YOU CAN'T VOTE if you don't register, and there are some three million in Texas—who are otherwise eligible—that have not bothered to register. It doesn't cost anything to register, but doing away with payment of a poll tax didn't bring about the anticipated increase in voter interest.

If you don't have a valid voter certificate, you have to register by Oct. 8 to vote in the November election. Since that date falls on Sunday, it actually means that Friday, Oct. 6 is the deadline, unless application is by mail.

School Cafe Officials Claim Competition Hurts

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Competition, which makes most businesses work harder, has caused Hereford Independent School District cafeteria officials to do the same.

At the same time they are working harder, they have issued a plea to Hereford High and Stanton Junior High students who are going elsewhere for lunch.

"It's been a slow week," said HISD food service director Trudy Gray concerning the first week of school. "Right now, it's better than what it was at the end of school last year, but a lot of junior high and high school students are still not eating in the cafeteria."

That poses a big problem for the school district. HISD lost so much money in its cafeterias last year that the school board raised lunch prices 10 cents beginning this school year. Another large deficit simply cannot be afforded, according to school district officials.

The only "open" campuses are at Stanton and the high school.

"And at La Plata, they can take a sack lunch to school, and that doesn't do us any good, either," she said.

Judge Delays Drainage Decision

By JIM STEIERT
Outdoors Editor

The agony of making a final decision on the draining of Buffalo Lake has been prolonged a bit longer.

U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled Friday in Lubbock that a temporary restraining order that has presently halted the draining of the impoundment will remain in effect through Monday.

Woodward opted to delay the granting or rejecting of a temporary injunction after hours of testimony from members of the Buffalo Lake Survival Committee, bent on saving the lake, and government officials, who are seeking to completely drain it.

During Friday's court session, government and survival committee attorneys agreed to skip over the temporary restraining order stage and direct efforts at determining a temporary injunction.

According to Woodward, a restraining order decision cannot be appealed, but any injunction decision may be appealed in the U.S. District Court of Appeals.

Much of Friday's testimony at the hearing centered on projected rainfall for the Buffalo Lake watershed, the amount of water estimated to be necessary to take the lake over the spillway, and the condition of the questioned spillway.

Bureau of Reclamation hydrologist Leroy Buettner of Amarillo claimed in testimony that a 3.3 inch rain covering the 575 square mile draining area of the lake would result in about two inches of runoff reaching the lake in a six hour period.

According to Buettner, the runoff figure was reached by examining a National Weather Service report from 1961 on typical rainfall in the area and by mathematical calculation.

Buettner claimed that a two inch runoff could fill Buffalo Lake to a "dangerous level."

Texas Department of Water Resources witness A.E. Richardson testified that runoff at this time of year would probably be "about 1.5 inches." More than enough water to fill the lake.

But the testimony of the government witnesses was contradicted by lake survival witness Dan True, a former Amarillo meteorologist.

He claimed that the rainfall report cited (See BUFFALO, Page 2)

Government's Rural Aid Lags Behind

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new government report says federal spending in rural areas continues to lag behind that in more urban parts of the country.

The report, issued Friday by the Agriculture Department, said federal spending in the 1976-77 fiscal year averaged about 22 percent more for each person living in metropolitan areas than for one in the countryside.

Looking at nearly 700 selected federal programs involving $314.5 billion in spending that year, the study said outlays averaged $1,555 per capita in metropolitan areas and $1,271 in non-metropolitan areas.

The report was the first in a series planned by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service.

J. Norman Reid, one of the report's three authors, told a reporter that a similar study was sent to Congress early in 1977 and that the new one indicates similar spending trends.

Earlier versions were intended as presidential reports to Congress on the availability of government services to rural America, and were not quite as broad as the new compilation.

Looking at the entire $314.5 billion spent in the programs examined, the report said more than 76 percent was spent in metropolitan counties which

Estimates May Up School Taxes

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - New property value estimates, sure to arouse outcries as school districts jockey for state aid dollars, show Texans' taxable wealth is $464.4 billion.

The School Tax Assessment Practices Board issued its data Friday, and it could mean higher school taxes for urban areas unless the Legislature comes to their rescue.

"I have confidence the Legislature will come up with a very workable number for the rural and urban areas," said Walt Parker, the board's executive director. The board's figures are double the $232 billion estimate issued in 1976 by the Governor's Office of Education Resources (GOER) and used by lawmakers last year in parceling out state school aid.

Parker said the big difference is that the Legislature told the board to count intangibles - primarily bank accounts, stocks and bonds - and personal property while GOER evaluated only real estate.

Intangibles, he said, total $154 billion. The board's real estate figures were $78 billion, or 34 percent, higher than GOER's. Parker said this was partly attributable to economic growth and inflation.

"In addition, our study found significantly different results in certain districts from that determined by GOER," he said - bearing out some Intangible property in the Hereford Independent School District has been estimated at $198,857,000, according to HISD tax assessor-collector Fred Fox.

Fox was notified of the estimate Friday by the School Tax Assessment Practices Board.

Fox said that most of the figures included in statistics pertaining to both tangible and intangible property probably were fairly accurate. However, he added that STAPP overestimated the worth of vehicles in the district.

The date board projected $20.4 million worth of vehicles. "The more realistic figure is about $13 million," Fox said. "They prorated too much of Castro County and Parmer County to this school district."

lawmakers' complaints of inaccuracy in the GOER data.

Sen. A.M. Aikin, D-Parris, said during a briefing of legislative leaders by Parker that GOER's figures were "totally unreliable."

The board's estimates of the value of 14 categories of property were sent Friday to each of the 1,080 school districts, and a third of them are expected to appeal in the hope of lowering their estimates.

A district gains from reduced estimates of taxable property values because its state aid is based on taxable wealth. The greater the wealth, the less the aid.

Whether to count intangibles will be the big issue arising from the board's figures, which show such property concentrated in urban areas.

Parker said 82.8 percent of Texans' intangible wealth is concentrated in the 52 counties that make up the 26 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Half the intangibles counted by the board are in only four counties - Harris, Dallas, Tarrant and Bexar.

The school finance bill passed by the 1977 Legislature required the board to count intangibles. And it mandated that the Texas Education Agency use the board's figures in 1979 - 80 and afterward in computing each district's local fund assignment - its share of the state-subsidized Foundation School Program.

No district's local fund assignment can rise more than 25 percent a year.

A legislative commission is studying the school finance system and is expected to come up with recommendations for changes next year.

Parker said in answer to a question that all of the major urban school districts would become "budget balanced" if intangibles were included in the measurement of their wealth.

Budget balanced districts receive only constitutionally mandated per capita aid (See TAXES, Page 2)

'No Layoffs' Argued In Contract Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) - A no-layoff proposal that was part of a rejected settlement is a key issue again as negotiators for the Postal Service and three unions Saturday resumed contract talks aimed at avoiding a nationwide mail strike.

Postal management reportedly wants to weaken or eliminate the clause prohibiting layoffs while the unions say they'll fight to keep it. The talks also centered on efforts by the unions to increase their wage package.

The negotiations continued under direction of James J. Healy, a Harvard professor and veteran labor troubleshooter who was hired as mediator to try to guide the two sides toward an agreement.

A spokeswoman for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, J.D. Yount, said Healy has advised that the parties would make no public comments during the first few days of the talks. She said Saturday's talks were expected to last about half a day in a room on the sealed-off fourth floor of the service's downtown office building.

If he can't get a voluntary settlement by Sept. 16, Healy would then become an arbitrator who would draw up an agreement binding on both sides.

Healy said that at Friday's opening round of renewed talks, he explored with both sides the two main issues, money and the no-layoff clause.

"I'm not giving a damned thing up on the no-layoff clause," Emmet Andrews, head of the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union, said on Friday.

The APWU, the National Association of Letter Carriers and the mail handlers division of the Laborers' International Union want a bigger pay raise than the 19.5 percent hike they rejected as part of a tentative three-year settlement. The average wages of postal workers now total $15,877 a year.

Healy predicted the negotiations were "going to be tough," and said no speedy progress is likely until after the Labor Day weekend.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge John Pratt extended until Sept. 18 his temporary order barring a strike by the two largest unions.

Australian Newspapers Criticize Nixon Visit

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Several newspapers gave front-page coverage Saturday to former President Nixon's apparent decision to visit Australia even though Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser won't see him. One compared him to a conniving cartoon character and said it would be better if he stayed home.

"Invited Or Not, Nixon Is Coming," headlined the Sidney Morning Herald. "I'll Still Visit You, Says Nixon," said the Melbourne Herald.

The Australian government turned down Nixon's request to meet with Fraser in late September or October because of other commitments but the former president's chief aide, Col. Jack Brennan, said Nixon was coming anyway on a private visit.

In an editorial entitled "Must You Come, Mr. Nixon?" the Melbourne Herald said: "Mr. Richard Nixon is like a comedy cartoon character not discouraged by disintegration let alone by conventional rebuff. The foul aroma of Watergate and the disgrace of resignation from the presidency of the United States appear to have left his ego and ambitions intact."

The paper noted that while Nixon was quoted as saying he had great admiration for Australia, his recent memoirs of over 1,000 pages gave only eight lines to his 1953 visit here as vice president.

"The suspicion must be that Mr. Nixon wishes to use us," the editorial said. "The Australian government does not want him as a VIP. He cannot be prevented from coming as a private person, but it would be better if he stayed away."

Mexican President Says Reserves Large

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Mexico would replace Saudi Arabia as the country with the world's largest known oil reserves if estimates given by President Jose Lopez Portillo prove correct.

In an annual state of the union address Friday, Lopez Portillo said Mexico has a potential oil reserve of 200 billion barrels and that it has trillions of cubic feet of natural gas as well.

Up to now Saudi Arabia has been considered the world leader in oil reserves with 170 billion barrels.

"The caprices of old seas and jungles left a generous print on the greater part of our republic," Lopez Portillo said. He said nearly 7,000 square miles along Mexico's coasts and 10 times that offshore are potentially rich in crude oil and natural gas.

The quirk of nature apparently created a pool of oil and natural gas under much of the Mexican coast along the Gulf of Mexico. There is even some evidence the oil stretches across the Sierra Madres to the Pacific coast.

Oil experts in Mexico City said the new government increase in the reserve estimate is very significant because officials at PEMEX, the government oil monopoly, have for years been extremely conservative in plotting the oil reserves.

In early 1977, it announced 17 billion barrels in proven reserves at a time when foreign experts said the figure was closer to 100 billion barrels.

Mondale Put in Charge Of Country's Business

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, who will go into seclusion at the crucial Middle East summit, is asking Vice President Walter Mondale to run the government this week and fight the administration's key legislative battles.

Carter "wishes for the vice president in essence to assume responsibility for virtually all of the other activities of government," White House press secretary Jody Powell said on Friday.

He said Carter wants to concentrate on the summit meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Officials say the talks, which begin Tuesday at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.,

by the government witnesses is inaccurate.

Using the same report cited by the government officials, he quoted a paragraph from the front of the book noting the sampling of rainfall in the immediate area in question was based on only two reporting stations, and thus proved inaccurate.

"The chances of a 3.3 inch rain during a six hour period over the 575 square mile area are infinitesimally small," stated True.

True also disputed a contention that rains of 14 to 17 inches such as those which fell in southwest Oklahoma could happen with any frequency in the local area.

Bureau of Reclamation engineer Edward C. Rossion of Denver, testified that a washout of the Buffalo spillway could occur if water ran over the structure two to three feet deep.

He pointed out that no maintenance had been performed on the spillway in the past decade, and estimated that a project to rebuild the spillway with reinforcement would cost $2-$3 million.

He claimed that up to a year is needed to determine the size spillway necessary could last 10 days or longer.

"This is unique in the sense that you have not had a president nor a vice president with that degree of mutual respect," said Powell. While Mondale will not be serving as "acting president," Powell said, his assignment might be likened to that of a White House chief of staff in another administration. Carter does not have a formal chief of staff.

Mondale will be charged specifically with:

- Keeping watch on the natural gas compromise bill, which is a major part of Carter's energy program on which the Senate is scheduled to be debated Sept. 11.
- Gaining House passage of the Civil Service reorganization bill, which Carter says will make government more efficient. House debate is to begin Thursday.

Teachers on Strike For Higher Wages

By The Associated Press

With school teachers on strike in nine states, the Labor Day weekend arrived with nearly one million students and their parents not sure when the last of summer's holidays would end.

Pay disputes were simmering from coast to coast, with most of them centered in industrial northeastern states.

In Michigan alone, 190 districts with 400,000 students have not settled on contract terms with teachers who were due to start classes after the weekend.

In Philadelphia, 250,000 students are waiting for resolution of contract talks involving their teachers.

Cleveland's financially-plagued district with 100,000 students is awaiting the outcome of intensive teacher-administration bargaining set for Saturday.

On Friday, New Orleans city schools completed a third day of operations in spite of a teachers' walkout, but two-thirds of the system's 91,000 students were absent.

Strikes also have been called in Rhode Island, Washington, Illinois, Vermont and Indiana.

Teachers in three small Michigan districts, Orchard View, Pontiac and Holly, went into the weekend on strike. Four others have authorized walkouts for Tuesday's opening day of classes. The state's largest district, Detroit, with 233,000 students, has a tentative pact covering its teachers, who will vote on the contract after Tuesday.

White House Offers Deal to Sen. Hatfield

DETROIT (AP) - The White House has offered a federal judgeship to Sen. Paul Hatfield, D-Mont., in exchange for his vote on the embattled natural gas pricing compromise legislation, the Detroit News reported Saturday.

In the June 6 Montana primary, incumbent Hatfield was defeated by Rep. Max Baucus, D-Mont., in a bid for the Democratic nomination for the Senate. Hatfield, appointed to the Senate by Gov. Thomas Judge, had been sworn in Jan. 23 as successor to the late Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont. Hatfield's term expires in January, 1979.

The newspaper quoted unidentified Energy Department sources as confirming the offer, and had a Hatfield aide saying Hatfield is likely to accept.

"The offer was extended to Hatfield... in exchange for his vote on the natural gas bill," an Energy Department official told the News. "If he accepts the judgeship, we assume he will vote for the compromise."

The newspaper said it was unable to reach Hatfield, who reportedly was in his home state on Friday, for comment.

The newspaper reported Hatfield aide David Turch, asked if the senator had been offered the judgeship, said Hatfield had been contacted about filling the seat of federal Judge Russell E. Smith, who has announced his intention to retire from the U.S. District Court in Montana at the end of the year but has not yet submitted an official letter of resignation.

Police Report

Santa Fe, N.M., police Friday apprehended two Abilene juveniles, ages 15 and 13, who were being sought by Hereford police for questioning in connection with the Aug. 24 aggravated robbery of a tankful of gasoline from the Atex Oil Co., 1302 W. Highway 60.

The service station was robbed after two young Mexican-American males pointed a shotgun at a 71-year-old clerk and demanded money. The clerk reportedly grabbed the shotgun and a scuffle ensued. The two assailants, who had filled their pickup with gasoline before displaying the shotgun, then fled the scene.

The two suspects will be returned to Hereford, according to a police department spokesman.

Arnie Morrison, 339 George, reported that someone stole distributor wires, coil wire and the radiator cap from his car while it was parked Friday afternoon at 518 Mable.

Gibson Discount reported that two Mexican-American males shoplifted a pair of $40 brown Durgango western boots Friday evening.

Meany Blasts Union Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) - AFL-CIO President George Meany, in a stinging Labor Day assault on big business, charged Friday that greedy employers are resurrecting their "propaganda" campaign of the early 1900s to destroy unions because workers stand in the way of unlimited profits.

But in a contrasting Labor Day statement of conciliation, the head of the National Association of Manufacturers saluted the American workingman as "an indispensable partner and ally" in a private enterprise economy.

Meany, in his annual Labor Day message, declared: "Then, as now, unions of workers were viewed by many employers as 'evil,' because they consider anything which reduces maximum profits to be 'evil.'"

"The lies told at the beginning of this century are still being repeated today. The propaganda is slicker but it is just as false," the 84-year-old U.S. labor patriarch charged that the reason for industry's anti-union revival is the same as during the turbulent labor conflicts of earlier decades: "greed to make the last dollar of profit."

"Unions, those employers decided, constituted a direct threat to their power to make unlimited profit through miserable wages, unsafe working conditions and the use of child labor in sweatshops," he said.

Meany's harsh attack on big business is the result of organized labor's outrage over its failure to gain Senate passage this year of a bill to revise the nation's labor laws. A filibuster led by opponents of the measure all but killed the bill for this session of Congress.

Labor had lobbied heavily for the bill, which supporters said would better protect the rights and job security of workers active in union organizing.

But big business, arguing that the bill would lead to "push-button" unionism, countered with an equally ambitious lobbying campaign.

Meany charged that the business lobbying effort was spearheaded by a small band of extreme right-wing senators whose ultimate goal, Meany said, is to destroy the American union movement.

In a separate Labor Day message, Heath Larry, president of the NAM, a key industry organization which was active in the fight to defeat the labor law revision bill, played down the significance or permanence of labor's feud with big business.

"Our common interests as bulwarks of private enterprise are far more important than what may divide us in a particular bargaining or legislative dispute," said Larry.

GED Classes To Register On Sept. 11

Registration for adult basic education classes will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 11, at Hereford High School, John Quinby, director of Adult Basic Education in the Hereford Independent School District, has announced.

Classes are open to all adults who want to work toward a GED certificate or learn English as a second language. The GED certificate is equivalent to a high school diploma and is awarded after a student passes the GED examination.

The classes will include beginning reading, mathematics, writing and speaking. Classes will be offered at no cost.

Quinby can be contacted for additional information at 364-5112.

Bell Appeal Denied By PUC

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Public Utility Commission has denied Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request to reconsider a $124.5 million rate hike ordered Aug. 2 for the utility.

The company had asked the commission for $214.3 million in new annual revenues.

Included in the new rate order are optional "lifeline" rates at approximately 40 percent of standard service charges. Customers in 15 cities will be able to pay a basic fee for up to 25 free local calls monthly. Each additional call would cost eight cents each.

Long distance, WATS and directory assistance rates were not affected by the new rate case. However, fees for service connections and moves will be affected.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor and Christians of Hereford:

Greetings In The Name of Jesus!

The Board of Directors for Hereford's Meals on Wheels program met on Monday evening Aug. 28th to make a decision about the future of this worthy program of service. The first and foremost point of discussion was one of crisis - we are overdrawn almost $700.00 after our weekly deposit at the bank - a decision had to be made.

- These were our choices:
1. To get Federal Funds on a Title 20 grant.
 2. To ask for money from the County Commissioner's Revenue Sharing money.
 3. To apply for United Way funds.
 4. To continue to count on contributions from churches, civic clubs, and
 4. To continue to count on contributions from churches, civic clubs and private citizens to meet our needs.

When Meals on Wheels was founded in May 1972 in this city, it was started as a Christian Ministry and the Board of Directors, and I, have always declared that we will keep it that way. It is Gods program - we are only His servants, instruments for His use. He has always been faithful to supply our need - and we trust Him to meet this great need that we have committed unto Him, through His people.

So - once again we voted against Federal funding. We have chosen to ask the county commissioners for some funds to help us through this immediate crisis and to apply for United Way funds which will not be available until January.

Only four churches are supporting us in this town out of the thirty-four churches - two others have made pledges for support. If every Sunday School Class in every church would give even 25 cents a member, it would help more than you know. We are serving people of all faiths. Gods word tells me this is the church's responsibility as children of God, to meet the needs of the world as well as our own family of God.

We are presently serving 32 to 34 people daily. The meals are prepared by Mrs. Johnnie Davis in her home: at the cost to us of $1.35 a meal. Customers pay what they are able to pay according to their income and financial circumstances including rent, bills, etc. Each person is evaluated before acceptance. This is not a catering service - it is to help those who can not help themselves.

Our monthly donations are only $135.00 a month. Some churches and civic clubs prefer to pay theirs in annual payments or semi-annually and even quarterly. This is great - except it's spent already.

Total contributions so far this year have been $3084.50. Our cost for meals this year already is $5347.50. Customers have paid $1531.50. Have you added it up? Need I say more? The need is drastic - immediate!

I pray that God will touch the hearts of the unconcerned and lead you to do what some precious and beloved Christians have already done.

We need your help financially - we need your prayers - we need your service and your love.

God Bless You All.

I love you
Lola Curtsinger

Publisher Allison Dies

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - James N. Allison Jr., 46, president and publisher of the Midland Reporter-Telegram and prominent civic leader, died of pneumonia early Thursday in a Houston hospital.

He had been hospitalized the last month after undergoing surgery.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Allison owned the Plainview Daily Herald and the Alpine Avalanche. He also owned the Borger Herald for a brief period before disposing of it within the last year.

The fourth generation newspaperman also was president at one time of the Stanton Reporter.

He was president-elect of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, a former president of the West Texas Press Association and a former director of the Texas Press Association.

He had other business interests in Midland and was recognized among the community's top civic leaders.

Allison was born Dec. 4, 1931, at Lincoln, Neb., and moved to Midland with his parents in 1940 when his father, the late James N. Allison Sr., purchased the Reporter-Telegram.

He was graduated from Southern Methodist University where he was a member of the Blue Key honor society. He was in the ROTC and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Force upon his graduation from SMU.

The Herd and Amarillo Tascosa scrimmaged Friday night at Whiteface Stadium and the controlled contest eventually ended in a tie, two touchdowns each. Here, halfback Paul Bell, who later suffered a leg injury, scampers away from a Rebel defender.

Whitefaces Shine During Scrimmage

By DON INGRAM, Brand Sports Editor
Hereford and Amarillo Tascosa took turns taking punches at each other here Friday night at Whiteface Stadium.

And although the total added up to an even scrimmage, the Herd seemed to have "more on the ball" than the visiting team.

Actually, the end results were two touchdowns for each side. Hereford scored the first two TDs while the Rebels had to muster late-scrimmage attacks to match the scoreboard.

The scrimmage did produce some bad news for Hereford. Veteran halfback Paul Bell suffered a severe ligament strain during the latter portion of the contest.

According to head coach Don Cumpston Saturday morning, Bell is likely to miss two or three weeks of play, but should be back in the lineup by then.

Bell scored one of the Herd's TDs on a 30 romp around right end after taking a pitchout from quarterback Jackie Mercer.

That TD romp was on Hereford's first possession, the 10th play in the series.

That wasn't all the Herd did either. On their next offensive possession, they scored against the Rebels from one-yard out when running back Robert Graves scooted across for paydirt.

Astros Whip Cubs, 8-5

CHICAGO (AP) - Bob Watson and Dennis Walling each singled twice and drove in a run in a seven-run ninth-inning explosion that carried the Houston Astros past the Chicago Cubs 8-5 Saturday.

A two-run triple by Bill Buckner and a sacrifice fly by Manny Trillo in the bottom of the eighth had given the Cubs a 5-1 lead.

But Houston erupted for seven hits off four pitchers, scored one run on a wild pitch and two on an error by Ivan DeJesus in the wild ninth inning.

Singles by Watson and Walling to open the inning chased Rick Reuschel and brought in Bruce Sutter. One run scored on a force play at second and pinch-hitter Jesus

Following that offensive series and TD, the Herd slowed a bit on offense, but coach Cumpston said overall, "We Alou singled to put runners at first and third with one out. Pinch-runner Jimmy Sexton stole second before Sutter's wild pitch made the score 5-3. Rafael Landestoy then flied out. But Keith Drumright singled home Sexton and Terry Puhl's single brought in Willie Hernandez "to pitch" to Jose Cruz, who walked.

Lynn McGlothen replaced Hernandez and Enos Cabell lined a hard smash that eluded DeJesus and gave Houston a 6-5 lead. Watson and Walling then followed with their run-scoring singles before Wilbur Howard grounded into a force play for the third out.

The Astros blew several good scoring chances before their big inning, leaving runners at third base in the third, fourth, and fifth innings.

Bochy opened the third with a single. Lemongello forced him at second, moved up on a ground out, and took third on Drumright's single, but Puhl struck out.

were really pleased with the effort and enthusiasm the kids put out!"

On defense, the Herd seemed to stymie the Rebels all over the field, especially up the middle.

Aggressive play was produced by linebackers Richard Olson (60) and Anthony Poteet (66), defensive back Bud Hughes (37), Steve Sauter (55), Glen Yosten (44), and others. Yosten (44), and others.

The Rebels eventually scored on their second offensive series from ten yards out, then again from the three yard line.

Unofficial statistics showed the Herd making 20 first downs to Tascosa's 15.

Bell gained approximately 91 yards before being injured, while Joe Walker racked up 71 tough yards against the hard hitting Rebels.

"There were some pretty spotty places on both defense and offense," said Cumpston about the overall Herd attack.

"We'd move the ball well for a while, then break down," speaking about the offense performance at the end of the contest.

Cumpston said they would need to work out the mistakes before next Friday's tilt with Pampa.

Fortunately, the Herd suffered no other serious injuries, other than Bell.

HEREFORD AND AREA FIRE RISK THIS WEEK LIGHT:

Grease fires are the most common of household fires. They usually occur when the person cooking is called away from the stove to answer the phone or a similar interruption. Fire Marshal Jay Spain advises turning the heat off before leaving the room. When the grease is heated enough, it will burst into flames of its own accord, without ever actually touching a flame itself. "It's best to keep a household-type extinguisher on hand for this type of fire," Spain said. "Each of these fires does about $1500 damage." Call the fire department immediately should a grease fire break out, Spain said. Then, if you can do so without being burned, turn the heat off and cover the burning pan with a lid to smother the flames. Never try to carry the grease outside because the flames will burn your arms.

Kite Leading At BC Classic

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) - Tom Kite shot a 6-under par 65 over the En-Joie Golf Club course Saturday that put him three strokes ahead of his nearest challenger, Rod Curl, going into Sunday's third round of the $225,000 B.C. Open.

"I'm playing awfully well, but this tournament is far from a runaway. With two rounds to go, there is a lot of ground to go," said Kite after his Saturday performance left him 11 under par for the first 36 holes of the tournament.

Curl was threatening to make it a two-man tournament after he overcame a poor start of two bogies with two eagles and finished the day with a 7-under 64.

"If I make my putts tomorrow, I'd like to make this a two man race between me and Kite," Curl said.

Curl managed to finish the second round 7 under par in spite of being 2 over after the first five holes. He said he was bothered by the willow trees along the 6,915-yard, par-71 course.

Danny Edwards of Edmond, Okla., was four strokes behind Kite in the competition for the $45,000 winner's share. Artie McNickle and Rex Caldwell were five strokes back going into the third round.

The field of 150 golfers was to be cut in half for the third round.

Getting Frustrated

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

You can only discourage a man so much. Discourage him too much and, unless he's supernormal, he quits.

You can't blame him for quitting. Man wasn't created to withstand too many discouragements.

Hereford's United Way volunteers are no different from man. Volunteers go out into the community, they ask for money, they return from the community, they count their money, and they come up short. And they get discouraged.

You can't blame them for quitting. The United Way just wasn't created to withstand too many discouragements, and it's safe to say its volunteers don't plan on withstanding too many more.

Hopefully, this will be the year that Deaf Smith County United Fund Inc. achieves its goal, whatever that goal might be, thus ending its discouraging losing streak.

Speaking as Brand editor, not United Way president, this year's campaign looks as if it has a good chance to help participating agencies make ends meet.

The United Way has, simply, gone back to the basics, establishing a singular drive—the intention of the Hereford organization's founding fathers 21 years ago.

By adopting the policy of one drive, the United Way can promise this year that businesses and individuals won't be hit up for money as often. At least not by participating United Way agencies, most of which have been forced—understandably—to conduct their own drives in order to make up the deficit.

The drive isn't until October and November. But it's time to start thinking about supporting Deaf Smith County's most important fund-raising campaign.

We can make it work. We have to.

Thumbing Back

ONE YEAR AGO

Carole McGilvary, past president of the American Association of University Women local branch, has been named District Coordinator of District II by Mrs. Juanita Cole, who is state president of AAUW. Mrs. McGilvary will coordinate the workshop which the Hereford branch will host in October. The long-awaited wheat cutback plan was announced Monday by Deputy Agriculture Secretary John C. White, but the proposal for a 20 percent acreage reduction for 1978 is already being dubbed as inadequate throughout the nations wheat producing area.

TEN YEARS AGO

A crowd of nearly 250 people attended the ice cream supper which was held recently by the Whiteface Booster Club at the local football stadium. The supper was for the purpose of introducing all of the coaches and letting them get better acquainted with the players parents. Rev. Simeon Heine, S.A., arrived in Hereford Thursday and will assume his duties as pastor of St. Anthony's parish today. Satellite day care classes through the Amarillo State Center for Human Development will get underway in Hereford this week, when a site will be selected Thursday along with hiring a teacher and interviewing parents of retarded children.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Evelyn Jean Benson and Joe Hacker were married Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the First Baptist Church with Rev. W. J. Benson, pastor of the First Church of Nazarene of Fort Worth, directing the recital vows in the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiskell F. Benson of the Frio Community. Mr. Hacker's parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hacker. Hereford Lions raised at least $519.15 Friday toward the money needed to pay for the electric scoreboard at the football field when 65 persons, mostly Lions were auctioned off as "Slave Laborers" to the highest bidders. The Lions sweetheart and a few other women were also auctioned.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Work began Wednesday on a new brick block, on the corner of Main and Third, owned by Weatherford men to be divided into five buildings. Construction work on the building will be rushed. It will be a splendid addition to the town. Adult farmers of the Hereford region are a mighty fine group, but the younger generation can still show them a thing or two when it comes to the question of hog-raising. At least that is the opinion of Fleet Calloway, 17, who has just finished feeding the first ton litter of pigs to be raised in Deaf Smith County.

Creeping Controls

WASHINGTON — President Carter and his economic experts have often stated publicly that wage-price controls don't work, which is true; and that therefore, they will not use them, which is questionable.

In fact, there is a consistent pattern of creeping wage-price controls in the policies of the Carter Administration. It's easy to spot when you put the pieces together in chronological order: January, 1977 — The President rejects mandatory or voluntary controls.

February, 1977 — He proposes continuation and expansion of the Council on Wage and Price Stability (COWPS).

March, 1977 — He supports increases in the federal minimum wage, a form of wage control.

April, 1977 — He proposes price controls for intrastate natural gas. (Currently, only gas that crosses state lines is controlled.)

August, 1977 — He signs a bill giving COWPS use of subpoena power to extract wage-price information from business and workers by force, a form of intimidation.

January, 1978 — He announces "voluntary" across-the-economy wage-price controls. Prices and wages are supposed to grow more slowly than the average of the previous two years.

April, 1978 — He announces a salary freeze on federal political appointees and proposes a 5.5 percent limit on federal white collar pay increases. He suggests that business do likewise.

May, 1978 — The Director of COWPS threatens business with use of COWPS' subpoena power.

June, 1978 — The President's economic troubleshooter, Robert Strauss, in a letter to me, proposes detailed and tighter "voluntary" controls.

With this track record, it is understandable why a majority of America's business people now expect mandatory wage-price controls within the next year or two.

I can understand, too, why many people, feeling pressed by government-caused inflation, are tempted by what looks like a simple solution: Pass a law against higher prices. But it won't work.

When Gadflies Drew Blood

Most of us, if only subconsciously, appreciate the gadflies.

Conservative women who would never think of carrying a picket sign nonetheless secretly applaud the ice-breaking crusaders who are out there in the front lines making headlines with their insistence on women's rights.

Americans are inspired by a Howard Jarvis who, with persistence, forced a whole state to reduce property taxes. His is becoming a national tax revolt now.

The arguments advanced by these Don Quixotes inevitably eventuate in battle cries that we can all rally 'round.

It takes the likes of them to make a point sharp enough to draw blood. His slogan: Unsafe At Any Speed.

The handle for the Proposition 13 tax revolt in California was the "tea bag." Reminiscent of our nation's earliest revolt against Britain's tax collectors when we dumped that British tea into Boston harbor, the California effort was labeled "the tea bag tax revolt" and the tea bag was effectively used as a symbol.

Also, some of the rhetoric which evolves from these campaigns is highly useful in clarifying complex issues.

Jarvis said: "The only way to cut government spending is not to give them the money in the first place."

When he took on the automobile industry, Ralph Nader got a lot of mileage out of

He said, "I can list 25,000 things which the government ought to get out of tomorrow."

There is an element of truth in the jest of tax resister Irwin Schiff who said, "Products are recalled if they shrink, malfunction or don't do what they are supposed to do; perhaps our government should recall the dollar for those reasons."

And in the accumulation of ammunition for his cause he came up with this:

A hundred million Japanese live on an island the size of California with no oil, no natural gas, no iron, no vast farmland and no timber.

Yet that nation, with fully half our nation's population, creates a higher standard of living for its people, enjoys a trade surplus and has currency increasing in value daily.

And Mr. Schiff offers this sobering comparison relating to our nation's inflation.

This year's 10 percent-plus inflation rate will wipe out $100 billion of purchasing power. All our money in and out of circulation will be worth that much less.

That is a greater financial loss to our nation in this one year than all of the bank failures during all of the years of the Great Depression of the Thirties.

A 70 times greater loss!

It may be that the battle cry for the next "revolution" has already come from the lips of Alaska's Wally Hickel. He says, "The next revolution in our nation will be when those Americans who work refuse to support those who can work but will not."

In slogans we distill the essence of a grievance. Or, as we say in the Missouri Ozarks, these most effective proponents of a cause have a way of "shucking right down to the cob."

Too Much Money Spent for Arms

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm has been thinking hard about the world's plight, his letter this week suggests.

Dear Editor: Although everybody may not have turned in all his figures, the latest calculation is that the world is spending 400 billion dollars a year on armaments, with enough bombs already on hand to kill everybody ten times over. It's one of the worst ways I can think of to rid New York of its dog problem.

If the world would suddenly disarm, think what could be done with all that money, although you don't have think History...

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, Sept. 3, the 246th day of 1978. There are 119 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1783, the Treaty of Paris, between the United States and Great Britain, officially ended the Revolutionary War.

On this date:
In 1658, Oliver Cromwell, the lord protector of England, died.

In 1826, the first American warship to circle the world, the USS Venuee New York on a four-year voyage.

In 1892, Britain assumed the protectorate over the Gilbert Islands in the central Pacific.

In 1916, in World War I, the Allies turned back the Germans at Verdun in France.

In 1939, Britain and France declared war on Germany at the start of World War II.

In 1945, Singapore was returned to British control after being occupied by the Japanese since 1942.

Ten years ago: The Pentagon issued a draft call for 10,000 men, the lowest figure in more than three years.

Five years ago: It was disclosed that three people had been killed by the explosion of a bomb in the Lenin mausoleum on Moscow's Red Square.

One year ago: Pakistan's former prime minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, was arrested on a charge of conspiring in the attempted murder of a political opponent in 1974.

Today's birthdays: Singer Dorothy Maynor is 68 years old; Actress Valerie Perrine is 35.

Thought for today: Books may be burned and cities sacked, but truth, like the yearning for freedom, lives in the hearts of humble men and women — President Franklin Roosevelt.

STAGES

Who could better write about the mid-age crisis than I? They call it the 35-56 syndrome, or they call it the dangerous age. I can write about it because I am there. I can also write because I have had the symptoms ever since I was 18.

It is said during this crisis you suddenly feel like life is passing you by. All the gusto is being reached for by folks much younger. When you were young you forgot to reach. I have always felt like life was going on in the next county. Where I was it was dead. I have also felt that while others were reaching for the gusto, I was going to deacons' meeting.

It is said during this time of life you tend to burn out. One symptom is irritability. Things you once did not even notice now bang you off the wall. Whoever decided this belonged to mid-age has never seen me in the morning. ANY morning at ANY age. Some folks awake with bright cheer. I am not fit for human consumption until I have had coffee by the quart and the morning newspaper.

My wife ordered two morning newspapers in self-defense. The longer she can keep my nose buried in a paper the less she has to deal with the out-of-joint condition of said nose. I don't think I even believe in God until about 10:00 A.M. The wife says we have a den but I growl all over the house.

It is said this age causes men to begin to act foolishly. My first-grade teacher said I did that even back then.

Can you imagine how I feel? All of the books out on stages of life...we stage through, passages we pass, and crises we crises, and I have had them all along. I have been a dirty old man most of my life. I have been an irritable middle-ager since 18. What will be left when I get there? I will have run out of stages, passages, and crises. I may die of absolute boredom.

My dream has always been to become a mean, crotchity old codger. I intend to give the whole world fits. I intend to gripe about the weather even on good days. I intend to demand attention even when I am getting it. When I told my dream to my wife, she said, "What else is new?"

Warm fuzzies,

Abundant Life

TRY THE UPBEAT.

"THE UPBEAT" in a musical measure is an unaccented beat, or to be more specific, it is "the latest beat in the measure." It is indicated by the musical director with an upward movement of the hand or the baton.

"UPBEAT", in its adjectival form and usage, has the much wider and more inclusive meaning of "optimistic or cheerful".

The down beat in music is the "downward stroke of a conductor indicating the principle accented note of a measure; also any first beat". "Downbeat, as an adjective, in its more general application, means "pessimistic, gloomy."

IN MUSIC, the rhythmic structure or movement is accomplished by a group of music beats. It is a combination of "upbeats" and "downbeats"; neither all one nor the other.

LIFE IS LIKE MUSIC, in this respect. Living is not going to be all "upbeats" or all "downbeats". It does seem, however, that considerable effort is being put forth to give the "downbeats", and ignore the "upbeats".

Much of the news presented from early morning until close of the day is on the "downbeat". It is almost, if not completely, filled with information that is heavily loaded with "gloomy" ideas and conclusions.

TO MAKE THE SITUATION WORSE, many of the persons we meet during a day's journey are on the "downbeat" in their talk. If we are not extremely careful, we will go with the "pessimistic and gloomy" conclusions and views. Of course, there are some justifiable reasons for some pessimism and gloom; but we know that life is not all "downbeat".

IF WE INSIST UPON MAKING LIFE all "downbeat", there can be no harmony or completeness; but life becomes a dreary monotone, in which the beauty is hidden and the forward movement comes to a standstill.

THERE ARE TIMES AND PLACES for the "upbeat", and it is becoming increasingly important that we "try the upbeat". If we ignore the indicated "upbeats" in music, we ruin the music. If we ignore the indicated "upbeats" in living, we ruin the living.

"BE CHEERFUL ALWAYS. There is no path but will be easier traveled; no load but will be lighter; no shadow on heart and brain but will life sooner for the person determined to be cheerful." — Anon.

SO FAR AS LIVING IS CONCERNED; there is a very real sense in which each person is his own director, and can learn to be reasonably skillful in this very important role. It is a mistake to let someone else who sees only the indicated "downbeats" interfere; to let others impose their gloomy and pessimistic feelings upon us.

WE MUST NOT MISREAD THE SCORE, or be unrealistic, to the point of pretending that all is just right; however, we must see and give full consideration to all that is properly "optimistic and cheerful".

Don't forget the "upbeats".
Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Fumbles Hurt Buffs

Bulldogs Bury WTSU, 28-0 in Jackson

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) - Tailback James Jones escaped for two touchdowns as Mississippi State, aided by fumble recoveries and Richard Blackmore's long-distance punt returns, whipped the West Texas State Buffaloes 28-0 Saturday night in their football opener.

Fumble recoveries by Bo Myrick and Raymond Petyton set up two touchdowns while Blackmore fled 48 and 40 yards on punt returns to put the Bulldogs in position for two more.

Jones, a fleet 200-pounder, got touchdowns on first-half runs of five yards and three yards while quarterback Dave Marler kept two yards for a score and 235-pound fullback Fred Collins blasted 10 yards up the middle for another.

Marler, a senior kicker playing his first game at quarterback for the Bulldogs, hit 11 of 16 passes for 140 yards.

Jones was the leading rusher with 73 yards on 12 carries for the Southeastern Conference team.

Meanwhile, West Texas State, a defending Missouri Valley Conference champion used three quarterbacks to try to crack the Mississippi State defense lead by tackle Tyrone Keys and linebacker Rusty Martin, but had only two real opportunities.

The Buffaloes failed to score after a first-quarter fumble recovery at the Bulldog 22 by linebacker Scott Braden and following a drive directed by quarterback Newton Owens from the Buffalo 20 to Mississippi State 19.

Bellard Pleased With Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) - Texas A&M's first two offensive units combined for 613 yards rushing and 192 passing Saturday while the two top defensive units limited the third and fourth teams to a minus-17 yards during a full-contact afternoon scrimmage.

Coach Emory Bellard said he was pleased with his first units, both offense and defense, but noted, "Our second units were inconsistent."

"There are some good players on the second units who can help us individually, but the team play of the second groups was not steady," he said.

Adger Armstrong, David

Brothers and freshman Temple Aday each scored twice while Curtis Dickey, David Beal and split end Doug Teague each tallied once.

Dickey led all rushers with 131 yards on seven carries. Holly Wilson had 118 yards on eight tries and Beal had 102 on seven.

Shorts

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The St. Louis Blues announced signing center Mike Zuke and defenseman Steve Harrison to the National Hockey League team Friday.

Dallas to Face Strained Colts

DALLAS (AP) - You'll be able to recognize the World Champion Dallas Cowboys Monday night, but where did all the defending American Football Conference Eastern Division champion Baltimore Colts go?

The first nationally televised Monday night game will feature a Baltimore team wracked by numerous personnel changes.

"Sure we have problems, and we will have more problems, but the only people who don't have problems are dead," says Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda.

The Colts have so many problems they certainly aren't dead. For starters, one thing that isn't 100 percent alive is quarterback Bert Jones' good right arm-injured in a nasty spill during the Colts' final National Football League preseason game. Jones won't play.

Mike Kirkland, known as a steady quarterback at the University of Arkansas, will get the call over Mike Troup, who also was injured last week.

And, lo, who's that at wide receiver? Could it be Roger Carr, who missed most of the 1977 season due to a knee injury? Carr caught only 11 passes in 1977.

That's the good news for Colt fans because 1,000-yard gainer and pass receiver superb tailback Lydell Mitchell is gone in a bitter salary dispute which had Mitchell claiming the Colt management used "racism in negotiations."

He was traded to San Diego. Joe Washington, described once by Texas Coach Darrell Royal as possessing the ability to jump through a keyhole, will join Don McCauley, Roosevelt Leaks, and Don Hardeman in the Colt backfield.

Tight end Ray Chester questioned Colt offensive strategy in the off-season and was traded so look for Mack Alston and rookie Reese McCall at that position.

In the offensive line, Ken Huff replaces retired Elmer Collett at guard. Injuries have hobbled tackles George Kunz and David Taylor. Wade Griffin and Bob Van Dyne look to be possible starters.

Defensively, the "Sack Pack" will have two new faces, Derrel Luce at linebacker replacing the retired Tom MacLeod and Doug Nettles ahead of Nelson Munsey at cornerback.

Connors Struggles By Unknown

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Connors survived his first real challenge in the U.S. Open tennis championships Saturday, as he struggled hard to get by little-known American Pat Dupre 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

The third-round match was a close battle from the start, with No. 2-seed Connors failing to break service until the final game. Then, for the first time in the tournament, Connors, who was 26 on Saturday, himself was broken in the third game of the second set.

It was a truly impressive performance by Dupre, a 23-year-old American who was once pegged a promising junior prospect before he gradually slipped from the picture.

Earlier, Guillermo Vilas and Vitas Gerulaitis survived their third dangerously close matches. Vilas, the defending champion, outlasted former champion Stan Smith 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 and Gerulaitis barely pulled out a 6-4, 3-6, 7-5 squeaker over Rhoadian Andy Pattison.

In night matches, the Wimbledon champions were to play. Top seed Bjorn Borg was to meet Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland, and No. 1 Martina Navratilova was to play Maria Pinterova of Egypt.

In sharp contrast to the paths of the No. 1 and 2 seeds, Borg and Connors, who've had easy early opponents, Vilas and Gerulaitis have had to struggle.

Vilas had a difficult time against Cliff Drysdale in the first round and American Bill Scanlon in the next. Gerulaitis also was stunned by the big fight he got from young Frenchman Pascale Portes in his first match and then from American Victor Amaya.

In other matches, No. 4 Wendy Turnbull had little trouble getting past American Barbara Hallquist 6-2, 6-3, and No. 5 Eddie Dibbs scrambled to beat Hungarian Balazs Taroczy 7-6, 4-6, 6-3 in a second-round match.

Two of the seeded players fell in day matches. American Bob Lutz dumped No. 13 Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina 6-3, 6-2 and American Butch Waltz eliminated Poland's Wojtek Fibak 6-4, 7-5.

No. 8 Raul Ramirez of Mexico had a stiff third-round fight from Britain's John Lloyd, but ultimately showed that he has better control, as he won 6-2, 6-3.

No. 6 Brian Gottfried easily defeated former U.S. Davis Cup player Egik van Dillen 6-1, 6-0. No. 11 Roscoe Tanner got by fellow American Eliot Teltscher 7-6, 6-2 in the third round. No. 12 Harold Solomon beat American countryman Gene Mayer 6-4, 6-2, and No. 16 Arthur Ashe eliminated another American, Terry Moor, 6-3, 6-4.

Drake Edges Arlington

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Quarterback Steve Drexler came off the bench in the second half to engineer three long scoring drives and Dwaine Ball ran for two touchdowns to lead Drake to a 25-23 victory over Texas-Arlington Saturday.

The only scoring in the sluggish first half came on field goals of 24 and 31 yards by Drake's Mark Mendenhall after Maverick fumbles.

Texas-Arlington bunched all its scoring in the third quarter as quarterback Roy Dewalt ran one yard for a touchdown, passed for another less than a minute later and later sprinted 49 yards for a TD.

Tight end Jerry Woodard scored on Dewalt's 10-yard touchdown pass following an interception, as Texas-Arlington appeared to take command at 14-6. Then Drexler took charge with a 72-yard drive capped by a 19-yard touchdown run by Ball.

The Bulldogs then moved 80 yards as junior college transfer Wardell Wright bulled over from the 2-yard line, and Drake regained the lead after a 74-yard drive as Ball scored from the 20.

Ball finished with 93 yards in 15 carries.

It was the first meeting between the two schools and Drake's first season-opening victory since 1972.

Dewalt led the Mavericks with 77 yards in 20 carries. Drake's defense stopped Texas-Arlington on the 16-yard line and the Bulldogs held the ball for the final 54 seconds, but allowed the Mavericks to score a safety at the gun.

CHICAGO (AP) - Dr. Theodore A. Fox has resigned after 30 years as the team physician and orthopedic surgeon for the Chicago Bears.

A club spokeswoman said Friday that Fox cited his private practice in Chicago, his activities as director of the Center for Sports Medicine at the Illinois Masonic Medical Center and the recent loss of an associate as reasons for the move. Fox will continue to serve the club in an advisory capacity.

Ali May...or He May Not Retire

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Muhammad Ali says his heavyweight championship fight with Leon Spinks two weeks from now may not be the last dance after all.

Ali, who only minutes before had repeated his plans to regain the championship and retire, said he may fight Larry Holmes instead.

"Maybe I'll stay around six months or so," he said. "Give the people a chance to see me as champion."

Spinks arrived here Friday evening and almost immediately underwent another episode in his recurring problems with automobiles in traffic. Before he ever got out of the airport parking lot, one of the motorcycle policemen in his escort party ran into the back of his $35,000 limousine and caused minor damage.

It was the seventh time in seven months that Spinks has been involved in traffic problems, but the second time in a row that it wasn't his fault.

Late in July, Spinks' car was hit at Hilton Head Island, S.C., where he was in training. No charges were filed.

But in March, April and June, he was stopped for traffic violations five times. In the April incident, he was also charged with possession of cocaine and marijuana. The drug charges were dismissed, although he did pay a traffic fine.

Ali arrived a day earlier, describing his Sept. 15 fight with Spinks as "the last dance," a description he repeated Friday as he entertained reporters and fans with a rhythmic monologue in his dressing room.

Then - in almost an offhand fashion - he said that if he wins the World Boxing Association's portion of the crown from Spinks, he might go after the World Boxing Council title held by Holmes.

He said he would expect an Ali-Holmes fight to be worth about $6 million.

Ali's workout Friday was supposed to include three rounds of shadow boxing, then two rounds of boxing with each of five sparring mates.

He moved briskly through the shadow boxing session, then changed plans.

After one round with amateur heavyweight Tony Tubbs, Ali leaned over the ring ropes and told one of his handlers that he didn't feel well, that he had apparently not waited long enough after lunch to begin working.

He then went two more rounds against Tubbs, looking sharper as the workout progressed. After the third round, he curtailed his workout. In his dressing room, he said he had done too much roadwork earlier in the day and that he was tired.

Both fighters were scheduled to work today, using the same facilities two hours apart.

Booster Club To Feature Supporters

The Hereford Whiteface Booster Club will feature a special list of Herd supporters in this year's Homecoming football program.

According to Booster Club president Bob Nigh, the club will print a special list of Whiteface backers who purchase a Booster Club membership up to that time, and insert the list into the Homecoming game program.

Homecoming this year will be October 27 with the Herd facing a very important district 4-4A game against pre-season favorite Plainview.

Boosters wanting to get on the list may do so by buying a membership into the club at the regular Booster Club meetings, which will begin Tuesday night at the high school cafeteria at 8 p.m.

They may also contact Nigh at radio station KPAN or contact Booster Club secretary-treasurer Joy Bunch at the Hereford State Bank.

In their first meeting Tuesday, the Boosters will review a film of the Hereford-Tascosa scrimmage, and hear a scouting report on the Pampa Harvesters, the Herd's first regular season opponent.

Cubs Defeat Astros, 14-11

CHICAGO (AP) - Bill Buckner, Bobby Murcer, Herman Franks and Bill Virdon have spent a total of 68 years in the major leagues. But what happened to them Friday, they agreed, was a first.

Never in their memories had they been involved in a game in which a team scored in every inning it batted. The Chicago Cubs did Friday. The way the Houston Astros kept charging back, they almost had to.

"The weird thing about it is we could have lost," Buckner said after the Cubs' 14-11 victory.

Chicago scored five runs in the first inning. Houston outdid them with six in the second. The Cubs held a 7-6 lead after three innings. Houston rallied for three in the fourth.

The Cubs then chipped away for single runs in the fourth and fifth to tie the score 9-9.

Then Buckner struck his crowning blow of an outstanding day that included two doubles, two runs and four runs batted in.

After Rodney Scott led off the sixth with a walk, Buckner crashed a 1-2 pitch from Joe Sambito, 4-7, over the right field wall to give the Cubs an 11-9 edge. It was his third homer of the year.

Houston drove out winner Willie Hernandez, 8-2, with Bruce Bochy's second homer, a solo shot in the seventh that slashed the lead to 11-10. But the Astros never caught up again.

"We did some crazy things. It didn't faze us," said Buckner. "No one expects us to do anything, so what the heck."

One of the craziest things the Cubs did was get into hot water in the eighth, when they led 12-10. Rafael Landestoy's fourth single of the game, a single by Keith Drumright and an error by second baseman Manny Trillo produced one run off relief ace Bruce Sutter.

Sutter followed with a wild pitch, then walked Jose Cruz intentionally to load the bases with no outs.

But Enos Cabell grounded into a force out at home and shortstop Ivan DeJesus went deep into the hole for Bob Watson's grounder to start an inning-ending double play.

"The play that saved the game," said Murcer.

"That was the best play of the game. If it goes through we're ahead," said Houston Manager Virdon.

"That was the play," said

Chicago Manager Franks.

Watson struck out twice, grounded into two double plays and flied out in his first game since sitting out about 15 days with a pulled hamstring. Virdon said Watson's leg was still bothering him.

Chicago teed off on Houston starter J.R. Richard in the first. With one out, Scott walked, Buckner doubled him home, Dave Kingman doubled Buckner home. Murcer hit his eighth homer and Trillo hit his fourth. "He wasn't getting his breaking ball over," Virdon said of Richard. "He went to his fastball and this team has good fastball hitters and he was getting it up."

Chicago pounded 16 hits, including Dave Rader's third homer, a solo blast in the third that put the Cubs up 7-6. Houston had 15 hits.

After three losses in Atlanta, Murcer sounded a hopeful note for the Cubs, who are struggling to stay in the National League East race.

"Who knows," he said. "We might have saved them all up for September."

Rangers Bounce Brewers, 5-4

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Reggie Cleveland isn't mentioned in the same breath with the New York Yankees' Rich Gossage or Detroit's John Hiller among the American League's top relief pitchers, but Texas' chunky righthander is nearly unhittable to the Milwaukee Brewers.

Cleveland relieved winner Ferguson Jenkins 13-8 after Ben Oglivie and Sixto Lezcano had singled to start the Brewer ninth inning Friday night. Oglivie scored on Robin Yount's infield grounder, but the next two hitters were retired on easy grounders as the Rangers survived two late homers by Don Money to win 5-4.

The Brewers have just three hits in 23 times at bat this season against Cleveland, who earned his 11th save.

"I didn't have that figure right in my hand, although we keep a lot of pitching and hitting charts," Rangers Manager Billy Hunter said. "But I do know he's been very effective against Milwaukee. He may be even more effective against other teams."

"And I do know we beat a tough pitcher and a tough team," Hunter said. "Maybe we're finally putting something together. We've had a very good defense since we moved Toby (Harrah) from third base to shortstop and split John Lowenstein and Kurt Bevacqua at third. We're in a situation where we have to win three of every four games the rest of the way."

The Rangers are only one game over .500 despite an imposing roster and a payroll that approaches that of the Yankees, Boston Red Sox and California Angels. However, they closed to within 4 1/2 games of first place Kansas City in the AL West with their sixth victory in eight games.

Loser Lary Sorensen 15-10, who failed in his third try for his 16th victory, pitched well except in the third inning when the Rangers bunched half of their 10 hits to erase a 1-0 deficit with four runs.

Bases empty homers by Money in the sixth and eighth, his 11th and 12th, brought the Brewers to within 4-3, but Harrah hit his seventh homer with one out in the ninth for what proved to be the decisive run.

"George's philosophy is to stay out of big innings," Sorensen said of Brewer Manager George Bamberger. "That's two outings in a row I haven't done it. One bad inning and one bad pitch. That's all it takes."

Jaun Beniquez singled with one out in the Rangers' third, and the runs scored on a double by Mike Hargrove, a single by Lowenstein, a double by Al Oliver as Lezcano caught the drive but dropped it as he hit the right field wall and a single by Bobby Bonds.

"I got mad and tried to throw the ball past the hitter and past the catcher, just to try to get an out," Sorensen said. "I was overthrowing. George said, 'You're mad. That's why you're not pitching well.'"

Count Fleet won the 1942 Walden Stakes by 30 lengths and the 1943 Belmont by 25 lengths.

Pro Football Opens Today With New Faces

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
Welcome to "New Faces of 1978." National Football League-style.

Actually the faces are, for the most part, old. They're just peering out from under new helmets.

Lydell Mitchell, for example, wore horseshoes on the sides of his head for six years, before a contract dispute turned ugly and the Baltimore Colts traded him to San Diego. So he'll have lightning bolts over each ear when the Chargers open their season in Seattle today.

Harold Jackson, who wore Rams horns for six years and Eagles' wings for four, wound up in New England this year when the Patriots' star wide receiver, Darryl Stingley, was seriously injured in an exhibition-game collision. Jackson is being counted on to keep the Pats' air game going Sunday against the visiting Washington Redskins.

O.J. Simpson, who had defense buffaloed for nine years, will be displaying his talents for San Francisco when the 49ers open in Cleveland.

In today's other games it's Green Bay at Detroit, Houston at Atlanta, Kansas City at Cincinnati, Los Angeles at Philadelphia, Miami at the New York Jets, Pittsburgh at Buffalo, Minnesota at New Orleans, St. Louis at Chicago and Oakland at Denver. On Monday night it's Baltimore at Dallas.

The New York Giants and Tampa Bay Buccaneers open the season tonight in Tampa Bay.

There are a lot of other new faces to focus on - rookie faces.

There's Earl Campbell, the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Texas whom the Oilers drafted in hopes of finding another Tony Dorsett.

And there's Terry Miller, Simpson's successor as the brunt of the Bills' ground game; and Art Still, the defensive end Kansas City hopes will do something about all those yards and all those points the Chiefs gave up last year, and Ken MacAfee, the tight end who figures to open up the holes for Simpson and perhaps open for the 49ers' passing game as well.

And not all the rookies will be wearing helmets. Some of them will be wearing headphones and carrying clipboards.

There are six men making

Little Current won only three races in 1974 but still was named 3-year-old champion for that season.

their NFL head coaching debuts

- Marv Levy in Kansas City, Sam Rutigliano in Cleveland, Pete McCulley in San Francisco, Neill Armstrong in Chicago, Bud Wilkinson in St. Louis and Ray Malavasi in Los Angeles. In addition, four former head coaches start doing it all over again with new teams - Jack Pardee in Washington, Chuck Knox in Buffalo, Monte Clark in Detroit and Dick Noland in New Orleans.

They'll be easy to spot. They'll be the guys asking themselves:

"It can't really be this easy, can it?"

OR

"What have I done to deserve this?"

Cowboys Expected To Keep Same NFL Pace

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The more things change, the more they stay the same in the National Football Conference.

Half of the NFC's 14 clubs, hired new coaches during the off-season and one of them - the Los Angeles Rams - hired two of them just to make sure. But all the shuffling had little effect because none of it can change the basic fact of NFC life which is that Dallas has too much talent for the other 13 clubs.

The Cowboys enjoy intricate little playbook wrinkles like the flex defense and shotgun offense. But most of all, they like their history of success - 11 trips to the playoffs in the past dozen years. Coach Tom Landry, the league's senior coach and the only one Dallas has ever had, directs a virtual

All-Pro team that should have no trouble repeating as conference champion and will try to be the first club to win three Super Bowl titles.

In the other divisions, aging Minnesota ought to survive again in the Central and Los Angeles, revived from its case of temporary coaching shock, should be the best of the west.

Here is how the conference looks before the fact:

Money and Players Needed for NBA

NEW YORK (AP) - You need players, not money, to compete in the National Basketball Association.

"You can't play money," Scotty Stirling, assistant to Golden State owner Franklin Mieuli, said in explaining why the Warriors will probably accept guard John Lucas and $100,000 from the Houston Rockets as compensation for the loss of high-scoring forward Rick Barry.

"Compensation is supposed to make a team whole, and we don't think draft choices and cash can make a team whole," Stirling said.

The Warriors have until 3 p.m. EDT, Tuesday to decide whether to accept Lucas and $100,000 or $350,000 and Houston's No. 1 draft choice in 1979.

The compensation was determined by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien when the Warriors and Rockets failed to come to terms after Houston signed Barry. The 34-year-old Barry played out his option with Golden State last season and signed with the Rockets as a free agent June 17.

O'Brien said he felt that the compensation should consist of a veteran forward who could fill Barry's spot. But the commissioner noted that Rudy Tomjanovich, who would have been a likely candidate to be awarded to Golden State, "suffered such severe injuries this past season that it is impossible to predict with confidence the level of his future performance."

Tomjanovich was struck by Kermit Washington during a Dec. 9 game against the Los Angeles Lakers and sat out the remainder of the season after undergoing surgery.

"In my judgment, Lucas is the one player on the Houston roster who would be suitable as a significant part of the award."

O'Brien said.

"Lucas is likely to be able to make an immediate and substantial contribution and, in contrast to Barry, Lucas, at age 24, can be expected to play for several more seasons."

O'Brien said he gave the Warriors a choice because Lucas is a 6-foot-3 guard and would not specifically fill the same role as Barry, a 6-7 forward.

Lucas, the NBA's No. 1 draft choice in 1976 after starting at the University of Maryland, would join high-scoring Phil Smith in the Golden State backcourt and, Stirling said, "It would give us more flexibility."

Last season, Lucas averaged 12.4 points and 9.4 assists per game. Barry paced the Warriors in scoring last year with a 23.1 average.

Stirling said the Warriors won't make a definite decision on Lucas "until I've talked with Coach Al Attles." Attles was out of town

UH Coach Famous For Turning Out Grid Stars

HOUSTON (AP) - University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman has a reputation for taking little wanted athletes from small schools and turning them into major college stars but Yeoman went a step farther in the case of split end Willis Adams.

Even Yeoman didn't want Adams when he was a fast but skinny schoolboy at Schulenburg.

"We were down there looking at another kid and here was this other kid (Adams) running like the wind," Yeoman recalled recently. "He was fast but I told special assistant Carroll Schultz I couldn't take him because he was too skinny. He probably weighed 160 after a meal."

But time and many training table meals passed and after two years of seasoning at Navarro Junior College, that skinny kid had burst into a 6-2 192-pound passing catching machine while retaining his 4.4

40-yard dash speed.

He caught passes for more than 1,000 yards his second year at Navarro and by this time UH assistant Don Todd was following Adams' progress with great interest.

"I never saw him while he was at Schulenburg, all I saw was a potential super star at Navarro," UH assistant coach Don Todd said. "I did a lot of talking but I never thought we'd get him because he was so quiet."

"Usually when they are quiet with you they are talking to somebody else. He just told me he'd get back to me after he visited all the other places. But I got this call one day and it was Willis. He said he was at the airport and would I be at his house the next morning because he wanted to sign."

Todd may have broken a few speed records himself the next day.

Adams started much of last season as a flanker, catching 15 passes for a 17.4 average per catch and three touchdowns.

Adams, an outstanding blocker, was moved to tight end during spring training but now is back at the split end position where he could add his name to the list of other obscure schoolboys like Robert Newhouse, Alois Blackwell, Dickie Post and Charlie Hall who carved out pro careers after blossoming at UH.

"He's a totally quality athlete," Yeoman said. "He's got great speed, hands and he's intelligent and very firm. He's the best blocking receiver we've had since Elmo Wright."

Todd said at the time Adams was passed over as a schoolboy, Yeoman wanted all recruiters to take only solid selections.

"I just don't think anyone at that time was willing to gamble his paycheck on Adams," Todd said.

What about now? "It would be a sure bet now," Todd said.

Miss Matchett Marries In Early Autumn Setting

Gold votive candles glimmered in the stained glass windows of First Baptist Church sanctuary Saturday afternoon for the marriage of Miss LaJuana Marie Matchett and Carl Daniel Gibson of Lockney. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Doug Manning, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lois Matchett, 206 Greenwood, and the late R.J. Matchett. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibson of Lockney.

The wedding date was chosen because it was the anniversary of the marriage of the bride's parents.

As the ceremony began, the bride's and groom's mothers approached the altar, carrying lighted white tapers, which were placed at either side of the Unity candle to represent the Matchett and Gibson families. After exchanging their vows, the couple lighted the Unity candle as a symbol of their marriage.

Brass champagne coolers filled with orange gladiolas flanked the altar, where a brass archway dressed with greenery and yellow bows formed the setting. More lighted tapers were set in two pair of brass spiral candelabra, entwined with matching greenery. Preceding the bride down the aisle were her attendants, the maid of honor, Miss Janet Hortenstine of Amarillo, Mrs. Rhea Ann Wingfield, Lubbock, and Miss Sharon Watson.

Harry Fulton of Wildorado acted as the best man. Other groomsmen were Kenneth Smith, Dimmitt, and Larry Fulton of Wildorado. The two groomsmen escorted guests to their seats in the sanctuary and lighted the candles in the chancel.

Bob Stice, associate pastor, rendered the couple's chosen selections, including "Follow Me," "Wedding Song," "Let Me Be the One," "The Lord's Prayer" and "What A Difference You've Made in My Life." Accompanying the vocalist was Cindy Vaughn at the piano.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ricky Matchett. She was gowned in sophisticated satin overlaid with chiffon and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The wedding dress was designed with a high lace neckline, sheer rounded yoke of chiffon and princess waistline. Alencon lace motifs, heavily jeweled with seed pearls were applied on the fitted bodice. Her full bishop sleeves were gathered into deep, fitted cuffs or lace. The unadorned skirt flowed into a Chapel wateau train, appliqued with Her tulle fingertip veil with blusher drifted from a head-piece of matching lace and pearls. She clasped a round bouquet of yellow daisies, with orange accents, babybreath and brown satin ribbon.

For sentimental significance, she carried her grandfather's wedding ring.

The bridal attendants wore formal lengths of orange taffeta with matching skirt overlay, princess waistline, bishop sleeves, high collar and sheer bodice insert. Each carried a brown wicker basket brimming with orange tiger lilies, orange daisies, yellow and brown accents plus babybreath. Orange silk flowers on combs were worn in their hair to complete the late summer ensemble.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Matchett wore a floor-length dress of beige knit with a skirt overlay of orange floral chiffon. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a slipper-length gown of orange knit, trimmed in lace.

Guests were invited to congratulate the couple immediately afterwards during a reception in the church Fellowship Hall. Presiding at the registry were Miss Jennifer Griffin and Miss Martha Hortenstine, Amarillo.

Refreshments were served by the bride's aunts, Mrs. Jerry Neuman of Stamford, Mrs. Sonny Pittcock of Rule and Mrs. Sonny Pittcock of Rule and Mrs. S.M. Hayes of Carlsbad, N.M. The serving table, laid with white satin tied with orange bows, was centered by the bridemaids' floral baskets. Continuing the early autumn theme, the three-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with orange and yellow chrysanthemums and topped with a kissing couple enclosed in a blush of blossoms.

Others in the house party were Mmes. Rex Lee, Eugene Sparks and Marie Stringer.

For a honeymoon trip to the Dallas area, Mrs. Gibson chose to wear a traveling dress of brown and muted rose floral print with a belt and rose accessories. The couple will be at home after Sept. 10 at Pampa.

A 1974 graduate of Hereford High School, the bride received her bachelor of science degree in animal science in May from West Texas State University. She was a member of Tau Beta Sigma Sorority and Alpha Zeta Agriculture Honorary Society.

The bridegroom graduated in 1974 from Lockney High School. He also earned his BS degree in animal science from WTSU this past spring. He was a member of Alpha Zeta, too. Gibson is currently employed by Far-Tex Custom Feeders at Wheeler.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the double-ring ceremony were the bridegroom's grandmothers, Mary Gaskins of Calvin, Okla. and Essie Gibson of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gaskins and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gibson, Lockney; Mr. and Mrs. Harlis Allison, Lubbock; and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Allison, Abilene.

Haiti

Visited by Columbus in 1492 and a French colony after 1677, Haiti attained independence in the 1804 rebellion begun by Toussaint L'Ouverture. In 1811, Henri Christophe proclaimed himself king in the north while the south continued as a republic. The nation was reunited in 1820, following Henri's death.

Ann Landers

Work for Your Employer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am supposed to be at work at 8:30 a.m. I live 30 miles from my job so I get an early train to make sure I arrive on time. I usually get in 45 minutes early. I love to read for enjoyment so I sit at my desk reading from 7:45 until 8:30, sipping tea and enjoying this quiet time. A certain engineer who also arrives early thinks that because I'm in the office I should be working. Sometimes he hands me work to do. I put it aside, continue to read, and begin at 8:30. This morning at 8:00 a.m.,

Mr. Engineer gave me a long memo to type. None of the other girls were in. I am not his secretary. She doesn't arrive until 8:29 -- on the dot. At 8:25, Mr. Engineer asked for the memo he had given me. I told him my day didn't begin until 8:30. He replied, angrily,

"I wouldn't have asked you to do it if I didn't think it was important." I put down my book and typed his memo. I felt I was being taken advantage of but I didn't have the nerve to stand up for my rights. Please comment on this uncomfortable situation and tell me what to do about it. -- NYC

DEAR NYC: I employ eight secretaries. Most of them are at their desks at least 10 or 15 minutes before starting time. My two principal assistants arrive anywhere from 30 to 45 minutes early. Often they have a second cup of coffee at their desks, but no one reads for "enjoyment." There is always plenty of work to do and they get right to it. If I need someone to stay past quitting time there are always volunteers. The "Landers Ladies" are loyal, competent and a pleasure to work with.

A secretary who arrives early gives the impression she is dedicated to her job, eager to do more than is required and is not a clock-watcher. Obviously, this description doesn't fit you.

The justification for your position, however, is that Mr. Engineer is not your boss. You are under no obligation to type his memos simply because you are at your desk. My advice is to tell him, in a non-belligerent way, that you don't want to do his secretary's work. Of course, this is no way to win friends, but since you dislike this man intensely and the feeling is probably mutual, nothing is at risk.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a food inspector. It is not his business, it's his neurosis. When he eats a banana he puts on his bifocals. Yesterday I asked, "What could possibly get between a banana and the skin?" He replied, "A tarantula."

I never make salads anymore. It's too much to watch him examine every lettuce leaf with a reading glass. We've had dozens of arguments over whether it's a speck of pepper or a bug.

It's bad enough to put up with this craziness at home but when we go to a dinner party it's unbearable. He claims the hazards are increased at dinner parties because hired help doesn't give a darn anymore. What can I do? -- Raleigh, N.C.

DEAR R: Very little regarding the scene. The man clearly has a phobia. But you might plead consideration for a hostess. It's upsetting to see a guest examine food so carefully. She has no way of knowing if he is just looking or if he has found something.

FOOD SUPPLIES STILL GOOD

Labor Day may mark the end of summer for many, but it isn't the end of good food supplies. Supplies remain high in the meat department. Beef, turkey and pork supplies are adequate for needs. Broiler Fryers and eggs are plentiful.

While production of higher grades of beef is increasing from last year, it isn't enough to offset the lower supplies of processing-type beef. September beef production is four to six percent below last year.

Pork supplies are increasing seasonally. They should average three to six percent above last year at this time and 14 percent above the 1975-77 average for September.

Turkey supplies are increasing seasonally, but cold storage holdings are still seven to eight percent below last year. New crop production is expected to climb three to five percent from last year.

Broiler-fryer marketings are at record levels, up eight to 10 percent from last year.

Eggs are up two percent from 1977.

This month, USDA is urging consumers to take advantage of another good source of protein. Dry beans are in unusually heavy supplies. The crop is expected to be 19 percent above 1977 levels. Producers also have larger than usual carryovers from last year on hand. Prices are expected to drop below the cost of production for many growers. Of the dry beans, pintos are in the heaviest supply.

In the dairy department, supplies of fluid milk are tightening, but are still adequate. Lower production and increased sales are the cause. Cheese production is increasing this month, but nonfat dry milk and butter production is down from 1977.

Your produce department still has good news for you. Peaches, apples, Bartlett pears, oranges, lemons and limes are adequate for needs. Grapes, cantaloupe, honeydew melons and Italian plums are available in supplies that exceed normal demand. Nectarines and plums are declining seasonally. They will not meet normal demands now.

Canned fruits and fruit products are still in adequate supply for needs. Grapefruit juice is plentiful; canned peaches, pears and fruit cocktail are adequate and orange juice is light. Dried prunes and raisins are adequate for normal needs.

In fresh vegetable sections, you'll find potatoes and onions plentiful for needs. Overall, processed vegetables are adequate. Some principal items are plentiful. These include: frozen french-fried potatoes, frozen carrots and corn-on-the-cob, and canned tomatoes. Canned snap-beans, beets, carrots and sweet corn are adequate. Peanuts, rice, wheat, corn, dry beans and dry split peas are expected to rise 70 percent above the average production for 1975-77. They are up three times higher than last year's drought-reduced crop.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

main difference between mayonnaise and salad dressing. Mayonnaise contains about 65 percent vegetable oil and provides about 100 calories per tablespoon. Salad dressing contains only about 30 percent vegetable oil and provides about 65 calories per tablespoon. In salad dressing, cooked starch paste replaces some of the oil, hence the lower calorie count per serving.

TAKE A LABOR DAY HOLIDAY FROM THE KITCHEN

When do the working people get a break? Back in 1894 President Grover Cleveland made Labor Day the official

"holiday of the working people." A little advance planning can keep you from "laboring" in the hot kitchen so you can celebrate Labor Day with rest and relaxation.

Cool, creamy gelatin salads can be made up a day or so before. Use your imagination. Gelatin does not have to be served as a light dessert. Instead of adding fruit, try grated carrots, chopped celery, and nuts or cream cheese.

A colorful and delicious relish plate can be created with carrot and celery sticks, pickles, cherry tomatoes or tomato wedges and radishes.

Repeating MDA Message

Raymond Artho and Mrs. Tony Urbanczyk, who are holding the reins on this year's local campaign against muscular dystrophy, are shown with Joey Mazurek, seated, and 2-year-old Thomas Plummer, both of whom are suffering from neuromuscular diseases. Joey, an MD patient, will be seen on KFDA TV, Channel 10, at approximately 3:15 p.m. Monday as part of the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon. Hereford residents are urged to make a telephone pledge or give a donation to a door-to-door volunteer.

Hereford Residents Offered Several Opportunities to Support MD Drive

Beginning today, Hereford residents will have the opportunity to support the fight against muscular dystrophy and other related neuromuscular diseases by making a donation to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America (MDAA).

Citizens can make their contributions in a number of ways--1) volunteering to the Knights of Columbus Hall to assist in the collection, 2) attending the MDAA carnival today in Dameron Park, 3) giving a donation to a door-to-door volunteer tomorrow, or 4) watching the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon on Channel 10 and making a telephone pledge to 364-8770.

Volunteers are needed in the local campaign, which is being spearheaded by St. Anthony's Women's Organization and the Knights of Columbus. The local fund-raising drive is to be based at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Help will be needed in taking telephone pledges, which are expected to commence at 8:30 p.m. today, in conjunction with the beginning of the TV telethon. Raymond Artho is chairman of telephone pledges.

Persons interested in marching in the door-to-door drive on Monday are asked to report to the KC Hall after 9 a.m. to obtain an official MDAA identification tag. Residents are requested to look for the MDAA nametag before giving a donation. Mrs. Tony Urbanczyk is directing the residential campaign.

The Labor Day project, being staged for the 13th year, will be off to an early start via the MDAA Carnival to be held by the BPOE Elks Lodge in Dameron Park. Carnival chairman Mort McCullough announced that carnival events will include a dunking board, bingo, cake walk, penny pitch, basket throw, darts, fishing pond, concession stand and other games. Prizes have been donated by local merchants. All of the carnival proceeds will go to MDAA. Last year's carnival reaped more than $5,500.

Originating from Las Vegas, the TV telethon is held to benefit the medical service and research programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA). The 2 1/2-hour entertainment marathon will be carried by a coast-to-coast "Love Network" of more than 200 TV stations, and will also be seen in Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Guam.

Last year the Telethon produced a record $26.8 million for the national health agency's work, and was seen by an estimated 92 million persons -- indicating that over half of the households with TV sets in the U.S. turned on the show.

Anchorman Ed McMahon will again serve as Jerry-Lewis' Telethon sidekick.

KFDA will "cut away" from the network show approximately fifteen minutes every hour to present firsthand reports of MDA activities in the Panhandle area supported by proceeds from the Telethon and other of the agency's fund-raising events. MDAA maintains a clinic at Northwest Texas Outpatient Clinic, operates a summer/winter camp for children with muscular dystrophy and related neuromuscular diseases at Amarillo, and supports research world-wide.

Persons interested in becoming a member of Sweet 'n' Fancy Decorating Club are invited to attend the club's first meeting of this season.

Beginning at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 14, at the Community Center the decorating club will resume their regular business meetings. Those wishing to acquire a membership into the club must be at the meeting where they will receive a list of equipment needed for the club workshop, planned Sept. 28 and 29.

The workshop, beginners will learn the basics of cake decorating which includes, baking, icing, and making confectionate flowers and borders.

Those not joining the club in time for the workshop are required to possess some knowledge of basic decorating and can join the club at a later date.

The workshop for the decorating club will be held from 9-12 a.m. Sept. 28 at the Community Center and from 9-12 a.m. 29 at Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Heart Board To Convene

The initial meeting of the new fiscal year is planned by the board of directors, Deaf Smith County Division, American Heart Association. The group will convene at 7 p.m. Thursday in the E.B. Black house, 508 W. Third St.

All persons interested in supporting the Heart Association are welcome to attend, according to Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wall, president of the board.

A brief orientation will be held to explain Heart Association programs and fund-raising projects to new board members. Also the board will discuss the continuation of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes, a blood pressure screening program and public information campaign.

The Heart board is currently composed of approximately 23 individuals.

Red Cross Update

By BETTY HENSON

The Good Neighbor.

Local: Congratulations to Audine Dettman who was named Volunteer of the Month. Audine has many interests and we certainly appreciate her work for the Red Cross.

With the beginning of school, the youth program gets under way. The LaPlata and Stanton Junior High School students will soon be electing the Red Cross Youth Council and planning their projects for the year. They will also be attending a workshop the first week in October which will acquaint them with the Red Cross organization. The Uniformed Volunteers will be meeting Tuesday, Sept. 14 for a luncheon meeting at the home of Nell Culpepper.

International: The International Red cross has been called upon to aid in many various situations this past month as crises occur all over the world. The Red cross is a symbol recognized around the world as standing for compassion and humanitarian action and being a neutral organization is often called upon to help with many conflicts.

Cawthon-Henson Wedding Solemnized Friday Night

The First United Methodist Church of Tulia was the site of the double ring ceremony performed Friday evening by the pastor, the Rev. Bruce Parks, to unite Miss Cynthia Jo Cawthon and Larry Don Henson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.D. Cawthon of Tulia. A 1974 graduate of Canyon High School, she attended Amarillo College and West Texas State University. She is presently employed by Yarn Creations in Tulia.

Mr. and Mrs. M.D. Henson of Hereford are the parents of the groom. He graduated in 1974 from Hereford High School. He attended Amarillo College and is presently employed by Santa Fe Railroad.

An archway decorated with white chrysanthemums and daisies centered the nuptial area where the couple stood to recite their vows. Two candelabra with white mums and daisies completed the altar decorations.

Paula Cawthon, sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests. Candlelighters were Jerry and Phyllis Edwards, brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

Soloist, Susan Read, accompanied by Mark Read on piano, sang "There is Love" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Bridal attendants Janice Richey, matron of honor, and bridesmaids, Lynnda Mershon, sister of the bride, and Dalene Henson, sister of the groom, wore matching dresses of light blue eyelet embroidery trimmed with a dark blue ribbon flowing to the hem in back. Daisies were worn in their hair, and each carried a single white daisy accented with baby breath and satin ribbon. Flower girl, Felecia Edmonds, cousin of the bride, carried a basket of rose petals.

Serving as best man was David Richey. Groomsmen included Jackie Edwards, brother of the bride, and Jimmy Henson, brother of the groom.

Ushering were Homer Cawthon, Kim Cawthon and Deward Cawthon, brothers of the bride, Kenny Henson and Norman Henson, brothers of the groom, and Bruce Henry, cousin of the groom.

The bride carried a cascade arrangement of blue daisies and white roses, centered with a gardenia, as she was escorted by her father, Dee Cawthon. She wore a formal length white gown, made by her mother, of satin crepe with an embroidery silk mist bodice and full sleeves that gathered into soft ruffles at the wrist. The high neckline was trimmed with the same soft ruffle. The fingertip length veil of illusion net was attached to a coil of embroidery silk mist.

The reception followed in the parlor of the church. The bride's table, covered with a floor-length white cloth, held her bouquet, encircled by the attendants' daisies. The traditional wedding cake, made by the groom's mother, included three tiers, iced in pale blue and trimmed with confectionate white roses. A flowing fountain nestled beneath the cake, which was encircled by six, smaller heart-shaped cakes. Mrs. Henson also made the groom's cake, a traditional chocolate pastry.

Following the ceremony and reception, the bride changed to a street-length dress designed like the attendants' dresses. She wore a corsage lifted from her bouquet, for a honeymoon trip to Colorado. On return from their honeymoon the couple will establish their home in Canyon.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Starr Dickson of Plainview announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Starr, to Monte Roy Almanza. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Almanza of Summerfield. The couple will be wed October 21 in the Presbyterian sanctuary at Plainview. The bride-elect is a 1973 graduate of Plainview High School. She received her bachelor of science degree this spring from West Texas State University School of Nursing. She is employed in the surgery unit of St. Anthony's Hospital at Amarillo. Almanza is a 1976 graduate of Hereford High School and attended Amarillo College. He is employed by Dulaney's Auto Salvage is Amarillo as shop foreman.

Wardrobe Accessories Add Finishing Touch

COLLEGE STATION — Accessories add that "finishing touch" to fall fashions. Belts become an important tag-along for the slimmed down fashions, says a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Wide crushed leather, wide canvas double buckled, strands or beads wrapped or narrow cowhide straps serve as belts for fall fashions, Marlene Odle-Kemp reports.

Furtails draped over the narrow wrapped belt or attached to the slung shoulder bag emphasize furry extras.

Wear little stash bags as necklaces, the specialist suggests.

Hats are mannish—fedoras, berets, cloches.

Boots are soft pliable leather beginning at the knee or crushed to the ankle.

Short suede boots work well with the "new look," she continues.

Shoes take a front seat with flat heeled oxfords or loafers. Wear higher heels with the narrow, shorter pant.

Legs feature a textured look in nylons and crushy, woolen anklets over hosiery, Ms. Odle-Kemp adds.

Merger Plan Of Airlines Is Announced

MIAMI (AP) - National Airlines said Thursday it and Pan American World Airways are "negotiating substantive terms of a merger" at a price of $41 a share for National stock.

"If resolved, the negotiations would result in the execution of a merger agreement at a price of $41 a share," said National chairman L.B. Maytag in a statement from company headquarters here.

He said National directors would meet in New York Sept. 5 "to consider the results of such discussions and the recommendations of management."

In New York, the offer was confirmed by Pan Am Chairman William T. Seawell.

Pan Am and little Texas International Airlines have been contending for control of the Miami-based airline, the nation's 11th-largest air carrier and a major factor in the heavy New York-Florida market.

Last week Pan Am offered $35 a share for National stock. But TIA, an unwelcome suitor for National's hand, drove the price up and said Wednesday it had acquired 18.2 percent of National's shares.

New York Stock Exchange trading in National and Pan Am stock was suspended Thursday pending the announcement. National closed at 34 1/2 Wednesday.

Both TIA and Pan Am have obtained Civil Aeronautics Board permission to acquire up to 25 percent of National's stock, but the board said it may order them to sell the shares.

CAB approval is needed for one airline to take over another, and the board directed administrative law judges to make a finding by Jan. 2 on whether Texas International may take over National.

Displaying Hobby

Deaf Smith County Library has selected Robert Baum to display his numerous wood carvings and metal works at the library during the month of September. Baum, a member of National Wood Carvers Association, has sold and exhibited his art work throughout the Panhandle area. Pieces of his wood work have been accepted by National Wood Carvers Museum at Colorado. Baum said that his "hobby was a substitute for watching T.V."

Harrises Plead Guilty

OAKLAND (AP) - William and Emily Harris pleaded guilty Thursday to kidnapping Patricia Hearst 4 1/2 years ago.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Stanley P. Golde accepted the plea to a charge of simple kidnapping and set sentencing for Oct. 3. The original charge of kidnapping with bodily harm, which would have eliminated the possibility of parole if convicted, was dismissed after the plea was accepted.

Golde said the Harrises, members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, would be sentenced under the indeterminate sentence law that was in effect at the time of the kidnapping Feb. 4, 1974, which permits parole.

The Harrises, smiling broadly, entered the courtroom to an outburst of applause from some spectators.

After the pleas were accepted, they each read brief emotional statements declaring their pride in kidnapping Miss Hearst and taking "full responsibility for our actions."

Harris, sitting on the counsel table and facing the spectators, said that his feelings were "complex...but there is relief that the uncertainty of the past few years is over."

The Harrises had been scheduled to appear on defense motions that a psychiatric examination be ordered for Miss Hearst and that the Harrises' trial be moved out of Alameda County because of massive publicity.

Lighter Side

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) - Charlie, the pilfered pet of the animal shelter's petting zoo, is home again.

Woodchuck Charlie is "the most loveable pet" in the zoo, said humane officer Kenneth Pauley, who retrieved the animal Tuesday.

After the story of Charlie's Sunday disappearance was published, a caller told authorities that a neighbor had come home with a groundhog.

Pauley and another officer went to the home, found Charlie looking out the door, and asked for his return. "The lady was nearly in tears," Pauley said. "She and her husband just adopted the little fellow for a pet." The officers told the woman she could visit Charlie like anyone else. So Charlie is back with Pierre and Petunia, the skunks, and the goats, chickens, kinkajou, peacock, rabbits, ducks and geese.

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP) - Bernie Grigsby, 80, says he will vote for the first time in the Alabama primary election next Tuesday.

"I just never registered before," he said, "but I believe now I'm old enough to vote."

To Exchange Vows

Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Stokesberry, Route 4, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Cindy Renae, to Audie Hugh Freeman, son of Mrs. Everett Stuck, Route 4, and Kelly Freeman, Lubbock. The wedding is to be solemnized October 14 in Frio Baptist Church. The bride-elect is currently a senior student at Hereford High School, where her fiance graduated in 1977. He is presently engaged in farming north of the city.

Prenuptial Parties Honor Miss Reinart

A Bridal shower in honor of Miss Mary Jean Reinart bride-elect of Jimmy Sims was held the evening of Friday in the E.B. Black house.

Corsages of apricot daisies, the chosen color of the bride, were presented to those in the receiving line. The honoree, her mother, Mrs. A.H. Reinart, the groom's mother, Mrs. Billie Sims, the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Yoyle and Miss Reinart's sister, Mrs. Lee George greeted guests in the entrance way of the home where Miss Donna Kendall presided at the guest registry.

Guests were served at the refreshment table in the dining room of the house by Mrs. Bob Schmucker and Miss Pam Mazurek. The refreshments consisted of cookies, apricot punch, and fruits which were in a basket fashioned from a watermelon.

While guests were being served, Miss Reinart unwrapped gifts with assistance from her niece, Miss Michelle George. The hostesses helped with the display of gifts. Hostesses for the evening were Mes: Alice Koenig, Betty Kalka, Judy Detten, Jean Beene, Junell Schilling, Nola Jobe, Ida Schumacher, Roberta Last, Donna Gooch, Alice Gilleland, June Koelzer, Opal Walterscheid, Donna Brockman, Teresa Paetzold, Winnie Anderson, Sylvia Paetzold, Romilda Friemel.

A rice bag making party was held in the home of Mrs. Ron Rowan Saturday, August 26. Hostess for the shower was Mary Jean Reinart.

Mothers and sisters of the couple were present to help and refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. A.H. Reinart, Mrs. Billie Sims, Janet Chris, Michelle, and Patrick George, Lynn, Shebba and Kalonnie Roberson, Phyllis, Misty, Clay and Scott Sims, and Mrs. Rowan.

To complain about a particular product, first take the sales slip, product tags, label and instructions and return to the store where the purchase was made.

HEAT PUMP

"THE ELECTRIC SAVINGS MACHINE"

SAVING FOR THE FUTURE

Coin banks help teach children how to save for the future. You can save for the future, too, with the electric heat pump. That's why we call it the electric savings machine. This efficient heating/cooling system can deliver as much as two units of heat for every one heat unit of electricity it uses. But the savings don't stop there. With fuel costs expected to rise during the next two decades, the electric heat pump is a smart investment that will save energy today and in the future.

It's never too soon to start saving... with the electric heat pump. Start today before your future gets here. You'll be glad you did.

New Playschool Established By Mmes. Edwards, Paetzold

"The Children's Spot," a state-licensed, non-denominational playschool for 3-4 year-olds has opened in Hereford under the care of two Hereford women, Kathy Paetzold and Susan Edwards.

Just now completing its first summer session, which began June 15, the playschool will begin its nine-month term on Sept. 15. Classes are held from 9-11 a.m. each Thursday and Friday at First Presbyterian Church, 610 Lee St.

Tuition for each child is $20 per month.

Registration for the fall-winter session will be from 5:30 - 7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 5-6, at the church. Enrollment will be limited to 24 children, as specified by state standards. The school is inspected each month by the state-licensing representative, Wanda Minchew of Friona.

In order to achieve approval from the State, Mrs. Paetzold and Mrs. Edwards had to supply personal references, as well as meet requirements concerning health and sanitation facilities. Although the playschool rooms are provided by the Presbyterian congregation, the curriculum is not church-affiliated.

Individual records are kept on each student to mark his or her progress, another requirement of the state licensing board. Structured activities at the play school include painting and drawing, story telling by the teachers and students, rhythm exercises, music, books and games, employing concentration and coordination. Concepts to be stressed to the preschoolers will be creativity, sharing, muscle development, familiarity with books, learning to listen and speak, and simple number skills.

Children who are 3 years of age on or before Sept. 1 may be registered in the playschool's class for 3-4 year olds. When registering a child, parents must provide a signed registration form, the school fee for the first month, a health certificate signed by the family physician and various immunization records.

Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Paetzold have prepared a brochure explaining the schedule and aims of the playschool. In it, they state, "Our main goal is to provide each child with a meaningful, fulfilling, happy year of growing. We strive to build self-confidence in meeting daily challenges, self-discipline in behavior, patience and friendship in relationships with others and curiosity, appreciation and love for the world around us."

The two teachers have tentative plans of establishing a special education program for 3-4 year-old children, who have physical, emotional or mental handicaps. Mrs. Paetzold has an endorsement in special education from West Texas State University, where she earned her bachelor of arts degree in elementary education. This proposed program is in the offing, pending state approval and allowing the regular playschool to get established.

The playschool instructors have lived in Hereford for a number of years. After receiving her college degree, Mrs. Paetzold taught fourth graders at Northwest Elementary School for two years. She is a lifetime member of Texas State Teachers Association. She and her husband Joe, who is a farmer, have a three-year-old son, Jason.

Mrs. Edwards graduated from Hereford High School and is the wife of Buddy Edwards, part-owner of Deck Produce. They have three children, Brian, 11, Shelly, 10, and Jarrit, 3. Mrs. Edwards has taught a Sunday School class for 12 years and driven a public school bus for eight years.

Further information about the "The Children's Spot" is available from Mrs. Edwards, 364-5438, or Mrs. Paetzold, 276-5210.

Light colored draperies and curtains don't just look cooler in warm weather; they reflect sun and heat outward—and help reduce the load on the air conditioning system, says Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Praying, Playing, Learning

A variety of structured activities for 3-4 year-olds are provided as learning experiences each Thursday and Friday at Hereford's newest state-licensed playschool, "The Children's Spot." Kathy Paetzold, left, and Susan Edwards are teachers at the playschool, which will be registering new pupils Tuesday and Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church. In the top photo, the teachers and their young charges say grace before their morning snack. At bottom, they work off their energies by jumping in and out of hoops, a game which develops muscle coordination.

Credit Card Loss Can Be Prevented

COLLEGE STATION — Protect against credit card loss to avoid problems and financial burdens.

Millions of credit cards are lost or stolen each year with millions of dollars of unauthorized purchases made on these cards, says Claudia Kerbel, a consumer information specialist.

Consumers are partially protected against financial losses when credit cards are lost or stolen. The federal Truth-in-Lending Act provides that the maximum liability of a credit card holder is $50 for unauthorized charges made on a credit card.

However, many consumers carry a number of credit cards and if, for example, they lose 10 cards, they are liable for $500, Ms. Kerbel points out.

Ms. Kerbel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

To avoid problems and financial burdens of credit card loss, follow these tips:

- (1) Cut up and throw away all cards not needed or used regularly.
- (2) Maintain in a safe place a list of all credit cards and their numbers.
- (3) Keep a list of the toll-free numbers to contact if cards are lost. Most companies that provide credit cards will provide a postage paid postcard to send in the event that the credit card is lost or stolen. Keep this in a safe place because it will show the credit card number as well as a toll-free number to call.

(4) Notify the issuer of a lost card immediately.

(5) Upon receiving a new card, sign it immediately.

(6) Never loan a credit card to anyone who hasn't been authorized to use it by the issuer—this is a violation of the contract.

To recognize the possible signs of credit card theft, check the monthly bill closely, the specialist advises.

If the bill is larger than the total of the individual charge slips, check closely to see if a purchase that you did not make was added to the bill.

If an expected monthly bill doesn't arrive, someone may have stolen the card and sent in an address change, she warns.

USDA beef grades are different than USDA marks, reports a consumer marketing information specialist.

All meat must be inspected for wholesomeness by either federal or state inspectors and bear the familiar "Inspected" mark, says Gwendolyn Clyatt with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Beef grading is a voluntary service to help you determine quality, the specialist explains. Inspection for wholesomeness is mandatory.

Tips Given On Laundry Detergents

COLLEGE STATION — Figure cost per load for economical laundry detergent says; advises Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Many consumers become confused when trying to compare laundry detergents by price, she says.

Although price is not the only factor involved in selection, it's an important consideration.

One problem is label directions that call for using a cup or so of detergent—volume measurement—while the net contents of the box is given in weight measurements.

To calculate the cost per load of a powdered detergent, first, determine its density—the weight per unit volume, the specialist suggests.

For example, the label of a box of powdered detergent states these facts:

--Net weight: 49 ounces
--Price: $1.48

--Recommended use: one cup per load
Now, determine the weight of one cup.

Assume this sample cup weighs 2.2 ounces. Divide this 2.2 ounces into the net weight of detergent in the box, 49 ounces, resulting in a figure of 22.3 loads per box.

The cost per load is then determined by dividing total cost, $1.48, by 22.3 giving a cost of about six cents per load.

Don't confuse distinctions between fluid ounces—volume—and ounces avoirdupois—weight.

This confusion is not present with liquid detergents since both the contents and the use suggestions are in liquid measurements, the specialist points out.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

This is the prayer of a woman who is returning to school as a student after an absence of 15 years.

"Please God, let there be a parking space for a car with only an E AREA sticker. (Issued to 37-year-old, first-semester freshman, with no major varicose veins, whose car is low on gas.)

"If You do not see fit to guide me to such a paradise, please help me to look like a VISITOR.

"Tell me the computer made a mistake and Home Management and Child Care on my schedule does not mean what I think it means.

"Deliver me from coming face-to-face with the registrar, who is bound to remember that on my enrollment card under SEX, I filled in 'occasionally.'

"Let me not be the only woman on campus in a pair of pantyhose and a bra.

"When it is lunchtime, give me a sign other than my stomach growling at 82 decibels. Watch over me especially when you seem me methodically cutting up the meat of younger students and telling them to sit up straight.

"Protect me from 'operators' who try to sell me second-hand books outside the bookstore that are no longer being used this year.

"Grant me the serenity to accept what cannot be changed, courage to change what should be changed, and the wisdom to keep my mouth shut when I don't know the difference. (I read that off an old tea towel.)

"Keep me from despair when someone jots down phone messages on my freshly-typed Philosophy notes.

"Help me to refrain from punching out friends who laughingly warn me a campus is no place to make an estrogen connection.

"Give me patience when I come home from a hard day in the library to discover no one has cleared off the kitchen table and the milk is still on the front porch.

"And if I'm not being too pushy, Lord, could You please see fit to send me a friend—one who had heard of Robert Benchley, Edward R. Murrow, String of Pearls, saddle shoes, and who knew hand computers when they were called fingers?

"And one last request...if there can't be comfort, encouragement and pride from my family for what I'm doing, please let there be a pot of coffee in the kitchen every morning."

Actor with Panhandle Roots To Be Here With New Release

Randall Carver, a former Hereford resident who has earned acclaim in various television and film roles, will be here Sunday, Sept. 10, in conjunction with the showing of his latest release, "More than a Carpenter."

The 58-minute color film will be shown free to the public at 7 p.m. next Sunday at First Baptist Church. Carver and his mother, Mrs. Russell (Virginia) Carver of Amarillo, will be the guests of honor afterwards during a reception in the church Fellowship Hall.

"More than a Carpenter" unfolds the story of a young archaeologist, who professes to be a religious skeptic, but is faced with several Biblical truths during his research in the Holy Land. The stubborn, young "intellectual" wrestles with a question he can't resist—Was Jesus "more than a carpenter?"

The film is being sponsored by First Baptist Church. Randall Carver is the son of Russell Carver, who was president of Hereford State Bank for a number of years and vice president of Amarillo National Bank at the time of his death in 1973.

Although Randy Carver tried his hand at banking, his true ambition was to become an actor. His parents supported the Fine Arts in the Panhandle area for years and were instrumental in the movement to bring outdoor theatre to Palo Duro Canyon.

As a 1964 graduate of Missouri Military Academy, Carver attended West Texas State University, receiving a bachelor of arts degree there in 1968. The drama department at WT provided the acting training for which Carver hungered. A role in the outdoor drama "TEXAS" during its first season provided the first paycheck in his chosen field.

In the summer of '68, Carver learned that some location filming for the movie "Midnight Cowboy" was to be done at Big Spring. The aspiring actor "worried the casting director to death" until he won a speaking part as a young thug in the Academy award-winning film.

Carver's role in "Midnight Cowboy" was the open door admitting him as a member of the exclusive Screen Actors Guild, which has stiff requirements before granting membership.

After serving a stint as a commissioned officer in the Army, the Panhandle youth headed for Los Angeles, where he studied in several acting workshops. While attending graduate school at UCLA, Carver received the opportunity to be cast in the Billy Graham Production, "A Time to Run." His career as a working actor was launched with his role as a sensitive teenager in the religious film.

Among Carver's television credits are roles in "Room 222," "Six Million Dollar Man," "The Waltons," "Chase," "The FBI," "Emergency," "The Daughters of Joshua McCabe," "The Return of the Daughters of Joshua McCabe," "The Rookies," "The

ACTOR RANDALL CARVER ...returning here next Sunday

Young and the Restless" and most recently, "Once an Eagle" and "Code R."

Carver has also appeared in several commercials.

In "The One Way Out," a feature film to be distributed to theatres later this year, Carver plays a central character. The plot revolves around six people who are thrown together by circumstance and must cope with their situation.

Early Carrot Crop Is Light

Growers Closing Out Potato Harvest

BY JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor
The major portion of the 1978 vegetable harvest in Deaf Smith County and surrounding areas is drawing to a close as onion harvest has been completed and only a small acreage of potatoes remains to be harvested. Harvesting of early carrots has already been completed in the Hereford area, while the process is just getting underway in neighboring Castro County. Once the harvesting of the early crop is complete, only the gathering of the area lettuce crop this fall and the late carrot crop in October and November will remain ahead of area vegetable growers. Some potatoes continue to be processed in the Hart area in neighboring Castro County, with most of the spuds being harvested in the "sandhill country," near Olton. In the Hereford area, potato harvesting is virtually complete, according to Wes Fisher of Dick Barrett Produce. "The potato crop was off about 25 percent, although the quality of the potatoes remained good throughout the harvest. We had a lot more small potatoes that didn't bring as much money. The fact that the market was much improved this year was a big factor in softening the affect of a decline in production," he related.

Onion harvesting is also complete here, according to Fisher, but the production of the crop was a break-even proposition at best for Hereford-area farmers. Albert Maxwell of the Hereford office of Dimmitt-based La Mantia-Cullum-Collier & Co. reported that potato harvesting should be completed this week in the Dimmitt area, with only a small acreage remaining in fields west of that community. "The potatoes have made good yields in our area, but the market is only fair right now because of the flood of potatoes on the market," said Maxwell.

harvest of early carrots in Castro County is just getting underway, and as in the Hereford area, will be of short duration. "A lot of the early carrots were washed out by heavy rains back in the spring, and this will cut down on the early harvest. We'll have late carrots about the first of October, and they are looking good right now. A lot of things could happen with the crop between now and October, though," he pointed out.

A spokesman for a Hereford vegetable processing firm reported that a mid-season crop of carrots will be harvested here in two to three weeks, prior to the normal late carrot harvest in October and November. He reported that the early carrot crop in this area made reasonably good yields, and that improved prices over 1977 may greet growers when they begin harvesting late carrots for the fresh vegetable market.

Maxwell explained that the area lettuce crop is currently posting good growth toward fall harvest. "Lettuce is looking real good, and we anticipate starting lettuce harvest around Sept. 25. We'll be harvesting a limited acreage in the Dimmitt, Hart and Lazbuddie areas, and we figure on harvesting everything within a five week period," he stated.

Annual Crops Tour Wednesday To Focus on Control of Pests

The annual Deaf Smith County Crops Tour will be held Wednesday.

This year's tour, sponsored by the Deaf Smith County Crops committee, will focus on current information pertaining to disease and insect control in local crops.

The latest practices pertaining to irrigation and a look at alternate crops will also be featured.

The tour will get underway at 1 p.m. at the parking lot of the county museum, and will proceed to the Clark Andrews farm for a presentation on cotton varieties, insect control and irrigation by Leon New, Dr. Carl Patrick and Dr. Frank Petr.

A stop at the Joe Andrews farm south of town is scheduled for 1:45.

One of the major tour stops will be at the Charles Schlabs farm just south of Hereford at 2:10.

Corn varieties, diseases and plant populations will be covered by Dr. Robert Berry and Petr.

Corn insect control will be covered by Patrick and New will speak on corn irrigation.

Petr will also speak at a soybean production demonstration and a sugar beet irrigation demonstration will be highlighted by New.

Petr will speak on a bindweed control demonstration at 3 p.m.

The tour will then move north of Hereford to the Raymond Schlabs farm for a presentation on an irrigation well pumping efficiency test by New, and comments on corn fertility by Petr.

The tour is scheduled to arrive at the Bill Walden farm at 3:45 for a presentation on sugar beet research by Dr. Steve Winter of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Bushland, and Calvin Jones, agricultural manager of the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant.

The final stop on the crops tour will be the Jerry Roberts farm, where Petr, Patrick and Berry will make comments on grain sorghum production.

Refreshments will be served throughout the afternoon during the tour, and a bus will be available to transport tour members.

The crops tour is expected to conclude shortly after 4 p.m.

"The crops committee has planned the tour to be as short as possible, yet it will cover information that should be useful to farmers in making management decisions for next year's crop," commented Juston McBride, county Extension agent.

Record Demand Should Boost Soybean Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite what looks to be a record soybean harvest this fall, the Agriculture Department continues to say prospects look bright for prices at the farm to stay on an even keel.

The 1978 soybean crop was estimated earlier this month at a record of almost 1.77 billion bushels, up 3 percent from last year.

But the department said in a new oilseed newsletter being mailed to farm subscribers that a record demand appears to be in the offing in the 1978-79 marketing year that begins Sept. 1.

Prospects look good for some increase in U.S. soybean crushings and exports from the record rates now estimated for 1977-78, the report said.

Thus, total soybean use - including domestic and export demands - is expected to total around 1.8 billion bushels in the coming year, or more than what the 1978 harvest is expected to produce. That will mean little or no chance of buildup in the existing soybean reserve.

Noting that soybean farm prices generally decline during the flush harvest season when a large crop is in progress, the report said prices dropped from $6.77 a bushel in May to around $6 in August, on the average.

Although prices may be under pressure this fall, they should still average well above the $5.28 per bushel of last October, the report said. Futures prices are hovering above the $6 level.

Spread over the 12 months of the 1978-79 marketing year, the farm price of soybeans is expected to be around $6 a bushel, about the same as last year's average, it said.

One important reason for the optimism is that Brazil, the leading U.S. competitor for world markets, has had a poor soybean crop this year.

So with only light competition from Brazil and other oilseed-producing countries during the next several months, demand for U.S. soybeans should be at record levels, the report said.

Salt Becoming Problem In Rio Grande Valley

AUSTIN - An aerial survey has indicated that salt, one of the most serious inhibitors to agricultural production, has begun to emerge at an "alarming rate" in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, adding to list of Texas areas afflicted by the problem.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown reported that from 250,000 to 300,000 acres in Hidalgo, Willacy, and Cameron counties are already affected by "salt spots," areas of fields where no economic plants will grow. The Valley, one of the most productive agricultural areas in the state, produces over one third of the vegetables in Texas, as well as cotton, grain sorghum, sugarcane, citrus, and many specialty crops.

Brown said that salinity deserves serious consideration in all irrigated areas. Farmers in Kleberg County have formed a task force to investigate corrective measures there. The Trans-Pecos has long had salinity problems. "Even the High Plains, with its supply of low-salinity water, could suffer in the future if accepted practices to prevent salt emergence are not employed."

The Commissioner has contacted the state Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service and others in soil management and research to determine the best method of correction.

"We are working to establish some type of cost-sharing program on these soil improvement practices," Brown said. "The cost of corrective measures are fairly high, and with other increases in production, the farmers need some financial assistance."

He urged all farmers to have annual tests done on soil under irrigation. County agents can provide instructions on taking samples, which are sent to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratory at College Station. For $4 farmers will receive a quantitative analysis of salinity in addition to the nutrients in the soil. Irrigation water should also be tested for salinity.

Brown said that meetings are planned to establish guidelines for farmers, both for prevention and correction of the salt problem. "There are various practices which have proved to be beneficial in preventing salt from rising in the soil. We recommend planting crops with the greatest tonnage to return organic matter to the fields. Organic matter can increase the moisture-holding qualities, allowing water to leach the salt and at the same time helps to dilute the amount of salt already present.

"Legumes also contribute to a more porous soil. Chiseling can be done on impacted soil to break up the hardpan created by heavy equipment used in farming now. Applications of gypsum are helpful in clay soils, where salt is present.

Universal Equation To Get Field Trial Here

SCS Personnel Prepared to Employ New Method To Measure Topsoil Losses on Dryland Farms

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

With heavy rainfall a relatively scarce commodity and most of their land falling under the "flat" category, dryland farmers on the sprawling wheat spreads in Deaf Smith County's west and northwestern sectors probably don't worry too much about water eroding their topsoil.

But, according to a local soil conservationist, some of these farmers may be losing tons of priceless topsoil each year to water erosion without even realizing it.

Jodie Hart, soil conservationist with the Hereford Soil Conservation Service office reports that the loss of dryland topsoil to water erosion has been a top concern of conservationists in Texas since the 1940's. But, it was only this year that a formula was developed to compile these losses.

Now, conservationists with the local SCS office have completed training in the use of a Universal Soil Loss Equation, and are prepared to put the formula to its first actual use in the field.

Miss Hart, Tom Cunningham, Ed Blackwell and Al Lee of the Hereford SCS office were among those receiving special training in the use of the equation during a session conducted by Jerry Waller in Tulia earlier this month.

Waller is the Soil Conservation Service state agronomist for the local area.

"Basically, there are only six inches of topsoil on the land, and this is the richest soil with the highest nutrient content. When this soil is washed away, you lose one of the most vital components of the land," Miss Hart commented.

The local conservationist explained that the equation will be put to use here in the near future as the SCS formulates conservation plans with area dryland farmers.

"On each dryland conservation plan we develop with the farmer, we will go through the fields and figure an expected soil loss with the help of this new equation. If it is higher than the tolerable loss figure we obtain with the equation, then we can recommend alternative farming measures and other practices to cut the loss of topsoil," Miss Hart explained.

She pointed out that five major factors are taken into consideration in the soil loss equation. They include soil type, slope, vegetation on the land, farming practices and intensity of rainfall.

The rainfall intensity factor takes rainfall from past years in addition to expected rainfall into account.

"Even with many of the area's dryland farms designated as A-slope, (with a 0-1 degree slope), erosion will occur," Miss Hart stated.

"With the loss of only 1/32 of an inch of topsoil over an acre of land, the topsoil loss adds up to one ton. Severe losses reach as high as 6.25 tons of topsoil per acre. Again, this is irreplaceable topsoil," the conservationist emphasized.

Miss Hart pointed out that measures to control and virtually halt topsoil erosion due to water on dryland farms are often relatively simple, and may require only a minor adjustment in farming practices.

"Often times, a farmer can plow across the face of a hill, rather than up and down it, or utilize a system of parallel terraces to break the length of a slope. A drilled crop such as wheat will afford the land more protection than a row crop, and a drilled crop will do an even better job of stopping erosion and helping to store soil moisture if it is planted in residue. Conversion to drilled crops and the planting of high residue crops such as wheat and sorghum are often simple and effective manners to cut down on erosion," she related.

The conservationist also indicated that terraces are not often considered for use in the relatively flat dryland farming areas, but can be another important soil and water conservation tool.

"Terraces help keep the water from an occasional heavy rain from rushing over the land in sheets. They help the land to soak up the water and store it, so that moisture is available for crop use later," Miss Hart stated.

Fallow fields that are often left bare are a major concern as efforts are launched to help reduce topsoil loss to water erosion.

The conservationist encourages farmers to "leave as much residue on top of fallow

The Leavings Are Important Too

A dryland wheat harvest this bountiful and a residue of straw this thick are extremely rare in the local area. Although the immediate benefits from a dryland wheat crop are realized in the grain hauled to town, local farmers are reminded that properly managing the straw left after the harvest can pay them big dividends in subsequent growing seasons through reduced water and soil erosion, improved organic content of the soil, and better moisture storage capacity. The Soil Conservation Service office is currently launching a program to assist dryland farmers in Deaf Smith County in determining their topsoil loss to water erosion and taking steps to eliminate the loss.

fields as possible. It will pay benefits of holding the soil, storing moisture, and retaining more organic matter to boost crop production."

Stubble mulching was listed as a recommended way to work fields to retain good topsoil residue.

"A formula should be developed by next year so that we can include wind erosion of topsoil on dryland farms in our equations. Currently, we have a water erosion formula available for use on construction sites, as well as on dryland farming areas. SCS personnel will be happy to assist cooperators with a soil loss equation program, and interested farmers should contact their SCS office for additional details and assistance," she concluded.

New Plant Varieties Granted Protection

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has granted nine certificates of protection to United States breeders of new varieties of alfalfa, bean, red clover, soybean and wheat.

P.R. Smith, assistant secretary of agriculture for marketing services, said the certificates were granted after a thorough check of breeder's claims for each individual variety. Under the Plant Variety Protection (PVP) Act, the owners will have the exclusive right to reproduce the varieties in the United States for 17 years, Smith said.

Breeders and their newly protected varieties are: McNair Seed Co., Laurinburg, N.C., for its "McNair 1003" wheat;

Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, Urbana, for "Redland" red clover;

Soybean Research Foundation, Inc., Mason City, Ill., for two varieties of soybean, "Big Boy" and "Dotson";

Perry-Morse Seed Co., Mountain View, Calif., for "Plateau Provider" bean;

Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station, Fayetteville, for "Victoria" alfalfa;

North American Plant Breeders, Mission, Kan., for "Rocky" wheat; and Douglas W. King Co., San Antonio, Tex., for "DK-335" wheat.

Three Texas firms--George

Warner Seed Co., Hereford; Harpool Seed, Inc., Denton; and McGregor Milling & Grain, a division of Esco Limited, McGregor--were granted a certificate for their joint development of "TexRed" wheat. All the newly protected plants will be marketed by their variety name. However, the alfalfa, red clover and wheat varieties will be sold as certified seed only.

The PVP Act was enacted in 1970 to provide legal protection to developers of new and different seed-reproduced plants ranging from farm crops to flowers.

Scholarship To Be Smallwood Tribute

The West Texas State University Agricultural Development Association has established the Charles M. Smallwood Scholarship Fund.

According to Gary Culp, president of the ADA, the scholarship is being established as a tribute to Dr. Smallwood, who recently left WTSU after 22 years of service to area agriculture to become Dean of Agriculture and Economics at California State University-Fresno.

The scholarship will be awarded annually to a junior student who has excelled in academic and extracurricular activities while majoring in agriculture at WTSU.

Donations are currently being sought to help fund the scholarship program, according to Culp.

Checks may be made payable to Smallwood Scholarship/WTSU Foundation.

Donations should be mailed to Smallwood Scholarship Fund, School of Agriculture, WT Box 998, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Microwave Crop Drying Has Potential

WASHINGTON (AP) - An aerospace company in cooperation with the federal government has developed a small-scale electric crop dryer that uses the principle of microwave ovens.

Turkey Prices Will Go Higher

WASHINGTON (AP) - Prices of turkey, broiler chickens and eggs will be higher this fall than they were a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

With beef output down because of cattle producers cutting back on their herds, hog and poultry output has just about filled the gap but not enough to stem price increases.

Thus, the department said wholesale turkey prices this fall are expected to be up 8 percent to 10 percent from a year ago. Increases also are anticipated for broilers and eggs.

Look for boiler and turkey production well above a year earlier during the rest of 1978 and into 1979, the department's outlook and situation board said.

Spurred by continued high red meat prices, broiler and turkey prices will remain above ment has developed a small-scale electric crop dryer that uses the principle of microwave ovens. The Agriculture Department said in a statement released here and in Georgia that the new drying technique is expected to reduce crop drying costs by reducing fuel consumption while doing a better job of drying some of the more easily damaged crops, such as rice and peanuts.

Department scientists will conduct drying tests on a number of crops, including peanuts, wheat, rice, soybeans, corn and pecans.

Farmers and warehouse operators use dryers powered by fuel oil, gas and electricity to heat air that then is forced through the grain to dry it out.

This process usually results in hardening the outer surface of the seed, making it difficult for internal moisture to escape.

In the case of rice, for example, the escape of internal moisture through the hard outer coating increases cracked and broken grains and reduces quality, the department said.

Conversely, microwaves heat the product evenly throughout, reducing kernel or grain damage.

Additionally, the system uses a vacuum that reduces the boiling point of water and speeds up the removal of the moisture.

Under a $550,000 contract provided by the Department of Energy, McDonnell Douglas supplied the technology and the Aeroglide Corporation the engineering and fabrication to make the experimental dryer, officials said.

McDonnell Douglas said that the dryer - which it calls MIVAC for microwave and vacuum - can use electrical power more efficiently to dry grain than conventional electrical dryers because of lower temperatures used in the process.

The company said also that MIVAC has the potential for use in drying a wide range of other agricultural products, including bananas, raisin grapes, peaches, apricots, strawberries, raspberries, apples, peppers and tomatoes.

Weather Demands Special Cattle Handling

COLLEGE STATION — Hot summer temperatures can put cattle in stress and cause death losses if they are not managed properly, says a beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

With proper management, cattlemen should not lose any cattle or suffer production losses during hot weather, believes Dr. Larry L. Boleman.

"When outside temperatures range from 90-100 degree F., cattle should be left alone as much as possible," contends Boleman. "Avoid movement, crowding and handling of cattle because exercise and excitement increase body temperature. When the animal's physiological mechanisms are already trying to reduce body temperature during hot weather, any extra physical trauma may result in permanent damage or death to the animal."

Also, protect cattle from flies by using sprays, dustbags, oilers or other approved control measures.

In addition, the specialist recommends delaying surgery such as dehorning and castration during hot weather since excessive bleeding may occur due to the animal's increased blood flow.

"It's also vital that cattle have a water supply available. Many creeks and stock tanks dry up during a long, hot summer such as the one we're experiencing this year," notes Boleman. "If water has to be hauled, remember that a yearling requires 8-12 gallons of water a day during hot weather while a cow nursing a calf needs about 16 gallons."

If cattle must be moved on foot or transported during heat stress periods, this should be done during the early morning, at night or in late afternoon when temperatures are cooler. If cattle must be moved and then later worked, they should be moved to a holding trap in late evening and worked early the next morning. Keep cattle as calm as possible and avoid over-crowding.

"Although wind movement from fans can increase feed intake, daily gains and improved feed conversion for feedlot cattle, shade is about the only economical means for cow-calf operators to change the environment. Research has shown that during periods of 90 degrees F. weather with a relative humidity of 63 percent, cattle under shade gained weight while those without shade lost weight," points out Boleman.

"To improve management practices, producers must first understand the physiological mechanisms that beef cattle use to control body heat created by increased environmental temperatures," contends Boleman. "Animals seek to remove excessive heat by increasing blood flow, water is added to the blood and there is a greater rate of respiration and sweating. All cattle possess the ability to maintain body temperatures under heat stress. Studies have shown that Brahman and Brahman cross cattle maintain lower body temperatures and respiration rates due to a lower heat production when compared to other breeds."

It is important to the life processes of the animal that a normal temperature be maintained, emphasizes Boleman. The normal body temperature of cattle taken rectally averages 101.5 degrees F. and has a range of 100.4-102.8 degrees F. It is lower in cold weather, in older animals and at night. Rising environmental temperatures as well as excitement, exercise and infection increase this body temperature along with the pulse and respiration rates.

The pulse rate indicates the rapidity of heart action. It can be taken either on the outside of the jaw just above its lower border, on the soft area immediately above the inner dewclaw, or just above the hock joint. The normal pulse rate is 60-70 per minute.

To determine the respiration rate, place the hand on the flank or observe the rise and fall of the flanks. The normal respiration rate is 10-30 per minute.

Close Watch Kept On Wheat for China

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says that federal grain inspectors are working closely with exporters to insure that recent sales of wheat to China are not contaminated by a smut disease.

"We're taking care to see that this wheat comes from smut-free farms, is kept clean during handling and shipping so that it can be in good shape when it gets there," Bergland said in an interview.

After ordering wheat four years ago, China canceled several orders, claiming that a kind of smut called TCK had tainted some shipments. China began buying U.S.

wheat again this year and so far has ordered about 2.5 million metric tons or about 91.8 million bushels. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat.

Bergland is scheduled to visit Peking and said he probably will go there in early November, although the dates and other details have not been worked out.

Bergland said he hopes to learn more about China's long-range agricultural needs and intends to assure leaders that the United States can and will be a reliable provider if China chooses to become a regular customer of the American farmer.

A News Analysis

Water, Funding Shortages, Siltation Exact Tragical Toll at Buffalo Lake

BY JIM STEIERT
Outdoors Editor

The current furor over the draining of Buffalo Lake at nearby Umberger has sparked possibly the greatest local interest in the impoundment in at least a decade.

The battle that has raged over the Department of Interior's decision to drain the lake in the wake of the heavy rains May 26 that gave the lake a new lease on life, have called to mind what has been an often tragic history for the impoundment.

Buffalo was once the water sports playground of the Panhandle, but a combination of neglect, changing policies within the agencies operating the refuge, and the natural process of siltation at the compound, have all done their part to bring the small but picturesque area to the brink of disaster.

According to Gordon Hanson, who was manager at Buffalo during a happier time when the lake held abundant water, and who now serves as an assistant director with the Interior Department, the lack of a reliable supply of quality water for the lake is possibly the greatest of the woes afflicting Buffalo.

But a low ranking within the national wildlife refuge system and the subsequent shortage of funding that comes with such a ranking are also major factors in the fall of the one-time water sports mecca.

According to Hanson, the Buffalo Lake dam project on the Tierra Blanca watershed came under government direction during the 1930's.

The lake and dam were constructed under PWA and WPA programs during the "dirty 30's", and the lake area was opened to the public as a water conservation - recreation area May 28, 1939.

Due to the natural process of siltation which eventually fills drainage projects such as Buffalo, the impoundment was given a projected life expectancy of 50 years, -- roughly to 1989.

"The lake was originally administered by the Soil Conservation Service, and later the U.S. Forest Service. In November of 1958, it was transferred to the Department of the Interior, and a year later, was designated as a national wildlife refuge," Hanson explained.

During the period from the 1930's extending into the late 1950's, visitor use at the lake often exceeded 500,000 persons annually, and the refuge often wintered as many as 40,000 ducks and half a million geese, according to Hanson.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service concentrated on the wildlife habitat aspect of Buffalo, and the recreational use concept worked because water sports were carried on at a time opposite the need of the refuge for waterfowl. It was not until the late 1960's that efforts were made to improve the recreational areas of the lake. Upwards of $200,000 was spent from 1966-68 for expanding picnic areas, providing restroom facilities and other improvements," he continued.

But fate, which had already begun depriving Buffalo of much of its precious water inflow along the Tierra Blanca watershed to the west of the lake, began dealing some heavy blows at about the same time and the decline of the area began in earnest in the late 1960's.

"Within two years of improvement work at Buffalo, we received a large inflow of polluted water from the upper watershed. The lake was quickly closed to all water contact sports, and has deteriorated from that point on," Hanson claimed.

According to Hanson, the lake, which had an original storage capacity of some 18,123 acre feet, has filled only twice in its history, -- in 1941 and 1949.

Now, with some 40 years of silt built up in the bottom of the lake, no agency or individual has any reliable figures on the actual water-holding capacity of the lake.

Estimates are that the heavy silt inflow has reduced the lake capacity from one-third to one-half.

The lack of adequate fresh water inflow to maintain the lake grows in stature each day as one of the most severe problems at Buffalo.

Hanson explained that in its early history, a two inch rainfall on nearby areas of the watershed would prompt inflow into the lake.

But with changing farming patterns, the demise of a natural spring along the Tierra Blanca Creek, a dropping water table, and the construction of numerous check dams along the Tierra Blanca watershed, the annual inflow at Buffalo has diminished at an alarming rate over the past 10 years. Four inches of rain must now fall over a wide area of watershed to produce any inflow from Tierra Blanca Creek.

By 1970, Department hydrologists had reached the conclusion that the available inflow could no longer maintain Buffalo, according to Hanson.

That decision may well have marked the beginning of the end for Buffalo as a water sports area.

Only sporadic inflows of water were noted at Buffalo during the 1970's, and the water was frequently drained as it became stagnant in the lake bottom, seething with mineral content.

The lake was drained for the last time in 1973 due to the pollution problem, and up until recent floods, had held no meaningful amount of water since that time.

A rise in the lake in 1967 stirred concern over the spillway at the Buffalo dam site, and the spillway controversy along with a chronic shortage of funding have remained as major headaches at the wildlife refuge ever since.

Concern over the spillway is the root of the current problem over draining away the water area residents had hoped would keep the lake alive once more.

"From the period of 1971-1977, the Interior Dept. gave sporadic attention to correcting the spillway problem at Buffalo. The improbability of a reliable source of good quality water for the lake and the high cost of repairing the spillway on a lake that remained dry most of the time didn't merit enough attention on a nation-wide comparison with other refuges to justify repairs, however," Hanson explained.

Hanson pointed out that chronic funding shortages for the Fish and Wildlife Service kept Buffalo Lake repairs in a low priority category, and the lake also failed to qualify for a high priority when additional national park restoration funds were made available through the Bicentennial Land Heritage Act some two years ago.

With concern over the safety of the Buffalo spillway growing through the 1965-75 period, Interior engineers and engineers from other agencies recommended the immediate draining of the lake in the wake of last May's rains, due to what they termed the hazard it presented to downstream areas in the event that it should wash out.

Draining of the lake began on Aug. 22, and was halted by a restraining order issued Aug. 29. The order was issued after a suit was brought by a group of residents hoping to stop the draining of the lake.

According to Hanson, the outlook still is not bright for any improvements at the Buffalo spillway, because of the extremely tight purse strings of the Interior Department and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

Alternatives for water supply have not been pursued, due to a shortage of funding, and no investigation has been made into the possibility of improving the lake's watershed, determining the extent the watershed has diminished, or discovering the extent of diking along the watershed.

An Interior spokesman has indicated that an adjudication on the Tierra Blanca Creek may be obtained within the next five years, but this is apparently the only step that has been made toward correcting any water concerns.

As for repairs to the Buffalo spillway, Interior officials indicate that they are expensive, and probably unlikely at this time.

A 1967 study showed that rebuilding the Buffalo spillway at that time would have cost $2 million.

Hanson explained that the Interior Department has attempted to pass the Buffalo Lake refuge to other jurisdiction, but it cannot be turned over to another federal agency in its present state, and could not be turned over to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department without an act of Congress.

Interior Department officials also indicated during a public hearing late last week that the agency's budget is currently inadequate to operate Buffalo Lake if it is filled with water, and that efforts to operate the area are severely hampered even when the lake is dry, due to the tight budget.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service recognizes the concern of area residents to maintain water recreation at Buffalo Lake, and will continue to work for maximum recreational use of the area subject to avoiding conflict with its wildlife purposes, and availability of funding," Hanson stated.

And, as the situation at Buffalo stands at this time, more funding and extensive repairs are about as likely to become available in the near future as another of the one-in-60-year rains that gave the impoundment a brief new lease on life.

Lake, is at present rather large and stable, but continued removal of ground water could have a severe effect.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has been informed that the area proposed as critical habitat includes San Marcos Spring Lake and its outflow, the San Marcos River, downstream to the county road crossing about one-half mile below Interstate Highway 35 bridge in Hays County.

Such designation, under the Endangered Species Act, affects only federal agencies, requiring them to ensure that actions authorized, funded, or carried out by them would not result in destruction or adverse modification of the habitat involved.

Anyone with comments should write to the Director (OES), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240. All statements received by September 15, 1978, will be considered.

Comments Invited On Critical Habitat

AUSTIN — The precarious situation of two Central Texas wildlife species is being reviewed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The public is invited to comment on the designation of their habitat as critical.

Of the two species concerned, the San Marcos gambusia is proposed to be listed as endangered and the San Marcos salamander as threatened.

A species is said to be endangered when it is faced with extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range. If listed as threatened, it is likely to become endangered within the foreseeable future.

The habitat of this particular fish and salamander is confined to the San Marcos Spring and the area of its outflow into the upper portion of the San Marcos River. Because pumping of ground water has lowered the stream flows, it is predicted that the San Marcos Spring may flow only intermittently by 1985.

Since the San Marcos gambusia lives only in shallow, slow water without dense aquatic vegetation, changes in the river channel could exterminate it and already may have done so. Population in 1969 was estimated to be less than 1,000, but surveys in 1974 found only one of the fish and none in 1976. A severe flood in 1970 is thought to have been a contributing factor to this decline.

Population of the San Marcos salamander, which lives mainly in dense mats of algae in a small part of the San Marcos Spring

Lake, is at present rather large and stable, but continued removal of ground water could have a severe effect.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has been informed that the area proposed as critical habitat includes San Marcos Spring Lake and its outflow, the San Marcos River, downstream to the county road crossing about one-half mile below Interstate Highway 35 bridge in Hays County.

Such designation, under the Endangered Species Act, affects only federal agencies, requiring them to ensure that actions authorized, funded, or carried out by them would not result in destruction or adverse modification of the habitat involved.

Anyone with comments should write to the Director (OES), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240. All statements received by September 15, 1978, will be considered.

Fishermen Need New License

AUSTIN — Texas fishermen are reminded by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department that sports fishing licenses expired Aug. 31 this year under the new expiration date system.

Sportsmen who plan to hunt as well as fish might wish to save $1 by purchasing a resident combination hunting and fishing license for $8.75.

Formerly, resident sports fishing licenses expired one year from date of purchase, but beginning this Aug. 31 they will expire on that date each year.

Department officials point out that fees from hunting and fishing licenses provide support for the department's year-round programs of fish and wildlife management and restoration.

For full information regarding licenses and game and fish laws, the department's "Texas Hunting and Sport Fishing Regulations" booklet is now available wherever hunting and fishing licenses are sold. Another booklet, containing the 1978-79 migratory waterfowl regulations, will be available at the same outlets in late September after the seasons are set by the Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Boat Props Prove Lethal

AUSTIN — The horror of watching helplessly as a person is chopped to death by a boat propeller is not the product of a movie director's vivid imagination — it really happens.

It happened recently on Lake Travis, and to add to the shocking scene was the fact that two children watched while their father was sliced to death under their boat.

Water safety and law enforcement officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said a 23-year-old man was attempting to disentangle a ski rope from the propeller of his outboard motor when the fatal incident occurred.

He thought the idling motor was in neutral when he jumped into the water to free the rope. He discovered too late that the motor was in gear and he had become entangled in the loose coils of rope.

In the ensuing confusion, the boat motor apparently revved up, pulling the victim into the blades.

Whether the man drowned or was killed instantly by the blades is a moot point, because the extensive cuts on the man's body were sufficiently serious to be fatal, according to investigators at the scene.

There were at least four fatal accidents in 1977 and more than 50 in the last 10 years in which victims were killed by propellers. In most cases the victim fell overboard and was struck by the prop.

One of the most common and obvious practices which can lead to disaster is riding on the bow of a boat while underway. Two of the 1977 victims died after falling off the bow of ski boats. In one case, the boat operator swerved to miss a stump, causing the passenger to topple overboard; in the other, the victim apparently was bounced off the bow by a wave and was run over by the boat which was pulling a skier.

Water safety officials urge that all passengers remain in the boat while underway—not perched in the bow or on the sides. Also, they recommend turning a motor off before attempting to make adjustments, run a trolling motor, or untangle a ski rope.

Additionally, boat operators—particularly when pulling skiers—should be aware of what's ahead of the boat at all times. An observer should always be aboard to watch skiers and rear-view mirrors are required by law.

Watch for red-and-white SCUBA flags or buoys and avoid areas where there are swimmers or divers. Officials recommend that boaters treat a boat propeller like what it has the potential to be — a lethal weapon.

Crossroads

If plants held conventions, delegates would feel at home in the Big Thicket of east Texas. Called a "biological crossroads of North America," the area is overlapped by Appalachian and southern forests, flora and fauna of the West and varieties indigenous to Mexico's subtropics.

Whistling Wings

By Jim Steiert

Somehow it's a nice feeling when you look up at the calendar, see it's the last day of August and realize that in 24 hours a new bird season begins. Of course, we got a sneaking feeling that such things are about to evolve along about the last couple of weeks of August.

You start to get a little excited, recollecting the place down on the draw where you know the birds will be waiting.

It gets time to buy a new hunting license, to check out the light gear for this informal type of hunting, and finally, to make sure that you have plenty of loads of 7 1/2's or 8's to throw at the little speedsters.

The reloading press comes out of the closet and gets bolted down on the work bench.

You dig around through carefully stashed boxes to find paper hulls, primers, wads and powder.

As you pull the handle on the press and begin to turn out home-brewed ammunition for a new season, there's a great deal of satisfaction in knowing that you're going after birds with shells you've made yourself, just as you have for innumerable past seasons.

It's just part of getting the new bird season started off on the right footing...Tradition that makes it fun, and tradition that makes the sport last.

I like getting ready for those first dove hunts. Digging out the old shell vest and shaking some of last year's weed seed, fethers and dust out of it. Sorting through those newly-loaded shells and arranging them in the ammunition can that has accompanied me on dove and quail trips for the last several years. —Five boxes of shells ought to be enough for any man to collect a limit of 10 birds, — shouldn't it?

Then comes hunting day. Time to put together some sort of a brown bag supper to feed two, 'cause you'll be away from home and gunning the evening flight.

The water jug, essential on these warm late afternoon hunts, goes in the pickup along with a couple of paper sacks and some plastic bags for bringing the dressed birds home in.

And then, when the gear is in order and the shotgun cased and stashed in the pickup, it's time to pick up the phone and call on a kindred spirit to share an opening day shoot with.

It works better when you've got somebody who'll brag on all the good shots you make and how artfully you shoot holes in the sky around most of the doves that come boring past.

Mostly, I guess I like being down on the draw next to the creek and a spread of sprawling willow trees already drooping a little with their age.

I like to hear that peculiar whistle of a startled dove's wings as it rises from the sunflower patch up on the hillside, and to watch the "grey ghost" come flitting all the way across the pasture toward where we're hiding.

And I like the challenge of suddenly rising and going up against a target that snaps off half loops and barrel rolls with amazing ease.

And, when the evening wears on toward sundown, it's rewarding to park the pickup under a tree with the doors open to let the breeze blow through, munch a sandwich, and think for the umpteenth time that this is a good place I'm glad I found.

Then, out come the pocketknives, the birds we've bagged get a quick plucking and a fast wash job from the water jug, and by the time the sun is hanging on the horizon, we're generally pulling out of the pasture and closing the gate on one more of those great first-of-the-season dove hunts.

Yep, it's good to say hello to September, and welcome the whistling of wild wings once more.

On the average, each American uses between 560 and 575 pounds of paper a year.

Oklahoma became a state in 1906 with the merging of the former Indian Territory and the Oklahoma Territory.

The predominance of technological power in the United States is little more than 100 years old. The Conference Board notes. It was not until 1870 that the horsepower from all mechanical sources exceeded the horsepower produced by work animals.

Commission Takes Up Seasons on Ducks, Geese

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission was to set hunting seasons and bag limits for ducks, geese and certain other migratory birds when it met in a public session in Austin this weekend.

The seasons are based on frameworks prescribed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and this year's recommendations include several changes, including opening the season on the Mexican duck, which was de-listed by the USFWS as an endangered species in July, 1978. Mexican ducks were removed from the endangered list after investigations showed that most of that species taken in Texas actually were Mexican duck/mallard crosses. The pure strain of Mexican duck is abundant in its native range in Northern Mexico.

The Mexican, or hybrid Mexican/mallard, will be a 70-point duck under the state's 100-point system of bag limits.

Also prescribed by the USFWS is reclassification of the baldpate or widgeon from 20-point status to 10-point.

However, poor mallard production in Canada this year prompted the federal agency to raise the 20-point category (mallard drakes and mottled ducks, etc.) to 25 points in value.

The duck season in the eastern two-thirds of Texas may be lengthened from 55 to 60 days because of a slight overall improvement in breeding population indices.

Goose, sandhill crane, snipe and woodcock regulation frameworks were not altered.

Vandalism Hurts Hunter's Image

AUSTIN — "A principal factor in the minds of everybody in the saving of hunting as a form of recreation is the performance of the hunter," said John Gottschalk, executive vice president of the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies in a recent speech.

He stressed if someone vandalizes a farm or insults a citizen, he has tarnished the image of all hunters.

Texas can see this pattern every day as they drive the state's highways. Currently, gun vandals do more than $750,000 worth of damage to highway facilities each year. Road signs and rest areas are special targets, Gottschalk said.

"Such actions are a disgrace to decent sportsmen and responsible gun owners. It doesn't take much shooting skill to destroy a yield sign or flashing light with a firearm at close range," he said.

Gottschalk pointed out that this wanton vandalism is paid for by the taxpayer. Even the smallest highway sign costs about $10 to replace, not counting labor.

But monetary cost is only one side of a more serious story. Vandalism can cost human lives. The obliteration of signs and flashing lights can affect driving safety.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department joins Gottschalk and concerned sportsmen in asking that Texans help stop this destruction by reporting such acts to their nearest law enforcement officer or office.

Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., with a current metropolitan population of more than 200,000, originated as a settlement called Big Lick. The later name Roanoke was taken from an Indian word meaning shell money. The community became a city in 1884 with the linking of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad and the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

The Roman naturalist Pliny the Elder believed that earthquakes were protests from Mother Earth against wicked miners who stole her gold and silver.

The military Order of the Purple Heart was founded in the U.S. in 1782.

Trap Shooting Alibis Scrutinized in Depth

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP) — When 5,000 shotgunners get together to break clay targets what do you suppose they do when they're not shooting?

They talk about it, that's what they do.

Men, women and children get together at the Amateur Trapshooting Association grounds each summer for ten full days of target-breaking, all leading up to the big one, the Grand American Handicap.

One of the things they talk about is why they missed a target.

Canadian Susan Natrass is doing a study on why shotgunners miss - or more accurately, why they think they miss.

Natrass, working on a doctoral dissertation in sports sociology at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, spent the ten days of the Grand trying to get shooters to tell her why they missed clay birds.

Among the reasons: My rain hat was down too low. The air is too heavy here. It's the pullers. It's the weather. It's the wind.

"I expect men shooting from 27 yards to be more precise than those shooting from closer" in their reasons for missing, Natrass said. The 16-yard line is closest to the targets and the 27-yard line is the farthest away.

Natrass, who has been one of the top trapshooters in North America in recent years, did not have one of her more successful Grands this time around.

Her lackluster showing can be partially attributed to being so involved in the work she is doing on her study of the reasons men and women give for missing targets. And that's another reason for missing.

Reggie Jachimowski of Antioch, Ill., won the Grand American Handicap, breaking a perfect 100 targets from the 27-yard line, setting a record in the process. No shooter had ever won the handicap from that distance before.

But even he had a reason for dropping a few birds the day after his momentous performance. "I was just down," he said, adding that he plain didn't feel like shooting after his big victory.

On that final day of the Grand, shooters had plenty of reasons to choose for any misses. The shooting was stopped twice by rain, strong winds sent targets flying as if they had wings and minds of their own, and the break in shooting caused lapses in concentration.

There was only one perfect score fired on the windup, 100 straight by Jack Day of Springfield. Day didn't need any excuses, breaking 50 targets before a rain interruption, then going back and scoring on 50 more.

Day said he thought the rain interruption might break his concentration, "but when I went back to the line, conditions were fine."

Heavy Downstate Rains Boost Fish, Wildlife

AUSTIN — Recent flooding across Texas took a toll in human life and property, but fish and wildlife may have been helped in most areas, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Dry conditions were beginning to threaten deer herds in many areas, and survival of young quail and turkeys also was in jeopardy before the heavy rainfall.

"The rains may not have helped nesting efforts of quail, and they certainly were too late to help turkey nesting," theorized Horace Gore, upland game program leader, "but the rains very well could improve survival of the birds already hatched."

Gore said the overall quail outlook is fair, although the recent rains and some earlier precipitation in June will likely cause quail to produce some late summer birds. High waters could have disrupted nesting in parts of the Edwards Plateau.

Gore noted, but he said overall the rains should be a plus for quail populations.

Gore said dry weather in early spring will have a detrimental effect on this year's turkey hatch, but hunters still can expect a reasonably good turkey season because of holdover birds from the bumper hatch of spring, 1977.

The rains likewise were welcome for deer production, as some local die-offs had been suffered because of dry weather. "Although the rains were too late to influence antler development, which is expected to be below average, the recent rains should improve habitat conditions. At this point I think we can expect at least an average deer season," said Charles Winkler, the department's big game coordinator.

"Of course, a lot can happen between now and mid-November," Winkler continued. "If we have no more rain, the habitat will again be in poor condition by the time hunting season opens."

Fishermen whose recent outings may have been thwarted by the rising tide of murky waters are in for better times, according to department fisheries biologists.

The influx of nutrients, combined with the flooding of vegetated areas, will cause fish to go on a feeding spree, according to Bob Bounds, inland fisheries management coordinator. "Already catfishing is good in many of the filling lakes, and bass and other game fish should respond any time now," Bounds said.

Another plus factor is the possibility of a spawn of threadfin shad and other forage species in many reservoirs—food source which could help sustain bass and other predator fish through the hard winter months.

If the lakes remain in a nearly filled condition through the spring, good spawns are a possibility, as fish take advantage of expanded habitat conditions.

All in all, direct losses of wildlife due to flooding are more than counteracted by the long-range benefits of the much-needed water, department officials believe.

Fishing Report

GREENBELT LAKE — Water temperature is in upper 70's and lake level has remained stable. Largemouth bass to seven pounds have been caught early and late. White bass fishing has been fair. A few white bass are being caught by trolling, but surface feeding has decreased. A few northern pike have been caught up to six pounds. Crappie continue to bite very good. Crappie fishing appears to be picking up.

LAKE MEREDITH — White bass and channel catfish continue to bite well. Many nice stringers of both species have been caught. Several of these catches were made in Blue West and a few of the white bass have come from the "humps" along the river channel. Walleye fishing is slow with a few being caught in deep water. All other species are biting slow.

RITA BLANCA LAKE — Fishing for largemouth bass and channel catfish has been fair. The bass have been weighing from 2½-5 pounds and the catfish from 2-to-8 pounds. Fishing for other species has been slow.

LAKE MACKENZIE — Fishing has been good for channel catfish, crappie and bass. Nice stringers of crappie have been caught although most of the fish have been small up to one pound. A few smallmouth bass have been caught. The lake has dropped 10 inches during the summer and is now clear.

BAYLOR LAKE — The lake level continues to drop, however, the boat ramp can still be used. Several good largemouth bass and channel catfish have been caught with the largest bass at 6½ pounds and channel catfish at 11 pounds. Numerous smaller fish have been caught.

McCLELLAN LAKE — Fishing has been fair for channel catfish and bullheads. A few largemouth bass have been caught. The lake level is three feet below the spillway.

LAKE THEO (Caprock Canyons SP) — Fishing has been slow. A few largemouth bass and channel catfish have been caught. The lake level is down nine feet and access is difficult at this time.

TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE DEPT.

TEAL POPULATION UP

LUBBOCK — Recently completed surveys in major breeding areas showed a teal breeding population 50 percent larger than that recorded in 1977 and duck hunters should find ample shooting opportunities during the nine-day season set for Sept. 16-24, 1978.

The higher counts in the northern nesting regions are the results of better prairie habitat and an increase in the number of ponds in the North-Central United States and Provinces of Canada. Pond and playa conditions in the Texas Panhandle and on the South Plains are rated from dry to excellent by Max Traweck, waterfowl biologist. Several areas through the central part of the Panhandle received heavy rains this summer with most plays holding some water.

The blue-winged teal is normally the most numerous during the early teal season, but breeding populations for this species were down some three percent. The green-winged teal showed the biggest jump with a 53 percent increase in breeding populations.

The daily bag limit will again be four teal with shooting hours from sunrise to sunset.

Teal hunters will be required a federal migratory waterfowl stamp available at most U.S. Post offices. The stamp must be signed by the holder across the face of the stamp with ink or other waterproof liquid.

Shotguns used to hunt and bag teal must be plugged to hold no more than three shells in the chamber and magazine combined. Rifles and pistols are illegal firearms while hunting any migratory waterfowl including teal.

The regular season for ducks, geese and cranes is being set this weekend.

EXTRA SERVICE FOR ANGLERS

CANYON — A weekly fishing report for most of the public lakes in the Texas Panhandle has furnished local anglers with up-to-date fishing conditions and the report was done voluntarily by fishery personnel stationed at the P&W Canyon laboratory during the past two fishing seasons.

This report is considered a method of increasing the fishing opportunities for all anglers and Joe Kraai, fishery biologist, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, P.O. Box 835, Canyon, Tx. 79015 or call 806/655-4341.

Even though the fishing reports for the summer of 1978 are being stopped this month, some of the best fishing in the Texas Panhandle occurs in the fall.

As the water temperatures drop, gamefish move into shallow water where they actively feed and are available to the angler. All species of fish including the walleye, largemouth and smallmouth bass, crappie, northern pike and sunfish become more active prior to winter.

Fishing is more enjoyable at this time of the year with less competition from boaters and swimmers. Fall weather can be good following cool fronts and fish seem to bite better while the barometer is rising.

All persons should take this opportunity to tell the fishery personnel their ideas on the fishing report and include suggestions for other lakes or conditions that might be helpful to them while fishing.

Small Lakes Require Attention

AUSTIN — Approximately 30 percent of all fishermen in Texas choose to fish in private lakes and ponds.

"Few anglers realize how much pressure this takes off public reservoirs," contends Charles Inman, Parks and Wildlife Department biologist.

While no surveys have been conducted to estimate the success of private lake fishermen, many appear to be dissatisfied with the quality of fish their lakes produce.

As with large public reservoirs, privately owned lakes and ponds must be managed in order to maintain healthy populations of gamefish. "With a few simple techniques an owner can usually improve the quality of fishing," he said.

In some severe instances, biologists may recommend removing all fish from small lakes and "starting over." This method is not economically feasible on large lakes, and should only be done as a last resort.

Before giving up on a small lake, the owner should first diagnose the problem and see if it can be solved.

"For example, I frequently receive calls from owners who say they catch bass up to 10 inches, and every once in a while land a six-pounder," Inman said. "They say they never catch bass in between those sizes."

The problem is a common one, and is caused by an imbalance of fish populations in the lake. Some of those 10-inch bass may be two or three years old, but because of competition for food items, they become stunted.

"Once a bass gets to about 12 inches and 1 1/2 pounds, it gets out of the competition and grows rapidly," he explained. "That is why lake owners report catching six-pound fish."

First, Inman recommends reducing the population of small bass by increasing fishing pressure. These small fish should not be returned to the lake for at least one year.

At the same time, the food supply should be increased. "An easy way to do this is to lower the water level of the lake," he said. "This crowds all fish into a smaller area and forces small forage fish out of the vegetative growth around the shoreline and makes them more available to bass."

"It is best to manipulate water levels between October and January so that summer heat won't deplete the oxygen and cause a die-off," he advised. "Also, the lake will refill faster with spring rains."

If a lake owner feels his lake lacks sufficient forage, he can increase the food supply by stocking additional fish. Inman usually recommends fathead minnows and shad as good choices.

Minnows can be easily secured from commercial fish farms, but shad cannot be obtained from private sources.

"Almost all public reservoirs have shad, and they can be dipped or seined below spillways during overflows," Inman said. "This should be done when the water is cold because shad are particularly susceptible to stress."

Before stocking shad, lake owners should talk to a fisheries biologist for special advice including how to transport them.

Compared to other private lake management, parasite control is probably the most complicated. There are at least 37 types of parasites common to Texas, and some cannot be treated effectively.

Lake owners most frequently complain about worms in the intestines and flesh of fish, and they wonder if fish are still edible.

Because parasites are host-specific, Inman said, they are keyed to the protein makeup of a particular host and are not easily transmitted to man. "If fish are properly cooked, parasites and bacteria will be killed and there will be little chance of contracting a fish disease," he said.

The most common worms in fish are yellow and black flukes, and most fishermen may be surprised to learn that snails perpetuate their life cycles.

"Snails serve as a host in the life cycle of several parasites," Inman said. "Snail populations frequently build in privately owned ponds because of a limited number of predators."

This problem is less severe in large reservoirs because snail populations are kept under control by predators, including catfish, freshwater drum and redeer sunfish.

"Thus, a lake owner can control grubs by limiting snail populations with predators," Inman said.

Lake owners can obtain bass, catfish and sunfish for a nominal fee through the Parks and Wildlife Department. However, this year's deadline has passed and applications received now will not be processed until 1979. The department also publishes free literature on private pond management. One in-depth booklet, "Construction Hints and Preliminary Management Practices for New Ponds and Lakes," is authored by Inman.

To obtain a copy or request an application for fish stocking, write the Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

President-Pitcher

The first president of the U.S. to throw out the first ball of the baseball season was William Howard Taft. On April 14, 1910, Taft threw the ball which opened the American League's Washington-Philadelphia game. The crowd — 12,226 paid admissions — broke all previous attendance records.

The Bath White Butterfly was named in England in 1702 because of its resemblance to a piece of embroidery created in Bath.

Campers Questioned

AUSTIN — Some 1,500 outdoor recreationists this year have received questionnaires from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, seeking their advice and opinions on camping requirements. They are urged to return them by the end of August, so that these recommendations may be fully considered in state park plans.

The project is a cooperative one between the department and the National Campers and Hikers Association/Trailer Camping Clubs of Texas. This organization has given valuable assistance to the P&WD on other occasions also on conservation programs.

Bruce Keith, its Texas state director, helped develop the comprehensive questionnaires and undertook distribution of them to the members through their local clubs. Recipients are asked to return the completed forms in the same manner to their local club presidents for eventual forwarding to the state.

In this way, concerned individuals have been given an opportunity to make their camping needs known and provide important guidelines to the planners of existing and future parks.

Antlerless Permit Due for Archers

AUSTIN — Antlerless deer permits for the special archery season will be issued on Sept. 8 in seven counties where the permits are required by special law, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Landowners or their authorized agents may apply for the permits at the following locations on that date between 8 a.m. and 12 noon and from 1 to 5 p.m.

Burnet County, Burnet, County Courthouse; Gillespie County, Fredericksburg, County Courthouse; Llano County, Llano, P&WD office; Mason County, Mason, Chamber of Commerce; McCulloch County, Brady, Chamber of Commerce; San Saba County, San Saba, County Courthouse; Travis County, Austin, County Courthouse.

The department emphasizes that these permits are for the Oct. 1-31 special archery season only in these counties. In many other counties antlerless deer may be hunted during the archery season without a special permit.

Smallmouths Booming At Lake Meredith

AUSTIN — Creel census data for the past six months indicate that Lake Meredith in the Texas Panhandle is developing into an outstanding smallmouth bass producer.

Surveys from March 1 through May 31 this year showed an estimated harvest of 1,086 smallmouths weighing 1,991 pounds, an average weight of 1.8 pounds.

By comparison, during that period only 362 largemouth bass, weighing a total of 905 pounds, were caught.

"This indicates there has been a very substantial increase in the fisherman's creel which can be directly attributed to the introduction of smallmouths in the lake," said Wade Butler, smallmouth bass program leader.

CARD OF THANKS
We would like to express our appreciation and gratitude to the friends and neighbors who sent flowers and cards, telephoned, called at the home, brought food and helped at the hospital during the illness and passing of our loved one. We would like to thank Dr. Rush, Dr. Perales, Dr. Hui, the nurses and the therapists at the hospital for their care and many kindnesses and to the ladies of the Eastern Star and the First Christian Church for the meals they served Wednesday evening and Thursday noon and to Rev. Mack McCarter for the beautiful tribute in the services. May God bless each and everyone of you.

All Sydney Wants Is A Small Snowplow

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - A snowplow is all the small western Nebraska town of Sidney wants. Not a big snowplow, just a little one. A truck with a blade on it would do. But now a little snowplow, which Strouse figures could be had for about $25,000. The FAA said the town needed an $83,000 snowplow. That's not all. Strouse said the town was told it also needed an airport layout plan, costing about $25,000, plus building to put the snowplow in - at a cost of $106,000. Then the State Aeronautics Department stepped into the picture. Federal funds are awarded with the stipulation that the city put up 10 percent. Although the city had budgeted $9,800 for efforts to get a snowplow, it was unwilling to put up 10 percent of the cost of what it considered a grandiose federal plan. The state said it would pick up some of the local tab. "We could get the snowplow, but if we didn't tie a construction project in the layout plan, we couldn't get anything." "By now the project is around $190,000; $25,000 for the plan, $45,000 for the snowplow and $106,000 for the building to put it in. "We finally sat down with all of them and said: 'Fellas, look. This is the bottom line. We're going to spend $45,000 for a snowplow, $22,000 for an airport plan and $66,000 for a building. That totals $133,000 and of that amount the city will commit $9,800. We don't want anymore of it..."
