Consumer Costs Up Slightly

Grocery Prices Decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government had the first good news for inflation-weary Americans in months today, reporting that consumer prices were held to an 0.5 percent increase in July as grocery prices declined for the first time in a year.

The July increase compared with price gains of 0.9 percent in each of the previous three months and was the smallest rise since a 0.4 percent gain last December.

The Labor Department attributed the improvement to an 0.4 percent decline in grocery prices, the first drop since July 1977, and an 0.6 percent drop in the price of clothing, particularly for women and girls.

While the price report was a welcome development for consumers, it also should give support to the troubled U.S. dollar on world money markets.

While the price report was a welcome development for consumers, it also should give support to the troubled U.S. dollar on world money markets, where the currency's value has declined because of inflation and the nation's trade deficit.

The Commerce Department planned to release the July figures on the nation's trade performance later today. It was expected to show a smaller deficit than in previous months, another good sign for the dollar.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index in July stood at 196.7 of the 1967 average of 100. This means that goods priced at $100 11 years ago had increased in price to $196.70 last month.

The July increase of 0.5 percent, if continued for an entire year, would result in a 12-month inflation of 6 percent. The annual rate or price inflation in the three previous months was 10.7 percent.

The total increase in consumer prices since January has been 5.4 percent, compared with an increase during all of last year of 6.9 percent. The Carter administration now hopes to hold inflation to an 8 percent increase during all of this year. It had set a 6.1 percent target at the start of this year.

The decline in grocery prices of 0.4 percent in July compared with average monthly increases of 1.6 percent during the first six months of the year.

Commission Discusses Eating-Room Guidelines

The Hereford City Commission met Monday to draw up rules governing the use of the new Hereford Community Center banquet room but instead decided to stay with a set of guidelines which have informally regulated the community center for the last several years.

"We don't need to have a motion on this," City Manager Dudley Bayne told commissioners following a brief discussion on proposed rules for the new banquet room, which will be open to the public next week. "All we want to do today is have something we can more or less go by."

Bayne had presented the three commissioners present—John Matthews, Ed Coplen and Dickie Geries—a list of guidelines which he said had been followed since construction of the center. The guidelines included:

- No commercial use by individuals.
- Senior high and junior high students have first call on the ballroom for their dances on Friday or Saturday nights.
- No private art or craft shows or displays by individuals.
- No private parties or receptions.
- Advance booking required by all groups or organizations.
- No charges have been made for use of

Camp Water District Election Set by County

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County commissioners Monday approved the creation of a water district at the San Jose labor camp by accepting a petition with the names of 50 camp residents requesting formation of the district.

The commission then set an election for the water district board members for Saturday, Sept. 23, at the San Jose Catholic Church.

Two residents of the camp, both members of a steering committee appointed by San Jose residents to work on formation of the district, attended Monday's regular semi-monthly commission meeting, along with an attorney and Rafael Quinones, a State Department of Health official from Canyon.

Quinones has worked with the steering committee since its formation, while the lawyer, Bonnie Schomp of Amarillo Legal Services Inc., said she was on hand in order answer the commission's questions concerning the legal aspects of the water district.

Ms. Schomp said that the two residents—Rev. Andres Del Toro and Jesse Garcia—were at the meeting "to present testimony" concerning the need for a district.

County Judge Sam Morgan told Ms. Schomp that the commission did not need to hear testimony "because we're all in favor of it, and we've heard it all before."

The commission, as is required by state law in order to form a water district inside its county jurisdiction, formally accepted the petition.

Rev. Del Toro said in response to a question from Commissioner Bruce Coleman, that the next step after the election would be to improve the San Jose sewage system.

The camp has been assured $320,000 from the federal government to upgrade its water system. Without a water district, the county commission would have had to apply for future grants, including one to upgrade the sewer system. The water district, Morgan said, "will allow the people out there to act in their own behalf. If they want to improve the sewer system or pave roads or whatever, they'll be able to do it now."

222nd Judicial District Judge Wesley Gulley asked the commission to sign a contract between the county and the adult probation office, as is required by a state law which is to go into effect on Sept. 1.

The new law stipulates that the state will be responsible for paying salaries in county probation offices, but counties will have to furnish benefits such as insurance, retirement and vacations. The law also states that money received by the county from probation fees must be turned over to the state to pay for probation officers' salaries.

Gulley said that the county, because of that stipulation, will pay the state approximately $10,000 more than it will get back in salaries.

However, the state on June 1, 1979, will require that no more than 150 probationers are handled by one officer

Woodward Delays Buffalo's Emptying

BY JIM STEIERT
Outdoors Editor

The Buffalo Lake Survival Committee has obtained a brief reprieve for the popular impoundment located near the community of Umberger.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward ordered the draining of the lake stopped Monday afternoon, just under a week after the Interior Department first gave the word to drain some 6,000 acre feet of water from the lake.

The judge placed a restraining order into effect until at least Friday, when additional testimony on possible downstream damage will be presented in Lubbock.

The restraining order came in response to a suit filed by the Buffalo Lake Survival Committee, a group of concerned Panhandle citizens who organized last week to save the lake.

The lawsuit states that no explanation has been given as to why the spillway in question at the lake could not be repaired without draining the impoundment.

Interior Department officials contend that the spillway is so run-down that it could wash out in the event of another heavy rain such as the one which filled the lake on May 26.

Robert H. Weimer of Amarillo, a witness for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, testified that another three inches of rainfall over the 575 square mile watershed area of the lake could produce enough water to threaten washing out the spillway.

Named as defendants in the lawsuit filed yesterday are Cecil D. Andrus, Secretary of the Interior, and W.O. Nelson, Region 2 director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

The suit filed by the lake committee alleges that the defendants have failed to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act by not filing an environmental impact statement prior to beginning the draining operation last week.

The lawsuit also alleges that no explanation has been offered as to why the spillway could not be repaired without draining the lake. It contends that the lake's spillway could withstand more pressures from rain.

L.P. Gilvin, president of Gilvin-Terrell Inc. and a former member of the Texas Game and Fish Commission said in a sworn statement, "There is reasonable probability that the spillway at Buffalo Lake could be repaired without draining the water from the lake."

Gilvin's firm performed repairs on the spillway at Lake McClellan without draining that impoundment.

During testimony Monday afternoon, Weimer stated, "You don't have to drain the lake to effect the repair. We want to drain the lake to give space to keep water from the spillway if there's more rain. At the rate we've gone to repair the spillway, there's danger of another flood."

According to Weimer, who works for the Bureau of Reclamation, Buffalo's spillway could be repaired in 18 months if money is available, and repairs could be made in a year if plans were already drawn.

Survival Committee witness Enoch Henderson of Amarillo testified the spillway could be repaired without draining the lake.

"I don't say I'm an expert, but I do

Meeting Set On Drainage

A public meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Canyon Community Center, 300 16th Street, to obtain input on the Buffalo Lake situation.

Representatives from the Albuquerque office of the Interior Department, from the office of U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, and state agencies are expected to be on hand.

Max Hoffman Jr. of Umberger, a member of the steering committee for the Buffalo Lake survival group reported that much of the testimony to be presented at Thursday night's meeting will be taken into consideration during the continuation of the hearing on the restraining order for the lake on Friday.

"We need black and white proof that the lake will not present a hazard if it goes undrained, and we need the help of all area residents in presenting this proof," said Hoffman.

The steering committee member explained that the goal of the lake survival organization is to have the lake placed under the jurisdiction of a department that would "run it properly and see that it is kept up as it should be."

"Sentiment seems to favor having the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department administer the lake," said Hoffman.

She Does Her Share Because 'It's Fun'

By PAUL SIMS

Irene McKinster calls it fun. Others might call it insanity.

What it is, is involvement, the first thing folks think of when they think of Mrs. McKinster.

She's involved in bank work. Has been since 1967, when she became the first receptionist Hereford State Bank has ever known. She later became public relations officer, then director of marketing.

She's involved in community work. Has been for as long as she has lived in any community.

Since Mrs. McKinster's 1966 arrival in Hereford with husband Jack, a cattle buyer, she has formed the Hereford Newcomers Club, has been president of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, has helped to organize the Texas CowBelles and its local chapter and has been—or still is—a member of the following boards:

Vocational Office Education advisory, American Cancer Society, High School Booster Club, Community Concert Association, United Way, and Senior Citizens.

She also is a member of the Hereford Hustlers and has been a deacon in the Presbyterian Church.

Don't relax, dear reader, the list goes on. She is a member of the American Legion Auxiliary and the National Association for Female Executives.

Mrs. McKinster's involvement earned her the designation of Hereford Woman of the Year from the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division in 1971 and resulted in her receiving the Torchlight Award last year from the women's division. The award is presented for outstanding service to the community.

"Being involved is fun. It keeps me young," said Mrs. McKinster, who swears she didn't originate the phrase "hustlin' Hereford" but is so indicative of its implication.

"I enjoy working with people. I love people. I don't belong to the social clubs in town. I'm not against them. I just don't have the time.

"I have time to stay active because my bosses let me. They give me the time. Actually, it's part of my job.

"I like working at the bank. I like the people. Until I went to work after we moved here, it was miserable. Now, Jack

Kentucky Woman On Trial for Abortion

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) - A young western Kentucky woman could be sent to prison for 10 to 20 years if she is found guilty on charges she performed an illegal abortion on herself with a knitting needle.

Testimony begins today in the trial of Marla Elaine Pitchford, 22, whose case is believed to be one of the first in the nation where a woman, without involvement from doctors, has been charged with abortion herself.

Commonwealth's Attorney Morris Lowe said he would call seven witnesses in the state's effort to prove that Miss Pitchford violated an abortion law passed by the 1974 General Assembly.

The jury of eight men and six women, including two alternates, was chosen Monday in Warren Circuit Court and was sequestered overnight.

Kelly Thompson Jr., a public defender representing Miss Pitchford, said he would argue a defense of temporary insanity and that psychiatric experts would be among the 15 to 20 defense witnesses.

Miss Pitchford, a former psychology major at Western Kentucky University here, was indicted by a grand jury June 14 on charges of manslaughter and performing an illegal abortion five days earlier, when she was allegedly 20 to 24 weeks pregnant.

Francis dismissed the manslaughter charge at an Aug. 16 pre-trial hearing on grounds that a fetus is not legally a person.

Postal Strike Threat

Ends with Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service and union negotiators are going back to the bargaining table under a delicately crafted agreement that removes the threat of a nationwide mail strike for at least two weeks.

"The nation can now be assured it will continue to enjoy uninterrupted mail service," said Postmaster General

William Bolger after the compromise was reached on Monday.

Under the accord, the Postal Service and three unions will resume collective bargaining for 15 days under the auspices of a federal mediator, who will arbitrate any unresolved issues by the end of that period.

Both sides made concessions for their gains. Union leaders won further bargaining on key terms of the tentative contract that their rank and file had rejected earlier, at the cost of possible binding arbitration.

The Postal Service conceded reopening the bargaining, but won the element of arbitration and avoided - at least for now - what one government source said would have been "a very messy situation."

While the agreement appears to make a strike less likely, it does not rule out a possible rejection by union members of any future contract. Nor would it guarantee there would be no wildcat walkouts in the event of a mediated settlement.

The agreement came six hours before one union was expected to go on strike unless contract talks were resumed.

Turkeys, Chickens, Eggs to Cost More

WASHINGTON (AP) - Prices of turkey, broiler chicken and eggs will be higher this fall than they were a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

With beef output down because of cattle producers cutting back on their herds, hog and poultry output has just about filled the gap but not enough to stem price increases.

Thus, the department said Monday, wholesale turkey prices this fall are expected to be up 8 percent to 10 percent from a year ago. Increases also are anticipated for broilers and eggs.

Look for broiler and turkey production well above a year earlier during the rest of 1978 and into 1979, the department's outlook and situation board said.

Spurred by continued high red meat prices, broiler and turkey prices will remain above last year in coming months, it said.

In the fourth quarter, wholesale broiler prices are expected to average 40 cents to 42 cents a pound, the report said. Although that would be down from this summer's peaks, broiler prices would be up from their average of 37.6 cents a pound in the fourth quarter of last year.

New York wholesale turkey prices, used as a base, are expected to be in the range of 66 cents to 68 cents a pound in the fourth quarter, up from an average of 61.3 cents in Oct. - Dec. last year. They are now about 67 cents to 69 cents.

Actor Killed Self, Coroner Rules

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Actor Charles Boyer took his own life with an overdose of sleeping pills two days after the death of his wife of 44 years, Maricopa County Coroner Thomas Jarvis has ruled.

Boyer, the sophisticated French-born actor who had played opposite some of Hollywood's leading ladies, was buried Monday on what would have been his 79th birthday.

The private ceremony at Holy Cross Cemetery in Los Angeles was attended by seven close friends, including actresses Loretta Young and Irene Dunne and actor John Forsythe.

"He died of an overdose of Seconal - a suicide," Jarvis said after blood samples had been tested. Jarvis said "a very small amount of alcohol" also turned up in the samples.

Seconal is a barbiturate used widely as a sleeping pill.

Boyer died Saturday after being found unconscious about 10 a.m. and rushed to the St. Joseph's Hospital heart center. Jarvis had said Sunday an autopsy indicated previous heart disease.

"There were signs of previous infarction," Jarvis said then. But he said he planned to send blood samples to a toxicology laboratory "to determine whether he might have overdosed on a drug." He said "there is no evidence of that, but we'll double-check."

Police Report

A Hereford man was arrested for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated at 1:20 a.m. today in the 300 block of Main. Billy Joe Wall, 817 Country Club Drive, Monday morning reported the theft of 30 pounds of frozen meat from the refrigerator in his garage.

Weather

West Texas - Partly cloudy north, cloudy south with scattered showers and thunderstorms through Wednesday. A few thunderstorms possibly becoming locally heavy south tonight. Cooler afternoons most sections. Highs today 80 to 95. Lows tonight 55 to 70. Highs Wednesday 75 to 85.

The Labor Department said the purchasing power of workers' paychecks increased 0.2 percent in July, although they were still down 2.1 percent in the 12 months since July 1977.

The country had a deficit in June of $1.6 billion. While still huge, this was better than the deficit of $2.2 billion in May.

Analysts said a continuation of the improving trade trend in July probably would be reflected in a stronger dollar. However, even the most optimistic experts see no way the country can avoid topping last year's record trade deficit of $26.7 billion.

While hoping for improvement in the inflation and trade outlook, the government has been prompted to take several stopgap actions in the past two weeks to prop up the sagging dollar.

The latest move came Monday when the Federal Reserve Board took steps to make it easier for U.S. brands to borrow some of the estimated $500 billion held abroad in what has come to be known as the Eurodollar market. The Fed sought to increase demand for the dollar where demand has been weak recently.

The move resulted in the dollar opening higher on the Tokyo foreign exchange market today, at a rate of 193.30 yen compared with Monday's close of 192.475.

when transferring a patient to Amarillo. The commission, for the last several weeks, had discussed removing the equipment because Smith no longer responded to calls from the sheriff's office or police department.

"It's just a matter of economics," Smith said. "The last year I provided this service to the county and city, I lost $23,000."

The commission agreed that leaving the radio in the ambulance would be in the best interest of the county.

In consideration of items not on the published agenda, commissioners approved payment of bills submitted by District Atty. Roland Saul as expenses incurred during the Samuel Hawkins rape trial in Houston and agreed to have the museum parking lot repaired before winter.

Saul's bills totaled more than $400.

Deregulation

said, would be followed by a meeting with representatives of industries that are among the biggest users of natural gas: glass, textile and paper manufacturing.

"There will be other meetings like these later in the week which the president will join in," said an administration source who asked not to be identified.

The natural gas compromise is expected to see Senate floor action the week of Sept. 11. It is opposed by a coalition of liberals who claim it would prove too costly to consumers and conservatives who want immediate deregulation.

As of late Monday neither side was able to claim a clearcut majority. Both were scurrying for votes among undecided senators - estimated at a dozen to two dozen, depending on who was doing the counting.

And Then There is China

Politics does create incongruous alliances. It was Richard Nixon, lifelong anti-Communist, who reopened the door to Communist China.

Now it is Sen. Ted Kennedy who hopes to "capitalize on communism" by sponsoring diplomatic recognition for the China government.

So those of both parties, wishing to sidetrack any Kennedy presidential candidacy, now hasten to identify themselves - rather than him - with that inevitable recognition.

In the days when I used to chase around the world doing my own legwork there was almost always an inescapable inclination to send home from wherever the message that "this is the tinder box," this is the "time bomb," this is the "critical and crucial issue and area of the world today."

There still is a tendency for any foreign correspondent or government diplomat to imagine that the area to which he has been assigned is surely the most significant.

In the Middle East, observers compare conflicting interests and utterances and conclude that "a miscalculation here could set the world on fire."

At NATO headquarters world security appears to hinge on the delicate dollar-gold balance. And then there is China.

Americans are rediscovering China, returning home to insist that a red-on-red holocaust will surely engulf us unless we carefully play Peking against Moscow and Moscow against Peking; meanwhile, keeping Taiwan strong enough to fight and weak enough not to want to.

So-called "China experts," in and out of government, suggest complicated formulas whereby we must "arm everybody so as to endanger nobody."

President Carter's National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, contemplating full diplomatic recognition for China, will surely want at least three promises in return: Taiwan may continue to purchase American arms, Taiwan will not be attacked, and the United States may continue to keep an economic mission in Taiwan.

Whatever our rationale, however the give-and-take seems to make sense on the scene, from a distance the United States appears to be a mercenary arms merchant for a volatile world.

Each theater of the world - Asia, the Middle East, Africa - is the scene of an ancient and continuing tug-of-war.

The United States hears from its sources on the scene that unless we send guns to this side or that, a high-noon shootout is inevitable.

So with the best intentions we hasten to beef up the weapons, firepower and technology of first one side and then the other.

Cycle Gang Members Slain in Shooting

MADISONVILLE, Texas (AP)

Two members of opposing motorcycle gangs were killed and a third member critically wounded in two widely separate shootings Sunday, law enforcement officers said Monday.

Police did not say whether they believed the shootings were related, however.

Two members of the Banshee bikers, which has chapters in Texas and Louisiana, were shot Sunday on the shoulder of Interstate 45 eight miles north of Madisonville in Central Texas.

The president of the Fort Worth chapter of the Bandidos motorcycle club, Johnny Ray Lightsey, 29, was shot six times and killed earlier Sunday as he stopped his bike at a downtown Fort Worth traffic light.

In Madisonville, Rodney Lee, 25, and James Harvey Cleveland, 34, were each shot twice with a large-caliber weapon, Madison County Sheriff Ed Fannin said Monday.

Lee, of Houston, died of his wounds and Cleveland, from Lancaster, was in critical condition Monday at a Houston hospital.

"It was a gangland-style killing," Fannin said. He said state troopers had stopped and talked with the motorcycle riders about five minutes before the shooting.

"They told them they were waiting for a friend of theirs in a van," the sheriff said. The troopers left but five minutes later noticed smoke and fire in the area.

When they got back, the pair had been shot. Fannin said Cleveland and his bike had subsequently been hit by a vehicle pulling a travel trailer, which is how the fire was believed started.

"Lee told me and a deputy that a tan Lincoln with three persons were the ones who shot him," Fannin said.

Fannin said the wounded men told him the Banshees and Bandidos once feuded but that a truce was signed about eight months ago.

The troopers said a car was parked behind the bikers at the time they stopped but did not think it was a Lincoln, but a Ford.

Fort Worth homicide investigator Darrell Thompson said Lightsey was killed in a hail of gunfire.

"He pulled up at a red light, somebody drove up next to him, pumped six bullets into him and drove away."

Lightsey was arrested on assault charges after seven persons were stabbed in a scuffle with Bandidos at a chili cookoff in Grand Prairie in April.

He recently claimed in an interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that he had a long record of arrests, including "nine or 10 times" for rape. He never was convicted on a rape charge, however.

Despite all of his arrests, he acted as if he loved it all. "This is America, man," he said.

prices for meats were the chief reason for the decline. It said beef prices were down 2.2 percent following eight consecutive months of large increases and pork prices were down 4 percent. There were also lower prices for fresh vegetables, eggs and coffee.

"It's just a matter of economics," Smith said. "The last year I provided this service to the county and city, I lost $23,000."

The commission agreed that leaving the radio in the ambulance would be in the best interest of the county.

"There will be other meetings like these later in the week which the president will join in," said an administration source who asked not to be identified.

The natural gas compromise is expected to see Senate floor action the week of Sept. 11. It is opposed by a coalition of liberals who claim it would prove too costly to consumers and conservatives who want immediate deregulation.

As of late Monday neither side was able to claim a clearcut majority. Both were scurrying for votes among undecided senators - estimated at a dozen to two dozen, depending on who was doing the counting.

American-German School Systems Compared

BY KERRIE STEIERT
Women's Editor

Although Hereford's children might be appalled at the thought, German teacher Wolfgang Franz wished that local classrooms had been filled with students last week, so that he could have seen the American education process at work.

Franz, who is the brother of a local resident, Regina (Mrs. Bill) Kester, teaches children with learning problems in his home city near Frankfurt, Germany. Franz visited for five weeks in this city with his wife, Erika, and was extremely interested in the local education system.

He was particularly impressed with the innovative teaching program at Tierra Blanca Elementary School, where "they let each student go his own way." But, as Franz bemoaned, it was difficult to judge the local system in an empty classroom.

"I would have liked to have seen it (the local teaching program) in action," he stated Friday afternoon, two days before he and his wife flew to New York, where they will stay a week before returning to Europe.

Although Franz did not have the opportunity to view the interaction between teacher and student during his stay here, he did visit with local instructors and view the teaching material that is employed in Texas public schools. He was impressed with the instruction material, ranking it of higher quality than that in his homeland.

Because Franz teaches students who are retarded or have behavioral problems, his role in the classroom differs from that of the teacher of "normal" students. "I can only offer the education. These students are more difficult to reach."

After eight years of teaching in the regular classroom, it was an adjustment for Franz last year when he assumed the job as teacher of 15 students with learning problems. His students range in age from 7-16.

The major difference in teaching special education classes is that each student is so different from another, although both possess learning problems. "When you teach in a regular classroom," Franz explained, "you speak to the entire class. But you have to teach on an individual basis with learning-impaired students."

Franz will be returning to a university, where he will receive two years of specialized training so that he will be better qualified to teach children with learning problems. "I want to come back to these children and deal with their problems," he said. The main problem encountered by a special education teacher is that his students "are longing to be in control of their emotions."

During his vacation in Hereford Franz did not spend all of his time pondering the differences in American and German teaching methods. The Kesters, longtime local residents, guided the German couple on a tour of this area, where the Franzes found the people to be "very friendly and helpful."

Although they were not overly impressed with the Western rodeo, they will remember Hereford's major industry-the feedyard. Recalling his visit to one, Franz waved his hand in front of his face, shook his head and sighed, "Whew! Smelly, smelly."

4-H Firsthand

"A VERY SPECIAL PERSON - A VOLUNTEER 4-H LEADER"

4-H leaders are adults with added minds and a soft spot in their hearts for kids - all kinds of kids; their own kids, other people's kids, tall kids, short kids, thin kids, not-so-thin kids, regular kids, square kids, responsive kids, and ungrateful kids from ten-agers to teenagers. At their own time and expense and neglecting their own personal interests, they serve without pay and often with a minimum of parent cooperation, knowing that they are necessities that the Agricultural Extension Service and the 4-H membership could not do without. Seldom are there enough of them and that is the reason they become leaders - so their own offspring can join the 4-H organization.

Leaders are usually to be found in the midst of a more or less attentive group of kids, numbering anywhere from 3 to 15, teaching projects such as cooking, dressmaking, electricity, gardening, chicken raising, horsemanship, canning, tractor operation, home improvement, forestry, camping, etc. They generously and regularly open their homes to scuffling feet, vocal enthusiasm, extemporaneous wrestling matches, and unauthorized pillow fights. And somehow, in spite of alien influence, skills and knowledge are miraculously transferred from leader to child in varying degrees.

A leader explains to, shows how, does for, phones up, pleads with, bosses around, and reminds for the tenth time; and when the result is negative, patiently swallows an urge to throttle them and once again explains to, shows how, does for, phones up, pleads with, bosses around, and reminds for the eleventh time.

No one gets madder, tired, or more often offended, forgives shows, or talent nights, he is attending night meetings, and emergency meetings. In his spare time, he collects record books, cleans up the club meeting place, judges at fairs and field days, and reads Extension literature.

4-H leaders are sometimes happy, but often are frustrated, discouraged, disgusted, and vow that they will quit 4-H forever with as little violence as possible. That is - until their members suddenly blossom forth with blue ribbons, gold medals, exemplary conduct, unsuspected poise, inner-glow, and unmistakable admiration for their leader shining in their eyes.

That is when the soft spot in every leader's heart grows softer, and the new year finds him in the midst of his more or less attentive group explaining to, showing how, doing for, phoning up, pleading with, bossing around, reminding again - except for one difference. Three more members have been added.

Volunteer - It'll make you a better human, more quickly, shows better sportsmanship, or is a bigger pushover to a request for community service than a 4-H leader. The leader is Determination with fingers crossed, Patience with a twinkle in the eye, Ambition drawing tomorrow's blueprints, and Zeal that observes no curfew.

A leader is usually going to, coming from, or planning for a

For Parents Only

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A long time ago you printed some rules for parents to live by. They were written by boys who were in a reform school and I sure would like to see them in your column again. I can't remember them anymore but I hope you can.

Thanks for trying. -- Duke Watertown, S.D.

DEAR DUKE: You are referring to the Reverend C. Galea, who assigned to Guelph Correctional Center. He asked the boys to think about their lives and figure out why they ended up in an institution for delinquents. It was the boys who drew up a Code for Parents. Here it is:

1. Keep cool. Don't lose your temper in the church. Keep the lid on when things go wrong. Children are great imitators.
2. Don't get strung out from too much booze or too many pills. When you see our parents reaching for those crutches we get the idea that it's perfectly OK to go for a bottle or a capsule when things get heavy. We lose respect fast for parents who tell us to behave one way while they are behaving another way.

3. Bug us a little. Be strict and consistent in dishing out discipline. Show us who's boss. It gives us a feeling of security to know we've got some strong supports under us.

4. Don't blow your class. Keep the dignity of parenthood. Stay on that pedestal. Your children have put you there because they need someone to look up to. Don't try to dress, dance or talk like your kids. You embarrass us and you look ridiculous.

5. Light a candle. Show us the way. Tell us God is not dead, or sleeping, or on vacation. We need to believe in something bigger and stronger than ourselves.

6. Scare the hell out of us. If you catch us lying, stealing, or being cruel get tough. Let us know WHY what we did was wrong. Impress on us the importance of not repeating such behavior. When we need punishment, dish it out.

But let us know you still love us, even though we have let you down. It'll make us think twice before we make the same move again.

7. Call our bluff. Make it clear that you mean what you say. Don't be wishy-washy. Don't compromise. And don't be intimidated by our threats to drop out of school or leave home. Stand firm. If you collapse, we will know we beat you down and we will not be happy about the "victory." Kids don't want everything they ask for.

8. Be honest with us. Tell the truth no matter what. And be straight-arrow about it. Luke-warm answers make us uneasy. We can smell uncertainty a mile away. This means being generous with praise. If you give us kids a few compliments once in a while we will be able to accept criticism more readily. We want you tell it like it is. -- From A Reader Who Loves Kids

DEAR READER: Thank you for your generous contribution to this space. The young lawbreakers who put together this guide for parents did a splendid job. And my warm regards to Rev. Galea. I can see why the kids love and respect him. Obviously he has a way of bringing out the best in them.

Parents Get Orientation At Rochester University

By ANDREW J. NEFF
Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — When freshmen arrive at the University of Rochester, it's at least three days before they can feel safely out of the nest. During that time, their parents are on the other side of the campus, getting their own orientation to college life.
The school was one of the first to offer an orientation course for parents while the students were adapting to campus. It began evolving about 10 years ago.

Around 600 parents signed up for the two sessions this July, along with about 800 students out of the entering class of 1,080.
The parents stay in separate dorms from the students, eat in dining halls at different times and are not supposed to see their children after they drop them off Sunday morning until they leave on Tuesday.
The idea, said Iris Iler, a 1975 UR grad who directs the orientation programs, "is to tell (the parents) what it's like to have a child leave home and go to college."
Also, she said, "We want to let them become familiar with where their child is going to spend the next four years."
While the children suffer through math, reading and other tests, get ID pictures taken, fill out forms and meet with advisors, the parents sit through lectures on academics, social life, services and financial aid given by deans, professors, administrators, staff and students.

Kenneth Clark, dean of the college of Arts and Sciences, said parent concerns had changed markedly in recent years, and now focused on high tuition costs, rather than college social life.
"Eight years ago, the questions were about coed living, drugs, misbehavior," he said. "Four years ago, they asked about getting into medical and law school."
Today, he said, they worry about what their child will do after he leaves the university.

New Fad 'Sticky'

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest fad in jewelry, magnetic earrings, is having its second go-round, the Jewelry Industry Council reports.
In the early '50s, magnetic earrings first made their appearance on the market, but fizzled out when the magnets used failed to have enough holding power.
In their current appearance, the new magnets containing cobalt and the rare earth samarium are the strongest known, according to the council.
The new magnets have earned their laurels, having been used aboard space probes to both the moon and Mars. Prior to their introduction in jewelry here, they were used for that purpose in Japan.

"Many women who shy away from having their ears pierced, or who have suffered from clasp that pinched, will welcome the new earrings," says Kae E. McCulloch, fashion director of the council.
Very few people, only those who are allergic to nickel, will suffer any adverse reaction from wearing the new earrings, she says. In these cases, a minor rash appears.
In better earrings, manufacturers coat the magnets with epoxy to prevent direct skin contact. Research is now under way to find out whether the new magnets could cause trouble, with electronic heart pacemakers, Ms. McCulloch says. But chances are thought to be remote, she adds, since the very small magnets used in earrings would have to be very close to an electronic device to interfere with it.
Samarium cobalt magnets pose no threat of radiation, as they do not contain the isotope Cobalt 60, which is radioactive, she points out.
The council says that to date only magnetic earrings are available, but there is some research going on on magnetic jewelry that could be worn on delicate fabrics

CHIVALRY
GLEN ROCK, N.J. (AP) — Chivalry isn't exclusively a male prerogative, as Kate Shaw proved here recently.
Mrs. Shaw was shopping when she spotted suburbanites in distress—a mother mallard and her brood of ducklings trying to cross a busy road in rush-hour traffic.
She sprang to the rescue and halted traffic in crossing-guard fashion as the ducks waddled to safety.
Other shoppers applauded and congratulated her.

At Wits End

"By graduation, the average high school student will have viewed 18,000 hours of TV and attended only 11,000 hours of formal classroom instruction. They will have witnessed 13,000 TV killings and will have seen 350,000 commercials."
(From the new book, "The Plug-In Drug" by Marie Winn)
COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS FOR TELEVISION GRADUATES

Good morning, Grad' ates.

Thanks for allowing me to preempt the test patterns for my message this morning. You know, a funny thing happened to me on the way to the studio. Come to think of it, if you've watched 22,836 sitcoms, you've probably heard it before.

Today, my friends, you're standing on the brink of prime time...a new life where you'll leave the house and get jobs and -- actually they won't be as good paying jobs as $20,000 Pyramid or Hollywood Squares or Joker's Wild, but....

What I'm trying to say is that all you professional viewers aren't going to be renewed next season. You're going to have a taste of real life for a change like riding the subway, sitting at a table for meals...or to put it another way...a documentary without commercials. You're ready to see the world.

Oh, I know you've seen all the Olympic games, live, seen every inauguration, every country and its leader in the world, mass on Christmas Eve in Rome, climbed the Himalayas, but your travels this time will take you several feet away from your TV screen--and that's a little scary.

You've all known about sex since the age of two and regard it as about as exciting as flossing your teeth, but trust me, there's more to getting married than the ratings.

Your education up to now has been one of the most unique in the history of civilization. You know how to unclog drains, shake up your mouth, aid indigestion, clean your oven while you sleep, deal with irregularities and fight cavities.

But have you no curiosity as to what happened to Mr. Olsen? How long Charlie Tuna can handle rejection? And what Sandy Duncan replied when her husband said, "This is ridiculous, but I thought I saw you today standing in a wheat field with a box of crackers."

About violence...what can I tell you? You've seen it all...war, riots, assassinations, terrorists, rapists, murders and cities burning.

What you don't know...and what the real world can provide--is the means to do something about it and the love and compassion to feel. Stop observing the world and start living in it. Good luck!

Group Aids Victims Of Excessive Dieting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In this day of diet-conscious females wanting slim and trim figures, there are some who carry "being thin" too far.
Anorexia nervosa, or "nervous appetite," begins with dieting and ends with gruesome emaciation.
Experts say anorexia usually starts in young girls, but some women encounter the problem at later ages. Faced with parental conflicts or other traumatic experiences, they develop feelings that they have no real identity. They respond by rigid, excessive dieting.
"The dieting is a negative action which attracts attention," said Patricia Howe, founder of the national Anorexic Aid Society and a recovered anorexic.

accompanied by periodic eating binges. The girls gorge themselves before launching on another, even more stringent period of starvation. Those binges, said Miss Howe, will make an anorexic feel she is losing self-control. So she strives to lose even more weight.

Miss Howe's Columbus apartment is the meeting place for a group of anorexics twice a month. Members have different backgrounds but they all share a common obstacle — a deep-seated emotional problem.

Mary, member of Miss Howe's group, said she began her weight-loss efforts after becoming pregnant. Early in the pregnancy, she couldn't accept the accompanying weight gain. "I lost six pounds in one month. I was really proud, but my doctor didn't make much of a fuss about it. It disappointed me. I was furious and tried to lose even more weight."

Miss Howe says victims of the disorder seldom develop personal relationships. They don't want to grow up. They don't show emotion because that would be a sign of weakness. And they relentlessly try to control their bodies by exaggerated dieting.

Her baby was born healthy but was a month premature. After his birth, she started strenuous dieting. "After my baby was born, I just couldn't eat," she said. "It was a super good feeling to lose weight."

Anorexia is not just a case of fad dieting carried too far, said Miss Howe. The girls often cannot stop losing weight without psychiatric counseling. Without help, she said, some girls starve themselves into a chemical imbalance. Some die after major organs fail as a direct result of starvation.

When Mary reached a low weight of 66 pounds, her doctor ordered her hospitalized, and began tube feedings. "They were giving me 3,600 calories a day," she said.

"The rigid control they exert over their bodies makes the girls feel superior," Miss Howe said. "They usually strive for perfection and are very good students."
Miss Howe says that sometimes the starvation regimen is

After six months of help at a mental-health center, Mary feels she is recovered. "I'm not that comfortable with eating," she said. "But I know what I have to do, and I do it."

Mary said her ordeal had put her marriage "on the rocks."
Carol, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Ohio State University and another married member of the group, is having a tough battle overcoming anorexia. The 5-foot-6 woman fluctuates between 90 and 95 pounds. "I find it hard to accept 95," she told the group.

When she went to college, Carol weighed between 115 and 120 pounds. But during one quarter at school, she gained 15 pounds. "That set it off," she said. "As I lost weight, my mother and others told me I looked better. It was neat getting praised for losing weight."

Colt Coach Says Team Will Have to be Beaten

By GORDON BEARD

AP Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) - coach Ted Marchibroda of the Baltimore Colts subscribes to the sports adage that a champion has to be beaten in combat.

"We should be favored going in," Marchibroda insisted as the Colts prepared to seek a fourth consecutive championship in the National Football League's American Conference East. "I think it will be a three-way race."

Everyone else subscribes to three-way theory, but most believe the Colts could trail both the New England Patriots and Miami Dolphins. The rebuilding Buffalo Bills and New York Jets will be all-rans.

New England, generally credited with having the best talent in the division, blew a comparatively easy schedule last season by losing two of its first three games while offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray sat out in a salary dispute.

All three contenders were at 9-4 before the Colts, aided by a blown fumble call which outraged millions of television viewers, beat the Pats on the final day and went to the playoffs where they lost in the first round for the third straight year.

Miami was the surprise team of 1977, rebounding from a 6-8 record the year before to tie the Colts with a 10-4 mark, only to miss the playoffs because of Baltimore's better conference record.

The season opener next Monday night against the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys will give an early clue on how much Baltimore misses running back Lydell Mitchell.

The Colts traded Mitchell last Wednesday, ending a bitter holdout which culminated with Baltimore's all-time leading ground gainer filing a grievance which included a charge of racial discrimination against the club.

New England appears to have no individual weaknesses, but the Pats have hurt by inconsistency and difficulty in coming from behind.

There's no doubt about the talent. The Pats are deep, headed by four players who rank at the top at their positions -

Hannah at guard, tight end Russ Francis, fullback Sam Cunningham, and cornerback Mike Haynes.

Miami bounced back under another masterful coaching job by Don Shula, who rehired defensive genius Bill Arnsparger after he flunked his head coaching post with the New York Giants.

Buffalo's new coach, Chuck Knox, whose offense thrives on a ground game, takes over a team which led the league in pass attempts last year.

Rookie Terry Miller and Roland Hooks must fill the void left by the trading of superstar O.J. Simpson as the Bills try to rebuild from consecutive 2-12 and 3-11 seasons.

The New York Jets, who tied Buffalo at 3-11, could show some improvement if quarterback Richard Todd regains the form he displayed before being injured midway through last season.

Tech Promises Emotion

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - New Texas Tech Head Coach Tex Dockery can promise only one thing about the 1978 football season: "We will play with a lot of emotion."

Dockery can't promise a lot since he gets only six full-time starters from last season. Tech has a lack of experience and depth at running back and on the defensive secondary. Three of last fall's starters in the offensive backfield are gone and the fourth, flanker Brian Nelson, has been moved to split end.

The secondary has only three players with measurable variety experience.

And the schedule? Well, Tech opens with Southern California on the road then meets Arizona, Texas and Texas A&M in succession. Tech has three weeks to get ready for the Sept. 9 opener against USC.

"We've never had such a short time between the opening of practice and our first game," said Dockery. "It means we are going to have to get some things done in a hurry."

Dockery, who was offensive coordinator for Steve Sloan, who is now at Mississippi, does have experience at quarterback.

Both Tres Adami, a senior who is a good passer, and Mark Johnson, a junior who is a good runner, stand to see a lot of action.

Dockery has already left his offensive mark at Texas Tech in his three years as offensive coordinator.

In 1975, the Red Raiders set a school record for total offense and led the Southwest Conference by averaging more than 400 yards a game. During Dockery's second season at Tech, the Raiders averaged more than 379 yards a game as they shared in their first SWC title in history.

Last year, the offense averaged 310 yards per game.

1978 College Season To Start This Weekend

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

With a new field goal rule, two new bowl games, some new conference alignments, a new No. 1 team and 28 new major college coaches, the 1978 college football season gets under way next weekend. There will be 10 games for starters, including one in the gridiron hotbed of Osaka, Japan.

Three members of The Associated Press pre-season Top Ten will be in action. Third-ranked Penn State opens the season Friday night - Sept. 1 is the earliest opening day possible under NCAA rules - against Temple in Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium.

The weekend's key game takes place Saturday night at Birmingham's Legion Field when No. 1-ranked Alabama meets 10th-ranked Nebraska in a contest to be televised nationally by ABC-TV 9 p.m. EDT. Nebraska was the only team to defeat Alabama a year ago.

On Sunday, Utah State, a new member of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, meets Idaho State of the "Big Sky" Conference in Osaka.

Saturday afternoon games find Texas-Arlington at Drake, Eastern Michigan at Northern Michigan and Southern Mississippi at Richmond. Besides Nebraska-Alabama, Saturday night finds Western Carolina at East Carolina, West Texas State vs. Mississippi State at Jackson, Texas-El Paso at North Texas State and Arkansas State at Tulsa.

Defending national champion Notre Dame opens on Sept. 16 against Missouri.

In the major rule change, any missed field goal from outside the 20-yard line will be returned to the previous line of scrimmage. This will force coaches to think twice before ordering long-range field goal attempts and is bound to affect such distance kickers as Russell Erxleben of Texas and Tony Franklin of Texas A&M.

In other new rules, receivers who are knocked or forced out of bounds by a defender can return to the field of play and catch a pass, while quarterbacks will be penalized for deliberately throwing the ball out of bounds to stop the clock unless there is an eligible receiver in the area.

The NCAA approved two new post-season bowls, bringing the total to 15. The new kids on the block are the Garden State Bowl at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., on Dec. 16 and the Holiday Bowl in San Diego Stadium on Dec. 22. The Western Athletic Conference has ended its tie-up with the Fiesta Bowl and will send its champion to the Holiday Bowl.

The holdover games are the Cotton, Sugar, Orange, Rose, Gator, Liberty, Fiesta, Bluebonnet, Sun, Peach, Tangerine and Independence Bowls, plus the Hall of Fame Classic, which had its inaugural last year.

The Pacific-8 Conference is now the Pac-10, with Arizona and Arizona State shifting from the WAC, which is now a seven-team league with the addition of San Diego State. In future seasons, Hawaii and Nevada-Las Vegas will join the WAC.

The NCAA has increased to six football-playing schools by adding Utah State while the Southern Conference has taken on East Tennessee State.

LSU Seeking to Unseat Tide

LSU's chances of unseating Alabama depend largely on Charles Alexander, the nation's second-leading rusher a year ago with an SEC record 1,686 yards. Kentucky has plenty of talent despite the loss of quarterback Derrick Ramsey and All-American defensive end Art Still.

Most of Arkansas' problems are on the offensive line. The skill positions feature talented players like quarterback Ron Calcagni, running backs Ben Cowins and Roland Sales, and several nifty receivers.

Texas may have lost Campbell and Shearer, but the Longhorns return nine regulars from a stingy defensive unit, plus standout placekicker-punter Russell Erxleben. Most of last year's quarterbacks went down with injuries, but someone else always stepped in and did the job.

Texas A&M, Houston and Baylor also are given a shot at Southwest Conference honors.

Notre Dame lost such standouts as Ken MacAfee,

Ross Browner and Willie Fry and the Irish are counting heavily on quarterback Joe Montana, running backs Vagas Ferguson and Jerome Heavens and linebacker Bob Golic to help defend their national championship.

Oklahoma is heavily favored to win their seventh consecutive Big Eight crown. "If you didn't make Oklahoma the favorite, everybody would collapse," said Iowa State's Earle Bruce.

Pitt has two of the nation's top performers in split end Gordon Jones and defensive end Hugh Green, and Coach Jackie Sherrill predicts "another outstanding football team" for the Panthers.

Michigan and Notre Dame haven't met in 35 years, but the winner of their Sept. 23 clash will be a top prospect for national honors.

As usual, it figures to come down to the Michigan-Ohio State windup before anything is settled in the Big Ten. "We can be as good as last year," said Ohio State's Woody Hayes, relishing the return of quarterback Rod Gerald and All-American linebacker Tom Cousineau.

Michigan State and Purdue are given the best chances of making the Big Ten something other than the annual Big Two.

Washington was a surprise winner in the Pacific-8 Conference and the Rose Bowl last year and, although 18 starters are back, Coach Don James must find a replacement for underrated quarterback Warren Moon.

Southern Cal and USLA should provide strong challenges in what is now the Pacific-10 Conference, with Arizona and Arizona State having moved over from the Western Athletic Conference.

Elsewhere, it looks like North Carolina, Clemson and Maryland in the Atlantic Coast Conference; Brigham Young and newcomer San Diego State in the revamped WAC; Brown and Yale in the Ivy League; Tennessee-Chattanooga and VMI in the Southern Conference; Miami of Ohio, Ball State and Western Michigan in the Mid-American Conference; West Texas State in the Missouri Valley; Louisiana Tech in the Southland, and Fresno State, Long Beach State and San Jose State in the Pacific Coast A.A.

Florida State is the best of the remaining independents.

Sports Fillers

The Cincinnati Bengals will have Griffins on offense and defense in the 1978 NFL season. Rookie cornerback Ray Griffin has joined older brother Archie, a running back.

Rookie wide receiver Mike Renfro of the Houston Oilers is a son of the former Cleveland Brown star, Ray Renfro.

The legendary place-kicker and quarterback, George Blanda, scored 943 points during his pro football playing career, a record.

Rookie offensive tackle Milton Hardaway of the San Diego Chargers takes 17 EE size shoe.

The Denver Nuggets led all National Basketball Association teams in home attendance in the 1977-78 season with a gate count of 657,673.

The total attendance for the National Basketball Association in the 1977-78 season was 9,874,155.

The club with the lowest attendance during the 1977-78 NBA season was the New Jersey Nets with a turnstile total of 199,090.

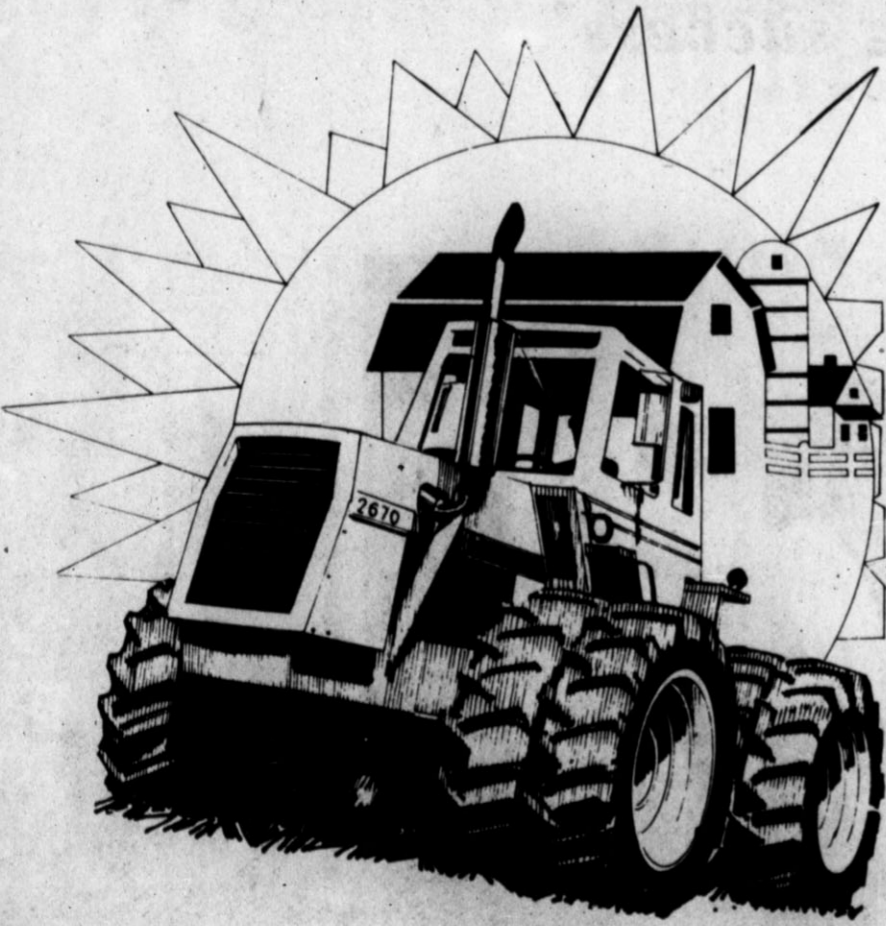

Of the 78 members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, two were first-round picks in the draft.

Three members of the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, were the first players selected in the year they were drafted. The top picks so honored were Bill Dudley, Charley Trippi and Chuck Bednarik.

In 1976, playing for the Cincinnati Reds, Tony Perez made 32 doubles, six triples, 19 home runs and had 91 RBIs. In 1977, playing for Montreal, he had the same four totals.

Shooting in a basketball contest, 5-4 Bunny Levitt once made 499 consecutive free throws.

Plunkett Waived By San Francisco

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer
Jim Plunkett saw the writing on the wall last week - but not all of it.
"I think I can assume I'm not going to start," Plunkett said last week after completing one of his last 18 passes as the San Francisco 49ers compiled a 1-3 National Football League pre-season record.

What Plunkett failed to read was the fine print that said he would be cut along with seven other San Francisco players Monday as the 49ers reached the 43-man roster limit.
The NFL roster limit will go back up to 45 players by Sunday, when teams can recall two players they previously placed on waivers.
"It's kind of a relief," said Plunkett, who for eight seasons has been one of the NFL's premier quarterbacks. "I guess I'm not too surprised. You shouldn't be surprised by anything in professional football," the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner added.
The 49ers had another surprise in store Monday when they placed All-Pro wide receiver Gene Washington on the injured waived list and announced that Steve DeBerg, a third-string quarterback a year ago, would be their No. 1 man this season.
DeBerg wasn't the only young signalcaller to earn the starting nod for a 1978 NFL regular-season opener.
June Jones III, listed as the No. 4 quarterback on the Falcons' depth chart when the exhibition season opened, was named Atlanta's starting quarterback for its opener Sunday against Houston.
Jones, who will replace Steve Bartkowski, the Falcons' starter last year, saw action in Atlanta's final game last year, but earned the starting berth by leading them to two preseason victories this year.

Atlanta also cut seven players including five-year veteran quarterback Kim McQuilken and placed defensive tackle Brent Adams on the injured reserve list to reach the 43-man limit.
Starting quarterback decisions were also announced in Cincinnati and Baltimore.
Ken Anderson, the Bengals mainstay in recent years, will have an operation Tuesday on his injured right hand and will miss at least the first five weeks of play. John Reaves will assume his duties.
The Baltimore Colts had better news.
Bert Jones, who suffered an incomplete separation of his right shoulder in last Saturday's preseason finale against the Detroit Lions, thinks he will be ready for the Colts opener against the Dallas Cowboys Monday night.
Joe Washington should also be in uniform for the Colts. Washington, acquired in the trade that sent holdout Lydell Mitchell to the San Diego Chargers, announced he will report to the Colts training camp this week. The former Oklahoma running back had informed Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda early Monday that he will not be reporting to the team, but changed his mind later in the day.
Baltimore also announced the acquisition of veteran cornerback Dwight Harrison from the Buffalo Bills for a draft choice.

Returning Lettermen

Ronald Lucero [88], Eliseo Gomez [80], Glen Yosten [44], Bud Hughes [37], Paul Bell [15] and Jackie Mercer [8]. Coach Don Cumpton expects to depend heavily on these veterans. The Herd scrimmages Amarillo Tascosa here Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Diablos Crush Cubs

By The Associated Press
Bob Clark added another tally Monday to his Texas League-leading home run list as the El Paso Diablos crushed Midland, 10-4.

In other games, Amarillo downed San Antonio 3-1 and Tulsa squeaked past Shreveport 3-2. Jackson at Arkansas was postponed because of rain.

Clark's homer produced two runs in the second. Floyd Rayford added a three-run homer for the Diablos in the fourth.

Midland's Gary Krug smacked a double and went four for five.

The largest El Paso crowd of the season - 7,982 - turned out to watch the Diablos reduce their distance from the Western Division lead to two games.

Midland trails first-place San Antonio by one game.

Tim Derryberry singled in unearned runs for Amarillo in the first and fifth innings of the outing against San Antonio. Dane Ilerston drove in Amarillo's earned run in the fourth.

Larry Monroe, 3-5, picked up the victory. Bill Swiacki, 4-4, took the loss.

Tulsa tied Shreveport, 2-2, in the eighth inning but the Drillers' winning run had to wait until the bottom of the ninth.

Third baseman Wayne Wilkerson made it first on a fielder's choice, then went to second when losing pitcher John Scurry balked. Scurry intentionally walked outfielder Joe Stewart.

Marty Martinez tapped a ground ball into the infield and an overthrow scored Wilkerson.

Mandarin Chinese is spoken as a principal language by more people than any other world language, an estimated 650 million.

Bum Hopes Oilers Scared

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers Coach U.A. "Bum" Phillips hopes his Oilers will be "scared to death" Sunday when they open the National Football League regular season by taking the Atlanta Falcons to the field.
The Oilers certainly didn't have that attitude Saturday when they dropped their final exhibition game to the New Orleans Saints, 17-3.
"We went into the game with the idea that there was no question we would beat them it was just a matter of how bad," Phillips said. "We got impressed with the fact that no matter who you are, you've got to take it seriously."
"You've got to go into a game scared to death that you're going to do well and we didn't do that."
The Oilers played well in an impressive 27-13 victory over Super Bowl champion Dallas, but couldn't muster much enthusiasm against the Saints. Houston didn't cross midfield until half way through the third quarter.

"There's not that much difference in any of the teams in this league," Phillips said. "There might be a difference between the top and bottom teams but there probably is not more than a point difference between us and New Orleans."
Phillips said he's not concerned about Houston's lethargy extending into the regular season.
Part of Phillips' optimism is based on quarterback Dan Pastorini, who went the distance against the Saints and completed 20 of 35 passes for 155 yards. Pastorini missed the Dallas game with a hip injury.
"He got to run enough and play enough and his hip is not sore," Phillips said. "He started coming around in the second half. That's the most he's played in a long time."
Art Stringer suffered a strained knee against the Saints and his status for the Atlanta game remained clouded, Phillips said.

Over Toronto, 11-3 Monday Texas Rangers Romp

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) - A little luck and a lot of power turned the trick for the Texas Rangers Monday night as they romped over the Toronto Blue Jays 11-3, giving rookie pitcher Steve Comer the thing he likes best - a win.
The Rangers pumped four home runs out of windless Arlington Stadium, and the Jays powered a couple out themselves.
"The one that Alan Ashby hit out might have been a mistake," Comer, now 7-3, said.
"It was a low slider and he's a low ball hitter. The one to John Mayberry was a fastball right down the middle. I didn't want to walk him. When you get a win well that's all that counts...it's the name of the game."
Those homers pulled Toronto to within on run at 4-3 after a semi-comical start by both teams, but Comer survived the solo blasts.
The Jays started things off in the first when Bob Bailor singled and Al Woods doubled to left. Al Oliver misplayed the ball and Bailor scored.
Texas came back in the first in similar fashion. Toby Harrah draw a leadoff walk and went to third on Bump Wills' single to right. Kurt Bevacqua lofted a fly ball to left that was deep enough to score Wills. Woods collided with centerfielder Rick Bosetti and dropped the ball, with Wills going to second. Wills and Bevacqua executed a double steal before Oliver lashed a bad-hop single through John Mayberry at first, giving Texas a 3-1 lead.

Harrah homered in the second for the eventual winning run.
"The one home run in the sixth by Richie Zisk was the big one," Manager Bill Hunter said after the game. "That gave us a two-run lead."
Oliver and Bump Wills also powered two-run homers before it was over.
"We're an expansion team and tonight we played like one," said Toronto manager Roy Hartsfield. "Tom Underwood didn't pitch all that badly. He got a bad break in the first."
Comer and Underwood each lasted six innings. Len Barker mopped up for Comer, and Tom Murphy and Joe Coleman finished for Underwood. Murphy left the game with a pulled hamstring he suffered while throwing out a runner at first.

Oliver, who played left field, and Zisk, who didn't, had different opinions about the rare lack of wind in the Arlington ballpark. "This is a line-drive hitter's park," Oliver said. "I got one up and it went out."

Zisk, moved into the designated hitter role, said the wind didn't matter to him. "When I hit them, they go," he said.
Oliver said he's played the best outfield of his life the last two years.

Zisk said he's played some pretty good outfield, too.
"I want to play," Zisk said. "I don't care if it's left field or right field or what. I want to play."

Spinks to Get $3 Million for Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Leon Spinks is being paid $3.75 million for his upcoming championship fight with Muhammad Ali - $500,000 more than the former champ, according to contracts on file with the state of Louisiana.
But Ali is getting some perks of his own, like 25 first class hotel rooms for more than two weeks and 40 free airline tickets for his friends.
Those details were spelled out in the contracts for the Sept. 15 fight on file with the Louisiana State Athletic Commission and state attorney general's office.
The contracts between the fighters and Top Inc. of New York show that Ali will receive $3.25 million. It had been said that Ali would get less money than the man who beat him in February, but until the contracts were made public, it was not known how much less.
Ali will be able to soothe his ego with 30 first class roundtrip airline tickets and 10 economy tickets from anywhere in the United States.
And he will get four two-bedroom suites and 21 other hotel rooms for 16 days at sites approved by advisor Herbert Muhammad, as well as three chauffeur-driven limousines for the same period and 200 free fight tickets.

Carter Vacation Comes to Halt

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) - President Carter, determined to win the congressional fight over his embattled energy legislation, is ending his vacation two days early and returning to Washington on Wednesday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced Sunday that Carter would have two days from his two-week western holiday to work on "some very crucial domestic matters that are before Congress."

Heading the list is delicate natural gas compromise legislation that is the centerpiece of Carter's energy plan.

Powell called the fight over the measure - in serious trouble on Capitol Hill - "as difficult as any that we have faced in Congress." He vowed, "We don't intend to lose."

But he said the administration also is concerned about a Sept. 7 House vote on overriding Carter's Aug. 17 veto of a $37 billion defense appropriation bill.

Powell said the administration expects to sustain the veto and then help rewrite the bill "to reflect the president's views more completely than before."

Carter objects to the bill's provision of $2 billion for a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. He maintains that Congress cut too much money from other defense areas to authorize the carrier.

As Carter was fishing for trout, Powell told reporters there was no point in continuing the vacation if the president had to spend "all day and a good portion of the night working on these domestic concerns."

But, when asked if Carter has spent most of his time since he arrived here Thursday working, Powell replied: "No. He hasn't been doing that. That is the whole point. We have decided - or the president decided - he wants to go back."

Although the president will find Congress out of town when he returns, Powell said Carter will be busy all next week with a Mideast summit at Camp David, Md., and needed Thursday and Friday to work on domestic legislation that Congress will consider shortly after it returns from a Labor Day recess Sept. 6.

The three-day summit among Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat begins Sept. 5 and will last indefinitely in an effort to find a formula for peace in that region.

"The president will be talking by telephone and perhaps meeting personally with members of the Congress on these domestic matters, particularly energy," Powell said.

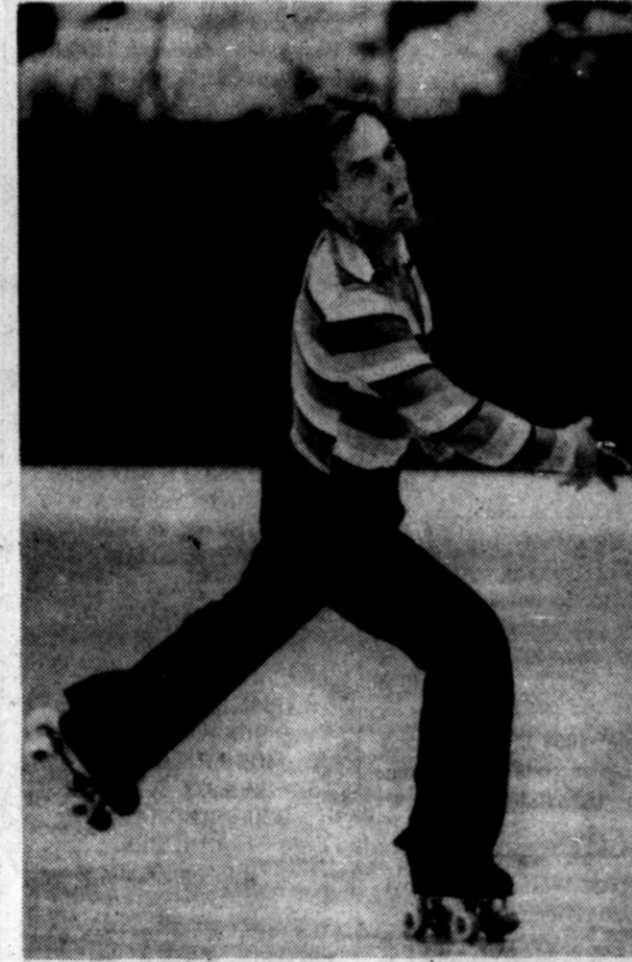

Carter's natural gas legislation became endangered when a group of Democrats and Republicans, led by Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., withdrew support for the compromise measure.

The president said Friday he expects a showdown vote on the bill soon after Sept. 11.

The measure to lift federal price controls from newly discovered natural gas by 1985 is opposed by some liberals who claim it would drive up gas bills and by conservatives from natural gas-producing states who want immediate deregulation.

EVERY CLOWN HAS a face all his own - even 11-year-old Randolph Jones. Randolph and his friends at the Paterson, N.J., Boys' Club studied make-up, magic and other arts of clowning recently during National Clown Week. If the fellow fixing Randolph's face looks familiar, it's because he is the celebrated hamburger clown, Ronald McDonald.

Sixteen other U.S. skaters will also take part in the Lisbon competition.

Spending Shows Trouble

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Economists manning the lookout posts for signs of a business slowdown have sighted evidence of possible trouble in the area of consumer spending.

Their accounts differ considerably, however, on whether this dark speck on the horizon is likely to become any kind of serious navigation hazard.

After a strong early spring showing, retail sales have flattened out recently, rising by just 0.2 percent in May, 0.1 percent in June and 0.2 percent in July.

"Consumer spending has undergone a discernible change over the past few months," New York's Bankers Trust Co. noted.

"But whether the consumer will continue marking time for a while, as has happened on several previous occasions since the current business expansion began, or whether a real retrenchment in buying lies in the offing is far from certain."

The available data aren't much help in making the picture clearer. On the plus side, government figures showed personal income - naturally a central factor in spending plans - rising faster than inflation in July, following slight declines in the two previous months.

Less favorable indications come from the survey of consumers sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent business research organization. Its index of buying plans, calculated from a survey of 5,000 households nationwide, dropped last month to its lowest level in more than three years.

Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. bases its generally negative forecast on the tendency of both consumers and businesses lately to accelerate their spending in anticipation of contributing inflation - buying to beat expected future price increases.

The firm foresees a sharp slowing of consumer spending, leaving businessmen with excess inventories by the end of the year. The likely result, it says, is a recession in 1979 "of about average duration and magnitude for the post-World War II period."

Bankers Trust economists, though they use softer language, agree that retail sales are likely to be "less than exuberant" in the coming months.

These kinds of warnings, of course, does not sit well with many businessmen who feel that gloomy forecasts can be self-fulfilling.

An executive of one consumer-goods company, when asked recently if he was worried about a possible recession, replied: "No. And if everybody would shut up, there won't be one."

Bermuda Faces Auto-Age Crisis

By SIMON MARTIN
HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) - Bermuda, the country which Mark Twain once described as "the biggest small place in the world," is now beginning to wonder all over again if it's big enough to live with the automobile.

It was only in 1946 that the island's House of Assembly (parliament) decided, after a fierce debate, to allow motor cars on the island. One House member confidently predicted that Bermuda would never have a traffic problem because autos were so expensive that there would never be more than 500 in the country.

Last year, according to a report by the Government's Transport Control Department, there were 12,596 private cars here, competing for space on 120 miles of public road with 13,290 mopeds, 6,344 motor bikes and scooters, and almost 2,000 trucks and buses.

Bermuda, with a total land area of 21 square miles and a population of 55,000 last year had a total of some 35,000 motorized vehicles on the roads - not to mention hundreds of joggers, horse riders and cyclists.

In this prosperous tourist island, a car is financially within the reach of almost any family that wants one. The recent rapid growth in private car ownership is particularly worrying to the authorities. Last year, ownership of cars shot up by 500 in spite of a tough law passed in 1975 which restricts car ownership to one per home.

The trouble is that the number of homes is going up steadily, with homeowners building new apartments or re-classifying existing ones as separate rental units to allow tenants to use their own car. Now Transport Minister James Pearman has asked for "constructive suggestions" from the public on ways to curb car-use growth.

'Ultra Secret' Scores Success

THE NAZI CONNECTION. By F. W. Winterbotham. Harper & Row. 222 Pages. $8.95.

"Author F. W. Winterbotham recently scored a success with his book 'The Ultra Secret,' which dealt with his experiences with a captured German code machine during World War II.

Prior to his participation in the events related in that book, Capt. Winterbotham's service to MI6, the famous British intelligence unit, was to find out as much as possible about Germany's pre-war plans. To pull it off, the author posed as a British sympathizer to the Nazi cause.

Establishing a contact with a Nazi newspaperman, Winterbotham's adventure in what he calls "a job in a million" is under way. Winterbotham's assignment enabled him to meet and talk to some of the most infamous high-ranking Nazis, including Himmler, Goering and Hitler himself.

Winterbotham learned of the German plan for armament buildup from first-hand sources and as an eyewitness.

He learned of Hitler's plan for war several years before it took place and of Hitler's scheme to share world power with England and America.

As grand a spy as Winterbotham was, his mission was not a total success. The information he reported to his superiors was not convincing. The British government, he writes, could not "see the wood for the trees," and although hindsight is always perfect, the author makes a good argument in favor of some well-placed counter-espionage that might have favorably altered the course of history.

Winterbotham, skillful spy, is a skillful story-teller besides. His book is never dull, and is often fascinating in its detail of how men in high places play games with nations and with the lives of their people.

Leaking Missile Kills Life-Saving Airman

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - The airman killed by leaking propellant at a Titan II missile site died while trying to save two other workers, one of the survivors of the accident says.

"We were just like a family," said 1st Lt. Keith Matthews. "We all worked together. I can't tell you how sad this makes us feel, and we've all been so deeply hurt by the loss of Bob."

About 200 persons from the nearby village of Rock, Kan., and surrounding farms remained evacuated from their homes. Officials said they would not return until the leak was neutralized.

Twenty airmen were hospitalized after being exposed to the oxidizer, but an Air Force spokesman said most were being held only as a "precautionary measure." One woman also was hospitalized with vapor-related symptoms.

Matthews, crew commander at the missile site, said Friday that Staff Sgt. Robert J. Thomas, 29, of Philadelphia was attempting to help two other airmen flee the deadly fumes when he was overcome. Matthews, in a telephone interview with the Wichita Eagle newspaper, said he could not elaborate until the Air Force had completed its official investigation of Thursday's incident.

Thomas was part of an eight-man maintenance team fueling the missile with the oxidizer. His body was recovered from the silo about five hours after the leak began.

"He was like a father to his men," said Matthews, hospitalized at Scott AFB in Belleville, Ill. "I know I'm going to recommend him for some kind of medal or award, recommend him for the highest honors."

Special teams from McCannell Air Force Base in Wichita and Little Rock AFB in Arkansas flooded the missile silo with up to 100,000 gallons of water to stabilize the leak.

The flooding was in preparation for the addition today of ammonium hydroxide, which will be used to neutralize the leaking oxidizer propellant, officials said.

"If it stabilizes it, we'll all send up a big cheer and you won't have to phone us to find out - you'll hear it," said Lt. Col. Robert Brown, chief of community relations for the 8th Air Force at Barksdale AFB in Bossier City, La.

A dark but harmless cloud of vapor formed after the water was first pumped in about 5 p.m. However, the cloud later dissipated.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., said Friday he had asked Defense Secretary Harold Brown to review safety procedures at Titan missile installations in Kansas.

At least three other mishaps with nitrogen tetroxide - in 1964, 1976 and earlier this year - have occurred at Titan II bases in the Wichita area. No one was seriously injured.

Col. John F. Hampton, commander of the 381st Strategic Missile Wing, convened an investigation Friday to determine the cause of the accident, but declined comment on the probe.

Actor Shaw Dies

CASTLEBAR, Ireland (AP) - Robert Shaw, the actor known for his portrayals of rugged adventurers in such movies as "Jaws" and "The Deep," has died of an apparent heart attack at his home in Tourmakeady Island near Dublin, a spokesman at Castlebar General Hospital said.

The 51-year-old British actor, who co-starred with Paul Newman and Robert Redford in "The Sting" was dead on arrival at Castlebar Hospital Monday morning, Dr. Mervyn Clarke, spokesman for the hospital, told The Associated Press.

"He apparently suffered a heart attack while driving his car," Dr. Clarke said.

Shaw, who also wrote several books and plays, was driving with his wife Virginia and 1 1/2-year-old son Thomas, when he suffered the attack, his publicist, Mirna Post, said in New York. He died at home, she said.

Shaw lived with his third wife, Virginia, and their family at an old country house 15 miles from here, in the small fishing village of Tourmakeady on the shores of Lake Mask in County Mayo, northwest Ireland.

Born in Lancashire, England, Shaw started his acting career as a member of the Old Vic drama company in the 1950s and performed in numerous productions in England.

The brown-haired, blue-eyed Shaw first came to the attention of the American movie-going public as a villain in the James Bond movie, "From Russia With Love." He went on to appear in such films as "Robin and Marian," "The Sting" and "Black Sunday," but found his greatest acclaim as a fisherman in the thrillers, "Jaws" and "The Deep."

Two films made before his death, "Force Ten from Navarone" and "Avalanche Express," have not yet been released.

In addition, Shaw made a name for himself as a writer. His first book, "The Hiding Place," was published in 1959. It was about wartime Germany, and recently was made into a full-length motion picture. He wrote four other novels.

Shaw also wrote three plays, among them "The Man In The Glass Booth," a docu-drama about the trial of Nazi Adolf Eichmann.

Shaw, whose first wife, actress Mary Ure, died several years ago, is survived by his wife and 10 children.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures
Lacquer is not the most popular of finishing materials with do-it-yourselfers, even though a large percentage of the furniture sold these days has several coats of it.
That's mainly because the lacquer used by professionals is put on with spraying equipment, whereas most of that used at home is applied with a brush.
It is difficult to brush on lacquer formulated for spraying, so the first warning to the potential user of lacquer is to be certain he has bought the proper kind.
Unfortunately, many containers of lacquer do not specify which is which. When making a purchase, therefore, ask the dealer whether the product is for spraying or brushing. If he doesn't know, be wary.
Professionals are inclined to scoff at the possibility of getting good results with brushing lacquer, but if certain precautions are observed, beautiful finishes can be obtained. Lacquer must be brushed on with a flowing stroke, covering small areas at a time and working swiftly. Do not rebrush; that is, don't go over any brushed portion a second time. This is probably the most common cause of a poor result. Quickly brush a small section, dip the brushes into the lacquer and start another section, blending the second covering into the wet edges of the first. If the edges of the first section are allowed to dry a bit -- and it takes only a few seconds -- then the new lacquer will disturb the smooth surface of what has already been applied.
You are not likely to get the knock of this "work fast, don't rebrush" method the first or second time you use lacquer. Therefore, practice on scrap wood before you attempt to use the finishing material on a project.
Regular lacquer, as distinguished from some lacquer-type products, requires thinning before use. For the beginner, the best combination is 50 percent lacquer, 50 percent thinner, although if the container gives specific instructions on the mixture percentages, follow them.
Like nearly all finishing materials which provide hard, clear surfaces, several thin coats are better than one thick coat. Sand very lightly between coats, a procedure some persons skip if the preceding coat is without imperfections. If you do sand, be sure to wipe off all grit before the next coat is applied.

The perfectionist may want to rub down the final coat with pumice powder and oil, followed by a similar operation with rottenstone powder and oil. It depends on how the final coat looks and how fussy you are. Most times, these steps are not necessary, but if you aren't satisfied with the result, they may turn a fair job into an excellent one.
After brass and other bright metals are cleaned thoroughly, lacquer will prevent them from corroding.
Q. -- Are the modern synthetic varnishes better than the old varnishes?
A. -- Definitely, yes, although some old-line varnish users may give you an argument about that. From personal experience, I find that modern varnishes are easier to apply and produce tough finishes.
Q. -- Can the outside of our house be washed? Or will it warp the siding, which is made up of vertical strips? If it can be washed, is there any special way to do it that will make it easy? Our house is 11 years old.
A. -- Yes, it can be washed, the assumption being that you have decided it needs a washing rather than a painting. If it has withstood 11 years of rain without trouble, it isn't likely to be damaged by washing. The job simply cannot be made easy, but it can be made a little less tiring if you use a long-handled brush. As with any type of wall, wash from the bottom up. A bit of mild detergent will help remove the grime.

Ads Scrutinized

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Would it be proper for television viewers to see of divorced Zsa Zsa Gabor promoting a lawyer's ability to settle divorce cases?

Should radio listeners be allowed to hear the screech of brakes, the breaking of glass and a voice saying, "If that happened to you, call our law firm. We've handled 3,000 personal injury suits and never lost one."

Could a lawyer use a "Hollywood" backdrop in his sales pitch?

Should announcers be permitted to stand-in for lawyers in radio-television advertisements?

These hypothetical situations and questions were discussed by a state bar committee Friday in a meeting with representatives of radio and TV and lawyers who are advertising.

Additional meetings on electronic advertising are expected, including some with consumer groups and the general public.

Such advertising is prohibited by bar rules, but some lawyers began advertising following a 1977 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that apparently gave them that right.

The Texas Supreme Court directed the committee to consider whether there should be advertising guidelines.

Jim George, legal counsel for the Texas Association of Broadcasters (TAB), cautioned the committee, "If you try to list everything that is misleading, you will have a tar-baby from which you will never extract yourself."

He said, however, it seemed "perfectly appropriate" to prohibit a lawyer from advertising his "boxscore" - the number of cases he or she has won and lost.

Executive vice-president Bonner McLane of the TAB said legal advertising has had a "very small economic impact" on radio and TV.

"We don't want a circus atmosphere any more than you do," he said.

He suggested that it would be in the lawyer's best interest to permit an announcer to do the talking on radio-television ads.

As for backdrops, "anything dignified but not misleading" should be OK, McLane said. He proposed restrictions "where we don't get a Zsa Zsa Gabor... or a Hollywood set."

George said "lawyers are not available to 70 percent of the population because of ignorance or fear."

He recommended "allowing as much information as possible to get to the public about lawyers."

"Advertising," he said, "has never been considered inherently evil."

McLane said broadcasters and the Texas Press Association would appoint a committee to work with the bar on advertising guidelines.

A showing of 57 paintings, watercolors, prints, drawings and sculpture entitled "Contemporary Art from Alaska," is on display through Sept. 17 at the National Collection of Fine Arts, Smithsonian Institution.

Lighter Side

BOSTON (AP) - To the list of such quaintly named nerve injuries as Christmas morning palsy, running-board palsy and arm wrestlers' palsy, add a new one: sports car palsy.

Two doctors at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md., say they discovered the disorder. And "as one conscientious clinical neurologist, we feel obligated to add to the semantic confusion" by giving it a name.

"A 35 year old Navy Petty officer drove 26 continuous hours in a Triumph Spitfire," they wrote in today's New England Journal of Medicine. "For comfort, he rested his right leg against a metal bar attached to the vertical dashboard."

When he woke up the next morning, his right foot was partially numb, and he had trouble moving it.

"He was advised to find another place for his right leg or to stop driving the car," they wrote. "Six months later, having diligently adhered to sage counsel, he was free of symptoms."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Some people might have been upset at Tramp, Dolly Heinsmann's faithful watchdog. He did burn the house down.

But Dolly's not putting Tramp in the doghouse. He saved her life by rousting her out of bed when the fire broke out.

Mrs. Heinsmann said she left a candle burning Tuesday night to serve as a night light for her dog. He got up in the middle of the night, bumped a dresser and knocked the candle into a curtain.

"What would you want me to do?" she asked. "Take him to the pound? You can't blame him for what he did."

PETERSBURG, Va. (AP) - 'Ol Butterbean beat the odds last year; now she's beaten them again.

The 6-year-old Holstein cow, who gave birth to twins on Feb. 11, 1977, did it again Tuesday morning.

Stephen Jones, Dinwiddie County extension agent, said the chances of a dairy cow having twins is one in 53, and the chances of the same cow having twins in a successive birth is one in 3,000.

Patrick Griffin, 63, a Prince George County farmer, owns 'Ol Butterbean.

He says he doesn't know much about probability and chance, but, "I've been around cows all my life and last year was the first time I ever saw a cow that had twins. And now this."

Places like Shaker Heights and Mercer Island showed up on the list of eligible communities. Shaker Heights, outside Cleveland, and Mercer Island, a Seattle suburb, are two of the best heeled communities in America.

Immediately the list caused problems.

Pork Barrel Computerized

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sooner or later it had to happen. The pork barrel has been computerized.

This latest marvel of the computer age may have reached its height of folly when the White House released a list of 12,000 counties, cities and villages that might be eligible for aid under President Carter's new national urban policy.

A list that size brings new dimensions to pork barrel projects included in a bill that provide money for home districts and assure that enough members of Congress will vote for the bill to get it passed.

The urban aid would provide funds for such things as neighborhood rehabilitation and industry recruiting. The hope was most congressmen would be pleased to grab some of this for their districts.

In hindsight, however, some White House strategists concede the list may have been a mistake that helped dig a grave for key portions of the program. But they say it was nonetheless unavoidable.

Only a computer could have produced such a list. It screened every community in the United States according to the Carter plans, and then printed out the 12,000 that passed.

Placed like Shaker Heights and Mercer Island showed up on the list of eligible communities. Shaker Heights, outside Cleveland, and Mercer Island, a Seattle suburb, are two of the best heeled communities in America.

He says he doesn't know much about probability and chance, but, "I've been around cows all my life and last year was the first time I ever saw a cow that had twins. And now this."

This was all the excuse needed for the program's critics to man the torpedoes.

In fact, there were several hundred wealthy communities on the list, a result of a fluke in the formula for determining the needy.

One test of need was a slow growth rate, on the assumption that a community with a static population and economy is in trouble. But some communities plan it that way and have practiced deliberate no-growth or slow-growth policies for years - not because they are poor but to keep the poor out.

When the loophole created some embarrassing anomalies, the White House moved quickly to fix it. An additional criteria now excludes any community whose per capita income is 125 percent or more of the national average.

This is to let in communities with pockets of poverty but enough wealthy residents to keep up the average.

Consequently, 433 names have been dropped from the list. But not before the damage was done. The key programs associated with the list are dead or ailing in Congress, thanks in part to the listmaking.

Which raises the obvious question of why the White House would build such a booby trap. The answer is that Congress demanded it. When the fiscal assistance portion of the program was sent to Congress last spring, there was no list. And the House committee that got the bill demanded one.

NEW YORK (AP) - It works! A new law that skeptics said had more bark than bite is making the streets and sidewalks of New York City safer for the unwary stroller.

Three weeks after the law took effect, requiring dog walkers to clean up after pets, the city is noticeably cleaner.

Although there's no way to say exactly how much dog waste is being picked up from sidewalks, streets and parks - an estimated 700,000 dogs produce 175 tons of the stuff a day in New York - Sanitation Commissioner Anthony Vaccarello said the law is working.

"The public sees we mean business," he said.

If so, it could lead to the extinction of that peculiar urban species, the red faced side-stepper, who keeps one eye on traffic and the other on his feet, angry and sometimes embarrassed as he steps - and missteps - down the sidewalk.

The wonder is that many here who ignored laws for jaywalking and parking - and the old law requiring owners to take dogs to the street side of the curb - are apparently taking the new law seriously.

"I think the public wants to respond and is fed up with tap-dancing through the streets," was Vaccarello's explanation.

"But," he added, "we must keep up the enforcement so they don't think it's a kind of shot in the dark."

Vaccarello said those dog owners who themselves are not fed up with dirty streets apparently fear their neighbors' disapproval or the long scoop of the law.

Violators face fines of up to $100 if they refuse to comply when an officer warns them to clean up after their dogs. So far, according to the Sanitation Department, 76 summonses have been issued. Another 897 dog walkers have heeded the initial warning.

Others would rather give up than clean up, says the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"We've been swamped," it said, reporting a 25 percent increase in the number of dogs turned in the first two weeks of August, compared with the same period last year. Most of the same 50 dogs turned in daily will not be adopted and will be put to sleep.

Caroline Thompson, an ASPCA consultant, questioned what kind of owner would give up a dog simply because of the new law. "You must wonder how this animal has been treated up to now," she said. "I'm not saying the law's no good; I'm saying that people are no good."

Alan Beck, director of the city's Bureau of Animal Affairs, agreed that those giving up dogs because of the new law were irresponsible owners, but he disputed the ASPCA's figures on abandonments.

"We're doing some statistical studies to see if it's really true," he said. "So far it doesn't look that different from preceding years."

Meanwhile, the new law is already in the process of being amended. A bill before the State Legislature would require dog walkers to carry a means of cleaning up, authorize an expansion of the enforcement squad and permit the sanitation commissioner to prescribe the manner of disposal. The current law merely requires cleaning up the mess.
