House To Vote on Low Budget Deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agreement by House and Senate conferees on a budget with the lowest deficit in five years holds out hope that the government's books can be balanced by 1981, the chairman of the House Budget Committee says.

Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., the committee chairman, said a balance could be met "if Congress continues to exercise restraint on spending and if the economy continues to be healthy."

Giaino planned to seek a House vote almost immediately on the budget, but this would require unanimous consent to waive parliamentary delaying requirements. The Senate is set to act soon after the House.

The conferees, who had been deadlocked over financing a special public works program, compromised and agreed Wednesday on a fiscal plan projecting a deficit of $38.8 billion.

The agreement also would allow for reducing taxes at least $2 billion more than the House voted in a $16.3 billion tax relief bill. The Senate Finance Committee already is enlarging the tax cut.

The conferees also would call for revenues of $448.7 billion and spending of $487.5 billion in fiscal 1979, which begins Oct. 1.

The resulting $38.8 billion deficit would be the first since 1974 under $40 billion. The present fiscal year is

THE LEGAL ACTION filed against Deaf Smith County commissioners which seeks reapportionment of county precincts has apparently come as a big surprise to county officials—as well as most citizens of the community.

And, while a local appeal for action is not a requirement, the factor that seems to have most people disturbed is that Mexican Americans here did not seek relief from the commissioners' court.

It seems to us that we're faced with the same old problem—a lack of communication and understanding.

On the one hand, many citizens see the appeal as a case of "outsiders" again coming in and trying to stir up trouble. On the other hand, there were probably local Mexican American leaders who figured commissioners would take no action, or—at best—drag their feet on the issue.

The county precincts were reapportioned in 1970, and that action came as a result of a Supreme Court mandate on the one-man, one-vote principle. It's interesting to read file copies of THE BRAND which reported the commissioner court decision.

All of the discussion on the matter centered around "city vs. rural" voters. Two of the commissioners opposed reapportionment on the basis it would weaken the farmer's voice in county government. But the Supreme Court's ruling on near-equal population in each precinct had to be followed, and Precincts 3 and 4 had a large number of potential city voters added to their area.

The reapportionment, of course, was made on the basis of population—not on the number of registered voters. Until we received a press release from a group of U.S. Senator John G. Tower of Texas will be the keynote speaker during the 25th annual stockholders meeting of Hereford Grain Corporation tomorrow.

The meeting, to be held at the Bull Barn, will get underway at 7 p.m., and a crowd of some 700 stockholders and guests are expected to be on hand.

The election of two new directors will be conducted during tomorrow's meeting.

Board president Tony Hoffman and director F.L. Eicke are seeking re-election.

Hoffman is opposed by Norman Gray of the Gray's Corner area, and Eicke is opposed by Kenneth Rudd of Westway.

A trip to the Farmer's Co-Op Family Camp at Estes Park, Colo., will also be awarded during tomorrow night's activities.

Houston Company Drills DSC Well

Butte's Resources, Inc. of Houston is drilling a wildcat oilwell north of Hereford near the Ford community. The Brand has learned.

An official with the company confirmed that the well is being drilled and should be completed in "two or three weeks" but offered no other comment.

"I just can't say anything about it at this time," said Tom Cook, a representative of Butte's Resources, when contacted by telephone Wednesday.

"We'll let you know something in two or three weeks," Smith added. The well, according to County Surveyor A.J. Schroeter, was staked earlier this year 10 miles west of Ford and one mile south.

"big-name" speaker for next year's annual chamber event.

It was the consensus of the board that raising the price of tickets for the chamber banquet would pay for a speaker who could draw enough people to make the event a success.

Dwindling crowds have concerned the chamber board in the last few years.

Director Shollenbarger said he would contact a speaker and added that tickets should go on sale as soon as possible to ensure good sales.

In other business, the board heard miscellaneous reports, including one on the upcoming "Follies" from event chairman Charley Bell, included a new job description for a chamber manager in the policy handbook, and appointed a committee to nominate directors for next year.

Bell said plans for the "Follies," set for Nov. 13-15, have progressed "on schedule," adding that he has appointed

Supreme Court Decides Abilene Booze Legal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The sale of liquor and beer was legal in Abilene today for the first time since Prohibition Days.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission issued two permits for off-premise beer sales to Skinny Inc. Wednesday shortly after a decision by the Texas Supreme Court.

Another off-premise beer permit, one for sale of mixed drinks and a wholesale liquor distributor's license were approved later.

Texas' highest court said Wednesday that an Austin district judge had no right to interfere with an Abilene local option election over the sale of liquor and beer.

Bell said the following persons are involved in planning the show:

Margaret Formby, program chairman; Bill Johnson, ticket sales; Sherry Hoover, finance committee; and Jan Walser and Susie McGee, talent co-chairmen.

Bell also said he has appointed a wardrobe staff.

A New York production group will be in Hereford two to three weeks prior to the "Follies" dates to coordinate the local talent.

President Speedy Nieman reported that the chamber Fun Breakfast will be at 6:30 a.m. next Thursday in the Hereford Community Center dining room. Dairy Queen will sponsor the breakfast.

Mike Carr, chairman of the chamber's business committee, reported that Tuesday's investments seminar drew 29 persons. Carr added that the second and third parts of the seminar, which is free and open to the public, will be held next Tuesday and Tuesday, Oct. 3, in the Hereford Community Center.

The second and third parts were originally supposed to be at Southwestern Public Service.

Women's Division chairman Mrs. Formby said that Oct. 11-12 will be "Women's Emphasis Days" in Hereford, with programs being planned to deal with subjects of interest to women.

Pork Prices To Affect Other Meat Markets

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hog farmers are still holding back on boosting production as much as government forecasters expected earlier this year.

Since hog production also can have a ripple effect on prices of cattle and broiler chickens, those are expected to have an impact on over-all food prices in the first half of 1979, at least.

Beef, pork and chicken together account for around one-third of family food spending, according to USDA.

The inventory of hogs and pigs Sept. 1 in 14 key pork-producing states was 48.9 million head, down 1 percent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Moreover, the summer pig crop at 18.7 million head was slightly below a year earlier. Last June, a survey of hog producers indicated they would increase summer pig output by about 3 percent.

Pigs born this summer will make up most of the consumer pork supply during the winter.

The report said producers as of Sept. 1 intend to have 2.64 million sows have litters this fall, up 3 percent from the Sept.-Nov. quarter of last year. That is the same as the June survey showed.

The hog marketing year begins Dec. 1 and ends the following Nov. 30.

Looking at the winter possibilities for the first time, the report said farrowing intentions for Dec.-Feb. point to 2.35 million litters of pigs, up 3 percent from last winter.

The 14 states surveyed produce about 85 percent of the nation's pork.

James Nix, a USDA livestock economist, said the report "just doesn't show the pork supply coming" along as much as had been expected some months back.

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus Vance seeks Saudi Arabia's cooperation today with the Camp David accords in exchange for the F-15 fighter deal the Carter administration pushed through Congress.

Vance was flying to Riyadh after meeting with King Hussein that produced no public change in the king's opposition to the peace framework President Carter. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin erected at Camp David.

Meanwhile, Syria's foreign minister said Vance's visit to Damascus Saturday would have no effect on President Hafez Assad's unequivocal rejection of the Sadat-Begin agreements and all Sadat's dealings with the Israelis.

Carter spokesmen insisted during the administration's bitter fight last spring to sell the Saudis 60 F-15s that the sale was part of a plan to bolster American influence with the conservative Arab government in an effort to achieve a peace settlement for Israel.

Vance has two other levers to use on King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd: the network of business and military contacts between the two countries, and the American contention that collapse of the peace process could result in Sadat's replacement by someone aligned with the radical Arab regimes.

U.S. officials do not expect the Saudis to use their influence publicly to rally support in the Arab world for Camp David. They believe private acquiescence would be sufficient for other Arab leaders to take the public steps necessary.

The Saudi influence derives from several sources. As custodians of the holiest shrines of Islam, they are important religious leaders. As the Middle East's largest oil producer and the owners of the world's largest proven oil reserves, they subsidize Syria, Egypt, Jordan and other poorer Arab states.

However, the Saudis in a statement Tuesday said the Camp David accords cannot be considered a final acceptable formula for peace because they do not guarantee Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territory, including East Jerusalem; the Palestinian right to self-determination and their own state, and recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization as the sole, legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

The Saudis also called for a unified Arab stand, presumably to come at an Arab summit. American officials believe such a meeting can only result in a tougher Arab stand toward Israel.

Vance met for two hours Wednesday with King Hussein, who in a separate statement voiced much the same objections to the Camp David agreements that the Saudis did.

Vance is understood to have intimated to the king that his refusal to cooperate with Sadat and Begin could jeopardize the sizeable U.S. military and economic assistance to his impoverished kingdom. But the Americans expected no commitment from him yet, and none was given.

The Camp David agreement calls for Jordan to participate in negotiations with Israel, Egypt and representatives of the Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza to settle the future of those two disputed territories. The United States and Israel hope the negotiations will produce a federation of the territories with Jordan, to prevent an independent Palestinian state controlled by the PLO.

Buck Drops Drastically

LONDON (AP) - The dollar dropped sharply on the world's foreign exchange today for the second day in succession, hitting a new low in Swiss francs and sending the price of gold to a record high of $216.75 an ounce.

Market analysts said they believed the slide was an acceleration of the drop Wednesday prompted by adverse Arab reaction to the Camp David summit agreements.

"We are also nervous that even the slightest babbling from anyone in the Middle East affects us," said one Frankfurt dealer.

Very active trading was reported in London.

In Zurich, the dollar was quoted this morning at 1.5205 Swiss francs, down from Wednesday's record low of 1.53875.

Dead Policeman's Vest Introduced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A bloody bullet-proof vest that couldn't protect Patrolman Ralph Ablanado and a bullet-pierced hackberry trunk have made the point - an AK-47 is a powerful weapon.

But prosecutors of David Lee Powell, 27, Ablanado's alleged killer, planned to call ballistics experts today to testify further about the slugs that cut down the young officer.

Powell could be executed with a lethal injection if convicted of killing Ablanado. Also charged with capital murder but scheduled for a separate trial next month is Sheila Meinert, who was driving Powell's car the night of the slaying.

Ablanado's slender widow, Judy, put her hand to her mouth and wept quietly when the bullet-proof vest was introduced Wednesday. It had two holes in the chest area and was brown with dry blood.

The prosecution introduced a section of hackberry tree trunk, sliced down the middle to show a four-inch bullet track through the dense wood. The tree was a few feet behind where Ablanado was standing when hit by the machine gun-like fire.

Jurors also saw an American M-67 hand grenade, a smooth, olive drab, baseball-shaped weapon, that apparently was tossed at policemen during the shoot-out following Ablanado's slaying.

'Drowned' Grain Dealer Spotted in Washington

DALLAS (AP) - Bobby Johnson, a federal fugitive for 20 months despite the fact he reportedly drowned in the Gulf of Mexico early last year, has been seen alive and positively identified by the FBI.

James Geer, assistant special agent in charge of the Dallas division of the FBI, said agents positively identified the Wichita Falls grain dealer Aug. 18, living in Clarkston, Wash., under the assumed name Darrell Dean Olson.

However, the same evening, Johnson was apparently tipped that agents were in the area and fled Clarkston, abandoning the truck he was driving about 20 miles outside the town, the agent said.

Geer said agents had been conducting interviews in Clarkston after receiving information about a vehicle linked to Johnson that was registered to an Irene M. Olson at Great Falls, Mont. Further investigation determined the woman had moved to Clarkston, Wash., and was living with a Darrel Olson. Agents had interviewed the woman in Clarkston the evening Johnson disappeared. Geer said the present whereabouts of Johnson and the woman are unknown.

Federal investigation of Johnson began in January 1977 when a several million dollar grain shortage was uncovered at Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. about the time Johnson was reported as having drowned under mysterious circumstances Jan. 3, 1977. He reportedly fell from a cabin cruiser in the Gulf of Mexico, and his body was never recovered.

Politicians Rewarded Claims Tongsun Park

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tongsun Park, giving new details about his lobbying activities for South Korea, says he rewarded congressmen who voted favorably on aid to Seoul by directing business to their districts.

Park told the House ethics committee Wednesday that he encouraged South Korea to grant contracts for rice and various projects to constituents of "friendly" congressmen and senators.

Park discussed his "philosophy" in dealing with Congress while testifying that he gave Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., $4,000 in cash and a $500 tea set between 1972 and 1974. The congressman is accused of violating House rules by accepting the money and the gift.

McFall, who as a former majority whip held the third-ranking Democratic post in the House, was expected to testify in his own defense today. He was denied any wrongdoing.

Park said Wednesday that he linked favors he did for congressmen - especially regarding rice sales - with how they voted on military aid and other legislation affecting Korea.

"I had the feeling that if my friends in Congress were sympathetic to the needs of the people of South Korea, they ought to be recognized ... and helped in any way possible," said the former middleman for U.S. rice sales to Korea.

Ford Summoned By Assassination Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Gerald R. Ford is returning to Capitol Hill to explain how the Warren Commission went about investigating the murder of President John F. Kennedy.

The House Assassinations Committee summoned Ford to answer questions about the quality and thoroughness of the probe which led the commission to conclude that Lee Harvey Oswald was the assassin and that he acted alone.

The former president also was expected to be asked about a statement in FBI files that he agreed to keep the FBI "thoroughly advised as to the activities of the commission" on a confidential basis.

Ford is one of the few still-living members of the commission which then-President Lyndon B. Johnson created seven days after the assassination of Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. Ford was a House member from Michigan at the time. The late Earl Warren, then chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, was commission chairman.

The commission was assigned to get to the root of the assassination and the murder of Oswald by Jack Ruby.

After nearly a year of work, the commission published a 26-volume report which became an immediate target of criticism and controversy.

Paul Harvey News Newsmen Do Not Tell All

Dr. Peter Bourne was President Carter's advisor on drug abuse. Now it is gossiped that Dr. Bourne had himself used drugs.

The Washington press corps has gossiped that Dr. Bourne used pot and cocaine, according to Washington Post ombudsman Charles Seib, because several unnamed reporters are supposed to have said they were in a bedroom with him at a party in December when he both smoked and snorted.

Then why did nothing come out until months later when Dr. Bourne gave a woman in his office a prescription on which he had written a false name?

If the supposed drug involvement was sufficiently significant to cost Bourne his job in July, why had the reporters ignored it last December?

Were the reporters at that party, if the story is true, suppressing the news, breaching the public trust?

Michael Gartner is editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and he is also a lawyer. Recently he confronted us of the media with this challenge:

"It is a rare reporter who tattles on a friend."

One of the reasons that my home base is removed by a thousand miles from Washington, D.C. is that, with Walter Lippmann, I have always believed a newsmen should keep a little air space between himself and the newsmakers.

I don't know how any observer, however disciplined, could report objectively about somebody with whom he is on a first-name basis.

Justice Louis Brandeis said, "The function of the press is very high, almost holy. To misstate or suppress any news is a breach of trust."

Yet all those years that a certain senator was being helped off the Senate floor because he was drunk-regularly and frequently--you never heard a word about it.

Nor did his home state constituents.

Should we have tattled? (Because he is deceased there seems to be no purpose in naming him now; furthermore, the Senate never has been limited to only one such.)

Mr. Gartner says that editors and reporters know far more than they are willing to print--and much of what they refuse to print is about their own activities.

Presently a reporter is on the carpet for having sought to use privileged information for personal financial gain; yet there are dozens of reporters who have written profitable books based on such information.

When reporters and/or editors get together in a social gathering you hear the doggondest cacophony of substantive stuff that never goes public. You have to wonder if the media is in fact selective in choosing its targets.

I keep remembering something publisher Katherine Graham of the Washington Post said: "We must ask ourselves if we would really have been as tenacious in pursuing the Watergate expose if the President had been any one other than Richard Nixon."

It seems at the moment that the courts are intruding on our files and unjustly jailing our reporters, have we been asking for it?

Death Penalty Reversed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The death penalty conviction of William Edward Cortez in the shooting death of a Corpus Christi restaurant manager was reversed Wednesday because the prosecution introduced an inadequately documented Florida "pen packet."

Convictions shown by the criminal records packet could have swayed the jury improperly against Cortez, the high court said.

A new trial was ordered. Cortez, paroled 17 days earlier from the Nebraska penitentiary, was convicted in the Aug. 30, 1975, slaying of Garry Whitley, manager of a Sambo's restaurant.

Testimony showed Whitley chased Cortez after Cortez held him up and left the restaurant.

At the punishment phase of the trial, the prosecution introduced a Florida "pen packet" recording Cortez' convictions in 1954 and 1960 for auto theft. It was certified by Louie L. Wainwright, secretary of the Florida Department of Offender Rehabilitation.

But the court said there was no certification by a judge or the Florida secretary of state that Wainwright in fact was the legal custodian of the documents.

Bunker's Chair Immortalized

WASHINGTON (AP) - For nearly eight years on national television, Archie Bunker has held court from a rust-colored, wingback chair.

It has been his soapbox for tirades against Jews, Poles and blacks. A place to worry out loud about job and family. A launching pad for verbal strikes against his "dingbat" wife, Edith.

But as of today, Archie Bunker can stop worrying about protecting his throne from would-be usurpers, notably his son-in-law. His chair is now in the Smithsonian Institution as a cultural exhibit.

The public will be able to view the chair - encased in plastic along with the patterned armchair used by Edith - in the "Nation of Nations" wing of the National Museum of History and Technology.

"They're on the second floor to the left of George Washington," one guide said of the chairs' location relative to a statue of the first president.

What the 1940s chairs - old when acquired for "All in the Family" from California prop warehouses - are doing in the national museum was explained by S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian.

"Museum people have a high regard for objects that tell a story," Ripley told some 800 persons at the exhibit opening Tuesday night. "By honoring these chairs, we give recognition to a popular television series that we hope has stimulated audiences to re-examine their values and prejudices, dreams and desires."

The chairs have been central to the story of the couple from Queens since

"Family" premiered on CBS television as Jan. 12, 1971.

From their living room, actor Carroll O'Connor and actress Jean Stapleton have dealt with topics from the Vietnam War to inflation, menopause and racism - often in a simultaneously distasteful and amusing way.

As son-in-law Mike once tried to explain Archie to guest star Sammy Davis Jr.: "He's not so bad. He wouldn't burn a cross on your lawn."

To which Davis responded: "No, but he might stop to toast a marshmallow."

The comedies - or what Ripley suggested might better be termed "social commentaries from one family's living room" - have won the show 50 million weekly viewers, more than a dozen Emmies, financial security for creator Norman Lear and star status for O'Connor, Ms. Stapleton and former regulars Sally Struthers and Rob Reiner.

And protests, too, from Polish-Americans, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and others offended by the Bunkers' words or deeds.

But Lear told those at the Smithsonian that having a positive influence on American viewers was the show's aim:

Lear, 54, said that "Family" also reflected one of his late father's traits - "a territorial imperative about his chair."

His show became the first TV situation comedy that "examined social issues at the heart of American life," said Smithsonian curator Carl Scheele. "It changed the face of a lot of TV's approach ... I don't think television could revert to the pre-Archie Bunker era."

The museum's exhibit has the chairs separated by a small walnut end table, topped with a doily, a glass ashtray and a partially smoked cigar. Floral wallpaper forms the backdrop.

Nearly in the wing dedicated to America's ethnic background are a rainbow-colored Wurlitzer, the white gloves and black-face makeup used by Eddie Cantor and a reconstructed 1925 Italian-American kitchen, complete with replica stewing chicken.

"Family" cast members thought it was appropriate to put the chairs in the Smithsonian.

"It's better than being cast in wax," concluded Ms. Stapleton.

O'Connor, prevented from attending the ceremony and a White House visit by continued treatment for high blood pressure, used a long-distance phone hookup to say that admission to the Smithsonian "is really a great thrill to me. No other honor done to Norman and the rest of the cast can possibly equal that."

The show goes on, despite the contribution of its chairs to the national museum. An assistant to Lear said replicas of the "originals" complete with frayed threads and stains have been created for future episodes of "All in the Family."

San Antonio attorneys handling the lawsuit, we had never seen statistics on "fair and equal representation" which used the number of registered voters as a factor.

This is confusing to many citizens. We received a "letter to the editor" today which was critical of Judge Sam Morgan for saying he thinks the precincts were expected to end with a deficit of about $51 billion.

How can you apportion voters to precincts? People may vote and they may not. You can't apportion "voter apathy" either!

Budget

President Carter's original projections for 1979, since modified, envisaged a deficit about $21 billion greater than the one now projected.

The dispute involved $2 billion for special public works-jobs programs, including several that figure in President Carter's urban package.

The House included the figure in its original version of the budget resolution, but the Senate had no corresponding figure.

The conferees agreed on an overall figure that included the public works program along with several others. Their report will say the House conferees assume sufficient money will be provided for the public works program, while the Senate panel will say it believes the amount will take care only of existing programs.

Prices

But that has not occurred, and total pork output this year may be only about 1 percent more than in 1977, he said. Last spring, the department forecast pork output might go up about 2 percent and a year ago it looked to some experts that pork production might rise 8 to 10 percent this year.

Meanwhile, cattle producers have continued to, cutback on herds so much that 1978 beef output might be down about 4 percent from 1977, Nix said.

Broiler chicken production has increased but probably not enough to offset the declines this year in red meat.

selection committee chairman, said that his committee is still interviewing applicants for the position and is seeking someone "who is strong in public relations, able to get out and meet the public, who will be involved in social activities, and who will pursue industrial prospects."

The board voted to include a new job description for a manager (executive vice president) in the chamber policy handbook. Nieman said that he has appointed Gladys Cavness, Bill Johnson, Mike Patrick and directors Paul Abalos and Jerry Payne to a committee to nominate four chamber board members.

Nieman, in another report, said that a committee in New Mexico has been corresponding with Panhandle chamber officials concerning improvements of the highway from Amarillo to El Paso.

Chamber officials in both states are trying to initiate federal action in order to make U.S. Highway 60-70 a four-lane thoroughfare.

The board today also agreed to set its next meeting for 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, instead of in the morning.

Nieman, Payne, Butch White, Milton Adams, Mack Tubb, Shollenbarger, Rogers, Charles Schlabs, Mrs. Formby, Tom Hamlett, Jonnie Cloud were present at this morning's meeting. Dave Hopper was absent.

that Sadat had "turned his back on the Arabs."

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam said Vance's visit to Syria Saturday "will make no difference, absolutely none" in the Syrian position.

Assad feels that Sadat has double-crossed him because he did not get Israel to agree to withdraw from the Golan Heights, the Syrian territory it occupied in the 1967 war.

Liquor

"drys" would stand. Both the "wets" and "drys" filed election contest suits in Abilene but neither has been set for hearing.

The Alcoholic Beverage Commission asked the Supreme Court to tell it what to do, specifically asking that Matthews' decision be cancelled.

"The mandamus is granted that Judge Charles Matthews issue an order setting aside his judgment on Aug. 8," the Supreme Court said Wednesday after hearing an hour and a half of argument. No motion for a rehearing would be considered. "It concerns me that the counting of votes in Abilene is being interrupted by what happens here in Austin," said Associate Justice Jack Pope.

"Neither the attorney general's department nor the Alcoholic Beverage Commission cares whether Precinct One in Abilene goes wet or dry," said Assistant Attorney General Max Flusche, representing the commission. "We are here with the argument that this should be litigated in Taylor County not Travis County."

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) -

The five members of the champion Australian firefighting team may not be able to enjoy their prize - a 28-day Hawaiian holiday. They're in jail. And officials say the five men - from the Cessnock Detention Center will probably have to stay in prison even though they beat five crack teams from across Australia to take the top prize.

The Industrial Fire Brigades Association, which organized the contest, would like to have three of the five inmates for the Australian firefighting team that will soon visit Samoa, the Philippines and Hong Kong.

But no one knows if they'll be able to take that trip, either. How did they win? They nosed out their closest competitors by five points, excelling in the written test.

They had lots of time to study.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) -

A whiskered, four-footed something has taken refuge in the ceiling above Alan and Marianne Dowdy's laundry room.

And because of this reclusive resident, they will tell you that the possibility of mice is not a major concern right now. But they are nearly at their wits' end, trying to find a way to remove the fullgrown, female cat that has spent the past three weeks above the laundryroom's paneled, drop ceiling.

The malodorous problem is becoming particularly pressing but they say no amount of tuna has been able to coax the shy feline from her laundryroom lair.

Dowdy, a self-employed plumber, says he can't remove the ceiling panels without tearing out the air conditioning ducts. He says he and his wife got the cat three weeks ago from a veterinarian who said it had been living in a barn loft.

"Maybe it wants to stay up there because it lived in a barn loft so long," Dowdy said. "I can't get to it and it won't come down."

He said he has tried to starve the cat down but has fed it twice - by leaving food out at night - during the three-week period. Now, says Dowdy, he's about ready to resort to a rat trap to catch a cat.

DA Saul Explains Duties of Office

Roland Saul, criminal district attorney, explained the duties of his office and outlined some personal goals when he appeared as guest speaker for the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday at the Community Center.

Saul, who was appointed to the office July 1 to fill out an unexpired term, starts his first elective term in January. He pointed out the criminal D.A. also handles the duties of a county attorney. Besides handling all criminal cases, the office spends much time with county business, he said.

Accompanying Saul to the meeting were assistant D.A.'s Jerry Smith and Loran Constanzo. Smith has been with the office about three weeks, coming here from Houston.

The D.A. said his goals included the setting up and maintaining a good working relationship with all law enforcement agencies, concentrating on the prosecution of "career" criminals, and handling more misdemeanor cases.

Estate Sells Deaf Smith Farm After 72-Year Era

By O.G. NIEMAN
Publisher

A half-section of land in northwest Deaf Smith County changed owners this month--not an unusual news item except that it has been purchased in 1906 by Joseph Y. Chmelik of Chicago, Ill., and had remained as a family investment for 72 years.

Adding to the interest of the transaction was the fact that Mr. Chmelik had recorded a story about his "Texas land" some 20 years ago, and his daughter, Mrs. Minerva Russell, provided that story to The Brand.

Mrs. Russell, who resides in Reading, Pa., was in Hereford two weeks ago to finalize the sale of the land to Herschel Black, owner of H&R Manufacturing here in the city.

Recalling that her family always referred to the land as "papa's pride and joy," Mrs. Russell said the heirs had decided to sell the farm "because the distribution of the ownership from generation to generation becomes quite complicated."

Mr. Chmelik died in 1963 at the age of 92 and granted the land to his three children and their spouses. Mrs. Russell and her late husband handled the management of the farm and the finances for the heirs.

Mrs. Russell, now an active lady at 76, recalls that she and her husband joined Mr. Chmelik on a visit to Hereford in 1957. "We came to investigate the possibility of drilling irrigation wells on the land," she said. "A local real estate man, Sam Nunnally, helped convince us that it was the thing to do." She added there had been "tremendous changes" in the city since 1957.

The farm, located some 25 miles northwest of Hereford, has had a number of tenants over the years, but A.R. Dillard has rented the land since the irrigation days, according to Mrs. Russell. He continues to be the tenant, Black reported at the time of the sale.

Mr. Chmelik was a young postoffice branch manager in Chicago in 1906 when he invested in the Deaf Smith County land. Another clerk in the office went with Chmelik to buy a section of land, and it was treated as one unit for tenants over the years.

But Chmelik's story on land investment begins with his father, and you can read his story of:

THE TEXAS LAND

It was about the year of 1876 in Chicago where my father was in the milk business, selling it at 5 cents a quart and making two deliveries a day. The railroad companies were trying to settle the north and west on land granted to them by the government for having built the railroads.

My father and several neighbors got interested in land on what was known as Land Seekers Excursion in Fajrmt, Minn. Father contracted for two 40-acre pieces at $6.50 an acre on a time-payment plan. He must have been a long time paying. When one of the 40-acre pieces had been paid up, he had me--I was about 12 years old then--go to the railroad company with our receipts and get a deed to it.

It was then we found out...the money had been going to an agent who was not turning over the money to the railroad company and he was being prosecuted for misappropriation of funds. The railroad company was quite generous and said they would give father credit for the few payments that had been turned over to them. He could have the land at the original price--the value had gone up considerably--by continuing the payments.

This was a problem to father and mother. They held a conference and decided they could only pay on one 40-acre piece, and let the other go. Father was working in a planing mill making

$1.25 a day for 10 hours. They decided when I went to work that my earnings would pay for it, and it would be mine when I got married.

In the meantime, my mother died and father re-married. So when I was married and my wife was pregnant, I asked for the deed to the land. Father was still willing but my stepmother objected to this and wanted the land to go back to the family when I died. We objected to this, particularly my wife. She said for them to keep it, "if you cannot get it with a clear title." That settled it, and I got the land. Later on, I rented it for $1 an acre, and again for more.

In 1905, when I was foreman of the Douglas Parks Station, Smith Colby, a carrier at the post office, asked for a leave of absence for 30 days to go to Hereford, Texas to look over land offered for sale by the John V. Farwell syndicate of Chicago, who had built the capitol of Texas and, in payment, had received about two million acres of land in the Panhandle.

They had been operating the XIT Ranch, which was known as the largest cattle ranch in the world. While Colby was there, he sent in glowing reports about the country. He had contacted a local real estate man, A.H. Elliston, and bought several sections and city lots at about half the price the farmers were asking, namely $15 to $20 an acre.

I got interested, with the result they bought us a section with John Cartwright, another letter carrier, at $7.50 an acre. He took the west half and I had the east half. To do that, I had to sell the Minnesota property, for which I received $46.50 an acre. I thought I had robbed the man! But later, during the War No. 1, land was selling at $300 an acre.

One of the reasons for selling was that this was only 40 acres and, for the same money, I could have 320 acres, or about eight times as much. The population of the United States was constantly increasing and the availability of farmland decreasing. I figured the natural result would be our land would go up in value proportionately, which it has.

During all those years, I had subscribed to the local papers and kept informed. During the period we owned the land in Minnesota, they had all kinds of disasters--droughts, grasshoppers and so forth. At one time, the governor of Minnesota had to give the area relief. Conditions were so bad, not only there but in other states, that some abandoned or leased the land if they had friends who could loan them money to get back.

Then, when the cycle changed, the lucky ones--note, I say lucky ones--who had no one to help them get away, had to sweat it out and again they raised good crops and were able to buy up the land at their own price.

The same conditions prevailed in Hereford. Had it not been for that and the belief in the increase of population and so forth, we may have been tempted to sell out if offered what we would have thought was a good price. We stuck it out, however, paying no attention to the real estate men's letters. Now, we leave a legacy to our family and, while it may not be much, it demonstrates what can be accomplished by determination to hold on to an investment in which you have faith.

What are some of the things I should have the garage routinely check when I take my car in for service? Some of the things they normally don't check too close on a routine service are: Master cylinder for brake fluid, front wheel bearings, brake shoes, battery cable connections, wheel alignment and you should always have them check the air filter on the carburetor. It is also a good idea to have all the lights checked as many times as you have a turn light or tail light out for months without knowing it. Fuel can be saved by having the carburetor checked to see the car is idling properly. You can lose part of the power of your battery with bad cable connections, and your battery not turn the starter on a cold morning.

Dead Policeman's Vest Introduced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A bloody bullet-proof vest that couldn't protect Patrolman Ralph Ablanedo and a bullet-pierced hackberry trunk have made the point - an AK-47 is a powerful weapon.

But prosecutors of David Lee Powell, 27, Ablanedo's alleged killer, planned to call ballistics experts today to testify further about the slugs that cut down the young officer.

Powell could be executed with a lethal injection if convicted of killing Ablanedo. Also charged with capital murder but scheduled for a separate trial next month is Sheila Meinert, who was driving Powell's car the night of the slaying.

Ablanedo's slender widow, Judy, put her hand to her mouth and wept quietly when the bullet-proof vest was introduced Wednesday. It had two holes in the chest area and was brown with dry blood.

The prosecution introduced a section of hackberry tree trunk, sliced down the middle to show a four-inch bullet track through the dense wood. The tree was a few feet behind where Ablanedo was standing when hit by the machine gun-like fire.

Jurors also saw an American M-67 hand grenade, a smooth, olive drab, baseball-shaped weapon, that apparently was tossed at policemen during the shoot-out following Ablanedo's slaying.

'Drowned' Grain Dealer Spotted in Washington

DALLAS (AP) - Bobby Johnson, a federal fugitive for 20 months despite the fact he reportedly drowned in the Gulf of Mexico early last year, has been seen alive and positively identified by the FBI.

James Geer, assistant special agent in charge of the Dallas division of the FBI, said agents positively identified the Wichita Falls grain dealer Aug. 18, living in Clarkston, Wash., under the assumed name Darrell Dean Olson.

However, the same evening, Johnson was apparently tipped that agents were in the area and fled Clarkston, abandoning the truck he was driving about 20 miles outside the town, the agent said.

Geer said agents had been conducting interviews in Clarkston after receiving information about a vehicle linked to Johnson that was registered to an Irene M. Olson at Great Falls, Mont. Further investigation determined the woman had moved to Clarkston, Wash., and was living with a Darrel Olson. Agents had interviewed the woman in Clarkston the evening Johnson disappeared. Geer said the present whereabouts of Johnson and the woman are unknown.

Federal investigation of Johnson began in January 1977 when a several million dollar grain shortage was uncovered at Robert Johnson Grain and Molasses Co. about the time Johnson was reported as having drowned under mysterious circumstances Jan. 3, 1977. He reportedly fell from a cabin cruiser in the Gulf of Mexico, and his body was never recovered.

Politicians Rewarded Claims Tongsun Park

WASHINGTON (AP) - Tongsun Park, giving new details about his lobbying activities for South Korea, says he rewarded congressmen who voted favorably on aid to Seoul by directing business to their districts.

Park told the House ethics committee Wednesday that he encouraged South Korea to grant contracts for rice and various projects to constituents of "friendly" congressmen and senators.

Park discussed his "philosophy" in dealing with Congress while testifying that he gave Rep. John J. McFall, D-Calif., $4,000 in cash and a $500 tea set between 1972 and 1974. The congressman is accused of violating House rules by accepting the money and the gift.

McFall, who as a former majority whip held the third-ranking Democratic post in the House, was expected to testify in his own defense today. He was denied any wrongdoing.

Park said Wednesday that he linked favors he did for congressmen - especially regarding rice sales - with how they voted on military aid and other legislation affecting Korea.

"I had the feeling that if my friends in Congress were sympathetic to the needs of the people of South Korea, they ought to be recognized ... and helped in any way possible," said the former middleman for U.S. rice sales to Korea.

Ford Summoned By Assassination Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former President Gerald R. Ford is returning to Capitol Hill to explain how the Warren Commission went about investigating the murder of President John F. Kennedy.

The House Assassinations Committee summoned Ford to answer questions about the quality and thoroughness of the probe which led the commission to conclude that Lee Harvey Oswald was the assassin and that he acted alone.

The former president also was expected to be asked about a statement in FBI files that he agreed to keep the FBI "thoroughly advised as to the activities of the commission" on a confidential basis.

Ford is one of the few still-living members of the commission which then-President Lyndon B. Johnson created seven days after the assassination of Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. Ford was a House member from Michigan at the time. The late Earl Warren, then chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, was commission chairman.

The commission was assigned to get to the root of the assassination and the murder of Oswald by Jack Ruby.

After nearly a year of work, the commission published a 26-volume report which became an immediate target of criticism and controversy.

San Antonio attorneys handling the lawsuit, we had never seen statistics on "fair and equal representation" which used the number of registered voters as a factor.

This is confusing to many citizens. We received a "letter to the editor" today which was critical of Judge Sam Morgan for saying he thinks the precincts were evenly divided. The letter writer points to the difference in voters to prove the judge is wrong. The judge is talking about population; the writer about voters.

How can you apportion voters to precincts? People may vote and they may not. You can't apportion "voter apathy" either!

President Carter's original projections for 1979, since modified, envisaged a deficit about $21 billion greater than the one now projected.

The House included the figure in its original version of the budget resolution, but the Senate had no corresponding figure.

Unless an extensive study is made, or another census count, we doubt anyone knows whether the population of the precincts has changed greatly since 1970. It seems to us the key issue is the definition of "fair and equal representation." It is apparent, however, that not everyone has the same definition, nor the same solution to bring it about.

The board voted to include a new job description for a manager (executive vice president) in the chamber policy handbook.

Nieman said that he has appointed Gladys Cavness, Bill Johnson, Mike Patrick and directors Paul Abalos and Jerry Payne to a committee to nominate four chamber board members.

Nieman, in another report, said that a committee in New Mexico has been corresponding with Panhandle chamber officials concerning improvements of the highway from Amarillo to El Paso.

Chamber officials in both states are

The board today also agreed to set its next meeting for 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 16, instead of in the morning.

"drys" would stand. Both the "wets" and "drys" filed election contest suits in Abilene but neither has been set for hearing.

The Alcoholic Beverage Commission asked the Supreme Court to tell it what to do, specifically asking that Matthews' decision be cancelled.

"The mandamus is granted that Judge Charles Mathews issue an order setting aside his judgment on Aug. 8," the Supreme Court said Wednesday after hearing an hour and a half of argument. No motion for a rehearing would be considered.

"It concerns me that the counting of votes in Abilene is being interrupted by what happens here in Austin," said Associate Justice Jack Pope.

"Neither the attorney general's department nor the Alcoholic Beverage Commission cares whether Precinct One in Abilene goes wet or dry," said Assistant Attorney General Max Flusche, representing the commission. "We are here with the argument that this should be litigated in Taylor County not Travis County."

"We are here because the Alcoholic Beverage Commission made an arbitrary decision and took the latest-dated vote canvass as a basis to issue permits," said Buck Wood, attorney for anti-liquor forces. "The only way we could perpetuate the dry victory of the July 10 canvass was to sue the ABC in Travis County."

Mary Joe Carroll, speaking for the anti-liquor group, warned that if the Supreme Court voided Matthews' order the election contest suits in Abilene would be dismissed.

Paul Harvey News Newsmen Do Not Tell All

Dr. Peter Bourne was President Carter's advisor on drug abuse. Now it is gossiped that Dr. Bourne had himself used drugs.

The Washington press corps has gossiped that Dr. Bourne used pot and cocaine, according to Washington Post ombudsman Charles Seib, because several unnamed reporters are supposed to have said they were in a bedroom with him at a party in December when he both smoked and snorted.

Then why did nothing come out until months later when Dr. Bourne gave a woman in his office a prescription on which he had written a false name?

If the supposed drug involvement was sufficiently significant to cost Bourne his job in July, why had the reporters ignored it last December?

Were the reporters at that party, if the story is true, suppressing the news, breaching the public trust?

Michael Gartner is editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and he is also a lawyer.

Recently he confronted us of the media with this challenge:

"It is a rare reporter who tattles on a friend."

One of the reasons that my home base is removed by a thousand miles from Washington, D.C. is that, with Walter Lippmann, I have always believed a newsmen should keep a little air space between himself and the newsmakers.

I don't know how any observer, however disciplined, could report objectively about somebody with whom he is on a first-name basis.

Justice Louis Brandeis said, "The function of the press is very high, almost holy. To misstate or suppress any news is a breach of trust."

Yet all those years that a certain senator was being helped off the Senate floor because he was drunk-regularly and frequently--you never heard a word about it.

Nor did his home state constituents.

Should we have tattled?

(Because he is deceased there seems to be no purpose in naming him now; furthermore, the Senate never has been limited to only one such.)

Mr. Gartner says that editors and reporters know far more than they are willing to print--and much of what they refuse to print is about their own activities.

Presently a reporter is on the carpet for having sought to use privileged information for personal financial gain; yet there are dozens of reporters who have written profitable books based on such information.

When reporters and/or editors get together in a social gathering you hear the doggondest cacophony of substantive stuff that never goes public. You have to wonder if the media is in fact selective in choosing its targets.

I keep remembering something publisher Katherine Graham of the Washington Post said: "We must ask ourselves if we would really have been as tenacious in pursuing the Watergate expose if the President had been any one other than Richard Nixon."

If it seems at the moment that the courts are intruding on our files and unjustly jailing our reporters, have we been asking for it?

Death Penalty Reversed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The death penalty conviction of William Edward Cortez in the shooting death of a Corpus Christi restaurant manager was reversed Wednesday because the prosecution introduced an inadequately documented Florida "pen packet."

Convictions shown by the criminal records packet could have swayed the jury improperly against Cortez, the high court said.

A new trial was ordered. Cortez, paroled 17 days earlier from the Nebraska penitentiary, was convicted in the Aug. 30, 1975, slaying of Garry Whitley, manager of a Sambo's restaurant.

Testimony showed Whitley chased Cortez after Cortez held him up and left the restaurant.

At the punishment phase of the trial, the prosecution introduced a Florida "pen packet" recording Cortez' convictions in 1954 and 1960 for auto theft. It was certified by Louie L. Wainwright, secretary of the Florida Department of Offender Rehabilitation.

But the court said there was no certification by a judge or the Florida secretary of state that Wainwright in fact was the legal custodian of the documents.

Bunker's Chair Immortalized

WASHINGTON (AP) - For nearly eight years on national television, Archie Bunker has held court from a rust-colored, wingback chair.

It has been his soapbox for tirades against Jews, Poles and blacks. A place to worry out loud about job and family. A launching pad for verbal strikes against his "dingbat" wife, Edith.

But as of today, Archie Bunker can stop worrying about protecting his throne from would-be usurpers, notably his son-in-law. His chair is now in the Smithsonian Institution as a cultural exhibit.

The public will be able to view the chair - encased in plastic along with the patterned armchair used by Edith - in the "Nation of Nations" wing of the National Museum of History and Technology.

"They're on the second floor to the left of George Washington," one guide said of the chairs' location relative to a statue of the first president.

What the 1940s chairs - old when acquired for "All in the Family" from California prop warehouses - are doing in the national museum was explained by S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian.

"Museum people have a high regard for objects that tell a story," Ripley told some 800 persons at the exhibit opening Tuesday night. "By honoring these chairs, we give recognition to a popular television series that we hope has stimulated audiences to re-examine their values and prejudices, dreams and desires."

The chairs have been central to the story of the couple from Queens since

"Family" premiered on CBS television as Jan. 12, 1971.

From their living room, actor Carroll O'Connor and actress Jean Stapleton have dealt with topics from the Vietnam War to inflation, menopause and racism - often in a simultaneously distasteful and amusing way.

As son-in-law Mike once tried to explain Archie to guest star Sammy Davis Jr.: "He's not so bad. He wouldn't burn a cross on your lawn."

To which Davis responded: "No, but he might stop to toast a marshmallow."

The comedies - or what Ripley suggested might better be termed "social commentaries from one family's living room" - have won the show 50 million weekly viewers, more than a dozen Emmies, financial security for creator Norman Lear and star status for O'Connor, Ms. Stapleton and former regulars Sally Struthers and Rob Reiner.

And protests, too, from Polish-Americans, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and others offended by the Bunkers' words or deeds.

But Lear told those at the Smithsonian that having a positive influence on American viewers was the show's aim.

"We are happy tossing our pebbles into the streams of social awareness, and we will continue to throw more. Should an appreciable portion of the nation elect to join us at the water's edge, perhaps our combined efforts will be measureable."

Lear, 54, said that "Family" also reflected one of his late father's traits - "a territorial imperative about his chair." His show became the first TV situation comedy that "examined social issues at the heart of American life," said Smithsonian curator Carl Scheele. "It changed the face of a lot of TV's approach ... I don't think television could revert to the pre-Archie Bunker era."

The museum's exhibit has the chairs separated by a small walnut end table, topped with a dolly, a glass ashtray and a partially smoked cigar. Floral wallpaper forms the backdrop. Nearby in the wing dedicated to America's ethnic background are a rainbow-colored Wurlitzer, the white gloves and black-face makeup used by Eddie Cantor and a reconstructed 1925 Italian-American kitchen, complete with replica stewing chicken.

"Family" cast members thought it was appropriate to put the chairs in the Smithsonian.

"It's better than being cast in wax," concluded Ms. Stapleton.

O'Connor, prevented from attending the ceremony and a White House visit by continued treatment for high blood pressure, used a long-distance phone hookup to say that admission to the Smithsonian "is really a great thrill to me. No other honor done to Norman and the rest of the cast can possibly equal that."

The show goes on, despite the contribution of its chairs to the national museum. An assistant to Lear said replicas of the "originals" complete with frayed threads and stains have been created for future episodes of "All in the Family."

Lighter Side

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - The five members of the champion Australian firefighting team may not be able to enjoy their prize - a 28-day Hawaiian holiday - They're in jail. And officials say the five men from the Cessnock Detention Center will probably have to stay in prison even though they beat five crack teams from across Australia to take the top prize.

The Industrial Fire Brigades Association, which organized the contest, would like to have three of the five inmates for the Australian firefighting team that will soon visit Samoa, the Philippines and Hong Kong.

But no one knows if they'll be able to take that trip, either. How did they win? They nosed out their closest competitors by five points, "excelling in the written test."

They had lots of time to study.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) - A whiskered, four-footed something has taken refuge in the ceiling above Alan and Marianne Dowdy's laundry room.

And because of this reclusive resident, they will tell you that the possibility of mice is not a major concern right now. But they are nearly at their wits' end, trying to find a way to remove the fullgrown, female cat that has spent the past three weeks above the laundryroom's paneled, drop ceiling.

The malodorous problem is becoming particularly pressing but they say no amount of tuna has been able to coax the shy feline from her laundryroom lair.

Dowdy, a self-employed plumber, says he can't remove the ceiling panels without tearing out the air conditioning ducts. He says he and his wife got the cat three weeks ago from a veterinarian who said it had been living in a barn loft.

"Maybe it wants to stay up there because it lived in a barn loft so long," Dowdy said. "I can't get to it and it won't come down."

He said he has tried to starve the cat down but has fed it twice - by leaving food out at night - during the three-week period. Now, says Dowdy, he's about ready to resort to a rat trap to catch a cat.

DA Saul Explains Duties of Office

Roland Saul, criminal district attorney, explained the duties of his office and outlined some personal goals when he appeared as guest speaker for the Hereford Lions Club Wednesday at the Community Center.

Saul, who was appointed to the office July 1 to fill out an unexpired term, starts his first elective term in January. He pointed out the criminal D.A. also handles the duties of a county attorney. Besides handling all criminal cases, the office spends much time with county business, he said.

Accompanying Saul to the meeting were assistant D.A.'s Jerry Smith and Loran Constanzo. Smith has been with the office about three weeks, coming here from Houston.

The D.A. said his goals included the setting up and maintaining a good working relationship with all law enforcement agencies, concentrating on the prosecution of "career" criminals, and handling more misdemeanor cases.

A half-section of land in northwest Deaf Smith County changed owners this month--not an unusual news item except that it has been purchased in 1906 by Joseph Y. Chmelik of Chicago, Ill., and had remained as a family investment for 72 years.

Adding to the interest of the transaction was the fact that Mr. Chmelik had recorded a story about his "Texas land" some 20 years ago, and his daughter, Mrs. Minerva Russell, provided that story to The Brand.

Mrs. Russell, who resides in Reading, Pa., was in Hereford two weeks ago to finalize the sale of the land to Herschel Black, owner of H&R Manufacturing here in the city.

Recalling that her family always referred to the land as "papa's pride and joy," Mrs. Russell said the heirs had decided to sell the farm "because the distribution of the ownership from generation to generation becomes quite complicated."

Mr. Chmelik died in 1963 at the age of 92 and granted the land to his three children and their spouses. Mrs. Russell and her late husband handled the management of the farm and the finances for the heirs.

Mrs. Russell, now an active lady at 76, recalls that she and her husband joined Mr. Chmelik on a visit to Hereford in 1957. "We came to investigate the possibility of drilling irrigation wells on the land," she said. "A local real estate man, Sam Nunnally, helped convince us that it was the thing to do." She added there had been "tremendous changes" in the city since 1957.

The farm, located some 25 miles northwest of Hereford, has had a number of tenants over the years, but A.R. Dillard has rented the land since the irrigation days, according to Mrs. Russell. He continues to be the tenant, Black reported at the time of the sale.

Mr. Chmelik was a young postoffice branch manager in Chicago in 1906 when he invested in the Deaf Smith County land. Another clerk in the office went with Chmelik to buy a section of land, and it was treated as one unit for tenants over the years.

But Chmelik's story on land investment

begins with his father, and you can read his story of:

THE TEXAS LAND

It was about the year of 1876 in Chicago where my father was in the milk business, selling it at 5 cents a quart and making two deliveries a day. The railroad companies were trying to settle the north and west on land granted to them by the government for having built the railroads.

My father and several neighbors got interested in land on what was known as Land Seekers Excursion in Fairmont, Minn. Father contracted for two 40-acre pieces at $6.50 an acre on a time-payment plan. He must have been a long time paying. When one of the 40-acre pieces had been paid up, he had me--I was about 12 years old then--go to the railroad company with our receipts and get a deed to it.

It was then we found out...the money had been going to an agent who was not turning over the money to the railroad company and he was being prosecuted for misappropriation of funds. The railroad company was quite generous and said they would give father credit for the few payments that had been turned over to them. He could have the land at the original price--the value had gone up considerably--by continuing the payments.

This was a problem to father and mother. They held a conference and decided they could only pay on one 40-acre piece, and let the other go. Father was working in a planing mill making

$1.25 a day for 10 hours. They decided when I went to work that my earnings would pay for it, and it would be mine when I got married.

In the meantime, my mother died and father re-married. So when I was married and my wife was pregnant, I asked for the deed to the land. Father was still willing but my stepmother objected to this and wanted the land to go back to the family when I died. We objected to this, particularly my wife. She said for them to keep it, "if you cannot get it with a clear title." That settled it, and I got the land. Later on, I rented it for $1 an acre, and again for more.

In 1905, when I was foreman of the Douglas Parks Station, Smith Colby, a carrier at the post office, asked for a leave of absence for 30 days to go to Hereford, Texas to look over land offered for sale by the John V. Farwell syndicate of Chicago, who had built the capitol of Texas and, in payment, had received about two million acres of land in the Panhandle.

They had been operating the XIT Ranch, which was known as the largest cattle ranch in the world. While Colby was there, he sent in glowing reports about the country. He had contacted a local real estate man, A.H. Elliston, and bought several sections and city lots at about half the price the farmers were asking, namely $15 to $20 an acre.

I got interested, with the result they bought us a section with John Cartwright, another letter carrier, at $7.50 an acre. He took the west half and I had the east half. To do that, I had to sell the Minnesota property, for which I received $46.50 an acre. I thought I had robbed the man! But later, during the War No. 1, land was selling at $300 an acre.

One of the reasons for selling was that this was only 40 acres and, for the same money, I could have 320 acres, or about eight times as much. The population of the United States was constantly increasing and the availability of farmland decreasing. I figured the natural result would be our land would go up in value proportionately, which it has.

During all those years, I had subscribed to the local papers and kept informed. During the period we owned the land in Minnesota, they had all kinds of disasters--droughts, grasshoppers and so forth. At one time, the governor of Minnesota had to give the area relief. Conditions were so bad, not only there but in other states, that some abandoned or leased the land if they had friends who could loan them money to get back.

Then, when the cycle changed, the lucky ones--note, I say lucky ones--who had no one to help them get away, had to sweat it out and again they raised good crops and were able to buy up the land at their own price.

The same conditions prevailed in Hereford. Had it not been for that and the belief in the increase of population and so forth, we may have been tempted to sell out if offered what we would have thought was a good price. We stuck it out, however, paying no attention to the real estate men's letters. Now, we leave a legacy to our family and, while it may not be much, it demonstrates what can be accomplished by determination to hold on to an investment in which you have faith.

[Tomorrow: Part 2--The first trip to Hereford and other experiences up to 1957.]

What are some of the things I should have the garage routinely check when I take my car in for service? Some of the things they normally don't check too close on a routine service are: Master cylinder for brake fluid, front wheel bearings, brake shoes, battery cable connections, wheel alignment and you should always have them check the air filter on the carburetor. It is also a good idea to have all the lights checked as many times as you have a turn light or tail light out for months without knowing it. Fuel can be saved by having the carburetor checked to see the car is idling properly. You can lose part of the power of your battery with bad cable connections, and your battery not turn the starter on a cold morning.

Whitefaces Travel To Bulldog Land

By DON INGRAM
Sports Editor

Hereford football fans will get a look at how well their Whitefaces can bounce back Friday night in Borger.

The Whitefaces found few friends in Amarillo against the Dons last week and Coach Don Cumpton hopes his Herd troops can rebound mentally and physically for their second season win.

Good news prevailed though in the Herd camp this week as running back Paul Bell may see action in Bulldog Land.

Bell, the leading district rusher a year ago, has been sidelined for three weeks due to a sprained ligament. He has not played since the Herd season commenced Sept. 8.

Tuesday night, Cumpton told local boosters Bell may see some playing time, depending on how well his injured knee has responded to treatments. Cumpton cautioned boosters about Bell's possible starting role.

Borger was 7-3 last year and finished third in District 1-AAA.

The Bulldogs are expected to field seven offensive veterans including quarterback Greg Fleming and running backs Ricky Ennis, Tommy Newell and Brad McCarty.

Other Bulldogs the Herd will have to contend with include guard Craig Maxwell along with linebacker Bobby Forest and safety Sammy Aquirre.

In the pre-season polls, Borger was rated 5th. They were open last week but opened their season downing Lubbock High.

Hereford started their pre-season with a strong scrimmage showing against Amarillo Tascosa, then opened with Pampa.

The Herd downed the Harvesters 13-7 here in a game which the offense looked sharp the first half, then hung on the second half while the defense held off a Pampa surge.

Kickoff time in Bulldog Land is 7:30 p.m.

Atlanta Braves Edge Astros, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — While four other major league teams are trying to hold on to first place in their respective divisions, Atlanta pitcher Gene Garber and his Braves teammates are attempting another important task.

"I'd like nothing better than to finish fifth instead of last," said Garber, 6-5, who picked up his second win in relief over the last two nights as the Braves slipped past the Houston Astros, 3-2, Wednesday night.

"We're close enough to get out of the cellar and it would be good to finish fifth because it would help us carry a good mood over into next season."

Glenn Hubbard stroked a two-out run-scoring single in the ninth inning to break a 2-2 tie and send the Astros down to their eighth loss in their last nine games.

Joe Nolan singled with one out in the Atlanta ninth and was replaced by pinch-runner Ed Miller, who stole second base before coming home on Hubbard's second single of the game as the Braves moved within one-place game of the fifth-place Astros in the National League West.

The Braves opened the game with three singles against losing pitcher Joe Nickro, 12-14, but Jeff Burroughs' sacrifice fly scored the inning's only run.

The Astros came back with a run in the bottom half of the inning on a wild pitch on a third strike to Rafael Landestroy and Jose Cruz' double to the left-field corner. Dale Murphy's triple and a passed ball charged to Luis Pujols pushed the Braves into a 2-1 lead in the fourth, but Houston tied the score again in the fifth on a double by Pujols and an RBI single by Landestroy.

"Once I get more consistency, I'll start winning some more games," said Atlanta starter Frank LaCorte, who hurled the first seven innings.

"I think getting out of last place would give this club some incentive for next year."

The Astros, however, play the Braves four more times this season, including tonight, and Nickro and the rest of the Astros aren't about to concede anything.

"It would be a bad feeling to finish last," Nickro said. "Even though we're out of contention, we still get upset when we lose."

The victory was Atlanta's sixth in its last nine games.

Hereford Spikers Defeat Dumas

The Hereford volleyball team dumped Dumas in Demon Land Tuesday.

Hereford won in two sets of 15-7 and 15-11. Head coach Helen Reed said the team played well in preparation of

"He's going to come back. I don't worry about polls. He won on a falling poll." — Lillian Carter.

participating in the Lubbock Tournament this weekend.

High scorer for Hereford was Cindy Cox while best spiker was Teresa Lambert. Miss Lambert was also named best all-around during the game.

Best setter was Diana Villarreal.

The JV's lost their bout with the Demons. High scorer was Susie Chavez and Drenda Kennedy.

Susie Chavez was outstanding setter for Hereford while Chavez and Miss Kennedy were out-standing spikers.

The team will play Brownfield in their first tournament match Friday in Lubbock at 11:30 a.m. Hereford plays Tascosa there Monday, then play Caprock here Tuesday. Play begins at 6:30 p.m.

UT Tackles Expected To Miss Game

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Offensive starting tackle Terry Tausch and Craig Rider missed Wednesday's workout with ankle injuries but Coach Fred Akers said the pair would play in Texas' home opener against Wyoming if they improve by Saturday.

"It's hard for me to talk about injuries," Akers said. "They didn't work out today is all I know."

Steve Massey, the alternate defensive tackle who gives the Longhorns needed depth, has reportedly suffered a chipped bone in his right foot in an injury first thought to be an ankle sprain. He is expected to miss the next two games.

Akers said linebacker Mark Martignoni is improving and might be back in action against Wyoming.

NO BIZ LIKE SHOW BIZ

NEW YORK (AP) — When a young man, fresh out of Duquesne University, applied in 1957 for a job at a Pittsburgh ad agency, he was advised to forget advertising as a career.

Officials at the agency, Ketchum, MacLeod & Grove, said he should keep plugging away at his first choice — the entertainment field.

The man was Bobby Vinton, who went on to sell more than 25 million hit records.

Allen Ahead

In North PGA

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Ras Allen of Plano took a three-shot lead Wednesday in the Northern Texas PGA Championship, shooting a three-under-par 67 in the tournament's second day for a 132 total.

Warren Chancellor of Dallas posted a 65 for a 135 total. Defending champion Rives McBee of Irving trailed with a 136.

Guy Cullins of Denton had the day's lowest round — a six-under-par 64 for a 137 total to move up to a fourth-place tie with Benny Passons of Fort Worth and Richard Goetz of Longview.

Twins Scratch Out Win Against Rangers Gun Club To Host Shoot

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Rod Carew was 2-for-4 and Dan Ford, who's been in a slump the last half the season, rapped out 3 singles in 4 at-bats Wednesday night as the Minnesota Twins scratched out a 5-3 baseball victory over the Texas Rangers.

The Twins managed to push across four runs in the fourth inning without getting the ball out of the infield. They capitalized on four walks off rookie Steve Comer, a hit batsman and two infield singles.

While Comer dropped his fifth loss against nine victories, Twins' righthander Dave Goltz upped his record to 14-10. He struck out three and walked two.

In the Twins' lucky fourth, Dave Edwards and Roy Smalley walked to force in the first two runs and Rod Carew got an infield hit, scoring the third run. Comer was replaced by Len Barker, who allowed an infield single to Dan Ford for the fourth run.

Ford also knocked in the Twins' fifth run with a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Ford leads the Twins with 77 RBI but has been struggling more than a month to gain his earlier form. He has hit 10 homers but hasn't slammed one since July 22. His three hits Wednesday night were all singles.

Texas' Richie Zisk socked his 20th homer of the season, a two-run blow in the sixth.

Ford blamed part of his troubles on his batting slot in the lineup.

"I haven't been hitting in the same spot in the second half of the year," he said. "I've been hitting sixth a lot of times and haven't been coming up with men on base that often. Consequently, I'm not seeing the same kind of pitching. It's a lot easier hitting with guys like Roy Smalley and Rod Carew in front of you all the time."

He said he is satisfied with his season, despite problems of late and added: "A lot of the things have been mental. They've been saying they want to trade me, and now they don't want to sign me. I don't know the reason. It might be the money I'm asking, or it might be the manager. He should have some say in the signing of a player." Goltz said he threw a lot of sliders and fast balls at the Rangers. "I thought they should have had a lot more hits than they did," he said.

Billy Hunter, Texas manager, said Comer apparently got upset after hitting Bobby Randall with a pitch. Even so, added Hunter, Comer "has been a very pleasant surprise for us. Control has been one of his finer points," he said of the former University of Minnesota Gopher hurler. "We plan to give him a shot at being a starter to begin with next season."

The Hereford Gun Club will conduct a turkey shoot Sunday at 2 p.m. east of the Hereford airport.

Practice rounds prior to the shoot will open at noon.

Fees for the competition will be $3 per five shot round, with winners of each round of competition receiving turkeys or hams.

In the event of inclement weather, interested shooters may call 364-4189 to confirm the event.

The gun club is also conducting regular practice sessions under the lights each Monday at 6:30 p.m.

Practice fees are $1.50 per 25-shot round for members and $2 for non-members.

Yanks Lead Sox in East

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox were so busy playing scoreboard baseball they forgot about the game on the field.

Before the Red Sox came to bat in Detroit, they were delighted to see that New York Yankee ace Ron Guidry had lost to lowly Toronto.

"We couldn't wait to get on the field when we knew Guidry got beat in the first game," said Jerry Remy, who had four of Boston's six hits in a 12-2 clobbering by Detroit Wednesday night. "Then we saw Toronto ahead 2-0 in the second game and we were really psyched up."

Meanwhile, Toronto handed Guidry only his third loss in 25 decisions, 8-1, in the opener, but the Yankees rallied for three runs in the ninth to win the nightcap 3-2.

With both Boston and New York having 10 games left, the Yankees lead the Red Sox by two games in the American League East.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee moved to within 5 1/2 games of the Yankees with a 5-4 victory over Kansas City, which now leads California by five games in the AL West. Minnesota beat Texas 5-3.

Rusty Staub and Lou Whitaker each belted three-run homers for Detroit. Boston's Jim Rice, the major league home run leader, belted his 42nd, a two-run shot in the ninth.

Blue Jays 8-2, Yanks 1-3

Reds Prevent Dodgers' Tie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Foster slugged his 34th home run — and pitcher Tom Seaver drilled a two-run single Wednesday night as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 4-3 and prevented the Dodgers from clinching a tie for the National League West championship.

The Dodgers' lead is 7 1/2 games with nine remaining. Their magic number for winning the division remained at three.

Foster's homer in the fourth with Joe Morgan aboard gave Cincinnati a 2-0 lead against loser Don Sutton, 15-11.

Seaver followed a two-out triple by Dan Driessen and walks to Dave Concepcion and Champ Summers with a two-run single in the seventh for Cincinnati's eventual winning runs.

Two of the Dodgers' runs came on solo homers by Ron Cey, who hit his 22nd in the fourth inning and 23rd in the ninth.

Seaver, 15-14, allowed five hits and struck out 12 before needing ninth-inning relief help from Doug Bair, who gained his 27th save.

SPORTS CAR LOSSES HIGH

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports or specialty-type 1978 cars have higher than average losses in collisions, while regular four-door models have lower than average losses, according to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety Information.

The institute said a study also showed that collision losses were almost always more frequent and more costly for regular two-door models than for regular four-door cars.

IN WASHINGTON Funding the unpopular

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

ST. PAUL, Minn. (NEA) - The conservatives' capture of the highly popular issue of drastic tax reductions is being viewed with great fascination — and considerable jealousy — by many of the nation's leading liberal political activists.

When more than 500 liberals from throughout the country met here recently under the auspices of the Conference on Alternative State and Local Public Policies, the topic of tax cuts was by far the single most popular agenda item.

But protracted discussions involving many of the nation's most talented liberal theoreticians failed to produce any consensus on a strategy to deal with the "tax revolt" that began in California and now is rapidly spreading to other states.

Most of those participating in the conference here were relatively young activists, in their 20s and 30s, who in recent years have been considerably less sanguine than older liberals about the efficacy of "New Deal" and "Great Society" solutions to the country's domestic problems.

As a result, there has been at least limited acceptance of the conservative argument that poverty, racial injustice and other social ills cannot be cured by "throwing money at them."

"We have seen first-hand the failure of last decade's social programs in our cities," admits Carol Bellamy, president of the New York City Council. "Austerity is not a metaphor in our cities. It is a daily fact of life."

"The New Deal is over," says Fred Branman of the California Public Policy Center. "The concept that we can rely on public funds to pay for things we want to do is no longer applicable."

In addition, many liberals belatedly have joined conservatives in becoming distrustful of "big government" and rejecting large federal and state bureaucracies as the appropriate vehicles to bring about social change.

"People are tired of massive, anonymous programs which provide visible benefits only to social planners and government bureaucrats," says Sam Brown, a longtime liberal activist who now heads ACTION, the federal volunteer agency.

Those concurrent developments ought to make it easy for the liberals to enthusiastically join with centrists and conservatives in calling for massive across-the-board tax cuts at all levels of government.

But the liberals remain determined to assist the poor and members of minority groups — a task that invariably requires massive infusions of government funds.

"Poverty and racial injustice remain the recurring central problems of our time," says Barney Frank, a member of the Massachusetts state legislature. "And in our society, government is assigned the messy, dirty, unpopular jobs," including providing assistance to the powerless.

The liberals acknowledge that one explanation for the astounding popularity of California's Proposition 13 lies in the middle-class rebellion against onerous tax burdens, with the funds too often used to finance unproductive programs.

But they also see in Proposition 13's success at the polls a streak of what Michael Harrington, chairman of the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee, calls "social meanness" — hostility toward the country's underclass.

Like others at the conference, Harrington hopes to shift the focus of the tax revolt, calling for "a much more egalitarian tax system than we now have" through abolition of all state and local levies in favor of "a highly progressive federal income tax."

Finally, Frank points out that simplistic tax reduction schemes do not guarantee the elimination of government waste and inefficiency. "Proposition 13 doesn't mean you spend better," he notes. "It only means you spend less."

The liberals refuse to abandon their commitment to social and economic justice for all Americans — but they now are painfully aware that many of the country's taxpayers no longer will pay for costly, unproductive domestic programs.

Aggies Brace For Rugged NTSU

Las Cruces, N.M. - It's time for the statisticians to reach for an extra pencil: the New Mexico State-North Texas State game this Saturday should be one with plenty of impressive figures.

The 2-0 Aggies, whose offense has posted some impressive statistics, square off against the 2-1 Mean Green, whose offense is among the most productive in the nation. With NMSU averaging 423.5 yards a game and North Texas State maintaining a 503.3 total offense norm, the 7:30 p.m. game in 30,343-seat Memorial Stadium could be an awesome offensive display.

After edging Texas-El Paso 35-32 before 30,194 fans in Las Cruces last week, the Aggies will likely be getting their stiffest test of the season with the Mean Green. NTSU, which has won its last five games against NMSU, has posted wins over UTEP (49-0) and Texas-Arlington (28-23) with the lone Mean Green loss coming against Mississippi State (17-5).

"They have 18 starters back from a team that was 10-1," says NMSU Coach Gil Krueger of North Texas State. By contrast, Krueger notes: "We can look very good at times and very inexperienced at others because we're young and we're learning. I'm just happy we're 2-0 at this point."

Two of the nation's top statistically-ranked passers will face each other as NMSU's David Spriggs, who is averaging 265 yards a game in total offense, takes charge for the Aggies while NTSU is led by Jordan Case, a precision passer who has thrown for almost 500 yards and no interceptions

SW Teams Expected To Have Rough Weekend

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Southwest Conference scatters from the Pacific to the Atlantic Saturday in search of intersectional football glory, but the oddsmakers figure such ambition will get the nine league schools more lumps than laurels.

Only four SWC schools remain unbeaten and three of them are ranked in The Associated Press Top Ten Poll.

The unbeaten are No. 2 Arkansas, No. 6 ranked Texas, No. 9 ranked Texas A&M and unranked Southern Methodist.

Only four of the SWC teams were favored. Arkansas was a 19-point pick over Oklahoma State. Texas was a four-touchdown selection over Wyoming. Texas A&M was a 16-point choice over Boston College and Houston was a 17-point selection over Utah.

Southern Methodist, a upset victor over Florida last week, was a 17-point underdog to powerful Penn State.

In other games, Oregon was a five and one-half point pick over Texas Christian. Arizona was a two and one-half point selection over Texas Tech. Kentucky was a seven and one-half point selection over Baylor. and Oklahoma was a whopping five touchdown choice over Rice.

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz said the Razorbacks could get a warm reception in Stillwater, Okla. Saturday afternoon.

"Playing in Stillwater has been extremely difficult for Arkansas in the past," said Holtz. "OSU has a defense that has great overall quickness."

Texas plays the school where Fred Akers was the coach until he answered the call to become the Longhorn mentor.

"I expect they'll be all juiced up when they come in here," said Akers.

The Texas Aggies, who had an off week after an opening victory over Kansas, will be trying to inflict revenge on Boston College which shocked Coach Emory Bellard's troops 32-24 at College Station in 1973.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer will carry 25 freshmen into the Nittany Lions den at Penn State.

"They think they can win and I hate to tell them any different," said Meyer.

Texas Tech had an open week to prepare for its home opener and Coach Rex Dockery said "I was pleased that we were able to throw a scare into Southern Cal. I think our young players gained some needed confidence. Our games with Arizona the last three years have been wild. It seems like there are always a lot of points scored in our games."

After the first two weeks of the season, the SWC is 3-4 against outside competition.

Momentary Lapses Costly for Cowboys

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - Both Arkansas and Oklahoma State had momentary lapses last week.

Arkansas survived: Oklahoma State didn't.

Arkansas led Vanderbilt 24-0 early in the third quarter, but Vanderbilt rallied for 17 points before Thomas Brown put the Commodores away with a 96-yard kickoff return. Arkansas won 48-17.

Oklahoma State led Florida State 6-3 with less than two minutes remaining in the half. The Cowboys fumbled twice before the end of the half and then fumbled the second-half kickoff and suddenly trailed 24-6. Florida State won 38-20.

"Confidence is a great part of any game and I think Florida State wouldn't have had as much as it did if it were down 6-3 at halftime and frankly, I think that's the way it should've been," said Oklahoma State coach Jim Stanley. "We played good enough to win at Florida State but you can't take the 'ifs' out of the ball game."

Winless Oklahoma State plays second-ranked Arkansas Saturday in Stillwater, Okla. How is the confidence of the Cowboys?

"I don't think they're dubious or anything," Stanley said. "I don't think anyone can measure that confidence."

Prior to the Florida State loss, OSU dropped a 20-10 decision to Wichita State.

Stanley says the Cowboys improved from the Wichita State game to Florida State. "If we continue to show the same type of improvement we could be a pretty good football team later in the season," Stanley said.

Arkansas coach Lou Holtz was asked what concerned him most about OSU.

"The same thing as Vanderbilt, we're worried about winning," Holtz said.

He said that, offensively, the Razorbacks were inconsistent against Vanderbilt.

"We had too many mental errors," Holtz said. "We have a long way to go but at least we have a starting point."

"We made a lot of mistakes we don't usually make. We turned the ball over on our own end of the field and that's uncharacteristic of what happened to us last year. Defensively, we've been concerned about our secondary and we gave up several big runs against Vanderbilt. We have to improve in that department."

Holtz also was pleased with the effort in the Arkansas kicking game-one of the areas of preseason concern-even though Vanderbilt returned a punt 90 yards for a touchdown.

Holtz said the blocking was better on two kickoffs than on the one Brown broke for 96 yards. Kicking specialist Ismael Ordonez kicked two field goals.

Streck Hoping To Get Off on Track

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

NAPA, Calif. (AP) - For Ron Streck, life on the right side of the pro golf tour's tracks begins today in Napa's $200,000 event.

Before last week's Texas Open, which he won by shooting the best back-to-back rounds in Professional Golfers Association history, the 24-year-old player had won $6,932 this year - $150,000 less than another former Tulsa University golfer, Nancy Lopez of the women's tour.

Streck was 156th on the money-winning list and in danger of losing his PGA tournament card when the Texas

Open began in San Antonio, and he barely made the cut with opening rounds of 73 and 67. Then came the sensational 63-62 finish which earned him $40,000.

Streck is now 65th among the year's money winners but in at least one important respect he's the equal of leader Tom Watson, one of the many tour headliners in the Napa starting field. He's exempt from the pretournament qualifying rounds he had come to know so well.

Streck is assured of keeping his exempt status for at least one year and of playing in next year's Master's and Tournament of Champions.

Streck won in Texas over a strong field, beating Hubert Green by one stroke, and the position also will be formidable this week over Silverado Country Club's par-72 courses.

Lee Trevino, Masters champion Gary Player, PGA winner John Mahaffey and U.S. Open champ Andy North are here along with last year's Napa winner Miller Barber. The tournament is sponsored by Anheuser-Busch.

Nieman Leading Grid Group

Hereford Brand publisher Speedy Nieman and teacher Karen Marsh gained momentum as forecasters in the Brand's "Fearless Forecasters" football predictions.

Both Nieman and Marsh missed only nine games as the weekend round of games took a heavy toll on all the prognosticators.

Games both Nieman and

Marsh missed included the Dumas-Pampa outcome with the Harvesters winning 29-7; Littlefield dumping Levelland 16-6; Frona squeezing by Lockney 7-6; Farwell over Morton; Penn State beating Ohio State; the WTSU loss to McNeese State and the Rams whipping the Cowboys.

Sports editor Don Ingram improved his standings with only ten misses while Paul Sims missed 11 and Bob Nigh 12.

All of the panelists missed the Levelland-Littlefield game as well as the Dallas-Los Angeles and WTSU-McNeese State games.

The forecaster's picks are listed each Thursday in the Brand.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The San Antonio Spurs have trimmed their training camp roster to 14 by cutting third-round draft choice Gerald Henderson and free agent Marshall Rogers of Pan American.

Meanwhile, disgruntled George Gervin, last year's National Basketball Association leading scorer who says he wants to be traded because of a contract dispute, was at practice Wednesday, but he refused to talk to reporters.

The 6-foot-7 Gervin wanted the Spurs to renegotiate his contract. He reportedly turned down the Spurs' offer of $300,000 per year for eight years.

The 6-3 Henderson was drafted last spring from Virginia

Should Bank Or Woman Pay For Check Swindle?

AUSTIN (AP) - An elderly woman signed a check for $1.50 to a man posing as a repairman, and he changed the check to read $1851.50 and cashed it at the Farmers State Bank of Hart. The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday to consider whether it was the woman's loss or the bank's. A hearing was set for Nov. 1. Nora Ray, 80, sued the bank for $1,850, and a Castro County judge ruled in her favor. The ruling was based in part on the judge's finding that Mrs. Ray's failure to properly execute the check did not amount to negligence substantially contributing to the alteration of the check. The Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals, however, reversed the district judge's ruling, relying on changes in the Uniform Commercial Code. The appeals court said "between two innocent parties the ultimate loss should fall upon the person who first dealt directly with the wrongdoer and was careless in so dealing, thereby providing the wrongdoer with the means of carrying out the offense." The appeals court found that Mrs. Ray was negligent and the bank had acted in good faith. Court records show that Robert Freeman came to Mrs. Ray's on May 7, 1975, posing as an electric utility company serviceman. He examined a few wall outlets and said he would return after lunch to finish his work. He asked Mrs. Ray for a check for $1.50 to cover service charges. He wrote $1.50 far to the right of the printed dollar sign on the check. Mrs. Ray testified that she signed the check because it was written in ink and could not be changed. Also, she said, she was anxious to get the man out of her house. Freeman, records show, wrote "185" between the dollar sign and 1.50. On the second line he wrote Eighteen hundred fifty-one and 50/100. He cashed the check for $1851.50 within the hour. Mrs. Ray got suspicious in a couple of hours and tried to stop payment on the check but it was too late.

LAE Pays Tribute To Gladys Braly

Members of La Afflatus Estudio Club dedicated their 1978-79 yearbook to the memory of a past member, the late Gladys Braly. Tuesday afternoon during a meeting in the home of Tresa Hale, 303 Star St. Aileen Montgomery, vice president, called the meeting to order and introduced Della Stagner, who considered the program sources for the coming year.

Helen Coffman was welcomed as a guest. Ora Morgan, program chairman, introduced Bill Sarpalus, manager of House Speaker Bill Clayton's district office, as guest speaker. Sarpalus, who was reared at Boys' Ranch, briefed the clubwomen on the recent summer session of the state legislature and the amendments that resulted from that session.

Sarpalus has seven Texas counties on his circuit and travels approximately 2,000 miles each month in his job as Clayton's representative. He is responsible for distributing bulletins from a number of state agencies and assisting the public with various problems.

Mrs. Hale and Jenny Terrell served refreshments to the guests and members, including Madeline Bell, Opal Elliston, Irene Markham, and Pet Ott.

The club's next meeting is slated Oct. 3 in Mrs. Morgan's home.

First speaker of the House of Representatives was Frederick A. C. Muhlenberg, a Federalist from Pennsylvania, who served from 1789 to 1791.

Mrs. Sledge Named Chapter Sweetheart

Mary Sledge was chosen as sweetheart of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Tuesday evening during a meeting in the home of Betty Davies. Mrs. Sledge will represent XEA chapter Feb. 10, 1979 during the annual BSP Valentine Ball.

It was announced that $100 worth of groceries had been won by Sheila Honaker of Amarillo, sister of XEA member Lillie Shipman, in a drawing held by the club as a fund-raising project. Cheryl Bullard won a prize for selling the most drawing tickets. Also, it was announced that the deadline to make reservations for the Area BSP convention, scheduled Oct. 14-15 at Vernon, has been extended to Sept. 29.

Members adopted Ellen Lloyd

as the chapter's "grandmother" for this year.

Jeanie Tucker was welcomed into the chapter as a transferee.

"Living with Your Heritage" was the program topic discussed by Ila Jean Brinkman.

Barbara Kendall, XEA president, conducted the business session and asked for reports from other standing committees.

Other members attending the meeting were Aileen Tindal, Opal Glenn, Barbara Burkhalter, Joanne Richburg, Debra Cook, Jean Holbert, Bonnie Decker, Nan Gauthreaux, Toni Jones, Phyllis Neill, Karren Ruland, Mrs. Shipman, Pam Stephens, Linda Thorell, Jan Walsler, Janey Whitaker and Dixie Williamson.

Rebekah Lodge Convenes

Despite Rainy Weather

Despite the rainy weather fifteen members of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 were present Tuesday evening for the weekly business session in IOOF Temple.

Noble Grand Blanche Williamson presided.

Five members are reported to be ill with two in Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Members reported a total of 25 sick visits made and 12 greeting cards sent.

Faye Brownlow announced that the recent concession stand sale during an auction was a financial success.

Members were told that Nell Kelly, president of the Panhandle Association of Rebekahs, will make an official visit here in the near future.

A donation was approved by the Rebekah Lodge to the Sandra Combs Fund. Mrs. Combs is the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Combs, respective members of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodge.

Susie Curtsinger acted as hostess for Helen Sowell who is in the hospital.

Members present were Blanche Williamson, Peggy Lemons, Bessie Lawrence, Ada Hollibaugh, Sadie Shaw, Nellie Beauford, Anna Conklin, Mary Flowers, Karrol Rettman, Faye Brownlow, Guy Lawrence, Martha Bridges, Bessie Saulcy and Edna Mathes.

Hindi, the official language of India, and Urdu, the official language of Pakistan, are essentially the same language, Hindustani, written in different scripts.

Paving the Way

Although cars still dominate the pavement, it was bicycles that gave it to them. Henry Ford was a machinist's apprentice in Detroit when the powerful League of American Wheelmen, one of the nation's first bicycling organizations, was pressing Congress for pavement.

Present at the meeting were: Nanette Ashby, Cheryl Betzen, Betty Ann Boyd, Marsha Winget, Lynn Carter, Suzanne Howell, Kathy Johnson, Dolores Jones, Marsha Jones, Marilyn

When buying clothes for growing children, quality is often not important.

If clothing can't be handed down to other children in the family, garments will probably be outgrown before they are worn out, says Beverly Rhoades, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Can a dollar be placed on homemaker services?

The Social Security Administration estimates that in 1975, a homemaker's services, after inflationary adjustments, were worth $5,500 to $7,500, reports Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Mini Page Releases New Kids Cookbook

It's time to light the candles and bake up a birthday treat...the Mini Page is celebrating its ninth birthday. To make August 31 a truly memorable anniversary, Betty Debnam, creator of the Mini Page, has compiled a culinary guide for children.

Guaranteed to change galloping rowdies into galloping gourmets, the Kids' Cookbook is filled with carefully tested, delicious "I-can-do-it-myself" recipes.

Budding chefs can start the Church Sells Tamales As Project

Tamales will be sold for $2.25 a dozen from 12 noon - 6 p.m. Saturday at San Pablo United Methodist Church as a fund-raising project. Proceeds of the sale, which is being sponsored by the church's women, will be used to pave the church parking lot.

day with Fluffy Cheese 'n Eggs, and lunch on a Cheese Toast Heart or a Tuna Delight. Then, for a very special Mom's-Day-Off-Dinner, there's a full selection of Casseroles, Main Dishes, Vegetables, Salads and Breads from which the kids can choose.

The sweet tooth of kids of any age will be satisfied with loads of recipes for cookies, desserts, candy and delicious, fun beverages. How about a Panda Sundae with a Polar Bear Float on the side? Budding cooks who yearn to try their hands in the kitchen with minimum adult supervision can prepare them all.

Two "Mini Page" kids are shown smiling proudly as they cook, on the brightly colored spill-proof wipe-clean cover, spiral bound to lie flat. This durable volume will replace and supplement the clippings culled from "The Mini Page" by pint-sized Julia Childs and James Beards.

Betty Debnam knows kids... but she also knows parents so she's included safety tips and a recipe for being a good cook which slips in "one clean kitchen after you have finished." Pages on "Measuring," "How to Set the Table" and "Table Manners" are sweetened and spiced with fun instructions and delightful illustrations.

Betty Debnam knows her way around a kitchen, a classroom and a newspaper plant. A resident of Raleigh, North Carolina, she first created "The Mini Page" in 1969. The remarkable achievement of the feature is evidenced in its numerous distinguished achievement awards for excellence in educational journalism from the Educational Press Association of America. "The Mini Page" first appeared in the Raleigh News & Observer, in 1969, and now appears in over 400 newspapers.

Miss Debnam attended St. Mary's Junior College and the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill where she received her undergraduate degree in political science. She later received her Master's Degree in Education from Duke University.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The world is divided into two groups: those who aren't crazy about cats and those who think cats are the greatest thing to hit this country since sliced bread.

I personally cannot relate to anything that licks its feet while I'm talking to it, but I have to say since seeing cats on television, I have never seen a more impressive animal.

I used to think cats wandered from room to room looking for a velour sofa to shed on, but since watching them on television I have gained a new respect for them. They type, answer the phone, play the piano, take baths and do the cha-cha-cha. In one commercial, there were 18 of them nudging one another out of a bowl of their favorite food.

If anyone out there has a cat out of work, it's their own fault.

As Mary Worth once said, "I don't mean to meddle," but it's my observation that dogs had better shape up. Just tipping over a 50-pound bag of dog food and panting isn't going to do it anymore. How much longer can they slide in on the coattails of Benji?

If dogs don't get an image-maker pretty soon, their popularity will go right down the tube.

Do dogs have a big poster going for them? Cats do. The picture of a cat hanging from a parallel bar saying, "HANG IN THERE, BABY" is a classic.

Have dogs made an impact on Washington? If so, then how come the words "fat cat" dominate the political scene?

And who can quarrel with cats' association with sex symbols? A starlet can purr like a sex kitten, but where is she if someone calls her a bow-wow?

I don't think I'm being dramatic when I say it's only a matter of time before cats hit Broadway in "CHORUS FELINE," take over movies with a thriller called, "CLAWS," and have their own TV series, "LITTER HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE."

The other night as I was watching TV, my dog was lying on my foot snoring when I saw a cat dancing and singing on television.

That tore it. I got up and headed for the door. "Are you going out to buy cat food?" asked my son. "Are you kidding? I'm going out to buy a cat."

Weather Hurts Big-Pecan Crop

COLLEGE STATION — "Texas size" pecans will be harder to find this fall because of the severe dry weather that has plagued the state since last summer.

"Although this year's crop will be short and nuts will generally be small, the quality of pecans will be high," points out B.G. Hancock, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Texas pecan growers are estimating a crop in the neighborhood of 25 to 26 million pounds, down sharply from average production of about 40 million pounds. The nation's crop is estimated at 170 to 180 million pounds, also down from an average of about 200 million pounds.

Texas is the largest producer of native pecans and ranks second nationally to Georgia in total pecan production.

"This year's crop endured many adversities as far as weather conditions are concerned," notes Hancock. "The cycle began with the dry summer of 1977, followed by a cold winter, and continued with an extremely dry spring and summer this year."

According to the horticulturist, pecan trees were under stress late last year due to lack of moisture. Then the unusually cold winter followed by a late spring caused trees to be two to three weeks late in leafing out and setting nuts. Continued dry weather this spring and summer is resulting in a lighter crop and smaller nuts.

"Of course, there is still a little time for good rains to help in nut development," points out Hancock. "In addition, moisture is also critical to keep trees in vigorous condition for the 1979 crop."

The late spring and lack of tree vigor due to dry conditions also opened the door for severe damage from the crop's most destructive insect pest, the pecan nut casebearer. Casebearer damage was heavy in many areas, particularly where timely sprays were not applied.

Looking over the state, Hancock gives this view of the pecan crop. "Best prospects are in the irrigated west—the El Paso Valley, the Trans-Pecos area and the Winter Garden. Production in these areas is all on planted, irrigated orchards. The crop in South Central Texas and the Gulf Coast region will be light, with only good crops where orchards were managed properly. Pecan production in the Hill Country will also be down due to the dry weather. The crop suffered most from dry conditions in the West Cross Timbers and North Central Texas. The severe dry weather in these regions actually caused some tree damage and therefore will have a long-lasting effect on pecan production."

According to the horticulturist, most production this year will come from improved pecan varieties grown under good management. Production from native trees will be down sharply.

Miss Hall Joins ZTA Fraternity

RHONDA HALL

Miss Rhonda Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Elmo Hall, recently became a pledge of Zeta Tau Alpha International Fraternity for Women at West Texas State University, Canyon.

Miss Hall graduated from Hereford High School this past spring. She was a member of the HHS Drill Team, the cheerleading squad and Future Business Leaders Association.

Zeta Tau Alpha is a women's social fraternity with approximately 130 collegiate chapters in the United States and Canada. ZTA was founded in 1893 at Longwood College, Farmville, Va. and today has more than 62,000 members.

'Prescribed' Drugs 'Illegal' Drugs

COLLEGE STATION — Possible drug abuse problems can arise from "prescribed" drugs as well as "illegal" drugs.

Many people think of "drug abuse" only in terms of drugs that are bought illegally, points out Carla Shearer, a health education specialist.

It is very possible, however, to become dependent on drugs and to have a drug problem through the use of doctor-prescribed drugs, she says.

These drugs might include tranquilizers, stimulants, sleeping pills and pain relievers.

An even larger problem can arise as a result of combining these drugs with alcohol, the specialist warns.

Ms. Shearer is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

However, before drug abuse problems can be solved, the user must first realize that there is a problem.

To help in determining this, a person may ask himself or herself the following questions.

(1) Am I defensive if a friend or relative mentions my drug or alcohol use?

(2) Am I sometimes embarrassed or frightened by my behavior while under the influence of drugs or alcohol?

(3) Have I ever gone to see a new doctor because my regular physician would not prescribe the drug I wanted?

(4) When I am under pressure or feeling anxious, do I automatically take a tranquilizer or drink or both?

(5) Do I take drugs more often or for purposes other than those prescribed by my doctor?

(7) Do I regularly drink alcohol or take drugs to help me sleep?

(8) Do I have to take a pill to wake up in the morning?

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, you may have a problem with drugs, alcohol or both, Ms. Shearer cautions.

Efficient Closets Take Planning

COLLEGE STATION — A workable closet plan considers depth and width, rod height, shelves, doors and lighting.

Plan a "reach-in" closet to make the most of space, recommends Pat Seaman, a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

DEPTH, WIDTH
Provide 28 inches for depth—to allow enough "shoulder room" for garments.

Also, give each person at least three feet of rod space—or six feet, if possible.

ROD HEIGHT
Install rods at different heights.

To decide on the most workable heights, group garments according to their length.

For example, shirts and jackets may hang together at one height, while dresses may require another height, and full-length items may need still another height.

To determine exact height measure the longest items in each group and add six inches. Make children's closet rods adjustable and within their reach—to move higher as children grow older.

SHELVES
Install shelves two or three inches above rods—and in the closet center if space permits.

Children's closets allow more room for shelves during the younger years. When rods are placed at children's level, more shelves can go above them.

DOORS
A closet front should open completely, hiding no more than six inches of rod on either side. Bi-fold doors suspended from tracks are workable choices for most closets.

Also, hinged, folding or sliding doors work well, but sliding doors allow access to one half the closet at one time.

LIGHTING
Use fluorescent lighting for maximum efficiency. Use deluxe cool white tubes to select clothes for daylight and deluxe warm white tubes for incandescent lighting.

Ann Landers

so thurs disregard for others pam

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother always said, "You never know a man until you live with him." How right she was. "Bill is 25 and I am 24. We've been married two years. I don't know exactly how to say this, but I will do my best. It is not a subject that is easy to talk about.

Bill can go for two months without taking a shower. He never washes his hair because "water will make it fall out." I have bought him several different kinds of deodorants, but he never uses them. I don't remember the last time he brushed his teeth. I am sure it has been several months.

I've told Bill at least a hundred times that I cannot stand his carelessness in regard to personal habits. He gets mad at me and doesn't speak for days. Last week I slept on the couch because I couldn't stand to be near him. What more can I do? I told Bill I was writing to Ann Landers and he said, "That's fine with me. I'd like to know what she has to say about this. I hope she tells you get off my back." -- Waiting For Your Reply

DEAR WAITING: You can call it "carelessness" if you want to, but the experts call it sick, sick, sick. An adult who has the personal hygiene of a goat demonstrates two things. First, a total disregard for others -- and second, some mighty kinky notions about himself. Incidentally, you are not alone. I hear from dozens of women every week who are suffering with the same type of mate. (Sometimes men write, but the women outnumber the men at least 25 to one.)

People who refuse to bathe, brush their teeth, wash their hair, etc., need professional help. They are disturbed individuals who need to understand why they neglect themselves in this manner. My advice to women or men who are married to these types is -- sleep on the couch until your mate decides to get professional counseling and work at conquering the problem.

DEAR ANN: Our daughter is being married in a few months and we are now in the process of formulating the plans. Molly has decided she does not want children at her wedding or the reception. She says she has seen too many weddings that have been ruined by noisy kids and she is not going to allow anything to mar the beauty of her day. The girl has made it clear that she wants no one under highschool age to be invited.

I feel I should respect my daughter's point of view, but how does one tactfully tell people when they ask if their children are included? -- Brick Wall

DEAR BRICK: People of good taste do not bring their children to parties or weddings unless the invitation specifically states "and family."

If someone asks if they may bring their children, simply say, "Sorry, Molly does not want anyone under high-school age, and we are respecting her wishes because it's her day." If people show up with their youngsters there is nothing you can do except be polite and hope the kids behave themselves.

CONFIDENTIAL to Is There Help for Me: Yes, definitely. See a doctor. Many a human dynamo develops "ignition trouble" when he reaches 55. If the surgery you describe is necessary it need not interfere with your sex life. Stop worrying.

When storing oven cleaners, keep locked away from children.

Oven cleaners which contain more than two percent sodium or potassium hydroxide--caustic substances--must be packaged in child resistant containers to keep children from opening them.

However, it's important to store them out of reach of children anyway.

Don't keep them under the sink or in the other accessible places.

Keep aerosol oven cleaners away from heat sources, such as a furnace or water heater.

When using oven cleaners, follow these guidelines:

--Read and follow the directions before each use.

--Wear protective gloves for hands and goggles for eyes.

--Open kitchen windows for ventilation.

--Keep children away from the area being cleaned.

--If the fumes become irritating, close the oven door, leave the room and get fresh air.

Shopping Secrets Cut Food Prices

COLLEGE STATION - Cut food costs with a week's menu plan and other "shopping secrets," says a food and nutrition specialist.

Plan the week's menus and make a shopping list from them, advises Marilyn Haggard.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

First, check supplies already on hand to avoid extra purchases.

Then remember the following shopping secrets:

*Eat before shopping to avoid impulse buying.

*Shop at a leisurely pace and make cost, quality and amount comparisons.

*Use "cents-off" coupons--on items the family will accept.

*Shop without children for efficiency--or take the children and teach them how to shop and cut costs.

*Keep a record of money spent for snack foods and beverages.

These items are high in calories and price--but they are often, low in nutritional value, and they can account for ten percent of every food dollar.

Select more economical and nutritious snacks, such as popcorn, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables to make better use of the food dollar.

Also, limit the purchase of soft drinks to a certain number per family member each week.

*Plan to use leftovers--so the garbage disposal doesn't take the biggest bite out of the family food budget.

For example, leftover meats and vegetables or macaroni can become a quick-and-easy casserole. Just add a simple white sauce, cheese and bread crumbs.

Also, to avoid leftovers, buy and prepare less in the future.

Kirghizia Kirghizia is in the eastern part of Soviet Central Asia, on the frontier of Sinkiang (western China). The people, once nomadic, now breed cattle and horses and grow tobacco, cotton, rice and sugar beets.

Wanted: Womenswear

Women have stepped up their purchases of clothing in recent years, observes The Conference Board. Outlays for female apparel rose by 4.2 percent annually (not counting inflation) over the past 10 years. Sales of both menswear and consumer goods in general increased much slower. Spurring the trend is the rise in working women, who need a larger wardrobe than those staying at home and have more money to pay for it. Also important are the growing number of young adults, who appear to be more fashion-conscious than their elders.

Practice Safety With Chemical Oven Cleaners

COLLEGE STATION - Recognize the hazards of chemical oven cleaners and practice safety when using these products, advises a family resource management specialist.

Chemical oven cleaners are highly caustic in order to do an effective job of cleaning grease and other burned-on foods in an oven.

This one characteristic--the presence of caustic substances--means that the user needs to be aware of hazards associated with caustic substances and of safe ways to use these products, points out Linda McCormack.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

When using oven cleaners, follow these guidelines:

--Read and follow the directions before each use.

--Wear protective gloves for hands and goggles for eyes.

--Open kitchen windows for ventilation.

--Keep children away from the area being cleaned.

--If the fumes become irritating, close the oven door, leave the room and get fresh air.

Stanton Dogie Roundup

The Freshmen Dogies came home victorious from their first football game. They defeated Clovis Yucca 20-0.

It's test time again! On Wednesday seventh graders spent first period taking the Short-Form Test for Academic Aptitude (SFTAA). It is very important that all students be in attendance on these testing days. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week, seventh, eighth, and ninth graders will be involved in testing. Freshmen will take the SFTAA and all grades will take the California Achievement Test (CAT).

Twenty-two seventh-grade girls were enrolled in intramurals for the Frisbee contest. There are three events in this contest: (a) for distance, (b) accuracy, and (c) the number that two people can catch in a row without dropping the frisbee.

The winners were Yolanda Alaniz, first; Wendy Roe and Minnie Morales, tied for second; Crystal Finley, third; and Kim Seward and Elizabeth Hayes, tied for fourth.

Eighth and ninth grade girls will be competing in Frisbee for the next two weeks.

Mr. McGee, instructor for Woods and Power Tech is developing a safety program for students who will be using power equipment. Color photographs and slides of the proper use of the equipment will be taken for a slide-tape presentation, as well as for a notebook with pictures and safety rules. The program plan is to allow students to teach themselves to safely use the power equipment on their own with group or individual attention to the slide presentation or the notebook learning aid. Pat Mercer, Dogie staff member, will do the photography.

Eighth graders are involved in learning about colonial America in their American History classes. A few classes are preparing to enter the Revolutionary War. Filmstrips, maps and movies are used along with the text "Foundations of Freedom." Games and debates are also used in some classes. Helping students realize the important role which history plays and will play are the objectives of the social studies program.

Patriotism is another objective. American History teachers are Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Skelton, Mr. Sowers and Mrs. Waters.

Two very important people at Stanton are the two students who faithfully attend to the flag duties each morning and afternoon. They are very careful to use the proper procedure and care of the flag. The students in charge of the flag ceremonies this trimester are Steve Beenc and Charles McDowell.

Football action this week will see the seventh grade in intramural play, the eighth grade playing Pampa Red at Pampa, and the freshmen hosting Bovina JV team at the La Plata Field.

In India alone there are more than 300 million adherents of Hinduism. In contrast to other religions, it has no founder. Considered the oldest religion in the world, it may date back as far as prehistoric times.

West of Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

MILWAUKEE, (AP) - Fat people can't blame their problem on their ancestors anymore, according to a medical research team that says there is no scientific evidence to blame obesity on heredity.

The team says it found a person's environment plays the biggest role in obesity.

"People want to hear that it's all genetic so they can go out and eat their cake," Alfreda Rimm said. "The study shows that you can't use your heredity as an excuse."

Rimm, a professor of preventive medicine at the Medical College of Wisconsin, referred to an extensive three-year study that he undertook with assistant professor Arthur J. Hartz and mathematician Eldred F. Giefer.

They said the discovery that environment - including the diet of people when they are young - plays the major role in determining obesity runs counter to the idea that weight is governed by genes.

"There is a genetic component," Rimm said, "but in most cases, it is minor compared to the environmental factor."

Parental guidance in selecting foods accounted for about 32 percent of the variations in the obesity of children in thousands of families monitored by the researchers, they said, while only 12 percent appeared to have been influenced by heredity.

"These results suggest there should be a modification of child-rearing techniques of obese women," Hartz said.

"This involves guiding children in the choice of food, feeding in infancy, the introduction of solid foods or breast feeding, the kinds of snack foods, and encouraging activity in children."

"Diet without exercise is an odd couple," Rimm said.

The conclusions are drawn from a study that the researchers say was probably the biggest of its kind ever undertaken.

It involved collecting statistics on 254 families with 546 adopted or otherwise non-related children, and comparing them with 10,337 having 25,554 biologically related children.

The subjects were drawn from a list of 73,532 women who, in 1969-70, had enrolled in a Milwaukee-based weight-reducing organization, TOPS Cub Inc.

Take Off Pounds Sensibly. The researchers said they concentrated on families having at least two children, ages 4 to 11. Data included the parents' height, weight, number of children and obesity history.

All women studied were white.

'Vantage Man' Decides to Kick Habit

SEATTLE (AP) - You may not know you've probably seen his face in countless cigarette ads. "What am I doing about smoking?" Cooper asks in the ad copy. "I'm smoking Vantage."
Now he's doing something else about smoking - he's quit.
The whole country got a look at Cooper, 28, a businessman who was paid $615 for his testimonial about the advantages of smoking Vantage, an R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. brand.

The picture of his face, along with a hand holding a cigarette, appeared nationwide in such publications as TV Guide, Time, Newsweek, Playboy and local newspapers.
Cooper said he was recruited while at a shopping center, after he told a young woman making a survey that he smoked Vantage. She said she stopped 190 people and that he was the first one who said he smoked Vantage, Cooper said.

Cooper's words were taped in an interview, and strung together by an advertising agency.
"I don't believe anybody would think I'd say something like that in a real dialogue," Cooper said. "Those are my words, basically. They just made it sound good."

But he added: "It came out like I was promoting smoking, when all I wanted to do was make a statement."
Cooper said he complained to R.J. Reynolds, but that "they just said they didn't think it'd do much harm."
Besides the $615, Cooper also got 100 to 150 crank calls, sometimes in the early hours of the morning, telling him he was stupid for smoking. "I hung up on most of them," he said.

Cooper, who had been smoking since high school, quit last month and told the advertiser for R.J. Reynolds to stop running the ads. The company said it would.
David Fishel, public relations manager for the tobacco company, said Tuesday. "It was Mr. Cooper's option and, out of respect for his wishes, we pulled the ad when he requested it."

Fishel said Cooper's comments were "taped and turned into ad copy" and were not exactly as Cooper spoke them. However, Fishel said, Cooper was sent a copy of the ad and gave written approval of the final version.
No one else in the ads has asked to be removed or, to his knowledge, quit smoking, Fishel said.

Governors Warned Of Damage From Dust Rule

HILTON HEAD, S.C. — Southern governors have been warned that excessive new dust standards imposed by OSHA on the cotton industry will cause their states irreparable economic harm.

Lon Mann, president of the National Cotton Council, told the Southern Governors' Conference that the standards jeopardize more than 500,000 jobs provided by some 95,000 cotton farms and businesses operating mainly in the southern half of the United States.

"These businesses generate $16.7 billion in revenue and add nearly $1 billion to your state tax rolls," he pointed out.

In South Carolina, host state for the conference, Mann noted that cotton farms, gins, textile mills, and other establishments provide more than 79,000 jobs and produce some $2.4 billion in business revenue and over $135 million in taxes.

While cotton textiles are a major factor in generating these contributions in the Southeast, he pointed out that cotton's impact is highly significant in other states such as California, which produces the nation's second largest cotton crop.

"In our largest producing state -- Texas -- there are 27,500 cotton farms, gins, warehouses, and other businesses," he said. "These establishments provide jobs for almost 70,000 Texans...

generate $2 billion in revenue, and pay $66 million in taxes."

Mann emphasized, however, that these contributions could change drastically within a few months if OSHA's standards are allowed to stand as issued.

He said the standards not only are "non-productive and economically infeasible" but also are technologically impossible to meet in some work areas of textile plants, cottonseed oil mills, and other industry sectors.

Mann explained that OSHA has decreed two standards for the cotton industry. The first--which applies to cotton compresses and warehouses, oil mills, merchants, textile mills, and related industries such as railroads and motor carriers -- requires employers to assure that workers are not exposed to cotton dust exceeding specified limits. The other mandate, similar requirements for cotton gins but does not require them to meet a specific dust limit.

The Council president said installation of dust abatement equipment required by the standard will cost from $1.8 billion to $2.6 billion and will add 17 to 24 cents a pound to the cost of producing cotton fabric. In addition, he stated that the standards' total annualized cost is estimated at $550 million to $800 million.

He pointed out that U.S. cotton textile mills are faced with the alternatives of: (1) spending vast sums for dust abatement equipment, (2) substituting synthetic fibers in order to achieve specified dust levels, (3) moving operations off-shore to avoid compliance costs, (4) importing gray goods for further processing, or (5) shutting down operations completely.

Each of these alternatives, he said, will adversely affect the cotton industry from the producer through the textile manufacturer.

The Council president stressed that the cotton industry fully supports the need to protect worker safety and health.

"During the extensive hearings on the standard in 1977 and on many occasions since, cotton and textile people have detailed how workers could be fully protected at one-sixth the cost of the standards," Mann noted.

In addition, he said the cotton industry since 1972 has given top priority to finding a solution to the dust problem and -- as a result -- greatly expanded research has been undertaken by producers, the textile sector, government, and private firms.

"The preponderance of evidence in the record indicates that less than 3,000 workers are affected from exposure to cotton dust -- the vast majority are unaffected," Mann stated. "The record also shows that mills have already taken actions that protect workers at risk from cotton dust."

Texas Crops Report

Rains Boost South Texas

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Rains-generated by the tropical depression which formed in the Gulf of Mexico and came ashore last week south of Brownsville interrupted virtually all field work as the welcome moisture was received.

The rains created concern for cotton farmers of Central and Coastal counties, which still have some cotton in the fields. Harvest operations were winding down over much of the southern half of the state, and the new moisture will improve outlook there for small grain crops, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Land preparation is moving ahead in areas where field work is possible, and farmers are planting small grains for fall and winter pastures.

Planting of winter wheat is from 10 to 60 percent complete in the Panhandle. The corn harvest is starting, and the vegetable harvest is underway.

Pastures and ranges, which were below average over much of the state, are expected to improve considerably in the next several weeks due to the rains. Hay remains in short supply in North Central and other areas, and stock water is still short in some sections of the state. Recent rains may boost crop growth and allow another cutting of hay in some areas.

Although the rains may slow cattle marketings in some areas, seasonal offerings are expected to continue heavy in other areas. Prices and markets have been steady to strong.

Reports from District Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture is generally short. Cattle are still in good condition. Pastures and ranges are average to below. Early corn is ready for harvest, while some of sorghum crop looks good. The potato and onion harvest is about finished. Irrigated cotton is growing well. Wheat plantings run from 10 to 60 percent complete.

SOUTH PLAINS: Irrigated cotton is maturing, but much dryland cotton has been lost. Bollworm activity is declining. Corn and grain harvest is starting. Soybeans and sunflower crops are progressing well, with the soybeans still being irrigated. Carrot, tomato, pepper and cantaloupe harvests are under way. Winter wheat is being planted. Pastures are below average.

ROLLING PLAINS: Small grains are being seeded in wet areas. Native pastures are improving. Cotton yield prospects range from a "disaster" to above average. Stonewall County is expecting good peanut yields. Mung bean harvesting has started in Wilbarger County, while irrigated alfalfa continues to make good growth.

NORTH CENTRAL: More rain is needed to get fall growth of pastures and ranges before day lengths become too short for growth. Stock tanks are low, and grass and hay supplies are short. The cattle market is strong. Some wheat planting is under way and oats will be planted when moisture is available. Generally poor yields of cotton are reported, with the grade fair. Hay is being harvested, but needs moisture for regrowth. The peanut crop needs rain.

NORTHEAST: Soil moisture, short to very short early in the week, improved when extensive rains moved in from the Gulf's tropical depression. Hay yields are far below normal. Corn and soybean yields are low, and pastures remain short. Cattle conditions are fair. Wheat and oat planting is underway. Peach yields are about 80 percent of normal. The pecan crop is fair to good.

FAR WEST: Rain in northern counties boosted fall ranges. Southern counties are generally in good shape. Livestock conditions are favorable with some very heavy calf weights probable in the Davis Mountain area. Some irrigated cotton is opening. Small grain planting is starting, while alfalfa harvesting continues. The pecan outlook is much improved.

WEST CENTRAL: Showers ranged from one-half inch to 4 inches, so field crops are now in fair to good condition. Cotton is growing well. Pastures and ranges are average to above average, and livestock are mostly in good shape.

CENTRAL: Recent rains have greatly improved surface moisture, filled many ponds, boosted hay cuttings and revived pastures and ranges. Livestock marketing has slowed. Cotton harvesting is well advanced. The pecan crop is expected to be short of normal.

EAST: Rains helped the area. Hay cutting continues, but yields are below normal. Corn yields are fair, and late-planted peanuts will benefit from the rains. A fair pecan crop is forecast. Pastures are short but responding. Cattle are in fair to good condition. The market is active and strong.

SOUTHEAST AND UPPER GULF COAST: General rains were received this week. Soybeans are suffering from heavy looper damage in Brazoria County. Wheat and oat has started, along with other cool season crops. Some scab damage is reported on pecans in Harris County. Ranges and pastures are affording below average to average grazing. Livestock are in fair condition.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Although good rains were received throughout the district, soil moisture is still short in spots. Cotton harvesting was delayed by rains, which also interrupted oat and wheat planting. Pecan yields may be light. Pastures and ranges below average, are showing some improvement. Most livestock are in fair to good condition, with the market strong.

SOUTHWEST: Sorghum and corn harvests are almost finished, but cotton and peanut harvesting has been delayed by wet weather. Planting of oats and wheat is expected to increase.

COASTAL BEND: The cattle market is steady. Guar is making beans, peanut harvesting is rain-delayed, a second rice cutting is promising and an already short pecan crop is being attacked by scab and aphids. Oat planting is in progress and flax and wheat planting should start soon.

SOUTH: Very heavy rains this past week have provided generally adequate moisture in most counties. However, the rains have delayed cotton stalk destruction work. Soybeans are up to good stands and making good growth. Cabbage and peppers are growing well in the Rio Grande Valley. The moisture has been extremely beneficial to citrus and sugar cane. Cattle are mostly in fair to poor condition. Marketing remains heavy.

Independent Cattlemen Slate Drive

The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas will revive an old-time tradition Sept. 29-30 with its first annual statewide cattle drive and auction.

The event officially begins Friday, Sept. 29, when members from county chapters all over the state load donated animals for the auction into gooseneck trailers and head for Georgetown.

As each trailer reaches the Georgetown Livestock Commission, the animals will be placed in separate pens according to county where they will be judged, fed, watered and settled for the night.

The cattle drive will start with a dance, food and refreshments at the Georgetown Community Center. Food served will include sausage, hot tamales and soft drinks and music will be provided by Jodie J and the Silvertones.

Activity will pick up again on Saturday, Sept. 30, at 10 a.m. when the auction begins. For sale will be horses, bulls, heifers, calves and other livestock donated by people throughout the state.

The money raised will provide operating funds for ICA. All members of the news media are cordially invited to attend any of the scheduled functions.

Genealogists have shown that Franklin Delano Roosevelt was related by blood or through marriage to 11 former presidents: Washington, John Adams, Madison, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, William Henry Harrison, Taylor, Grant, Benjamin Harrison, Theodore Roosevelt, and Taft.

The first president's widow to serve the Federal Government in an executive capacity was Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, who was appointed on December 19, 1945, by President Truman, to the U.S. delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

Cattlemen Urge Revision Of Beef Import Quota

FORT WORTH — A delegation of directors of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association have called on Texas Congressmen in Washington, urging passage of an amendment to the Meat Import Quota law that would complement the supply of domestic beef. Texas Cattle Feeders Association directors joined in the effort.

The group, headed by TSCRA Vice Presidents John S. Cargile of San Angelo and Frates Sceligson of San Antonio, found excellent response from their congressmen in favoring the establishment of a formula for importing more beef when domestic supplies are low and less when those supplies are high. The cattlemen also urged the lawmakers to restrict the President's power to intervene.

The Texans were joined by 100 livestock producers and feeders from other states belonging to the National Cattlemen's Association in this effort to correct the present Meat Import Quota law, said Cargile. Larger imports on beef are currently allowed when beef supplies are already high in the United States and lower imports when domestic supplies are low. This, Cargile said, has the effect of either driving prices unnecessarily high or drastically low. The need for restrictions on presidential power to suspend the law was dramatically illustrated this summer when President Carter's decision to suspend the Meat Import Quota law, at a time when cattlemen were just recovering from four years of depressed prices, created an adverse psychological impact on the cattle industry. The result was artificially depressed prices.

"The result of employing the amendment we favor would be a market that both the consumer and producer could depend on for fair prices and profits," added Cargile.

Hereford FFA Selects Sweetheart

Members of the Hereford FFA met recently for the election of a new chapter Sweetheart.

Lisa Duggan was selected for the honor from a field which included Karrel Shook, Mary Koozer, Luanna Berryman, Staci Payne, Teresa Lambert, Jean Ann Bartels, Felinda Trolinder and Denise Cotton.

The chapter conducted a number of activities during the summer months, with a swimming party and watermelon feed held at Denton Park during July and a bowling party held at Bowling's Bowl.

The chapter's program of work was passed out during the Sept. 7 meeting.

Allison Named To Post With Texas Wheat Group

AMARILLO — "The wheat producers rapid decline in economic status compared to other segments of the economy, despite continuing record production efficiencies, demands more timely and exacting producer information and service from their organizations in order to meet the challenges of changing political and market situations. The wheat organizations are making the necessary staff and program expansions to lead the producers to meet such challenges, defend the producer from continuing to being the "shock absorber" for inflation and help the return of profitability to his crop." These were the sentiments expressed in a joint statement by the Chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board and President of the Producers Association, C.L. Edwards, Panhandle and Otis Harman, Tulsa, respectively. In order to facilitate the expansion the officers announced the establishing of a new staff position in the organizations-Executive Assistant, Information and Producer Services."

Bill Nelson, Amarillo-headquartered Executive Vice President of the Producers Board & Producers Association announced that Jim Allison, a thirty-year old native son of a prominent Hereford farm and ranch family and currently an area farm and ranch radio broadcaster, has been selected to fill the newly-established position.

Nelson said that Allison will be working closely with county organization directors in their producer service activities, providing liaison to other farm and related agri-business organizations on wheat matters, editing the "Texas Wheat News Letter" of the board and servicing those individuals and firms involved in the administration of the Commodity Referendum Law related to wheat.

Allison is a graduate of Hereford High School and Austin College, Sherman. In addition to his experience in the operation and management of the family farms, ranches and commercial feedlot in Texas and Oklahoma, Allison has successful sales experience in livestock feed and animal health supplies and industrial personnel management. For the past three years Allison has been associated with the Stauffer Publishing Company in farm radio and television broadcasting at WLBW, Topeka, Kansas and at KGNC Radio in Amarillo. In both positions he was responsible for gathering and reporting commodity market information, farm organization news, legislative reports and editing a company newsletter.

The new staff member said, "I am pleased to be able to use my farm background, formal education and professional experience in the Texas Wheat Producers Board & Producers, Associations' expanded information and producer service programs. I look forward to working closely with the organizations farmer-directors and to assisting with the implementation of the organization's research, market development and servicing programs in cooperation with Bill Nelson, the executive officer."

More Shuffling Than Betting In Projecting Food Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government has started in earnest to deal out food price projections for next year, something like a poker game where there is more shuffling than betting.

On one hand, food prices might go up "only" 4 or 5 percent - if farm prices hold steady in 1979, the Agriculture Department's chief economist, Howard W. Hjort, said.

That would add something like $3.40 a week to a four-member family's grocery bill over the entire 12 months. This year, with food prices going up 10 percent, the same family's grocery bill will rise about $6.21 a week.

But Hjort told a House subcommittee that if farm prices go up again, possibly triggered by less meat and dairy products, next year's increase might be as much as the 7 or 9 percent predicted by private forecasters.

Using the same example, a family that paid $62.10 a week for food in 1977 and saw their average bills rise to $68.31 this year, could see them go up further to as much as $74.76 a week in 1979.

But Hjort, as USDA economists have done in the past, cautioned that next year's food prices will be determined by weather patterns, meat production and inflation in the general economy.

A major question, he said, is whether pork and poultry output will make up the slack in reduced beef production, brought about by cattle producers trimming their herds after years of depressed prices.

But there are other forces at work, too, involving legislative and administrative decisions in the works to alter farm programs in the year ahead.

Bills by the House Agriculture and Ways and Means committees would like federal sugar supports to 16 cents and 15 cents a pound, respectively, compared with a target of 14.5 cents sought by the administration.

Asked if he had anything to declare at customs, Oscar Wilde, docking in New York City on his first visit to America in 1882, shocked the customs' inspector by replying coolly, "Nothing but my genius."

AMPI Warns Of Milk Shortage

SAN ANTONIO — Irvin J. Elkin, an Amery, Wisconsin dairy farmer and President of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. warned today that failure of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to observe the public interest purposes of the milk price support program is resulting in impending shortages of milk and dairy products in 1979 and 1980. Those shortages will be as severe as, and related to, the shortage of beef.

"Consumers are well aware that beef is scarce and higher in price. They may not be generally aware that cow numbers as of mid-1978 were still going down and that the situation has to get worse before it gets better. When we eat those cows and heifers they stop producing calves and milk," Elkin said.

AMPI is the nation's largest organization of dairy farmers with about 32,000 farm families producing about 12 percent of domestic milk supplies.

In a letter to Secretary Bergland Elkin pointed out that USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation Board's decision that milk price supports should be pegged at the very minimum provided by law is an error ignoring consumer interests in adequate milk supplies. "When the stated objectives of Congress are observed by the Secretary in setting milk price supports, consumers benefit through stable, dependable milk supplies at minimum cost," Elkin stated. Elkin urged Secretary Bergland to correct the error as quickly as possible.

Cattle Roundup For Kids Progresses

Cattle drives from all over the Southwest in years past had Abilene, Kansas as their destination. Each fall since 1960, Southwest stockmen have also rounded up cattle to go to Abilene -- but in this instance, Abilene, Texas.

The 19th annual Cattlemen's Round-Up for Crippled Children is in full swing with proceeds benefitting the handicapped of the Southwest through the West Texas Rehabilitation Center and its campuses in San Angelo, Abilene and Snyder.

This unique fund-raising event for this private non-profit treatment and diagnostic complex each year provides the necessary monies to operate a diverse program of services to the handicapped regardless of age, race, creed, color, place of residence or ability to pay. Shelley V. Smith, executive director of the West Texas Rehabilitation Center said, "At this point we have received pledges for 70 head of cattle for our September 25th sale at Abilene Auction." Smith added: "In order to offset our operational deficit of $225,000, we are going to need about 400 head of cattle this year, so we're hoping that the pledges will pick up quickly as September 25th approaches."

Anyone wishing to donate cash or livestock should contact Shelley V. Smith, executive director at the Central Office by calling collect (915) 692-1633.

The border crossing between Spain and Gibraltar was closed in 1969.

Hay Supply Is Growing Critical

COLLEGE STATION — The fall season is rapidly approaching and time is running short for hay making. All this means that the hay supply situation is becoming critical throughout Texas due to the extensive dry weather.

"Hay production is as much as 50 percent below normal in some areas, with a drop in production of 30 to 40 percent common in most counties," points out Dr. Neal Pratt, forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. This, following a severe winter that necessitated heavy feeding, has left hay stocks extremely low.

"Unless we get some good rains quick, there will be little more hay made this year," adds Pratt. "So producers will have to make some choices soon on feed for their livestock this fall and winter. Hay is available from other states but the cost is high. Grain supplies are good and prices should be reasonable, so producers may want to consider stocking up on grain and other feed supplements. Of course, winter pastures can also take some of the pressure off feeding if there is sufficient moisture."

Other than stocking up on feed and planting winter pastures, producers may also want to continue to cull their herds closely to reduce the total number of animals to be carried through the winter, suggests the specialist. Although many cattle have been moving to market in recent months due to the lack of forage and stock water, market prices have continued steady.

"Efficient management is particularly critical in planning for the months ahead," emphasizes the specialist. "Producers need to obtain the most economical feed supplies while at the same time keeping their base herds as intact as possible for continued high production."

Producers who were able to make a hay crop this year will want to keep the Texas State Hay show in mind.

The African nation of Ghana is named after an earlier state that flourished along the Niger river between 800 and 1078 A.D. The modern nation covers 92,100 square miles, slightly smaller than the state of Oregon, with a population of some 10 million, principally members of the Adansi, Akwamu and Ga tribes. Ruled by Great Britain as the Gold Coast for 113 years, it was the first British African colony to be granted full independence, in 1951.

Tower Claims Trade Also Headache

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - The U.S. State Department should pay more attention to securing favorable trading pacts with foreign nations than in promoting "political amity," Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said Wednesday.

Tower told the Southern Governors' Conference that bringing the nation's trade deficit to a less unfavorable level is not just a legislative problem but a diplomatic one as well.

"Traditionally, the State Department has been more interested in political amity than in getting favorable trade negotiations," he said.

Agricultural exports in particular should be a prime consideration in tariff talks and in diplomatic discussions, Tower said, and U.S. negotiators should stop trying to be "Charlie Good Guy," and get tough.

Tower also criticized federal funding criteria which, he said, are designed to promote "the sagging economy" of northern states at the expense of the Sun Belt. He said there is a good chance the Senate will change eligibility criteria to funnel federal funds towards "pockets of poverty," even if the cities in which they exist are affluent.

"Somebody who is miserable in an affluent city is just as miserable as somebody who's miserable in a poverty city," Tower said.

Georgia Gov. George Busbee, chairman of the Southern growth Policies Board, reported on a meeting in Boston recently of the Southern group with its counterparts from seven major Northern and Midwestern regions.

"This summit meeting did not end regional competition, or the attacks by the North on federal funding formulas," Busbee said. "Unfortunately, they will continue."

However, he reported, the meeting did result in mutual agreement on "our common and unique regional problems," and on agreement to meet twice annually in conjunction with the National Governors' Conference. Busbee said the regional leaders also agreed that in all regions of the country the "capital infrastructures" are deteriorating.

"Examples of this deterioration are inadequate or nonexistent water and sewer systems, unsafe bridges and roads, and dilapidated rail transit systems," Busbee said.

He said Southern delegates reached "a consensus agreement with our Northern brethren on the notion that the state-federal economic development partnership found in the Appalachian and Title V regional commissions ought to be expanded nationwide."

North Carolina state Sen. Willis Whitchard, vice chairman of the Southern Growth Policies Board, said the South's economy has made unprecedented gains in the 1970s, but still lags behind the rest of the nation in personal income and other economic indicators.

Despite the continuing lag, Whitchard said the fact that growth rates in the Sun Belt have exceeded those in the Frost Belt "has been used to penalize the South" on funding formulas and other areas of state-federal relationship.

President Carter's energy secretary, James R. Schlesinger, addressed the conference Tuesday and tangled with Gov. Edwin W. Edwards of Louisiana. Edwards said the administration's energy bill ignores the advice of experts on natural gas price deregulation.

"You're imposing intolerable restrictions on us," Edwards told Schlesinger. Their confrontation came during the Southern Governors' Conference.

Randolph Churchill, journalist and only son of Sir Winston, died in 1968.
