week whether to keep the rookie

'We're checking three or four other kickers right now." Landry said.

The team also announced it signed rookie offensive guard Tom Randall of Iowa State, who was the team's seventh round draft pick. That brings the roster to 44, with one slot left to fill- the place kicker.

In starting lineup changes, Tony Hill won the starting split end job previously shared by Super Bowl standouts Golden Richards and Butch Johnson.

Andy Frederick will start at right tackle, and Pat Donovan will be at left tackle, where he has played for the four-game preseason. Donovan replaced Ralph Neely, who retired.

This means veteran Rayfield Wright, trying to gain top form after an injury, will be the backup right tackle.

"Tony Hill is one of the most exceptional, receivers we've Baltimore had, especially in his ability to adjust to the ball and go for it," Landry said. "He has great potential." Hill is a second-year man out of Stanford.

He said Richards and Johnson performed as well in pre-season as they had ever had but that Hill was so exceptional the decision was pretty clear cut.

"I haven't made a decision on shuttling Hill," Landry said, referring to his practice last year of alternating his tight ends to get plays to the huddle.

'If I don't, I'll probably shuttle guards.

Astros Win Over Cards

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston right hander Ken Forsch spells relief s-t-a-r-t.

A mainstay in the Astros bullpen during the majority of his eight-year career, Forsch, thrust into the starting rotation one week ago, came through with his second straight victory in his new role as Houston stopped the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, Tuesday night.

"I like to start," said Forsch. who scattered nine hits while going the distance for the first time since July 26, 1975. "I really wanted to go nine innings. I was thinking about it from the first inning.

"I was really nervous at the start of the game, and I was running out of gas at the end, but I'm looking forward to my next start in Chicago this weekend."

and struck out seven and supplied some offense as well with two RBIs as Houston took its sixth win in its last seven games.

Forsch' second-inning single and Art Howe's RBI single in the third staked the Astros to a 2-0 lead against losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich, 12-10.

The Cards tied the score in the fourth on Ted Simmons' 18th home run of the season and Jerry Mumphrey's runscoring triple. Simmons' blast, a shot into the right field seats, was dating back to June 16, 1977.

Dennis Walling's sixth-inning fielder's choice scored Jose Cruz from third base to push Houston into a 3-2 lead. The Astros widened the margin wth three runs in the eighth on Walling's two-run single and a fielder's choice grounder by Forsch.

St. Louis scored its final run of the game in the ninth on Mumphrey's run-scoring single. "He had a lot of trouble throwing earlier in the year. I don't think he could have pitched effectively as a starter at that time because he was having bad outings in the bullpen."

St. Louis Manager Ken Boyer, Forsch, 8-4, walked only one whose team committed four errors as it lost for only the sixth time in its last 23 games, was disappointed with his team's performance.

> "It's probably about as bad a game as we have played all year, mentally. physically and defensively," Boyer said. "We have lost some games because of a lack of hitting at times, but this is the first time I've been really upset with mental lapses.
