Winter Storm Plummets Temperatures

Snow's on the Way, Prognosticators Say

Forecasters said snow. They missed, although chances are good for later today.

They said cold. That one, they hit. It didn't snow Tuesday night like the prognosticators said it would, but a winter storm made the prospects much greater for today and tonight.

Intermittent light snow and freezing drizzle fell early today in parts of the Panhandle as the storm moved southward across the state, threatening much of Northwest, West and North Texas with snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Forecasters called for intermittent light snow to continue over the Panhandle during the day with the possibility of up to six inches tonight and early Thursday.

A winter storm watch has been posted for the Hereford area tonight and Thursday, with mostly cloudy conditions and much colder temperatures expected today.

Snow is expected to continue through Friday, with a warming trend predicted beginning Saturday.

The low today in Hereford was 21 degrees. Today's high should be around 25, with the low tonight in the teens. The high Thursday was expected to be around 22, with the low on Friday to be near zero.

The leading edge of the very cold air was moving southward across the state early today on a line from Texarkana to Waco to Junction to south of Midland to near Guadalupe Pass in far Southwest Texas.

Forecasters called for colder temperatures, partly cloudy to cloudy skies today for all but South Texas. Highs were to range from a chilly mid-afternoon reading in the 20s in the Panhandle to a balmy 80-degree reading in far south Texas.

Most of the state had cloudy to partly cloudy skies early today and temperatures ranged from 20 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to a warm 70 at Brownsville in the Valley. Elsewhere, readings were in the 50s and 60s in the eastern section of the state and in the 20s and 30s over West Texas.

Gossip: Mouth-to-mouth recitation.

THE YOUNG MAN examined the high prices on a nightclub menu, looked at his date and asked, "Now what will you have, my plump little doll?"

SOME PEOPLE HAVE a knack for getting into a conversation after a few opening remarks, but most of us have difficulty when it comes to offering a snappy opening ourselves.

Well, help has arrived. After years of careful compilation, here are a few things you can say to get the conversation started, and maybe even make you the center of attention:

"I just got my electricity bill and it was only $10.50."

"My 17-year-old son has been given a safe-driving award."

"I just got a notice from my insurance company that my rates for next year will be reduced."

"I voted for Richard Nixon."

"Farrah Fawcett-Majors needs to put on weight."

"I voted for Dolph Briscoe."

"You can make money on $2 wheat."

"I like Jimmy Carter's smile."

"I went to the library yesterday instead of watching the Dallas Cowboys."

"I don't care whether my bathroom tissue is soft or not."

"I think Barbara Walters is worth $1 million."

"I can't wait until I'm 40."

"My son in college came home for Christmas with money still in his bank account."

"My aunt in Chicago, Ill., mailed me a package two days ago and it arrived today."

"I like the smell of cigar smoke."

"I really love the winters in the Texas Panhandle."

"My cousin had a sex-change operation, and she's still a lousy tennis player."

"I get paid for a 40-hour week, but I put in more hours because I like my job."

"I like to shop in Amarillo because you get to wait at so many red lights and can really see the sights."

"Sure we need a tax increase. They can add it right onto our house payments and that won't hurt anyway."

"The United Way didn't call on me, but I sent in a big contribution anyway."

Human Relations

Commission Plans

To Form Thursday

The Hereford Human Relations Commission will hold an organizational meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center Ballroom.

Purpose of the commission is to strengthen relations between various segments of the community.

Leon E. Boone, administrator with the Department of Community Development in Amarillo will address the group on organizational procedures during tomorrow night's meeting.

Representatives of the medical, legal and teaching fields, in addition to local clergymen have been invited to attend, and the meeting is open to all interested residents of the community.

Hunters' Breakfast

To Be Saturday

Members of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary will get pheasant hunters off to a good start with a hot breakfast Saturday when they conduct their annual hunters' breakfast project.

The meal, a primary fund raiser for the auxiliary, will get underway at 5:30 a.m. at the Hereford High School cafeteria.

Auxiliary members will be dishing up scrambled eggs, ham, biscuits and gravy, and pouring milk and coffee.

Cost of the meal is $2.50.

As a service to hunters, auxiliary members will sell licenses, and will fill thermos bottles with coffee at a fee of $1.

Chilly Pumper

Hereford service station owner Ruben Gutierrez stayed busy this morning despite cold weather and the nationally-released news that gasoline prices are going up again. Prices have been increasing everywhere lately, having risen an average of four cents since the start of the year. An oil industry report says an inevitable price rise could reach three cents in some markets.

Gas Prices To Increase Again, States Petroleum Industry Study

NEW YORK (AP) - "It's just economics," says one dealer. Despite plenty of oil around, gasoline is in short supply, and that means each precious gallon will cost more next week, at least two cents more.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Newsletter, an influential industry report, says the price rise could reach three cents in some markets. The increase, he says, "won't take place in specific areas. It will take place on a national level - and especially in rural areas."

United Way Sets Meeting

Deaf Smith County United Way officials, involved in their largest fund drive ever, have called a special board meeting for 6:30 a.m. Thursday at the Railroad Crossing.

Plans for winding up this fall's campaign, which is still more than $70,000 of its $199,815 goal, are to be discussed at the meeting, according to UW president Paul Sims.

United Way has raised $127,000, more than about 63.5 percent of its goal, with the official drive expected to end on Friday, Dec. 15. However, officials believe money and pledges will trickle in throughout this month and early next year.

UW officials are planning to hold the second half door-to-door campaign within the next few days. The first half of the house drive netted $1,883.

Charles Matties, a West Hartford, Conn., Exxon dealer and president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, agrees with Lundberg. "There's no question the shortage is going to bring some increase. I would expect to see a few cents upward movement," he said Tuesday.

The price rise is expected to continue as long as the tight gasoline supply persists - at least a month according to some oil companies. Other experts believe the crunch will last even longer.

Figures compiled by Lundberg show the price increase already occurring. The national average price of a gallon of gasoline rose about half a cent in November and four cents since the year began.

In Indianapolis, for example, premium gasoline containing lead rose 1.3 cents to 73.3 cents a gallon in November. In Des Moines, it was up 2 cents to 76.7 cents a gallon, Lundberg said.

Dealers are raising prices to compensate for less gas sold. "It's just economics," says Matties. "If a dealer now only has 75 percent of the product he was getting, he's going to have to increase his profit to offset his loss in sales. The overhead goes on."

Shell Oil Co., the nation's largest gasoline producer, has cut supplies of all products to service stations. Standard Oil of Indiana Amoco has slashed supplies of unleaded gasoline. Other major oil companies say their supplies are tight, but they haven't announced ration plans.

The tight supply results from unusually high amounts of driving in late summer and fall. Gasoline demand, which usually drops after Labor Day, persisted this year due to good autumn weather. Although oil companies had plenty of crude oil supplies, they couldn't refine gasoline fast enough to meet demand.

The companies wouldn't comment on price rises at the retail level. "The dealer sets the price and it will vary from dealer to dealer," said Norman Altstedter, a spokesman for Shell.

Wage Guide May Change

WASHINGTON (AP) - Indicating a change in President Carter's 7 percent wage guideline may be imminent, the government's top inflation adviser says there has been "unanimous criticism" by business and labor that the ceiling is too tough in its restrictions on fringe benefits.

Nevertheless, Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Tuesday night the changes being contemplated are not considered major alterations.

Kahn and several leading private economists were to testify today before the congressional Joint Economic Committee on Carter's voluntary wage and price guidelines and on whether they can be more successful in containing inflation than mandatory controls.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Tuesday night that "tinkering" with the wage guideline would not alter the labor

Dress Might Have Saved Survivors

WALDEN, Colo. (AP) - Passengers who survived a crashlanding in the Rockies say they stuffed a wedding dress into a hole in the wrecked plane to try to keep out blowing snow and freezing winds as they waited 11 hours for rescuers.

Searchers on snowmobiles followed a high-voltage line knocked out by the crash to reach the 21 survivors 10,000 feet up in the mountains Tuesday morning. One woman died in the crash.

Temperatures dipped into the teens and winds swept the mountain at 35 mph after the twin-turboprop de Havilland Otter went down on a Rocky Mountain Airways flight from the resort town of Steamboat Springs to Denver.

Steven Bluscher, commander of the Colorado Civil Air Patrol, said the wind-chill index during the night reached 50 below zero.

"If you'd been up there and seen the weather we had, you'd be amazed that they survived," said Grand County Sheriff Houston Henderson, one of the rescuers.

One passenger, Joe Garbina, 30, of Bloomington, Minn., said one gaping hole in the fuselage was plugged with the bridal gown, found amid the scrambled luggage.

Capt. Scott Alan Klopfenstein radioed 15 minutes after takeoff at 6:55 p.m. Monday that he was having trouble with ice and was heading back to Steamboat Springs.

Dennis Heap, vice president of the airline, said that is all that's known about what caused the crash. He said authorities hoped to interview Klopfenstein, listed in critical condition at a Denver hospital, sometime today.

Federal Aviation Administration and National Transportation Safety Board investigators are expected to announce their findings today, said FAA spokesman Lou Lombard.

Heap, noting the large number of survivors, expressed confidence in the airline's Otter fleet and said other craft would not be grounded.

Except for an 8-month-old boy who escaped unscratched and a 20-year-old man who was treated and released, all the survivors were hospitalized, five in critical condition.

Burdine Wins Grid Contest

Wendell Burdine, 109 Ave. K, has won the Hereford Brand Football Contest for the season and will receive $100 cash, it was announced today after judges completed tabulations for the 13-week promotion.

Second prize of $35 went to Mrs. Santry [Paula] Rush of Hart, and capturing the third prize of $15 was Dr. C.E. Rush of Hereford, father of the runner-up.

Winners were determined on the basis of the fewest games missed from 11 entries during the 13-week period. Burdine had the fewest of 76; Mrs. Rush was a game behind at 77, and Dr. Rush missed 79.

Next in line were Bobbie Kitchens and Debe Knox with 81 misses; Beverly Bryant and Norman Hill, 82; Marie Loerwald and Ditta Rush, 83; and Scott Howard, E.H. Loerwald, Rose O'Rand and Joyce Wartos, 84.

The contest, sponsored by local merchants, gave weekly prizes of $25, $15 and $10 to the best selections each week. Persons who entered each week, or at least 11 of the weeks, were eligible for the season cash prizes. A total of 124 entrants were in the contest all the way, and weekly entries averaged around 200.

Priscilla Denies She Framed Her Husband

HOUSTON (AP) - Denying she framed her husband, the bosomy blonde wife of millionaire Cullen Davis returns to court today for a possible new round of defense questioning.

The trial judge weighed that possibility overnight.

Prosecutors permitted Priscilla Davis to listen to a tape recorded conversation Tuesday in which she heard two men discuss her murder by a contract killer.

She identified one voice as that of her husband and the second as that of FBI informant David McCrory, the key witness in the state's murder-for-hire case against Davis.

The Fort Worth industrialist, 45, is accused of masterminding a plot to kill his divorcee.

Tuesday's testimony ended after preliminary defense questioning of karate expert Pat Burleson and the subsequent recall of Mrs. Davis.

With the jury out, the defense sought late Tuesday to use an alleged romance between Mrs. Davis and a onetime boyfriend to link Priscilla to McCrory.

Prosecutors vigorously objected to the defense maneuver and the judge halted questioning and postponed the decision on that matter until this morning.

In what amounts to a state conspiracy versus a defense conspiracy, the million-dollar defense team contends Davis was framed by his wife, Burleson, McCrory and others.

The state bases its conspiracy case on audio and visual tapes of two meetings between Davis and McCrory last Aug. 18 and 20 on a Fort Worth parking lot. The defense has not denied that it is Davis' voice on the tapes but insists that its own witnesses will put the conversations in a totally different context.

Listening via earphones, Mrs. Davis heard her husband and McCrory discuss a professional "hit man" who Davis allegedly wanted hired to kill his wife, the judge and others.

There was this exchange: McCrory: "And now Priscilla is a different story...He'd rather uh, do Priscilla than the judge...He says he can do it easy."

Davis: "Huh? Like hell." McCrory: "Well." Davis: "Priscilla's always got somebody around her. The judge doesn't."

Later, there was this exchange: McCrory: "There's something I need to ask you. How much money is he going to get if he gets Priscilla...I've got to tell him something. If you want the b---dead then, uh, you've got to tell me how much...I mean he says he can do 'em all, you know..." Davis: "One at a time." McCrory: "I know, but tell me something."

Davis: "Uh I'll have to think on that one."

Prosecutor Tolly Wilson reeled off a list of people the defense says were involved in the frameup and then asked Mrs. Davis:

"Did you conspire with any of the persons I have heretofore named to cause your husband to say anything on those tapes?"

Shaking her head, Mrs. Davis replied: "No." Stopping the tape at intervals, Wilson asked her repeatedly if she in any way contributed to a scheme to force Davis to make such statements.

"No...No...No," she said over and over.

She also identified her husband in photographs and in films of the Aug. 20 encounter in which he allegedly gave McCrory $25,000 to pay the phantom killer.

Davis, 45, sat through the cross-examination in unblinking silence. The defense insists that Mrs. Davis, angered over her husband's acquittal last year on murder charges, joined McCrory and Burleson in a deadly scheme of vengeance and greed.

The couple separated in 1974 - almost two years to the day before a bloody shooting spree at the $6 million Davis mansion left Mrs. Davis wounded, her lover and young daughter killed, and a visitor wounded.

Mrs. Davis testified earlier she offered to settle the divorce last summer for $20 million but that her husband rejected the proposal.

Prison Said Not Interested in Inmates

HOUSTON (AP) — A criminologist said Tuesday the Texas Department of Corrections was more interested in agricultural production and security than improving conditions for inmates.

Under cross-examination by the state, Arnold E. Pontesso also said TDC has a nationwide reputation for cleanliness and the lowest escape rate in the country.

He was on the stand for the second day in the trial of a lawsuit filed by the Justice Department and TDC inmates charging the Corrections Department with violating their civil rights by abusing them and giving them poor medical care, housing and food.

Pontesso criticized what he said was inadequate staffing by the TDC, requiring them to use inmate building tenders who he said are actually guards.

He said all TDC units, with one exception, are considered maximum security. He recommended some be labeled minimum and medium security, and suggested doubling the officer staff and cutting the inmate population in the units to 500.

The Coffield and Beto units each house 4,000 inmates.

When questioned by the state's attorney, Edward Idar, Pontesso agreed that he was employed by the Justice Department to find areas where TDC didn't meet contemporary corrections standards.

"Instead of bringing in an objective report for the court, you were only asked to bring out the bad," Idar said.

Counterfeiters Sentenced To Prison

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two men convicted of trying to sell $17,750 in bogus currency to undercover agents were sentenced to federal prison sentences Tuesday.

Leisero Herrera, 41, of McAllen, Texas, and Randall Lewis Willman, 45, of Athens, Texas, pleaded guilty to possession of forged obligations following their arrest last July in what secret service agents called the largest South Texas counterfeit case in five years.

U.S. District Judge Owen D. Cox sentenced Herrera to seven years and assessed Willman five years in prison.

According to testimony at Tuesday's sentencing, Herrera approached an unidentified man in a Rio Grande Valley bar seeking to sell the counterfeit $50 and $100 bills printed at Willman's Athens printing business.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Berg said that man was a McAllen justice of the peace.

Berg declined to identify the JP he said alerted Treasury Department agents after telling Herrera he was interested in buying the false currency.

Rev. Jones' Stepsons Returned to U.S.

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) Fifteen more survivors of the mass murder-suicide ritual at Jonestown, including two adopted sons of the Rev. Jim Jones, were scheduled to leave for the United States today under armed escort after being turned back three days ago.

The 15 men were scheduled to arrive at Kennedy International Airport in New York at 6 p.m. EST aboard a Pan American flight. U.S. officials were to help them arrange for flights to their hometowns.

The men had been scheduled to leave on Sunday but were turned back by the pilot of the Pan American jetliner because there were no sky marshals to accompany them.

Jones' adopted sons Jim and Tim were at the Peoples Temple branch in Georgetown on Nov. 18 when their father and more than 900 of his followers died at the cult's Jonestown settlement 150 miles northwest of the Guyanese capital.

Three other survivors flew to the United States Tuesday.

Thirty-eight other American members of the cult are still in Georgetown, and there has been no indication when they might be cleared to leave. Two are being held on murder charges, and others who are being held as material witnesses for judicial proceedings.

The Guyana government denied a report published by The Associated Press that Home Minister Vibert Mingo ordered the police commissioner to call off an investigation into Jonestown prior to the Nov. 18 tragedy.

Clements Confers With Labor Leaders

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clements may have spoken unflatteringly of organized labor in his campaign, but smiles and handshakes were the order of the day Tuesday after the governor-elect met with Texas FL-CIO leaders.

Both Clements and AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard minimized their differences and maximized their areas of agreement after conferring for an hour and 15 minutes.

"A very cordial meeting," said Hubbard.

"Labor's position in this state is very, very important. We can't have a healthy industrial base unless we have a healthy labor force," Clements said.

The meeting was held at Clements' headquarters at Hubbard's request. Included were Lynn Tate, a union member who is state commissioner of labor and standards, Dally Willis, vice-president of the communications workers, and Jackie St. Clair, head of the building trades council.

During Clements' campaign, he frequently asserted that Attorney General John Hill and the Texas Democratic Party were dominated by the AFL-CIO.

But Tuesday he said he and labor had a common interest in continuing the state's industrial opportunities, increasing job opportunities and cutting taxes.

Police Report

Danny Bates, 437 Ave. H, reported Tuesday that a man kicked in his front door and beat him up. Police expect to make an arrest in connection with the incident.

J.B. Fluellen of Elmhurst, Texas, reported to police that he picked up a female hitchhiker in Dimmitt, drove to his daughter's house in Hereford and left his vehicle. When he returned outside, Fluellen said the vehicle was gone.

Dimmitt police arrested the female suspect Tuesday night, but Fluellen refused to file charges.

Polls Aid Public Schools

By CHARLES LYLES

The 10th annual Gallup Survey of public attitudes toward the public schools was conducted during April, 1978, and was designed to deal with issues of greatest concern to both educators and the public.

The Gallup education polls are an established source of reliable information concerning trends in opinion about significant school questions. The survey measures over-all public reaction to a variety of school programs and policies. And they serve as a national benchmark against which local attitudes may be measured.

In the 1978 ratings of public schools, 36 percent of the people surveyed gave the schools a high rating in the quality of their work. At the other extreme, 19 percent gave the schools a low rating. A slight decline in the public's rating of the public schools was registered during the past year.

Parents' who have children attending public schools hold their schools in much higher esteem than do others in the population. The lowest ratings are given by those who have children enrolled in nonpublic schools. The overall decline in ratings can be explained partly by the fact that there is a continuing decline in the number of U.S. families with children of school age.

Attitudes are far more favorable toward public schools in smaller cities and town than in larger cities. Residents of central cities give their schools the lowest rating in the nation.

Blacks living in the North give their public schools the lowest rating while Southern Blacks give a top rating to the public schools.

When the four main areas of the nation are compared, it is found that people living in the West are least satisfied with their schools.

The survey also asked how the public would improve the schools. The public wants more strict discipline in schools. A constant complaint of the public has been the lack of strict discipline in the schools. The public is bothered by the lack of respect shown to teachers in the classroom.

The public also wants teachers who take a personal interest in each student, who try to understand each student and his problems, who encourage students in subject taught, and who inspire students to set goals in life for themselves.

People want greater emphasis placed upon what they describe as the fundamentals meaning reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Another suggestion is for closer teacher-parent relationships. They want more conferences between parents and teachers. They would like to know more about what parents can do in the home to help their child in school.

The survey indicates people want higher scholastic standards, more education about health hazards, and more emphasis on career education.

Search Not Challengeable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Automobile passengers have no legal right to challenge a police search of the car or any resulting seizure of evidence, a sharply divided Supreme Court ruled today.

Voting 5 to 4, the justices upheld rulings by Illinois courts that convicted armed robbers Frank Rakas and Lonnie King lacked the "legal standing" to challenge a police search of their getaway car.

The car was owned and driven by a friend. Police had no search warrant when they stopped the car and found rifle shells and a sawed-off shotgun.

Justice William H. Rehnquist, in a 22-page majority opinion that could have broad application in police search and seizure cases, narrowed the effect of a related 1960 Supreme Court decision.

In the ruling 18 years ago, a court generally considered more liberal in matters of individual rights said persons "legitimately on premises where a search occurs may challenge its legality."

If such challenges are successful, seized evidence cannot be used against a suspect at trial.

Rehnquist said today, however, "We believe that the phrase 'legitimately on premises'... creates too broad a gauge for measurement of Fourth Amendment rights."

Jones Smuggled Weapons

JONESTOWN, Guyana (AP) — The young aides of Peoples Temple leader Jim Jones smuggled weapons into tightly controlled, socialist Guyana by romancing customs officers, distracting attention with old people in wheelchairs and lying with practiced expertise, according to memos found in Jones' personal papers.

Police searching Jonestown after the mass murder-suicide of more than 900 people discovered 45 weapons, only four of which had been licensed. These findings led to speculation about local government complicity in allowing them into Guyana.

However, a memo found among Jones' papers and made available to The Associated Press shows his aides spirited the guns through customs with the kind of amateur enthusiasm that might characterize efforts by returning vacationers to hide a few extra bottles of whisky.

The Joneses people added some slick innovations and fast footwork.

In an undated memo to Jones, his public relations director in Georgetown — Sharon Amos — gave an account of one gun shipment's arrival. The previous evening cult members in the Guyanese capital of Georgetown had thrown a party.

"Two men from customs came and danced with Karen and me they dance very close and were absolutely abnoxious. But we were friendly to them and one of them was there when the stuff came through from customs," Mrs. Amos wrote.

Mrs. Amos was slain along with her three children at the cult's building in Georgetown the night of the mass murder-suicides at Jonestown. An American, Charles Beikman, is charged with the murders.

Weapons, according to Mrs. Amos' memos, were hidden in crates containing the personal effects of newly arriving cult members to Guyana. She wrote of a close call when a woman named Edith arrived with a crate secretly marked to indicate six weapons were in it.

"I told Edith to say personal items but when it came her turn she said, 'All I have in my crate is arms and other things,'" Mrs. Amos wrote.

"I was there and Verne Gosney and we both covered up for it. I said she's very ill and looks like she's going to have a heart attack. I had to let her act ill anyway.... I told them she's just got crotchety stuff and clothes in there and they let it go by," she wrote.

That same time, "We had Joe Helly Beam fall out of his wheelchair, and pushed him up near the front it's good to have someone occasionally in a wheelchair," she wrote.

Other points she noticed about customs: crates were checked much more closely than duffle bags, medical supplies passed through more easily when women's sanitary napkins were placed on top "as they see Kotex," and that it was necessary to speak with the customs men "in a matter-of-fact voice."

Always ready for a challenge, Mrs. Amos noticed one customs man "was more friendly to men and ignored women pretty much, so I had a couple of attractive men go up to him and say hello and thank him for being so courteous to us. He warmed up toward the end of the evening."

According to police reports, the Peoples Temple successfully smuggled into Jonestown at least 35 handguns, five M16 semi-automatic rifles and a communist AK47 automatic rifle. The four licensed weapons were shotguns.

Jones apparently required the utmost candor of his aides, and the sexual theme reoccurs in his papers. In an undated memo from "Patricia, Joan and Tommy," they recount their organization's opposition to the program. The guideline that was announced by President Carter on Oct. 24 places a voluntary lid of 7 percent on wage increases, including fringe benefits.

Administration officials, including Kahn, indicated previously that the 7 percent guideline might be made more flexible in its treatment of fringe benefits. Among possible changes would be an exclusion of government-mandated

Survivors

Killed was Mary Kay Hardin, 29, of Steamboat Springs. Jackson County Coroner Jim Shawver said she apparently died of a skull fracture.

The injured initially were taken to a temporary rescue center in a log cabin at a campground about 50 miles from the nearest hospital.

Only four were able to walk. The others were carried in baskets or on plywood boards. Some rode inside Sno-Cats, and others wrapped in down sleeping bags were strapped to the outside of the tractor-like tracked vehicles.

State Patrolman Jim Cure said Klopfenstein was "incoherent and moaning" when rescuers reached the plane. The pilot apparently suffered from increases in employer pension contributions and part of increased premiums needed to maintain existing medical benefits.

Such a change could allow a total of 8 percent to 9 percent boosts in wage and fringe benefits, according to rough estimates by business and labor leaders, instead of the 7 percent limit.

Kahn also said Tuesday night during a panel discussion sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute, a private exposure and frostbite when the cockpit window broke.

Carl Norris, one of the first rescuers on the crash scene, said it looked like the plane clipped a power tower with either the right wing tip or right tail assembly.

"I think he was trying to outfly that mountain. He was flying up and he lacked about maybe a thousand feet of making it," said Norris, line superintendent for Mountain Parks Electric.

"I'd say he hit the tower about 20 feet up but under the wires and kind of settled down into the snow. An Otter don't travel that fast, you know."

Norris said passengers told him they had no warning before the crash.

"All of a sudden we hit a little conservative study organization; that the administration is considering putting limits on the profits a corporation can earn from increased prices.

As it now is written, the price guideline, which is aimed at holding average price increases to 5.75 percent, provides that increases exceeding the guidelines will be allowed if a business can justify the jump by showing its costs have risen for reasons beyond its control.

The Joneses people added some slick innovations and fast footwork.

In an undated memo to Jones, his public relations director in Georgetown — Sharon Amos — gave an account of one gun shipment's arrival. The previous evening cult members in the Guyanese capital of Georgetown had thrown a party.

"Two men from customs came and danced with Karen and me they dance very close turbulence and ran right into the ground," said passenger Vern Bell, 19, of Lakewood. "...After we hit, I guess I was knocked out for just a little while. I was in a daze, didn't know who I was. I thought I was in a nightmare."

Amid screams and moans, the few lights on the plane soon went out, he said. Those who were able helped wrap other, more seriously injured passengers in blankets and coats.

The crash site was about 110 miles northwest of Denver and 15 miles southwest of Walden in a range of wilderness mountains that separates Steamboat Springs from a broad valley called North Park.

Iranian Oil Production Stymied As Strike Spreads in Country

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hundreds of Americans and other foreigners fled from Iran today, leaving for Europe as at least 15 more demonstrators against the rule of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi were reported killed by police gunfire and a spreading strike cut oil production nearly in half.

Three busloads of American women and children were among those leaving the country. The women's husbands, assigned to the U.S. military mission or employed by American companies, remained behind.

About 45,000 Americans and 55,000 other Westerners were in Iran before demonstrations against the shah's rule began 11 months ago and violence ensued across the country. Western diplomats said about 4,000 Americans have left along with an undetermined number of Europeans.

The exodus was spurred by the beginning of the Moslem mourning month of Moharram last Friday night, traditionally a time of tension, and the approach of Ashura, the climax of Moharram on Dec. 10-11, when zealots march in procession and scourge themselves to mourn the assassination in 641 A.D. of Imam Hossein, the grandson of the Prophet Mohammed and the founder of Iran's dominant Shiite Moslem sect.

Shiite leaders threatened a "bloodbath in the streets" if the government tried to prevent or break up the Ashura processions.

"It's the most appropriate time to take a holiday," said one departing American wife.

Meanwhile, a reliable source reported five anti-shah protesters were shot and killed when troops broke up a march by hundreds of demonstrators through the Persian Gulf city of Dayer Tuesday. The source also said about 45 demonstrators were arrested in Borozjan, 45 miles north of the Persian Gulf port of Bushehr, which Moslem exiles had claimed was in rebel hands.

The source said Bushehr, site of a naval base and two nuclear power stations under construction by West German firms, was guarded by troops and tanks and was calm, and businesses were open after a two-day strike protesting the slaying of religious leader Abu Ashuri. He was killed in a gun battle between police and Moslems trying to prevent his arrest for delivering sermons attacking the shah. One policeman also was killed.

Other sources reported police in the town of Zanjan, 250 miles north of Tehran, opened fire Monday after several hundred demonstrators against the shah's rule defied orders to disperse, and Moslem fanatics brandishing double-edge battle swords charged the police lines.

Four of the shouting fanatics were reported killed, and the sources said police gunfire killed at least six more persons on Tuesday when the funeral of the four turned into a riot.

"There were many wounded," one source said.

Long, loud bursts of gunfire were heard about midnight Tuesday from an avenue leading to the shah's Niavaran Palace in Tehran, but there was no information available on what the shooting was about or if there were casualties.

Hosting Party

Mrs. Aven and Sue Hollingsworth. The Aven home was aglow with decorations for the Christmas season.

The second annual telephone operators reunion was held Saturday in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room with 27 operators and four guests in attendance. Several letters were read from former operators who were unable to attend the covered dish supper. Next year's reunion is scheduled Oct. 13, 1979 at the Flame Room. [Brand photo by Denise Smith]

Women's Division Elects New Officers for Board

The remaining positions on the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division executive board were filled Tuesday afternoon during the board's monthly business meeting at The Railroad Crossing. Mary Herring was elected as president of the Women's Division last month by the Chamber Board of Directors. Additional board officers are Frances Berry, vice president; Glenda Gerles, second vice; and LaJean Henry, secretary. Margaret Formby, who is ending a term as president, will serve as parliamentarian. Board posts being vacated by Carrell Ann Simmons and Donna VanderZee will be filled by Olivia Denning and Marcia Snyder.

These officers will be installed during the next general membership meeting, scheduled Jan. 30, when a guest speaker will be featured and the "Chamber Woman of the Year" named.

In other business, Mary Herring announced that the reigning Miss Hereford Stephanie Stringer will be relinquishing her crown after her marriage in January. The Women's Division is currently trying to contact Cindy Heard, who is first runner-up to the Miss Hereford crown and is eligible to finish out Miss Stringer's term. Miss Heard has not yet been reached. Mrs. Herring also reported that the 1979 Miss Hereford pageant will be staged by the Women's Division April 28. Margaret Formby will be chairman of the pageant steering committee. Others on the pageant committee are Barbara Allen, Georgia Sparks, Jan Schollenbarger and Rosie Griffin.

Representing the Animal Action Committee, Dean Jones stated that although the care and placement of stray animals in Hereford has improved, "it is still a sad situation." She stated that, through The Brand's Animal Orphans listing, an average of one dog is adopted and two dogs reclaimed each week. Although stray animals are watered and fed, the Animal Action Committee is seeking more community support in acquiring larger shelters, according to Mrs. Jones.

Glenda Gerles, chairman of the Homes Lighting Contest, said that more entrants are needed in this annual Christmas project, which will award a total of $180 in cash prizes to the winners. Entry forms are available at the Chamber office and the final entry date is Dec. 15. Houses will be judged by three out-of-town individuals on the night of Dec. 19. Carrell Ann Simmons announced that, with the enrollment of Debbie Tardy, the Women's Division membership now stands at approximately 200.

LaJean Henry informed the board that a USDA policy is being formulated to tax the usage of ground water. She explained that WIFE (Women Interested in Farm Economics) is already opposing this measure and urged the Women's Division to join them in writing their legislators in Washington. "Irrigation is our life blood. If this (water taxation) happens, our economy here is down the drain," Mrs. Henry stated. The board members expressed agreement. Women's Division members were asked to assist Olivia Denning in decorating the Bull Barn in preparation for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet, to be held Jan. 11.

Speedy Nieman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed his appreciation to the Women's Division for their cooperation throughout his term as president. He cited the efforts of Mrs. Formby for her leadership during the past year. Also attending yesterday's board meeting was Toni Shakocius, secretary at the Chamber office. The next meeting of the board will be Feb. 6.

To Be Installed

Herring; LaJean Henry, secretary/treasurer; and Frances Berry, first vice president. These officers are to be installed Jan. 30 during the next general membership meeting of the Women's Division. [Brand photo by Lavon Nieman]

Tours of Homes Cited as Success

Members of La Madre Mia Study Club termed Sunday's Holiday Tour of Homes as "a huge success" Monday evening during a Christmas social in the home of Mary Beth White.

Georgia Sparks, chairman of the fund-raising tour, announced that approximately 550 individuals had toured the Otis Lee, Bill Reinauer and Butch White homes Sunday afternoon. Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Don Martin and David Hutchins during the tour.

In related business, the club's project committee was assigned to determine how proceeds of the homes will be spent.

Ann Landers Slim Again

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I married in 1960, I weighed 115 pounds. I kept adding a little here and there after each baby. Two weeks ago I bought a new scale (the old one broke six years ago) and I was shocked to discover I weighed 152 pounds.

I went to my doctor who insisted I have a complete physical. He found no organic problem and gave me a diet.

When he asked if I ate between meals, I said, "Never" -- which I thought was the truth. When I told him I eat less than anybody in the family, he replied, "I hear that all the time." Then he instructed me to write down everything I put into my mouth (even chewing gum) for one solid week and come back to him.

I did it and the mystery was solved. I found myself writing, "For breakfast I had black coffee and a piece of toast -- no butter. Then I finished Marge and Timmy's cereal -- six spoonfuls of Marge's and four of Timmy's. I ate Harry's leftover toast -- 1/4 of a slice -- adding about a tablespoon of orange marmalade. Finished Nora's bacon and eggs -- about 1/2 an egg and two stripes of bacon."

While fixing dinner I ate three matzo balls and a half a cup of chicken soup. I also ate a quarter of an avocado and tasted the salad dressing several times. I made a cheesecake topped with sour cream and ate four-tablespoons-of-sour-cream which was left over. After dinner I finished Timmy's soup and ate Nora's cheesecake. My husband left half of his cheesecake so I ate that, too.

It became apparent to me that I didn't eat much from my own plate but I was certainly eating plenty while preparing meals and cleaning up. Now I've put an imaginary padlock on my mouth while cooking and cleaning, and it has worked wonders.

Today I feel so light I could fly. I've already lost eight pounds and am thrilled with the prospect of being -- Slim Again.

DEAR SLIM: The cheering you hear is from me -- your friend in Chicago. And now I hope all the plump ladies out there who "don't eat anything" will take a page out of your book. P.S. For those who need a "visual image," that padlock on the mouth is super!

DEAR ANN: Teenagers often write to you about having crushes on their teachers. I'm a male high school teacher, 28 years old, who needs advice. I'm in my second teaching assignment. The other was a boys' boarding school -- so no problem.

I am unmarried, fairly attractive, and the kids like me. One 15-year-old girl comes to my classroom every day after school. She has started to phone me at home evenings and she dropped over to my apartment last Saturday and Sunday. I am aware that the girl is a little kooky and comes from an unhappy home. I hate to be cruel but I'm uncomfortable about her attachment to me.

She's a brazen young lady and may not be aware that she could put me in an awkward position. How should I deal with the problem? -- Too Close For Comfort

DEAR CLOSE: Tell the girl immediately that she not only places herself in a bad light by hanging around, but if gossip started she could get you into serious trouble.

Refugee responsibility

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The worst thing about the plight of the Vietnamese "boat people" — both those who survive the perils of the sea and those who do not — is the depressing familiarity of their saga.

The 2,500 refugees stranded aboard a freighter off Malaysia, and more than 200 of their less fortunate compatriots who died when their smaller boat capsized, have made headlines here and around the world.

But they are neither the first of their kind nor the last to escape unbearable oppression in their homeland and risk harrowing danger on the open seas only to find that the welcome mat they had hoped to find in the "free" world has been hastily withdrawn.

More than three years after the Communist takeover in Indochina, every nation within walking distance or boat range of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos is swamped with refugees from those nations, with more arriving daily.

Thailand and Malaysia have borne the brunt of the refugee tide and, with ample problems of their own, both nations have grown understandably edgy about offering a haven to the fleeing Indochinese.

And while the United States has a special responsibility to these helpless thousands, we have not always lived up to that obligation.

Indeed, after the initial wave of Vietnamese who came to this country following the fall of Saigon in 1975, the United States has been less generous than other countries — especially France — in accepting additional refugees.

The fact is that our existing laws governing the admittance of refugees are woefully outdated and completely inadequate to cope with a continuing problem of the sort that has developed in Indochina.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has been trying for 10 years to persuade Congress to change the law to permit greater flexibility, but his efforts have been stymied by the House, where Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., ruled over the immigration subcommittee.

The Carter administration has been slow to acknowledge the necessity for legislative reform, apparently hoping the Vietnamese refugee problem would subside. Each year, the administration has set a modest quota of cases for which the Attorney General would use his parole authority to admit Indochinese refugees — and each year the quota has been filled almost as soon as it was established.

Now that Eilberg has been defeated, a major obstacle to legislative reform has been removed. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and other administration officials are working closely with Kennedy to develop new laws that would substantially enlarge the "normal" annual quota of refugees the United States can accept and give the government flexibility to meet emergency situations like the recent Hai Hong boat case.

Public attitudes towards the Indochinese refugees tend to be mixed. Most Americans respond with an outpouring of sympathy and concern for specific, clearly identified groups of disparate refugees like the Hai Hong boat people. Yet there is considerable hostility and fear towards the refugees in general — a suspicion that they will take jobs away from Americans, add to our welfare burden and become an undigestible lump within the body politic.

Experience suggests such fears are grossly exaggerated. It costs an average of $1,000 per refugee to bring them to the United States, and another $2,000 per person to help them settle here in the first year.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Governor-elect Bill Clements proposes to recommend an effective $2 billion worth of tax relief during his first two years in office.

Clements, planning transition and inaugural activities, announced his legislative program will assign high priority to a new $1 billion tax reduction package.

But he emphasized that in addition to the approximate $1 billion worth of benefits to taxpayers—home and agricultural land owners, primarily—proposed in the tax relief constitutional amendment. The amendment, submitted by the legislature last August, was approved by voters November 7.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe, while cautioning that budget recommendations are still being developed, said he agrees with Clements that a significant tax reduction, in the range of $2 billion, will be possible next year.

"In my opinion, there will be adequate funds for additional tax reduction," Briscoe said at a news conference. "I hope we have a cut in the range of $1 billion—in addition to that called for by the tax relief amendment."

Clements indicated strongly he is leaning toward recommending that one cent of the sales tax ($500 million a year) be applied toward forced reduction of school property taxes.

Another possibility, he conceded, is a flat reduction of one cent in the sales tax. The governor-elect also favors elimination of the state's 10 cent property tax for college building.

Law Proposed
Attorney General John Hill contends Texas should have a fair campaign practices law.

If one had been in effect, Hill said, late-hour campaign tactics by supporters of Clements in their gubernatorial race would have over-stepped it. The attorney general protested distribution of campaign pamphlets implying Clements was "superior as a candidate on the basis of religious faith."

Clements has denied any part in distributing the pamphlet.

Hill also criticized Clements' proposals for a major tax reduction. He said the recommendation is excessive.

The attorney general said he intends to remain as titular head of the Texas Democratic party for the rest of the year when he leaves office.

Coal to Increase
Texas coal production will quadruple by the year 2,000, while oil and gas output is cut almost in half, according to U.S. Commerce Department projections.

The Commerce survey indicates Texans will use a little less oil, about as much natural gas and 10 times as much coal.

Gas production by 1985, according to the study, may drop from seven trillion cubic feet to slightly more than six trillion. Oil production is expected to drop from four million barrels a day in 1976 to 3.3 million in 1985 and finally to two million by 2,000.

The forecast projects completion of coal slurry pipelines from Colorado and Montana to the Houston area in another two decades.

Courts Speak
In reversing a minor theft conviction, Texas Court of Criminal Appeals held persons who do not speak English are entitled to interpreters during trial even if they fail to ask.

The same court reversed a Lubbock robbery conviction due to introduction of evidence acquired in an illegal search warrant.

It further reversed a life sentence assessed a LaPorte man in a forgery case and, threw out McKinney drug case convictions due to faulty instructions by the trial judge.

Texas Supreme Court reversed a $7,500 insurance judgment in a case where a pilot who crashed his plane held medical and flying certificates issued after he made false representations concerning a heart condition. The finding upheld the trial court, which had been overruled in part by the Eastland Court of Civil Appeals.

Fourth Court of Civil Appeals reversed a $3 million damage award against Southwestern Bell to a former company executive and the family of a deceased top official.

Appointments Announced

Gov. Dolph Briscoe named Freeman B. Dunn of Porter and T.L. Roach Jr. of Amarillo to vacancies on the Texas Board of Corrections. Briscoe also named these judicial appointees: P. Oswin Crisman, Kenneth C. Kippel, Joan T. Winn and Steven G. Condos, all of Dallas.

Erwin G. Ernest of Huntsville, John Ray Harrison of Houston, David Hittner of Houston, Robert S. Webb III of Houston, William W. Kilgallon of Houston, and Alice A. Bonner of Houston. They will occupy 44th, 95th, 191st, 330th family district, 12th, 113th, 133rd, 312th, 215th, and 80th district courts respectively.

Short Snorts

Gov. Briscoe, in a speech at Abilene, called for more Texas toll roads.

The State Insurance Board staff recommended a $60 million cut in workers compensation insurance premiums.

January meetings of two major associations—realtors and school teachers—contributed to a shortage of hotel rooms during the inauguration of Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby January 16.

Republican governors accepted an invitation from Clements to hold their 1979 national meeting in Texas—probably in Austin.

Opinion portions of a survey of teachers are expected from disclosure, but remaining compiled results of the survey must be made public. Attorney General Hill said in a new opinion.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—By 1980, Texas will number 13 million. By 2000, 18 million people will live in this state.

The result will be even more enormous demands for energy, transportation, and housing and a challenge to the protection of water, air and other natural resources.

Policies of federal, state, and local governments will shape the nature and extent of this development. Texas is in a position of strength in dealing with these problems, mainly because of the strong economy we enjoy. We can, to a great extent, mold our future because of the resources we have on hand today.

At the close of our last fiscal year we were setting records for revenues. That influx of state dollars continues today and for the foreseeable future.

More than $4.4 billion dollars were collected in taxes. We received $1.85 billion in federal funds, $372 million in licenses and fees, $279 million in investments of state funds, and $341 million in income for state owned land.

Our labor force reflects the strength and diversity of the state's economy. Non-agricultural employment in Texas reached 4.85 million during the last fiscal year. The average annual unemployment rate for that period dipped from 6.4 percent to 5.4 percent. Of the top 10 industrial states, only Illinois has lower unemployment than Texas.

Total personal income increased 14.2 percent in Texas between 1975 and 1976, as compared with 10.1 percent increase nationwide. During that same period, sales by business in Texas—the source of the largest single source of tax revenue, the sales tax—increased 14.9 percent from $124 billion to $142.5 billion.

Oil and gas production continues to play the same major role in the economy as it has for many decades. However, the statistics indicate that many have been warning for several years. Crude oil production is down 4.5 percent and only the increase in price kept the decline from affecting the state's economic well being. We are a growing state and our problems are growing at an equal rate. State government will play a constructive role in the future by working diligently to solve the problems being thrust at us. State government, however, must refrain from letting happen to it what has happened in Washington where the lid was long ago blown off and the ensuing explosion resulted in a decline of freedom for the states and the citizenry.

Ellis Named Dads Trustee For Tech

LUBBOCK — Richard Ellis of Hereford has been appointed a 1978-80 trustee for the Texas Tech University Dads Association.

All fathers of Texas Tech students are automatically members of the association. Dues-paying members support the organization's scholarship programs and other activities of the association, which in turn are supportive of the university.

Texas Tech is one of the four major state-supported multidisciplinary universities in Texas. The institution provides educational opportunities at the undergraduate, professional and graduate levels.

More than 22,000 students attend classes in Lubbock on the 1,839 acres of campus, one of the largest in the United States. It also operates the TTU centers at Amarillo and Junction.

Dropsy, Other Defy Modern Medicine

NEW YORK (AP) - You could be suffering from hectic fever, but the family doctor would be the last to say so. Likewise, if you have dropsy or talipes or dipsomania. And you just may.

There's no question medical science has stomped out a few diseases as it has marched through history - most recently, the World Health Organization claimed victory over smallpox, despite a few isolated cases.

But a host of ailments survived the onslaught. Some of these durable ailments have been around since written history began, although many are so altered that an ancient physician would hardly recognize them - or now they are known by different names.

Take dropsy, for example: Hippocrates, a Greek born nearly 500 years before Christ, described dropsy, writes Henry A. Skinner in his "Origin of Medical Terms." The English word for Hippocrates' disease comes from the French "hydropisie," which, in turn, is derived from a Greek word meaning "a watery appearance," Skinner says.

Dropsy, as you may have deduced by now, describes swelling - in any part of the body - caused by collections of fluids.

"It's pretty rare today and it's not called dropsy anymore," says James Goodrich, a Columbia University doctoral candidate whose specialty is medical history.

Goodrich says failure of the right side of the heart unbalances body fluid equilibrium and causes the swelling. "It's called slow failure of the right side of the heart today and with pharmaceutical advances you can pretty much relieve the liquid overload with drugs," Goodrich says.

Some other altered survivors and one mystery:

-Dipsomania: The word derives from Greek and Latin terms describing thirst and madness, says Skinner. It was used until the late 19th century to describe anyone with a lust for liquors, especially for intoxicating liquors. Today a dipsomaniac would be diagnosed as an alcoholic.

-Hectic Fever: A long-lost term for what's known today as pulmonary tuberculosis. "Consumption" and "galloping consumption" were more widely used; they described any disease whose victims wasted away.

-Talipes: Skinner says the term is derived from Latin words meaning, roughly, "weak in the foot." Today this one is known as a club foot.

-Plagues: A big killer was the 14th century's Black Plague; "black" because victims' bodies looked black. Still with us today but not widespread is the aged but potent Bubonic Plague, an ailment transmitted by rodents, says Goodrich.

-Blackwater Fever: Of late it's called malaria and is still "one of the world's worst diseases," says William Beatty, a professor of Medical Bibliography at Northwestern University. "Blackwater" because doctors of yore noted that victims' urine looked black, a phenomenon caused by blood.

-Leprosy: Doctors prefer to refer to leprosy now as Hansen's Disease because so much stigma is historically attached to lepers, Beatty says. He adds that what doctors diagnose as Hansen's Disease today seems to go back to what the Bible called leprosy.

-St. Vitus' Dance: During an outbreak of this affliction in 15th century Europe, the streets were packed with people dancing and hopping around like maniacs. Many may have been suffering a psychological illness. Some had epileptic fits in the midst of their dancing; others hallucinated as they danced. Today it's called chorea and is known to have a genetic cause, says Goodrich.

A killer disease that may be still at large is "sweating Sickness," a.k.a. "the English Disease," Beatty says. This ailment ran rampant through the 15th and 16th centuries, but has not shown its ugly head since about 1550. What it was remains a mystery, but everyone seems to have a theory, says Beatty.

Henry VIII of England once cancelled a rendezvous with Anne Boleyn, sending her a letter noting that one of her ladies-in-waiting had sweating sickness, Beatty says. In this uncharacteristic instance, the king's caution apparently overrode his romantic inclinations.

Fattening Check Not Cashable

KATY, Texas (AP) - Francie Baltazar received a $100 check for her 17th birthday but she couldn't cash it. The check was too fat and made of lemon ice cream, blue buttercream and cake.

The gift came from her mother, Candy Baltazar, who operates an ice cream parlor in Katy, a Houston suburb.

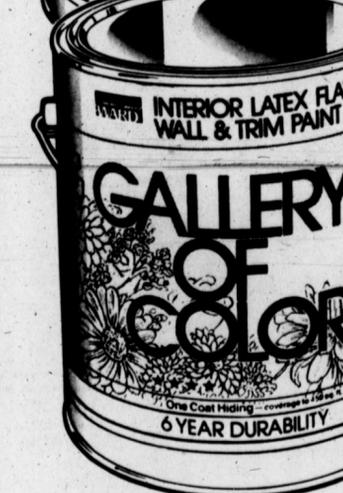

Francie, who says her mother "does something weird on my birthday every year," took the check to the Katy National Bank and shared the tasty present with the employees.

Dorothy Herrington, a bank teller, said "the present had everything on it that a real check would have. But we couldn't cash it. There was just no way we can encode an ice-cream cake check nor endorse the back of it."

Mrs. Baltazar thought of that too. She accompanied the unique check with a paper one, also for $100.

Fems Fall To Palo Duro

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor
AMARILLO - Amarillo Palo Duro capitalized on Hereford's weariness to post a 40-26 girls' basketball victory Tuesday night here. Leading the scoring for the 'Faces' were Louise Mays with 11 and Penny Whiteside adding 10.

Palo Duro, led by Pheola Freeman's 10 points, were never pressed in the contest after grabbing a 21-11 halftime lead against the Whitefaces, who have played five games in the last six days.

Hereford Coach Roy Shipp attributed the grueling schedule, which included the Amarillo Invitational Girls Basketball Tournament over the weekend, to the loss. The girls have today off and will return to action in the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Girls' Basketball Tournament, scheduled to get underway tomorrow.

In the statistic departments the Palo Duro fems led the Whitefaces in all categories while Hereford committed 27 turnovers. The shooting from the field for Hereford reflected a 32 percent mark while at the free throw line they shot 41 percent. Leading the locals in rebounds was Sophomore Louise Mays who controlled nine of the 20 caroms the team collected. Mays also led all scorers with her 11 points.

The Hereford Junior varsity did not show the effects of travelling as they collected their second win in as many days by subduing the Dons 34-23. Leading the scoring attack was Terri Harkins with 16 points and Keile Robinson with 10. In the JV game the Herd took a 13-9 lead and pulled away during the second half of the game to post their fourth victory in seven outings. The next action for the JV squad will be next Monday as they take on the Caprock Longhorns in Hereford.

The fems will have today off before they start play in their own tournament against Lubbock Dunbar. The Panthers come into the tourney with a 2-5 ledger and will play the Whitefaces at 7:45 Thursday night.

The tourney favorite will be Pampa and Tascosa, with other entrants including Borger, Big Spring, Abilene Cooper, and Palo Duro. Play starts with the Tascosa - Borger game at 2:30 p.m.

Hereford vs. Palo Duro Varsity
Hereford - Mays 4-3-11; Whiteside 4-1-8; Albracht 0-3-3; Sanders 0-2-2; Ford 0-1-1.
Junior Varsity
Hereford - Harkins 8-0-16; Keile Robinson 4-2-10; Jennifer Griffin 1-1-3; Corana Suarez 1-0-2; Theresa Schilling 1-0-2; Felinda Trolinder 0-1-1.

Herd Loses 3 at Borger

The Hereford Whitefaces travelled to Borger last night and came away empty-handed as all three teams lost. The varsity fell 68-46, while the JV team was on the short end of a 64-50 score and the sophomores went under 60-47.

With a record of 1-7, the 'Faces' will participate in the Amarillo Invitational Tournament this weekend. The two younger teams will be in the Pampa Invitational Tourney scheduled to begin Thursday.

In last night's game the Herd, was led by Brent Allen who tossed in 16 points and Robert Graves' 13 in the losing cause.

Trailing 30-22 at halftime Hereford lost more ground in the third quarter when the Bulldogs scored 17 points to the locals' eight.

Campbell To Play Against Saints

HOUSTON (AP) - Rookie running back Earl Campbell will play Sunday against New Orleans despite bruised ribs but quarterback Dan Pastorini remained a question mark. Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said Monday.

Campbell, the leading rusher in the National Football League, suffered bruised ribs in the first quarter of Sunday's 13-3 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers and did not return to the game.

Pastorini remained hospitalized Monday with two broken ribs suffered against the Steelers in a game that clinched the American Football Conference's Central Division title for Pittsburgh.

The Oilers, 9-5, also lost tight end Mike Barber with a shoulder separation, linebacker Robert Brazile with a groin injury and rookie wide receiver Mike Renfro with a knee injury in the gruelling game.

Houston now must win its game against the Saints in the Superdome Sunday to keep pace in the race for the AFC's two wild card playoff berths. The Oilers close out the regular season at home Dec. 17 against San Diego.

"Earl will play, it's not serious enough to keep him out," Phillips said. "We just don't know how effective he'll be. We'll have to see how sore he is later in the week."

Phillips would not project Pastorini into Sunday's game at New Orleans however.

"Dan's injury is more serious, we'll have to wait awhile on him," Phillips said. "We should know by Wednesday before our first major workout where we stand."

Steelers safety Donnie Shell delivered the blow that sent Campbell out of the game with 1:04 left in the first quarter but Shell said there was nothing special about the hit.

"It was just the form tackling we learn, nothing special," Shell said. "His body was twisting and he was off balance and relaxed. Really, it was just an ordinary hit but he was vulnerable. I caught him just right."

Pastorini was banged to the turf late in the third quarter by Steve Furness but Phillips said, Pastorini actually was injured in the second quarter.

"He's got to be the toughest man alive," Phillips said. "It happened in the second quarter and he was really hurting at the half."

Phillips kept Campbell out for the rest of the game to guard against further injury, but Pastorini didn't miss a series.

"They were different injuries," Phillips said. "Dan's throwing wasn't affected by his injury. Earl wouldn't have even been 50 percent if he'd gone back in."

Campbell gained 41 yards in his abbreviated performance. Houston managed only 164 in total offense for the entire game.

Baseball Rules Will Change

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - The Baseball Rules Committee adopted two new rules changes and made several scoring amendments Tuesday at the major leagues' annual winter meetings.

The first rule change involved suspended games.

Instead of a game reverting to a prior inning when postponed by rain, the rules were amended to end the game at the moment the umpires terminate play.

If the game, however, is called while an inning is in progress and before it is completed, the game becomes a suspended game in each of the following situations:

-The visiting team has scored one or more runs to tie the score and the home team has not scored.

-The visiting team has scored one or more runs to take the lead and the home team has not tied the score or retaken the lead.

The second rule change involved protested games.

"Even if it is held that the protested decision violated the rules, no replay of the game will be ordered unless in the opinion of the league president the violation adversely affected the protesting team's chances of winning the game," the committee advised.

This rule will protect a team that has won a game convincingly on its merits from being penalized on a technicality.

On the scoring rules, victory should not be credited to a relief pitcher who is ineffective in a brief appearance when a succeeding reliever pitches affectively in helping his team maintain the lead. In such case, the second pitcher should get the victory.

Rose Goes To Phillies For $3.2 Million

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - He is a special breed of man - this brash, unpretentious little baseball battler who has changed the salary structure of the game.

Because of Pete Rose, the price tag of the super player threatens to become $1 million a year as contrasted with $100,000, the ultimate figure that a generation ago was reserved for such names as Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial.

Now everybody is going to want to renegotiate.

Is a 37-year-old veteran worth $3.2 million for four years, an average of $800,000 a year?

Somebody asked Pete Rose that question in the Osceola Room of the Sheraton Towers where he announced the signing of his almost unbelievable free agent contract with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Pete didn't blink an eye. "I played with Hank Aaron and Willie Mays, against players like Mickey Mantle, Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Roberto Clemente," he replied levelly.

"After playing 16 years, getting more than 3,000 hits and hitting in 44 straight games, I think I finally have reached the No. 1 position in my profession. I am the best player in the world - I want to be paid like it."

Phillies owner Ruly Carpenter, heir to the dePont fortune, is not playing Pete for his 3,164 hits, his nine 200-hit seasons and 13 times with an average of .300 or better.

He is playing for intangibles, and Rose has tons of them.

One of these intangibles is motivation.

"I want to make them tired just watching me play," he said. "Schmidt, Bowa, Luzinski, McBride, Maddox. I want to develop in them a winning attitude. They have been able to develop it, but they haven't been able to get over the top."

Another is complete dedication.

"If they start practice at six, I will be there at five," he said. "If the game starts at seven, I will be there at three. Danny Ozark Phillies manager will be tired of seeing me underfoot."

Another is example.

"I believe they, the Phillies, need an everyday player with winning playoff and World Series experience. I want them to do as I did, not just do as I say."

Then there is his toughness.

"Maybe I got it from my dad," he said, referring to a father who played semi-pro football at age 42. "I don't drink or smoke. I take care of my body. I have missed only seven games in the last nine years."

But his greatest non-statistical asset may be his hustle.

He is a street fighter. He'll battle you and beat you by every means at his disposal. When he's at bat, he intimidates the pitcher. When he gets on base, nobody can relax.

Pete Rose

16-Game Season Adds Fuel to Pro Grid Race

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

A 16-game season. Who needs it?

Well, Mark van Eeghen and John Riggins and Tony Reed and Kevin Long and Terry Miller and maybe even a few other guys - not to mention the New York Jets, Oakland Raiders, Seattle Seahawks, Atlanta Falcons, Philadelphia Eagles and Washington Redskins.

If the National Football League season had, as in years past, ended after 14 games, all those players would have been closed out of the still somewhat exclusive 1,000-yard rushing club.

And all but one of those teams would know today that their season was over. The Jets, Raiders and Seahawks would shed a tear while Houston and Miami sat cozily in their American Conference wildcard playoff berths.

Over in the National Conference the Falcons, Eagles and Redskins would no longer be eyeing each other suspiciously. Two of them would be out in the cold while one would join Green Bay in the wildcard first round of playoffs.

And the New England Patriots and Denver Broncos, instead of being a victory away from division championships, would already be wearing their crowns.

A year ago, nine running backs gained more than 1,000 yards, led by Walter Payton's 1,852. The year before that it was an even dozen, with O.J. Simpson's 1,503. With two more games, a lot of people reasoned, the rush would become a veritable stampede and membership in the 1,000-yard club would be commonplace.

It hasn't quite worked out that way. As of today there are only seven members - Earl Campbell, Delvin Williams, Walter Payton, Tony Dorsett, Terrell Middleton, Wilbert Montgomery and Franco Harris.

Van Eeghen, Riggins, Reed, Long and Miller are within 150 yards of the plateau and with two games to go have a clear shot. But even if they all do, it'll still bring the list only to a dozen once again.

And don't forget that without those two remaining games and coaches trying to keep their aces healthy for them at least a couple of those near 1,000 yarders might well have been in there for a lot more plays and thus over the hurdle by now.

In a 14-game season, Campbell, Houston's sensational rookie, would be the rushing champion with 1,306 yards. Will he be the best two games from now - or will Williams of Miami 1,250 now or Payton of Chicago 1,208 or any of the other challengers overtake him?

With 14 games, Dallas' Roger Staubach completions on 218 of 394 attempts for 3,000 yards and 23 touchdowns would be the NFL passing leader, a whisker ahead of New Orleans' Archie Manning, with Miami's Bob Griese and Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh right up there. Will Staubach still be No. 1 two games from now?

Olympic Team Complains

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) - Organizers of the 1980 Winter Olympics are complaining of "persecution," and have angrily denounced federal officials for suggesting that local taxpayers may have to pick up part of the Games' projected multimillion dollar deficits.

"We've contributed $21 million worth of facilities. We've contributed our expertise since World War II, we've contributed $17 million toward hosting sports events," the Rev. J. Bernard Fell, executive director of the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee, said Tuesday. "If that isn't a fair contribution, I've lost sight of justice."

And he expressed bitterness at press accounts of the Olympics' financial difficulties. "Blessed are the persecuted," he said. "Certainly persecution has become a part of things as far as our organizing committee is concerned."

Hill Is 'The Thrill' For 'Pokes

DALLAS (AP) - In just two years, the prophecy that Tony Hill wrote on his practice sweat socks has come true.

Last year, as a rookie just out of Stanford, Dallas Cowboy veterans were startled to see Hill saunter into practice with "The Thrill" inked on the tops of his socks.

The Better Business Bureau will never get Hill for false advertising.

He has, indeed, become "The Thrill" for the defending World Champions' passing game.

Twice this year Hill has been on the receiving end of "fleaflicker" passes ordered by Coach Tom Landry, who resorts to such action only when his offense is being overrun by the enemy. Both passes helped defeat St. Louis and New England.

"I guess they call the play to me because I have to do a good job fake blocking," said Hill. "I'm good at that."

Hill's latest "thrill" for the Cowboy fans was a 40-yard touchdown pass from Roger Staubach after fullback Scott Laidlaw took a handoff then lateraled back to the Cowboy quarterback. Staubach hung the pass because Laidlaw got "sticker" all over the ball.

"Scott had a sticky substance on his hands and I think that's why Roger had a little trouble throwing the ball," said Hill. "Dallas tied New England 10-10 on the play then got the game-winner some three minutes later on a 36-yard Staubach-to-Billy Joe Dupree scoring pass."

Drew Pearson normally would have been the target for Staubach's bombs but the word is out on the Cowboy All-Pro receiver: Double cover him.

Pearson's "Hail Mary" last second touchdown catch against Minnesota in a playoff game is one of the most famous in National Football League history.

"Just about everybody is doubling Drew now and that leaves things open for me and tight end Billy Joe," said Hill. "I don't think any team can afford to double us anywhere. They will pay for it, regardless. This team doesn't rely on one man."

Hill said he was sorry Pearson lost his 58 game streak of catching consecutive passes against New England. "I think Drew was a little relieved," said Hill. "It was a sad thing to go down the hill. I'm sure it's been in the back of his mind. Now, he won't have that to worry about anymore."

If anybody wants to worry, Hill said, it should be Dallas' future opponents.

"We've won four in a row and we're hot now just like the end of last year," said Hill. "Even though we've clinched the division we won't let up in our last two games. Our coach has too much pride to ease up. And so does this team."

Basketball Longhorns Lose To Oklahoma

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

When Oklahoma and Texas do battle on the gridiron, most of the nation shows interest in the game. When the Sooners and Longhorns meet on a basketball court, it's a different story.

The 13th-ranked Longhorns, favorites in the Southwest Conference, traveled to Norman, Okla., Tuesday night for a nice, quiet outing against the Sooners, touted as a Big Eight also-ran. Only 7,480 fans showed up, but they got an unexpected show as Oklahoma upset Texas 71-65.

"My guys are used to playing before a full house," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons, who is known for making glib statements in postgame interviews. "We got 10,000 more people at home than they got in here. That might have thrown them off."

The play of John McCullough, Terry Stotts and Cary Carrabine also threw off the Texas game. McCullough had 18 points and 12 rebounds, Stotts added 15 points and a dozen rebounds and Carrabine came off the bench to contribute 14 points. Tyrone Branan led Texas with 27 points.

Elsewhere in college basketball, top-ranked Duke withstood a stall by La Salle to post a 66-42 victory. No. 17 San Francisco was upended by San Diego State 77-75; Kansas State topped Minnesota 72-62; Illinois beat Missouri 69-57; Virginia overwhelmed Randolph-Macon 99-60; Long Beach State knocked off Loyola of Los Angeles 74-65; Seattle blasted Idaho State 110-87; Texas-El Paso edged New Mexico State 68-65; Columbia defeated Manhattan 84-76; Fordham was an 87-77 victor over Yale; Pittsburgh stopped Evansville 88-69; Tennessee beat East Carolina 89-71; Alabama eased past Middle Tennessee 89-66; Oklahoma State topped Pan American 90-78; New Mexico outscored Lamar 97-84; Memphis State bombed Kentucky Wesleyan 95-74 and Southwestern Louisiana scored a 94-84 victory over Tulsa.

Duke held a 12-6 margin at halftime as La Salle, minus star Michael Brooks, played a delay game. The Explorers led 4-1 before Duke scored 11 straight points.

The Blue Devils blew the game open early in the second half as Gene Banks led the way with 32 points.

What San Francisco didn't expect was a full-court press that rattled the Dons and helped San Diego State to victory. Center Steve Malovic's two free throws after time expired were the difference. Malovic scored 23 points and played USF All-American Bill Cartwright almost even. Cartwright, who fouled out with 3:21 remaining, scored 28 points and grabbed 21 rebounds.

Ed Nealy, a 6-7 freshman, led Kansas State with 19 points in its triumph over Minnesota. Illinois hits 14 of 17 free throws in the last 6½ minutes to clinch its win at Missouri.

Virginia, minus top scorer Jeff Lamp, relied on freshman Jeff Jones to defeat Randolph-Macon. Jones, who'd taken just 10 shots this season, hit nine of 11, had six assists, a blocked shot and four steals.

Rickey Williams scored 28 points to lead unbeaten Long Beach State over Loyola. Jawann Oldham, a 7-foot junior, hit for 36 points and Keith Harrell added 25 in Seattle's decision over winless Idaho State.

Roshen Amie's two free throws with 14 seconds left boosted Texas-El Paso over NMSU. Terry Knight, brother of Boston Celtic forward Billy Knight, had a career-high 28 points as Pittsburgh handed rebuilding Evansville its fourth straight defeat.

In a game that took four overtimes to decide, Cal Lutheran outlasted Claremont-Mudd 102-98.

Boxers In Tourney

Three Hereford fighters won in matches fought over the weekend. The winners, Rodrigo Rodrigues, in the 145 pound weight class, Jamie Ruiz, 70 pound class, and Jessie Herrera 112 pound class were part of the six man team sent to the tournament.

Fighting for the Golden Gloves group are Rodrigues, Ruiz, Herrera, George Arroyo, Javiel Herrera, and Fabian Ruiz. The boxing group holds exhibition bouts each Wednesday and the public is invited to attend.

Jim Tait Rehired as Coach

RICHMOND (AP) - The University of Richmond has rehired Jim Tait as head football coach in spite of a 3-8 record this season.

Athletic Director Chuck Boone made the announcement Monday night that Tait, who has served five years and whose contract ran out at the end of this past season, would remain. Tait has a 21-33 record with the Spiders.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTIFICATION OF FLUORIDE CONTENT

Dear Customer:
The City of Hereford Water Department has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by our system exceeds the maximum constituent level for Fluoride established by the Department's "Drinking Water Standards" which were promulgated as required by the "Safe Drinking Water Act," Public Law 93-523 (U.S.).
The limit for this area has been set at 1.8 milligrams of Fluoride per liter of water. The samples of water from our system contained 2.4 milligrams of Fluoride per liter. There is no immediate health hazard for drinking water containing Fluoride at this level.
The Fluoride may cause mottling (brown staining) of the teeth in children under 14 years of age.
All dentists in this area are aware of the Fluoride level.
The City of Hereford Water Department has applied to the Texas Department of Health for either a variance or exemption from the Fluoride requirement while we search for alternate sources of supply and investigate available treatment techniques to lower the Fluoride to allowable levels.
The Fluoride content in Hereford's water has remained constant since 1930.
This notice is a requirement of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Waldrep Shows 'Amazing' Progress

LENINGRAD (AP) - Kent Waldrep has been living in a "jail" for the past six weeks, but in it he has learned to stand up again.
The 24-year-old former football star from Texas Christian, paralyzed four years ago in a TCU-Alabama game, has been receiving special medical treatment at the Polenovsky Neurological Institute here since his arrival Oct. 20.
Waldrep, a native of Grand Prairie, Texas, will be heading for home Dec. 8 after regaining movement and sensations his parents say is nothing short of "amazing."
The series of enzyme injections, oxygen treatments and intense physical therapy he receives is the reason Waldrep is here. Almost none of the care is available back in the United States.
He hasn't been allowed out of the clinic since his arrival, and his team of seven doctors won't let him out of their sight for more than an hour. "It's like jail," Waldrep joked. But so far this dingy, over-crowded institute in the center of Leningrad has been responsible for some clear improvements.
He can stand and shuffle along the clinic corridor with the help of plastic leg braces, a metal walker and a therapist tugging at the long white straps on his special boots.
He has regained some flexibility in his arms and hands and can hold them over his head, feed himself and write letters. He has regained more sensation in his legs and feet, no longer suffers from spasticity in his hands, nor do his ankles and feet swell up at night from poor circulation.
His strength has doubled and his muscles have firmed.
It is the enzyme shots, doctors here believe, that have been most successful in breaking up the scar tissue around Waldrep's injury and enabling him to regain some movement and feeling.
American doctors claim this is only a temporary condition that will pass once the shots are discontinued. That infuriates Waldrep, openly critical of the attitudes of U.S. doctors who used the enzyme injections several years ago but rejected them as ineffective.
"The doctors back home say, 'You're in a wheelchair permanently and you'll never get any better.' Now, I don't expect to get up and walk out of the hospital, but I've gotten more than I expected. Some more movement and the hope that some day I can graduate to braces and crutches."
No American hospital ever tried to stand him up.
Waldrep is a privileged patient at the clinic. He has a private room that normally houses six patients. Just down the bottle-green hallways are beds standing in doorways for lack of space.

He is the third American to receive treatment at the institute. The others, Roger Franks of Oregon and Bob Hurt of Florida, also showed improvement.
Waldrep's easy-going personality and quick smile have made him a favorite at the clinic. Russians are always bringing him vodka, food and other gifts. One man even dumped two raw fish, heads and all, on Waldrep's bed and urged him to "dig in." Waldrep politely declined.
"He's such a novelty here," Mrs. Waldrep said. When it's time for Kent to do his walker exercise, the Soviet patients line the hallways and urge him on.
"They're like football fans in the stands, yelling 'All right, all right,'" Kent said. "I think we're going to be able to tell in the next few months what the enzymes have really accomplished."
Now, however, his thoughts are turning back to Texas and his job as TCU's assistant sports information director - and an upcoming $3.5-million lawsuit.
It was filed by his family against Monsanto Chemical Co. of St. Louis, manufacturers of the artificial grass surface used in the University of Alabama football field, and several subcontractors who laid the field. The suit alleges that the field was improperly laid and that the turf lacked sufficient padding. Since Kent's injury, the school has ripped up the old field and put in a new one.

Fasting is dangerous

DEAR DR. LAMB - I need to lose about 40 pounds but I have symptoms of hypoglycemia. I need a suitable diet. Fasting is dangerous for me to lose. A year ago I went on the pre-digested protein diet and did well before a boat trip. Of course, I gained some back. I am 55 and since the pre-digested protein scare, I feel uneasy about going on it again. They say the products weren't full protein. Can you fill me in on this?
DEAR READER - The protein diet that you are talking about used a lot of gelatin as the basic protein. Gelatin can come from the juices from boiled meats of all kinds. It can also come from the feet, hide and other parts of an animal if they are boiled and the gelatin protein removed.
Gelatin is not a complete protein. A good quality complete protein contains adequate amounts of all the essential amino acids. These are the amino acids in protein that your own body can't manufacture. There are only eight of these for adults and 10 for growing children. The other amino acids that make up the various proteins can be manufactured by your body from still other amino acids.
Since the gelatin is deficient in the essential amino acids, it limits your body's ability to form new protein to replace protein that needs to be replaced in muscles. That's why a person on an incomplete protein diet without all the essential amino acids will eventually develop poor health secondary to bad nutrition.
Some investigators think that if you use complete proteins you can go on a very low calorie diet. Frankly, I think that's wrong. We've known for several decades that diets severely restricted in calories result in poor health.
They can cause your hair to fall out. They can cause personality changes, loss in sex drive, slow healing of any wounds or cuts that might occur and an overall change in normal body functions.
The only safe way to diet is to follow a normal, balanced diet with an adequate amount of all the vitamins, minerals and protein that your body needs. To give you such a diet I am sending you

The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. It will provide about 1200 to 1300 calories.
You shouldn't stay even on this restriction too long. After four to six weeks of such a diet, a person should go back to a maintenance diet to stabilize before they go back to dieting again. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
I'm just not going to recommend fasting for you because it's not really something you ought to be doing on your own. It's dangerous. Anyone who wants to use fasting to lose weight should do it under medical supervision.
A person who really has hypoglycemia (and I am not sure that you do) can follow a diet relatively low in carbohydrates. Most weight control diets don't contain much concentrated sweet or concentrated starch anyway. You can divide your diet into small portions that can be taken at more frequent intervals throughout the waking hours.
Coffee is a no-no for anyone who really has symptoms of hypoglycemia. The caffeine in the coffee may cause nervousness, sweating and contributes to symptoms of hypoglycemia.

Oil Allowable

Kings Enjoy 'Turnaround'

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Rookie Phil Ford sets up the plays, second-year men Otis Birdsong fires in the jumpers and free agent pickups Marlon Redmond and Billy McKinney come off the bench hustling and running - the baby backcourt has turned things around for the Kansas City Kings.

"This is the most fun I've ever had coaching," said Cotton Fitzsimmons, who guided three other National Basketball Association teams before taking over at Kansas City last summer. "We have fun in practice, we have fun during games."

The Kings had fun Tuesday night, racing out to a 32-point lead en route to a 105-92 victory over the New York Knicks, Kansas City's third win in a row and seventh in its last eight starts. The Kings are now 14-8 and lead Denver by 3 1/2 games in the Midwest Division.

Elsewhere in the NBA Tuesday night, the Washington Bullets beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 117-102, the Chicago Bulls defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 95-91, the Boston Celtics edged the Detroit Pistons 114-112 and the Los Angeles Lakers topped the New Orleans Jazz 114-102.

Bullets 117, Cavaliers 102 Tom Henderson had 10 assists and sank his last seven shots from the floor as Washington beat Cleveland. They are two teams headed in opposite directions: the Bullets have won 10 of their last 11, the Cavs have lost 17 of their last 20.

Bulls 95, 76ers 91

Chicago trailed most of the way before reefing off 10 points in a row to move in front 86-77 in the final period. Artis Gilmore led the Bulls with 29 points and 23 rebounds and Mickey Johnson added 24 points, 11 of them in the fourth quarter.

Chicago has now won three in a row after a 5-16 start, while Philadelphia, which won nine of its first 10 games, is only 4-7 since then.

Celtics 114, Pistons 112

Marvin Barnes hit two free throws with 32 seconds left to give the Celtics their third victory in a row. Billy Knight topped Boston with 30 points and player-coach Dave Cowens had 18 points and 20 rebounds.

Lakers 114, Jazz 102

Los Angeles pulled away from New Orleans in the second half as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 11 of his 24 points in the third quarter and Jamaal Wilkes got nine of his 26 points in the final period. Truck Robinson led the Jazz with 33 points and 20 rebounds, but Pete Maravich scored just 13 points on 3-for-14 shooting.

Landry to Go With Subs More

DALLAS (AP) - Roger Staubach jokes about it but the swollen finger on his passing hand is starting to cause Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry some concern.

Staubach said of the swollen digit on his passing hand after Sunday's 17-10 National Football League victory over New England: "It affects my throwing some. Sometimes I can't grip the ball as well as I'd like to...it'd be nice to have it well."

Then the quip: "When I throw a bad pass, it's usually because my finger is swollen. Otherwise, I'd never throw a bad one."

Pardon Landry if he doesn't laugh at his quarterback's sense of humor. "It (the finger) doesn't overconcern me but it could be bad if he hits it on a helmet," said Landry. "Roger won't throw a lot this week."

Landry said it hasn't reached the point where he would rest Staubach for Sunday's game in Philadelphia, but added "I'll be much quicker to substitute. We have some backup people who need work but I'm not going to substitute and jeopardize our chances of winning."

Uppermost of Landry's mind is the homefield edge in the NFL playoff.

"Our No. 1 objective is to secure the home site advantage," said Landry at his weekly press conference. "That's our No. 1 thought now."

"Our players ought to be motivated for the homefield advantage when they look at all the ice and snow in Minnesota last week," said Landry.

That was Landry's way of saying he didn't want to play in either Minnesota or Green Bay, the two teams still scrambling for the NFC Central title.

Staubach has usually played well against the Eagles.

He has a 12-2 career mark as the quarterback of record against Philadelphia. His longest career run of 33 yards came against the Eagles last year and has 11 touchdown passes against Philadelphia.

Staubach is now the No. 1 rated quarterback in the NFL and has thrown only one interception in his last 95 pass attempts. When he was going bad early in the season, Staubach suffered seven interceptions in his first 101 attempts.

Staubach has broken Don Meredith's record for the number of passes thrown and completed in one season and yards gained passing in one season.

He broke his right index finger in the Super Bowl.

"If it gets hit it swells," said Landry. "Just throwing doesn't bother him."

Landry said fullback Robert Newhouse would miss the Eagle game because of the fractured bone he suffered in his right leg three weeks ago.

"Newhouse is definitely out...he's been slowed by soreness," said Landry. "He should improve. It's possible he will be able to go by the New York Jet game in two weeks."

Sankey Wins At NFR Finals

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Ike Sankey of Rosehill, Kan., rode his horse to a spectacular score of 86 to win the saddle bronc riding event during the fifth go-round of the National Finals Rodeo Tuesday night.

In other highlights, Monty Taylor of Allison, Texas, who is competing at the NFR for the first time, won his second go-round to jump into contention for the bull riding championship and Carol Goostree of Verden, Okla., became the only contestant to place in every go-round.

Also, Danny Torricellas of Eugene, Ore., jumped into the lead in what is shaping up as a tight four-way race for world champion all-around cowboy, and Byron Walker of Amarillo, Texas, was clocked in 4.1 seconds in steer wrestling the best thus far at the NFR.

Sankey's score came aboard Half Velvet, owned by Jim Sutton of Onida, S.D. It is the best saddle bronc score of this year's NFR and is only two points behind the all-time NFR record of 88.
