Services For May Supt. Held In Sweetwater

Malcolm Hardee (M.L.) Buchanan

Malcolm Hardee Buchanan, 60, of May and formerly of Nolan, died at 11:45 p.m. Tuesday at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth. He was the father of Abilene Christian University women's basketball player Bonnie Buchanan.

Mr. Buchanan had undergone five-hour heart surgery Tuesday afternoon.

Services were held at 10 a.m. Thursday at McCoy Chapel of Memories in Sweetwater.

The Rev. Ronnie Newton, pastor of Evangelical Methodist Church of Abilene officiated, assisted by the Rev. David Cason of Broadview Baptist Church in Abilene. Burial was in Slater's Chapel Cemetery.

Born Dec. 20, 1919, at Yantis, he married Wanda June Ensminger in Nolan Oct. 6, 1950. He had served as school superintendent at May for the past 22 years. Prior to that he had taught at Nolan and at Highland.

A Texas Tech graduate, he also attended SMU. He was a member of May First Baptist Church. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Bonnie Kay Buchanan and Rebecca Buchanan, both of Abilene, and Mona Lindley of May; two sons, Kyle Alan of Abilene and Kenny Steven of May; six sisters, Myrtle Robinson, Tina Pankey and Laura Robinson, all of Quitman, Jewell Lister of Nolan, Iris Heller of Grand Prairie and Sybil Lloyd of Mount Vernon; two brothers, Billy of Mesquite and Jordan of Midland; and two grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Bo Allen, Grayum Hart, Don Rhodes, Wayne Pitman, Jerry Pittman and Jerry Lindley.

Ground Breaking Services For New Dining Dining Hall

UNIVERSITY BAPTIST CHURCH
A ground breaking ceremony for the new dining hall at Big Country Baptist Assembly at Lueders, Texas, will be held on Saturday, November 22, at 3:00 p.m.

The construction of a new dining hall has been a joint effort shared by the Baptist Associations of Abilene, Callahan, Cisco, Sweetwater, Haskell-Knox, and West Central Associations. Together, a total of $310,800 has been pledged and given toward construction.

The present dining hall was built in 1932. With continued growth of the encampment facility, it has become necessary to accommodate growing needs. Last year, 5500 people participated in camp outings at Big Country Baptist Assembly. With completion of the new hall, 408 people can be seated and can handle groups up to 1,000.

The new building will be named the Lawrence and Ruth Trott Dining Hall. Lawrence Trott pastored Pleasant Hill and Colorado Bend churches in Coke County; Looney in Mitchell County; Champion and Lamar Street in Sweetwater; First Baptist Church in Levelland; First Baptist in Winters; and First Baptist at Denver City.

He served as district 17 missionary from 1954 to 1964 and was Double Mountain area missionary from 1965 to 1970.

His wife, Ruth, passed away on October 31, 1978.

General campaign chairman for the project is Marion (Cotton) Bridges. An officer at Citizens National Bank in Abilene, he was recently elected vice president of Texas Baptist Men. Bridges is a member of the disaster relief unit for Texas Baptist men.

Snow Falls In Area

Surprise was noted on the face of many Rising Star folks late Sunday evening as snow began falling around 6 p.m. A torrent of sleet was recorded prior to the snow fall. Large flakes fell—leaving from ½ to an inch of snow in places.

Light to moderate rain began falling Saturday. Amounts of from 1½ to 2 inches were recorded.

Skies remained cloudy all day Monday with intermittent snow falling through the morning.

The moisture was greatly appreciated as we have not had any measurable precipitation in several months. Farmers were temporarily halted in their peanut harvest. In a talk with Franklin Cox, manager of the Pioneer Farmers Co-Op, he stated that most of the irrigated runner crop is in and most peanuts being brought in now are dryland Spanish. He estimated the harvest at being 60 percent complete at this time.

The Bonus is now standing at $525.00 a ton on peanuts that are grading 50 and above and for those grading 49 and down, $400.00 a ton.

In speaking with Debbie Winfrey at Winfrey Feed and Peanut Company, she stated that the Bonus being paid to the farmers could go up at any time. She went on to say that they are notified by phone and at this stage—nobody knows just where it will end. The incliment weather has also brought a brief suspension in the harvest here.

Farmers were not the only ones affected by the weather this time—a number of citizens in town found themselves stuck in newly dug trenches made by the water and sewer contractors following the rain. The City was called on to lead a helping hand.

The rain was a welcome sight nonetheless.

Skies cleared Tuesday.

Senior Citizens Complete Remodeling At Center

On Thursday, November 13th, eighteen Chamber of Commerce members and twenty Senior Citizens were served lunch at the Center. The meat dish of chicken breasts was furnished by J & S Grocery. We thank you very much.

The STARBRITES, along with three boosters, made a rewarding trip to Eastland on Friday. We were the only entertainers and played to a very responsive audience. Several bought items for gifts at the Bazaar. Returning home about 1 o'clock, three of our more active ladies attended Art Class. I sneak a peak at their work occasionally. Ladies your pictures are looking beautiful. I hope to see them on display at the Center. After art, they came back to the Club where they were joined by Marion West. After a bite to eat, they worked until nine-thirty, extending the food bar and re-doing curtains. I think they are getting to be workaholics. They awakened me on Saturday morning with a phone call, to come help paint.

Luella and Edith painted the two rooms that we have turned into one—across the hall.

Come Thursday, November 20th for

another surprise.
The weather Monday, November 17th cancelled our trip to Baird. We are tough old birds—but not SNOW BIRDS!

State Comptroller Reports On City Sales Tax

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said rebates to Texas cities of the optional one-percent city sales tax climbed to more than a half billion dollars this year.

Bullock said payments of $80.1 million for November brings the yearly total to $26.9 million...nearly $60 million more than cities received during 1979.

Eastland's check this month will be $22,423.37, bringing the city's year-to-date total to more than $139 million in sales tax rebates.

Ranger will receive a check for $14.5 million this month, boosting the cities payments for the last 11 months to $94.6 million.

Cisco's $34.5 million payment for November will push that city's 1980 payments to $156.5 million for the year.

Rising Star's $4.4 million payment for the month of November also will push that city's 1980 payment to $18.8 million for the year.

The city's sales tax is collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly by the Comptroller's office to the cities where it is levied.

Second Edition Of Dallas Cowboys Wives' Cookbook Bigger And Better Than Last Year

"We've done it again!" said Mary Breunig, wife of Dallas Cowboys' middle linebacker, Bob Breunig, "and the all-new SECOND EDITION of the DALLAS COWBOYS WIVES' COOKBOOK AND FAMILY ALBUM is even bigger and better than last year's popular book."

"Bigger and better" means that this season's cookbook contains not only all new favorite Cowboy recipes, candid snapshots, and family sketches from the married players; but pictures, recipes, and sketches from the single players, rookies, and coaching staff as well.

The SECOND EDITION, which has just been released in the Metroplex, is a fundraising effort on the part of Mary and other Cowboy wives to benefit the children of Happy Hill Farm. All proceeds from the book go directly to the children. Located just southwest of the Metroplex, the Farm provides residential care and vocational training for boys and girls who suffer from severe learning disabilities and handicaps.

The wives have compiled the new recipes from their famous husbands, teammates, and coaches into a delightful volume that will please Cowboy fans and those who are just interested in good food. The "Family Album" section of the book contains pictures of the players, their families and friends. Fans will be surprised to learn that some of the single players are gourmet cooks. Tony Dorsett has a recipe for "Scallops Provence-Style." Not to be outdone, Jo Lynn White, wife of Quarterback Danny White, has shared her favorite "Whipped Short Breads" recipe.

Mary came up with the idea of compiling the cookbook two years ago. With the help of some of the other wives and the Children's Home staff, she produced one of the most popular cookbooks shown in the Metroplex last year. Several thousand copies were sold to Cowboy fans, scattered from Alabama to Alaska. The small Children's Home staff, which handled all of the packaging and mailing of the books, worked frantically trying to fill the orders before Christmas.

The Breunigs, who are among the Farm's most ardent supporters, have been helping the children almost from the beginning of the work some five years ago. Bob has served on the Board of Directors since 1977.

Most of the special children, who live at the Farm, come from the Metroplex. They have been referred by school counsellors, loyal psychiatrists and psychologists, and the juvenile justice system. Many of the children, due to their severe emotional and educational problems, have gotten into trouble.

Nestled in the hill country, about an hour's drive from the city, Happy Hill Farm is able to offer its children the best of both worlds. It is far enough away to provide a rural atmosphere, yet close enough to take advantage of all the recreational, educational, and cultural opportunities of the big city.

The Farm contains 266 acres, where the children work to grow much of their own food. They tend a large dairy goat herd and have a thriving egg business, with more than 700 laying hens. They also raise cattle, ducks, geese, and a variety of other small animals. The Farm's program contains a strong vocational emphasis. The children are being taught woodworking and other industrial arts in an effort to prepare them to enter the job market upon graduation from the Farm's Academy. The Farm and the Academy are licensed and approved by the appropriate state agencies. Along with Bob Breunig, other Board members from throughout the business community, assist the Executive Director, C. Edward Shipman, and his wife, Gloria, in operating the non-profit, charitable facility.

The Farm is multi-denominational. It does not receive Federal or state aid. Operating funds to sustain the program have come from hundreds of individuals throughout the state. Corporations and foundations in the area are assisting with capital funds for the Farm. Several new buildings have just been completed. Homes for seventy-six children are planned.

The Farm's Director, in assessing the success of last DALLAS COWBOYS WIVES' COOKBOOK not only provided needed income to assist us in caring for the children, but it let Cowboy fans all over the country know about the Farm. Since then, many of them have become involved in helping support our boys and girls. We are grateful to Bob and Mary Breunig, the other players and wives, and the Cowboy organization for helping us to make this year's SECOND EDITION an even greater success."

The cookbooks may be ordered directly from the Farm for $8.95, plus $1.00 for sales tax, postage, and handling. WRITE:

Ideas On Cutting Food Costs

Meat — a mainstay of the American diet — commands a large portion of the food dollar, so focus on your meat dollar to cut food costs, advises Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist.

A key in buying meat is the "cost per serving," she says. Ms. Haggard is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Because some cuts of meat have more bone and fat waste than others, "price per pound" is not a true guide to the cost per serving," she explains.

Remember, three ounces of lean, cooked meat is considered a standard adult serving.

COST PER SERVING
Different cuts of meat yield different numbers of servings, so you must have some "basic yields" in mind when you shop.

In other words, you must know how many servings a pound of a particular cut of meat will yield. Once you know that, then look at the price per pound. Only THEN will you know the price per serving.

It may sound complicated, but it's all very simple once you understand it.

Here are some examples to illustrate how simple it is: First, look at a pound of ground meat. That particular cut (ground meat) yields four servings per pound. If the ground meat costs one dollar per pound, then each of the four servings will cost 25 cents.

Now look at ribs — ribs only yield one and one half servings per pound. What if they only cost 75 cents per pound? They seem cheaper than ground meat, since the price is lower per pound, don't they? But remember, they only provide one and a half servings for each pound you buy — so the price per serving is about 50 cents.

That translates another way — the ribs cost twice as much per serving as the ground beef, even though their price "per pound" is lower.

Remember, it all depends on how much you get from each pound — so be sure to figure the "cost per serving."

Here are some guidelines on a few cuts of meat and their yields:

1) Boneless meat generally yield three to four servings per pound. These include ground beef, flank steak, round steak, stew meat and liver.

2) Meats with the bone in generally yield two to three servings per pound. These include most roasts and steaks.

3) Meats with considerable bone and fat provide only one to two servings per pound.

These include spare ribs, short ribs, porterhouse steaks and T-bone steaks.

MORE COST-CUTTING IDEAS
Here are some other cost-cutting ideas:

BUY SPECIALS — These can be great bargains if you have the freezer space to store them properly.

Meats can be stored in the freezer in the original packaging for up to several weeks.

Update On Nursing Home Facts

Mary J. Harmon, Activity Center Director of the Rising Star Nursing Center, has recently returned from some classes involving facts about nursing homes in Texas.

She learned a lot and wanted to share some facts with the public. Following is a digest of facts about nursing homes in Texas today, taken from CARING.

State licensing of nursing homes in Texas was first required in 1953 and licensing of Administrators was mandated by a law effective July 1, 1970.

Thus were accomplished the two foremost objectives of Texas Nursing Home Association, chartered in October of 1951 to improve facilities and raise standards of resident care. The Board of Licensure, appointed by the Governor, is composed of eight members of which three are Administrators of proprietary facilities and one Administrator of a non-proprietary facility. Other members are one educator, one physician and the Commissioner of the Texas Department of Health and Texas Department of Human Resources (or their designees).

Provisions of the Act are unique in the history of licensure. No one was exempt! There were no "grandfather" clauses or other customary loopholes through which anybody could be waived in. Without exception, all had to meet the same demanding requirements:

Basic 200 clock hours of study and lectures...plus, Two written examinations, one oral examination...plus, Minimum six months on-the-job apprenticeship of 40 hours per week under a preceptor certified by the Licensure Board, plus, perpetual 40 hour biennial study to keep license valid.

TNHA has taken ma-major responsibility for training of Administrators and personnel for all nursing homes in Texas. A year-round calendar of Educational Sessions is conducted statewide in cooperation with the Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators and the University of Texas at Austin.

At the operating level there are 1021 licensed nursing homes in Texas with a total of 103,069 beds. Of that number, 77,820 beds belong to the 766 current members of TNHA.

The American Health Care Association, with which all TNHA members are affiliated, has 7565 members with a total capacity of 706,041 beds. Recent figures compiled by AHCA provide the following:

The average age of nursing home residents is now 80 years, significantly, 70 percent are women...and they are alone. These individuals average three or more chronic conditions. 19 percent of the people in nursing homes have never married. 6 percent have no surviving next of kin. Residents are typically very poor. Up to 64 percent of them are on some form of public assistance. One-third of these individuals leave within one year after entering a nursing home, but 2-3rds of them stay from 1-5 years or longer. All patients admitted by physicians and their care is continued only upon physician's orders.

Clearly, people served by Nursing Homes are not a cross-section of the general population. THEY HAVE VERY SPECIAL NEEDS.

Nursing homes today are staffed and operated to meet those needs. In Texas the average size home is 101-bed capacity (the nation's average is 87). These facilities are the major elements in Medicaid health care programs funded jointly by the State and Federal government.

Service to patients-recipients under Medicaid, in Texas, embraces the total care concept. That care includes, under a fixed uniform rate set by the State Department of Human Resources, all such care regular, special or supplemental diets, non-legend drugs, medical accessories, equipment and supplies necessary to meet the current health needs of the patient-recipient. No charges are permitted by the nursing home to the patient-recipient, to his family, or any other source, over and above the fixed rate (except for oxygen, if prescribed in writing by the physician).

"Skilled Nursing Care" is individual care of complex nature requiring professional nursing techniques and or medical therapy of intensive degree. Special procedures, sterile techniques, and judgmental decisions by professional nursing personnel on a 24 hour a day basis must be evident to achieve the "Skilled" care rating. These homes are reimbursed at a rate of $33.67 per day or $1.40 per hour.

Another major type of nursing home is called the Intermediate Care Facility. It usually provides a combination of some nursing care with personal care, such as bathing, eating, dressing, taking medication—things which most people take for granted. In Texas, there are two levels of Intermediate Care.

A single nursing home may and often does provide more than one of the listed types of care. A home may have a wing devoted to extended care patients and a third for Intermediate Care patients. Public funds are available for patients in all types of facilities and programs. Of course, many patients or their families pay their own care.

A survey taken for the HEW Office of Nursing Home Affairs, substantiates the fact that Long Term Care is not and has not been inflationary. The study shows that operating costs actually exceed patient charges by an average of 34 cents per day!

The report explains that the profession is able to absorb the loss and have a net positive cash flow but only through depreciation and amortization charges.

A presidential Conference on inflation advised that nursing home care, while obviously delivering a larger proportionate share of services, expends only about 4 percent of the total health dollar (compared with 40 cents spent on hospital care.)

As the licensing agency, the State Health Department makes regular inspections at least one of which each year must be unannounced. The Department of Human Resources (formerly Welfare) dispenses payments. Facilities are, of course subject to all local building codes and inspections conducted by local fire safety, and sanitation authorities.

Motivated by a sincere desire to maintain nursing home standards at the highest professional level, this has implemented an effective system of Peer Review through a select social Committee functioning by appointment of its

Board of Directors. The Committee conducts desk reviews and on-site inspections in answer to all written requests and to complaints. The Committee functions, on request, in cases of non member homes as well as those of its own membership.

TNHA demonstrates its concern for quality operation by a careful screening of applicants, denying membership when any indication of lack of intent to comply with established standards is evident.

Militancy of the TNHA is evidenced in the language of a Resolution adopted in September, 1974 which:

a) reaffirms its goal of quality patient care in comfortable and safe environmental surroundings; and
b) calls upon physicians and families to relocate patients when they find that quality care is not being delivered; and
c) calls upon the State Board to revoke licenses of administrators lax in living up to professional standards; and

d) calls upon Department of Health and Welfare to revoke licenses of facilities when management fails to measure up to standards; and
e) offers full cooperation of its members in relocating patients away from substandard administrators or facilities.

Texas Nursing Home Association, in reviewing its past progress, views the future with optimism and pride in the record which shows that nursing home costs are in direct correlation with actual cost of living increases. By contrast, other health care costs have accelerated at a rate far beyond actual cost increases. TNHA and its members continue as front-line inflation fighters!

A feeling of confidence that TNHA's high ethical standards are succeeding gives encouragement that its licensed member facilities, through professional administrators, will continue to meet the growing needs of the future which nursing homes have proved they can best deliver.

TEXAS SYSTEM RANKS NUMBER 1 TO LEAD U.S. RATINGS

The federal-state program under which a majority of Texas Nursing Homes operate has been rated "best in the country" by a report read into the minutes of a Texas Department of Welfare meeting held at Austin in 1975.

The year-end review of publicly-funded programs in all states was published by National Features Syndicate in their Medicare and Medicaid Report from the nation's capital. The independent reporting organization said its evaluations are a summary of what "Washington officialdom thinks" about the manner in which public health assistance programs are administered.

The report ranked state programs on a scale of one to ten, the figure one (1) denoting excellence with larger numbers declining to a low of ten (10). Among all states and U.S. possessions operating under the Medicaid Title XIX program, Texas alone was classed number 1 in score.

Thursday, November 20, 1980

Field Dressing Critical To Successful Deer Hunt

UVALDE - Stalking and shooting a prize buck (or doe) is a big part of the challenge deer hunting offers sportsmen. But there's a lot more to it than just "aim and shoot."

For the beginning or inexperienced hunter, the sequence of events occurring immediately after the kill can well mean the difference between taking home a handsome wall mount or returning with a severely butchered-up carcass and perhaps little else to show for the effort.

Yet, performing this critical function correctly isn't as complicated as one might tend to assume, says Dr. Dwight Guynn, Texas Agricultural Extension Service wildlife specialist headquartered in Uvalde.

After the deer has been killed, promptly tag and prepare it for field dressing by propping the animal on its back, using rocks or other available objects.

The initial step, according to Guynn, is to remove external sex organs with a sharp knife. Next, cut down to the pelvic bone. Turning the knife blade up, use your other hand to hold the belly away from the intestinal organs and cut up to the breastbone.

However, avoid cutting the skin any further forward than the middle of the breastbone if the head is to be mounted, Guynn stresses.

Continuing the process, hold intestines to one side while cutting the thin layer of muscle, or diaphragm, which separates the intestines from the chest area. Reach into the rib cage and cut loose the windpipe and esophagus as far forward as possible. Grasp the windpipe and esophagus with both hands, pulling those organs out. The intestines can now be pulled free of the pelvic region.

Next, Guynn says to cut the skin and muscles around the anus, being careful not to puncture the bladder. Then pull the intestine forward and free of the carcass.

In these few short minutes, the hunting cycle is complete. The animal has been shot and field dressed and is ready to be hung to cool.

JSince the skin can be removed easier while the carcass is still warm, you may want to consider skinning the animal soon after field dressing.

If the head is to be mounted, Guynn suggests hanging the animal by its hind legs and skinning from the hind legs downward. You may want to consult a local taxidermist on the best method for skinning the head and neck of your trophy.

Guynn advises leaving the skin free of cuds forward of the front legs so the taxidermist will have enough hide to make a good mount. He says it's also a good idea to salt or freeze the head and skin until it is delivered for mounting.

But if the head is not to be mounted, hang the carcass by its head and skin it from the neck downward. The Texas A&M University System specialist says the hide is easier to remove in this position. Next, cut the skin loose from around the neck, around the legs and down the inside of each leg. Grasp the skin in back of the head and pull down firmly with both hands.

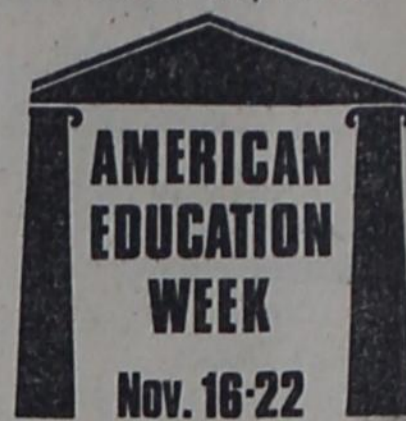

Finally, hang the skinned carcass by its hind legs in shade to cool and age. If hung outside, use a protective covering to keep insects off the carcass.

The carcass can now be cut to preference or it can be commercially processed.

Handling techniques after the kill will greatly influence final meat quality. Guynn strongly encourages field dressing the animal soon after being shot and hanging the carcass so it will cool thoroughly. He says skinning the animal soon after field dressing seems to enhance meat quality slightly. But if the animal must be transported or aged before processing, it's best to leave the skin intact to prevent the outer surface from drying out.

Texas white-tailed deer season opens at daylight Nov. 15 and closes, in most counties, at sundown on Jan. 4. Good hunting!

First Baptist Church

What are our odds for success?

When compared with some people, dare we as a Christian make any excuse for not achieving. Why is it that we give in too easily?

The Dallas Morning News some time ago reported the following story:

Wayne Van Deusen is a nineteen year-old who is fighting against the odds. He was born with one partially functioning kidney. He has had fifteen operations including a transplant, and now his bones are so brittle they are beginning to crumble. The brittleness is caused by the drug he takes to prevent his body from rejecting the transplanted kidney.

What is he doing in his spare time? He is preparing for medical school at the University of Florida. He is working part-time as a laboratory assistant on a research project in which the researchers hope to find a substitute for the drug which is destroying his bones. And he spends time with young patients who are undergoing dialysis and preparing for kidney transplants by giving them reassurance.

"I want to become a doctor so much," he says, "I am going to overcome any and all problems."

All of us have problems. The thing that determines our success is not the presence or absence of problems. It is the way we face those problems. Some withdraw in self-pity, saying, "Why has this happened to me?" Others like Wayne Van Deusen face it with courage saying, "What can I do about it?"

When I read this, I am challenged as a Christian. I want to be at my best, achieve what I should, do what needs to be done now!

With God as my strength, wisdom and goal setter, I cannot set limits upon myself. R.D. Williams, Pastor

Seventh Day Adventist

If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise. Gal. 3:29.

Of Abraham it is written that "he was called the friend of God," the father of all them that believe."

It was a high honor to which Abraham was called, that of being the father of the people who for centuries were the guardians and preservers of the truth of God for the world-of that people through whom all the nations of the earth should be blessed in the advent of the promised Messiah.

Abraham was honored by the surrounding nations as a mighty prince and a wise and able chief. He did not shut away his influence from his neighbors. His life and character, in their marked contrast with those of the worshippers of idols, exerted a telling influence in favor of the true faith. His allegiance to God was unswerving, while his affability, and benevolence inspired confidence and friendship, and his unaffected greatness commanded respect and honor.

His religion was not held as a precious treasure to be jealously guarded and enjoyed solely by the possessor. True religion cannot be thus held; for such a spirit is contrary to the principles of the gospel. While Christ is dwelling in the heart, it is impossible to conceal the light of His presence, or for that light to grow dim. On the contrary, it will grow brighter and brighter as day by day the mists of selfishness and sin that envelop the soul are dispelled by the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness.

The people of God are His representatives upon the earth, and He intends that they shall be lights in the moral darkness of this world. Scattered all over the country, in the towns, cities and villages, they are God's witnesses, the channels through which He will communicate to an unbelieving world the knowledge of His will and the wonders of His grace. It is His plan that all who are part-takers of the great salvation shall be missionaries for Him. The piety of the Christian constitutes the standard by which worldlings judge the gospel. Trials patiently borne, blessings gratefully received, meekness, kindness, mercy, and love, habitually exhibited, are the lights that shine forth in the character before the world.

Taken from "God's Amazing Grace", written by E.G. White and submitted by Detta Webb.

COMMENTARY By Myrtle Owen

The Great Invitation: Matthew 11:28, 29, 30, Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. Jesus came to give a tired, weary world rest from its heavy burden of sin. Making all things right with God is the starting point of restful living. Forgiveness brings inward rest and peace. Rest in God is not only an experience we receive by faith through salvation, but it is also a condition of living. It is a definite way of life that can be applied to all circumstances of our daily lives. God's rest includes rest from worry and fear. If we are doing all right today, but fear that tomorrow will be filled with trouble, we are not abiding in God's rest. Resting in the Lord is having faith in Him, being confident that He will take care of us and work all things out for our good. Bible scholars assume that Jesus served the people of Nazareth and surrounding communities as a carpenter for a number of years. There were probably many yokes among the orders that He processed. It is impossible to imagine that Jesus ever made a poorly fitted yoke, or one that galled the shoulders of a dumb oxen. Jesus compared the burdens and cares of life to yokes. If you sometimes feel that your yoke is hard or that your burdens are so heavy you wonder how you can go on, remember, a yoke was never meant for one but two. He who cared enough for the oxen to fashion their yokes carefully, cares infinitely more for you and me. When our yoke was fashioned, Christ meant to share it with us. He is our yoke-fellow. This does not mean that we shall have no more cares or problems. But as He takes His part of the yoke, His grace is sufficient and lightens the load.

Farm And City Week Focus On "Partners In Progress"

This year's Farm-City Week focuses on farm and city people together as partners in progress as the key to the future.

Farm-City Week, Nov. 21-27, is sponsored by the Farm-City Council and Kiwanis International.

"Farm and city people depend on each other for products and services that are essential to modern business and living," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, economist in marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "One group can't live without the other. Together they make the best food and fiber team in the world."

A basic ingredient for the economic, political and social success of a country is a highly productive agricultural base, believes Anderson. This gives a country the capacity to not only feed its own people but also to export for economic gain as well as for humanitarian purposes.

"One U.S. farm worker now produces enough food for some 45 people at home and another 25 overseas," says the economist. "At the turn of the century, one American farm worker could feed only seven people.

A dozen eggs, a sack of potatoes, a slab of bacon, a steak, a chilled fresh fryer, a carton of milk and hundreds of other items can be bought at almost any food store at almost any time and at a comparatively reasonable cost--reasonable, that is, compared with the cost of most other things.

"While the overall cost of living has advanced 13 percent from a year ago, food prices in the grocery store has increased less than 10 percent," Anderson explains. "Americans, on average, spend 17 percent of their income on food compared to 45 percent for people in Russia."

One out of every 25 Texans is a farmer or rancher, yet 30 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with agricultural production and selling of food and fiber products. Thousands of businesses are active in food and fiber production, transportation, processing, packaging, storing, advertising, distribution and other activities associated with feeding, clothing and, to some extent, housing people, notes the economist.

"In Texas, movement of food and fiber from field to factory to the family table furnishes jobs and income for about a fourth of the working force," points out Anderson.

The future for continued growth in Texas agriculture is bright, he believes. Demand for food and fiber from countries overseas is growing. And, with good export facilities, the state's agricultural industry is ready to expand its share of the export market. This means more jobs and income for both rural and urban residents.

"No doubt, agriculture makes a large contribution to the Texas' affluence. Because quality food is available at reasonable prices, a large part of our income is available to buy other things," notes Anderson.

Drama Director Janis Myer today announced the upcoming Cisco Junior College production of The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds. The play, written by Paul Zindel, is a winner of the Pulitzer Prize, the Obie Award, and the New York Drama Critics Circle Award as the Best American Play of the 1969-70 season.

One of off-Broadway's greatest successes this powerful and moving study of an embittered, vindictive widow and her two young daughters has been hailed as one of the most significant and affecting plays of our time.

The story concerns frowsy, acid-tongued Beatrice Hunsdorfer, who supports herself and her two daughters by taking in a decrepit old boarder. Beatrice wreaks petty vengeance on everyone about her. One daughter, Ruth, is a pretty but highly strung girl subject to convulsions, while the younger daughter, Matilda, plain and almost pathologically shy, has an intuitive gift for science.

Encouraged by her teacher, Tillie undertakes a gamma ray experiment with marigolds which wins a prize at her high school--and also brings on the shattering climax of the play. Proud and yet jealous Beatrice can only maim when she needs to love, and deride when she wants to praise. Tortured, acerbic, slatternly, she is as much a victim of her own nature as of the cruel lot which has been hers. And yet, as Tillie's experiment proves, something beautiful and full of promise can emerge from even the most barren, afflicted soil. This is the timeless lesson of the play, and the rest of its moving power and truth.

The cast of Marigolds includes Lou Jane Qualls as Beatrice Hunsdorfer, Tracy Freed as Tillie, Kathy Powell as Ruth, Marie Ann Reston as Nanny, and Laura Jeffcoat as Janice Vickery.

The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds will be presented November 20, 21, and 22 at 7:00 p.m. in the Roof Garden Dinner Theater of the Laguna Hotel in Cisco. Tickets are $7.50 for dinner and performance. Reservations are required and may be made by calling Cisco Junior College at (817)442-2567.

WORD of GOD

HAVE YOU MADE YOUR DECISION FOR CHRIST?

If not, how about doing it right now? Just pray:

"Dear God, thank you for sending Jesus Christ to die on the cross that I might be saved. Please forgive me for all my sins, cover me with the blood of Jesus, and free me from the bondage of my old nature, that I might find life here on earth with thee and life eternal in the world to come, in Jesus name, Amen.

Thank you Jesus! Praise you Lord! Thank you for coming into my heart! I love you, Jesus!"

If you prayed that prayer, tell someone about it and attend church regularly where the Word of God is taught. God bless!

Have you accepted Jesus as your personal Saviour? Well, there is more, much more! - you can be filled with His Holy Spirit.

But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty:

Of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption:

That, according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

GUEST EDITORIAL

"THE BIBLE: FOUNDATION FOR A FREE, DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY"

By Mrs. Dana Robinson
Abilene Christian University
Abilene, Texas
Winner of the 1980
National Bible Week Editorial Contest

An identity crisis confronts the United States today. This crisis, characterized by a lost conception of who we are and where we are going, has been fed at home by a failing economy, political scandals, violence and existential philosophy. Overseas, our flag is destroyed, our citizens are held hostage, and our allies have lost confidence in us.

In the face of such a dilemma, our only hope for the future lies in the recovery of the principles on which this nation was founded—principles firmly rooted in biblical and Judeo-Christian soil.

The Bible played an integral role in molding the European mind during the Protestant Reformation and the Puritan migration to America. The influence of the Bible on the Puritan images, principles and laws is discussed in The Puritan Heritage: America's Roots in the Bible, by Joseph Gaer and Ben Siegel.

A scriptural concern for the poor, orphaned and mistreated contributed to the Puritan view of the equality of all men. Other colonial motivations by these biblical doctrines include the Virginia Anglicans, Scottish Presbyterians and Quakers.

The Pilgrims also made scripture a political and religious guide. The Pilgrims' Mayflower Compact, completely democratic in nature, was drafted "in the name of God" and was patterned after God's covenant with Israel. John Quincy Adams described this compact as the "genesis of American democracy."

Ideological, political and social changes eventually destroyed the Puritans' theological domination, but their moral code—the Bible—endured.

Men felt bound by divine law to safeguard individual rights and liberty. Even those American leaders who were deists were exposed by respected pulpit orators to the Bible's political doctrines regarding the equality of man.

Phrases from the Declaration of Independence such as "the Laws of Nature," "Nature's God," "equality," "unalienable Rights" and "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness" were common in Boston churches years before the revolution.

Twenty-five years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the citizens of Philadelphia purchased a bell and inscribed it with these words from Leviticus 25:10, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

The Liberty Bell, long silenced by history, still rings its message of freedom in the hearts of men today. And the message sharply divides the globe into two philosophies regarding the nature of man.

One philosophy, Communism, is a religion of materialism in which the individual exists only for the good of the state. On the other hand, our country began with the faith that men were created in the image of God and are therefore of intrinsic worth.

The roots of this heritage, found in both the law of Moses and the Declaration of Independence, set us apart from other powers in this world. If we forget these principles on which our nation was founded, we concede the victory, and our struggle with Communism degenerates into a battle of crass materialism. Let us not surrender our biblical heritage.

Judging for 1980 Student Editorial Contest was conducted by the Society of the Silurians, professional organization of New York area news men and women. The four judges were: James H. Driscoll, secretary, Society of the Silurians; Helen M. Staunton, Associate Editor, Columbia Features; Jo Coppola, senior staff writer, M. D. Magazine; George Dugan, retired religious writer and editor of The New York Times.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER

By Michael A. Guido, Metter, Georgia

William Booth, the founder of the Salvation Army asked, "How wide is the world?"

"Twenty-five thousand miles," answered an officer.

"Then," said Booth, "we must grow until our arms get around it!"

Nothing less than the globe for God would do. He was determined to take the Word to the world. For 2 Peter 3:9 states, "The Lord is not slack concerning His promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

The will of God to convert is as wide as His will to create. No one is outside His purpose, and no one should be outside our prayers and our passion.

A godly person is not concerned only with his salvation. He is just as much concerned with the salvation of others.

Let the God of love so overflow your heart that you will overflow with the love of God for everyone, everywhere in the whole world. Make love grow from your heart to their hearts.

Tips On Toys

Helpful Hints for Fun, Safety and Economy

SAFETY SENSE

You can make your children's world a little safer, if you help teach them how to play with and care for their toys.

Toy manufacturers today take great care to assure that the toys they create are safe for the children intended to use them. Manufacturers say they consider this their social responsibility, and it's also good, basic business practice. Toys, reports the Toy Manufacturers of America, are subject to extensive testing during design and development, throughout production and even after manufacture.

Such careful manufacturing is not enough, however. Toys must be properly used and maintained as well. Since large numbers of toys are now being bought year-round, it's increasingly important for parents and other adults to be their own safety experts on toys.

Children should be taught safe play habits. Adults should set good examples. Look for and carefully read directions. Share them with the child. Make sure he or she understands how to properly play with the toys. Special attention given to directions can mean not only increased safety, but increased economy. The toy may last longer.

Try to provide adequate storage space for a child's toys—a place that protects playthings from damage and people from injury caused by toys left lying around. Keep toys suitable for older children, but that are potentially dangerous to younger ones, out of their reach.

Spot check toys for minor damage. Often a spot of glue, a tightened bolt, a few drops of oil, a bit of tape, a stitch or two, will prevent further damage and possible accident.

Don't allow toys to remain outdoors overnight. Rain and dew can cause rust.

Children can learn a lot from their toys. Good safety habits can be one of the most important lessons.

National Bible Week: November 23-30

National Bible Week's interfaith campaign to encourage study of the Bible deserves support from all Americans, says Howard C. Kauffmann, president of Exxon Corp. and chairman of the 40th National Bible Week.

Howard C. Kauffmann

A nonsectarian observance, National Bible Week serves to remind Americans that studying the Bible can be a stimulating experience. The Week has been sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee since 1941.

To call attention to this year's observance, a comprehensive mass media campaign has been launched. This campaign includes radio, TV, newspaper and magazine ads and bill boards along with an editorial contest for journalism students, and a photography contest.

The Committee (LNBC) is disseminating free materials to thousands of civic clubs, youth organizations, businesses, libraries, bookstores, labor unions, Armed Forces chaplains and other groups throughout the nation participating in the observance. Materials may be ordered from John F. Fisler, Executive Director, Laymen's National Bible Committee, 815 Second Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Observances will begin with an Annual Bible Week Luncheon Nov. 21 at New York's Waldorf-Astoria, with Thomas L. Phillips, chairman of Raytheon Co., presiding.

Observances will be conducted in over 3,000 communities by civic, youth and other groups, while government proclamations will be issued by mayors and governors in the U.S. and its territories.

According to Committee officials, the purpose of the week is to make Americans aware of the Bible's importance, motivate study and reaffirm the contemporary importance of the biblical principles which undergird America's free, democratic society.

IWU Reflections In Perspective

By I. Will Ussery

The sun-drenched city of Valera, Venezuela nestles in a bowl-shaped high valley in the foothills of the Eastern branch of the Andes mountains. Its climate compares favorably to that of Los Teques, except that the annual rainfall is far less. It is also at a slightly lower elevation. But it is a lovely, pleasant little state capital skirting which on the northwest-to-southwest flows the Rio Frio.

Founded originally by the Spanish conquistadores, Valera grew, gradually, to a city of some 25,000 inhabitants. Its growth paused when travel from Caracas and other centers to the northwest took the Pan American highway which bypassed Valera by several miles. But alongside the remaining and original 'Carretera Nacional' (National Highway) was built, in the edge of the city a lovely and perfectly appointed motel where we spent a most restful and enjoyable week-end.

After a very quiet night, we went for a stroll to try to find the center of the city. That far out, few of the streets were paved, but there were paved sidewalks along the most of the way. And along one of the paved stretches of walk we passed a lady who was tending her lovely flower garden behind a wrought iron grillwork garden wall. She smiled kindly and most graciously greeted us as we walked past.

Up the street a little way two boys were 'coasting' down the slight incline on the walk on the other side of the street. Their vehicle was a handmade 'scooter' consisting of little more than a few boards riding on wheels of questionable origin. But it picked up considerable speed before reaching the bottom of the slope. From that point, the lads 'towed' the cart back to the top of the block for another run. They insisted that my wife and two daughters take a ride with them, as it was comfortably a two-passenger flyer (if the two people were not very portly).

They took advantage of the hospitality of the boys, which appeared to please them, no end. The lads were rewarded with a coin when the fun was over. The fun consisted of one ride, only, for each of the three ladies.

Crossing again to the side of the street from whence we'd begun our stroll, we met a couple who were obviously 'montaneros' (mountain people). Scrubbed and washed until they virtually glowed, they were a smiling, kindly pair. She was dressed in an ankle-length skirt of faded print bodice to match and an equally faded but spotlessly clean ruffled sunbonnet. His garb consisted of faded blue bib overalls and shirt, but equally spotless. His hat was somewhat nondescript felt, and was removed when he spoke to us. They paused to ask us if we were attending 'the fiesta'. Apparently there (was some sort of local fair going on toward the center of the city ('en la plaza').

Now there was something else unusual about that plain, humble, but appealingly attractive couple. The man was holding a length of what appeared to be hand-spun rope, attached to the other end by a sort of harness was a pig! He was leading the pig, while his mate urged the animal along with an occasional tap of a willow switch.

Hesitantly, the man asked if we could direct him to 'el matadero', the local slaughterhouse. We apologized for our ignorance, which could be explained by the fact that we lived in Las Maroches, far to the west. But perhaps the lady who was still tending her flowers could help them. With profuse expressions of thanks, they proceeded down the street, the pig complaining now and then. The lady in the flower garden met them at the garden wall, and from her gesticulations it was apparent that she directed them to 'el matadero'. That pig couldn't have weighed in at more than forty pounds, however, and all.

A well known (in diplomatic circles, at least) Arabist has said... "Upon meeting an Arab, smile. If possible, speak to him in his language. If in doubt—shake hands." I've found that advice highly appropriate among almost all people. Especially that part about the smile...and the greeting in his language. But I can't help but wonder how much the montanero pair got for their pig.

Texas Sesquicentennial Commission Plans Logo Contest

The Texas Sesquicentennial of 1986, Texas' 150th birthday celebration, is on the way, and all Texans are invited to the party. Preparations for the birthday are being kicked off with a statewide contest to devise an official logo -- a simple and readily-identifiable symbol, or trademark, of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

The logo contest is one of the first activities of the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission. Created by the 66th legislature in 1979, the Commission is charged to "coordinate celebrations of the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence as a Republic and progress as a state." These celebrations will highlight the "historic, economic, cultural, environmental and social aspects of Texas."

During the planning stages of the Sesquicentennial, the Commission functions as a clearinghouse of information between state and local levels. The Commission will also work to encourage state, national, and international participation, to develop standards for sanctioning local groups, and to plan for the creation of commemorative products, such as stamps and medallions. The Commission publishes a special newsletter of the Sesquicentennial, the Texas National Dispatch. The Dispatch is a revival of a newspaper published in the early days of the Texas Republic at Washington-on-the-Brazos, and will be available free of charge. The contest to develop a visual symbol, trademark, or logo, of the Sesquicentennial is open to all Texans. Contest rules are as follows: (1) Only one entry per person; (2) All are eligible except Commission members, staff, and their immediate families; (3) Designs must be submitted on one side of a plain, white 8 1/2" x 11 paper; (4) Entrants' names, addresses, phone numbers, and school affiliations (if any) are to be printed on the back; (5) All entries must be postmarked no later than San Jacinto Day, April 21, 1981 and the winner and runners-up will be announced on May 5, 1981 in Austin.

For further information about the logo contest, the Texas National Dispatch, and the Texas Sesquicentennial in general, Texans may write: Texas Sesquicentennial Commission, P.O. Box 19860, Southeast Station, Austin, Texas 78760.

AUTOMOBILITY Facts for Motorists

COURTESY CAN EQUAL SAFETY

You can get where you want to go in good time—and in a good state of mind, without abuse to yourself, your car or your ego, if you follow the Golden Rule. So say the experts at the Automobility Foundation, a nationwide non-profit organization intended to help preserve the driving public's freedom of mobility. The Foundation has some suggestions on how to drive courteously, safely and comfortably.

Experts advise you to drive in the slower lane when traffic permits and let those who want to go faster do so.

1. Pull over, when possible, for faster traffic that comes up behind you in the left lane. If someone refuses to move over for you, try to hold your temper and find a safe way around at the first opportunity.
2. Use your indicator, or give the proper hand signal whenever you're planning a turn.
3. Let people out, one or two at a time, from entrance ramps, side streets and even parking lots when it's practical to do so. Wave "thanks" when people do the same for you.
4. Try not to cut others off in traffic and don't let it bother you when someone does it to you. According to Wayne Gregory of the National Safety Council, "It's not just reducing speed or wearing seat belts that will reduce accidents... there's also 'driver behavior.'" Fully 85 percent of all accidents on America's roads involve driver error. A little care, courtesy and cooperation can help keep you out of such statistics.
