Bush thinks issues will sink Perot

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush says Ross Perot may be popular now, but once the Texas billionaire is pinned down on the issues "the guy in the neighborhood" will return to Bush on Election Day.

hopeful, who is favored by as much as a third of potential voters in nationwide public opinion polls.

But Bush gave his aides and supporters the green light to do so. He also signaled that his campaign would highlight Perot's opposition to the Persian Gulf War and lobbying connections to Congress that belie Perot's claims to be a Washington outsider.

"I have the confidence that it won't be just the Republicans that will be supporting me, it will be the guy in the neighborhood" by the time election day arrives in November, Bush said.

The president sought to portray himself above the political fray. He said he had not even "been in the playing field" during the primary season, despite the fact that he barnstormed across the South before the Super Tuesday primaries in March and paid repeated visits to New Hampshire and other primary election states.

During the news conference - which only CNN of the major networks chose to carry live - Bush also:

-Renewed his attack on what he calls environmental extremists. He said he's watching out for American jobs in opposing any treaty on global warming that is tougher or more costly than the one he will sign next week at the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

"And if they don't understand it in Rio, too bad," he added in reference to criticism his decision is receiving from other summit participants.

-Expressed hopes, sure to be fulfilled, that the Republican platform committee will retain a strong anti-abortion plank that reflects his personal view.

-Said "prudence and caution prevents military action" at this time in Yugoslavia where U.N. economic sanctions have so far failed to stop the Serbian-supported army from attacking other states of the former Yugoslav republic.

-Took a swipe at Perot's independent presidential candidacy by lauding the two-party system for giving the nation "fantastic historical stability."

On Perot, whose popularity has soared while the president's approval ratings have spiraled down, Bush said he understands "the quest for change and the appeal."

"I also think the American people are pretty smart," he added. "Some day you guys are going start (asking of Perot) 'How are you going to do it, how are you going to get this through the Congress?'"

In a pointed reference to Perot's failure to support the U.S.-led war against Iraq, Bush suggested reporters also should ask whether Perot stood by Bush when he "had to make a very tough call on sending back aggression, a move that was saluted all over the entire world."

Asked if Perot, who is financing his own campaign, was trying to buy the White House, Bush said, "so far he's not."

Bush used the news conference, a rare session in the formal East Room of the White House, to beat the drum for congressional passage of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget.

Perot, at a Las Vegas campaign rally Thursday, took credit for bringing attention to that issue. Bush has backed the idea previously but this week has chosen to make it a high-profile objective.

Perot said it was "fascinating ... that suddenly we've got the president of the United States interested in a balanced budget."

Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton, interviewed on CNN's "Larry King Live" TV program Thursday night, said he found Bush's support for a balanced budget amendment "somewhere between amusing and amazing" because Bush had presided over the quadrupling of the national debt.

Clinton also chided Perot for saying the nation could cut billions in government spending without "breaking a sweat."

Bush acknowledged his own troubled standing with the American public and attributed it to the fact that most Americans still believe the economy is getting worse even though it has shown slight improvement.

He also insisted that despite polls showing most Americans think the country is heading in the wrong direction, "Americans aren't pessimists. They're not down on the country."

Buck passed on workers comp

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers blamed regulators, and other state officials blamed insurance companies for increases in workers' compensation rates when costs are going down.

Glasgow, chairman of a legislative committee that oversees the workers' comp system, asked Thursday.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, who requested the committee meet, said increased rates have hurt business and left the public with the feeling that problems with workers' comp "haven't been solved."

"Do we see light at the end of the tunnel that's not a freight train?" he asked.

Glasgow, D-Stephenville, criticized State Board of Insurance officials for not stopping increases that will give most workers' comp insurers a 15 percent rate hike.

Insurance regulators said they would review those hikes.

according to the Texas Workers' Compensation Commission.

"The insurance industry cannot argue with these results," said Cathy Bonner, executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce.

"Instead they choose to ignore them. We have given the insurance industry each and everything it has asked for. It's time for them to do the right thing and stabilize rates," she said.

But insurance representatives said they need the increases because of inadequate rates in previous years, and the question of whether the workers' comp reform law will be upheld in court.

The law was successfully challenged in district court by organized labor. That decision was appealed and the case is pending before the San Antonio appeals court.

Fred Wilkinson of Garland, branch manager of Kemper National Insurance Companies, said if the workers' comp law is upheld "you are going to see a very competitive workers' comp system."

Nuclear test ban proposed by House

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democratic-controlled House wants President Bush to impose a post-Cold War ban on nuclear weapons testing as a signal of the United States' conviction to stop proliferation of atomic arms worldwide.

the bill based on the total amount, deep troop reductions and cuts in the antimissile Strategic Defense Initiative.

Funds for SDI, commonly known as Star Wars, and a proposal to stop the B-2 stealth bomber program at 15 planes headed the list of measures on the House docket today.

Working on a $274 billion military budget, the House on Thursday voted 237-167 to impose a one-year moratorium on nuclear testing, provided the former Soviet republics continue their current unilateral ban.

The Armed Services Committee trimmed $1.1 billion from Bush's $5.4 billion request for SDI and eliminated all money for space-based weapons. The budget reflected the decision last year of committee chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., to endorse deployment of a ground-based SDI system.

The House neared final approval today of the overall bill, which is $7 billion smaller than Bush has proposed for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. The administration opposes Prizes and scholarship money will be awarded to the winner and first and second runner-ups and special awards will be presented to Miss Congeniality and to the talent winner.

Lottery record broken

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas has shattered Florida's first-week lottery sales record to become "the largest lottery selling state in history," says State Comptroller John Sharp.

An estimated 95.8 million $1 scratch-off Texas Lottery tickets had been sold by 3:15 p.m. Thursday, Sharp said.

Florida's record was 95 million tickets, set in January 1988.

The record was broken with 15 hours remaining in the Lottery's first sales week, which continued through 6 a.m. Friday. The "Lone Star Millions" game began at 6 a.m. May 29.

Ticket sales have resulted in about $43 million in cash prizes being paid to lottery players, $4 million in income to retailers, and about $38 million in new state revenue, he said.

"The Texas Lottery clearly is a winner for ticket buyers, retailers and taxpayers," Sharp said.

Instant-win prizes range from $2 to $10,000. Players also have a chance to win $1 million in cash if their ticket has the word "Entry" printed three times. Such tickets should be mailed in for special drawings to be held this summer, said Texas Lottery Director Nora Linares.

There will be a preliminary drawing at lottery headquarters Tuesday, when seven names will be chosen for a chance at the first $1 million prize. The first of 12 Grand Prize drawings will be June 18 at the Americas Ice Garden at the Plaza of the Americas in Dallas.

Two of the seven finalists will win $10,000; another two will win $15,000; one will win $25,000; and one $50,000. The seventh gets $1 million.

As of midafternoon Thursday, the Lottery reported that a total of 148 people were verified winners of the top instant prize of $10,000. A total of 618 people had collected $1,000.

Podgorica, Yugoslavia - As U.N.-imposed sanctions begin to choke his tiny republic, the president of Montenegro says he may hold a new referendum on his alliance with Serbia, his partner in internationally shunned Yugoslavia.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cuts in the super collider's budget will serve only to swell the eventual price tag of the giant atom smasher and delay its completion, supporters say.

The particle accelerator is projected to cost $8.25 billion and be operational by late 1999. But those figures could change - particularly if Congress doesn't fund the full $650 million being sought by the Bush administration for fiscal 1993, proponents said Thursday.

Their gloomy assessments came hours after a House appropriations subcommittee earmarked $483.7 million for the super collider next year - $167 million short of what Bush seeks.

"I am very disappointed," said Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, in whose district the collider is being built. "It's only the first inning in the game, but we are behind."

The super collider is being constructed near Waxahachie, about 35 miles south of Dallas.

The allocation, if approved by Congress, would keep collider funding for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 at this year's level.

"The implications of such a budget, if that's sustained through the process ... is you've got to back off and you lose momentum," said Dr. Roy Schwitters, director of the super collider laboratory. "That will have implications for the overall schedule and cost."

Barton, who has vigorously defended the collider against claims it will run over budget, said he will not be held to the $8.25 billion estimate if full funding is not received.

"If this number sticks, they can't maintain the schedule and they will not be able to maintain the budget."

Projections done in May showed that if the collider received $500 million next year - $150 million less than expected - it would add $300 million to the total cost and delay construction by 18 months, Barton said.

The reduced funding "just might be a price we have to pay to get through recessionary times," said Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, a member of the appropriations energy and water development subcommittee.

"We can only do what we can afford to do in fiscal year '93."

The collider wasn't the only project pinched as the subcommittee approved a $21.8 billion bill that is expected to be debated by the Appropriations Committee next week and the full House in two weeks.

"This is one of the tightest budget years we have ever faced," said Rep. Tom Bevil, D-Ala., who chairs the subcommittee.

"We had to maintain mostly 1992 funding levels. I think we did the best we could considering the budget constraints and I anticipate that the bill will be passed expeditiously by the full committee and the House," he said.

Chapman insisted that the reduced funding is not an indication of waning congressional support for the collider, which would be the world's largest scientific experiment.

"To the contrary, the subcommittee's report will specifically say that we recognize that this funding level is going to create some problems with the project," he said. "It is a reflection of the budget realities of 1993."

Barton and Chapman said they remain hopeful the collider's funding can be increased either in committee or on the House floor. But both say they are skeptical Congress will fund the full amount sought by the administration.

"I would be astounded to think we could attain the $650 million figure," Chapman said.

Russia, republics agree on weapons

OSLO, Norway (AP) - Promising to follow through with the Kremlin's arms control initiatives, Russia and other former Soviet republics plan to cut back on tanks and non-nuclear weapons.

The pact, expected to be signed today, further eases Western fears that the collapse of the Soviet empire would leave the republics in discord and place arms reduction efforts in jeopardy.

The landmark Conventional Armed Forces treaty was signed in November 1990 by the 16 NATO nations and the six members of the now-defunct Warsaw Pact.

The agreement calls for reductions in the enormous stockpile of tanks, artillery and other conventional arms across Europe. It was originally designed to prevent the Soviet bloc from launching a lightning strike on Western Europe.

The signing ceremony will be held on the sidelines of a meeting of foreign ministers from NATO nations and the former Warsaw Pact.

The ministers, who have met twice before in the special North Atlantic Cooperation Council, will discuss ways of forging closer ties.

But their talks may be dominated by the ethnic strife between the former Soviet republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan. Foreign ministers of both nations were expected to attend the session.

On Thursday, officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization agreed for the first time to let their troops and equipment be used for peacekeeping operations in European conflicts.

The conventional arms reduction pact is the latest weapons agreement to survive the fall of Kremlin power.

The four nuclear powers in the former Soviet Union - Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Belarus - have agreed to abide by a pact calling for reductions of about 38 percent in long-range nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines. The United States will cut its weapons by about 30 percent.

After much squabbling, the republics last month agreed on how to divvy up the conventional weapons cuts assigned the Kremlin. Russia will retain the lion's share of the arms.

A table released by NATO showed Russia holding onto 6,400 - or nearly half - of the 13,150 tanks allotted the former Soviet Union under the accord.

It would keep more than half of the 20,000 armored combat vehicles and nearly 50 percent of a total of 13,175 artillery pieces assigned by the agreement.

In addition to Russia, other former republics pledging to abide by the pact are Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Moldova and Ukraine.

All the treaty nations have promised to ratify the accord by early July, but NATO officials said recently several of the former republics were likely to miss the deadline. All NATO nations but Spain, Portugal and Turkey have approved it.

The Cooperation Council was set up in November as a way of drawing the new democracies in Eastern Europe closer - without granting them NATO membership and accompanying security guarantees. All former Soviet republics are members.

Amarillo, Dumas struck by storms

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - At least two residents were seriously injured by rushing flood waters, lightning set fire to a house and cars were left stalled across Amarillo today as thunderstorms and hail battered the Panhandle.

Several tornado sightings were reported but no damage was immediately documented, according to police.

A 23-year-old woman was in critical but stable condition today at Northwest Texas Hospital after being swept into a storm drain by flood waters in Amarillo about 2 a.m., according to a news release from the Amarillo Police Department.

Police declined to release the victim's name because her family had not been notified.

A 33-year-old man was in stable condition at Northwest Texas Hospital after becoming entangled in barbed wire amidst rushing flood water.

Amarillo police say the man was barely conscious when he was rescued. The man's name was also withheld.

Amarillo police had to impound from 25 to 35 vehicles stalled in flooded areas.

Christine Lopez, of the National Weather Service station at Amarillo International Airport, said nearly four inches of rain fell overnight in some parts of the Panhandle, including Amarillo.

In Moore County, baseball-sized hail pounded several areas and lightning set fire to a house, Moore County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Bo DeArmond said today.

"We have a lot of hail damage on vehicles and homes," he said. "The streets were flooded. We had to block some roads because of flooding."

During the storm, a house in Dumas was hit by lightning and a fire started at about 10:40 p.m. Thursday, DeArmond said.

"There was some fire damage to the roof and some smoke damage," DeArmond said.

San Antonio woman fails lottery lesson

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Kyle Pennington has a problem most people wouldn't consider a problem. She can't lose for winning.

Ms. Pennington, a single mother of three sons, bought three lottery tickets at a donut shop in an attempt to show her sons the folly of paying $3 for three worthless pieces of paper.

"They kept asking to buy lottery tickets, so I wanted to teach them that gambling doesn't get you anywhere," Ms. Pennington, a receptionist for the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas and as circulation manager for the diocesan newspaper, said.

The woman bought three tickets to show sons Shawn, 10; Patrick, 12, and William, 14, that playing the new Texas Lottery was a losing proposition. She scratched the first of the tickets and uncovered a loser.

The lesson started backfiring when the second ticket was a $20 winner. Then it really backfired on her when the third ticket was a $100 winner. She said she called her mother, Abbie McLennan, and asked, "What do I do now?"

Ms. Pennington said her mother advised her to buy two more lottery tickets so she could show the boys three losing tickets and told her to "Keep the winnings, and keep your mouth shut."

She went back into the convenience store and bought two more tickets. The first was a loser. The second was a $50 winner.

"I'm still looking for another loser. I'm afraid to buy another ticket. If I do, I'll probably win $10,000," she said.

Let's Hear That Arpeggione

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - The arpeggione is an instrument that never quite made it in musical history.

Shaped like a guitar but played with a bow, it was invented by G. Stauffer of Vienna in 1823, but never became popular.

The instrument is chiefly remembered because Franz Schubert wrote a sonata for it.

Two Hereford girls each placed in three events during Thursday's performance of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association Finals in Amarillo.

Chasity Rickman, the girls' all-around leader by 70 1/2 points going into the finals, won the goat tying event with a time of 10.318 seconds. Samantha Winters was second in 10.613.

The Finals consists of three performances, on Thursday, today and Saturday. Points from the finals are added to points accumulated throughout the season to determine the year-end winner.

Justin Henderson of Hereford is competing in bareback in the finals, but he didn't place Thursday.

Bulls regain hunger for title

By MIKE NADEL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Hunger pangs, once the Chicago Bulls' driving force, have returned.

In the earlier playoff rounds, Chicago players regularly talked about the motivational difficulty of following last season's NBA title with another inspired performance. The New York Knicks almost knocked them off. Banged-up Cleveland gave them fits.

Portland was supposed to be the hungry team in this year's NBA Finals. Clyde Drexler, like Michael Jordan a season ago, was supposed to be desperate for a title to affirm his greatness.

Sorry, Trail Blazers. The Bulls' appetite has returned. And they've already taken a big bite out of the championship pie.

"We raised our level of play last night. That was one of the best games we've played," Scottie Pippen said Thursday, the day after his Bulls opened the NBA Finals with a 122-89 victory. Game 2 is tonight at Chicago Stadium.

"I don't know if we can get any better than that, especially shooting the ball," Pippen said. "We're in high gear."

Pippen, who last year shed a "choker" label, seems determined to prove that he's a prime-time player after several spotty outings in previous playoff rounds.

"We're excited. This is the opportunity to win another ring," he said. "We are hungry. We want another win. We want a 2-0 lead before we go to Portland."

Horace Grant agreed that the Bulls' tummies have plenty of room for more victories.

"Whenever we blow a team out, everybody feels like that hunger feeling is back," he said.

Hunger may not be enough to carry the Bulls to another title. But hunger, combined with extraordinary talent, very well might.

Chicago rolled to its first championship last season and followed with a 67-15 record in 1991-92. Nevertheless, before the Finals, coach Phil Jackson said the Trail Blazers had the advantage in almost every matchup.

"I know that Phil says we overmatch them at every position. I believed him until last night," Portland coach Rick Adelman said Thursday. "All I know is I don't think there are three people in the league quicker at their positions than Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen and Horace Grant."

And the Blazers dealt poorly with all three in Game 1.

Jordan set Finals' one-half records with 35 points and six 3-pointers. Pippen had 24 points, 10 assists and nine rebounds. Grant had 11 points and seven rebounds.

The most asked question at Thursday's pre-practice press conference was: How will Portland stop Jordan in Game 2?

The Trail Blazers don't want to let Jordan go wild again Friday - specifically, they want to make sure they have a hand in his face if he's going to take a 3-pointer - but they aren't convinced that he should be their main priority.

After all, Jordan, a six-time NBA scoring champion, has had big numbers in many Chicago losses over the years.

"I looked at the box score at halftime and saw 11 offensive rebounds (for Chicago) and 12 turnovers (for Portland). That's why we were down by 15," Adelman said. "We could have survived Jordan's 35 points, because no one else was scoring. We outscored him by 16 ourselves."

Jordan is not normally a 3-point shooter, having averaged only 1.2 attempts per game over his career. Drexler, who guarded Jordan (kind of) in Game 1, said he'll again dare Jordan to put it up from outside.

"That was just a spectacular game he had," said Drexler, who managed only 16 points in his one-on-one showdown with Jordan. "How many games are you going to see like that? Be real!"

with Mel Phillips

Summer is here. School is out. Without warning, Father's Day will arrive on June 21. What do you give the man who has everything? Here's my top ten gift suggestions, and they're all better than that ugly tie he received last Christmas.

1--The newest and best fishing innovation of 1992 is "Power Bait" by Berkley. Power baits are soft plastic lures that contain special scent and flavor ingredients that increase your fish catch two-to-one over ordinary plastic worms. The professional anglers who must catch fish are very quietly using these baits because they really work. They are available at all good tackle shops and well worth the extra cost.

2--Honey Hole: the trophy bass fishing magazine of Texas costs only $18. Jerry and Debra Dean are anglers that publish my favorite magazine about Texas lakes. Each month, some 25 local experts from all across Texas report current lake conditions. Any bass angler would be delighted with a year's subscription. Write Honey Hole; P.O. Box 9027; Fort Worth, Texas 76147.

3--Head for the mountains of New Mexico, but first call Ron Simmons at Moreno Ranch near Eagle Nest Lake at (505) 377-6931. Make reservations for either a guided or an unguided fishing trip that is guaranteed to make Dad a happy camper.

4--Phantom Tackle Company has the hottest new topwater lure: a "PHish Stik." Rigged Texas style, this unique plastic lure will dance circles around other surface lures. Big bass love this bait.

5--Dr. Outdoors (P.O. Box 2938; Harlingen, Texas 78551) Using nature's healer, aloe vera, their products not only protect against the harmful effects of the sun but help heal those bothersome cuts and scratches. Made in Texas, of course.

6--For a special fishing trip, consider renting a houseboat at Lake Amistad. The fishing is great at Amistad, and surely Dad will want the entire family on this unique vacation. Call (512) 774-4157.

7--Let Dad select his own gift from the world's largest seller of fishing products. Send your name and address to Bass Pro Catalog; 1935 S. Campbell; Springfield, Mo. 65898-0123. Their seasonal catalog is free.

8--Lake Texoma striper trip. Call either Little Glasses Marina at (405) 795-2068 or John Hoffman Guide Service at (405) 564-3567 for some outstanding fishing with some really nice people.

9--For the hunters: Burnham Brothers (P.O. Box 1148; Menard, Texas 76859) are the world-leader in all kinds of game calls and hunting accessories.

10--Renew your newspaper subscription, because we want you to continue reading the latest and best information about having fun in the great outdoors.

Courier destroys Agassi

By DAVID CRARY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) - Defending champion Jim Courier overwhelmed Andre Agassi 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 with a display of powerful, almost error-free tennis today and moved into the final of the French Open.

Reaffirming his No. 1 world ranking, Courier demoralized Agassi from the start with implacable calm and brutal groundstrokes. The match took just two hours, one minute.

Agassi had billed the match as tantamount to the final because the day's second semifinal featured two outsiders. Unseeded Henri Leconte of France, the crowd favorite, faced No. 7 seed Petr Korda of Czechoslo-

Astros plate eight in first to rout Giants

By The Associated Press
Jimmy Jones had the rare opportunity to get an RBI before he ever threw a pitch in the game. "I was just happy to get two or three runs," Jones said after Houston's 12-6 romp over the San Francisco Giants on Thursday night. "But eight runs? Everybody's all relaxed after that. I'm goin', Man!"

The first eight Astros to hit Thursday night all scored. Jones, batting ninth, drew a bases-loaded walk from Kelly Downs, who was already the second Giants pitcher of the game. Starter Gil Heredia (2-1) lasted seven batters without getting an out.

"Not too many starts like that in a season," Houston manager Art Howe said. "We made them work. We got some key walks and some timely hits."

The Astros scored a season-high 12 runs with only one extra-base hit: a double by Ken Caminiti, who went 4 for 5 with two runs scored and two RBIs. They were helped by five erratic Giants pitchers, who combined for seven walks. In their last seven games, the Giants have issued 33 walks.

"We work on control, and now we're walking too many," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "I'd like the pitchers to be more aggressive. Strike one on the first pitch is the best pitch in baseball."

That wasn't happening too often Thursday night. Even after falling behind 8-0, the Giants had a black cat run off the field and into their dugout during one inning.

"The cat had better control than my pitchers," Craig said. "He knew where to go."

Jones, 3-0 with a 3.78 ERA, has not lost in five starts this season. He finished with a six-hitter over eight innings.

Heredia's ERA went from 2.08 to 6.92 by allowing seven earned runs. Craig Biggio and Finley singled to start the Astros first, and Jeff Bagwell walked to load the bases. Eric Anthony forced in the first run with a walk, and Caminiti followed with a one-run single. Luis Gonzalez then drove in two runs with a single to put the Astros up 4-0.

After Rafael Ramirez hit an RBI single to center for a 5-0 lead, Kelly Downs relieved Heredia. He walked Ed Taubensee to load the bases and then walked Jones to force in a run. Biggio grounded out to score another run and Taubensee, who took third, scored on a wild pitch to make it 8-0.

The Astros fell one batter short of tying a 23-year team record of 10 straight batters reaching base, set on July 11, 1969 against the Cincinnati Reds. Thursday night's top of the first lasted 25 minutes.

The Giants scored two runs in the bottom of the inning on Will Clark's RBI single and Cory Snyder's sacrifice fly. But Jones allowed only two more hits until the eighth, when Willie McGee doubled and Clark homered, his fifth of the season, for two more runs.

Two more Giant runs scored in the ninth off Al Osuna when Kevin Bass hit a sacrifice fly and Kirt Manwaring added an RBI single.

Caminiti and Gonzalez drove in runs with singles in the fourth for a 10-2 lead. Caminiti doubled and scored on Ramirez's grounder in the seventh to put the Astros up 11-2. Ramirez drove in his third run with a ninth-inning grounder.

Pirates 7, Mets 2
In Pittsburgh, one of the Pirates' best performances of the season was marred when former Pirate Bobby Bonilla was hit in the leg by a golf ball thrown from the stands.

Barry Bonds had a homer, a double and three runs scored to help Doug Drabek (4-4) get his first victory in six weeks.

It was Bonilla's first game back in town since signing a $29 million contract with the Mets last Dec. 2. Bonds was critical of the Pittsburgh fans, who also booed and jeered Bonilla every time he moved.

"To put somebody's career in jeopardy, that's bull," Bonds said. "I was shocked. Maybe that happens somewhere else like New York, but not here in Pittsburgh. That's terrible. They didn't boo (former Pirate) Sid Bream like that when he came back last year."

Bonds said there wasn't one fan in the stands "who would stay in Pittsburgh and play for $18 million when he could get $29 million somewhere else."

Leyland felt the golf ball incident dampened what had been one of the Pirates' better performances. Steve Buechele had a homer and three RBIs and Jose Lind had a key two-run single in the second inning off Dwight Gooden (4-6), who lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Gooden was clocked as high as 98 mph on the Pirates' radar gun, but was roughed up for six hits, five runs and four walks in 5 1-3 innings. He also hurt himself with a run-producing two-base throwing error on Drabek's bunt in the fifth inning.

Drabek (4-4) was sharper than he's been for weeks, allowing six hits and two runs over 7 1-3 innings while striking out eight and walking two. Bob Patterson got out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the eighth by allowing only Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly to get his second save.

Dodgers 7, Reds 4
At Los Angeles, Mike Scioscia's two-run triple in the fourth inning snapped a tie and Los Angeles went on to beat Cincinnati, giving Tom Lasorda his 1,300th victory as Dodgers manager.

Dave Anderson's sacrifice fly tied the score at 1-1, and Scioscia's 10th triple in 12 big league seasons scored Eric Karros and Todd Benzing to put the Dodgers in front to stay.

Orel Hershiser (5-3) pitched 6 1-3 innings for the victory, and Roger McDowell finished for his eighth save. Tom Browning (4-4) was the loser.

Twins score last to edge Texas

By The Associated Press
Kirby Puckett can be forgiven for feeling a little tired after what he's been through the last two nights.

After hitting his second career grand slam and driving in five runs 24 hours earlier, Puckett was forced to have another outstanding game just to get the Minnesota Twins over the top against the Texas Rangers.

"If I knew it was going to be like this, I wouldn't have played so hard," Puckett said after the Twins outlasted the Rangers 15-12 Thursday night. "Maybe I could DH next time."

Puckett, whose heroics paced an 11-3 victory Wednesday night over Toronto, went 4 for 5 with a two-run homer against Texas. It accounted for the final runs in a game he feared might last well beyond the even four hours it took to record 27 runs and 30 hits.

"When we were 2 1/2 hours into the game and it's only the fourth inning, you knew it was going to be a strange one," said Puckett, whose average rose 10 points to .358. "Fifteen-twelve? We were playing football tonight."

The 27 runs were the most ever scored in a Ranger game and the most in the majors this season. Minnesota finished with 14 hits and Texas had 16, numbers that reminded Twins manager Tom Kelly of the offensive-minded Pacific Coast League.

"... How many runs do you have to get to win? Fifteen? That's not very professional," Kelly said. "You'd expect to see something like that from Tucson, Albuquerque or Phoenix."

Dean Palmer, who had his first career grand slam and drove in a career-high four runs, had it pretty well figured out.

"The team that scored last was going to win," he said. "Both teams came out swinging the bats."

Texas manager Bobby Valentine has seen it before.

"It was just one of those wild and woolly games," he said. "We just didn't have enough help throwing the ball over the plate."

Chuck Knoblauch broke a 12-12 tie with an RBI single in the ninth, and Puckett followed with his two-run homer. Pedro Munoz added three RBIs for Minnesota.

The Twins won despite losing the lead three times and withstanding the slam by Palmer, who was 3 for 5. Rafael Palmeiro was 4 for 5 with three RBIs for the Rangers.

Knoblauch, who scored three runs, singled off Edwin Nunez (1-2) with one out to score Shane Mack, who reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and took third on catcher Geno Petralli's throwing error.

Bob Kipper (2-1), Minnesota's fifth pitcher, faced only two batters in the eighth. Rick Aguilera pitched a perfect ninth for his 15th save.

The Twins scored three runs off

Mike Jeffcoat in the first. Brian Harper hit an RBI single and Munoz had a two-run double.

The Twins made it 5-0 in the second on a passed ball by rookie catcher Russ McGinnis and a run-scoring single by Chili Davis.

Palmer's grand slam, his third home run in as many games, tied it at 5-5 in the bottom of the second. Dickie Thon's RBI double accounted for the first Texas run in the inning. Minnesota's Bill Krueger, who entered the game with a 5-0 record and 2.13 ERA, left after the second.

Minnesota took advantage of two walks and a wild pitch to break the tie in the third on Mack's fielder's choice.

Texas tied the game 6-6 on McGinnis' RBI double in the third and went ahead 10-6 in the fourth on Ruben Sierra's RBI single and a three-run double by Palmeiro.

The Twins sent 10 men to the plate in a six-run fifth, aided by two errors, a passed ball and three walks.

Jeff Reboulet drove in one run with a double and Harper hit a sacrifice fly. A throwing error by center fielder Juan Gonzalez, a passed ball by McGinnis and bases-loaded walks to Knoblauch and Davis accounted for four more runs.

Texas tied the game at 12-12 on pinch-hitter's Kevin Reimer's two-run single in the sixth.

Mariners 10, Indians 3
Dave Fleming ran his record to 8-1 as Kevin Mitchell and Ken Griffey Jr. each hit two home runs - including Mitchell's first career grand slam.

The Mariners jumped on Cleveland starter Denis Boucher (1-1) immediately, loading the bases with none out in the first on two singles and a walk before Mitchell's blast made it 4-0.

In the second, Edgar Martinez hit an RBI single - one of his four hits - and Griffey added a two-run homer that made it 7-0.

Boucher lasted 1 2-3 innings, allowing seven runs and six hits.

Tigers 6, Yankees 2
At New York, Detroit's Mickey Tettleton and Lou Whitaker continued the home run barrage off Scott Sanderson.

Tettleton hit a two-run first-inning homer and Whitaker, who had three hits and two RBIs, added a solo shot in the third. They brought the total of homers off Sanderson (4-3) to 16 in 12 games.

Frank Tanana (4-4) went the first five innings, allowing five hits, including Mel Hall's seventh homer.

Pepperdine ousts Texas from CWS

By TOM VINT
AP Sports Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Pepperdine pitchers made the start of the College World Series look easy for the Waves. Now people know Pepperdine also has muscle.

"We've been notorious for coming back," said All-American second baseman Steve Rodriguez, whose seventh-inning grand slam brought the Waves from a 4-1 deficit to a 5-4 victory over fourth-ranked Texas Thursday night.

"We weren't that down. We knew we'd come back," said Dan Melendez, who had a pair of doubles.

Coach Andy Lopez' 47-11-1 club goes to the school's first championship game at noon Saturday, where it will meet the winner of tonight's Miami-Cal State Fullerton contest.

Texas (49-16) goes home with a fourth-place finish, marking the 15th time in his record 16 CWS appearances that coach Cliff Gustafson teams have finished that high.

"Who isn't good here?" Lopez asked. "You can put all the names in a cap. There will be no complaints about the teams left. Cal State and Miami are also great clubs. Whoever happens to show up on Saturday, we will be ready for them."

The Waves, seeded seventh, set a CWS record for consecutive shutout innings to open a tournament with 24, erasing the old mark of 22 set by Florida State in 1970. Then Braxton Hickman's second homer of the series, a three-run liner in the top of the seventh, broke the spell.

Hickman's homer came off Wave relief ace Steve Montgomery (10-2), who had just taken over for starter Steve Duda. Duda hit pinch-hitter Doug Pettit and surrendered only his second hit of the game, both singles by Tim Harkrider.

"I was still surprised that we had shut out two teams and I was happy that we kept putting zeros up there," Lopez said.

Castro coaches Cotton Pickers

By DAVID FLORES

San Antonio Express-News
ROBSTOWN, Texas (AP) - Steve Castro was 12 years old when baseball gave him his first break in life.

"We used to pick cotton and move with the season, go where the crops were," Castro said, reflecting on those hot summers with his family. "We'd pick cotton in Robstown, Sinton and Taft, even as far north as McKinney, near Dallas."

"But when I was 12, I was an all-star (Little League) selection and my parents let me stay behind with relatives so I could keep playing baseball. My parents knew my interest was in baseball and they wanted me to stay and play Little League."

Thirty years later, Castro is still a Cotton Picker. But he isn't picking cotton anymore.

Now in his 10th season as head baseball coach at Robstown High School, Castro has led the Cotton Pickers to a 220-78-1 record and the Class 4A state tournament four of the last five years.

Robstown won its first state championship last year and is within two victories of advancing to the state tournament in Austin again. The Cotton Pickers beat Austin Westlake in a three-game series over the weekend in San Antonio to advance to the Region IV-4A finals for the sixth consecutive season.

Robstown, 25-6, plays District 30-4A rival Calallen, 24-7, in a best-of-three series that starts Friday at 8 p.m. at Cabaniss Field in Corpus Christi.

Game 2 is at 5 p.m. Saturday at Cabaniss Field, with a third game, if necessary, to follow. Robstown beat Calallen for the regional title last year.

Castro, 42, was reminded of his days as a young cotton picker during a workout last week. The third of five children born to Domingo and Amelia Castro, he started working in the cotton fields when he was 6.

"Every now and then, like when we go out to practice and it's 1 o'clock and the sun is boiling everything, I can just picture los surcos, the long rows (of cotton) that we had to pick," Castro told the San Antonio Express-News. "The kids complain about the heat, but I try to make them understand that they have it easy right now."

"Those of us who picked cotton, from sunrise to sunset, we know what it's all about. We know about the heat and the hard work."

It is that unwavering work ethic that has made Castro one of the state's most successful coaches and fueled Robstown's winning tradition, say those who know him best.

The series clincher over Westlake gave Castro the Robstown record for career victories, eclipsing the mark of 219 set by Martin Perez, who coached the Pickers in 1965 and from 1968 through 1982. He now serves as Castro's assistant.

"Steve works very hard," Corpus Christi Moody baseball coach Steve Castillo said. "You get only what you put into it and he's put a lot into his program."

Castillo cites Castro's involvement with Robstown's youth baseball program as a major factor in the Pickers' success.

"You have to go back eight, nine or 10 years," Castillo said. "He came to me and asked me how we had gotten things going at Moody. I told him that you have to hit the Little Leagues and work the kids when they're real young."

"He did just that. They're a one-high school town and every kid that grows up there wants to play for the Cotton Pickers someday. He knows every kid. He knows what he has coming up. By the time the kids go to high school, they know what to do."

A 1968 Robstown graduate, Castro was a star second baseman with the Cotton Pickers before signing a scholarship with Pan American University. When his playing career ended, Castro had no doubts about what he wanted to do next. Coaching was a natural step for someone who wanted to stay close to the game he loved.

"My goal as I was growing up was to continue with my education and play college ball," he said. "I wanted to make it to the pro level, but when that fell through, I set a second goal. I had been thinking about coaching since my freshman year in high school."

"I wanted to be involved with baseball, somehow or somewhere. I wanted to share my knowledge of the game with the kids in the community and try to be a good role model."

He succeeded in both areas. "He's got a lot of good qualities, not just one thing," new Texas A&I baseball coach Hector Salinas said.

"For example, his emotion, his intensity. He is always intense on the field and that intensity is reflected in the kids."

"He's very knowledgeable of the game. The kids really, really respond to him because they know he gives his all. The kids play more for him than for anybody else."

Castro started his coaching career as an assistant at Edinburg High School after graduating from Pan American in 1973. He moved back to Robstown in 1974 to work with the town's parks and recreation department, staying with that job until his alma mater beckoned.

Castro joined the Robstown High School staff in 1976, working as an assistant coach under Perez for six years. Castro attributes much of his success to Perez.

Perez, 59, was an assistant under Zeke Rodriguez when Castro played for the Cotton Pickers.

"Coach Perez was like a role model to me," Castro said. "He set very good examples."

Perez actually traded jobs with Castro after the 1982 season, handing the head coaching duties to his assistant.

"He wanted to get a head coaching job and he was looking to leave," Perez recalled. "But after 20 years of head coaching, I was ready to hand the reins over to him. I told him, 'You can be the head coach and I'll be the assistant.' It didn't matter to me. I didn't want to see him go."

"We're real close. He's my protege. Our whole coaching staff is like that. We joke a lot and it's just like family. Steve eats and loves baseball. He's Mr. Baseball."

Castro's low-key demeanor off the field belies his competitive, highly intense nature on the baseball diamond.

"He's got a good sense of humor, but as soon as he gets on the field, it looks like his neck sticks out," Castillo said. "He gets in a bulldog stance and it looks like he wants to fight."

Amelia Castro said her son started developing that intensity at a young age.

"He used to eat baseball for breakfast, lunch and supper," she said. "That was his love. He was very dedicated."

Amelia Castro attends most of Robstown's games with the rest of the coach's family. Castro's father died in 1980.

Castro and his wife, Phyllis, have three children, Steve Jr., 15, a second baseman on the Robstown freshman team; Felicia, 11; and Stacy, 9.

For all of his success, Castro has a rather simple philosophy toward coaching.

"As long as you do your best and your players do their best, and you know you prepared the players the best you can, that's all that counts," Castro said. "We have pretty good talent here in Robstown, but our hearts are bigger."

Study at SMU could lead to sports being dropped

DALLAS (AP) - A study that could lead to football and other sports being dropped at Southern Methodist or scaled back to less competitive levels has been ordered by school President A. Kenneth Pye.

Among the options Pye will present next fall to the SMU board of trustees is elimination of SMU athletics entirely, a prospect he considers unlikely. The Dallas Morning News reported in its early Friday editions.

Disgruntled alumni would withhold gifts, and many students would not attend a school without bigtime football, supporters say.

Ticket sales and alumni gifts have dropped since the NCAA shut down the SMU football program for one year in 1987 because of improper payments to athletes. SMU stayed out of football one more season on its own.

Over the past four years, SMU's record is 4-29 in football and 32-53 in basketball.

Alumni support for athletics remains about half the pre-death penalty level, said Mustang Club director Steve Wilensky. After falling to as low as $450,000 in 1987-88, donations have settled at about $800,000 annually, compared to about $1.6 million in 1983-84.

The newspaper said Pye has hired The McKenzie Group, a Washington, D.C., team of educators, scholars and analysts to study the future of athletics. The group will also try to estimate the effect that changes to the athletic program would have on alumni giving, student enrollment and the deficit.

The Gallup Organization Inc., has been hired to poll students, alumni, potential corporate sponsors and high school applicants about SMU's image and the effect of potential changes.

vakia, who had never before played on center court here.

In the first two sets, Courier made only a handful of mistakes while Agassi doublefaults contributed to his foe's first two service breaks. At match point, Agassi made an unforced error on a backhand.

In the women's final Saturday, top-seeded Monica Seles will be seeking here third straight title against No. 2 seed Steffi Graf, the champion here in 1987 and 1988.

Their last meeting in a Grand Slam final was here in 1990, when Seles won 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

Seles had a day off today after outbattling third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, in the most spectacular, best-played women's match of the tournament.

Graf, who rallied to beat Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, 0-6, 6-2, 6-2, had a women's doubles semifinal today.

Asked to pick the women's winner, both Sabatini and Sanchez Vicario opted for Seles.

Graf holds a 5-2 career edge over Seles, but they haven't played each other this year. They have split four matches on clay, including two at the French Open.

Both Graf's most recent Grand Slam titles - Wimbledon last year and the Australian Open in 1990 - came when Seles skipped the tournaments. Graf hasn't won a Grand Slam in which Seles played since the 1989 U.S. Open.

"It's a very good feeling to be in the final, and that really was more or less my goal," Graf said Thursday, reiterating that she feels happier and stronger now than she has in months.

"I really enjoyed it out there," she said of her semifinal victory. "Despite the first set, I think I showed a lot of emotion, and I showed that I enjoyed it. That is the difference right now."

Graf suffered her worst defeat as a pro a year ago when Sanchez Vicario beat her 6-0, 6-2 in the semifinals at Roland Garros. Thursday's match began as a rerun, but ended with Graf smiling in relief.

Seles had to stave off a determined comeback by Sabatini, and fell behind 2-4 in the final set before battling back. As winner of the Australian Open in January, she kept alive her chances to capture all four Grand Slam tournaments.

U.S. continues refusal to sign summit treaty

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - The U.S. government has rebuffed last-ditch efforts to win its approval for a treaty protecting endangered plants and animals, calling proposed changes in the document's language too superficial.

Signing of the biodiversity treaty, a centerpiece of the Earth Summit, was to begin today.

An administration official in Washington told The Associated Press late Thursday that the Brazilians had offered to make "cosmetic changes" to the treaty in order to win U.S. support.

"The U.S. stuck to its guns," because the Brazilian suggestions did not address fundamental U.S. concerns, said the official, who spoke on condition he remain anonymous.

In a gesture that could blunt some criticism of U.S. footdragging on summit agreements, chief U.S. delegate William K. Reilly announced Thursday that the U.S. Forest Service would end clear-cutting as standard policy in U.S. national forests.

Another centerpiece of the summit, the global warming treaty, was made available for signing Thursday in a ceremony led by U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali. President Bush plans to sign it when he arrives next week.

The biodiversity treaty provides for the protection of endangered and threatened animals and ecosystems. It also calls for industrialized countries to compensate developing nations for resources used to make commercial products.

The United States has come under heavy criticism for its refusal to support the accord. Washington argues that the United States would contribute much of the money while spending decisions would be left to developing nations, which have the greatest variety of species.

The administration official's comments put Reilly, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, in a difficult spot.

Earlier Thursday, he had said the United States may support the treaty if minor changes were made in the document. He said that while he did not expect Bush to sign it during the summit, the United States might sign in the future if other countries reopened the treaty for amendment.

It was the latest rift between Reilly and White House officials, who have overturned a number of his positions, most recently involving air pollution and wetlands protection.

The New York Times, in today's edition, quoted a senior White House official as saying Reilly had offered the changes without the agreement of the White House.

Reilly could not be immediately reached to comment on the dispute.

Sadaaki Mumata, spokesman for the Japanese delegation, said "a number of countries" are willing to discuss reopening talks on the biodiversity treaty, which was negotiated in May in Nairobi.

Mumata said the treaty is under "intensive consideration" by Tokyo. Japan, like the United States and Britain, has refused to sign, and for similar reasons.

Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello was first to sign the global warming treaty.

More than 120 heads of state are expected to add their signatures when they arrive later at the summit, which ends June 14. Nations have until June 19, 1993, to do so.

In pre-summit negotiations, the United States rejected limiting carbon dioxide emissions to 1990 levels by 2000, as sought by European and other countries. The treaty now calls for reducing those emissions - a primary cause of global warming - but sets no target.

Bush late Thursday defended his position against a tough global warming treaty advocated by many European nations.

"I have some responsibility ... to families in this country who want to work, some of whom can be thrown out of work if we go for too costly an answer to some of these problems," he told a Washington news conference.

In announcing the changes in U.S. forestry practices, Reilly did not say what method would replace clear-cutting, a practice in which an entire area of forest is leveled, leaving nothing but stumps and debris.

He said clear-cutting would continue only when necessary to develop parks and watersheds, or to rehabilitate diseased or damaged forests.

"The list of exceptions has got loopholes big enough to drive a logging truck through," said Brock Evans of the National Audubon Society.

The Dentist and the Empress
PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Thomas W. Evans (1823-1897) was a dentist whose skills won him international acclaim.

In 1848, he was invited to Paris to attend to the teeth of President Louis Napoleon, and his practice in France made him wealthy.

In 1870, the Empress Eugenie, wife of Louis Napoleon, found refuge from an angry mob in the home of Evans, who helped her escape to England.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I love you like a sister, Ann. You're terrific. But may I differ with you on your advice to "Sick of Sickness in Mississippi?"

This woman was fed up with relatives who bring their sick children to family gatherings. Well, so am I and thousands of other moms.

Frankly, Ann, this is incredibly inconsiderate behavior and it doesn't pertain only to family gatherings. Every day, parents are dumping their sick kids off at day care, infecting all the other children because they don't want to take a few precious days off to quarantine their own little darlings.

Your advice that there is little one can do except keep current on the kids' shots was gutless and uncharacteristic. "Grin and bear it" just doesn't cut it, Ann. Parents who do this are selfish louts who simply don't want to be left out, even for a day. You should have told them just that.

All parents ought to be encouraged to be assertive enough to tell the jerks, as follows: "Look, sis, you know I love you, but if you think it's OK to bring your sick kids to these affairs and infect all the rest of us with whatever ails your household, you are sadly mistaken."

Parents have enough trouble standing up for themselves and their kids without being told by the wonderful Ann Landers that there's nothing they can do about it.—Fed Up, Too, in Topeka

DEAR TOPEKA: Shame on me for being so gutless. You are absolutely right. Saying that nothing could be done about the problem was really dumb. Your answer was a lot better than mine and I thank you for writing. My readers deserved better than that.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just watched my dad die from lung cancer after smoking cigarettes for 50 years. My mother and I watched him take his last breath and thanked God that he was no longer suffering.

Two years ago, he was in intensive care for three weeks, hooked up to machines and oxygen to keep him alive after the surgery which removed half of one lung. And yet he continued to smoke.

My mother and I saw him dwindle down to nothing but skin and bones while the cancerous tumors in his chest grew larger each day.

My father will never see his only granddaughter graduate this year. He'll never see his grandchildren get married and have children of their own. He won't be able to share his retirement years with his wife and reap the rewards of working all those years. He wanted to quit smoking, but this terrible, addictive habit of 50 years drove him to choose a so-called pleasure over precious years of life.

I beg of everyone, especially you teen-agers, if you don't smoke, please, please don't start. It is a lot easier not to start a habit than it is to break it. And if you DO smoke, stop now! If not for yourself, do it for those who love you and will miss you when you die.

Ann, I know this is long, but if just one person gives up their cigarettes after reading this, it will be worth the time it took to write it.—Missing My Dad in Raleigh, N.C.

DEAR RALEIGH: What a poignant plea. I'm sure that somewhere in my reading audience you touched a responsive chord. Thank you, thank you, thank you for the lives you saved today.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It's time someone told the world what it's like for a woman to be widowed or divorced. I hope your female readers will find this letter useful.

I'm 45. People say I'm very attractive and that I look 35. I am financially secure, have a good job, own my home and have two children, ages 20 and 22. I became a widow three years ago. Here's the true picture:

Eligible men between 40 and 55 are virtually non-existent. Your pool of "prospects" will be in singles bars, parent groups and singles organizations. The ratio of women to men is about 20-to-1. So, if you are contemplating divorce and are 40 or older, take another look. Is there any possibility that your marriage can be salvaged? The quality of available men will shock you. If your spouse is an ordinary, run-of-the-mill guy, he will be snatched up immediately. YOU will not be so fortunate.

Available women are a dime a dozen. If you're not aggressive or gorgeous, you'll spend a lot of time alone. I invested $2,000 in a vacation and all I got out of it was the knowledge that I'd better learn how to be single again.

When you become a widow, everyone wants to be your friend—for about three months—then you're on your own. It's not that people stop caring, they just need to get on with their own lives.

My experiences with singles groups have been disastrous. The widows are depressing, can't stop talking about what a saint their husband was and are desperate for male companionship. The divorced ones are bitter and angry and talk of nothing but their ex-husbands, how difficult it is to get child support and how badly they were treated.

The prognosis is dismal. Once you've been married, it's lousy to be alone. Sign me.—Not Bitter, Just Realistic

DEAR N.B.J.R.: True, widows and divorcees are not in great demand, but to suggest that they are destined to be lonely and miserable is a truly sour and inaccurate projection. Moreover, it would be sheer lunacy to suggest that being married no matter how flawed and inadequate the relationship is better than being alone.

Over the years I've received thousands of letters from women who freed themselves of alcoholic, abusive or unfaithful spouses and found genuine peace and contentment once they gathered the strength to throw the bum out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Have you lost your mind? What in the world were you doing when you replied to "Depressed in New England," the guy who let his wife, Vera, date his boss in order to save his job? Were you maybe bungee-jumping off the Wrigley Building?

Generally you're right on target, but you really blew this one. I'll bet if the shoe were on the other foot you would have said, "Unload the creep." You should have told the guy to tell his boss if he wants Vera, he can keep her.

And if there is any suggestion that he might be canned, he should get a smart lawyer and sue the pants off of Mr. Boss for discrimination, harassment and mental anguish.

Granted, Ann, the case may not be winnable, but because of the potential embarrassment, Mr. Boss, in all likelihood, would be happy to settle out of court.—Steaming in San Juan

DEAR STEAMING: You weren't the only reader who thought my answer was a turkey. I'm eating my words. Gobble, gobble. Chomp, Chomp.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine,

LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Students honor teacher

The third grade class at Northwest School honored their teacher, Tonya Carder, with a baby shower May 27 in the home of J.P. Holman.

Following the presentation of gifts to the honoree, refreshments of lemonade and cookies, furnished by LuAnn Carter, were served to those attending. They included the honoree's mother, Mrs. Jones, Ms. Ponce, Jamie Holman, students and hostesses, Kaye Holman and Rose Mary Shook.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

I WILL CRY OUT UNTO THE LORD

THE PATRIARCHS AND THE PROPHETS OF OLD TOOK ALL THEIR JOYS AND SORROWS TO THE LORD IN PRAYER. THEY WERE COMPLETELY CONVINCED THAT GOD HEARD ALL THEIR UTTERANCES WHETHER OF SADNESS OR OF REJOICING. WE CAN SAY THE BOOK OF PSALMS HAD ITS BEGINNINGS IN THE PETITIONS OF THESE EARLY WORSHIPERS. IT TOOK MANY, MANY CENTURIES BEFORE THIS BOOK OF SACRED POETRY WAS FORMULATED. PRAYER SEEMS INSTINCTIVE WITH ALL MEN, AND IN HIS EXTREMITY OF NEED MAN CRIES OUT TO GOD. "DRAW NIGH TO GOD," SAYS THE PSALMIST, AND THIS WAS WHAT MEN SOUGHT TO DO. EVEN JESUS RESORTED TO PRAYER FROM THE PSALMS ON MANY OCCASIONS. HE FREQUENTLY PRAYED BEFORE MEALS OR BEFORE THE WORKING OF MIRACLES. EVEN HIS HUMAN NATURE IS EVIDENT IN PRAYER IN THE GARDEN OF GETHSEMENE AND ALSO ON THE CROSS. "MY GOD, MY GOD, WHY HAST THOU FORSAKEN ME?" THIS UTTERANCE FROM JESUS ON THE CROSS WAS THE START OF PSALM 22:1. HOW MANY PROPHETS BEFORE JESUS MADE THIS SAME CRY CAN NEVER BE KNOWN. PATRIARCHS, PROPHETS, KINGS, POOR MEN, ALL KNEW THAT COMMUNION WITH GOD WOULD BRING THEM THE HELP THEY NEEDED.
