

out of Bobbie's Notebook ...

Have any of you ever felt like this?:

I'VE SAID "YES" once too often

Oh, GOD, I've done it again, I've said "Yes" once too often and now I'm stuck with this extra job.

How will I ever manage to accomplish everything? All these committees, all these meetings, all these telephone calls.

Right now I don't see where there'll be enough time in the day or night. I don't see where my strength is coming from.

Only you will help me. You will give me strength. You will give me the intelligence to manage. You, who created time, will even give that.

Now let me quietly thank you for this challenge. If I'm a fool to take on so much all right, you, who made me so, will not leave me stranded. You will fortify, you will supply my needs.

Bless the people with whom I'll be involved. Bless the job I've undertaken, and I know it will prove worthy of the efforts I bring to it.

I spoke with our football coach, Frank Gray, about this year's team the other day. Coach Gray said he has 28 boys working out: 2 seniors, 11 juniors, 10 sophomores and 5 freshmen. He said he was well pleased up to now although they looked a little sluggish Monday afternoon. This was their first afternoon workout and believe me it gets pretty hot out on that football field. I was just there a few minutes taking pictures, but sure was warm!!

Happy Birthday Vickie!!

J.R. Hogan underwent surgery Monday in Hendricks Memorial Hospital, Abilene. He is doing as well as can be expected. His room number is 514.

Mrs. G.S. Clinkscates of San Diego, Calif. her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Evitts and two sons, Randy and Mark of San Marcos, Calif. visited Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Freeman last week. Mrs. Clinkscates and Mrs. Freeman are sisters. They made a trip to Tyler to visit relatives. While there, the men fished and the women shopped.

"Thar's Gold In Them Thar Years"

By Ben A. Butler

At the turn of the century a famous French philosopher, Henri Bergson, proposed a concept of life as a continuous creation. The past endures, he said. It is never quite lost because the past "gnaws into the future which swells as it advances." That is egghead to mean that every moment of our lives receives an impact of experience which in the aggregate fashions the character, and the mind, of the individual. You can think in analogy of a shovel being pushed along the earth and gathering a load as it advances. We are never quite the same person from one day to the next.

The thesis offers explanation for a number of human vagaries - why, for instance, we react differently to the same stimulus on different days. It also offers an interesting viewpoint from which to contemplate one's reactions to retirement.

The experience of leaving a profession, job or business career in which one has been regularly occupied for many years can be traumatic, or it can be a more or less smooth transition from one kind of employment to another. It all depends upon what the shovel accumulated as it was pushed along in the productive years of one's life.

A great many people who reach the age of retirement and are "turned out to pasture" discover themselves in a suddenly helpless, even humiliating position. Accustomed to the demands of the daily work, they find themselves abruptly free of the discipline of schedules and goals and the old reassuring rhythm of the day vanishes in discords of confusion. There is a feeling of uselessness, perhaps a loss of self respect in the thought that one no longer exercises a meaningful responsibility in the work - a day world one is suddenly a "has been", an old grad doomed to sit in the stands, trying to recall achievements that everyone else has forgotten while down on the field a new generation plays the game vigorously to the same inevitable and futile end.

It is the loss of a sense of contribution that is potentially most damaging to the personality of the retired person. And yet, as Mr. Bergson said, "to mature is to go on creating oneself endlessly."

There is no reason at all that the act of stepping from the regimen and responsibility of one employment into the great freedom of choice and movement that retirement offers should be the end of the creative process. There is a vast and viable wealth in the gray hairs of this nation, but as in all human progress the availability and use of that wealth depends upon the individual - upon how he "pushes the shovel" during those cumulative years before Social Security.

What I found most disturbing at the outset of retirement was an anxiety about getting something done. The thing I should do, of course, was not clear; it boiled down to the need of making "myself" effective. The influence of many years of enslavement to deadlines - covering a news story on time, gathering advertisements, getting to press promptly - cannot easily be erased. These and other habits poured into that vast well of the subconscious out of which arise the mysteriously processed humors and caprices that affect one's conscious living were the contents of that "shovel" pushed along.

The extra hour of sleep, so logically available, became a nagging sin; there was an almost irresistible compulsion to get up, to attach oneself to a job, to a responsibility, no matter how insignificant, if only to gain the forgiveness of

Area-Wide Youth Rally Sat., Aug. 26

"One Way" will be the theme of an area-wide inter-denominational youth rally which will take place at Lakewood Recreation Center on Highway 36 between Rising Star and Cross Plains on Saturday night, August 26. The Rally, from 7 - 11 p.m. is sponsored by The First Baptist Church of Rising Star.

Harry Matthews, music and youth director of First Baptist Church of Goldthwaite, will be the featured speaker. Singing, games, special music, and Christian fellowship will be some of the highlights of the rally.

"This youth rally is inter-denominational", according to Mrs. John Kelley, youth director of First Baptist Church. We want to give a special invitation to all the young people of Rising Star and area to come and be a part of this fellowship."

Rev. Monte Mills is pastor of the church.

the Lord.

I could find some relief in the typewriter by the desk, the principal tool of my life employment, but what to write? The old compulsion of a deadline was lacking. It has been my experience that the need to write is the surest incentive to finding something to write about.

There was a yard to be mowed, and a variety of ideas for employment that beckoned hopefully. Gradually I have worked out an adjustment as satisfying as anything I have ever done. The Freudian principle that a complete identification of the source of our anxieties is curative does have its influence.

In the process I have further confirmed some theories about the emotional content of life, theories which I think more accurate than all the opinions and columns of comment about the social and political condition of our nation which pour such a riotous flood of contemporary philosophy through the well-worn canyons of our national press.

Basically, I think, contentment is more concerned with self respect. And self respect grows from contribution, from one's own conviction of importance. In recent years the main direction of our national political faith has moved toward the ideal of dependency - what the individual may expect to receive as his right. Most of the underlying stimuli for dissent on the part of youth and minority groups - and we are all minorities in some sense - traces to the fact that the average person, young or old, does not in this highly computerized day, feel a saving sense of contribution, and hence cannot gain a conviction of importance and self-respect in a recognizable relationship. Patriotism grows from a healthy egotism.

I think the "issues" being now debated in the national political campaign are largely "falsies" imposed upon an idealism that only nominally exists. Not too many people really care too much about the war in Vietnam except as it may pose a prospect of higher taxes or military service or directly challenge certain beliefs embedded in their egos. War became a condition in human experience many thousands of years ago because mankind has a habit of eating, and even today the eating is more important than peace. That is something to be considered when we ponder the continuing crime of mass murder and how it can be stopped.

Lakewood Recreation Center has new managers. They are Charlie and Johnnie Byrd. The Byrds moved here from Fort Worth, but have previously lived in this area. Mrs. Byrd was born and raised in May, Texas. They have two married daughters, Mrs. Larry Sinclair and Mrs. Dan King both of Fort Worth. The Byrds say they are "striving to keep the golf course and other facilities in good condition and will soon have a complete line in the pro shop to choose from." They also commented that they have met some awfully nice people in the short time here and are looking forward to meeting many more.

The really vital issue is concerned with the rewards of living, with opportunity for the individual to gain from the discovery and employment of his own talents; not with what we can get, but with what we can do. In that await contentment and human dignity. To be creative person! To mean something in the fabric of human society; in some very personal, if only tiny respect, to be distinctive. The discovery of self is the discovery of God.

If our young people, our various racial and social minorities - and our majorities - would stop feeling resentful and sorry for themselves, and would instead devote themselves to making valid contributions of their talents to the sum of the national welfare we should approach a true integration. This includes for our elderly and retired generations. But they can make no creative contribution if retirement becomes merely a period of aimless and recipient living. It can indeed, be a time of golden and rewarding years, but only if we put into our preparations for living it as much and earnest planning as we prepare for gaining it. That, it seems to me, is a sound teaching of the moment.

CARD of THANKS

As most of you know I had the privilege of doing my student teaching in Rising Star under Mr. H.L. Geye. This was a very good experience, one that we certainly enjoyed.

The agriculture department is excellent here. Mr. Geye does an outstanding job. The first experience with his students was at college. The next was at Rising Star as a student teacher. Both times were a pleasure.

The students from Mr. Geye's department have no trouble in college; at least the ones I had had experience with. When I taught at R.S.H.S. I found the students to be advanced far above the state level average. So in essence, Mr. Geye is doing an outstanding job.

I received my Bachelor of Science Degree Sunday, August 20. I wish that all the many friends I have made could have been there because as I was presented this degree I knew that there were so very many who deserved to receive part of it.

I am now enjoying a new role in our school system as science teacher for the fifth through eighth grade.

You hear so much nowadays about the relationship between the teacher and parent, but have you actually stopped to consider how very important this is? Have you ever become very upset with a school problem involving your daughter or son and gone rushing to school quite angry?

If each teacher and parent could get off on the right foot at the beginning of school, discuss the individual needs of their child and work together toward these, there would rarely be a case of a disgruntled parent or teacher.

I certainly hope to meet each parent of my students if I have not already done so.

Rising Star Public Schools system is one we can all be proud of. There, of course, is always room for improvement, but this can only be done with the help of each individual.

Thank you all once again for the pleasant school term last year and for one that seems to be just as nice, if not better, this year.

Church of Christ Rising Star

It is humorous the strange way that what we are trying to say often comes out all wrong. This happens in conversation, but it also occurs in public utterance. For instance, a preacher was announcing that the worship service would be concluded by Brother Woods who would lead the prayer. At least this was what the preacher was trying to say. He told the congregation, however, "Now Brother Prayer will lead us in the woods."

A group our young people attended an "Evening in Gospel Song" program at the Eastland Church of Christ, Sunday evening. Don Claborn's accompanying this group was appreciated.

Our young people are planning a "back to school" celebration Saturday night by going to Brownwood where they will eat out and attend a movie. Some of the young people suggested it would be nice to celebrate something other than going back to school.

A number of our people have been on the sick list recently. Some of them are improved and we are happy for this. R.J. Childers is still undergoing tests in Odessa. Mrs. Everette Harris has been sick at her home for sometime. Mrs. Willie Hill underwent surgery in Lubbock, Friday, and hopes to be home soon. Adrian Jenkins is still not able to be out much. It is good to have Laroe Jenkins back in worship. Vera Johnson was back in worship Sunday, but is still not feeling well. Mrs. F.M. Middleton is quite ill at her home.

Monday, I attended the area preacher's meeting at Wyatt's Cafeteria in Abilene. My sermon series on "The Lord's Church" will continue Sunday. The morning lesson will be "Salvation and Church Membership" and the evening one will be "Responsibilities of Church Membership".

One of the crowning attributes of the true Christian is doing good to others regardless of their treatment of him. Jesus said, "So whatever you wish that men would do to you, do so to them," and Paul wrote, "Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good." (Matt. 7:12; Rom. 8:21 RSV) This quality makes the Christian a better friend, neighbor, citizen and a better man or woman. You see, Christianity is practical.

... James Haney

Bible Baptist Church Rising Star

Last Friday night the men of the church met for a work night to make some improvements on the inside of the church. The women showed their appreciation by showing up later with homemade ice cream and cookies. The fellowship was as good as the ice cream and cookies, as all Christian fellowship is important to all Christians.

It is surprising how many people do not attend church where you can worship in spirit and in truth. I'm reminded of a story:

HATS OFF TO RATTLESNAKES

"There was once a man who had three sons - Jim, John and Sam. None of his family were church attenders. The deacons and preacher tried every means to get them to do their duty. One day John was bitten by a rattlesnake. After the doctor had done all he could, he stated the only thing left for them to do was to pray. They called for the deacons and the preacher to pray for him. John also vowed to do his duty to God.

The preacher prayed the following: 'O wise and righteous Father, we thank Thee that Thou hast in Thy wisdom, sent this rattlesnake to bite John, in order to bring him to his senses. He has not been inside the church house for years and it is very doubtful that he ever felt any need for prayer until now. Now we must trust that this will prove a valuable lesson to him and lead him to genuine repentance. And now, O Father, wilt Thou send another snake to bite Jim, and another to bite Sam, and another real big one to bite the old man? For years we have done everything we know to do to restore them, but to no avail. It seems that all our combined efforts would not do what this rattlesnake has done. We thus conclude that the only thing that will do this family any good is rattlesnakes. So Lord send us bigger and better rattlesnakes. In the Name of Jesus. Amen.' Revelations 3:19 - As Many as I love, I rebuke and chasten: be zealous therefore and repent.

Mrs. Bob Thornhill is reported doing real well after having surgery in Fort Worth. Mr. Clarence Compton is home and still is improving.

Mrs. Johnny Lee and Mr. Norman Hubbard were on the sick list last Sunday. We hope all of these will soon be able to be back in the church services real soon.

We invite everyone to come to our services.

Women's fashion has a history of emphasizing or de-emphasizing different parts of the anatomy. The shoulder pads of the 40's gave women the football player physique. The flatchested 20's gave way to padded bras -- "the better to burn, my dear!"

An 18 inch waistline was the pride of Scarlett O'Hara during the Civil War; today we dread the cinch of a belt on a waist that was freed by the A-line.

During the Renaissance, hoops and platforms broadened the hips to the extent that houses were built to accommodate them. And the bustle is not beyond the personal recollection of some who are living today.

My grandmother well remembers the time when displaying the ankle was the ultimate flirtation. We today have seen much more than the ankle peeking from below many a hemline.

You would think we had covered or uncovered, emphasized or de-emphasized, just about everything, but there is a relatively new emphasis. To my knowledge, history has seen it only once before, and that not so very long ago.

Remember the tent dress of the late 1960's? The "pregnant look" some called it. Now the fashion scene spotlights the smock top. It's cute as a button and comfortable as all get out, but you may not be able to tell who is and who isn't (There's a rough time ahead for gossip!) The grapevine has it that in some places a pad is even available to further the look. Could it be the expression of the mother instinct in a generation that is super conscious of overpopulation and birth control?

Could be, but let's look at the smock another way - it is a natural for the day of freedom from all those things that have bound women - physically and otherwise - in the past. Accept the smock as a style and you'll have to admit it's cute! It's comfortable! It's "IN"!!

Regardless of what fashion emphasizes, and regardless of what mood or look is the "in thing", fashion does speak the mood of the times. And HIGGINBOTHAMS tries to keep up with the times. Come see us!

Initial plans concerning the 1972 meeting of the Old Settlers Association were made by the officers and planning board, in the Hospitality Room of the First State Bank. This year's meeting will be September 16th at 10 a.m. in the American Legion Hall. Program plans and arrangements for a catered lunch will be completed at the second board meeting September 8th.

This association was organized on the lawn at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Shults in 1928, and has met on or near September 15th since that date. Cecil Shults, son of C.G. Shults, was serving as president at the time of his death. Everett Parker, vice president, will be in charge of the 1972 meeting with G.D. Prentice, program chairman.

Old Timers, this is your organization. Our mailing list may not be complete, but our invitation includes you.

MRS. WILLIAM GOODYKOONTZ

Linda Jo Lutgens-William Goodykoontz Wed

Texas Tech University graduates Miss Linda Jo Lutgens and William Moore Goodykoontz were wed August 13th in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don H. Lutgens of Irving. The Rev. Don Coleman of Lubbock officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan E. Goodykoontz of Houston are the parents of the bridegroom, who received his M.A. from Tech and will be a doctoral student at the University of California, Riverside, California. The couple will honeymoon in San Francisco.

Linda is the granddaughter of Lucy Boase of Rising Star.

The Animal business has been good this 1972 season. Many of the Rising Star critters have become Stanley Kennel property during the past seven months. In fact, so many, that the turkey farms and the local farmers should be feeling the difference.

The animal business here in Rising Star has brought new income to many Rising Star and surrounding area families. To be sure some 300 better families are from part time to full time employees of our business. These people come from Cross Plains, Baird, Eastland, Cisco, Gorman, May, Brownwood, Mineral Wells, Graham, Comanche, Mullin, Goldthwaite, Priddy, Pottsville, Hamilton, Gustine, and Rising Star. As these people bring their animals into us, the largest percentage of them will stop off in our city and cash their checks with our town businesses. So even the town businesses are making money off the animal business.

It should surprise many of you whom our suppliers are, if space would allow I would list them all. Here however, are a few: Leroy Woody, Bill Johnson, Joe Allgood, J.R. Cowan, Bobby Rust, Robert Underwood, George Cave, Carlton Brown, Albert Lee, J.O. Freeman, Don Hamer, Boots Underwood, R.L. Wilson, Bobbie Chambers and many others.

We have one supplier from Mullin, Texas, that has put his heart into catching animals. He has gotten enough tuckered away to pay in full for a new expected arrival to his family. This is what trapping animals has gotten him during the last few months.

Robert Underwood, has been working toward a new shot gun for bird season.

So you can see, each supplier uses his income from his animals in different ways. Everything from a soda pop, extra food and clothing for the house, something new for the family, hospital and so forth. Yes, the Animal business has brought money to many that didn't have money before.

During the past seven months these 300 better families have supplied us with the following:
 Over 4,000 adult Raccoons
 300 Baby Raccoons
 435 Red Fox BCubs
 85 head of adult Red and Grey Fox
 78 head of adult Ringtail
 21 baby Ringtail
 67 head of BlackRock Squirrel
 105 head of Ground Squirrel
 32 Bobcat
 27 Jackrabbits
 5 Nutria
 93 Armadillo
 234 Turtles
 753 head of poisonous and harmless snakes
 3132 Skunk Kittens

Thanks to Ray Agnew we even had a few Blue Peafowls to move.

In the past seven months we have paid out to these families over $32,000.00.

Many have asked us "What do you do with the animals after you get them?" Well folks, they're put here in cages and put on medicated feeds, wormed, given proper shots, cleaned, aired and prepared for shipment. "Where do they go from here you ask?" Well, again that depends on the animals, size, sex, and whether it's adult, half grown or a baby. The Adult Raccoon, Fox and baby Fox captured this year have been sold into the Eastern States to hunting clubs for the purpose of restocking their hunting areas. The baby Raccoon, skunk, and ringtail have been sold both wholesale and retail as pets. While the Bobcat have gone to zoos, and game reserves. The Squirrels to breeding farms. The Jackrabbits to race tracks for greyhounds to run. Armadillos as pets, meat, novelties, and research. Turtles to pet shops to go as a fad now touring the country "Turtle Racing". While the snakes have gone to zoos, movie industry, research, and to snake farms.

The profits are good from the animal business. We have used ours this year to go back into our business, building cages, buying breeding stock and for household goods, clothes, food, and made a sizeable payment on our place. We used our profits this year and never realized it was possible that we should be putting back for a rainy day. We lost our backer this month and now are looking for a new one. If we had had any idea that we were fixing to be left high and dry, we would have never put our profits back into cages, breeders and so forth, but put back to keep our business running and money rolling to buy our suppliers stock. But as they say "that's the way the cookie crumbles".

But we're not giving up without a fight, so if God's willing we will stay in business here in Rising Star and keep on buying your animals, reptiles and fowls.

Our winter plans include the buying of live caught adult coon, fox, bobcat as well as their furs and others. Then if we can acquire a new backer, we would like to buy more breeder stock and put in a zoo here in the Rising Star area. How many of you would like to have a zoo here - write in and give us your views Rt. 2, Box 29, Rising Star.
