LINCOLN'S LEGACY AND OURS

by
Jeffrey D. Wallin
Dr. Wallin is an Associate Professor of Politics and a member of the Institute for Philosophical Studies at the University of Dallas.

(c) Public Research, Syndicated, 1982

Friday marks the 173rd anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln who, in the aftermath of the fiery trial of Gettysburg, dedicated this nation to a "new birth of freedom."

Although it has with good reason been said that Lincoln, like the founders of the nation, numbered among the "great men of the earth," it is nevertheless true that he was in many ways more characteristically American than most of our other heroes.

The quiet and remote dignity of Washington, the intellectual precocity of Madison and Hamilton, the abiding grace and personal charm of Jefferson, all remind us, as do their laced and bewigged portraits, of the ancient regime they so successfully opposed.

The nation that they founded, however, was in significant ways different from themselves. It was less urbane, less gracious, more robust and earthy than anything they knew. Abraham Lincoln, with his rustic humor and deeply democratic instincts, embodied the soul of an American founded in freedom by others.

Lincoln's generation, although formed by the founding, was the first generation berfit of the founder's guidance. When, at the age of twenty-five, Lincoln assumed public office for the first time, only Madison still lived. But within two years he, too, would die. By the time of its maturity, Lincoln's generation would require a rededication to the principles of the nation's founding.

The issue of slavery had so vexed the Union during the formative years of Lincoln's generation that the bedrock of American democracy, the conviction that ours was the task of displaying before the entire world the fruits of free government, had crumbled year by year. There was a growing sentiment in the South that slavery must expand into the new territories. In the North there was a corresponding fear of the consequences of attempting to prevent that expansion, odious though it was.

Better, it was said by some in the North, to accommodate the expansion of slavery. Better, perhaps, to agree that democracy can exist permantly on a foundation of slavery, that democracy means no more than the right of a majority of any people anywhere to do whatever it wishes without regard to any consideration of right or justice. If a majority of the people of a territory, it was said, wish to introduce slavery amongst themselves, why perhaps that is their right. Better to accept these perversions of the democratic faith of the founding fathers than to forcibly resist the expansion of slavery. For the South had made it clear that it would rather abandon the Union than accept such a restriction.

But according to Lincoln, the acceptance of these perversions by the people at large would sound the death knell of the Union every bit as much as the secession of the South. For the heart of the nation was the principle of freedom. The people's acceptance of slavery on a permanent basis, Lincoln maintained, would mean that American democracy stood on no higher ground than base prejudice and naked self interest.

Were it not for the issue of slavery, and the crisis in principle which is signified for a people originally dedicated to the proposition that "all men

Health Tips

ITCHING COULD BE SCABIES

The itch is maddening and particularly so at night. That's true with most skin disorders but more so with scabies.

Commonly called the "seven-year itch," scabies has cropped up frequently in the U.S. in recent years. This ancient disease is caused by a female mite that burrows into the upper layer of human skin to lay her eggs. At night the mite tunnels through the skin, which produces the intense itching.

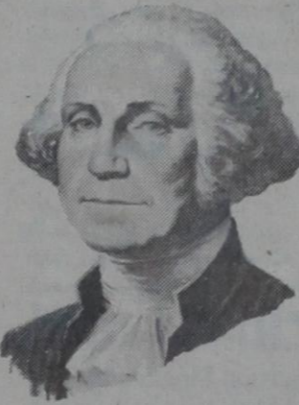

Scabies generally is associated with poverty and uncleanliness, but the disease can hit anyone of any age. And because allergies sometimes are blamed for the itching, the Texas Medical Association says people with the symptoms should be checked by a physician.

The mites lodge primarily in the webs between fingers and in wrists and elbows. Other common sites are the armpits, buttocks, nipples and lower abdomen. The head generally is not involved except in infants.

Scabies mites spread from person to person by direct contact and sometimes by clothing, furniture and bedding. A person who does not frequently bathe is somewhat more likely to carry scabies mites than is the frequent bather—but cleanliness is no guarantee against the disease.

A characteristic of scabies is a small swelling where the mite burrows. A tiny tunnel may be seen there, and the mite may be at the end of the tunnel. Even if the organism cannot be found by microscopic examination, the trial use of a mite-killing drug can bring improvement. When the doctor positively identifies the disease as scabies, the patient must thoroughly clean clothing and bedding. The physician prescribes a lotion or medication to destroy the mites and to control itching. Left untreated, the itching worsens as the person develops an allergy to the mite. Hives and small blisters may result. Because of the allergic reaction, the itching may continue for days or weeks after the mites have been destroyed.

Gordon Woolam

Soon area vegetable gardeners will begin preparing their garden sites for spring planting. The most destructive insects that gardeners will encounter this time of year are soil insects. If they are not controlled they can cause a reduction in vegetable quality and yield. The best time to control the insects is before planting.

Most soil insecticides, in order to be effective, must be applied at least two weeks prior to planting and must be thoroughly mixed into the soil at least 4 to 6 inches. This of course cannot be done if the garden is already planted.

Soil insects that vegetable gardeners are most likely to encounter are wireworms, white grubs, seed corn maggots, abbage maggots, mole crickets, sowbugs, and cutworms. Since soil insects have different feeding habits, while others may cut off young plants at or near the soil surface.

Garden sites which were previously in grass or weeds are more likely to harbor damaging numbers of soil pests. Vegetable gardeners should inspect their garden site to determine if insecticide treatments are needed. Use a shovel or spade and randomly sample the soil at several locations to a depth of 5-6 inches. Remove one square foot section of soil from each location and record the number of soil insect pests present. As a general rule an average of one or more soil insect pest per sampled location suggests the need for treatment.

Most soil insects can be controlled in the home garden with Diazinon 25% liquid concentrate or 5% granular usually give the best control. Do not use Dursban which is recommended for control of soil insects in lawns. This chemical is not cleared for garden use and may contaminate your produce. Also do not treat lawns for grubs at this time. Treatment is ill advised because adequate levels of insecticide usually cannot get through the thatch to be effective against the large grubs present at this time. White grubs in lawns are best controlled in the late summer after the seasons eggs have hatched and larvae are still small.

Before applying any pesticide always read and follow its labeled instruction.

For more information on this subject or others contact your County Extension Office.

THE IRS SAYS...

The major 10-40 family federal income tax forms may be picked up at many banks and post offices. If other tax forms or any publications are required, use the handy order form in your tax package.

Be sure that documents such as W-Two's, extra schedules, statements about your deductions, and other documents are stapled to your form 10-40 or 10-40-A before you mail it to the I.R.S.

Separated and divorced parents should be aware of special requirements when claiming children as dependents on federal tax returns. For additional information, depend on your tax instructions.

Taxpayers who move after filing their federal income tax returns and are expecting a refund should notify the post office serving the old address. The IRS center where the return was filed should also be notified in writing of the address change—the taxpayer's Social Security number should be included in the correspondence.

Don't mail cash with your tax return. Send a check or money order payment instead. Your payment could become separated from the tax return, so write your social security number on the payment itself.

If you are expecting an income tax refund, it will be delayed if your return is not properly signed. Don't forget—sign before you send.

Texas Oil & Gas . . . Gas Consumers Need Quick, Total Decontrol

By Avery Rush, Jr.
Chairman,

Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association

Texas is this country's leading producer of natural gas, with marketed production in the first eight months of 1981 of 4.7-trillion cubic feet. For years it was the leading natural gas producing state. After falling behind Louisiana in 1977-79, it has regained the top spot.

What may be less well known, even to Texas residents, is that our state is the largest consumer of natural gas as a source of employment and for use as a heating fuel. Statewide consumption in 1979 of 4-trillion cubic feet meant that Texas used 212.6-billion cubic feet more — 5.6-percent more — than the combined usage by the next two largest consuming states, Louisiana and California.

It is our use of natural gas that gives Texas and its residents such a big stake in the current effort to bring about decontrol. If changes are not made in those portions of the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 dealing with pricing regulations, Texans could find themselves without natural gas while residents of nonproducing states have abundant supplies.

Texans suffer under two effects of existing price controls: (1) While drilling for uncontrolled crude oil is up dramatically, drilling for new natural gas supplies is declining or, at best, remaining level, and (2) existing supplies are being diverted from the producing states' intrastate markets into the interstate market.

This diversion of natural gas is occurring because the NGPA has placed producing states at a disadvantage in competing for their own gas with nonproducing states. Interstate pipelines presently are outbidding intrastate carriers because of the supply of cheap, price-controlled natural gas that the interstate pipelines acquired on long-term contracts before the NGPA became law on Dec. 1, 1978.

Intrastate pipelines do not have a supply of cheap gas since the intrastate market was unregulated until late 1978. Prior to that time, the cost of natural gas in the producing states had risen to reflect more realistically the costs of exploration and production.

This problem could become even more serious for Texans after 1984. On Jan. 1, 1985, under the NGPA, federal price controls will be lifted on the intrastate market. But, controls will be left in place on most interstate gas. Then the bidding war could intensify, with producing states continuing to lose supplies. What is needed to remedy this situation is the accelerated, total decontrol of all natural gas.

50th Livestock Show To Be Golden Extravaganza

Fifteen 4-H members from Eastland County will be participating in the 1982 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, February 20-March 7. With more than 29,000 expected livestock entries, the Golden Anniversary Houston Show will once again be the largest livestock show in the world.
"The 1982 Show offers spectators a unique opportunity to see some of the finest livestock ever and it's all gathered under one roof," said Assistant General Manager Don Jobs, Jr.
The Houston Show also provides an opportunity for exhibitors to participate in some of the toughest of showing competition after a year's worth of preparation for their animals. This year's show once again promises to be profitable for them, as open show and from some 35 states will bring in the best in breeding stock to compete in breeding beef, dairy, swine, poultry, sheep, Angora goat and rabbit shows.

As the Houston Show is a showcase of the livestock industry, cattlemen from Europe, Mexico and Central and South America travel to the open show to view the best in stock. Last year, more than 500 international visitors from 29 countries registered with show officials and the 1982 International Days, February 22-27, should draw an even larger crowd.
Students from Eastland County who entered in Market Steers division are Angela Burgess, Glenn Burgess, Thad Chambers, Jackie Harris, Truet Hart, Charla Little, Jim Moylan, and Sam Scott.
LaTonya Caraway and Allen Scitern have entered the Market Lambs division. Those showing in the Market Burrows are Glenn Burgess, Shannon Caraway, Noble Laminack and Caye Little.
Jim Bob Cozart will be showing two Dairy Heifers. He is also entered in the Dairy Scramble.
The four students that will be showing Market Broilers division are LaTonya Caraway, Shannon Caraway, Allen Little, and Sam Scott.
Sam Scott is also entered in the Market Turkeys contest.

Marriages And Happiness

Much has been written on the subject of marital happiness by experts better qualified than a newspaper editor. Yet the question is a fascinating one because of the increasing number of marriage failures and the ever-increasing difficulties imposed by the nature and pace of American life and society.

There would seem to be several general conclusions, among the many experts, which could be summarized. First, it is good for individuals embarking on the great adventure to realize not all their dreams, anticipations and ideals will be fulfilled.

In living together, one always finds disappointments and unexpected shortcomings in his or her partner—some of which were probably not so well advertised prior to marriage. This is not fatal, nor unusual, but is the normal course of human events.

Secondly, one must sooner or later realize he or she cannot remake a spouse. For better or worse, one must accept that partner, to a large degree, as is.

Thirdly, concerning irritations, the recommended course is for all couples to seek to minimize them, to learn to forget past differences. If these observations and a Christian approach are utilized, couples probably have better than average odds for success (The divorce rate in marriages is one in three.)

If, on the other hand, nothing brings harmony or happiness after long and sincere trial, divorce is not always a tragedy. Of the millions of marriages each year, all cannot be perfect—especially in this day when Hollywood and television encourage so many youngsters to believe "that one look" across the bar, with the blue lights down low and soft music playing, is true love.

The Hope Of Youth

One of the wonders of the world is the eternal independence, optimism and hope of youth.

Battered fathers and mothers, after decades of struggle and work, who have experienced life's obstacles, inequities and heartaches, look on with tender love (mixed with sadness?) at the happy, undaunted free spirit of sons and daughters.

Of course, that's what life is—and today it's better than it was a generation earlier. Today's youngsters, with high hopes and dreams, must learn for themselves in a modern world full of technological wonders and dangers.

Realistically, the best fathers and mothers can do for children is to give them a good start in life—morally, educationally and nutritionally. And one can counsel them, when asked.

Before maturity, looking into faithful, trusting, still-pure eyes, with their hopes, obedience and inherent goodness, one must hide a tear. The heart is heavy. It really should be a life of pink clouds, blue skies, knights and princesses! Too many have stumbled in the past, not necessarily through their own fault or doing, and so, alas, it isn't so, and cannot be.

On Child Care

Recent federal statistics indicate there are in the U.S. today two million school age children between ages 7 and 13 who are left alone without any supervision because of working parents.

There are other millions with inadequate child care. It's estimated that there are 16.6 million working mothers in the nation today. More are going to work every year, when they find jobs, because of economic necessity.

These working mothers (and fathers) need outside help to care for their children. Unfortunately—and despite the rationalization often advanced in women's magazines and trendy modern articles—many child care centers do not do an adequate job and the children left there suffer as a result.

The day care situation in many areas of the nation is critical, and local, state and federal attention to the problem is only slowly arriving. What, then, is to be done?

The answer probably lies, at least in part, on more privately organized church and community day care projects. A number of smaller centers seem preferable to fewer large-enrollment centers.

Mothers who are not required by economic necessity to work might contribute on a part-time basis to day-care centers, as a community and social service, either as paid employees or volunteers.

Parents of handicapped children are often even harder pressed to find suitable child care than the average working parent. And those with many young children sometimes find the cost of child care prohibitive.

In this age, when so many mothers must work to make ends meet, the problem of adequate child care has not yet been satisfactorily solved. No one would seriously argue that little children left at day care centers get equal attention and love compared to those in a home. The object of today's society should be to reduce that penalty to the lowest possible degree.

Two Hopes

Two new and exciting medical hopes, for two long-time human ailments, are in today's news. The first hope is the drug accutane, which some believe is the answer to acne. Federal approval for its manufacture suggest it will become available in February or March and believers think it will cure just about every case of acne!

To combat the common cold, and that if taken in sufficient doses, will even cure and prevent colds! These two claims are almost too good to be true, and are indeed tentative. They are as yet just claims.

But researchers who have developed both "cures" make surprisingly bold and confident claims for the remedies. Everyone hopes they are right.

The Unemployed

Recently, the unemployment percentage, as unrealistically computed by federal bureaucrats, reached nine percent. It usually hovers around 6 or 7 percent. So this is considered quite high.

Howls of anguish have come from social workers, liberal spenders who favor more make-work federal jobs, Democrats and minority leaders—among others. The real suffering, however, is limited to the uneducated poor (often minority citizens), the unskilled and the ill or handicapped.

Such citizens are often genuinely incapable of filling all but the simplest jobs. They lack the know-how and education to go out and win many jobs open today. But even these unemployed are eligible for unemployment pay, and other benefits.

As unemployment rolls increase, the outlay of the federal government to help the unemployed soars. So no one, even conservatives, like high unemployment, though some increase is probably necessary to check inflation.

Of the nine percent unemployed, one would venture to say no more than two percent fit into the above category. Many of the unemployed suffer no real hardship, since they are minors working, or wives, with husbands and other family workers employed.

There are others who could find jobs, but not the job they want, and they prefer to sit and wait. There are very few healthy unemployed who cannot find some form of work—if they will take the necessary steps to find a job, or accept a less satisfying job. But many won't. They prefer to stay where they are (some are forced to) and wait, to draw unemployment pay.

Federal statistics are also misleading, and the computing formula is soon to be revised. After saying all that, it's undeniable that some are suffering real hardship. It's also true that many who aren't now working could look a bit harder, and farther, and find work. A glance at the help-wanted classifieds in any major newspaper, and many smaller ones, makes that clear.

Spring

It may seem hard to visualize, with January weather outside the window, but spring is on the way. One way to make winter less a hardship, mentally and physically, is to think of nature's cycle.

With the beginning of winter (December 21) the sun began to shine longer each day, the days began to get longer once more. They had been steadily shortening since June.

On the 20th of March the mid-way point will be reached, and days and nights will be equal in length. That will be the beginning of spring, the vernal equinox.

Thus the sun is already beginning its warming-up process of the earth and each day is a little longer than the one before. We will feel the effects of long nights and short hours of sunshine for some time yet, but visible signs will soon appear, especially in February, of coming warmer, sunnier days.

Character is what makes individuals do more than the law requires.

It is surprising how much work our friends think we can, and should do.

When a young man starts courting he treats it as serious business.

You can look back to 1981 but we prefer to look forward to 1982.

You can judge a statesman by his refusal to appeal to the prejudices and emotions of his constituents.

Advertising

Whether one realizes it or not, advertising is perhaps the most wonderful development of the modern commercial age. It is the maker or breaker of business, big or little. It is the one factor of successful sales that is most likely to be overlooked by the merchants and business men of small towns and cities.

Advertising is not the exclusive weapon of big business; it is the power that will make little concerns grow into larger success. It is a science that requires study and, he it said, character. It cannot succeed if it is based upon untruth; it must build upon faith and integrity.

This newspaper is prepared to assist local businessmen with their advertising problems. It may be said, with due modesty, that our staff knows something about advertising and that its experience is available to all.

PARENTHOOD GUIDEBOOK

By Nancy Moore Thurmond (author, Mother's Medicine, Pub. by Wm. Morrow, N.Y.)

CONVULSIONS: An extremely high fever in an infant over six months of age can cause him to have a convulsion. This should be reported immediately. If the convulsion occurs with high fever, above 103 degrees F., sponge the child with cool water, plain or mixed with alcohol, to reduce the body temperature. A prolonged fever over 104 degrees F. can cause brain damage.

It is important to keep an open airway in the convulsing patient. A convulsion without a fever is also an emergency. Febrile or feverish convulsions tend to run in families, so the mother should be more alert to this possibility if there is a family history of febrile seizures. If this is the case, you may want to ask your doctor to prescribe a sedative suppository to use as an emergency treatment.

FEVER: Fever almost always is the baby's response to infection. You can usually tell a baby with a fever by his listlessness, irritability, and, above all, hot skin. Before you use a rectal thermometer, gently shake it down until it reads well below 97 degrees F. Grease the round bulb of the thermometer with petroleum jelly so it will insert easily.

Hold your child face down, on your lap or on a bed, or you may want to him have him lie on his side. Gently insert the rectal thermometer one inch to one-and-a-half inches into your baby's rectum and hold it in that position from two to three minutes. Avoid sudden movements which could cause the thermometer to break, injuring your baby.

Doctor Talk

By Dr. Harold B. Ligon

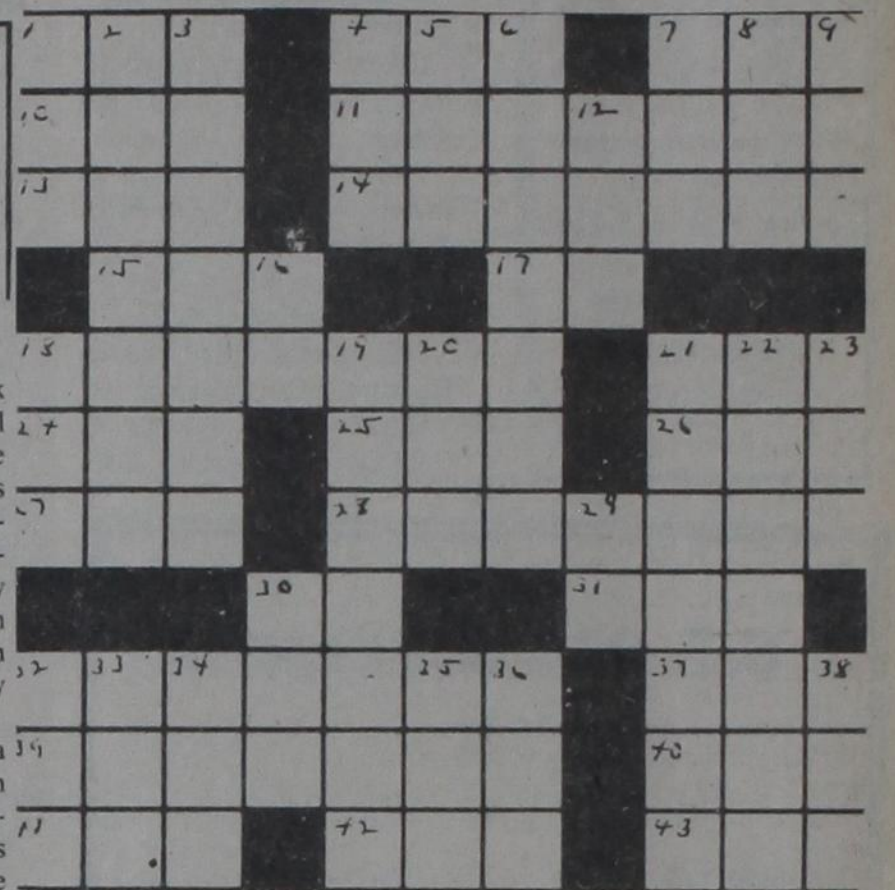

Many people today think large doses of vitamin C will protect them against the common cold. But this has not yet been definitely established. There are noted medical researchers currently engaged in further research on vitamin C. They do seem to help some, if taken early enough.

Antihistamines have a drying action which often give relief from the discomfort of cold symptoms. This is helpful but it doesn't cure the cold. Steam inhalations will often reduce the mucus membrane congestion and swelling, and also chest tightness.

Cough drops and cough syrups sometimes achieve the same results. Antibiotics, however, do not help and are not recommended—unless there's a bacterial complication. This is suggested if there's fever or an infection of the throat—which suggests a doctor's examination.

The simplest remedy to most colds is plenty of bed rest, staying warm and drinking plenty of fluids. Usually, after a day or two, symptoms gradually subside. They should certainly not last more than a week or ten days.

If one has had a cold for a longer period, or thinks he has, he probably is suffering from an allergy, or some other disorder.

Letters To The Editor

Your letter was very nice and much appreciated.

Most citizens of our little town wants it to look better.

The Highway Department made the ditches look better around our park and the hospital. The city kept our park mowed last year and that was an improvement. Bluebonnet seeds were planted, maybe by spring we'll see the flowers--if not this spring surely next. I really believe each home owner, by keeping their own home better would help the looks of our town.

I believe the people here deserve better than the pot holes and filthy ditches. Can't we do something about this? I sincerely hope so.

Thanks, Edra, for letting your readers express themselves.

METHODIST MINUTES

There are great things happening at the First Methodist Church in Rising Star. Since Bro. Lewis Wilkerson came as the new pastor, steps have been taken to improve the Church School through the creation of two new classes. We now have a Nursery Class for children up to two years of age. The teacher is Mrs. Crawford and Cynthia Jones is the assistant. There is a Beginners Class for children age 2 to age 5 with Robin Reeves as teacher. There is a Primary I Class for children Kindergarten through Second grades, taught by Inez Hutton. There is also a Primary II class for children grades Three through Five, taught by Winnie Armstrong.

For the youth of the Church there are two classes. The Jr. High class, grades six, seven, and eight, is taught by Joyce Baker. On Sunday evening there is a youth fellowship which meets with Bro. Wilkerson and Coach and Mrs. Lankford.

For the adults there are also two classes. For ladies there is the Friendship class taught by Mrs. Dorothy Shook. There is also an adult Bible class taught by Bro. Wilkerson. Plans are also in the works for a

Wednesday evening Bible study and a young adults fellowship.

As you can see, the First Methodist Church is a church on the move. Our Sunday School begins with an assembly at 9:45 AM, Morning Worship is at 11 AM, Evening Worship at 5:30 PM, and the youth fellowship at 6:30 PM. For more information, call Bro. Wilkerson at 643-3791 or come by and visit us next Sunday.

LINCOLN'S LEGACY AND OURS

are created equal," the world would now take little note of Lincoln's public career. But Lincoln possessed something of a "seeing eye" in moral matters. He was one of those rare men who have the ability to see through the surfaces of things to the profound issues of which they are sometimes merely the reflection.

When the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854 repealed the Missouri Compromise, according to which slavery had been restricted more or less to the states in which it already existed, Lincoln dedicated his public career to a single, dominating purpose: to see to it that slavery was again restricted and to rekindle in his own and in subsequent generations, the conviction that American democracy is inseparable linked to human rights. The rugged force of soul within Lincoln, his dedication to the proposition that freedom cannot be divorced from justice, and his pure belief that the source of both was to be found in the Declaration of Independence, allowed him to face the greatest issue of his day. In Lincoln's view, the American people could not evade the necessity to choose between the stern requirements of liberty and an easy and comfortable expansion of slavery.

For Lincoln the issue of liberty was essentially an internal one. The sacrifices necessary to found this country had been the result of a fierce love of liberty and a mortal aversion to despotism that overrode the natural desires all men have for quietude, safety and personal comfort. The love of liberty strengthens men's souls while the habits of ease and the fear of discord weaken them.

It was Lincoln's belief that only if the nation were thus weakened from within could the people lose their inherited liberties. But if the people remained strong, wrote Lincoln in 1838, "All the armies of Europe, Asia and Africa combined, with all the treasure of the earth (our own accepted) in their military chest; with a Bonaparte for a commander, could not by force, take a drink from the Ohio, or make a track on the Blue Ridge, in a trial of a thousand years."

Only one utterly blind to the Soviet military buildup of the last two decades could venture to say the same today. But if one were to search for the reasons behind our inability, or rather our unwillingness, to maintain ourselves as the strongest, as well as freest nation on earth, we might well conclude that our external weaknesses are a sign of an internal weakness, a seismic fault, as it were, in the bedrock of our beliefs. We seem to be poised between those who would not defend freedom itself because they are uncertain of its worth and those who would not defend our freedom as a nation because they doubt the justness of its cause.

Lincoln's legacy consists above all in his teaching that the cause of human freedom and the ends of American democracy are one and the same. In celebrating the occasion of his birth, it is fitting that we remind ourselves that the enduring source of Lincoln's greatness is available to us today. We, no less than the men of Lincoln's time, are faced with the burden of insuring the survival of freedom. We, no less than they, will find the strength to do so only when we come once again to appreciate the dignity of our cause, the baseness of that of our opponents, and the consequences for all men everywhere should we fail.

4-H News

Debbie Geye, a 15-year-old 4-H member from Rising Star, will participate in the beef scramble at the 1982 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

Debbie, daughter of Terry Geye, will "scramble" during the February 26 performance in the Astrodome. Not only will Debbie have the opportunity to catch a calf, but she also will be a part of the Friday entertainment package that includes the best rodeo contestants in the world and stars Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers Band as the featured entertainment.

Always a favorite with rodeo audiences, the calf scramble begins as an athletic event in the rodeo arena. However, for the contestants who manage to catch a calf, halter it and drag it across a finish line, the scrambling is only the start of a year-long educational experience.

Each winner in the calf scramble receives a $400 calf purchase certificate which enables the winner to purchase a purebred, registered heifer that he or she agrees to feed, fit, groom and return to the Houston Livestock Show for special show ring competition the following year.

Each winner also agrees to keep accurate monetary records, submit monthly progress reports both to the Livestock Show and to the individual sponsor, photographically chronicle the progress of the calf and prepares a 500-word essay on the project.

Doris Griffin Delivers Review

Irene Mayfield, president, opened the February 3, meeting of the Saturday Club by asking Joyce Geye to offer the invocation, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance in unison.

Irene stressed the importance of the monthly issue of "Clubwoman", the GFWC magazine. Quotes from one article in the February issue: "In a world full of problems it is tempting to ask, 'What can one person do?'—and do nothing. But each of us can cure an ill, teach a child to play, to run, to read. Each of us can reach out and touch another human being. Give something and receive something."

Vera Westerman, program-hostess coordinator with Lottie Mae Roach, introduced Doris Griffin, who reviewed themes written by students that emphasized the changing times since our forefathers.

The sharp contrast with the world of today was given in the homes, obedience and discipline, health and its problems, entertainment, early inventions, church, and recreation.

Doris closed with these words: "Well, ladies, we've come a long, long way: most of our ways we would not change, but the purpose of this program today hopefully is:

Like the falling of a gentle rain on a meadow in the spring, so the memories of the past live on, to warm the hearth within. So if you sow seeds of happiness, your harvest will be sweet. You'll give a smile and get a smile from everyone you meet. Your thoughts will be affirmative. Your life will be aglow. You'll have a cheerful word or two for everyone you know. You'll find a lot of pleasure in most everything you do. And in your heart the sun will shine for God will smile on you."

The refreshment table was covered with a Valentine cloth and centered with an arrangement of red roses and white baby mums in a crystal vase. Silver and crystal appointments were used in the serving of heart-shaped sandwiches, cake, Valentine cookies-inscribed with familiar love words, olives, toasted pecans and peanuts, spiced tea or coffee.

Members attending were Ileta Agnew, Gladys Carter, Mary Claborn, Lela Clark, Helen Donham, Joyce Geye, Dorris Harrell, Lenell Henry, Lillian Howard, Pauline Hudson, Georgia Jacobs, Olice Jones, Beatrice
