Tapes Submitted by Davis Prosecutors

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - Prosecutors could introduce more tape-recorded testimony today in an attempt to further tie millionaire Cullen Davis to a bizarre murder-for-hire plot calling for the executions of a divorcee and three witnesses who testified against Davis at his sensational murder trial last year.

Over the vehement objections of defense lawyers, prosecutors Tuesday introduced two tape recordings of conversations that allegedly took place between Davis and a police informant.

A district judge allowed the tapes to be played in support of testimony by the informant, David McCrory, a 40-year-old former karate instructor and employee of a Davis-controlled firm.

McCrory, the state's star witness, testified Davis told him to hire a professional gunman to carry out a macabre murder scheme involving several persons.

The alleged death list is said to have included the names of Judge Joe Eidson, the presiding judge in Davis' four-year-old divorce case; Davis' wife Priscilla, Beverly Bass and Gus "Bubba" Gavrel, who testified against Davis at his murder trial in Amarillo last year;

Gavrel's father, who Davis reportedly fears has put out a contract on his life; Judge Tom Cave, who presided at Davis' first murder trial in Fort Worth that ended in a mistrial; Bill Davis, Cullen's younger brother; and W.T. Rufner, one of Mrs. Davis' former lovers.

"He (the gunman) may take a bunch of them off at once," McCrory is heard to say one of the tapes. "I mean, he's that kind of person and he'll just waste...a bunch of them and get a bunch of it over with at once."

On the tape, Davis is heard to reply, "Well...that suits the-out of me."

Davis was arrested Sunday and charged with solicitation of capital murder after he allegedly met McCrory in a Fort Worth parking lot and paid him $25,000 in $100 bills for the murder of Eidson. FBI agents had rigged McCrory, who tipped authorities to the purported plot last week, with hidden recording devices prior to his meetings with Davis.

Defense attorneys claim Davis was set up and framed.

The prosecution is seeking to deny bond on the charge.

During one of the tapes played in court Tuesday, Davis and McCrory allegedly carry on a 23-minute discussion of a plan (See DAVIS, Page 2)

Blood Mobile In Hereford Today

By donating one pint of blood today, an individual can secure blood insurance for his immediate family for one year, announces Joan Bookout, chairman of the local blood drive.

Mrs. Bookout is urging all eligible blood donors to report to the Community Center from 3-6 p.m. today in order to decrease the local blood debt of 191 pints. Contributed pints of blood are forwarded to Coffee Memorial Blood Center, which meets the blood needs of the Texas Panhandle.

Instead of giving blood as a premium for blood insurance, an individual can designate blood for one of the following accounts: the late Bonnie Moore, who owes 15 pints; the late Pearl Gass, owing 8 pints; Robert Beles, 4 pints; Boulah Robinson, 8 pints; Wayne Milam, 16 pints; Eric Martin, 50 pints; Hermelina Delgado, 24 pints; Janie Zepeda, 8 pints; Elsa Balderaz, 16 pints; Annie Cummings, 8 pints; or Larry Bala, 34 pints.

Hereford High band director Randy Vaughn shouts instructions to his players Tuesday night, the second night of workouts for the full marching band. Workouts will continue until the season-opening football game when Hereford hosts Pampa on Sept. 8. The band will perform at halftime. Vaughn said this year's version of the Big Red Band may be one of the best in the school's history.

USDA Urges Rebuilding of Herds

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is warning cattle producers about the possibility of severe consumer backlash if they don't soon begin rebuilding their breeding herds.

Recent Agriculture Department reports indicate that producers have continued to liquidate cattle herds and that beef output will continue to drop in the next few years. One indication has been the relatively high slaughter rate of cows and the placement of potential breeding heifers in feedlots which they are sold to packing houses.

Bergland said today that unless beef producers start rebuilding their herds, they are inviting another price disaster of the kind that depressed the beef cattle sector so severely in the mid-1970s.

After the U.S. cattle inventory peaked on Jan. 1, 1975 at a record 132 million head, producers began an unprecedented sell-off to reduce losses triggered by sagging market prices for beef animals. By last Jan. 1, as prices were on their way to recovery, the inventory was down to about 116 million head. A further cutback to 110 million to 112 million by Jan. 1, 1979, seems likely, according to USDA experts.

Bergland made his remarks in a prepared statement scheduled for release today in Missoula, Mont. A copy of it was issued here by his office.

I can understand the temptation of ranchers to cash in on good profits after nearly three years of severe losses, Bergland said. But the favorable supply and demand situation for the next few years suggests it is a good time to take stock of some of the longer-run opportunities and plan realistically to maintain a stable market for farmers and ranchers.

One reason, he said, is that excessively high beef prices could invite certain unfavorable reaction from consumers, whose political influence outweighs the clout of the relatively few producers.

A department spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said that Bergland's remark presumably referred to the outside possibility of presidential action to restrict prices or open the door wide to imports of foreign beef.

President Carter has said that he will not impose price controls and does not plan to allow more beef imports in the near future.

The spokesman said, however, that this possibly could change if retail beef prices soared much beyond their record peaks of this summer and showed no sign of easing down the road because of cattle producer rebuilding their herds.

Meanwhile, Bergland said in his Missoula statement that he reaffirms Carter's pledges of no price controls and no further increases in imports this year and no total removal of import limitations next year.

Federal Government To Auction off Gold

WASHINGTON (AP) - The federal government, hoping to restore some health to the ailing dollar, is putting 3 million of its 278 million ounces of gold on the auction block.

While the sale, announced by the Treasury Department Tuesday, will have little immediate consumer effect because the United States is not on the gold standard, any success in rescuing the dollar would eventually moderate retail price rises for imported goods.

As the dollar's value has slipped overseas, foreign manufacturers and importers have raised their prices for goods sold in this country. And because many of those products compete with domestically produced goods, American manufacturers have been able to raise their prices as well.

Hours after the announcement - the second in a series of government measures designed to bring stability to the dollar and cure other economic problems - the dollar rose on the Tokyo foreign exchange market.

Opening at 191 yen to the dollar Wednesday, the dollar quickly went to 192.40, up from Tuesday's close of 191.70. One dealer attributed the rise to the announcement of increased gold sales.

The dollar hit a record post-war low of 184.65 yen to the dollar on Aug. 2.

On Friday, the Federal Reserve said it was 522 to 5 to protect the dollar by raising interest rates to make foreign investments more attractive here.

And the U.S. is promising additional actions to protect the dollar, which has fallen more than 30 percent against the Japanese Yen and 15 percent against the German mark in the last year.

The government believes too much American currency is held overseas and hopes its gold sales will persuade foreigners to spend some of their dollars for the U.S. gold.

School Registration Scheduled in District

Registration for Hereford students for the school year which begins Monday, Aug. 28, will be Thursday, it has been announced by the administration offices of Hereford Independent School District.

Drainage Prompts Reactions

By JIM STEIERT
Outdoors Editor

Public reaction to the draining of Buffalo Lake at nearby Umbarger is ranging from mild surprise to outrage in the wake of orders from the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to release some 6,000 acre-feet of water from the impoundment.

The flood gate at the Buffalo Lake dam was opened at noon yesterday to begin the four-month process of draining the lake.

The draining was ordered due to concern over the safety of the spillway, and will result in the loss of the most significant amount of water to be held in the lake in at least a decade.

Concern over the spillway was prompted due to the danger that its collapse might pose to the Canyon community in the event of a flash flood.

Heavy rains May 26 and May 27 caused water to rise within seven feet of Buffalo's spillway, and gave the lake a virtual lease on life after it had remained dry since draining due to pollution in 1973.

Engineers from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Texas Department of Water Resources, the Bureau of Reclamation and the Interior Department have all declared Buffalo's spillway unsafe.

A Texas Department of Water Resources inspection of the dam at Buffalo on June 2 showed the dam to be in good condition, but inspectors indicated that the spillway "is unstable and actual performance is questionable."

The inspection team suggested repairs to the spillway as the safest course "for all concerned."

Although the Interior Department has known about structural weakness at the dam's spillway since 1967, the Fish and Wildlife Service plans to negotiate with the Bureau of Reclamation to do a study to determine what corrective measures need to be taken to repair the dam's spillway only after the lake is fully drained.

Public outrage over the loss of the first water to be held in the lake in many years is widespread throughout the Panhandle.

Many residents question why the spillway wasn't repaired during the five years in which the lake was dry, rather than waiting until the lake was finally revitalized to make the decision and thus lose the valuable water.

Larry Wynn, acting manager at the refuge, reported that an outpouring of public reaction might bring a halt to the draining of Buffalo, at least temporarily, while a study is made to determine if repairs can be made with the water

Sadat Issues Another Plea for Peace

By The Associated Press
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat says that at the upcoming Camp David summit he will strike for a permanent peace in the Middle East and will not accept any partial solutions with Israel.

Sadat's comments, at a political rally Tuesday in the Nile Delta town of Talla, appeared to be a response to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's statement Sunday that he has a plan for a "partial, permanent" agreement with Egypt that he will take to the Sept. 5 summit with Sadat and President Carter at the presidential retreat in Maryland.

Sadat drew cheers from the crowd of 6,006 politicians, farmers and workers when he reassured that at the Camp David talks he will work for "a lasting peace based on justice, peace that cannot be achieved unless the Palestinian problem is solved."

"There is no room for any partial solution or separate agreement," he said.

The Camp David talks are aimed at reviving efforts for a settlement of the 30-year-old Arab-Israeli conflict. Direct Egyptian-Israel negotiations have remained deadlocked for the past eight months.

Egypt and the other Arab states are demanding total Israeli withdrawal from war-occupied Arab territories and establishment of an independent Palestinian homeland. The Begin government refuses to agree to total withdrawal and has offered only limited self-rule for the Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip with a continued Israeli military presence there.

Tison Body Found By Arizona Lawmen

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—The body of escaped murderer Gary Tison was found Tuesday hidden under bushes in a desert wash, ending one of Arizona's most intense manhunts.

Five persons are dead since the killer's escape July 30 from Arizona State Prison - and authorities suspect two more bodies will turn up.

Tison had said he wouldn't be taken alive.

But he didn't die in a blaze of bullets, Jimmy Cagney style. He rotted in the unforgiving Arizona desert, about a mile from where his son Donald was killed in a gun battle with police. Authorities captured other members of the Tison gang then, but he fled into the desert.

Authorities in southern Colorado began searching for a Texas couple after the escapees were discovered driving their van at the roadblock near here. The newlywed couple, James and Margene Judge, of Amarillo, were on a camping trip near South Fork, Colo., when they disappeared.

The discovery of Tison's badly decomposed remains came early Tuesday. Maricopa County medical examiners confirmed that the body was Tison. He had not been wounded, and Eloy Ysasi, an investigator for the medical examiner's office, said he probably died of heat stroke or exposure.

Congressman Says MIAs Not Alive

HANOI, Vietnam (AP)—The leader of a U.S. congressional delegation visiting Vietnam says he believes none of the Americans missing in the Vietnam War are still alive. But two others say they think some might still turn up.

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., head of the eight-member group, said Tuesday the Vietnamese are trying to resolve the MIA issue to clear a major stumbling block to normal relations with the United States, and that he believes none of the MIAs are alive.

But Rep. Sam G. Hall, D-Texas, said he had a "gut feeling somebody might still turn up." And Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., said he had not given up hope.

About 2,500 Americans servicemen are still unaccounted for in Indochina. All except 355 are listed as dead although their bodies not recovered.

Premier Pham Van Dong told the congressmen that his government will give them the remains of 11 more U.S. servicemen as proof of its desire to establish full relations with the United States.

Property Tax Rollback Studied in Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—The city Tax Appraisal Board's approval of Houston Mayor Jim McConn's executive order rolling back property taxes to 1977 levels means homeowners in 250 subdivisions will be free of tax increases until 1980.

McConn implemented his own plan Tuesday, saying it was impossible to get a consensus from the City Council.

Under the plan, half the city will be revalued next year and placed on the tax rolls at those levels in 1980. The other half will be reassessed for the 1982 tax rolls.

The tax rollback will mean a $7 million revenue loss for the city this year and a $7.3 million overall loss to the Houston Independent School District, said Guy Griscom, acting city tax assessor.

The mayor said the rollback wouldn't help the school district, but added, "They are going to have to do as we are. They are going to have to do some belt-tightening."

The tax plan will cost HISD $12.9 million in operating revenues during the next two years, but Superintendent Billy Reagan promised fight to keep raises for teachers and other employees.

Police Report

Hereford police were involved in two high-speed chases Tuesday and early this morning, with one resulting in minor injuries to two city teenagers.

A 16-year-old male and 14-year-old female were injured, although not seriously enough to be hospitalized, when they lost control of their motorcycle about four miles east of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60.

The motorcycle flipped over, hurling both teenagers into the air, when they lost control in a barditch. Policemen Ted Langgood and Dale Morgan, the drivers of two patrol cars, had pursued the motorcycle at a high rate of speed prior to the accident.

Langgood said the chase began when the couple ran a stop sign at 6th and Jackson. The male driver of the motorcycle was issued numerous traffic citations and charged with fleeing from a police officer.

Sgt. David Wheeler chased a Pontiac Trans-Am from the 600 block of Park Ave. to 13th Street and Ave. G after 12:30 a.m. today, then lost the car.

About two hours later, Wheeler spotted the car near the high school and managed to cut it off in the school parking lot. The driver, an 18-year-old male, was cited for several traffic offenses and fleeing from a police officer.

James Carl Salmon, of the El Dorado Arms Apartments, was arrested this morning on a warrant from Junction. He was jailed on a charge of theft by check.

Pat Brooks, 126 Fir, told police Tuesday that someone stole her coin purse from her car while she was paying for gas at the Handy Hut, 817 W. Park. Jude Barton, Holiday Motor Motel, reported the theft of a citizen's band radio from her unlocked car.

A tire and rim reportedly were stolen early this morning or Tuesday night from Osborn's Used Cars, 221 N. 25 Mile Ave. Two juveniles were arrested Tuesday for allegedly stealing a dog from 123 Kibbe.

to kill Mrs. Davis and Eidson. Prosecutors said the tape was made last Friday.

Another tape played at the hearing was of a telephone conversation prosecutors said took place between McCrory and Davis, during which McCrory told Davis he had someone working on the murder scheme. That conversation reportedly took place early Saturday evening.

Prior to his arrest Sunday, Davis was free on $325,000 bond on charges stemming from an August 1976 midnight shooting spree at the Davis' $6 million hilltop mansion that left two persons dead and two wounded.

Davis was charged with two counts of capital murder and two counts of attempted murder in connection with that incident. He was acquitted in Amarillo last November of the shooting death of his 12-year-old step-daughter. The other charges are still pending.

Miss Bass, Gavrel and Mrs. Davis testified at that trial that Davis was the mysterious "man in black" who fired the shots.

McCrory testified Tuesday that Davis also wanted Gavrel's father killed because he was afraid "if he got someone to kill just Beverly and Bubba Gavrel, he thought Bubba's daddy, who Cullen thought was a nut, would pick up a shotgun and blow his head off."

In another conversation, McCrory testified Davis told him he had 15 people he wanted to have killed.

"He said he didn't want to tell me the rest of the names right then," McCrory said.

McCrory said he told Davis professional killers demanded $200,000 to kill Mrs. Davis, $100,000 to kill Eidson, and $75,000 apiece for Miss Bass and the Gavrels. He said Davis claimed the prices were too high.

McCrory said Davis planned to blame the judge's slaying on the Brown Berets, a Mexican-American activist group. He said Davis instructed him to arrange the beating of a Mexican, after which a phony tape would be sent to a radio station in an attempt to show the Brown Berets were taking credit for the judge's murder.

McCrory testified Davis "felt very, very sure Judge Eidson was going to try to break him. He said he knew Judge Eidson was in cahoots, in bed with, Jerry Loftin and Ronald Aultman," Mrs. Davis' attorneys.

"Unless he did something quick that sonuvabitch was going to ruin him. It had gotten to the point where something started to have to happen," McCrory said.

In reference to the alleged plan to kill Miss Bass, McCrory said Davis told him to make it appear the death was drug related, and told him to cut the young girl to pieces "so nobody could ever recover the body."

He testified Davis told him he wanted Miss Bass killed because she was the only person the Amarillo jury that acquitted him last year had believed.

McCrory said Davis was adamant about remaining anonymous to the killers.

McCrory said he protested and Davis told him, "If you cross me again...I'll have you, your wife and your whole damn family killed...you know I have the money and the power...and don't you think I'm joking, because I'm serious."

McCrory said he was assured he would be handsomely rewarded. "I have other people who could get it done, but I can't trust them. David, you're the only one I can trust," Davis reportedly said.

The witness said they discussed a financial arrangement ranging from $10,000 to $100,000. Under direct questioning by prosecutor Tolly Wilson, he said Davis came to him with such an offer because Davis knew a lot of "local hoodlums and police characters" dating back to the time he owned a night spot called the Pink Elephant.

Most of Davis' crack team of lawyers which defended him in the murder trial was on hand Tuesday. It included Richard "Rachorse" Haynes of Houston, Phil Burleson of Dallas and Bill Magnusson of Fort Worth.

"We intend to show Cullen was set up and framed," Burleson told a reporter during a break Tuesday. "We hope to make that abundantly clear." He did not say who they thought set up Davis.

He said the alleged setup would be the defense's theme throughout the hearing, which he said would take up the substantial part of this week "if not all of it."

Before the hearing, lawyers huddled with Judge Authur Tipples, a retired judge from Wichita Falls, who is hearing the case.

At a bond hearing two years ago following his arrest on the murder charge, Davis was refused bail and spent 15 months in jail.

"The thirty days which followed were viewed by many as alternately tedious and tempestuous, but those who understand the legislative process know that they were simply viewing the way that a democracy writes law."

Briscoe, claiming pride in the accomplishments of the special session, called on the press to inform the voters before they go to the polls next November to vote on the tax relief amendment. The governor pointed out that the tax relief package will provide in excess of $1 billion for the people of Texas.

Briscoe emphasized that, in Texas,

Perhaps the highlight of the press convention was a featured address by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. It was the best talk we've ever heard the governor make, and he relieved our doubts about the need of a special session.

"A regular session of the Legislature is not the time or place to discuss tax relief because the pressures for spending are far too strong. I knew that if we were to have tax relief, it would have to come from a special session in which attention could be focused on that issue alone," states Briscoe.

Buffalo Lake

remaining in the lake. "The spillway is their main concern, and they are afraid that with the water already here, a flash flood could wash the spillway out. What they don't seem to realize is that the rains of May 26-27 were a once in 20 or 30 year occurrence, and that it may be that long before we get that much water in this lake again," commented Wynn.

Wynn received orders only shortly after the lake filled to get it back in service as a recreation area, and has spent much of the summer doing just that.

Looking to future recreation at the lake, over 50,000 fish, including bass, crappie, channel catfish and sunfish were stocked during this summer. All of the fish will be lost when the lake is drained.

"We've had an outstanding recreation summer here, because people don't have to drive that far to get here, and there are plenty of nice picnic tables in the shaded areas around the lake. We had 28,000 visitors here in July, and will log that many here in August. It's a popular recreation area again, because of the water, and all that is going to drain out the dam gate now," said Wynn.

CALLIE Z. GILBERT

Funeral services for Callie Z. Gilbert, 83, of 1209 E. Park Ave. will be conducted at 2 p.m. today in First Baptist Church with the Rev. Doug Manning, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under the direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Gilbert, who had resided in Hereford for 28 years, died Monday afternoon in Central Plains Hospital at Plainview.

Mrs. Gilbert was also preceded in death by a son, Doyal, who died in 1963.

The Gilberts came to Hereford in 1950 from Artesia,

N.M. Mrs. Gilbert was a home-maker and a Baptist.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Marvis Conkin of Anton; a son, J.D. Gilbert Jr. of Hereford; three brothers, Finis Edwards of Dallas, Earl Edwards of Hurst and O.C. Edwards of Goodnight; two sisters, Mrs. Lucille Couch of Olton and Mrs. Ruby Bumpus of Plainview; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

E.L. "PAT" LAWHON

E.L. "Pat" Lawhon, 77, of 601 E. Third, died at 12:24 a.m. today in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Services for the longtime resident will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in Rose Chapel of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home. The Rev. Mack McCarter, pastor of First Christian Church, will officiate.

Interment will be in West Park Cemetery.

Mr. Lawhon was born Sept. 26, 1902 in San Angelo. He came to Hereford in 1910 from his hometown and married Nora Beams March 30, 1924 at Hereford.

He was a retired farmer and rancher and a member of First Christian Church.

In addition to the widow, survivors include a son, Jimmie Lawhon of San Antonio; a daughter, Mattie Lawhon Hitchings of Hereford; a brother, John Hubbard of Tulsa, Okla.; two sisters, Dora Owens of Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Lois Crane of Burkburnett; 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A memorial has been established in Mr. Lawhon's name at First Christian Church.

effort to safe the water in the lake might stand a slight chance, and listed Fish and Wildlife Service officials to call on the matter. Jim Hubert, assistant area manager in charge of refuges, was listed as the immediate supervisor over Buffalo Lake. His Austin phone number is 512-397-5439. Wayne Gueswell at the Fish & Wildlife Service office in Albuquerque was also listed as an individual to contact with protests. Gueswell may be contacted at 505-766-2036.

"Contacting congressmen on this matter couldn't hurt, and the more calls, letters and telegrams they and Interior officials receive, the better the chance of keeping some water in the lake," Wynn advised. Congressmen Jack Hightower and George Mahon were listed as crucial contacts.

Although there is concern in the Canyon community over the safety of the spillway in the event of a flash flood, particularly after disaster befell that area in the rains which filled Buffalo May 26, Randall County commissioners have questioned the necessity of draining the lake at this time to correct the problem.

"Do we want them to do it? This is a time when the lake is fuller than it has been in years," stated Commissioner Dee Griffin.

Many Panhandle residents are holding that the spillway could be repaired without draining, and without danger of another flash flood, and a move may be afoot to save the fading lake waters before the revitalized lake pours out the gates of the dam that created it.

Public Encouraged To View Art

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Art Foundation invites area citizens to attend the exhibit and sale of paintings, sculpture and drawings by women western artists Friday, Saturday and Sunday in the basement of the County Library, temporary headquarters of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage.

The exhibit will be open each day from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Each of the 32 artists, recognized nationally for excellent artistic achievement, has provided at least two pieces of artwork for the Art Show and Sale, making the total of exhibits well over 100.

The annual art show is being held here in conjunction with the National Hall of Fame Cowgirl Rodeo and related activities, including a parade on Friday, three rodeo performances, two dances and a Sunday afternoon ceremony inducting seven women into the Hall of Fame.

Margaret Formby, president of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Association, urges local residents to attend the rodeo-related events, particularly the art show. The roster of participating artists is listed below:

Pam Trotter (of Hereford), Linda Lima, Leona Tidd, Ann

McConcie, Ethel Lewallen, Gwendolyn H. Branstetter, Grende La Ford, Laura T. Wooschlager, Pat Staar, Fauncil Dunn, Marian Flahavin, Diana Hendrix and Irene Davis.

To Grace Hall of Fame

S.L. Humphrey, nationally-known artist of the West, is shown here with "The Cowgirl of America," a painting which was commissioned by the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage. The painting, which "symbolizes the cowgirls of America, both past and present," will hang in the entryway of the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame when that structure is completed.

The painting can be viewed now and during the Western Heritage Art Show Friday through Sunday in the Hall of Fame's temporary headquarters in the basement of the County Library. The painting at right, entitled "The Tally Gate," is being reproduced on postcard stationery for all-occasion distribution by the Hall of Fame.

TOPS Group Recognizes Mrs. Diaz

Connie Diaz was declared "Loser of the Week" after shedding 10 pounds by her fellow members of TOPS (Taking Off Pounds Sensibly) Chapter #1011 during a regular weekly meeting Monday evening at the Community Center.

Margaret Scott was awarded the floating prize in recognition for her 4 1/2 lb. loss during the past week. She has now qualified for KIW (KOPS (Keeping Off Pounds Sensibly) in Waiting). Earlene Cook has also qualified for KIW by losing 29 lbs. to meet her goal. She stated that her incentive was "to learn to swim and ski." Mrs. Cook said that she was successful in her weight loss program due to sensible eating while dieting.

Hope Loerwald was distinguished as the chapter's first KOPS member, by retaining her desired weight for 13 weeks. Her total weight loss was 23 lbs. She stated her incentive as a desire for "better health and general well being."

Persons interested in joining the TOPS program are invited to telephone 364-1292 or attend the chapter's meetings, which convene at 6 p.m. each Monday.

Art Show to Feature Commissioned Canvas

"The Cowgirl of America," a painting commissioned by the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, will be among more than 100 pieces of artwork to be spotlighted this weekend in the Hall of Fame's temporary facilities at the County Library during the second annual Western Heritage Art Show.

The painting depicts a cowgirl astride her horse, holding the American flag as a symbol of the sport of rodeoing, of its Western heritage and of cowgirls and cowboys themselves. "The Cowgirl," a 4 foot by 6 foot oil canvas, was painted by S.L. Humphrey upon commission by the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. It will hang in the entryway of the Hall of Fame when that structure, proposed as an underground building, is completed.

Recently, Mrs. Humphrey received recognition when she was invited to exhibit her work in the prejuried invitational Western Heritage Art Show at Littleton (Denver) Colo., where she was awarded two silver medallions of the 13 awards bestowed. In May of this year, she also received a bronze medallion at the Third Annual George Shippen Memorial Outside Invitational Western Art Show and Competition in Proscott, Ariz. At this same show a year ago, she was awarded a bronze medallion for her watercolor.

S.L. Humphrey has also received an Honorable Mention at the State National League of American Pen Women Competition Show. Additional national juried and invitational art shows in which she has exhibited were the Invitational Bicentennial Western Art Show held at the Museum of Science and Industry at Los Angeles, where she was awarded a bronze medal; the Death Valley Forty-Niner's Western Art Show at Furnace Creek in Death Valley, Calif.; National Western Art Show in Santa Ana, Calif., where she won a first place and two second place awards.

Other shows in which Mrs. Humphrey participated included the National Small Paintings Show at Albuquerque, N.M., where she received an honorable mention; the National Finals Rodeo in Oklahoma City; the New Mexico State Fair and Competition; the National Western Stock Show at Denver, Colo.; the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame Annual Show here; and the New Mexico State Arts and Crafts Fair Inside Gallery Show at Albuquerque.

S.L. Humphrey was selected to illustrate the Bicentennial Brand and History Book for the Borderbelles and Copperbelles of New Mexico. The book contains 28 illustrations depicting stories written by the early day ranchers about their cattle brands and experiences in New Mexico dating from the late 1800's.

In 1976, Mrs. Humphrey received the honor of being nominated and selected for inclusion in Who's Who in American Art, 1976. She has also been included in the 1977 version of Who's Who in American Art and the 1977 edition of the "Outstanding Young Women of American Programs."

The works of S.L. Humphrey now hang in numerous private collections. Reproductions of her work have appeared in such publications as the Western Horseman, Southwest Arts, The Quarter Horse Journal, the Bicentennial Brand and History Book and others. She has also had ten of her western paintings reproduced as Christmas and all-occasion cards.

Ann Landers Counting On Ann

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish I had a quarter for every time my wife has shoved one of your columns in my face and said, "Here, read this." Today I am writing a letter I hope to shove in HER face.

I'm in a business that makes it important for me to take out-of-town customers to dinner about twice a month. My wife isn't interested in coming along because we talk shop the whole time, and the men never bring their wives. I am usually home by 10:30.

Last night a customer decided he wanted to go out on the town, so we went to several different places. I had a few drinks and sort of lost track of the time. I got home about 3:30 a.m.

My wife was like a wild person. She had phoned the police, checked the hospitals and all the bars she could think of. I was pretty burned up when she told me this. After all, it doesn't help a guy's reputation to have his wife telephoning all over town looking for him.

I'm not a juvenile delinquent on parole and I shouldn't have to "report in" if I decide to stay out later than usual once in a while. What do you say, Annie?

Does a grown man have to let his wife know where he is every minute? -- Need Breathing Space

DEAR BREATHING: You betcha. And why should he be reluctant to tell her since he is never anywhere he shouldn't be?

A husband who is usually home by 10:30 and comes rolling in five hours late deserves whatever he gets. His embarrassment at being tracked by phone is nothing compared to the anxiety he puts his wife through. So you'd better wrap the garbage with today's column, Mister. It won't do you any good on the home front.

DEAR ANN: Knowing that the American public in general and the Christian community in particular will find an issue of sexuality threatening, it is beyond my why GAYS expect to have their civil rights upheld by the American electorate. We live in a country where the electorate refuses to guarantee the equal rights of women and special legislation is required to protect females against discrimination. Why should GAYS expect to be treated differently? Let us bring before the electorate a non-discrimination referendum for Native Americans in Flagstaff, Ariz., or Mexican Americans in Lubbock, Tex., or Black Americans in Plains, Ga., or Jewish Americans in Salt Lake City, Utah, or better yet, in the business community at large. Who are we kidding?

To our United Presbyterian brothers and sisters let me quote one of their own:

"Whatever you have done unto the least of these, you have also done unto me." I am requesting the right to withhold my name. I am just - Disgusted

DEAR DISGUSTED: This column represents many points of view. Thank you for expressing yours.

Dave Casper Named to Hall of Fame

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - Billy Casper said his induction into the World Golf Hall of Fame "may be just the boost I need. "Sometimes we need a little help, a little ego-booster, to get us back on the right track. This could be the catalyst I've been needing to get me started again." Casper, along with Bing Crosby, Clifford Roberts and old British stars Harold Hilton and Dorothy Campbell Hurd, were inducted into the Hall of Fame

Tuesday night, swelling to 35 the number of men and women who have been honored since the Hall opened in 1974. "It's a very rewarding, humbling thing," said Casper. "It's even nicer that it comes while I'm still alive and active and can appreciate it that much more."

Casper, who is competing in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday, didn't discount the possibility of winning that title. "Wouldn't that be something? That'd really top off the week," he said. The durable Casper has won 51 American tour titles in a career that spans about 25 years. Among his major titles are the 1959 and 1966 U.S. Opens and the 1970 Masters. He also acquired a record five Vardon Trophies for the low stroke average on the tour. Crosby and Roberts, who died within a few months of each other last year, were selected to the Hall's Distinguished Service category. Crosby was the founder and guiding force behind the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, for four decades a landmark event on the tour.

Roberts was a co-founder of the Masters and for more than 40 years was the iron-fisted director of that major event. Hilton, from England, won two British Open titles before the turn of the century, took four British Amateur titles between 1900 and 1913 and won the 1911 U.S. Amateur. Hurd, from Scotland, won three U.S. Women's Amateur titles, three more in Canada, three more in Scotland and took the British Ladies title in 1910 and 1911.

Houston Astros Down Chicago

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Astros are enjoying their role as spoilers during the waning weeks of the National League baseball season. "If you're any kind of athlete, you never quit, even if it's the last game of the season," said Houston second baseman Art Howe, who drove in a run in the Astros 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night. "It's especially satisfying to take two straight games over a contending team like the cubs." Mark Lemongello, 9-11, who recorded only his second triumph since July 1, scattered seven hits in a complete game effort as the Astros won for the 16th time in their last 18 home games.

"It's been on awfully long time since I pitched a really good game," Lemongello said. "And I pitched a really good one tonight. "I don't know why we play so much better at home than we do on the road, especially against the top teams." Howe's second-inning run-scoring single and Bruce Bochy's sixth-inning sacrifice fly provided Lemongello with the only offense he needed as Houston took its second straight victory over the Cubs. The loss dropped Chicago four games behind first place Philadelphia in the NL East. The Cubs scored their only run of the game in the fifth when Rodney Scott led off with a single, moved to second on a wild pitch, stole third and raced home on Mike Krukow's sacrifice fly to center. Chicago placed runners on first and third with none out in the third inning on a double by Tim Blackwell but failed to score. Lemongello retired Ivan DeJesus on a fly ball for the inning's first out. Greg Gross followed with a fly to left which Walling caught and relayed to the plate in time to get Blackwell to complete the doubleplay. The triumph moved the Astros into fifth place in the NL West.

Who's Better—Seattle Slew Or Affirmed?

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) - Who's a better horse - Seattle Slew or Affirmed? It appears the owners of these two stering race horses may be planning on finding out by staging a race that would be the first time two Triple Crown winners had ever appeared together on a track. Dr. James Hill, co-owner of 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, said Tuesday night that "serious consideration" would be given to a match race against Harbor View Farm's Affirmed, the 1978 Triple Crown winner. Hill said that at present

Seattle Slew is committed to two other races, but after that "our options are pen and we are willing to listen to any proposals."

Free Agent Wants Batting Title

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Back in April, Lyman Bostock, one of the highest-paid of baseball's free agents, was hitting .147 for the California Angels and talking about giving his salary for the month to charity. Now, he's up to .300 and talking about a batting title in his first season with the Angels after leaving the Minnesota Twins and signing with California as a free agent. "I don't think there's any doubt but that I'll finish high in the Top Ten," he said as the Angels prepared to open a series against the New York Yankees. "As for the batting title, it's hard to pick up points in a hurry when you have as many at-bats as I do. Also, to win, I have to catch Rod Carew and he's simply the best hitter I've ever seen." When Gene Autry agreed to pay Bostock $2.7 million over a five-year contract last winter, the Angels' owner thought he was getting one of baseball's best hitters. After all, Bostock hit .323 and .336 in his two full seasons with the Twins. But Bostock, who says now that he may have been trying too hard to justify that whopping salary, got only one hit in his first 23 trips to the plate and two in his first 39 at-bats. He finished April with an average of .147 and was so distraught he said he would donate his month's salary to charity because he thought he hadn't earned it.

It was up to .209 by June 2 when Autry fired Dave Garcia as the Angels' manager and replaced him with Jim Fregosi. Since Fregosi took over, Bostock has hit .352. Bostock was injured shortly after Fregosi replaced Garcia and Rick Miller took over in center field during Bostock's absence. When Lyman returned, he moved to right field because Miller had played so well, a move credited with taking defensive pressure off Bostock and thus helping his average. Fregosi takes no credit for the resurgence. "A guy doesn't hit .336 one year and .209 the next," he said. "He came here as a high-salaried free agent and probably tried to do too much, probably tried to carry the whole thing." Fregosi told Angels batting coach Bob Skinner to work with Bostock and Bostock calls Skinner "a big help. He didn't just wash the season off. He kept talking to me, telling me I was a better hitter, reminding me of the things I was doing wrong." student in college and says, "If I thought I knew a little bit about handling pressure, I guess I didn't."

Sherrill Gets Nod For Cowboy Kicking

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Again, the possible Achilles heel for the Dallas Cowboys is the front portion of a placekicking shoe. The defending World Champion Cowboys may go into the regular National Football League season with free agent placekicker Jay Sherrill. This is an unsettled position the Cowboys have been in before. Several years ago it was Efran Herrera who came out of UCLA and finally beat out Toni Fritsch, now with Houston. Herrera kicked well enough to make All-Pro last year but he was traded off to Seattle in a salary impasse. Before Herrera, it was a steady succession of less than spectacular kickers. Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry decided Tuesday he liked what he saw of Sherrill, who played for North Carolina State. He said Sherrill would be Dallas' kicker in the preseason finale against the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in Texas

Stadium. Free agent Skip Butler, a former Houston Oiler, failed to impress Landry in his week tryout with the club. "We'll continue to look at other people but Sherrill has good potential," said Landry. "It's just a question of whether he can come to the top quick enough. He has a lot of pressure on him."

Sherrill is the son of former NFL player Bud Sherrill. "Jay has a strong leg, good rhythm, and he's the type of kicker who can improve," said Landry. "He has a solid swing and his timing is good. He pushed one off last week against Houston but I think he'll groove his swing." Landry said Butler "had good experience but wasn't as consistent as I would have liked to see. I just have a feel about kickers. This certainly wasn't any discredit to Skip." Butler attempted and made an extra point against the Oilers Saturday in a 27-13 loss. Other than that he just kicked off. Sherrill kicked two field goals but missed two long attempts. Ove Johansson, who formerly kicked for Philadelphia, was cut by the Cowboys two weeks ago. The former Abilene Christian star missed an extra point and had a field goal attempt blocked in his tryout with Dallas. Landry promised a serious Cowboys team for the Steelers game. "The starters played a lot last week but it wasn't noticeable," Landry cracked. "But they were there." And the veterans will be on the field again Saturday night with one lone exception - a free agent placekicker from North Carolina State. Landry planned to play both quarterbacks Roger Staubach and Danny White in the first half. "Roger will probably start the second half and finish up," said Landry.

Attorney for Umpires Says He's Encouraged

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The attorney who announced a threatened strike by the 52 major league baseball umpires says he is encouraged by offers from the American and National leagues informal negotiations on the dispute. Philadelphia attorney Richard Phillips, who represents the Umpires Association, said early today that the association's decision on the strike and would continue telephone conferences. Phillips said if the discussions could start immediately and progress in good faith, he would not want to jeopardize them with a strike. The umpires are demanding improved benefits and working conditions.

Lee MacPhail, the president of the American League, and Chub Feeney, told Phillips in a telegram Tuesday that they would not reopen negotiations on the umpire's contract. But both presidents left the door open to future conversations with the Umpires Association. "Of course, we are always willing to meet informally with you to discuss matters of interest to the umpires, without prejudice to the right of the clubs to insist on compliance with our current agreement," the presidents said in a statement. "If you wish to have such a discussion with us, we would be willing to meet with you at a mutually convenient time."

The umpires currently are in the first year of an agreement signed last winter which carries through the 1981 season. MacPhail and Feeney cited that agreement in their response to a telegram last week from Phillips that listed the umpires' demands. "Because of the existence of the current collective bargaining agreement and the scope of negotiations leading thereto, it would be inappropriate at this time to negotiate other matters included in your telegram of August 16," MacPhail and Feeney told Phillips. "As you know, our agreement with the Umpires Association contained a no strike provision which we assume would be honored by the association. Any failure to honor that no-strike commitment would be a clear violation of our agreement and could be very damaging both to our sport and to the umpires themselves."

Phillips filed a suit with the National Labor Relations Board Monday, charging the leagues with unfair labor practices, and he said the umpires would strike sometime next week unless the leagues bargained in good faith. Phillips claimed the umpires' demands cover items not included in the contract and that they could be discussed because of clauses in the agreement with permit reopening negotiations. Among the demands are the inclusion of three one-week vacations during the eighth-month major league season, job security after three years, cost of living increases and increased insurance and disability benefits.

Old Haunts Return To Defeat Rangers, 3-1

TORONTO (AP) - The Texas Rangers decided two years ago against protecting a 20-year-old pitcher named Jim Clancy in the American League expansion draft. They found third baseman Roy Howell expendable and this spring sent designated hitter Willie Horton packing his bags. All three came back to haunt them Tuesday as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated Texas 3-1, handing the Rangers their fourth consecutive loss. Clancy, 10-10, Toronto's third selection in the expansion draft, limited the Rangers to five hits until giving way to Victor Cruz in the ninth. Howell went 1-for-3 and scored the tying run on Horton's double as the Rangers scored three times in the seventh inning. It was the second big day in a row for Horton, who drove in three runs Monday - two of them with his ninth homer of the season. "Mr. Clancy pitched a fine game and the other guy wasn't two shabby either," said Toronto Manager Roy Hartsfield, to Texas hurler Doc Medich, who breezed into the seventh with a four-hit shutout. "And Willie came up with the big hit again." Howell drew the first walk of the game off Medich to open the Toronto seventh and scored as Horton doubled into the right-field corner. John Mayberry's ground out moved Horton to third and pinch-runner Willie Upshaw, running for Horton, came home with the winning run as Woods followed with a double just inside the bag at first. One out later, Dave McKay drove in an insurance run with a single up the middle. "That one base on balls got him (Medich) into trouble and in on-run games, those are the sort of things that quite often end up in runs," said Texas Manager Billy Hunter, who refused to let his club's recent slide affect his division title aspirations in the AL West. "Sure we've lost four in a row and naturally I'm not elated. But it's not too late and I think we can bounce back." Cruz was impressive, coming out of the bullpen for the 21st time since joining the club in mid-June to register his ninth save of the season - a single-season Blue Jays record - and lower his earned-run average to 1.12. Texas has lost six of its last seven games. The Rangers now are 3-6 against the Blue Jays on the season.

Phillips claimed the umpires' demands cover items not included in the contract and that they could be discussed because of clauses in the agreement with permit reopening negotiations. Among the demands are the inclusion of three one-week vacations during the eighth-month major league season, job security after three years, cost of living increases and increased insurance and disability benefits.

Stingley Due Spinal Surgery

CASTRO VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - A spokesman for the New England Patriots said Tuesday that Darryl Stingley remained in excellent spirits as he faced a spinal operation scheduled for today. A spinal stabilization procedure has been scheduled for Darryl and will be performed Wednesday morning at Eden Hospital. The operation will be performed by Dr. Maynard Pone, Mr. Stingley's attending neurosurgeon, and his associates," said Tom Hoffman, the National Football League team's business manager. He said that the wide receiver, left paralyzed by an injury suffered in the Aug. 12 game against the Oakland Raiders, "continues to enjoy the many cards, letters and telegrams of prayer and support which he has received."

San Francisco, O.J. Aim to be Champs

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Home-grown O.J. Simpson has joined the San Francisco 49ers, who are aiming to dethrone the Los Angeles Rams as National Football Conference West Division champion. "I know the Rams are the team we have to beat," said Simpson, who won the Heisman Trophy Award at the University of Southern California. After then, Simpson starred for the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League. The Bills traded Simpson to San Francisco for the 1977 season. "Here we have a lot of question marks, but I think we could win and win big," said Simpson. Meanwhile, in Los Angeles, the Rams appear more concerned about winning the Super Bowl than beating the 49ers for first place in the division. Rams Coach Chuck Knox resigned under pressure after the 1977 season and took the job at Buffalo, and Los Angeles owner Carroll Rosenbloom tried former Rams Coach George Allen. Allen lasted two games - both exhibition losses - before being fired. Veteran players had walked out of training camp prior to the preseason setbacks before Allen was deposited. Assistant Ray Malavasi took over, and the Rams won their next game, 26-7 over Seattle. "We all respect Malavasi," said Rhodes Scholar quarterback Pat Haden, who was surprised, along with a majority of the Rams, when Allen was dismissed before the first year of his three-year contract really had begun. Malavasi has returned to the Knox concept of defense with some alterations on offense, but the club already has lost No. 1 draft choice - running back Elvis Peacock of Oklahoma - for the season with a knee injury suffered in the Seattle game. So the Rams have much the same alignment as last year, except that quarterback Joe Namath has retired and they felt the receiving corps was strong enough to trade former All-Pro Harold Jackson to the New England Patriots.

The Atlanta Falcons appear at least as good as last year and could surprise in the NFC West, but their fortunes depend heavily on the performance of quarterback Steve Bartkowski. Bartkowski, however, has been unimpressive in the exhibition season and is in jeopardy of losing his starting job. New Orleans is counting on quarterback Archie Manning, running back Chuck Muncie, newly-acquired offensive lineman Conrad Dobler and an improved group of pass catchers to improve. A year ago, the Rams, finished with a 10-4 record, with Atlanta at 7-7, San Francisco 5-9 and New Orleans 3-11. Increasing the problems for the Rams was the decision by Rosenbloom to move the club south to Anaheim in 1980. Those negotiations took up much of the attention usually devoted to players at this time of year. San Francisco plans to hand Simpson the ball about 15 times per game, throw it to him 10 times and "if we can get the ball to him 25 times, I'm sure he'll do some things with it." Questionable is Simpson's recuperation from knee surgery. Atlanta is worried about Bartkowski, the former All-American who has not lived up to expectations because of injury problems. June Jones III, from Portland State, is challenging for the starting job. Simpson joins running back Willbur Jackson in the 49ers backfield with another local product, Stanford's Jim Plunkett, at quarterback. The Rams have a power-running duo in Lawrence McCutcheon, who has gained more than a total of 5,000 yards over the past five seasons, and former Heisman winner John Cappelletti. Behind Haden at quarterback is Vince Ferragamo. The Rams aren't counting strongly on rookies, but the 49ers think All-American tight end Ken MacAfee from Notre Dame could be a starter. Freddie Solomon, acquired from the Miami Dolphins, could be a starter at wide receiver and rookie Walt Downing from Michigan should see service in the offensive line. McCutley has made a major switch on defense with Cleveland Elam, an All-Pro at tackle, moved to end. Gone via trades are running back Delvin Williams, defensive end Tommy Hart, tight end Tom Mitchell and linebackers Dave Washington and Skip Vanderbundt. Atlanta's should be strong again with just one rookie figuring strongly - linebacker Steve Stewart. Like New Orleans, the Falcons believe they have added strength in the receiving corps. Alfred Jenkins and Wallace Francis are their wide receivers with tight ends Jim Mitchell and Greg McCrary. The Saints' added strength lies with the acquisition of wide receiver Ike Harris.

Homer Lifts Seattle Over Reds 5-2

SEATTLE (AP) - Bruce Roche cracked a two-run homer to back the five-hit pitching of Glenn Abbott, and the Seattle Mariners downed the Boston Red Sox 5-2 Tuesday night. Abbott, 6-10, hurled shutout ball until George Scott opened the eighth with an opposite field home run into the blue banner above the right field fence, about 360 feet out. The homer was Scott's ninth. Bochte's homer, also his ninth of the season, followed Leon Roberts' single leading off the fifth.

What's the Future In Being a Champ?

WHAT DOES a two-time winner of the world's all-around cowgirl title have to look forward to these days?

Sue Pirtle, who rodeos out of Dallas these days should be able to answer that question, but the truth of the matter is that she is wondering about it herself.

She's the first girl in many years to hold the title more than once. The financial returns don't offer much in the way of incentive, she is perhaps the first to admit. In spite of that lack, she is aiming for the 1978 title, hoping to add that to her already considerable laurels.

"It's sort of like that man who climbed Mount Everest and someone asked why.

He said it was because it was there," the Oklahoma rider -- dubbed "Sue Purty" by rodeo announcers -- philosophizes. "I admit I'm hooked on rodeoing and I'd like to win the title one more time. But I'm comin' up 26 years old and it won't be long before I'm past my prime for ridin' buckin' horses and bulls."

The dark-haired, brown-eyed beauty tends to shrug off the fact that by any but rodeo standards, she's young. It was a set of false teeth -- not her own -- that starter her thinking about her future.

"We have one rider in the Girls' Rodeo Association who's one tough hand on rough stock. She's close to 40 and has a couple of her own kids ridin' bulls and broncs in competition against her -- and me," pretty Sue says. "But this lady's never really been on top. She's close all the time; sorta like that bridesmaid, and always a hard competitor.

"I was helpin' her get down on one bareback bronc at an all-girls rodeo, when she suddenlike remembered somethin'. She made a swipe at her mouth with a hand, then handed me her false teeth, tellin' me 'hold them till she was done.

"So I sat there on top of th' chute, clickin' her false teeth, watchin' her ride her heart out. Truth is, I reckon I spent more of her ride lookin' at those teeth than I did her.

"It suddenly came t'me that, if I kept tryin' t'stay on th' back of bareback broncs and bulls till I was 40 or so, the odds were that I'd end up with all my teeth busted out, too.

"I don't want that. I like my own teeth."

The Oklahoma competitor was graduated in December from Southwestern Oklahoma State University with a degree in teaching. She completed her practice teaching just before Christmas and now has the necessary certificate.

Part of her education was financed by a scholarship for the collegiate rodeo team. An astute businesswoman in some respects, she opened a cosmetics studio in Weatherford, catering to college women and hiring fellow students to operate the business when she was on the rodeo trail.

The studio has helped finance her schooling as well as the feeding of her year-old son, Ty. He is the product of a short-lived marriage she quietly-refuses to discuss.

Pirtle won her first all-around cowgirl title in 1974 and competed through most of 1975, although pregnant at the time. Any chance of repeating her 1974 title performance was ruled out by the pregnancy.

But in 1976, she returned to the arenas across the country to compete in the GRA-approved series of all-girl rodeos for her twelfth consecutive year of such competition.

When the official GRA year had ended in November, she had the all-around world title, the silver-and-gold buckle that goes with it and the additional title as number one girl bareback bronc rider in the nation.

But herein comes the sad fact: Her total winnings of risking her life and limb amounted to only $6921 for the year. She was able to add $121.52 to her bank account, when her quarter horse, Kate won fourth place standing in the Girls' Rodeo Association's first Super Horse contest.

A television production company awarded her $2500 for her appearance against Larry Mahan for the bull and bronc riding sequence for the "Battle of the Sexes" taping, which is slated for network television showing in February. The government-owned British television network also did a documentary on her exploits, but her only reward was satisfaction in knowing that a $500 fee went into the GRA national treasury.

Mahan garnered $5000 for his performance, while Pirtle was $2500 for her try, plus an opportunity to compete in the same television producer's upcoming "Super Stars" television special.

Top cowboys such as Mahan, Casey Tibbs and many times world champion Jim Shoulders have found advertising executives virtually standing in line, checkbooks ready, to cover endorsements. Sue Pirtle, thus far, has found no such lineup at the arena gate after any of her performances.

"There's been some talk," she admits, "But none that's been very bankable."

But that doesn't discourage her. Now that she has her college degree, she intends to sell her cosmetics studio and take to the road through the balance of 1977, trying for her third all-around cowgirl title.

"But I'll prob'ly start workin' more timed events and concentratin' less on rough stock," she admits. "Hittin' that ground is startin' t'hurt more. Whether I win the all-around title or not I'll prob'ly be a school teacher next year."

Meantime, considering the number of rides she has made in her dozen years of competition, she considers herself lucky. Her injuries to date include one broken foot, one broken hand, and one dislocated elbow, one concussion.

Austrian Group Seeking Reduction

By WERNER VOLLMANN

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Austrian traffic safety organizations have asked this country's foremost automobile driver to help cut down the number of accidents, which seem to indicate that Austrians can well use some advice.

In response, Formula One World Champion Niki Lauda has appeared on television programs several times, giving safe driving tips and especially lashing out at drunken driving.

Lauda has also kept hammering away on the use of safety belts.

In a television program with Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, who said he did not wear the belt for short-distance trips in the city, Lauda finally won a pledge from Kreisky to wear a belt all the time.

In Austria, wearing a belt is recommended but not mandatory.

A recent report of the Austrian Traffic Safety Bureau said that there are 8.16 traffic deaths for each 10,000 cars licensed in the country.

In West Germany, the bureau said, the death toll figure was 7.6, France 7.3, Great Britain 4.1 and the United States 3.5.

The bureau said the figures showed that Europeans still had a lot to learn from Americans as far as driving was concerned.

Some traffic experts suggested that Austrians — and other Europeans — have a relatively short experience with mass traffic.

Large-scale motorization in Austria started more or less only after World War II.

In the last decade about one million motor vehicles had been percent of the accidents could be prevented.

"Recklessness is the No. 1 accident danger, and witnessing all the cases of gross negligence one cannot help but say it's a miracle that not more happens," he said.

added, for a total now of more than three million, and the experts believe it will take another ten years before the saturation point has been reached.

Last year 1,791 persons died on Austrian roads. Five years before the death toll was 2,632, a heavy carnage for such a small nation of 7.5 million.

Police now and then have threatened "tougher controls," but besides all-out efforts during long weekends, and especially the Easter and Whitsun holidays, limited manpower curtails their activities.

The commander of the Lower Austrian province traffic police, Lt. Col. Johann Kötzer, said that if motorists would show more sense and realize their responsibilities fully, at least 75

The young account for the highest death toll.

Nearly two thirds of all traffic dead were in the age group from 15 to 24 years. Moped and motorcycle accidents were among the most gruesome.

The authorities now demand that moped drivers either go no faster than 35 miles per hour, or pass a test for a driver's license for the faster engine. Starting next year all will have to wear helmets.

Not only recklessness, but aggressiveness accounts for road accidents. A driver of a big car sometimes does not want to be overtaken by a smaller car. Often, because the prestige of the big — and therefore costlier — car seemingly demands it, he drives too fast.

Lise Schmidt, psychologist at the Traffic Safety Bureau, claims aggressiveness is not inherited but adopted.

"Those who get ahead in business by being better than others will probably also have a competitive spirit on the road. Investigations of the Traffic Safety Bureau showed that such people failed to obey traffic regulations," she said.

French Gourmets

Even Eat Hamburgers!

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Guess whom I met in a New York hamburger joint: That champion of la nouvelle cuisine, famed French gourmet chef Paul Bocuse.

Bocuse and two other top French chefs, Roger Verge and Gaston Lenotre, were about to take off on an inaugural New York to London run of Trans World Airlines. Accompanying the trio on the flight were 4,000 pounds of fine foods that they would prepare for the passengers, plus 75 cases of vintage wines. It must have been a memorable trip.

But why would epicures like Bocuse and his colleagues set up an interview in a fast food shop whose menu is about as remote from gourmet fare as one can get? It seems Bocuse likes American hamburgers. In fact, the master is looking kindly these days on much American food.

"It has improved a great deal in the last decade," he said between bites of ground beef and roll. "American food products are better than they used to be. I have been especially impressed on how the quality of your fresh vegetables has improved."

How about French cooking? What is this "nouvelle" cuisine one hears so much about?

"It's a combination of methods aimed at more healthful dishes," said Bocuse. "For instance, we do not thicken gravies or sauces with flour but cook them until they thicken naturally, then perhaps near the end add butter or some creme fraiche or heavy cream."

Doubling Up In Denim

Devotees of the new method use meat stock sparingly for gravies, preferring to use natural meat juices, with a little butter or cream added near the finish.

Under la nouvelle cuisine, vegetables are cooked much more briefly than before, a trick the Chinese learned several centuries ago. They not only turn out crispier but are healthier that way.

How did this new method evolve? "Many, like Bocuse, Lenotre and myself, have our own restaurants now. We compare notes with each other from time to time and we also find time to travel and find out what they are doing in other lands."

Here is a Bocuse formula for Sauce Smitane which is much simpler than most French sauces. Good with sauteed sole or other white meat fish.

1 large onion, chopped fine
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 cup dry white wine
2 cups creme fraiche or heavy cream
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Boil onion 1 minute, drain, rinse, drain again and saute 20 minutes in skillet with 1 tablespoon butter. Stir frequently and do not let brown. Add wine and boil till wine evaporates.

White House Aid Satisfied About Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Stuart Eizenstat, the scholarly, circumspect White House adviser, took to the podium recently to talk about "the single most satisfying thing I've done in my 18 months in Washington."

Tax policy National defense? The Panama Canal?

Nothing so monumental. Instead, Eizenstat, head of the president's domestic policy staff, was explaining the status of about 100 administrative changes that form the "no-cost core of President Carter's urban policy."

Policy initiatives generally revolve around new programs - and the urban policy has its fair share - but there are several factors that explain the attractiveness of reshaping what's already on the books.

Among them:

- You do not have to worry about Congress.
- New regulations come cheap.
- There's gold in them that

That is, much can be achieved to help the cities simply by redirecting the emphasis of current programs, and by tightening management.

City officials have been complaining for years that federal housing, tax and highway policies have inadvertently stimulated the suburban sprawl that slowly-but-surely sapped the economic and social vitality from many of the nation's central cities.

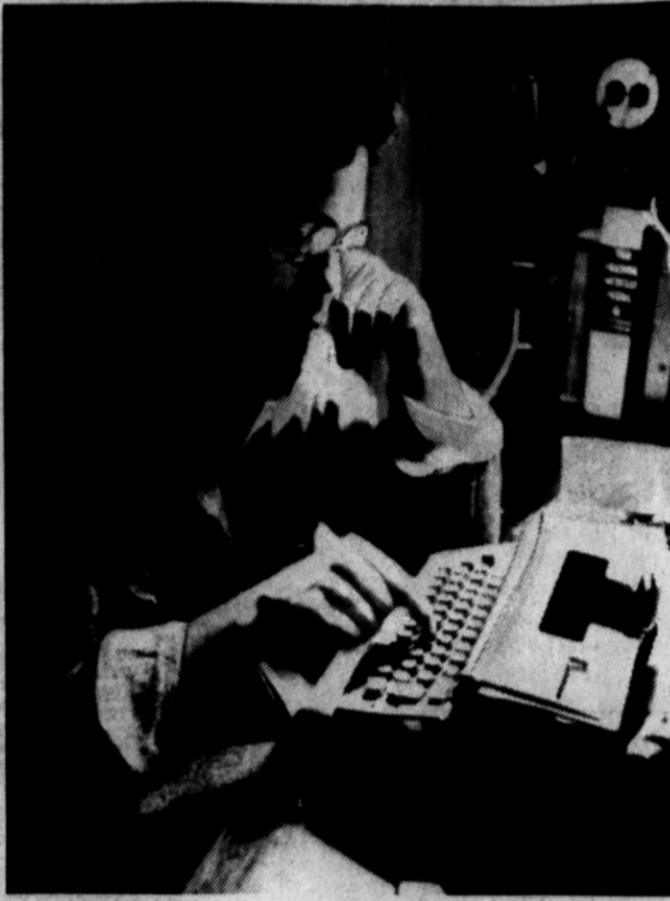

Thus, the White House directed federal departments and agencies to go through their arsenal of programs to identify "anti-urban" biases, and to correct them.

One example was announced early last week by Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Harris when she finally achieved a semblance of control over the Federal National Mortgage Association, known as Fannie Mae, a quasi-governmental housing finance agency that has been pursuing policies antagonistic to Carter's urban goals.

After months of bitter feuding with Fannie Mae officials, HUD imposed regulations designed to push the agency deep into the business of stimulating central city home investment. "What we will have is a much more socially responsible agency," Eizenstat said.

Eizenstat highlighted other changes in existing programs. New Environmental Protection Agency rules will make it more difficult for federal sewer money to subsidize suburban sprawl. Changes at the Economic Development Administration will shift EDA's traditional focus away from rural and small town projects. Urban aid will double, to 50 percent of EDA's budget. He also said the administration is on target in its effort to double the amount of federal purchasing from minority-owned businesses.

Writing Humor No Laughing Matter

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) - Writing humor is no laughing matter. Especially if you have to do it while taking care of the baby.

"It was rough, very rough, trying to write between Jake's feedings," Andrew Ward recalls with a laugh. "My wife was out of the house nursing or teaching nursing, and it was up to me to take care of Jacob. One good thing, though, it really got me disciplined in learning how to write when I had the chance."

Things are different now, says Ward, a tall, bearded, 32-year-old. "Jake goes to nursery school, and I can write steadily." The result is Ward's recently published first book, "Fits & Starts."

Subtitled "The Premature Memoirs of Andrew Ward," the book - written because "my complexion began to clear up this year, and I bought myself a sweater vest, so it seemed a good time to write my memoirs" - is a collection of 18 funny pieces in which Ward recalls some of the incidents that happened, or could have happened, to him as a very young man.

While Ward's words flow humorously along, the New Haven, Conn., writer is quick to point out that getting them to do that does not come easily to him. "Each sentence I do has to be perfect," he says. "I work long hours but very few words get written down during those hours."

"I consider it a good day if I get down 250 words. You see, I'm not the kind of writer that can write a long, rough draft and then go back and polish and repolish. From what I've read, a lot of humorists work this way - it has to be right before you go on to the next sentence. Maybe it's because verbal fat shows up more in humor than it does in other kinds of writing. Humor is very punishing writing, but I consider myself a humorist and - while it may sound pretentious - I like calling myself this because it imposes a clear-cut criterion on me: my work has to be funny or it fails to justify itself."

"I guess I do humor because I've found that I have to have distance from what I'm writing about. But with distance comes detachment, and I get so detached that I can't take things very seriously. So, when my work reaches a certain pitch, I tend to go for the gag line rather than the Olympian heights. Maybe that's because humor sounds like me to me while the serious stuff I've done sounds like someone else."

Ward has been writing full time for four years and part

Housing Rate Increasing

NEW YORK (AP) - To judge by the most recent evidence it looks as if it will take something more than amazing prices and record-high mortgage rates to cool down Americans' appetite for houses.

Most of the experts had been expecting housing starts, after their strong recovery ever since the 1974-75 recession, to begin a moderate by mid-summer.

But the Commerce Department reports that new houses were started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.08 million units in July.

That came close to the upward-revised 2.12 million rate listed for June, and ranked as the third best monthly showing this year.

Housing-industry observers, while acknowledging that the expected decline has been postponed, say it has not necessarily been canceled.

"It should have started already, but it hasn't," said Michael Sumichrast, economist at the National Association of Home Builders in Washington.

Sumichrast does not foresee anything like the steep drop the industry experienced three years ago. He is projecting a 10 percent decline in 1979 from this year's housing-starts total.

The Value Line Investment Survey similar predicts 1.6 million to 1.7 million starts next year, against a 1978 total of 1.8 million to 1.9 million.

Any decline seems to have been delayed by unexpected favorable conditions in the mortgage market. Just when it looked as things were starting to pinch, the mortgage picture stabilized.

For one thing, six-month certificates of deposit pegged to Treasury bill rates, which banks and thrift institutions were permitted to issue beginning July 1, provided lenders with an infusion of funds.

"The six-month certificates really helped," Sumichrast said.

No relatively short-term problem has disturbed the bright picture many observers see for the housing industry in the 1980s. The bulge in the population created by the post-World War II baby boom is seen as assuring strong demand for houses for some time to come.

"Another important thrust behind the heightened demand for single-family structures: They have been an outstanding investment during the past 10 years."

That has helped encourage buying of homes by unmarried couples and single people, who until a few years ago would not have been considered much of a factor in the market.

Sumichrast noted a general expectation that mortgage rates will not experience any major decline as long as the inflation rate remains high. "So people decide they might as well buy now," he said.

Turner Says Hunt Memo Does n't Exist

DALLAS (AP) - CIA Director Stansfield Turner says a memo reportedly placing convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt in Dallas the day President John Kennedy was killed does not exist.

In its Sunday editions, the Wilmington, Del., News-Journal said a CIA memorandum told of Hunt's presence in Dallas the day of the assassination, Nov. 22, 1963.

Turner, here to address the 79th annual Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, said Monday, "We have searched, and there is no such memo."

However, he conceded the possibility that such a document could have been removed.

Hunt, described by Turner as a "former employee of ours," has been a favorite among assassination theorists, who claim he was on the "grassy knoll" adjacent to the now-infamous Texas School Book Depository. It was from that building, the Warren Commission concluded, that Lee Harvey Oswald fired three rifle shots into the Kennedy motorcade, killing the president and wounding then-Texas Gov. John Connally.

Sunday, audio experts working for the assassinations committee fired rifle shots from the despotry and rifle and pistol shots from a fence behind the knoll into sandbags simulating Kennedy's positions when the shots were fired.

The project was triggered by discovery on audio "blips" on a recording made accidentally when a Dallas motorcycle officer's radio microphone stuck in an open position during the assassination. Some people have said the recording indicates more than three shots were fired and that Oswald therefore was not acting alone.

"I think the committee is doing a very fine and thorough job," Turner said. "We are cooperating in support of their investigation, providing them any information we have that they want."

Dawn Miller, spokeswoman for the assassinations committee, said there would be no comment on the report of the memo. The panel is due to begin hearings on the Kennedy assassination next month.

Hunt, now living in Miami, said he was in Washington the day Kennedy was shot. He said he "took off at noon that day and went shopping and had a Chinese dinner in downtown Washington with my since deceased wife." He denied ever hearing about the memo.

However, the News-Journal quoted CIA sources as saying Hunt's story about being in Washington was a cover story connected as a result of the memo.

The News-Journal said the 1966 memo, now in the hands of the House Select Committee on Assassination, was initiated by Richard M. Helms, former CIA director, and James J. Angleton, former CIA counter-intelligence chief.

Helms and Angleton were unavailable for comment.

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 23, the 235th day of 1978. There are 130 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1500, Christopher Columbus was accused of mistreating natives in Haiti. He was arrested and ordered sent back to Spain in chains.

On this date: In 1775, King George III of England proclaimed that there was open rebellion in the American Colonies.

In 1869, followers of Mary Baker Eddy obtained a charter in Lynn, Mass., to organize the Church of Christ, Scientist.

In 1914, Japan declared war on Germany in World War I.

In 1944, Allied forces fighting in France in World War II captured the port of Marseille.

In 1947, an audience of 15,000 at the Hollywood Bowl heard President Harry Truman's daughter, Margaret, give her first public concert as a singer.

In 1967, France announced it would increase its cultural and technical aid to the Canadian province of Quebec to help French Canada preserve its heritage.

Ten years ago: A one-hour general strike was staged in Czechoslovakia to protest a Russian-led military occupation, and President Ludvik Svoboda went to Moscow for talks on the crisis in his country.

Five years ago: Henry Kissinger, newly nominated to be U.S. secretary of state, pledged more open foreign policy in which Congress and private citizens would have a stronger voice.

One year ago: President Carter said South Africa had informed the United States that it had no nuclear weapons and planned no nuclear tests, despite reports to the contrary.

Today's birthdays: Dancer Gene Kelly is 66 years old. Singer Tex Williams is 61.

HYPERTENSION MISDIAGNOSED

NEW YORK (AP) - Greater emphasis on early diagnosis and treatment of high blood pressure may mean that many persons - especially the elderly - are being misdiagnosed, according to Medical World News.

The magazine reports that some patients are consequently being subjected to unnecessary drug treatment.

Dr. J. David Spence, a Canadian physician, has warned that the standard arm or leg cuff measurements of blood pressure may be off by as much as 40 mm of mercury in elderly patients suffering from hardening of the arteries.

Similar errors may be recorded in younger persons with fat or large arms.

IN WASHINGTON The snail darter matter
Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The ongoing political scrap over the fate of the tiny snail darter, which has come to symbolize the apparent conflict between "progress" and "conservation," threatens to obscure a question of fundamental importance.

What real difference does it make to Americans and people elsewhere in the world whether endangered plant and animal species are saved from extinction?

By a happy coincidence, the non-profit Worldwatch Institute here in Washington has just concluded a year-long research study on that very subject under a grant from the United Nations Environmental Program.

And the conclusion which author Erik Eckholm presents, in a remarkably persuasive paper, is that it matters a great deal — in hard-nosed, pragmatic terms — whether the rapidly accelerating disappearance of many plant and animal species across the globe can be halted.

There is far more at stake, in the crusade by scientists and others to preserve endangered species, than a philosophic desire to keep odd and exotic beasts about for the sake of intellectual curiosity.

Among the hundreds of thousands of unique and irreplaceable life forms now threatened with extinction by the end of this century as a result of man's assault on the environment, there may be countless chemical compounds of dramatic potential. "The plant kingdom," as Harvard botanist Richard Evans Shultes has noted, "represents a virtually untapped reservoir of new chemical compounds, many extraordinarily biodynamic..."

Innumerable wonder drugs, oils, gums, dyes, pesticides and other products now taken for granted in our technological society come from natural sources, with new ones being discovered almost daily.

"No one can confidently say that products of comparable significance to rubber ... or quinine ... remain to be discovered," cautions Eckholm, "but no one can confidently say they don't, either."

Part of the problem is that scientists have identified no more than 1.5 million of the 3 to 10 million plant and animal species estimated to be living on earth right now, and have screened only a small fraction of the known species for their utilitarian value.

Millions of new species especially of plants and insects, remain to be discovered, particularly, in the humid tropics of the world. Yet, as Eckholm notes, "if current patterns of human activity continue, a good share of the unrecorded majority of species will vanish before their existence, much less their biological importance or economic utility, is established."

The difficulty, for politicians as well as scientists, is that the problem of endangered species is far easier to identify than the solution.

The snail darter flap illustrates how difficult it is to make a case for saving any one species of animal or plant life when doing so requires the sacrifice of development projects with clear and immediate benefits.

And if that case is difficult to make in a wealthy nation like the United States, it is virtually impossible to sell in desperately poor countries of Latin America, Asia and Africa where the next meal for today's hungry citizen is a far more urgent priority than the preservation of flora and fauna that may — or may not — prove of immense benefit to future generations.

Unlike some others immersed in this field, Eckholm sees economic development as an essential partner to conservation, rather than a competitor. "Economic progress and stability are threatened by the degradation of the earth's living resources," he warns. "Yet keeping the biosphere in good order will not be possible unless people's basic needs are satisfied and population growth is quickly slowed."

Developers and conservationists, in other words, need each other — whether they realize it or not. And momentary clashes over specific issues like the future of the snail darter should not be permitted to cloud the contribution that each side can ultimately make to the other.

Eleven Persons Indicted For False Distributorships

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A federal grand jury has indicted 11 persons from nine states for conspiring to sell distributorships for tire sealants, a grass retardant and a motor oil additive in a fraudulent, false or misleading manner.

Among those named in the indictment opened Monday was Franklin L. Matthews III, national sales manager of the building products division of Southwestern Petroleum Company of Fort Worth, Texas.

The alleged scheme spelled out in the 27-page, 30-count indictment focused on the operations of L.O.C. Industries and its related companies, established since 1975 to sell and promote the tire sealants "Seal-Tite" and "Seal-It," the grass retardant "Less-Mow" and the motor oil additive "Molytex."

The indictment said Matthews provided promotional material, photographs and recommendations for use in sale of the products.

Matthews also permitted his name to be used as a point of contact with Southwestern Petroleum Company, the indictment said, should distributors attempt to call for additional information about L.O.C. Industries and its products.

"All of the personal defendants named in this indictment either owned, managed, supervised, promoted products for, sold products for or supplied material to or appeased customers of some or all of the defendants in a false, misleading and fraudulent manner pursuant to the scheme to defraud," the indictment said.

A 25-item bill of particulars accuses the defendants of making false claims about the products sold and about the promotional effort which would be expended on behalf of the products.

Matthews "supplied L.O.C. Industries with laboratory tests advising that the product 'Seal-Tite' fully met all agreed standards and that its failure to perform was probably attributable to a failure to stir the material or check the pump for performance," the grand jury charged.

It said he continued to assist L.O.C. "although he was aware that their distributors could make no profit using the amounts of sealant actually recommended...and that the product was one which has resulted in numerous complaints when it was sold by Southeastern Refining Company and Sun Chemical Company previously." It said persons were hired to pose as satisfied customers to give glowing account to prospective purchasers of how pleased they were with their own distributorships.

Volumes Study English Language

A GRAMMAR OF THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE: Two Volumes. By George O. Curme. Verbatim. Vol. 1, 370 Pages. Vol. 2, 616 Pages. $35.

These two volumes, originally published as separate works in the 1930s, form a most comprehensive study of English language usage.

Volume I, published in 1935, deals with parts of speech. The basic parts of the English language (noun, verb, adjective and so on) are derived into deeply, as is accident. Accidence, the study of the inflection and order of words, is treated with regard for the subtleties which can unintentionally hide the true meaning of a sentence.

Curiously, Volume II, which deals with syntax, was published earlier, in 1931. Stringing together the parts of speech we learned so much about in the first volume, making certain that each word is properly used and serving a specific purpose, is covered exhaustively in this volume.

The late author, George O. Curme (rhymes with "firm"), was a language professor at Northwestern University. He demonstrated an agreeable philosophy toward grammar which is evident throughout his work. Curme, not unwilling to flex "proper" English when the time is right, wrote in his preface, "Good English varies according to the occasion, just as our dress varies according to the occasion. Loose colloquial English... is frequently as appropriate as a loose-fitting garment in moments of relaxation."

It all adds up to a work well worth the attention of the writer, the scholar, and those who find English a fascinating hobby.

"Black Castle" Tale of Suspense

THE BLACK CASTLE. By Les Daniels. Scribner's. 241 Pages. $8.95.

"The Black Castle" is touted as "a macabre tale of relentless suspense," but it's about as frightening as a very small child wearing a Halloween mask and as suspenseful as a soap opera.

It is set in Spain during the Inquisition. In an obscure town in northern Spain, the head inquisitor for the region is Diego de Villanueva. Diego is a man consumed with ambition. He burns to be inquisitor for all of Spain and as a means to achieving this end he is working on a book that will be the definitive text on demonology.

Actually, the book is being ghost-written by his brother, Sebastian, a vampire. Sebastian was a great soldier but he got "killed" fighting the Moors. Although he died, he didn't really, since he somehow got to be a vampire. Now he broods in "The Black Castle," sleeping while the sun is up, writing when it is dark, doing vile deeds when he isn't writing.

Although they are brothers, Diego and Sebastian can't stand each other. Each allows the other to survive in return for certain favors — Sebastian writes Diego's book, Diego supplies Sebastian with victims.

Naturally there has got to be a confrontation between the brothers, and there is. But by the time it comes about, the reader can no longer summon up a glimmer of interest in the result.

Subway Line Troubled By Unresolved Problems

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY

ROME (AP) - A new subway line will be 20 years old by the time it opens in this capital city, unless unresolved problems push back the opening date even more.

The line, the first truly practical subway in Rome, was authorized by law in 1959 and has been under construction since 1964. After innumerable delays caused by archeological finds, cave-ins, underground lakes, environmentalist protests, labor problems and bureaucratic inefficiency, officials say the 9-mile subway line should begin test runs in September and be open to the public by next summer.

The city is supposed to furnish drivers for the test runs, but parliament recently imposed a freeze on the hiring of new public employees. The maintenance yard is not large enough to hold all the trains on order, and the cars are piling up in the construction plants while the city negotiates the right-of-way to enlarge the depot.

The end of the line to the east was supposed to connect with a huge parking lot to accommodate commuters from the surrounding hill towns, but it is

AUSTIN—While three U.S. balloonists set a record by crossing the Atlantic, the late Onassis' sole heiress returned to her new Russian husband and two would-be record-setting distance swimmers gave up crossing from Cuba to Florida—the State of Texas quietly went about holding hearings and listening to the public's voice.

All last week Representative DeWitt Hale (Corpus Christi) and his House General Investigating Committee heard witnesses on the Committee's move to make some changes in the state's insurance program.

This investigative committee is an on-going, hard-working committee which delves into much of the state's business to find out if any hanky-panky is going on.

According to Hale, the insurance hearings will be taken up again in a few weeks and recommendations will be made in early fall in a special insurance report to the State.

Meanwhile, Hale's Committee goes this week to the state school in Corpus Christi for an investigation of alleged abuses there. Recently, both the state schools at Richmond and Mexia have been investigated by Hale's Committee, and his office says a final state school report is due also in early fall from the busy committee.

As usual, about this time of year, when everyone turns to "back-to-school," the State Textbook Committee listened to citizens tell how textbooks proposed for public schools are too supportive of sexism, too supportive of feminism and capable of inciting such crimes as murder and rebellion. Hearings continue this week.

ment to be set before Texas voters in the November election. His office says he will set plans in motion in the early fall.

Grant Trimmed

Texas Adult Probation Commission, preparing to spend $18 million on local probation services, voted to trim its per capita grant maximum.

Commissioners will spend 50 cents a day on each probationer under direct supervision.

They postponed a decision on auditing of local probation offices.

All but 27 counties are in probation districts approved by district judges. Many are multi-county setups. There are 111,000 adults on probation, including 86,000 under direct supervision by about 700 probation officers.

Probation departments last year collected $3.5 million in restitution for victims of crime.

Officials Named

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will serve as chairman of the State Democratic Convention in Fort Worth September 15-16.

Republicans, who will meet in Dallas a week earlier, announced appointment of Ricardo H. Hinojosa of McAllen as chairman of the temporary committee on platform and resolutions for their 1978 convention.

Primary business of the conventions will be naming party executive committees and adopting official platforms for state candidates.

In addition, Democrats will elect 60 delegates to the National Democratic Party mini-convention in Memphis next December.

Billy Goldberg of Houston is due to succeed Calvin Guest of Bryan as Democratic state chairman. Ray Barnhart of Houston is seeking re-election as Republican chairman.

AG Opinions

The Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation may furnish housing, meals and laundry service to employees who are interns in non-medically related fields. Attorney General John Hill said.

In other opinions, Hill concluded:

—A family district court judge who transfers retirement credits from the county and district retirement system to the Judicial Retirement System should pay to the state treasury six percent of the state's portion of a district judge's salary for the full period of his tenure on the domestic relations or juvenile court bench.

—Prior to passage of constitutional amendment in November, use of tax increment financing for urban renewal must be approved in a city election.

—An employee can exercise the option to participate in the Optional Retirement Program for college faculty members only once.

Aged Helped

Twenty-five grants totaling $3.7 million in federal funds will go to support meal programs and other social services for older Texans.

Awards provided funding for 23 nutrition projects for the elderly and refunding for two of the 28 Agencies on Aging, which function as focal points for the statewide network of services administered by the Governor's Committee on Aging.

The Committee on Aging also authorized reservation of $642,000 in federal money for the future development of nutrition projects for elderly Texans living in seven of the state's planning and service regions.

Supreme Court Rules In Favor of Clinic

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Dallas clinic does not have to turn over medical records of its patients without the presence of a protective order ensuring the patients' privacy, ruled Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan.

In granting a renewed application to stay an order of the Supreme Court of Texas, Brennan said Monday that such a protective order had not been issued by the state district court judge hearing the civil case involving Reproductive Services Inc. of Dallas. A former abortion patient filed a malpractice suit against the clinic.

Brennan had issued the original stay on July 17 noting that "the question sought to be raised by applicant - whether the names of abortion patients can be obtained by discovery for use in a civil suit against a person or clinic performing abortions where, as here, the parties have not agreed to a protective order to ensure the privacy of those patients - is a serious one."

PLANETS WITH MESSAGE TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A University of Arizona scientist believes he has a way to tune in on any planet that might be beaming messages into space. Dr. Krzysztof Serkowski, associate professor in the school's lunar and planetary laboratory, said the first step was to find another planetary system, using a technique that measured the speed of a star. Next, you aim a radio telescope at it to find out whether there is anything to listen to.

WASHTON (AP) - Mosquitoes are biting in record numbers this year because rain fell at the right time in the right spots this spring and summer, entomologists report. One Maryland expert, Dr. Robert M. Altman, linked his state's increased mosquito population to the fact that rain fell during the full moons. Altman explains that marsh mosquitoes need salt water to hatch, while their upland cousins require rain. He says when a full moon draws the tide farther inland, greater numbers of marsh mosquitoes are hatched. And when the lunar tide coincides with rain, upland mosquitoes also appear in force, according to the National Geographic Society.

Shade Trees Can Hamper Grass Growth

COLLEGE STATION — Lazy summer afternoons are for napping on the soft grass under a big shade tree.

Getting the grass to grow under that tree, however, requires much more effort than napping. Everett Janne, a landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says a beautiful stand of grass growing beneath a tree shows extra care by the owner.

"Grass requires at least three to four hours of either direct daily sunlight or all-day filtered sun. Grasses are more susceptible to disease problems in moist, heavily shaded areas," points out Janne.

many leaves at any time." After pruning, plant a grass that has shade tolerance. In Central and South Texas, St. Augustine grass is a good choice for shady trees. Since warm soil promotes fast growth, the best time to plant grass is in the spring after the soil temperature reaches 70 degrees.

"Once the grass is established, mow it at least one-half inch higher than grass growing in full sunlight," suggests Janne. "This provides more leaf surface to use available sunlight."

Tree roots compete with grass for moisture and soil nutrients. However, keeping the soil constantly wet can harm both tree and grass roots. Janne recommends soaking the ground at 7-to-10-day intervals during the summer and to increase fertilizer for shaded areas to compensate for the needs of trees and grass.

"In deeply shaded areas where pruning is not possible or feasible, ground covers are the only answer," contends the horticulturist. "English Ivy, ajuga and big-leaved periwinkle are some common types. When those won't grow, try using a mulch of bark or gravel under the tree."

Pruning trees can help solve a shade problem and improve air circulation. It is better to thin from the top by selectively removing branches at their origin instead of topping or stubbing back large limbs, advises the horticulturist.

"The best time for pruning evergreens is late spring or early summer after new spring growth," contends Janne. "Prune early spring flowering plants immediately after flowering. Carefully prune deciduous trees over a period of several years to avoid removing too

Simple Plan Best For Landscaping

COLLEGE STATION — Plan a landscape for easy maintenance and save time, money and work, suggests Dr. William Welch, a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The number one rule," Welch says, "is to keep the landscape simple."

Fancy curves, corners, scattered plantings and flower beds only make for extra hours spent trimming, mowing, pruning and watering, the specialist warns.

Welch recommends group plantings of shrubs, trees and flowers. "Group plantings are easier to care for and give a landscape a look of unity," Welch says.

When choosing shrubs and trees for an area, keep in mind their adaptability and the amount of care they will need, advises the Texas A&M University System horticulturist. Native plants and trees are best adapted to the climate and usually require the least attention.

"Slow growing or dwarf plants are especially good for small properties and for planting close to a house or building because they require less pruning," notes Welch.
