It is getting to be so we won't need names any longer. A name, in case you're wondering how the system originated, developed from the necessity of identifying a person with some sort of a grunt, spit or sputter which would make it unnecessary for one to go into an involved description of the individual in order to let another understand what person was meant. Names subsequently acquired—and conferred—glamor, romance, dignity and other characterizations of a distinctive nature. Needless to say some of them acquired suggestions not too complimentary.

A lot of people cannot describe very well. Indeed, a lot of people can't even tell what they see.

If it weren't for simplifying the matter of identification into a spasm or so of the vocal chords, communication would get mighty cumbersome and business fouled up no end. Consider what would happen to the contractual processes, the banking, legal and other professions, if there was no way of pinning a person down with his signature or spoken identification.

Consider what would happen to the records of genealogy. No person could be sure who he or she is, or to whom that person owes thanks for existence, if it weren't for the system of nomenclature developed from the old, old method of identifying a certain Jock who lived on a hill as "Jock o' the Hill."

I realize that the name system gets awfully involved and snobbishly agglutinative sometimes, as witness the British habit of combining surnames into such appellations as James Johnson Hemphill-Jones, etc. Perhaps progress demands a more scientific system.

But names are like fine leather in the glow of the firelight, ponderous and overstuffed often enough, but still comfortable, romantic and reassuring.

I once heard John McCormick sing "Mary of Tralee." It was enchanting. What a magnificent voice that beloved Irish tenor had, how exquisitely he could exploit every nuance of sentiment inherent in that ancient song.

I am beginning to wonder about the old things and the old ways now.

The doubt began quite unobtrusively about 30 years ago. We got social security numbers then. It was the first time in our history, I believe, that people outside of penitentiaries got numbers. Then the internal revenue evildoers gave us numbers. And now...

Imagine John McCormick's rare voice lifted in worship of "Zip 160 of Tralee."

The other day they buried an old teacher of mine.

I remember her with the sobered admiration of these later years—the long gaunt face, the long front teeth that a long Irish upper lip could not quite cover, the pleading, almost desperate look in her eyes as she faced a lagging class and asked its members to give a little, and not expect one ever-loaded locomotive to pull a lot of un-fired locomotives over the educational divide.

The figure was not inspired, but it was effective. She was a teacher who understood quite well that the end purpose of education is a creative individual, and this in a time when the gadgetry of education was not divorced from the conviction that hard work is the only "open sesame" to success.

She knew the art of education, as did so few. I say art advisedly, because art is the science of (Continued on page two)

Early Start Urged on Trades Day Promotion for Sept. 7

An early start on plans for the quarterly Trades Day program to be held on the first Saturday in September was urged at the luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at the Elite Cafe Tuesday noon.

President James Rutherford called for planning on advertising, merchandise gift drawings, booths, sidewalk sales and other features of the program in order that the most effective use can be made of the event in attracting more trade to Rising Star.

The Trades Day event will tie in with the opening of school and merchants were asked to put strong emphasis on the Back to School theme.

Bob Shults was again named to head the committee on securing prizes of merchandise to be given away.

In view of the fact that only half of the merchants are solicited for gifts—thus allowing for a six-month interval between donations—the merchants will be asked to award attractive prizes.

Ed Croan and Bill Dennard were named as the sidewalk sales committee and Robert Butler was named chairman of the booth solicitation group.

In view of the lateness of the season, the CofC members voted not to award prizes for the first melons to be brought to town this year. No such award has been made in several years, it was explained.

President Rutherford announced that plans are being made for a drive to raise about $250 needed to pay all indebtedness on the Scout hut.

Reports on the Girl Scout organization program were heard.

Not "If," But "How?"

Wiley, unprincipled, and master strategist Nikita Khrushchev seems well on the way to pulling another hank of wool over the eyes of our wishful-thinking Western statesmen.

While the world press trumpets the imminence of a nuclear test ban treaty, nothing at all is being said about the way in which the Soviets observed their obligations under the 1958 agreement.

The only concern seems a fear that Mr. K. will interpose some unacceptable conditions at the last minute.

After more than a generation of experience with Soviet perfidy and deviousness it does seem that we should finally be convinced of the real character of the Communist regime, its design and the methods used to accomplish it.

in western minds into any dealing with Russia is:

The one and determining conviction that should be carried

Russia is unalterably committed to world conquest and the communist beliefs allow Mr. K. and his gang to use any method whatsoever to accomplish it.

When you link this fact to the further fact that the nuclear retaliatory power of the United States—as it now stands—is the only real military obstacle between the Soviet Union and its objective, you get a very sobering view of the situation in which we of this nation find ourselves.

It is a conceded fact that the Soviets used the earlier test ban agreement to secretly develop their own nuclear technology to a point equal to, if not exceeding that of the United States.

How can anyone be certain that Mr. K. and his crowd won't use a second test ban period to further increase whatever military advantage they may now have?

If such an agreement is finally signed you can bet your bottom dollar the question won't be "if," but "how" the Kremlin gang will violate it to further the Communists' avowed purpose of burying the United States.

Whose Land?

Without so much as a "by-your-leave" to Texans, the Federal Government has agreed to transfer to the Republic of Mexico 437 acres of Texas' soil in the City of El Paso "for political reasons."

The U. S. admits that the land is actually Texas territory, that the people who live on it are citizens of the United States, and will remain citizens of this country.

But in spite of this, almost one square mile of Texas' land will be transferred to the sovereignty of Mexico. Texas was not asked whether or not it would submit to this dismemberment.

It is beginning to look as if we do not own even our own souls.

"I Want My Kids to Be Free . . ."

From an address by Van Meter, Vice-President, N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., to the annual meeting, Health Insurance Association of America, May 15, 1963:

"As the father of two children . . . I am genuinely concerned about the future. I am concerned about what America will offer my children—15, 25 or 40 years from now.

"I am worried about what may happen to their moral fiber. I don't want my kids ever to be free-loaders. I don't want them to think the government owes them a living. I don't want them to grow up and live under any kind of statism. And that goes for government paternalism, big brotherism, or any other kind of "lam." for that matter.

"I want my children to be free; to have complete freedom of choice in a free economy—including the freedom of buying their kilowatt hours from a non-subsidized, profit-making corporation. And the freedom of choosing for themselves where, when and from whom they will buy their insurance.

"I believe it is their right to have that freedom!

"I want my kids to be free to earn an honest, independent dollar, and free to keep a little of it. I want them to be free to speak out when they think they are right, without fear of reprisal; to always have freedom from any kind of bureaucratic harassment, or government oppression.

"I want these things for my children deeply enough . . . to ask you without apology for your whole-hearted help in seeing to it that they get them."

The Soviet-Chinese squabble over ideology is encouraging—until you realize that what they are really arguing about is how they will bury us.

In the Good Old Summertime

As It Looks From Here

By Omar Burleson, M. C. 17th Texas District

WASHINGTON, D. C.—BRITISH GUIANA, LYING BETWEEN Venezuela and Dutch Guiana and bordered on the South by Brazil, could easily become the second Communist dominated regime in the Western Hemisphere.

AT THE PRESENT TIME, THIS TERRITORY on the Northeast of South America, is under British control insofar as its defense and external affairs are concerned, but the Country is scheduled for independence.

THE PRIME MINISTER BRITISH GUIANA IS Cheddi Jagan, an East Indian of the same race as about 50 per cent of the population. There is evidence that he is gearing the economy of the Country with the Soviet Bloc. It is known that cement, flour and petroleum products are coming in quantities from the Soviet Union in exchange for rice which is taken to Cuba and exchanged mainly for sugar.

JAGAN SAID PUBLICLY ONLY A SHORT TIME AGO THAT "The first Socialist State in the Hemisphere was Cuba; the first in South America will be the Republic of Guiana." He is known to be a leftist and a long time associate of Communists. His wife, Janet, a native of Chicago, was a known Communist before losing her United States citizenship by having voted in a Guianian election. She is as much a leader in the country as is her husband and holds the official position of Minister of Home affairs.

SHOULD GUIANA RECEIVE ITS COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE from the British, it is believed that Jagan would institute a complete dictatorship and place his wife in control of police, and that Jagan himself would take complete control of the labor force.

THE OPPOSITION IS LED BY FORBES BURNHAM, a fiery leader of the Negro population, which constitutes about 35 per cent. Incidentally the remaining population is 12 per cent mixed, 2 per cent Portuguese and 1 per cent Asiatic.

THOSE INFORMED ON THE SUBJECT BELIEVE THAT the conflicts within British Guiana are not nearly so much on the basis of ideology as they are between the races. This difference is compounded by the fact that the East Indians are Hindus and Moslems and live mainly in the rural areas, while the Negroes are Christian and live mostly in the cities.

THE FEAR IS THAT THE BRITISH WILL PULL OUT, which they very much want to do, and wash their hands of a political and economic liability as soon as possible. The British, it seems, feel that the best they can do is leave behind a government with constitutional restrictions sufficient to contain Communism.

THE UNITED STATES, ON THE OTHER HAND, is fearful that the English will leave too soon and that Communism will move into the vacuum.

munism will move into the vacuum.

LIKE CASTRO AT THE EARLY STAGES OF HIS TAKE-OVER, Jagan does not admit to being an out-and-out Communist, but it is plain to see he is enmeshed already in the Soviet bloc of nations.

TWO SITUATIONS WOULD PROBABLY EXIST when and if the British grant full independence and move out. Either Jagan would immediately take over as a dictator or under the semblance of the constitutional government hold elections which could place him in power under what would appear to be a democratic government. Either of these results would definitely be adverse to the United States and all Latin America.

EVEN IF THE ENGLISH SHOULD BE WILLING TO take the risk of throwing Jagan out, safety is not guaranteed simply by such a delay. The Indian population is growing at a much faster rate of speed than is the Negro majority.

THEREFORE, OUR POLICY SHOULD BE TO INSIST that the British suspend the Guianian constitution and put off final independence until after an election could be held, which might be approximately two years. In the meantime, it would be hoped that something could be done to diminish the power and break the grasp of Jagan to prevent the first Communist take-over on a mainland in the Western Hemisphere.

SHOULD GUIANA BECOME ANOTHER SOVIET SATELLITE, not only would Castro's Cuba be strengthened, but another festering sore would be created to spread the disease to other Latin American Countries.

It's the Law in Texas

THE MAYFLOW COMPACT

From the dawn of Western thought, men like Socrates have wondered what claims the law have on us—aside from pure force.

Some men had contracted to set up and obey the laws to keep the peace: "You don't hurt me and I won't hurt you." But until 1620 at least nobody had ever seen men enter such a social contract.

True, Socrates in return for the good Athens had done for him, said that he had entered an implied, unwritten contract to obey the laws, even the unjust judgment against him to take the hemlock and die.

Still, not until the Mayflower band twenty centuries later, sailed over to settle in the new world did we get a social contract actually signed and sealed.

It comes down to us in 198 vital words, the granddaddy of all written constitutions, as well as a document in the history of liberty under the law. It gists:

"We . . . do by these presents solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and one another, covenant ourselves together into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation, . . . and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions, and offices from time to time as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the colony, unto which we promise all due submission and obedience. In witness whereof we have subscribed our names at Cape Cod on the 11 of November . . ."

Much took place in the next 168 years. But in 1788 the new states wrote and ratified the world's first and now oldest and most successful constitution. Why do men obey the laws? It says:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution

Foreign Country and Another State Claim Portions of El Paso, Texas, Area

AUSTIN—Did you know that you can drive on U. S. Highway 80 in El Paso, Texas and see old Mexico with one eye and New Mexico with the other?

It's true. The Texas Highway Department explained two of Texas' strangest "tall tales."

Old Mexico is an island of land bordered by U. S. 80, and New Mexico is a section of that highway, but they both lie within the heart of El Paso—giving El Paso a claim that no other city in the country can rival; it has a foreign country and another state within its city limits.

These tall tales are rooted in Texas history, dating back to the 1800's when the rampaging Rio Grande wandered hither and yon causing boundary disputes and settlements galore between Mexico and the United States. Cordova Island is the story of peaceful negotiations, but the story of the New Mexico highway is a story of controversy that was carried clear up to the Supreme Court of the United States.

You have to watch closely or you might blink and miss the moment when you cross state lines in El Paso. But if one follows U. S. Highway 80 along the Rio Grande River, going northeast from the business district, he will cross 1,222 feet of the state of New Mexico before he reaches the north city limits of El Paso.

A road has existed here as a wagon trail since before recorded history. In 1898 El Paso county designated the road as a county road because the road was assumed to be entirely in Texas, as the recognized boundary between Texas and the Territory of New Mexico was the center of the existing river.

The road was topped with tar and gravel in 1911, and four years later this was replaced with concrete, expanding the road from 14 feet to 18 feet wide. In 1924, the Texas Highway Department took over maintenance of the road as part of State Highway 1.

New Mexico became a state in 1912. It immediately filed suit to determine the location of the Rio Grande River in 1852. After years of testimony and Master of Chancery findings, The U. S. Supreme Court made its final ruling in 1928.

The court appointed a surveyor to delineate and mark by monuments the center of the 1852 river. It was found the average width of the river was about 300 feet. By 1930, the surveying was completed, showing that about 1,222 feet of the road actually was in New Mexico. The markers in the pavement on the state line still exist today.

Improvements in the highway have been made when they were needed, by means of cooperation between the Texas Highway Department and the New Mexico State Highway Department. Texas prepared the plans, let the contract, and New Mexico paid directly to Texas contractors the cost of the improvement. However, recent law changes in New Mexico may preclude this procedure in the future.

The story of Cordova Island, while lacking the excitement of controversy, is no less rich in Texas history.

The island—technically an enclave—consists of 385 acres, or about one-half square mile, and adjoins U. S. Highway 80 on the north side of the Rio Grande. It is used for farming and has few inhabitants. Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution prevents Mexico from selling the land to the United States. The island is connected by a bridge with the mainland of Mexico.

It was originated when Mexico and the United States agreed that its formation would relieve flood conditions to El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, its twin city across the border.

This was back in 1899, and represented a strange lull in 72 years of stormy controversy caused by the land changes the meandering river wrought.

Briefly, this is how Cordova Island was originated: Before the Rio Grande Rectification Project was formed to help stabilize the river's path and before the construction of storage reservoirs upstream, the Rio Grande's behavior fluctuated between droughts and sudden floods. In 1895 and 1896, El Paso and Ciudad Juarez were drought dry, but the next year a tremendous flood caused heavy damage to the two cities.

Through investigation by International Boundary Commission, now known as the International Boundary and Water Commission, the United States and Mexico showed that flood dangers could be diminished by excavation of a cutoff at a large bend of the river immediately downstream from El Paso and Ciudad Juarez.

The two cities cooperated to perform the work in 1899, and Cordova Island became a Mexican oasis in the Texas city of El Paso.

The two countries agreed that the cutoff tract would remain under the Mexican jurisdiction, according to the Guadalupe Hidalgo Treaty of 1848 that provided that artificial changes in the river's course would not effect the boundary.

Oil Value Alone Exceed Texas' Farm Income

College Station—The value of Texas' farm and ranch production is exceeded by only one other raw material, oil. The value of rural production exceeds the state's total yearly agricultural for manufacturing, or the total of construction awards or the payroll for retail trades, points out John McHaney, extension agent.

Farm and ranch production each year has a total value of just under 2.5 billion dollars, but, explains McHaney, agriculture adds much more to our total economy than just income from the sale of products. Business firms which assemble, process, distribute, transport wholesale and retail the products of Texas' farms and ranches employ about 20 percent of the labor force of the states and add about 3.9 billion dollars to the agribusiness economy. Their primary concern is to get the agricultural products to the final consumer in the desired form and at the right place and time.

Simple addition shows that the sale of agriculture products plus the costs of processing and distributing them annually adds to the state's economy about $5.3 billion. The economic destiny of most Texas counties, the economist adds, hinges primarily on the agribusiness economy.

McHaney emphasizes the fact that the future will belong to those people and states which work to keep their agriculture economy competitive with other areas of the nation and world. Agriculture is no longer a way

Stockmen Urged To Spray Against Worms

College Station—To protect their $3 million investment in the screwworm eradication program, stockmen are encouraged to prevent further worm infestations by spraying their animals on a regular basis, says L-603, a new leaflet of the TAES.

"Spray and Protect Your Investment" explains that the success of the eradication program in the Southwest depends greatly on the cooperation and assistance of the livestock producers and others who contributed mightily to it. It further says that producers can also help their own cause by avoiding the movement of infested animals and by reporting all suspected infestations immediately.

of life but rather a big competitive business. He's strong for keeping the industry in Texas in a strong competitive position.

Annual Youth Range Camp At Junction

College Station—The A and M College of Texas Adjunct at Junction will be headquarters for the ninth annual Youth Range Camp for outstanding 4-H and FFA boys. Biggest "savings book" in the world

Keeping the Free World free is a mighty expensive proposition.

And our enemies are doing everything they can to make it so. They've said they expect to "bury us" economically.

They see us as soft, self-satisfied, lazy. They don't think we're prepared to make any sacrifices for freedom.

But there's a "special book" in the U. S. Treasury Department that says they're as wrong about that as they are about a lot of other things.

It's a symbolic "freedom book" which shows that tens of millions of American families have invested 46 billions of dollars in their country in the form of U. S. Savings Bonds. Dollars the government uses to keep our economy strong. To help keep the Free World free.

This is one way you can meet the challenge to Americans. And there's no need to feel funny about collecting good interest on Savings Bonds. The financial strength of your family is part of the strength of the nation.

So help yourself as you help your country, by regular purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds . . . through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or from any bank.

Quick facts about U.S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, stolen or destroyed
- You can get your money anytime
- You can save automatically on Payroll Savings

Demand for Fed Cattle Is Moving Up From Lows Established During May

Demand for fed cattle was strong during June and prices moved upward from the lows established in May. Demand was particularly good for cattle under 650 pounds and toward the end of June there was a marked improvement in the demand for heavier cattle. Prices generally were up 50 cents to a dollar per hundred.

Indications are that the backlog of long fed heavy cattle have to a large extent been moved to market, according to the latest monthly summary published by the Cattle Feeders Division of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

Lloyd Bergsma, director of the division, said an air of restrained optimism has appeared in the industry for the first time in many months. "The market has the best undertone that has developed since the first of the year," he explained.

Activity in the Dressed Beef Market was generally good throughout the month. The supply of meat offered in most markets was fully normal, but with a strong demand, prices moved 50 cents to $1.50 higher. Compared to last month's close, markets in the Southwest showed the greatest price advance. Midwestern and Eastern markets were stronger but failed to keep pace with advances in the Southwest.

In Los Angeles, choice steer beef 500-600 pounds sold at $38.50-$39.00, up $1.50 compared to last month. Choice heifer at the same time was $1.00 higher than last month. Most classes of calf sold steady to strong.

At Houston, choice steer beef 400-700 pounds sold at $40.50-$41.50, $2.00 higher than the close of last month. Calf 200-350 pounds and grading Good brought $43.00-$45.00; $1.00 above last month's prices.

At Denver, prices were only about steady with choice steer beef 600-700 pounds quoted at $36.50-$37.00, while choice heifer beef 500-700 pounds sold at $35.75-$36.00.

General rains improved pasture conditions across the state. Movement of stocker and feeder cattle was reduced. Demand for feedlot replacements and for grazing continued strong and Feeders continue to buy with caution as the price advances on feeder cattle have exceeded the price improvements in the slaughter markets.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Smith have returned from a visit with their two sons in Denver City. They were accompanied by Mrs. Smith's sister, Mrs. Erma Carter, of Las Cruces.

Get more for your clothing dollar through good workmanship. You'll be a better judge of quality in ready-to-wear if you know the characteristics of good workmanship. The way a garment is cut and put together affects its appearance, fit and wear. The following workmanship characteristics apply to all clothing:

1. Garment parts cut on the grain of material are likely to hold their parts.
2. Careful watching of the pattern of fabric. Check at sleeve, waistline, collars, pockets, and center seams.
3. Hand or machine stitches that are even in length, straight and securely fastened.
4. Thread that matches fabric of garment.
5. Seams that are flat and even in width with raw edges finished.
6. Reinforcements at points where there will be strain. This may be done by extra rows of stitching, metal rivets, patches and bar tacks.

7. Hems which are flat and even in width, and stitching inconspicuous on right side of garment.

8. Lining, padding, interfacing and trim should be as durable and require the same method of clothing as the garment.

9. Closures should be flat, inconspicuous and long enough for ease in dressing and undressing.

10. Buttonholes should fit easily over buttons and ends should be well reinforced.

A garment may lack some of the above details of workmanship and still be a good buy if fabric, style and fit are good.

has been spent recently for industrial construction in our service area.

Even today, $28,000,000 is a lot of money. But a survey shows that this vast amount has been spent recently for construction of new industrial plants in our service area, and for expansion of existing ones.

The figure is evidence of two things. One is that our service area is becoming more and more industrialized. The other is that when we say "The Center of the Southwest" is one of the Nation's fastest growing regions, we have the facts to back it up.

The industrial figure is one fact.
The commercial and civic improvement figures are others. Day by day we become more than ever convinced that this region faces growth unlimited.

... more proof that the Center of the Southwest is one of the Nation's fastest growing regions.
