

Personally Speaking

By E. M.

"Depression, depression Oh yes, there's a depression Ain't no other expression No marm. Dollars are the Things we never have And we haven't any use for New style purses. Depression, depression Same old expression. Consarn!"

Now that's off our chest. Here we had thought the depression was sort of getting slipped up on. But all the time the old depressor was just slipping up on us.

Well, in the first place, we have just read that the new style purses are longer and deeper than usual. Ironic Dame Fashion! As though a poor country editor could even buy a new purse, let alone have any dough to fill a long, deep one.

In the second place, we just noticed in the star reporter's favorite column for last week that only one-third of an egg yolk should be used in a bread pudding recipe. That simply climaxes things! With eggs seven cents a dozen, and we can't afford to use more than one-third of one yolk per recipe. Things are surely 'gettin' terrible.

The old expression, "May I have your frame for the next struggle?" or, more simply, "May I have this dance?" will soon be absolutely obsolete if the Saturday Evening Post knows its Postscripts. Moderners may soon be heard asking, "May I have this hobble?" or "May I have this wobble?" or possibly "May I have this jiggle?" or even (though goodness forbid) "May I have this wiggle?"

Don't believe it, eh? OK, just read this little bit from the before-mentioned postscript from the S. E. P., and see if it doesn't bring back memories.

"Some writhe and some wriggle, Some wobble or walk; Some jerk and some jiggle, Some solemnly stalk; Some waddle, some waddle, Some haughtily prance— But, hobble or toddle Or wriggle or waddle Or wriggle or jiggle, They call it 'The Dance.'"

However, those new specific specifications might prove embarrassing. The fair one might retort "Wiggle? I should say not! I only jiggle" or "The next waddle? Sir, I'll have you know I have this wobble already promised."

By the by, do you ever read the Postscripts (no advertisement). They are often really good. If we could push a pen like those fellows—??? (cut it out, heart. Quit your palpitating. Anyway, if your head is aching for something new in the joke line, and your eyes are yearning for originality in cartoon, stick your nose inside that weekly humor column, and you'll find it.

In fact, if we didn't think everybody reads the Post, we'd feel tempted to crib their stuff every week instead of just every other week.

School Trustees Make Plans To Improve School

Plans to make school improvements to meet the approval of the state inspector who visited the school last week were made by the Darrouzett school board at the meeting held Monday night, according to C. H. Powell, secretary.

G. A. Jenkins was appointed library custodian to supervise the arrangements for a new library. The board is considering installing the library equipment in the back of the auditorium, according to Mr. Powell. Reading tables and new books will probably be added, he stated.

The old library will be remodeled into an office for the superintendent.

At the meeting the board members also decided to varnish and repaint some of the school furniture and wood-work.

Epworth League Presents Play At Church Services

"The Lost Church," a two-act play was presented on Sunday evening at the school auditorium by the Epworth League.

Characters were: Orval Chappell, the father, Coeta Terrel, the mother; Lewis Woods, the son; Erma Hennigh, the daughter; Laura B Allen, a Sunday School teacher; Willard Smith, a neighbor; Eva Greenfield, the spirit of social injustice; Marguerite Hennigh, the spirit of spiritual darkness; Rubye Messner, the spirit of the church; Oklahoma Tingley, the spirit of ignorance; Olive Chappell, the spirit of sin, and Gwen Pugh, a poor old woman.

The plot of the play was based upon the attitude of the father toward the church. Altho the rest of the family was much interested in religious matters, the father did not believe in the church at all.

One night he had a bad dream. It seemed that the church had been blotted off the earth. His daughter was hurt by a car; his wife became a flirt; and his son ruined him and his business. The spirits of ignorance, spiritual darkness, sin, and social injustice were everywhere.

After his dream the father changed his attitude toward religious work. He started going to church, and all the evil spirits changed to good ones.

At the special request of the audience, Mrs. A. Blair Grubb gave again the Mother's Day reading that she had given in the morning church services, "White Carnations."

Grasshopper Infestation Is Possible Says County Agent

Strong possibility of a general infestation of grasshoppers equal to that of 1923 for all of Texas except the eastern portion is indicated in a letter received by W. K. Cottingham, county agent, from R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service.

"Following the recent warm rains, eggs are hatching and small grasshoppers appearing," he says. "As soon as infested areas are located, the immediate application of control measures may save later damage. Places to be watched are sloping pasture land and areas next to ditches, creeks, grassy fence rows, and along stone fences and lines of out-cropping rock ledges."

Poison bran mash has been highly successful in fighting grasshoppers and this has become the standard control measure, Mr. Cottingham states. The formula he gives consists of 25 pounds of coarse wheat bran, 1 pound Paris Green or White Arsenic, one ounce of high grade amyl acetate (avoid cheap grades of banana oil or sorghum molasses, one pound common salt, and enough water to make a moist mash.

"Mix the poison and bran together thoroughly," the agent directs. "Dilute the amyl acetate and molasses in about two gallons of water. Pour this liquid over the mixture of poison and bran until every particle is moist. Make further additions of water and mix thoroughly until a mash is obtained that is quite moist, yet will fall apart after being tightly squeezed. In this form it will broadcast easily."

Darrouzett Band Deserves Praise

Much credit is due the Darrouzett band and those who have assisted in its organization.

The band members have not only always shown themselves willing to help out at all community affairs, but they have provided some very good music.

A band of the size and quality of ours is one in which the entire town should take pride. Especially is such a band organization a creditable reflection to so small a town.

Special praise is due Mr. Beck who has spent so much time and trouble at directing the band practice and raising funds to carry on its work.

Patrons Show Interest In School

The unusually large attendance at the P. T. A. farewell for faculty members of the local school on Friday evening indicates a strong public interest in the school system.

The school patrons also showed their interest in school activities still further by visiting the science show and art exhibit conducted by the school.

In a community of this size it is especially desirable that the school prove a community center of interest. Both the school and the community are fortunate in that patrons take a pride in the school system.

The local school is, of course, a school to be proud of. With less of an educational background than pupils in several other schools of the county, our students have more than held their own in inter-school competitions.

Let us all continue to work together to improve our school system still further. Nothing that we can do to prepare the children of the community to be useful, helpful citizens of tomorrow should be left undone.

Six years ago they were talking about farm relief. Anyhow they have kept on the trail!

OH HUMAN RACE

By Mildred Crabtree Speer

Oh human race,
Perfidious ones,
How you must try
The patience of the gods.

Today you work and sweat
And pray toward a goal,
Promising that you will
Be contented if the
Gods will help you reach it.

Tomorrow you rest not
Under the beauty of
The goal you have won;
You keep not your promise,
But set your eyes on Another Distant goal.

Again you work and sweat
And pray toward a goal,
Promising that you will
Be contented if the
Gods will help you reach it.

All youth you spend toiling
For advancement; laying
Up something for an old
Age that may never come;
Struggling toward a goal
That will not be sweet
Enough to satisfy
When you have reached it.

Oh human race,
Perfidious ones,
How you must try
The patience of the gods.

FAVORITE RECIPES

By Doris E. Montgomery

Rhubarb is one of the most delicious and tasteful of all early spring dishes. Here are two recipes, using this popular vegetable in different ways from the ordinary.

RHUBARB BETTY

Four tablespoons melted butter
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One quart fine, dry bread crumbs
Cinnamon or nutmeg
One quart sweetened rhubarb sauce or two quarts raw sliced rhubarb
Sugar to sweeten.

Mix the fat and salt with the crumbs. Place the rhubarb and the crumbs in alternate layers in a greased baking dish, and sift the cinnamon or nutmeg over the top. Bake the pudding in a moderate oven. If rhubarb sauce is used, this will require about 20 minutes. If raw rhubarb is used, cover the baking dish at first and bake for 25 minutes, or until the rhubarb is tender. Serve the pudding hot, with or without hard sauce.

RHUBARB CUSTARD PIE

One and one-fourth cupfuls rhubarb cut in thin pieces.

One and one-half cupfuls milk
Three egg-yolks
Three-fourths cupful sugar
Two tablespoonfuls flour
One-fourth teaspoonful salt
Two tablespoonfuls butter

Meringue

Three egg-whites
Pinch of salt
Three tablespoonfuls powdered sugar

Line a pie pan (or preferably a glass pie dish) with pastry. Spread the rhubarb over the pastry.

Heat the milk in the top of a double boiler. While the milk is heating, break the egg-yolks into a bowl and beat them slightly. Add the sugar flour, and salt to the eggs and mix well.

Add the butter to the hot milk. When the butter is melted, gradually pour the hot milk into the egg mixture, stirring to mix the ingredients. Then pour the milk mixture into the pie plate. At once put the pie in an oven, the temperature wheel of which is set at 425 degrees, and bake the pie at this temperature for 20 minutes. Then bake the pie for 25 minutes longer at 325 degrees.

Remove from the oven, and cover the pie with a meringue prepared by beating the egg-whites and salt until the mixture is stiff, then adding the powdered sugar (through a sifter if lumpy) and continuing to beat until the sugar is mixed with the egg-whites.

Set the temperature wheel at 300 degrees, return the pie to the oven and bake from 10 to 15 minutes longer.

OUR MOST BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY

By Arthur B. Rhinow

When in 1846, John Scudder, the brilliant medical missionary of the Dutch Reformed Church, returned from India to the United States for a furlough, he was much sought after as a speaker at missionary gatherings. And on these occasions he often made the surprising statement: "There is no place like India; it is nearer heaven than America."

At first thought the words impress us as unreasonable. John Scudder spent his boyhood and youth in Freehold, N. J., and New Jersey is a fine state. On a steamer of the Old Dominion Line I once overheard a lady say, "New Jersey is the garden spot of the United States." That was probably an exaggeration of enthusiasm, but we would expect some of that admiration from any native. And without discriminating against any other country, we may well say that the United States is as fair a land as any in the world. It certainly ought to be to the man who calls it his native land. Moreover, if we compare the religious status of America with that of India, it is all the more surprising to have John Scudder say that India is nearer heaven than America.

Perhaps what he meant to say was, "To me there is no place like India; I often feel as though it were nearer heaven than America."

For he had given his heart to India. His life had been pledged to India in holy service. His work among the lowly of that far-off country was his all-absorbing passion. No wonder heaven often seemed very near to him when with loving heart and skillful hand he allayed suffering and misery.

Primary Room Notes

By MRS. J. E. SPEER

Patty and Delores Powell, and Ralph Hamilton came back to school on Monday.

The May books that are being made by the students of the primary room are almost half finished.

Wild flowers and many tame flowers are being brought to school. Eulala Altmiller and Raymond Stranske brought flowers to school on Monday.

A poster of the “Patchwork Girl” and “The Scarecrow Boy” was given to the primary room on Monday morning by Mrs. Speer. This poster is sent out by the American Seating Company and shows the effect of improper seating.

Naomi Rush from the sixth grade gave a talk to the primary room Monday. She discussed the costs and needs of a school. This talk was one of the best given by sixth grade English students and was much enjoyed.

Wendell Hennigh brought some bird pictures to school Monday that were enjoyed by all the students.

The state inspector visited the primary room on Thursday. Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Frass were also visitors.

Students of the first and second grades made posters last week and gave them as presents to their mothers on Mothers Day.

Erma Hennigh presented the primary room with some artificial flowers made by her sister.

Bunnies

Bunnies are very fond of milk, bark cane, hay, barley, cabbage, lettuce, carrots, green wheat and grass. Rabbits are very tender. Rabbits that live in the woods are a grayish color. They are called wild rabbits. There are different colors of tame rabbits. The tame rabbits are very pretty. Their fur is very soft. When a bird flies over, they run and hide. They are afraid of dogs, cats, and hawks. They can do many tricks. They are very clean.

Dean Terrel, Third Grade.

Third and Fourth Grade Activities

Jewell Kiskin and Claudia Hamilton returned to school Monday after three weeks' absence on account of the measles. We are very glad to have our attendance regular again.

Visitors last week were Messrs. Frass, Jr., G. A. Jenkins, Robert Laubhan, and Wanda Lash. More visitors are welcome at all times.

room Friday night for having the greatest number of parents from our room at the meeting. This is the best record so far.

Vernon Roper is vice president of the room, instead of Everett Painter as was stated in the notes last week.

For drawing and painting class the first of the week the students had their choice of two pictures to work on—one of a large stork and the other a fox and owl scene in silhouette. The picture of the stork with a plump little baby on its back, which was drawn by Roy Helfenbein, was considered about the best and furnished a great deal of inspiration for the other students.

Jewell Fiskin and Don James are reading table monitors this week.

Esther Littau from the primary room was a visitor after three o'clock one evening last week.

Friday during noon hour the students and teacher walked down main street and then headed east for a lovely picnic ground on the Fausset Ranch. The afternoon was spent in playing games; then, best of all according to some of the students, a fire was built over which weiners and marshmallows were roasted until all were gone. This was our first social activity for the year but we succeeded in making it one worth while.

Wilma Lash gave us a talk Monday afternoon about expenses of schools and the children's duty toward it. She made a wonderful talk and one could readily see from the cheering she received that all enjoyed it very much. We would like to have more talks from the fifth and sixth graders.

Rabbits

Rabbits live in the woods; they have gray brownish fur, so that they may not be seen in the bushes. They are quick to hear. They make their house where bushes are. We eat rabbits very much. They can run very fast. Their food is grass. They have whiskers and very long ears.

Fifth and Sixth Grade Notes

Naomi Rush and Wilma Lash were chosen to give a short talk in Mrs. Hennigh's and Mrs. Speer's room Friday. The subject, “The Cost of Schools and Who Pays for Them” has been discussed during English period recently. The two who gave the best oral discussions were allowed to give their talks in the other rooms.

Friday afternoon from 2:30 until 4:00 o'clock our room enjoyed a picnic on Mr. Jenkins' farm east of town. We played ground ball, swung in the big swing which Mr. Jenkins was so thoughtful to make; took some pictures; and finally, ate our lunch which each pupil had provided for himself. We returned to the school house at 4 o'clock, after having decided this was the most enjoyable picnic we had had this year.

Mr. Jenkins, Robert Laubhan, Mr. Frass and Margaret Huns were visitors for this week.

Marie Bellah, Everett Painter, Erma Hennigh, Ruth Stranske have all brought flowers, roses, wild flowers and locust blossoms to brighten our room and remind us that spring is here.

We are glad that Mavis Altmiller is able to be back in school again. Every one in our room has had the measles now and we hope no other epidemic breaks out soon. Gerald Ludlum is the only one in our room, now that has not been tardy or absent during the school year.

The Good English Club

The “Good English Club” met May 5, 1932. The president called the meeting to order and the minutes were read. Teresa Frass read the oral English errors and Marie Bellah was appointed to keep them for the next week. In the latter part of the meeting we sang our Good English song. Then the meeting was adjourned.

A Bill

In an indication that some one has had faith in your honesty. A bill indicates that someone who knows you depends upon your honor to keep the word you pledged when you received the goods which he furnished. It is an honor to receive a bill the first of the month. Your creditor may owe for the goods he has sold you. He extended credit on the assumption that you would pay him in time to meet his obligations to his jobber. If he fails to make cash payment to his jobber he must issue his not at interest.

If you never received a bill it might indicate that your credit was worthless; that not person trusted you; that you were held in such poor esteem by those who know you that none of them has ever been willing to take your word that you would pay. Credit is the most precious thing you have. Credit comes only through years of honesty and prompt meeting of bills when they are due.

When you receive a bill meet it when you agreed to, if you possibly can. If you can not, frankly tell your creditor why. You will find him more than ready to meet you half way.

New Bicentennial Quarter Dollar Coined

The new George Washington quarter dollar, to be issued by the United States Treasury as a feature of the nation-wide George Washington Bicentennial Celebration, will be coined in large enough quantities to satisfy a normal demand, officials of the Treasury have informed the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. It is expected that the quarter will be ready for distribution before June 1.

The design of the new coin was approved by Secretary of the Treasury, Ogden L. Mills, from more than a hundred models, many of the submitted by leading American artists. It was executed by John Flanagan, New York sculptor and the designer of the Department of Agriculture World War Memorial.

The obverse of the new coin bears the portrait of George Washington in profile. Over the head appears the word "Liberty," and below it is stamped the date "1932." To one side is the motto "In God We Trust."

The principal design of the other side is a spread eagle with the inscription "United States of America" and "E Pluribus Unum" above, and "Quarter Dollar" below. An olive branch also appears below the eagle to complete a stately, dignified design. The new coin is exactly the same size, weight and fineness as the present quarter dollar.

The George Washington quarter is the first coin of regular issue ever to bear the image of the First President. It was authorized by special act of Congress making it possible for the Treasury to share in the Bicentennial Celebration.

As a coin of regular issue the George Washington quarter will replace the twenty-five cent piece now in circulation. No other quarter dollar will be coined for the next twenty-five years unless authorized by special act of Congress.

Minted at San Francisco, Denver and Philadelphia the coins will be placed

The Livestock Situation

Los Angeles, May 10.—Despite the tragic economic conditions which are being faced by farmers and stockmen, it must be admitted that the low prices for which farm products must be sold are forcing men to use their heads to a greater extent than usual.

DEPRESSION HAS SOME GOOD POINTS

REPORTS SHOW INCREASE IN SAVINGS AS PEOPLE BUILD UP SURPLUS

Even under existing circumstances, there are some stockmen and farmers who are making money. These people have decided within their own minds to beat the depression. They have whittled away at production costs, have developed new and better products and have found new outlets.

A pendulum never swings in one direction continuously; it may swing to a point where one might reasonably expect to see it make the complete circle, but it will be only so far then return.

A recent study completed by the University of California extension service showed that in certain groups of farmers and cattlemen operating under almost identical conditions, there was a wide variation in returns, through good business practice and close attention to details, it was found that in one community, a few dairymen made a substantial profit on each cow, whereas other dairymen lost money.

"We have seen it swing in the direction of peak prices for labor and materials within the past few years, and we are now witnessing a business depression in which it would appear that the next move will witness an entire collapse.

In almost every instance, it will be found that the man who is producing top quality products has the best chance to make money. Certainly this is true in the cattle business. Day after day on the livestock markets, it is noteworthy that the better quality cattle are the first to be sold and are in the best demand, naturally at a premium over the plain er quality cattle.

"Is it not reasonable to expect that the pendulum is now ready to return, with a final settling to rest at the happy medium where business can be transacted on a reasonably safe basis, when commodity prices are commensurate with the true value of the product, and where labor can and will receive a just compensation for work performed, 'were remarks heard within the past several days.

Many cattle feeders in the southwest during the past season made money on their operations. Usually, these were people who paid close attention to purchase of their feeder stock and who gave personal and expert supervision over the care and feeding of the stock.

While there has been suffering, due to the slackening in business and industry, the speaker pointed out bright spots which served to brighten up the picture considerably.

One of the largest chain stores in the west it at present conducting an advertising campaign to create a demand in their stores for good quality meats. Competition is so terrific among the stores that are selling at cut prices that there is little profit to be made in cash sales.

It is significant that in spite of the slowing up in business circles everywhere and the laying off of thousands of men by the industrial plants all over the country, the savings deposits of the nation have steadily increased, and only a month ago showed the largest in the history of the country.

No matter how much of any product that the farmer or merchant is able to sell, if there is no profit, energy and money is wasted. This store is after the trade that is willing to pay a fair price for a quality product. People have learned that value is the real thing to be sought, rather than the lowest price.

It is worth while to know too, that these deposits were not alone the savings and accumulations of the so-called wealthy. In some of the industrial centers where men have been thrown out of work, or are working part time on reduced pay, the savings deposits have actually increased.

MAKE 'EM LAUGH IS THEATRE IDEA

PEOPLE OF LIPSCOMB COUNTY MIGHT PROFIT BY THEATRICAL EXAMPLE

"Make 'em laugh." That's the word passed out to the members of the theatrical world for the coming season.

The wage earner has found that he can save money even though he is not making much, and while the day of high wage made him a much freer spender, he is now becoming more and more conservative and is accumulating a nest egg to draw upon in the future.

That's the word passed out to the members of the theatrical world for the coming season. Booking agents announce that business in the world of entertainment is looking up, and that there is a heavy demand for top notch comedians and vaudeville acts which offer plenty of laughs.

Statistics also reveal that the share holders in many of the larger corporations have increased considerably within the past several years. It is also of interest to note that this increase in the shareholders of these corporations has been drawn from the wage earners of the nation.

The public, they say, is fed up on hard times and depression and they want to hear about something else. It is thumbs down now on gags depending on depression to put them over. The public wants to hear jokes about other things and they want them strong enough to make them forget and laugh."

Many have taken advantage of bargain stock prices and invested in safe concerns which can reasonably be expected to weather the storm and in later years to pay profits on the money invested in the stock.

This announcement, together with the efforts on the part of the nations highest executives and business men and bankers to get money started to flow in the legitimate channels of trade, would seem to indicate a bright picture in store for the folks of this nation.

In pointing out the fact that many of the wage earners are investors, it was shown that in numerous instances the employees in the big corporations are investing their earnings in the mother company. Thus they are establishing gradually a feeling of confidence in the concerns for which they work, for if they have their money invested in the concern they will naturally want to see the concern prosper.

There are some who still cling to the belief that there is little hope for the future. Perhaps this is due to the fact that they have permitted themselves to dwell on the immediate present without even taking time to look forward to the possibilities which might be found for the correction of our difficulties.

There is no doubt that the lesson our people have learned in the past few years has been a hard one. Some have felt the pangs of hunger, and have spent nights of worry and sleeplessness, but after all they will come forth a much sturdier people a much more conservative people, and much happier and more contented people, and a nation stronger and more united than ever before.

There have been many suggestions for remedying the present conditions. Some have virtue, others have been foolish in the extreme. There is a way out, and it behooves each individual to look for that solution.

Our present misfortune. Perhaps it might be of some benefit if we would forget about them, or at least find some other topic to discuss when we meet our friends along the street. The word which has been passed out to the entertainers might bring forth some real results.

Perhaps most of us have given too much of our time to talking about in circulation through the regular channels of the Federal Reserve Banks and will appear simultaneously in all parts of the country.

A smile or a laugh is very contagious. Folks on the street avoid the grumbler, the knocker, or the hard-time champion. Folks like to be in company of those who can make them laugh. Maybe it would be in line for the people of Lipscomb County to learn to laugh and then our spirits would be bolstered up. We might be able to see things differently, and perhaps catch a glimpse of the cloud's silver lining. Try it.

Misses Gwen Pugh, Eva Greenfield, Oklahoma Tingley, Thelma Carter, Blossom Kearns, and Edith and Mae Kemp were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reger on Sunday.
