Lawmakers want change in disclosure

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas lawmakers will ask Gov. Bill Clements to allow changes during the special legislative session to a crime victim identity law that has angered news-gathering organizations and confused law enforcement agencies.

The law, which became effective June 15, should be quickly amended, said Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, who has sponsored several open government bills.

"We need to repeal the harm that is done by this bill," said Caperton. "It just slipped through," during the regular legislative session, which ended May 29.

Caperton and Sen. Cyndi Krier, R-San Antonio, said Wednesday they will ask Clements to allow the issue to be considered during the special, 30-day session that started June 20.

One of the law's sponsors, Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, talked with Clements Wednesday and said he would carry corrective legislation if allowed in the special session, said an aide to the governor.

News organizations throughout Texas have reacted with dismay this week as police agencies began applying the new law, which amends the Texas Open Records Act.

The law, thought to be the first of its kind in the U.S., allows government agencies including police and fire departments to withhold felony victims' names as well as addresses or other information that could lead to their identification.

Police reports were open public records until the law was passed.

Rebecca Daugherty of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press in Washington said a scan of the agency's records showed no other state has enacted a law summarily closing victim information to the public.

Reporters and editors can't get routine crime information, such as the names of people killed in drunken driving accidents. State troopers have been instructed to withhold such information.

The Odessa American published blank space Wednesday where it usually runs police reports and told its readers a new state law protecting the identities of felony crime victims is to blame.

"It's absurd," said Odessa American Managing Editor M. Olaf Frandsen, who wrote a letter to readers in Wednesday's paper.

"You no longer are entitled to know if a burglar is working your neighborhood, or if an acquaintance or relative has been traumatized by a criminal and could use your help," the letter said.

In Fort Worth, Police Chief Thomas Windham said the department no longer would allow routine free access to offense reports and would remove identifying details from those reports open for scrutiny by the public.

"I don't like the law. The legislation is rather sloppy I think," Windham told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

However, Windham said his department would be risking a lawsuit if it did not strictly follow the law.

Police officials will not be able to tell the public about murder victims, or even newsworthy crimes of a less serious nature, he said.

"If the mayor's car gets stolen - like it did a while back - we wouldn't be able to make that a news story," the chief said. "It sure places us in a tremendous confused state over here. We're kind of in a tizzy wondering what to do."

Dorsey Trapp, Wichita County district clerk, had at first planned to remove the names of crime victims listed on indictments the grand jury released Wednesday.

But Trapp said he changed his mind during the day because of the law's ambiguity and after checking with other district clerk's offices, he told the Wichita Falls Times.

Clements said Wednesday he was "really surprised at the reaction and the manner in which that bill has been interpreted," and is "investigating."

When he signed the bill, Clements said he thought "certain victims would be reasonably protected... but I didn't think that the records would be put in seclusion, so to speak."

Leedom and the other sponsor of the measure, Rep. Fred Blair, D-Dallas, said they meant to protect crime victims from sales pitches by security and alarm companies, and that their intent has been misinterpreted.

A good old ice cold one

Craig, a six-year-old entrepreneur on Northwest Drive in Hereford, decided to take advantage of Wednesday's warm weather to set up a Kool-Aid stand in a driveway.

Bush focusing on PACs

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is moving to cut special-interest influence in elections, abolish gerrymandered political districts and revive talk of a congressional pay raise, aides say.

Campaign finance reform was the focus of Bush's speech today before a group of congressional interns. However, aides said the president also planned to call on Congress to again take up the pay raise issue that the lawmakers dumped earlier this year amid public outrage.

Administration officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Bush would announce his legislative proposals to:

-Abolish political action committees that are connected to corporations, unions or trade groups, while allowing so-called ideological PACs that operate independent of any such organization.

-Ban carrying over campaign funds from one election to the next. The president's proposal would have congressional candidates return leftover funds to the contributors or give the money to the political parties or the government, said one official.

-Curtail gerrymandering methods of drawing political district lines to benefit one political party or group over another. He was expected to cite provisions against discriminatory district boundaries under the Voting Rights Act.

-Require full disclosure of so-called "soft money" contributions to political parties. Soft money refers generally to corporate and labor donations that are barred in federal campaigns. Such money often takes a back channel path into federal campaigns when the funds are contributed to political parties, which then help the candidates.

-Restrict franking privileges, which allow members of Congress to send mail to their constituents free.

Japanese businessmen aren't concerned just about market shares and interest rates. These days, some are wondering whether their jobs might kill them.

It's called "karoshi" - death from overwork - or "pokkuri byo" - sudden death. The number of such deaths among harried Japanese businessmen is growing at an alarming rate, researchers say.

Victims share a common pattern: sudden deaths from heart attacks or strokes after months or years of extralong working hours under heavy stress, says Dr. Kiyoyasu Arikawa, who advises executives on how to reduce their risk.

Arikawa found that sudden deaths among top executives have skyrocketed in the past 20 years, from 10 in 1969 to about 150 in 1987. Recently, he says, the number of such deaths has grown fastest among those in their 40s and 50s, men who on average could expect to live to about 79.

The risks of Japan's competitive work world were highlighted by the sudden deaths in the past two years of several prominent men in their 40s, including publishing executive Koremichi Noma, trading company president Hiroto Inui, Fanuc Co. president Nobuo Hanaoka and chairman of the mass media group Fuji Sankei, Haruo Shikanai.

"Pokkuri byo is a real concern among the businessmen I know," said Mitsuya Goto, a former Nissan Motor Co. executive who now heads an international exchange center. "They're all pretty concerned about it."

Arikawa runs a clinic in a skyscraper in downtown Tokyo where he counsels executives on how to minimize damage from their stress-laden careers. The Arikawa Medical Counseling Club, with its plush carpets, dim lighting and classical music, serves an elite clientele.

But sudden death is not confined to stressed executives.

Various reports show such deaths occur among taxi drivers, teachers, journalists, salespeople and maintenance workers.

A hot line set up by a lawyers' group to handle inquiries from families of people who suffered premature, sudden deaths estimates that as many as 600 Japanese may have died of overwork last year.

In Japan, where time spent on the job and personal sacrifice are viewed as key measures of company loyalty, the temptation to overwork is overwhelming, says Hiroshi Kawahito, a lawyer associated with the hot line.

"People feel companies are more important than their individual rights and they're praised by the company if they work hard. Their pay and position depend on it," he said.

Families of the victims are usually unprepared to cope with the loss of a breadwinner. The hot line counsels them on how to obtain government assistance and in some cases workmen's compensation.

In over 95 percent of the cases, the government ruled against paying workmen's compensation because it's difficult to prove overwork was the cause of death, Kawahito says.

In the past, the government required that families of sudden death cases prove the victim was overworked on the day he died. It now accepts evidence an overwork victim was under extreme stress in the week before his death.

Japanese companies, despite their reputation for concern for workers' welfare, are just becoming aware of the problem, says Dr. Tetsunojo Uehata of the National Institute of Public Health.

The government has embarked on a drive to reduce working hours, but so far with little evidence of success.

Study: 40% of Hispanics born in poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly 40 percent of Hispanic children are living in poverty, yet federal policy makers continue to overlook their needs, a Latino advocacy group says.

A report by the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials (NALEO) released this week said a Hispanic child is born into poverty in this country every 3 1/2 minutes.

NALEO said two of five Hispanic children in 1987 were living at or below the poverty level - $11,611 for a family of four.

Moreover, the increasing growth of the Hispanic population, a community which has increased by 30 percent from 1980 to 1987, in addition to the relative youth of the community, compounds an already alarming situation, the report said. "Simply stated, significant numbers of Hispanic children constitute a population at risk."

While Hispanic children comprise approximately 10 percent of all children in the United States, they represent 27 percent of all children in poverty, the report said.

"Yet the unique needs of Hispanic children in poverty continue to be overlooked by the nation's federal policy makers, civil affairs researchers, and the media," the report said.

The nation's Hispanic population jumped from 14.3 million in 1980 to 17.5 million in 1985 through a combination of high birth rates and international migration, according to Census Bureau estimates released last week.

Although they were only 6.3 percent of the U.S. population in 1980, Hispanics made up about one-fourth of the 12 million national population increase during the next half-decade, the Census Bureau said.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, a San Antonio Democrat, said he believes the poverty rate for Hispanic children could exceed 40 percent in many areas.

Bustamante said today's Hispanic children will make up one-third of the work force in the 21st century, but he is concerned they will not have the skills and education needed to provide the services and taxes the country will need as the population ages.

"If we have a work force that is not capable of dealing with the new technology of the 21st century, they will not be a contributing force," Bustamante said. Yet the demand for Social Security and Medicare benefits will continue to grow.

The dropout rate for Hispanics is as much as three times higher than the rate for Anglos, the report said, and Bustamante believes the reason is because many are forced to leave school to help support their families.

"Poverty rates among Hispanics should be cause for great concern," said Robert Greenstein, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

NALEO's report is based on the First National Conference on Latino Children in Poverty, held in July 1987 and sponsored by the NALEO Education Fund. Attending were university researchers, public policy makers and service providers.

Among its conclusions, the report said the poverty rate for Latino children in two-parent families is higher than the poverty rates for black and Anglo children. The poverty rate for Latino children in two-parent households is 27.4 percent, compared with 18.7 percent for black children and 8.4 percent for Anglo children.

The report also said 42 percent of Latino children living in poverty are in large families with four or more siblings, compared with 35 percent for Anglo children and 23 percent for black children.

And approximately 98 percent of Latino children of unwed mothers without a high school education are born into poverty, the report said.

California has the largest Hispanic population, the Census Bureau report showed, at 5.9 million, one-third of all Hispanics in the nation. Texas was second at 3.7 million followed by New York at 1.9 million and Florida with 1.1 million.

HUD investigators met with attorneys

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional investigators met with lawyers for a former housing official who won't testify about influence-peddling for federal money, but neither side will say whether they are working on a deal.

Deborah Gore Dean, the former official at the center of the dispute, said she spent Wednesday sifting through a box of documents from her tenure at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"That was about all she would say. 'Please don't do this to me,'" Ms. Dean, former executive assistant to the HUD secretary, said during a brief telephone conversation. "I'm very bad at hanging up on people. I think it's rude, and I always get stuck."

One of Ms. Dean's attorneys, Charles Leeper, acknowledged the meeting with congressional investigators.

"Our client has asserted the Fifth Amendment privilege, and we're not under any obligation, as things stand now, to appear again before the subcommittee, but we're continuing discussions with them," Leeper said.

Hearings before the House Government Operations subcommittee on housing and employment were resuming today with Fred Bush, a 1988 fund-raiser for George Bush's presidential effort, among those scheduled to testify. Bush, unrelated to the president, previously testified on May 25.

Meanwhile, an auditor's report released Wednesday showed that HUD gave millions of dollars to private apartment projects around the country in 1987 and 1988 although they did not qualify under the agency's own guidelines.

The funds came from a HUD discretionary fund intended to help financially ailing projects which were insured by the Federal Housing Administration, said the report released by Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y.

Green said the audit of awards to 25 projects indicated that $30 million of $35 million granted "went to underserving or low-need projects."

Ms. Dean, who appeared before the subcommittee last month, has invoked her constitutional right against self-incrimination in refusing to testify about her role in awarding HUD money.

The panel is investigating allegations that millions of dollars were steered to developers who were either former HUD employees or hired top Republicans, such as former Interior Secretary James Watt, who sold their services as consultants for six-figure fees.

The New York Times reported today that one prominent Republican who received a consulting fee to help a project win federal housing funds was Fred Brown, a New York businessman and chairman of the National Black Republican Council.

A 1987 audit by HUD investigators questioned Brown's $50,000 fee for consulting work on behalf of New Haven, Conn., in its successful bid for a $10 million federal Urban Development Action Grant.

A parade of witnesses identified Ms. Dean as the HUD official whose support was crucial in getting scarce housing funds from the department.

AUSTIN - Passage of a bill to create Dallas County's first four-year public university will haunt the Legislature, says a critic of the proposal; Texas lawmakers asked Gov. Bill Clements to allow changes during the special legislative session to a crime victim identity law that has caused an uproar among the state's news-gathering organizations; Gov. Clements called upon lawmakers to pass a bill that would allow the death penalty for child murderers, as he broadened the special legislative session to several more issues; Candidates will face off in an Aug. 12 special election for the congressional seat being given up by Jim Wright, the former speaker who stepped down after a House ethics committee investigation.

Help for Scouts

David Ruland, right, president of the Hereford Lions club, presented a check recently to Kevin Cook, area executive for Boy Scouts of America, to offset camping expenses for several Scouts this summer. Many of the Boy Scouts have helped with various Lions Club projects over the past year to earn the assistance.

Directors of Japanese company suspicious of Pickens' motives

TOKYO (AP) - Saying they doubted he was a long-term investor interested in the business, the directors of a Japanese auto lighting company today rejected a bid by corporate raider T. Boone Pickens to gain three seats on its board.

The rejection of Pickens, the largest shareholder in the Koito Manufacturing Co. with a 20.2 percent stake, came at the end of a tense four-hour annual shareholders meeting.

T. BOONE PICKENS

The Texas oilman's bid for the seats for himself and two vice presidents of his Boone Co. on Koito's 20-member board challenged the insularity of the Japanese corporate world, in which the interests of shareholders are often ignored in favor of those of management and employees.

A vote was taken and Pickens' motion failed by a large majority, Koito President Takao Matsuura said without elaborating.

Pickens has argued that Japanese shareholders should stand up for their rights and had tried unsuccessfully in April to obtain representation in Koito, a leading Japanese supplier of headlights and electrical parts.

Pickens said today that his Amarillo, Texas-based company's difficulties in gaining a role in Koito's affairs "for most Americans symbolizes a Japanese lack of openness."

At the meeting, Pickens presented the company with a number of written questions about company management.

He asked if the auto lighting company granted special favors to Toyota Motor Corp., Koito's second-largest shareholder, in the form of prices for parts.

Koito officials said they had not and that Koito treated Toyota the same as its other major customers, Nissan Motor Co. and Mazda Motor Corp.

After the meeting, Matsuura said it was difficult to tell whether Pickens' intentions regarding Koito were those of a corporate raider trying to win a quick profit.

"Mr. Pickens asked only very appropriate questions," he said.

Pickens' March purchase of the Koito stock sent shock waves through the Japanese business community, whose tradition is to consult with a firm before taking a major stake in its stock.

Pickens has strongly denied that his intention is "greenmail" - buying a company's shares to force their repurchase at a higher price to maintain the company's management independence.

Although Pickens' arguments for shareholders' rights have gained some support in leading newspaper editorials, Japanese - with an eye to his string of unsuccessful hostile takeover attempts in the United States - remain suspicious of his motives.

Pickens has raised his problems with Koito as a trade issue in Washington, saying Americans are denied the right to invest freely in Japan while Japanese can easily purchase American companies.

Efforts to fund atom-smasher in Texas go to Senate after approval by House

WASHINGTON (AP) - Efforts to fund a $5 billion atom-smasher in Texas - President Bush's home state - now move to the Senate as part of an $18.5 billion spending bill for energy and water projects.

House members, fearing that water projects in their own states might also falter, voted overwhelmingly against an amendment Wednesday to delete Bush's request for the superconducting super collider from the measure.

Later approved on a voice vote, the fiscal 1990 spending measure for energy and water projects also quadruples funds - to $636 million - for environmental cleanups at the nation's nuclear weapons plants.

Similar legislation has yet to move through the Senate, where another attempt may be made to eliminate $110 million to begin construction on the high-energy physics research project.

Located 25 miles south of Dallas, the project would consist of two giant rings 53 miles around for accelerating and colliding protons into each other in an effort to examine subatomic particles.

Physicists hope the device, to be completed in 1999, will enable them to duplicate for the first time - but on an infinitesimally small scale - the conditions of the "big bang" theory of creation.

"The SSC is a critical part of this administration's initiative to strengthen the position of the nation as a world leader in science and technology," the White House said in a statement Wednesday.

"It will produce discoveries, innovations and spinoffs that could touch profoundly on every American."

Opponents expressed fears that the super collider's construction cost will balloon to $900 million a year and squeeze out funds for research on improving computers and finding a cancer cure.

But the attempt to delay construction was defeated on a 330-93 vote after Bush personally appealed to key legislators.

Chief among them was Rep. Tom

Bevil, D-Ala., who as chairman of the House Appropriations energy and water development subcommittee, holds the spending keys to hundreds of water projects in every state.

Rep. Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., one of the sponsors of the amendment to strike super collider construction funds from the bill, said the effort failed partly because of widespread fears of antagonizing Bevil.

The bill includes $1.1 billion for construction of 93 Army Corps of Tanker captain confined

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) - The captain of a tanker that spilled 420,000 gallons of oil was confined to his ship today after being charged with polluting waters off Rhode Island.

For the first time since Friday's accident, fishermen were free today to begin harvesting shellfish from parts of the upper Narragansett Bay. Officials said almost all the spilled oil had evaporated.

In two other spills, cleanup crews made headway in mopping up oil.

Iakovos Georgudis 43, was charged Wednesday with two misdemeanor counts of discharging pollutants into the water in violation of the Clean Water Act and Federal Refuse Act. The captain also is under investigation by a state grand jury.

Each misdemeanor carries penalties of up to a year in prison and a $100,000 fine or double the actual damages, said U.S. Attorney Lincoln Almond. The Coast Guard has estimated damages at $1.6 million, and Gov. Edward D. DiPrete said President Bush has promised full federal reimbursement to the state.

The Clean Water Act prohibits the negligent discharge of pollutants; the Refuse Act prohibits unlawfully discharging refuse into navigable water without a permit.

Almond said Georgudis, a Greek resident, was arrested because of concern that he might leave the United States. The United States' extradition treaty with Greece does not cover pollution crimes, he said.

A federal magistrate set bail at $50,000 and ordered him to surrender his passport. The magistrate also ordered the captain and his Greek tanker World Prodigy remain in Rhode Island waters.

Almond said Georgudis was confined to the ship "to insure the integrity of the vessel."

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, witnesses at a Coast Guard inquiry into a spill of about 300,000 gallons on the Delaware River said a botched anchoring procedure led to the grounding of a tanker and the spill of industrial heating oil. The hearing was recessed until July 5.

Hundreds of people have been working to clean up the globs of oil since the weekend. A hot sun melted some congealed oil on Tuesday, but cooler weather Wednesday kept the oil in more of a solid condition. Workers used shovels and pitchforks to remove it.

Local Roundup

Police investigate theft

Hereford police were kept busy with several reports on Thursday, including a house burglary in the 900 block of Brevard where $2,000 worth of items were taken, including a stereo system, handgun and food; an open door in the 200 block of East Third; theft of $14.60 worth of beer in the 900 block of East Park; theft of a set of license plates, worth $58, in the 400 block of Lawton; harassing phone calls in the 200 block of Elm; assault in the 300 block of Avenue F; disorderly conduct in the 500 block of East Park; and $30 worth of lumber stolen in the 200 block of Star.

The Hereford Volunteer Fire Department responded to a grass fire south of the Hereford Municipal Airport at 8:23 p.m. Wednesday and to an accident at Summerfield at 9:02 p.m. on Wednesday.

Hereford police investigated one non-injury accident and issued four citations on Wednesday.

Deputies arrest two

Two persons were arrested on Wednesday by Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies, including a man, 30, on an outstanding warrant; and a man, 19, on a jail commitment for theft.

Deputies also investigated an assault northwest of Hereford in a family dispute.

Rain chance tonight

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be 62, with east winds 10-20 mph.

Friday will be partly sunny and warm with a less than 20 percent chance of isolated thunderstorms. The high will be 88, with southeast winds 10-20 mph.

This morning's low at KPAN was 63 after a high Wednesday of 92. KPAN recorded .50 inch of rain in the showers that fell Wednesday evening.

Correction

In Wednesday's story about elementary and intermediate summer school, an incorrect date was listed in the story.

The session will begin July 5, which is Wednesday. The story, at one point, said July 5 was Tuesday. The Brand regrets the error.

Economist answers food safety questions

The U.S. Food supply is the safest in the world, thanks to strict safety procedures and pesticide monitoring, said an official with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Charles Hall, an economist in horticultural marketing, addressed some commonly asked questions about pesticide monitoring to ensure safe food products. How and why are our foods monitored for pesticides?

Standards for pesticide licensing and use are set for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and monitored by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA). FDA personnel examine samples of produce as it leaves farms and orchards, at packing operations, wholesale markets, and major produce distribution centers, and as it enters the country from abroad.

Pesticides are monitored for three reasons:

--To enforce pesticide laws by identifying illegal (either too much residue remains or a chemical is found that is not authorized for use on that crop) pesticide residues and removing commodities with illegal residues from the marketplace.

--To deter the existence of illegal residues by identifying problems caused by international misuse or some other unintentional factor, such as unusual weather conditions are poor farming practices.

--To determine the incidence of pesticide residues in the food supply.

The FDA monitors chemicals that are used on frequently consumed foods as well as those chemicals of a particular health concern. This is not intended to test all produce because the only way to test for pesticides is to grind up the sample and analyze the extract.

What do monitoring results show?

Since 1961, the FDA has analyzed chemical residues in 234 individual foods, and, more recently, has studied the diets of 22 population groups based on age, sex, ethnicity and geography. With few exceptions, dietary intake of pesticides is hundreds, even thousands, of times lower than the Acceptable Daily Intake (ADI) levels established by the World Health Organization. Data from the FDA and state programs historically show the following:

--80 to 90 percent of foods contain no detectable residues of pesticides because the produce was not treated or the pesticide had already degraded.

--10 to 20 percent contain traces of some chemicals, but at allowable limits not considered a health threat, and which will further degrade by the time the food reaches the consumer.

--2 to 3 percent contain residues of a pesticide which is not licensed for use on that crop.

--0.2 to 0.3 percent of foods contain higher levels of pesticides than are allowed by federal standards and attempts are made to seize, destroy or hold produce until residues break down and the remaining residue is within "safe" limits.

Pat Michael was recognized when the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross held their annual membership meeting Tuesday night at the Red Cross office.

Michael, outgoing chairman of the board of directors, was given a certificate of appreciation for serving two years as chairman. The certificate was presented by Lupe Chavez, incoming chairman, along with a Red Cross pin and jacket.

Michael conducted the business meeting that featured routine reports. New members of the board were selected and include Herb DeLa Rosa, Tanya Kleuskens, Greg Buckley, and Sam Lopez. Retiring board members cited were Garth

Thomas, Fred Ruland, and Shannon Wilburn.

Other board members include Ronny Sanders, Tommy Rosson, Kelvin Betzen, Robert Mercer, Michael, Chavez, Phyllis Cornelius, and Ernest Brown.

Officers chosen to lead the board of directors were Chavez, chairman;

Cornelius, vice chairman; Mercer, treasurer; and Betty Henson, secretary.

Chavez reported on the Red Cross National Convention held last month in Houston. Sanders reported on safety services activities.

Acting as hosts for the meeting were the Uniformed Volunteers.

Lapidary Club assembles

Vice president Dale Henson conducted a routine business meeting of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club Monday night in the Flame Room.

Routine matters were handled and several trips were discussed by the 24 members present. Two of the proposed treks include visits to the museum in Plainview and the Discovery Center in Amarillo.

A program on Washington, D.C. was featured as the history of the nation's capital was presented in film form.

The door prize, furnished by Thama Pearson, was won by Carrie Mae Doak. Mrs. Doak, along with Mona Gee and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Coker, hosted the meeting.

The next meeting will be held July 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Weldon Roberson and will feature an ice cream social.

WE COMPILED A LIST OF THE FRIENDLIEST PEOPLE IN TEXAS.

Being friendly is just part of being Texan. And it's a good thing. Because the friendlier we are to our out-of-state guests, the better it is for our economy. And at Southwestern Bell, a healthy Texas economy is something we strongly support. That's why our directories feature a "Texas Friendly" face from the state's tourism advertising effort. And why we helped underwrite the Texas Department of Commerce, Tourism Division's hospitality training program, now being offered statewide. After all, we'd like to see our list of the friendliest people in Texas continue to grow.

Cotten, Scott named to Connors ousted at Wimbledon coaches' All-State team

The Hereford Whitefaces had two players named to the Texas High School Baseball Coaches Association Class 4-A All-State Team, according to Hereford High School baseball coach T.R. Sartor. Seniors Jason Scott and Clint Cotten were the only players from Class 4-A's Region I selected to the 30-member team. Scott was chosen for the second year as a pitcher. Cotten made the mythical squad as an outfielder.

The two were instrumental in the Herd's 25-3-1 record and reaching the Region I championship game. Scott had a 14-1 record on the mound with 147 strikeouts and a 2.09 ERA. His only loss was to Leander in the state quarterfinals. Offensively, Scott batted .384 with one home run and 17 RBI. He was second on the team with 21 stolen bases and third with 36 runs scored. Cotten posted a .412 batting average with three home runs and 29 RBI. He led the Herd with 14 doubles and was one of four Whitefaces with an on-base percentage of more than .500.

As the Herd's number two starting pitcher behind Scott, Cotten gained a 7-0 record with 35 strikeouts and a 3.28 ERA. His record included a series-clinching win over Brownwood in the regional round of the playoffs.

Cotten has also been selected to play for the North team in the THSBBCA All-Star game scheduled for July 26 in the Houston Astrodome.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Jimmy Connors anticipated the question, the same one he's been asked time after time since age began creeping up.

Once again, he wasn't giving anything away.

"Get through this year first and see what happens," the 36-year-old Connors said when asked about retirement after tumbling out of Wimbledon in the second round Wednesday.

His 7-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 loss to Dan Goldie was only the third time since he came to Wimbledon in 1971 that Connors had exited so early. It was by far the biggest upset through the first three days of the tournament.

Known for his stirring comebacks, Connors had beaten Goldie, ranked 47th in the world, in both their previous meetings. This time, however, he couldn't convert a flurry of break points and failed again to add a third title to his 1974 and 1982 triumphs.

"That's the grass. Sometimes it works out and sometimes it doesn't," Connors said.

Goldie said Connors played like a far younger man.

"He's still a very good player," Goldie said. "He's still very fast. He doesn't play like a 36-year-old."

Two other seeded players were ousted on the third day of the tournament.

No. 11 Brad Gilbert, who had rallied from two sets down against John Fitzgerald in a first-round match that began on Tuesday, couldn't maintain the momentum and lost in five sets to the Australian.

Among the women, No. 13 Helen Kelesi of Canada was ousted by 20-year-old Shaun Stafford of the United States, also in the first round.

Both the top seeds advanced to the third round.

Ivan Lendl, up against little-known qualifier Ronnie Bahman, dropped the opening set before reaching the round of 32 with a 6-7, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over the Swede, ranked 311th in the world.

Steffi Graf stayed on course to retain her title, taking just 43 minutes to beat Kim Kessaris, a 16-year-old American amateur playing in her second Grand Slam tournament.

"It was like a dream come true, to play the No. 1 player in the world on Centre Court," said Kessaris, who bothered Graf at times in the first set with her big serve.

French Open champion Arantxa Sanchez of Spain came through the first round after losing at the same stage the past two years. The 17-year-old from Barcelona said she had changed her mind about playing on grass.

"I felt it was for, how you say, cows? But now I think different," Sanchez said.

Connors, more than twice Sanchez's age, said one option he ruled out in the future was the growing trend by some of his contemporaries to cut back on schedules and concentrate on one or two major events.

Reputations, he said, meant nothing.

"I've put my reputation on the line since I was 18," Connors said. "Why should I not do that now? Skipping a tournament here or feeling I'm not going to play on a surface, I've never done that. I don't think it's right."

He said players who cut back on tournaments for fear of losing were doing a disservice to the game.

The Yankees went undefeated in league play at 10-0 and also won the T-ball League tournament.

Kaul seventh at state rodeo

Kirby Kaul of Hereford took seventh place in the final go-round of steer wrestling at the Texas High School Finals Rodeo held last week in Seguin.

Kaul qualified for the finals by placing in the top ten during the week. He threw his first steer in 6.1 seconds and his second in 7.2 for a 13.3 average for the preliminaries. In Saturday night's finals, Kaul posted a time of 9.4 seconds.

Prep gridders a hit in USSR

MOSCOW (AP) - It was hailed as the first U.S.-style football game played in the Soviet Union and the two all-star high school teams from Oklahoma had the time of their lives showing the Soviets what football is all about.

The announcer tried to lecture the Soviet spectators on the fine points.

"Remember, the idea of the game is to try to move forward," he said.

"The main thing is not to fall. The thing is to stay on your feet as long as possible."

The thousands of Soviets who paid four rubles each (about $7) to get into Moscow's Dynamo stadium for the exhibition Wednesday looked like they had a good time - though the basics did sort of elude them for a while.

"I thought the crowd was kind of confused," said offensive tackle Chance Walentyn, 18, a senior from Bixby, Okla., near game's end. "But I think they liked it, I think they like American football."

"I've never played in front of so many people before. I'm ecstatic right now."

It was the Boomers against the Stars, and quarterback Matt Cook had himself a day to remember, passing for three touchdowns and running for a fourth to lead the Boomers to a 28-6 victory.

Muscovites know rugby, soccer and baseball, but American-style football was something new. They cheered when players gestured to them, but most of the yells in the right places came from family members imported from Oklahoma.

Shawn McCormick of Hereford also competed in steer wrestling at the rodeo. He missed out on a chance at the finals when he missed on his second steer in the preliminaries.

Kemp Fox, an umpire from Tulsa, Okla., said the game served as a "good example of American football," with few penalties and no injuries.

Up in the stands, Phil Straus, a scientist from Los Angeles, tried to explain the game to Soviet Vladimir Katashov.

"It's the most important thing on Monday nights. You go to the bar and have a pitcher of beer," Straus told him.

And also from youths in black jerseys who journeyed more than 1,000 to Moscow from Chelyabinsk in the Ural Mountains to meet the American players.

The Federal football club, whose 80 players include girls, is the only American-style football team in the Soviet Union and has been playing since late 1987, coach Alexander Kovrygin said.

"The kids had the idea that football means murder and brawls, and they figured they could fight legally on the field," he jested.

American coach Dan Crookham did report, however, that one Muscovite approached him before the game with a question.

"He asked how many people he could expect to be killed in tonight's contest," Crookham said, smiling.

The Tass news agency said the three games the Americans play in Moscow, Leningrad and Tallinn should help

Weekly scramble ends in tie

Two teams carded a low-ball 29 in the Wednesday Scramble at Pitman Municipal Golf Course yesterday, forcing a carry-over of prizes to next week's play.

Paul Lovan led one of the teams that had a 29. Other members were Bob Sims, Wade Easley and Martha Jones. Rick Roden captained the other team, which included Robert Aguirre, Rose Mary Robinson and Hugh Blakey.

The scramble was rained out last week and already had a carry-over of prizes due to a tie two weeks ago. The weekly scramble is open to any interested golfer, and players are placed on teams on a first-come basis. Contact pro Brent Warner at the golf course to register, or see if there are openings.

Junior rodeo set for July 7, 8

The Hereford Riders Club will host a Hi-Plains Junior Rodeo Association rodeo on July 7 and 8 at the HRC Arena.

Competition will be held in eight-years-old and under and in boys and girls nine to 12, 13 to 15 and 16 to 19 divisions.

Entry fees are $11 per event for the eight and under division, $13 per event in the nine to 12 groups, $20 per event in the 13 to 15 divisions and $25 per event for 16- to 19-year-olds. Stock charges will be $10 for team roping steers, $8 for riding steers, $5 for roping calves and $2 for barrels, poles and goats.

Membership in the Hi-Plains Junior Rodeo Association is not required to enter but non-members entries must be notarized.

Entries should be mailed to Box 598 Silvertown, Texas 79257, and must be postmarked no later than June 30. Entries also must include a check or money order for the correct amount.

Jones looking to add to win total at Western OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) - Steve Jones, the only tour golfer with three victories this season, said "Sure, why not?" when asked if he could make it two in a row for the second time this year.

Jones, who won the first two events of the year, is coming off a victory last week in the Canadian Open and will be aiming for the top prize of $180,000 starting today in the $1 million Western Open.

"We'll find out soon enough," Jones said Wednesday when asked about a possible victory. "It seems like I go in streaks."

Jones, who had only one PGA Tour victory to his credit before this year, has it going so well that he is second only to Tom Kite in earnings this year. Kite has won $673,197 and Jones has $595,971.

Kite, who won the Western three years ago, could become the third golfer to go over $5 million in career earnings with a victory this week. The other two are Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

Nicklaus wasn't entered in the Western but Watson is, and he'll be seeking a fourth title. His three previous victories came after the tournament found a permanent home at Butler National beginning in 1974.

Both Jones and defending champion Jim Benepe expect Butler National, a par-72, 7,097-yard layout, to play

Texas drubs ChiSox, 10-5 Astros move closer to first place, beat San Francisco 7-5

CHICAGO (AP) - Comiskey Park is fast becoming the favorite road stop for American League teams. After leaving Chicago, White Sox opponents usually have a better record than when they arrived.

On Wednesday night, the Texas Rangers took advantage of Chicago's hospitality, defeating the White Sox 10-5 to sweep their two-game series.

The White Sox are now 11-27 at Comiskey, far and away the worst home record in the major leagues.

In the two-game series, the Rangers outscored the White Sox 15-6 and out-hit them 21-14. Texas has now won six of its last eight games.

In Wednesday's game, Texas broke a 4-4 tie by scoring five runs in the fifth inning aided by errors by Greg Walker and Fred Manrique.

Again most of the damage was done by players other than the Rangers' big guns - Ruben Sierra, Julio Franco and Rafael Palmeiro.

Utility infielder Jeff Kunkel continued his hot hitting against the White Sox, going 3-for-4 with two RBIs and one run scored. Rick Leach and Steve Buechele also chipped in with two RBIs apiece for Texas. Mike Jeffcoat, 4-1, allowed five runs on eight hits over seven innings to pick up the win. He equalled a career high with five strikeouts.

Steve Rosenberg, 2-5, picked up the loss, giving up six runs on eight hits in four-plus innings.

"Lately we've been playing great team baseball," Kunkel said. "It's the way we were playing when we first left spring training. There's always somebody coming through."

"(Wednesday night's) game was a perfect example. Julio (Franco) comes up with the bases loaded (in the fifth) but strikes out. But Rick Leach is there to pick him up (with an RBI grounder)."

Leach's grounder drove in Scott Fletcher who had reached when first baseman Walker dropped his pop fly. Rafael Palmeiro, who had singled, came home on Manrique's throwing error.

After a walk to Jim Sundbert, Buechele, Kunkel and Cecil Espy followed with RBI singles to build the Rangers' lead to 9-4.

"That kind of production is the key for us," Buechele said. "If we can produce from the bottom of the order we'll be tough. You know the guys at the top of the lineup are going to produce."

Jeffcoat, who was called up from Class AAA Oklahoma City on May 31 to replace the injured Jamie Moyer in the rotation, settled down after the White Sox touched him for three runs in the first on a throwing error by Buechele and Carlton Fisk's two-run triple.

"I'd like to have all our guys throw like he does," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said of Jeffcoat. "He battles, he throws strikes, and he gets upset when he walks a guy. I like that."

The Rangers tied the score 4-4 with two runs in the fourth on singles by Franco and Sammy Sosa, Buechele's sacrifice fly and a double by Kunkel.

The White Sox added a run in the seventh on Ivan Calderon's triple and a sacrifice fly by Fisk.

Texas scored its final run in the ninth on singles by Sierra and Franco and Leach's grounder.

HOUSTON (AP) - After winning their last two games against the San Francisco Giants, the Houston Astros feel confident and poised to make a move on the Giants, second baseman Bill Doran said.

"We're right where we want to be," said Doran after Houston beat the National League Western Division-leading Giants 7-3 Wednesday afternoon to pull within two games of San Francisco.

"I felt that at the beginning of the season that a couple of teams would separate themselves from the pack," Doran said. "Luckily we're one of them."

Houston has won five of their last six games while the Giants had won their previous seven games against Houston.

"We're in a pretty good position," Doran said. "We're two games out but we want to be ahead at the (All-Star) break."

An early lead of 5-1 gave Houston starter and winner Jim Deshaies, 8-3, some breathing room. Deshaies went seven innings while winning seven of his last eight decisions before Larry Andersen finished the last two innings and lowered his ERA to 0.40.

"It was important for us to show these guys we can beat them," Deshaies said.

The Astros drove in their first four runs on four doubles. Doran, Glenn Davis and Ken Caminiti doubled three first-inning runs and Terry Puhl brought in Gerald Young with a fourth-inning double. This produced a 4-1 lead over losing pitcher Don Robinson, 7-5, who also was victimized by three walks that resulted in three runs.

Robinson had issued only 10 walks in his previous 10 games.

San Francisco first baseman Will Clark, the third-leading batter in the National League, sighted one reason that the Astros were successful.

"Young and (Billy) Hatcher are getting on base and running," Clark said.

Young and Hatcher had two of Houston's three stolen bases while combining to score three runs and drive in two more. Houston is 17-3 in games in which they have two or more bases.

A's dropping back to pack

By The Associated Press

The American League has a couple of torrid five-team races under way - but it's a race for first place in the West and for second place in the East.

The AL West tightened up some more Wednesday night when Minnesota's Frank Viola bested Oakland's Dave Stewart in a battle of pitchers who have the league's winningest records since 1987. The surging Twins completed a three-game sweep of the slumping Athletics by winning 2-0.

"Everything's jelling right now. It's the first time all year we've been able to say that," Viola said after the fifth-place Twins pulled within 5 1/2 games of the division-leading A's.

California lost to Cleveland 2-1 and remained one game back, Kansas City pulled within 1 1/2 games by hammering Seattle 12-7 and Texas climbed within two games thanks to a 10-5 victory over Chicago. In other AL games, it was Baltimore 2, Toronto 1; Milwaukee 12, Boston 5, and Detroit 6, New York 5 in 10 innings.

Wally Backman and Jim Dwyer had RBI doubles in the third and seventh innings for Minnesota.

Viola, 6-8, hasn't allowed any runs in his last two starts covering 17 innings.

Stewart, 12-4, failed to become the major leagues' first 13-game winner despite yielding only six hits.

Indians 2, Angels 1

Scott Bailes allowed five hits in eight innings and Felix Fermin scored the winning run on Willie Fraser's wild pitch with two out in the bottom of the eighth.

Fraser's wild pitch made a loser of rookie Jim Abbott, 6-5, who limited Cleveland to four hits in 7 2-3 innings and retired 17 batters in a row until the Indians broke through for the winning run.

Royals 12, Mariners 7

Bob Boone drove in four runs, Kurt Stillwell hit a two-run double in a five-run fourth-inning rally and Bo Jackson hit his 18th home run as Kansas City came from five runs down to end a three-game losing streak.

Mark Gubicza, 8-5, yielded five runs and 10 hits in six innings. Seattle's Gene Harris, 0-1, was knocked out in the Royals' five-run fourth inning that erased a 5-1 deficit.

Orioles 2, Blue Jays 1

Cal Ripken broke a tie with a solo home run with one out in the eighth inning.

After Toronto tied the game on Fred McGriff's solo homer off Brian Holton leading off the seventh inning, Ripken connected off Toronto starter John Cerutti, 3-4.

Brewers 12, Red Sox 5

B.J. Surhoff drove in a career-high five runs, Rob Deer hit his league-leading 21st homer and Teddy Higuera, 2-2, won his first game in almost a month.

He surrendered Nick Esasky's 12th homer in the sixth before being replaced by Chuck Crim.

Tigers 6, Yankees 5

Lou Whitaker, who scored the tying run in the eighth inning, led off the 10th with his 16th home run.

Mike Henneman, 5-1, the third Detroit pitcher, worked the final 1 2-3 innings. New York reliever Dave Righetti, 2-2, who allowed the Tigers to tie the score in the eighth inning, served up Whitaker's homer on a 2-0 pitch.

Expos drop Mets, 4-3

By The Associated Press

Mark Langston had nothing to prove to the New York Mets. He let his teammates do that.

Langston struck out 10 Wednesday night as Montreal beat New York 4-3 to complete a three-game sweep and extend its winning streak to six games.

The left-hander was the subject of constant trade rumors during spring training, and most involved the Mets. Eventually, Seattle sent him to the Expos for three young pitchers.

"I wasn't out there to show the Mets anything," Langston said. "I had no extra incentive because of the trade talk. I certainly didn't want to go out there and try to do things I'm not capable of."

The first-place Expos lead the Mets and Chicago Cubs by 2 1/2 games in the National League East.

"They're definitely a team to be reckoned with and they know it," said losing pitcher Bob Ojeda, 5-7.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was San Diego 2, Los Angeles 1; Pittsburgh 7, Chicago 3; Houston 7, San Francisco 3; Atlanta 4, Cincinnati 3, and St. Louis 2, Philadelphia 1.

Entering the game, Langston had won three games on the road while dropping two decisions at Olympic Stadium. Langston, 4-2, allowed 12 hits and three runs in eight innings. Tim Burke got the last three outs for his 16th save.

Tim Wallach went 2-for-3 with two RBIs, including a run-scoring double in Montreal's three-run third. Padres 2, Dodgers 1

Tony Gwynn hit a two-run single in the eighth inning and Ed Whitson improved to 10-5.

Benito Santiago started the rally with a single off Mike Morgan, 5-7, and Tim Flannery followed with a bloop single to right. Bip Roberts batted for Whitson and bunted to Morgan, who got the force at third. One out later, Roberto Alomar walked to load the bases and Gwynn singled off reliever Ricky Horton.

Braves 4, Reds 3

Tom Glavine allowed two runs in 8 1-3 innings and Tommy Gregg had three hits.

The Reds pulled off their first triple play in 22 years in the sixth inning when Bruce Benedict lined out to shortstop Barry Larkin with runners on first and second moving on the pitch.

Glavine, 7-17 last year, is 8-4. Jose Rijo pitched six innings and fell to 7-5.

Eric Davis hit two homers and drove in three runs for the Reds.

Pirates 3, Cubs 1

Bobby Bonilla tripled in two runs to break an eighth-inning tie.

Jeff Robinson, 4-6, allowed four hits in seven innings for the victory and former Pirate Mike Bielecki, 7-4, was the loser.

Cardinals 2, Phillies 1

Joe Magrane pitched a seven-hitter and Pedro Guerrero drove in his first run in 12 games.

Magrane, 7-6, lost his shutout when Steve Lake singled home Randy Ready with two outs in the ninth.

- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

You know Hollywood: if you loved it once; you'll love it twice. And, in this instance, they may just be right. "GHOSTBUSTERS II": Starring Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd, and Sigourney Weaver is big, funny and sloppy - though not as funny as the original Ghostbusters. The new film has two main faults: one, it's not a new story, just on-going silliness from the original story line; and two, the II movie is really geared for audiences twelve and under. If you see this film with this in mind, you'll laugh a little, grin a lot and wonder, three hours later, what the movie was all about.

One really big disappointment is in the script. The original Ghostbusters movie produced more quotable lines than any comedy has produced in a long time. There are no new quotable lines in II. This is probably a small complaint, and II is funny, cleverly made and a good way to rid yourself of the summer sillies.

The story is the same; the "boys" are called upon to save New York City from supernatural evil doings. Bill Murray is a comic genius and a lot of fun to watch; Sigourney Weaver is mostly wasted in a leading lady type role, and Dan Aykroyd handles cleverly turned dialog with adroitness. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

RENTAL MOVIES

If you do plan to see Ghostbusters II and have not seen the original, I strongly suggest that you do before embarking on II. II is scripted like an inside joke and, in order to get all of the humor, you've got to know the frame of references from the original...

"GHOSTBUSTERS": (1984) Starring Dan Aykroyd and Bill Murray. This movie, in spite of its bad taste and bathroom humor, has a wonderfully clever premise and is full of irresistible nonsense.

Dan Aykroyd and Bill Murray are a delightful duo complete with prankish devilment. The "boys" portray university parapsychologists tossed out of academia for their unorthodox ways. Going into business for themselves in order to serve the public's "supernatural elimination" needs, the team, sporting proton packs and neutrana wands, tool around Manhattan in an Ectomobile. (The movie is not supposed to make sense - so relax, go along for the ride and have some fun.)

Sigourney Weaver is their first customer: the refrigerator in her apartment is running amok with psychic phenomena. The ghosts inside her fridge are an untidy lot to boot - they cram leftovers, belch, and spew goo on everything in sight. But it's the Aykroyd-Murray high jinks that provide the inspired lunacy. This film is a hoot and a holler and a heck of a lot of fun. Rated PG. Four Boxes.

Here is an often overlooked, highly-flawed, overly-long, hilarious movie very much in the genre of Ghostbusters...

"INNERSPACE": (1987) Starring Dennis Quaid, Martin Short, and Meg Ryan. Dennis Quaid is a daring but irresponsible test pilot who signs up for a bizarre mission: to be placed inside a capsule which will be reduced in size until it is smaller than a molecule. Then the capsule is to be injected into a rabbit. (If the experiment is a success, future surgeons could operate from inside their patients.)

High-tech thieves want to steal the technology of Dennis Quaid's employers so they send a squad of hit men to steal the syringe that contains the capsule, unfortunately with him inside. A scientist flees with the syringe containing the capsule to a nearby shopping mall. In a desperate attempt to protect the capsule, he plunges the syringe into Martin Short, injecting the capsule, with Dennis Quaid inside "where the sun don't shine".

You can just imagine where the movie goes from here: complications with the girlfriend played by Meg Ryan; communication problems via Martin Short, and so on and so on (a little too long).

Although Innerspace has some trouble deciding whether to be a straight out comedy or a semi-thriller, (The special effects are wonderful, and some look truly authentic.) the performances are so engaging and the effects are so enthusiastic, that the film really falls into the science/fiction/fantasy category and is full of laughs. Rated PG. Three Boxes.

If you like Innerspace then rent and see the movie that gave birth to its script...

"THE INCREDIBLE SHRINKING MAN": (1957) A black and white film with Grant Williams and Randy Stuart. The movie is loaded with outstanding special effects (particularly for 1957) which are worth renting the movie just to see. A man, Grant Williams, is exposed to a strange radioactive mist. He soon finds himself becoming smaller... smaller... smaller... and smaller. The Incredible Shrinking Man is a well-mounted thriller (no comedy here) from Universal Studios with many memorable scenes, including a classic showdown with an ordinary house spider.

The Incredible Shrinking Man is not rated but a PG. Three Boxes. See this one before Honey, I Shrunk The Kids

If We Ran This Ad On TV, You'd Only Have 30 Seconds To See It.

Now you'd only have 25 seconds, and you wouldn't be able to go back and look at the opening line again or pause (19...18...17...) to consider its significance. You wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with this advertisement—and it wouldn't be able to spend a lot of time with you. In fact, if we tried to say just this much in a 30-second TV commercial, throwing in only a brief mention that newspapers offer coupons, give you great flexibility of size, and can leave a lasting impression on your customers, we'd run out of...

Ann Landers

FREDRICK JAMES NATION
January 1, 1965--April 8, 1989.
Fredrick will be dearly missed by those of us who loved him. His last words were found on a wall at the church where he ended his life...

COCAINE SPELLS PAIN--FJN
There will be no memorial service. May he rest in peace.

Ann, I cried when I read this, thinking of what that young man must have gone through just before he died. Why did it hit me so hard? Because I was in his shoes five years ago.

I'm a 36-year-old mother of four children. For three years I was addicted to coke. No one would have suspected it. I was president of the PTA, my son's soccer coach and a Sunday school teacher. But I was also hooked on the white stuff. If I hadn't been able to afford it, I'm sure I would have done some terrible things to get it.

Thank God, I came to my senses and quit cold turkey. I've been clean for five years. Now, when I look back at the chances I took I just can't believe it. I also can't believe how lucky I was to accomplish what I did on my own. But to be perfectly honest, I wasn't exactly alone. I prayed a lot and He helped me.

The family of this man was very brave to put his obituary in the paper. I hope a lot of people will read it and take the message to heart.--Mrs. America

DEAR MRS. AMERICA: You have performed a valuable service by letting the world know that cocaine addiction can happen to anyone you'd least suspect.

I'm glad self-determination and prayer worked for you. Most people need professional help. I recommend the Cocaine Helpline, (800) COCAINE, and the National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) Hotline at (800)662-HELP. Those who call will get information and referral services.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I really don't know how to say this, but I have been having unnatural feelings towards my stepbrother, "Jeffrey."

Over the years, we have grown very close. He tells me his problems and I comfort him. I tell him mine and he gives me advice. We are best friends.

Lately, I have been daydreaming about him in a romantic way. I am 14 and he is 16. I know it's wrong to have such ideas, but if Jeff wasn't my brother, I could fall in love with him. Please tell me what to do.--Mixed Up in Florida

DEAR MIXED: You have passed the first hurdle, which is acknowledging your feelings and recognizing that you must not get carried away.

If you don't trust yourself to hold that line, talk to your school counselor. If there is no school counselor, get outside counseling. You need to look at your relationship in a totally different way. At 14, it's not easy to do without guidance.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old boy who likes to crack my knuckles. My mom says if I don't stop I'll have arthritis when I'm old. Is she right?--David, Corpus Christi

DEAR DAVID: I hate to disagree with your Mom, but she's wrong. However, if knuckle-cracking gets on her nerves you'd better stop, son, or you might get something else.

In China it was once believed that kites could clear the skies of storms and carry evil away.

The "T" in Booker T. Washington stands for Taliaferro. It is pronounced "Tolliver."

Names In The News

NEW YORK (AP) - Actor-bodybuilder Arnold Schwarzenegger, whose wife, Maria Shriver, is expecting a baby at the end of the year, says he's ready to take on the responsibilities of fatherhood.

"We have love for children, and we have a great relationship," said Schwarzenegger in an interview with ABC's "Good Morning America" scheduled for broadcast Thursday.

"I know it will work out great, and I just can't wait for this moment. I mean I'm really excited about it - to see a little 'Schwarzen-Shriver.'"

Schwarzenegger, 41, was interviewed in Mexico City where his new film, "Total Recall," is in production. Ms. Shriver, 33, is an anchor for NBC's new prime-time news show, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," which debuts in August.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Entertainer Bernadette Peters says her film career has not been harmed by the box office flop of her last two movies.

Ms. Peters, appearing in Atlantic City this weekend, made her film debut in 1973 in "Ace Eli and Rodger of the Skies." She co-starred with comedian Steve Martin in "The Jerk" in 1979 and won a Golden Globe Award for "Pennies From Heaven," in 1982. The same year she starred in "Annie."

This year she was featured in the episodic "Slaves of New York," a satire of that city's downtown art scene. In "Pink Cadillac," she played a bail-jumping mother of an infant to Clint Eastwood's bounty hunter.

"I don't think 'Slaves' was received well because there wasn't a lot of publicity done for it," she said. "And 'Pink Cadillac' is a fun summer movie but it's just not a blockbuster so it gets lost with all these big movies."

LONDON (AP) - Soviet-born concert pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy says he will perform in Moscow in November, 26 years after saying he would never go back.

The pianist told a news conference Tuesday that the "historic changes" in the Soviet Union made him change his mind.

Glasnost and perestroika had made his homeland a "normal and civilized country" and he considered it his duty to be part of the new era, he said.

Ashkenazy is music director of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, which he will take to Moscow. He said he will conduct two concerts at the Moscow Conservatoire and perform a Mozart concerto in the first of them.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Adam West, the Batman of television fame, says he's been too busy to see the new Batman movie and he's content to leave the crime fighting to Michael Keaton's new version of the fictional character.

"I guess if anyone should see it, I should," he said Tuesday while in town for a return of his 1966 Batman movie. "I've been too busy. But I'm very curious."
