Bergland To Appoint Meat Task Force

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government report indicates that a handful of big meat packing companies can set the price of just about all the cattle and beef sold at wholesale on any given day and the Agriculture Department wants to know if there's a better way.

In conjunction with release of the report Tuesday, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced plans for public hearings on beef pricing and reporting by big meat packers and market reporting services, primarily one called the Yellow

He also said he will name a task force to "study and recommend possible improvements" in the giant industry's method of pricing and reporting its

No dates were set for the hearings or naming the task force.

Tuesday's report did nothing to blunt criticism which has persisted for years among farmers, members of Congress and consumer groups that cattle and beef prices are mostly in the control of a few big operators, including packing companies and the market reporting services.

The report did not accuse anyone of illegal action and said it could not settle questions about "possible price manipulation" and the practice of quoting prices on a "thin market" in which only a small number of transactions is used as a basis to set prices.

The report characterized itself as containing information "which interested persons can use in arriving at conclusions" about pricing and market

Although the report did not deal directly with supermarket prices, wholesale price fluctuations normally are reflected at the retail level.

Release of the report was delayed for weeks while Bergland ordered an original version re-done. The Associated Press obtained a copy of the original earlier this fall, but most of the 3,000 copies were destroyed.

The new report included some additional information and changes in figures, but reached the same

For example, the new report said 70 percent of the beef sales by the 35 packing plants during the one month studied last summer were based on a Yellow Sheet price formula, while the first report had said 66 percent.

The report said the 35 plants, which were not identified, accounted for 26 percent of the federally inspected cattle slaughtered in the United States in 1976.

Trooper's Home Fired On

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

A Texas Department of Public Safety trooper, who had been on duty in Deaf Smith County for two days, found that his mobile home had been shot at least 11 times when he and his wife returned home from dining out Tuesday evening.

Jesse Lambert, of 200 North, a veteran highway patrolman who was transferred to Deaf Smith County last week and began working Monday, left his home around 7:05 p.m. and returned about 45 minutes later, according to investigators.

Investigation by Hereford Police Det. Roger Scott, two highway patrolmen and two sheriff's office deputies showed that there were seven holes in the front of the trailer, which faces east on North St. Two windows and a storm door were broken, apparently by bullets, and officers discovered a total of 11 places inside the house which had been struck.

The seven holes on the outside of the mobile home were at various heights and angles, but officers said that the living room and south bedroom received all of the damage inside the home.

Officers declined to say what type of gun was used in the incident. They added that they know of no motive for the shooting since Lambert had just recently moved to Hereford.

"It may be criminal mischief. We just don't know right now," Scott said, adding that Lambert's closest neighbors were away at the time of the shooting and no one else on the block had heard or seen anything.

Sgt. Bill Wells, Lambert's supervising officer, said he knows of no possible reason for the shooting. Wells was one of the investigating officers Tuesday Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson said today that he may initiate a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the shooting.

Shooting at a highway patrolman's house is a very serious offense, and should we apprehend that individual, we will do our best to charge him with essault with intent to commit murder."

ATLANTA (AP) - Farmers are organizing a parade of tractors that will advance on President Carter's hometown of Plains, Ga., during the president's Christmas visit there, farm leader Tommy Kersey said Tuesday.

The Dec. 22 demonstration will let Carter know that farmers "are disgusted with him," said Kersey, a Unadilla, Ga., farmer who heads the American Agriculture movement in

"We think of him as a traitor. He sold us out." Kersey said.

Carter will arrive in Plains Dec. 22 for a four-day holiday visit, the White House announced Monday.

Farmers staged numerous "tractorcades" in Georgia and other states last winter as a way of emphasizing their demand for 100 percent parity, or a government guarntee of a full return on a farmer's investment.

Kersey said farmers will not seek a direct meeting with Carter during the demonstration in Plains.

"It would be a waste of time," he said. "That man doesn't relate to our problems anymore."

Highway Grain Spill

A full grain truck being driven by Lawrence Garth of Dumas lost a wheel after the back axle broke and the truck overturned inside the Hereford city limits on E. Highway 60 this morning. Mile spilled onto the highway, and Hereford firemen were called to hose off leaking gasoline. Garth escaped injury, although his truck was demolished in the accident. The westbound lane of the highway was blocked off until the truck was moved.

Grain Standards To Be Updated Because of Damaged Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department report says federal grain standards should be updated so it will be more difficult to disguise contaminated shipments of wheat, corn and other commodities.

The report was sent to the House and Senate agriculture committees by the Federal Grain Inspection Service, an

United Way Surpasses $130,000

United Way officials today announced that $130,235.82, about 65.2 percent of their goal of $199,815, had been raised in this year's fund drive.

The campaign is currently in its cleanup states, with businesses who were not contacted by workings during the first 11/2 months of the drive being solicited by the campaign steering committee. Persons on that committee include Lynton Allred, Raymond White, Bob Gentry and UW president Paul Sims. Sims said that collections for the 12 United Way agencies are "far from over." He said: "We still have some businesses to talk to, and we have another day to go on our house-to-house drive. We're also receiving pledges and money from farmers every day.'

UW officials have attempted to contact every farmer in Deaf Smith County by

"If any person in this county hasn't been contacted yet, I would urge them to contribute by sending a check to P.O. Box 1968 in Hereford," Sims said.

Last year, about $5,000 was raised in the letter-writing campaign as the United Way netted close to $69,000 in falling short of its $98,400 goal. This year, around $3,000 already has been raised in the mail portion of the campaign, with around 10 percent participation. Sims said he expects that the letter campaign will be "much better" than in 1977.

agency of the department. It was made public Tuesday.

Changes need to be made, the agency said, but will require time and study to determine rules acceptable to farmers, the grain trade and the ultimate users of the commodities.

It also said the impact of changes on prices, exports and other factors must be weighed carefully in modifying regula-

A number of "major problem areas" in the current federal grain standards were identified in the report.

The present standards "are not constructed so that all potentially adverse conditions are routinely identified" and made known to those who use federal inspection services. For example, moldy kernels of grain are currently included in a category called "total damaged kernels" and are not separately identified. Infestation by insects is another example. A "tolerance" is allowed in grain before the infestation must be "Infested grain could be blended with other grain, causing contamination of the entire mix without the handler being aware of the situation," the report said. Another problem involves the numerical grade assigned grain and the practice of different prices existing for grain of the same grade.

In her cirriculum report, Mrs. Bell explained that she would outline a special program rather than reviewing the overall English department. She said the department had evaluated and studied methods of testing and had initiated a "diagnostic testing system" in the schools.

Many such testing systems which were evaluated were much too costly, said Mrs. Bell. "The purpose of the testing is to determine methods that will better teach writing skills." she explained. "We are not interested in looking at a national norm; we simply want to determine how each of our student progress." she added.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A man charged with the killing of an Amarillo pizza parlor manager ignored the desperate pleas of the victims, the defendant's ex-wife stified on the opening day of his trial.

Kathy Sutton, 20, sobbed Tuesday as she told jurors David Grijalva, 26, repeatedly smashed Jeanette Powers in the head with a 15-pound rolling pin during a January 1977 robbery.

The Gallup, N.M., resident could be sentenced to die by lethal injection if convicted of killing Ms. Powers in the trial, moved from Amarillo on a change of

"I looked way and I heard a loud noise, a bang. He had a rolling pin in his hands above his head," testified Miss Sutton. She heard the rolling pin hit five or six times, she said.

Grijalva then stuffed Ms. Powers' head in a pasta mixer, prosecutors allege. Miss Sutton, who divorced Grijalva last April, earlier pleaded guilty to robbery in connection with the incident and was sessed a 10-year probated sentence. She is a former employee of the pizza

Carter Modifies Wage-Price Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is modifying its wage and price standards - easing limits on fringe benefits and tightening limits on price hikes - after complaints that parts of the anti-inflation plan are unfair.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability was detailing today what it called minor revisions in the voluntary guidelines, seven weeks after they were announced by President Carter.

Barry Bosworth, director of the council, told reporters Tuesday the administration expects to see results from the program by spring, and if the results are favorable the program will continue for some time. Wage and price standards would be lowered gradually until inflation is controlled, he said, adding, "The intention is a multi-year program over several years."

Officials said today's modifications include no basic change in the main standards: a 7 percent limit on wage increases and slightly lower limits on price increases. But after meeting with labor and business leaders, they said, the administration has agreed to minor alterations:

-Wages: The 7 percent limit now applies to fringe benefits as well as wages, and critics have complained that expected rate increases in health insurance plans would cut into the wage-increase potential. So the administration is planning to ease the standard on fringe benefits reached in old labor contracts.

-Prices: The guidelines now say a business must hold price increases to 0.5 percentage points below its average increases in 1976 and 1977. However, a company can raise prices more if it proves hardship or shows it hasn't increased profits.

The administration plans to tighten the profit-margin rule, limiting price increases to about 6.5 percent above the average profits in the best two of the last three years. The hardship rule would also be tightened.

The program has been opposed by AFL-CIO President George Meany, but it won some support Tuesday from the Communications Workers of America. one of the largest AFL-CIO unions.

Glenn Watts, CWA president, said Meany "has done 'a tremendous disservice to the country and the labor movement" with his opposition.

And the new chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, Herbert E. Markley, said Tuesday his Washingtonbased group representing 12,000 businesses will support Carter's program if unions also do their part.

Rufner Threatened With Jail by Judge

HOUSTON (AP) - Judicially rebuked and threatened with jail, a defiant defense witness was to go before the jury today as an unknown factor in the murder conspiracy trial of millionaire Cullen Davis.

A presumably sober W.T. Rufner was called to testify reluctantly of his contacts with the defendant's estranged wife, Priscilla, and others prior to Davis' arrest last August.

The bearded, boisterous witness appeared outside the presence of the jury late Tuesday and the short, stormy session ended with a series of rebukes and warnings by state District Judge Wallace Moore.

"If you say anything before the jury to blow me out of the tub, you're going to be safe for six months," Moore declared.

Lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Havnes summoned Rufner as a decidedly hostile witness to question him about his role, if any, in an alleged scheme to frame Davis. The Fort Worth industrialist, 45, is accused of plotting the murder of his divorce judge.

Haynes and the crack defense team maintain Mrs. Davis, FBI informant David McCrory, karate expert Pat Burleson and perhaps others framed their wealthy client.

Rufner, 39, an ex-boyfriend of the bosomy, blond Mrs. Davis, 37, caused a sensation outside the courtroom in a minor upheaval inside it Tuesday.

The jurors got their first glimpse of the shaggy-haired witness when he entered the courtroom Tuesday morning lugging boots, clothes, a travel kit and a floppy maroon hat.

He wore a t-shirt depicting himself chatting with a monkey, and the inscription read: "Is this a courtroom or a

Greenawalt Tisons Guilty Of Charges

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP) - Convicted killer Randy Greenawalt and Ricky and Raymond Tison were found guilty late Tuesday night of at least 20 counts stemming from the July 30 Arizona State Prison escape of Greenawalt and the brothers' father, Gary Tison.

The three defendants were convicted of 13 charges of assault with a deadly weapon for herding eight guards and five prison visitors into a closet at gunpoint during the escape. They also were found guilty of four more assault charges in connection with an exchange of gunfire between the gang and four Pinal County Sheriff's deputies at a roadblock when they were captured Aug. 11.

But the jury decided they were innocent of four assault charges stemming from a similar gunfire exchange at another roadblock shortly before the one at which they were captured about 20 miles from here.

A Jan. 8 sentencing date was set by Pinal County Superior Court Judge E.D. McBryde. The judge polled the jury, and all convictions were unanimous.

Dorothy Tison, the brothers' mother, was in the courtroom, but neither she nor any of the defendants displayed any emotion while the verdicts were read.

Greenawalt also was convicted of ossessing firearms in a prison, while Ricky Tison was found guilty of taking prohibited articles into the facility.

'We used to hear that the 'old world' attitude would keep drugs out of Europe," said Thomas V. Cash, special agent in charge the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration operation in Germany. "But this is very clearly not the case."

He said that the increasing prevalance of heroin, various pills and other drugs bears striking similarities to the growth of drug abuse in the United States from 1966 to 1976: "It's eerie to watch."

DEAR ANN: I have a suggestion for the woman who envied people who can laugh. She said she has a good sense of humor but just can't laugh out loud as others do.

It's easy -- as any drama coach will tell you. Just take a deep breath and start saying, HA, HA, HA. Keep counting the number of times. When you run out of breath, don't try for more air -- just keep pushing out the HA, HA's. Each time try to get more HA. HA's out. Soon it will be fun and you'll be laughing at yourself -- naturally. Actors must be trained to laugh on cue. Anybody can do it with practice. Have you ever noticed that certain laughs run in families? Well, that's because children imitate their parents. No one is born with a special kind of laugh. It's cultivated. I hope you will print my letter.

Laughter is good for the soul. It makes for joy and it is highly contagious. No one knows better than you that the ability to laugh is what makes humans superior to animals. It enhances life like nothing else. Right, Ann? --Your Friend, Millie

Shower Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Scotty Taylor, the former Karen Fox, was honored Monday afternoon during a post-nuptial shower in the Community Room of First National Bank.

The couple was wed December 2 in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fox.

Special guests in attendance included the honoree's sister-inlaw and nephew, Mrs. Kevin Fox and Nathan; her grandmother, Mrs. Norman Lytal; her aunts, Mrs. Joel Lytal and Mrs. Bill Lytal; and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Cynthia Taylor.

Small wedding cakes, decorated in gold and ivory, and matching mints were served from a table appointed with corrdinating colors. The centerpiece of silk and preserved flowers was presented to the honoree as a wedding gift. Coffee and spiced tea were poured. Presiding at the serving table was Mrs. Jeff Deavenport.

Club Celebrates Yule with Music

Members of Hereford Music Study Club observed the yuletide Monday afternoon by performing a number of classical and traditional Christmas carols during a meeting in the home of Mrs. J.R. Allison.

Mrs. Wayne Thomas, club president, called the group to order and a letter was received from Mrs. Joe Reinauer Jr., who expressed thanks for the club's offer of membership, which she accepted.

Mrs. Paul Loys introduced the program, which opened with Mrs. Wesley Gulley singing the monthly hymn. Two guests, Mrs. Greg Skypala and Miss Sabra Hacker presented "A Lute Carol" with Mrs. Skypala at the flute and Miss Hacker singing. They were accompanied by the latter's mother, Mrs Joe Hacker, pianist.

An instrumental duet of "A Christmas Eve Memory" by Ira-B. Wilson, was presented by Mrs. Allison at the organ and Mrs. S.F. Clements, piano. Four yule songs by Peter Cornelius were vocalized by Mrs. GUlley with Mrs. Ken Walser accomsense out of this crazy, childish panying. The repertoire includ-

Oil Logs Crucial

DALLAS (AP) - Poking holes into Mother Earth has resulted in all kinds of benefits for mankind, from oil and gas to truffles. Every commerciallydrilled hole yields information. and that's why G. Frederick Shepherd does what he does.

Shepherd is director of the Geological Information Library of Dallas, a repository for notes, old texts, drilling histories and other geologist scribblings that tell the tale of the land.

"A log is a log," Shepherd said, "whether it's a ship's log or a well driller's. It tells the story of what that driller encountered, including things like formations penetrated and completion procedures."

Some of these tidbits go back decades, and the information they impart is essential to those who seek new benefits from the ground.

A driller's log from the 1920s might include a notation that lignite was present at the well site. While the Roaring 20s wildcatter had no interest in lignite, today's alternate energy seekers are happy to have the information.

transportation costs might have made gas impractical from a increased prices today could cause a scramble to open up the old well.

The Dallas library is the most celebration.

contains information about 25 foreign countries as well as "just about every county in the United States where a well has been drilled," as Shepherd puts

While most material is not without value. "We have an evaluation based on those items which we could replace," Shepherd said. "It's more than $10 million. Of course, there's a lot of old, old material that can't be bought. You can place any value you want to on it."

Given to the packrat nature of geologists in general, Shepherd's collection has been growing at a steady pace. "We've just gone over the 2 million mark in logs," he said.

The library is a foundation, deeded to the University of Texas at Dallas. Shepherd has a staff of 10 who man the stacks 54 hours a week.

Corporations and individuals pay a membership fee and monthly dues to keep things going. Separate fees are charged for those who would Shepherd said economics have library employees search plays its part, too. Prohibitive files for a particular piece of information.

Hundreds use the library given site years ago, but daily, Shepherd said. That's up quite a bit from 1969, when the library was founded and six people a day was a cause for far-flung in the country. It "Anybody involved in exploration has to use a library," Shepherd said. "It's the most essential part of the exploration procedure. He has to depend on the results of previous drilling. "In a direct, positive way, we are doing a great deal toward solving the energy crisis."

Shepherd said there is no real 'hot spot" in the country today. Wherever there's activity, they'll call it a hot spot," he said. "That could be from Canada to the Rio Grande. It pretty well covers the waterfront. THe time is just right for the independent operator to do exploration."

The widespread nature of the Texas oil industry causes the Dallas library to contain material from so many places. "Dallas geologists are just as interested in what's happening in the North Sea as they are in Texas," Shepherd said. "We have to cover an unlimited

He said today's charts will prove valuable to future generations.

"There is going to be a time in the future when the last barrel of oil has been drilled." Shepherd said. "I'm not going to argue when that time will be. But students are still going to study the earth's formation. And that's where we'll come in. We furnish that third dimen-

Shell Vice President Favors Multiple Wells

By MAX B. SKELTON AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Geologist Robert H. Nanz says drilling one hole on one oil and gas prospect tract is futile.

At best, says the Shell Oil Co. vice president, one hole merely partially evaluates one tract.

We had to drill eight holes on our Beta prospect off California before we could decide whether it was commercial or not, even though the first well appeared to have about 500 feet of pay," he said.

"It is clear to everyone in the business a single exploratory test would not properly appraise either the specific structure or region in so far as production potential is cocnerned."

He added that the potential of do the job, and the development the Baltimore Canyon area off the New Jersey coast is still uncertain although 11 wells have been drilled or are being drilled.

Nanz made the observations while testifying before a House committee considering regulations required by the Outer Continental Shelf Land Act Amendments of 1978.

regulations will meet the legislation's stated objective of 'expedited exploration and development of the Outer Continental Shelf in order to achieve national economic and energy policy goals...."

"The need for more domestic energy is clear, the potential is there, the industry is poised to can take place with minimal impact on the environment." Nanz said.

"The only thing that would prevent the nation from deriving the benefit of these new energy supplies would be adverse policies and procedures for the utilization of public land."

The anticipated policy of the greatest concern, Nanz said, is an Interior Department proposal to promote on-structure drill prior to offshore lease sales.

'This procedure would not only cause delays which would be fatal to the timely development of the nation's resources, but there is a possibility much of the nation's resources on the OCS would be denied to the nation forever by erroneous condemnation of some areas," he said. Nanz said he disagrees with Interior's reasoning information resulting from pre-sale drilling is needed to more accurately assess the potential of the off-shore areas, to establish priorities for lease sales, and to assure the public value for its

He said a great potential danger to the nation lies in the possibility a dry hole in a frontier province would cause the decision to be made the area was probably barren and no lease sale should be held.

"If this had been the practice t the time of sale No. 35 off Southern California and the test hole had been drilled on the large structure on the Outer Banks, it would have been a failure and a sale might not have been held," Nanz said.

"In that case, we would not have the 150 million barrel Beta field as a resource for the nation because it was found in another part of the area."

Nanz said the potential of a region is best determined and realized when many groups with a variety of concepts and techniques, acting simultaneously, or in waves, explore and develop in competition.

"No one group, neither the government, nor a single company, can come close to the same efficiency in exploration or development," he said. "The history of oil exploration is replete with examples."

Several groups, he said, tried in three waves before one group found the prolific Prudhoe Bay field on Alaska's North Slope.

Nanz said Americans have been the undisputed world leaders in the development of exploration and production technology.

"This is true because there is incentive in our system to develop better concepts, techniques and equipment in order to outperform competitors and possibly realize a slightly better than average return on investment, he said.

Probe of Executives Lags, Claims Politician

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has accused the Carter administration of lagging in its investigation and criminal prosecution of company executives allegedly involved in overcharging consumers some $2 million over the past four Dingell, chairman of the House subcommittee on energy and power, said in letters to Attorney General Griffin Bell and Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger that more auditors and FBI agents should be assigned to the federal probe.

In his letters, made available today, Dingell asked the Cabinet officers to reply by Dec. 20. He also said his subcommittee would conduct hearings on the issue early next

A study by Dingell's subcommittee staff found that Energy Department officials had been aware of this criminal activity for three years before a case was referred to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Industry sources, the staff said, believe that the only effective deterrent to criminal activity is the fear of

The Energy Department's 'failure to investigate and prosecute offenders had the effect of encouraging new swindlers to cash in on this bonanza, some entering the business as late as 1976 and 1977." the staff said in a memorandum to Dingell.

Department reaction to the cases, the staff said, was haphazard, a "musical chairs" investigation with no one continually in charge.

"It is difficult to make a distinction between bureaucratic bungling and deliberate coverups," the staff said.

Further, the staff said, the federal pricing rules involved in the crude oil cases were relatively simple compared to the rules which will be applied to the sale of natural gas under the new administration energy program.

"It is a complete accident that the reseller cases are currently before a grand jury in Houston," the staff said. 'There happened to be an ambitious prosecutor in Houston looking for a popular issue. who happened to know a top could find him some appealing cases."

The staff quoted Tony Canales, the federal prosecutor in Houston, as saying that indictments of the president of a major oil reselling company and a prominent Texas oilman may be ready by early January.

The fraud allegations involve the boosting the price of regulated crude oil from old producing wells. By selling and reselling the oil it was possible to escalate the price per barrel by up to $8 using methods that appear illegal, the subcommittee said. The increases were passed on to consumers, it said.

In a report issued two weeks ago, the Energy Department's Office of Hearings and Appeals said refiners may have overcharged the public some $193 million for home heating oil in the past two years and may be heading for an additional $138 million in overcharges this

The office recommended that the refining industry be made that it is competitive and that its prices are justified, or else face the return of price controls for heating oil that were lifted in

Attitude about Church Said Reason for Deaths

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

"One religion is as good as

That view is Widely advocated and echoed these days in the name of open minded tolerance and intellectual sophistication. "Take your pick. It makes no difference. Do your own thing." While the attitude parades as tolerance, it actually sums up the emptiness that leads to the indiscriminate acceptance which marked the tragedy in Guyana, according to the Rev. Dr. Arthur F. Glasser, a Presbyterian scholar.

"We've become so mushyheaded and tolerant in America that people say any religion is okay, but the fact is that they can be demonic," Glasser said in an interview. "Such relativism is the curse of Biblical faith."

Glasser, dean of the school of world mission at the Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif., is among those who see the relativism and nihilism of the times as leaving many unable to distinguish between religious realities and fraud, between the divine and the demonic.

"Our highly secularized society . . . has created a dangerous spiritual vacuum, writes philosopher John E. Smith of Yale University. adding that the despair it engenders leads people to accept "the charismatic fanatic because they believe he can deliver them from the nihilism of the times."

The Rev. John P. Newport, professor of religious studies at Rice University in Houston and author of several books on demonism and cults, says the showed various "earmarks of

'Preoccupation with pain and death, distortion and perfersion of sex and family life, mind control, use of religion as a vehicle for power with the leader claiming to be God incarnate . . . deprivation of freedom and progression from something seemingly good to moral degeneracy.

the demonic," including:

Glasser said Fuller Seminary. an interdenominational institution now enrolling about 2,300 students in schools of missions. psychology and theology, has steadily challenged the relativistic trends.

"Our generation has produced more new religious cults than any generation in the total history of the human race." he said. "Many people are so jaded that they uncritically accept any idea that comes down the pike.

"In all this tide of relativism, the flood of eastern cults and the assumptions that any religion is okay as long as it's sincere. we've tried to face the situation and say plainly that there is truth and there is error."

He said "tolerance, in its best sense, is a virtue" and "we must allow for a measure of differences, listening to one another and learning, a principle of the ecumenical movement."

THE U.S. AND YOU

William Steif

If you can read this sentence, you don't need what this column is about.

But there are 30 million Americans who can't read the sentence — a seventh of the population — and you may know one or more of them. You can TELL them about this column and you can write, or help them write, to the folks who will assist them.

The 30 million are "functional illiterates." They can't read or do arithmetic well enough to function in our society. Imagine what it's like to not be able to read a restaurant menu or not be able to figure the correct change from a $20 bill. That's functional illiteracy.

Don't ask how the 30 million people got that way. Some are poor, some are school dropouts, some are black, some Hispanic. How they got that way is less important than the fact that a Baltimore program combining federal, city and private resources is doing something about it.

Start at the federal end with the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. CETA spends billions to train the jobless and find them jobs. Sometimes it succeeds, sometimes it fails. It passes money to the cities.

succeeds, sometimes it fails. It passes money to the cities, one of which is Baltimore.

That old Maryland seaport has more than its share of problems. One is the fact that 10 percent of its 807,000 residents are functionally illiterate.

Obviously, if you can't read or do arithmetic there are few jobs available for you. That's where private business comes in. Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis is a multibillion-dollar computer concern. It also owns Com-mercial Credit Co., a Baltimore firm that's one of the nation's biggest financial institutions.

Control Data makes and sells very sophisticated computers. They are so sophisticated you need only touch a spot on the glass covering the computer terminal screen to get a response. That kind of computer system is called If you can't read

Programmed Logic for Automated Teaching Operations — PLATO, for short.

In the 1960s Control Data began using PLATO, developed at the University of Illinois, to train pilots, Internal Revenue Service agents, bank tellers and the like. Three years ago the company decided to try teaching basic skills. It hired the best teachers in the country to devise PLATO programs that would hold a student's interest in a way conventional classrooms, with 30 or 40 students, could

.The result can be seen at the new Fair Break Learning Center on the fourth floor of downtown Baltimore's old Center on the fourth floor of downtown Baltimore's old Central YMCA. Ten computer terminals stand in a large cheery room that's open 12 hours daily. Men and women sit at the terminals, alternately touching the screen and pushing a button that says "NEXT." They're studying reading and arithmetic. Animated stick figures on the screens tell the students whether they've chosen right or

It a student is wrong, the screen repeats the question in one form or another. When the student picks the right answer — that is, learns — the stick figure responds with such words as "DYNAMITE," "TERRIFIC" or "WAY TO GO."

The center has 203 "clients." They include people on welfare, people getting CETA money through "public service" jobs, and "displaced homemakers," women who've been separated, divorced or widowed.

The center opened Feb. 1 and on Oct. 25 graduated its first class of 37. Within three weeks 15 of the graduates had jobs. A clerical training course accompanies the reading and arithmetic. The new graduates earn $125 to $160

That announcement, in itself, is something short of earthshaking until you ponder the fact that six years ago the lush 6,563-yard layout was an almost impenetrable forest of coffee trees, and the man delegated to keep it manicured learned to play the game with primitive clubs hewn from tree stalks.

"The evolution of this course is unbelievable," says George Fazio: well-known architect from Tequesta, Fla., who transformed a virtual wilderness into a vacationer's paradise in the early 1970s.

"The coffee trees were so thick that I had to design the course on horseback. It was the only way to get through the dense foliage. We used small people with a three-foot stride to obtain the original yardage.

"But the most fantastic thing was the way the top soil - rich sand from volcano lava gouged out of the river bottom - was applied. Natives dug the soil with their bare hands. Two men with shovels put it into two-wheel wooden carts and oxen hauled it up the mountainside.

"It was a laborious job with the natives working seven days a week for 11/2 years. It reminded me of the way the Pyramids or the Roman Coliseum must have been Player-Coach Dave Cowens reportedly critiqued each team asked Dave what he wanted me to do," White said.

"There are no bad vibes on my part toward him. I'm not being used as much as I used to be. It's difficult for me to get my rhythm going.

"Nobody tells me anything." White continued. "They didn't even confer with me when Dave was named Coach and he and I are the two co-captains on the team, but that's not the way it is 'This has hurt me and my family, but I'm a pro and I hope we'll regroup," White said. "I'm still going to give 100 percent and play with all the

Legal Training To Be Added at WT

CANYON — Legal assistant training in corporation law and the uniform commercial code, in estates and trusts and as an intern will be available at West Texas State University this spring semester.

Registration for these business education courses and other WTSU spring semester courses will be Jan. 12 and 13 in the WTSU Activities Center.

The corporation law and the uniform commercial code class is designed to train students to work under the supervision and control of an attorney in rendering direct assistance to the attorney, the courts and the clients in compliance with specific laws governing corporations and with the various articles of the uniform commercial code as they relate to all types of business entities.

Students will discuss perfecting security interests as well as default procedures, and how to search financing records at the county and state level and to complete and file code compliance documents.

Class instructor will be R.A. Renfer, attorney-at-law. It will be available Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9:55 beginning

The goal of the estates and trusts course, which will be taught by William H.Brian, Jr., is to provide students with knowledge and skills that have practical application in legal offices, with emphasis on Texas law and procedures.

Students will be trained to work under the supervision and control of a lawyer in preparation of legal documents associated with the planning of

The United States is the fourth largest Spanish-speaking nation in the Americans. And, because of rapid immigration and a high birth rate, "Hispanics" may outnumber blacks within a decade.

The country has perhaps 20 million people of Hispanic descent. Eight million are Mexican-Americans, mainly in the Southwest, but there are several million Puerto Ricans, nearly a million Cubans and emigrants from a score of nations. Also, they may be 8 million illegal aliens.

And Hispanic community leaders, so far a small and disparate group, have begun in earnest to work toward building national political clout to match the numbers.

"It could take us a generation to get together," says, Sal Baldenegro, a Mexican-American activist from Tucson, Ariz. "But we are trying, and we have made some real progress."

Many leaders, like Baldenegro, agitated loudly for change during the early 1970s. organizing national campaigns and regional parties.

"We found that we first had ties locally, and most of us are

Voter registration drives and issue-oriented campaigns have made Hispanics a major force at local and state levels in the Southwest, New York and Florida. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. courts the Mexican vote. In 16 states, ballots are in Spanish as well as English.

In Washington, five Hispanic congressmen make up a "Brown Caucus," and President Carter has appointed a number of Hispanics to key jobs there is also a national magazine for Hispanics, Nuestro, with articles printed in Spanish and English.

In many ways, however, the Hispanics have remained a silent minority at the national level for several reasons.

Though bound by language, Roman Catholicism and a common respect for tradition. Latins tend to keep within national and cultural groups. When a Puerto Rican airman married a Mexican woman in Tucson, the bride's mother complained, "I just don't approve of these mixed márriages." Said a Cuban in Chicago, with its large Mexican-American enclave: "Yes, I feel good when I hear Spanish, but those aren't my people. I'm a Cuban, not a Latino.

"A lot of these people are better off here than they were at home." said Luisa Ezquerro, a San Francisco teacher whose family came from Nicaragua. "They just aren't angry."

The bitterness that helped unify blacks is less acute for Hispanics. "Latinos were persecuted terribly, but you have to be a specialist in history to know about it." says Tucson educator Lupe Castillo.

Also, there are differences on basic issues. Many Mexican-Americans and Cubans want fully bilingual programs in the schools so their children won't forget their heritage. But others say that their children already know Spanish and should concentrate on English.

Colds spread by hands

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB Every winter we have lots of I do my best to keep keep their feet dry, but no matter how much effort I make there seems to be one cold after another. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — There is such a thing as natural resistance. In some children there is a deficiency of gamma globulin, a blood protein, that makes them more susceptible to colds.

You need to realize that colds are contagious diseases. Children, by exposure to lots of other children at school, and their parents have more colds than the adults without school age children.

Any one who is exposed to lots of other people is more likely to get a cold. I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-2, Cold And Flu Group, Prevention And Treatment. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551. Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you some useful information. Meanwhile, I would suggest that you keep in mind that colds are often spread by your hands. Keep your hands clean, and wear gloves if you are out. A hand that picks up germs from a door knob and then touches the face may innoculate you with cold germs.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Two

months ago I had a pulmo-nary embolism. What causes an embolism? How can I prevent it from occur-ring again? Will I-have b good chance to live a normal life and will I be restricted from anything? Would taking Coumadin for a long period of time hurt me in any way or is it good for me? DEAR READER — A pulmonary embolism usually refers to a blood clot that has gone to the lungs. The blood clot commonly forms in the legs or in the deep veins in the lower body. The clot moves with the circulation to return to the right side of the heart. From here it flows through the heart to the lungs with the blood that goes there to pick up oxygen. Because the arteries to the lung get smaller and smaller as they branch out to the tiny air sacks, the blood clot lodges and obstructs the

The Coumadin you asked about is to prevent formation of blood clots. You didn't say what your age is but, of course, birth control pills are sometimes sus-pected as a factor in forming clots. Bed rest and inactivity sometimes contribute to formation of clots, too.

So the chocolate bar hike of 9.4 percent fits within the rules. But that's just one case and the inflation-fighting standards being developed by the Council on Wage and Price Stability have to apply to thousands of situations. When Carter announced his Cowboys Steelers to Have Rematch In Super Bowl?

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

There is a sneaking suspicion in these quarters that when Super Bowl XIII kicks off in the Orange Bowl, the first National Football League championship game in Miami since MCMLXXVI, you may well see the same old uniforms - worn by the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys.

As the season winds down, these two-time winners of pro football's ultimate game are the dominate forces in their respective conferences in what they historically do best, namely just about everything.

MONTGOMERY

With Pittsburgh, the winningest team in the league as well as the American Conference, the primary weapon is the Steel Curtain, the defense which turned a 40-year patsy into a team not only to be respected but to be feared.

With Dallas, the defending NFL champs, the dominant force is the shotgun and all the rest of Tom Landry's complexities which have formulated the National Conference's No. 1. offense, one so potent even the Cowboys' own flex defense would have trouble handling it.

Consider this bit of trivia: Pittsburgh has not allowed a touchdown in the first period of any game this season. The last time they had a streak like that going was after the 1975

This year that Pittsburgh defense has allowed just 1.78 points. Only one team has done better - Denver with 177. But the Broncos haven't scored all that many, either, this 265 being fifth from the bottom of the conference while Pittsburgh's 335 is fourth from the top.

In the NFC, no one has come close to the Cowboys' scoring 354 points, nor has anyone allowed less than Dallas' 201.

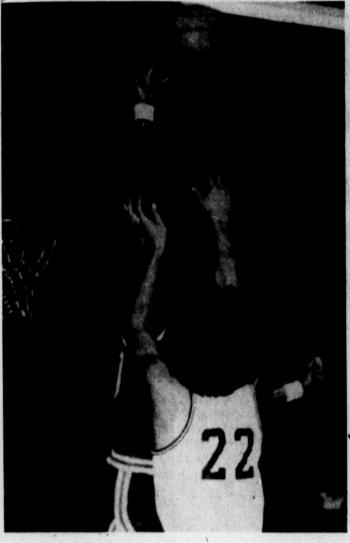

The engineers of these two locomotives are Bradshaw and

30-33%

Staubach, who just happen to be the AFC and NFC passing leaders. Terry is No. 1 in NFL touchdown passes with 26 No. 2? Roger, of course, with 25.

And to complement the aerial game, each team has a running sensation - Tony Dorsett of Dallas with 1,204 yards and Franco Harris of Pittsburgh with

Pittsburgh has been perhaps the steadiest team in the AFC. The Steelers won their first eight games and have won their last four as well. The Cowboys have come on like gangbusters by winning their last five in a row, outscoring the opposition 154-54 in that span, after some early and midseason stagger-

The Cougars, who have won or shared the Southwest Conference title twice since joining the league three years ago, resumed practice today in preparation for their New Year's Day game at Dallas.

'We want to put our best kids out there but we also want to give some consideration to what we have coming back next year," Yeoman said Tuesday.

Houston's backfield of the future likely will include Delrick Brown at quarterback and running backs Terald Clark and John Newhouse.

The Cougars finished the regular season with 49-25 victory over Rice for a 9-2 record. Houston survived five first half against Rice and came back with a strong second half performance by Brown.

Staubach is the No. 1 rated quarterback in the NFL's complex rating system. He has thrown 25 touchdown passes and has been intercepted just once in his last 114 pass attempts.

Dallas has clinched the National Conference Eastern Division title and host role in the second round of the playoffs. The Cowboys have an outside chance to host the NFC title game--if they get that far-should the Los Angeles Rams fall to Green Bay Sunday while the Cowboys defeat the Jets.

Landry said "It is important to keep Roger sharp because we will have two weeks off. It's important to him mentally. If he does improve and can play then I'll just go by feel. L'm not sure if he would play a quarter or Ironically, the last time taubach did not start a game was in the season's finale in 1975 against the Jets. Clint Longley quarterbacked Dallas to a 31-21-victory.

The Cowboys and Jets have met twice in the past. Both years, 1971 and 1975, the Cowboys whipped the Jets then went to the Super Bowl.

Turkey Shoot Saturday

The Easter Lions Club will conduct a holiday turkey shoot Saturday from 1-5 p.m. on the grounds of the Easter Community Building, located at the Easter community south of Hereford.

Entry fee is $2.50 per round of five shots, and competitors will fire shotguns at trap targets. Ammunition will be available at the shoot. Winners of each round will receive a turkey as a prize. Proceeds from the shoot will go into the civic project fund of the Easter Lions Club.

Saturday's shoot marks the second for the club this holiday
