Change of Venue Sought In Curry Murder Trial

EASTLAND — A formal motion for a change in venue to try Nathan Curry, 17-year old Ciscoan, on charges of murdering Mrs. Florence Hussey was on file in the 91st District Court at Eastland, according to records at District Clerk Roy Lane's office.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Curry, parents of the youth, took the petition to the clerk's office Friday. A hearing on the motion is expected to be held April 1.

At the same time, young Curry's name was entered on the criminal docket of the court, formally charging him with murder and indicating that he has been served with a capias which was issued last Feb. 20.

Nathan Curry was released recently from the State School at Gatesville where the county juvenile court sent him in August, 1961, in connection with the Hussey case. In recent weeks, Nathan has been living in Lubbock.

Other court filings showed capias returned charging Gary Lynn March of Cisco with grass-land burning, two counts; Gus Orman of Cisco, sale of whiskey; and W. H. Ballinger, failure to return to scene of accident. Still unrecorded were the names of those indicted in the recent Worth Food Mart robbery at Ranger, one for negligent homicide, and one for rape.

The plan of Lone Star Steel was inaugurated last year by E. B. Germany, Lone Star Steel board chairman, who suggested to the employees that in lieu of sending Christmas cards to fellow workers that they contribute to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children at Dallas to aid in the care and treatment of the little patients who are admitted from all over the state. The plan is said to have now been adopted by other companies interested in aiding these children back to normal lives.

Ronnie visited the Philippines, various ports in Korea, including Inchon and Chinhae, which he declared was the coldest place he had ever been in during his life; Okinawa, Formosa, and other ports. It is a deadly serious business, said Ronnie, and there were times when he worked for 36 hours without sleep, with the average working day running about 18 hours.

Projects Talked By Planning Group

Members of the newly appointed planning commission met with the City Council at the City Hall Monday night for preliminary discussions of possible municipal projects.

Present also was Chester Nichols of the Public Housing Administration, urban planner, who discussed projects on which federal aid might be secured.

Mr. Nichols said that many communities have hired planners at considerable expense but he suggested that such planning could more effectively be done by the citizens themselves.

Codes, zoning regulations and up-to-date city maps were discussed.

Among the topics considered by the group were improved streets, opening streets already dedicated but not opened in order that more and better building sites might be realized; improvements of public and private property and so forth.

It was pointed out that desirable lots for residential building in the community of Rising Star are simply not available and that if a number of good sites are realized local residential building could be spurred.

It was announced that a joint meeting of the school board and the city council would be held Monday night to discuss proposals for securing an adequate public auditorium.

1963 Edition Of Livestock Show Scores Triumphs

EASTLAND — The Eastland County Livestock Show scored triumphs on every count in this year's edition, largest number of entries, largest number of spectators — and it didn't rain during the midst of the show, for once.

Classifying and sifting of animals and judging of dairy cattle opened the two-day show Friday morning.

Johnny Williamson of Olden showed the first grand champion of the 1963 show when his Brown Swiss was selected as the female in the dairy show. The reserve champion was exhibited by Larry Herrington of Ranger.

Two other Ranger youths, Willie Cantwell and Bobby Dempsey, took top honors in the Angora goat show. Cantwell had the champion buck and Dempsey the champion doe in the junior division.

The fine wool breeding sheep laurels went to Phillip Harrison of Eastland who took grand champion honors on both his ewe and ram.

The Hampshire ewe, bred by Sidney Foy of Baird and exhibited by Ivy Ferguson, Cisco 4-H girl, was named grand champion ewe of all other breeds, by C. T. Parker, Rannels farm agent, who judged breeding sheep.

The reserve champion was a Southdown ewe owned and exhibited by Jo Ann Baker, 10, Eastland 4-H club.

It's the Law in Texas

Division of Estates Explained

The death of an intestate person (one who has no will) may give rise to many problems regarding distribution of his separate estate. In the preceding column we investigated the manner of dividing the community estate upon the death of a husband or wife. Now we shall see that, where separate property is involved, a completely different set of rules applies in determining heirship and apportioning the estate among the rightful claimants.

It may be well to recall that the separate estate of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Now, here is a general idea as to how your separate property will be divided if you do not make a will with contrary provisions prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and if, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of previously deceased children, the children and their descendants immediately obtain a full (fee) title in two-thirds of the real estate involved. The surviving spouse receives a life interest in the remaining one-third of the real property, which passes on to the children and their descendants upon the death of the spouse.

The rule for distributing personal property—cash, stocks, bonds, furniture or any other items not constituting real estate—is different. Here the surviving spouse gets full ownership of one-third, and the children and their descendants inherit the balance.

ren and their descendants inherit the balance.

Now suppose your husband or wife survives, but there are no surviving children or their descendants. In this case the surviving spouse inherits all of the personal property involved.

With regard to real estate, the survivor obtains full title to one-half, and the other half is divided between your mother and father, if both survive you. If only one of them survives, he or she receives only one half of this portion, and the other half (or one-fourth of the entire real estate) will be divided among your brothers and sisters (and their descendants) who survive. If there are no surviving brothers and sisters and their descendants, then the one surviving parent inherits the full one-half.

Where no parent survives, but there are brother and sisters and descendants, the full one-half is divided among these survivors.

And, if there are no parents or brothers and sisters (and their descendants) surviving, then the surviving husband or wife inherits all of the real estate.

HIGGINBOTHAM'S

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

By Omar Bursleson, M. C. 17th

WASHINGTON, D. C. — IN THE FEBRUARY 27 issue of the Baptist Standard, Dr. E. S. James, the Editor, writes about a visit he had with the President of the United States a few days before.

DR. JAMES WROTE, "IT WAS A PLEASURE to tell the President that he has disillusioned many of us who feared that a Roman Catholic could not make a good President and that in our personal opinion he has proved that there is at least one who can act without religious bias. It was a joy to compliment him on his fairness in making appointments because it seems evident that he has shown no religious prejudice in them. It was easy to thank him for listening to us little people and for his rigid adherence to his pre-election statement that he would defend the principle of separation of church and state. We gave it as our opinion that he sometimes stood very tall when the country was bowed low and that perhaps he stood tallest when he quarantined Cuba and defied the communist world. After listening with intense interest to his appraisal of some international problems we asked permission to tell him about the people called Baptists, but we made it very plain that no person is a spokesman for them and that our observations were our very own."

IN ANOTHER PARAGRAPH OF DR. JAMES' editorial in the Baptist Standard, he had this to say: "It was our purpose to point out to him that democracy is necessary to Baptist progress. They are a democratic people and have never fared well under a totalitarian government. He seemed to understand that the present democracy on earth is a small Baptist church where every member has a voice in everything that is done."

H. S. CHILDRESS

FURTHER QUOTING THE ARTICLE BY DR. JAMES, as he related to the President his feelings on several matters involving the principle of the separation of church and state, Dr. James pointed out five areas where this separation principle seems most often endangered: "The disposition of surplus government property, distribution through church agencies of Food for Peace in foreign countries, use of Peace Corps personnel as teachers in sectarian schools in other lands, use of foreign aid for building public schools in countries where the system is under domination of a religious group, and subsidies to church-related institutions on any level. We expressed the opinion that while some Baptists do not hold with us on what constitutes subsidies, we believe Baptists at the grassroots level are solidly against government aid to them or to any other church groups."

DR. JAMES SAID HE GOT THE IMPRESSION that the President is vitally concerned about safeguarding the separation principle in each of these above mentioned issues.

DR. JAMES WROTE THAT WHEN HE WAS BACK in his hotel room he sought to evaluate the man he had just met for the first time. He completed the Baptist Standard editorial with this: "We knew he (the President) had made some mistakes and that, being human, he will make some more. We were convinced in our mind, however, that our President is a man of faith who is characterized by great intelligence, much ability, strong convictions, and profound courage. We had told him that we do not agree with all his plans and programs, and he understood that it was not just an effort to be critical. We are convinced, however, that he will not knowingly err when the welfare of the nation is at stake. This editor was remarkably impressed with his apparent sincerity, his gracious and understanding spirit, and his eagerness to be President of all the American people. We have prayed for him many times, but we will do it more often now that we realize more fully the weight of the load a President carries."

Marketing Costs Account for High Price of Steak

College Station — The difference between the price of steak for his cattle is due to marketing costs, according to a new publication of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"From Steer to Steak, L-582, states that these marketing costs include all the costs of processing and distribution required to convert the live animal to the salable product. It says these costs can be divided into three groups; marketing livestock, slaughter-wholesaling and retailing.

The costs involved in the marketing process begin when the animal is sold by the producer. The costs of transportation, sale and the price the producer gets or handling of the steer must be included in these expenses.

The next phase of marketing is slaughtering the animal and wholesaling the carcass. A U.S. Choice grade animal will yield about 59 pounds of carcass beef from every 100 pounds of live weight. Thus the value of the byproduct and carcass determines the price that can be paid for the live animal, the publication says.

The final step in marketing beef is retailing and of the 59 pounds of carcass beef left 12 more is lost in trimming and cutting the meat into retail cuts. This leaves only 47 pounds of the original 100 pounds of live animal and this is not all steak. The retail price for this meat must be at least twice the live steer price to pay for the freight loss and doesn't include the costs involved in marketing, the bulletin says.

All steer is not steak and price we pay for steak must be considerably higher than the price the producer gets for his product, the bulletin explains.

About Your Health

Today is not only the Space Age. It is also the Chemical Age.

One of the main benefits of living in this chemical age is availability of numerous pesticides. They have been essential for the improvement of our agricultural output and therefore for raising our standard of living. Also, these pesticides have been helpful in the control of many insect borne diseases.

Unfortunately, the most effective pesticides are often the most toxic and precautions against them the most difficult to enforce. In 1962, 13 Texans died as a result of mishandling of these toxic materials.

With the increased use of these highly toxic materials, both at home and in industry, it is essential that we stress safety measures at every opportunity. Listed below are some important points to remember when handling and using toxic insecticides.

1. Follow the instructions on the manufacturer's label to the smallest detail.
2. Store toxic sprays and dust away from children and irresponsible individuals, as well as livestock, foods and animal feeds.
3. All regular handlers of phosphorus insecticides should have cholinesterase tests at intervals not greater than 10 days during the periods they are working with the materials.
4. All applicators should avoid breathing dust, vapors, or spray from the insecticides.
5. Respirators, which meet the specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, should be worn when handling or working around highly toxic insecticides.
6. Freshly laundered protective clothing and gloves should be worn when sprays and dust are being applied.
7. If toxic insecticides are spilled on the skin or clothing, work should be suspended and the person involved should bathe

- and change clothes.
 8. Individuals handling toxic insecticides should bathe and change clothes immediately after completing jobs or during any extensive breaks.
 9. All personnel and livestock should be protected from drifts of spray or dust.
 10. When toxic insecticides are applied to agricultural plants such as cotton or grain the fields should not be reentered for three days after application.
 11. Toxic insecticides should be kept away from flames and sparks when being diluted for application since many solvents used in preparing insecticides are highly inflammable. (Feature from the Division of Public Health Education, Texas State Department of Health.)

OUR WAY OF LIFE DEPENDS ON YOU

Whether our American way of life changes for good or bad depends on you—the citizens of tomorrow; however, good citizenship consists of the same things for everyone.

First is knowledge. We must know our way of life and our democracy; we must know the machinery of government. Knowing our own government, however, is not enough. We must also know others—communism, military dictatorships and socialism. Only when we have an understanding of other ways of life, will we be able to fully appreciate our own; only when we understand the principles and aims of communism, will we be able to win the cold war.

Second is participation. We must not only know our government, but we must participate in it. To participate wisely, we must have a wide knowledge of current events; we must vote, but we must also know what we are voting for and why.

Just as we are citizens of the United States, we are also citizens of a society. This kind of citizenship entails other duties. We must not encroach upon other people's rights; moreover, we must go farther than this negative attitude; we must be positive—help other people.

We must always remember that our way of life depends on us; for our government is of the people, by the people, and for the people—and we are the people.

"NOT FINISHED,
JUST BEGUN"

Hi there,
Thanks to Cynthia for filling in for me these past two weeks. It looks like I would eventually learn to quit putting everything off until the last minute.

Book report time is here again. By this time, we should have at least five reports in; be sure to check, Seniors, to see if you are meeting the requirements.

Chemistry themes are in now and everyone is relaxing a little; American History and Civics term themes should be nearing completion.

The volleyball, tennis, and track teams are in full swing now. Those Seniors on the tennis team are Cynthia Brown, Ted Cawley, Charles Wade, Cole Weaver, and Mike Fisher; Tommy Alford, Kenneth Nunnally, and Donald Ingle are Senior participants in track.

Oh, yes, Seniors, remember those annuals and invitations must be paid for by tomorrow. Don't forget those class dues, either.

Deana, Carl tells me that you are trying your flirting techniques on the four-footed beasts. Are they more responsive than the two-legged males?

Mary, what's this about your wandering around over study hall in a way that will attract attention? I didn't know!

Cynthia, your moods seem to change with the attendance. I understand that you haven't had as many "colds" here lately, either. Would you care to explain this?

That seems to be it for this week.

—Bye for now,
Katy

"UPWARD AND ONWARD"
This completes the fourth week of our fifth six weeks. By the way, book reports are due, so don't forget.
Today is also the first day of spring. You girls better start thinking about that new Easter outfit; boys don't worry with such minor things, only let their mothers.

The Home Ec. III girls have started their last home experience projects. It will seem funny not rushing around trying to get those last few hours in when the time limit is about to expire.

The Ag. boys were pleased with the results of the Eastland Stock Show.

The Typing students are making an honest effort to keep up, believe me! Right, Cherry?

I really appreciate junior boys that know how to change flat tires since I don't even know where to start!

L. P., C. M., and H. S., What about these new interests??

L. M., Do the girls in our class embarrass you when they talk about your handsomeness?

D. W., You are a nuisance!
Harriet

"KNOWLEDGE COMES, BUT WISDOM LINGERS"

We are all nervously awaiting curtain time tonight; yes, this is the day of our big plays. We want to see all of you there tonight at the high school gym at 7:30. We've worked hard on these plays and hope that you enjoy them.

Several of our Sophomore boys participated in the stock show at Eastland last week; we are very proud and extend congratulations to those who came home with high honors.

All of our classes seem to be progressing well as we are drawing nearer and nearer to exam time. Those book reports are due again, and the research papers should be nearing completion.

It was reported to me last week that one of the Algebra I classes was having some trouble calculating the weight of a crapple, also the size of his mouth. The Algebra II class was working on Caps and football players.

The band students are looking forward to our Banquet given by the Band Parents' Association. We certainly appreciate all the many things that you have done for us this year, including the fine work done on our band hall.

There are two boys in our class; I won't mention names, that like little pet ducks and playing cards. Also, one boy must be recognized for his good sportsmanship; he's an excellent loser and pays off immediately. I must not forget the girls; they deserve equal time also. One had a great amount of trouble with a zipper, while another's problem was the list that just kept getting smaller and smaller.

Please don't forget to attend our plays tonight and to read our news next week.
Charlene

"LIVE AND LEARN"

Hi! This week it's book reports, book reports, and more book reports, which are due Friday. Last week we turned in our themes and we are all waiting anxiously for those grades!

This week the freshmen are studying very hard before six weeks' tests. The algebra students are working with fractions, while the biology students are continuing the study of plant life. The general math students are exploring new heights in algebra. The H.E. I girls are finishing their dresses one by one; the Ag. I boys are learning by doing outside projects; such as, land judging and showing of livestock. The seventh period study hall girls are also, doing a number of out-of-the-world things such as spilling ink over tables and all over certain people.

Linda E., I hear that you have been giving Linda B. advice about not being too shy!

Lynn, who is Ben? Oh, he's a senior from Albany.

Brenda, what was the show about last Saturday night? By the way, why are you so eager to hike to Cross Plains?

Susie, I like your new shoe.
Until next week—
Marcia.

"TOWARD NEW HORIZONS"

Now that we are all settled from our trip to Tarleton, we are at work again.

Several Freshmen girls are considering working on their Junior Degrees in F.H.A. We will try to make it a better one, hope each girl in our chapter and we want to encourage the girls to work on their degrees.

The Junior and Sophomore girls are working desperately in their cooking labs. Each class has prepared several meal and have found them enjoyable; watch those calories, girls!

The Freshmen girls have almost (well, nearly) finished their dresses. Julie, please be more careful when working on the belt to your dress!?

Until next week,
Becky

OFFICE SUPPLIES AT THE RECORD

BLEACHER ATHLETE

The most common sight at sports' events in this day and time is the bleacher athlete. This is the person who is always the first to arrive and the last to leave. The referees and other officials have no knowledge whatsoever of the game as far as this person is concerned. He seems to think that he wrote the book of rules and no one else can apply these rules but him.

This person is the one who is waiting to finish school before he accepts that big coaching position. How do I know that he has been offered one? Why, that is easy to tell. Just listen to him degrade the coach; not only the techniques he applies to the game but also the boys he chooses to play the game. Yes, it is easy to see that he is secure as far as his future is concerned.

This is the picture of the bleacher athlete. This, however, is not the true picture; this pictures only the outward person. What makes this person a bleacher athlete; why does he not participate and take an active part? There are many reasons for this.

Close study reveals that the bleacher athlete really does have a knowledge of the game he is watching; however, his sarcastic and "know-it-all" attitude is a result of insecurity and a lack of confidence in himself. He feels a desire to excel in something; and since he is afraid to try the sport as a participant, he tries to show his knowledge as a spectator. In spite of his boastful attitude, the bleacher athlete is really very insecure and lonely. This person needs guidance and friendliness from others but is often reluctant to accept it.

He feels that this would degrade him in the eyes of his fellow bleacher athletes.

Yes, the bleacher athlete is a common sight to sports' fans today. In his own mind he is the greatest athlete in his time; however, the spectators never see him on the field of action—he chooses to show his ability from the bleachers.

So we see, the person who is always disagreeing with the officials, degrading the coach, and ridiculing the participants is the bleacher athlete. He appears to know all there is to know about everything; but, in reality, he knows little about anything except insecurity, lack of confidence in himself, and loneliness.

What should we do about the bleacher athlete? We should not laugh at him and encourage him in his actions; instead, we should offer him friendship and guidance to help him overcome his inabilities.

BOYS' SPORTS

The track team has begun getting into shape for the District Track Meet to be held in the next few weeks. We think that the boys are really doing fine and hope that they will go all the way this year.

The teams which will compete will be May, Zephyr, Brooke-smith, and Blanket. They went to Stephenville last week, where they took part in a very good meet; we want to thank them for the good job that they did at Stephenville.

The tennis team also went to Olden last week, where they made a name for themselves in tennis.

The boys' P.E. class has started baseball, and the prospects are looking fine.

During these dates the short course is in progress, Mr. Wiedemann will be available to assist farmers with individual tractor problems and to provide "on-the-farm" instruction, according to H. L. Geye.

Farmers interested in attending the short course should write or call the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Jones, or the Teacher of Vocational Agriculture, Mr. Geye. An entry fee of $2 will be charged. Tractor Maintenance Short Course Certificates are to be presented to each individual who attends all the training sessions.

Mr. Wiedemann states that the key to longer tractor life comes from a full knowledge of the fundamentals of an engine and the application of the proper maintenance skills involving lubrication, fuels, carburetion, valves and ignition. Mr. Wiedemann will cover the proper adjustment and maintenance of these tractors. Safety during both maintenance and actual operation will also be included in this course.

"Short courses in tractor subjects, are now available to maintenance, as well as other farmers throughout the state under the new cooperative program between the Texas Education Agency and Texas A. & M. College," stated Bob Jaska, associate professor, Department of Agricultural Education at Texas A. & M. College, who coordinates the program for Texas A. & M.

"This cooperative program," states Jaska, "is designed to make the services of specialists available to conduct short courses under the supervision of public schools. Such a program will enable teachers of vocational agriculture to provide improved educational services to farm people."

Specialists are now available in the fields of beef cattle, insect control, farm management, farm electrification, farm welding, swine production, tractor maintenance, dairy science, pasture, and oxy-acetylene welding.

Need to add spice to your meal?

You can help sharpen appetites by using spices in your cooking. Spices lend subtle flavor to foods if they are introduced with a light hand. It is well to become familiar with the large spice family.

Spices are usually classified as roots, buds of flowers, fruits, barks or seeds of pungent plants. The herbs are the aromatic leaves of plants which grow in the temperate zone. Bay leaves and mint are the familiar ones. Marjoram, basil, chervil, oregano and saffron are just a few of the many herbs which may find a place on your pantry shelf.

Some of the "seed" spices that may give variety are celery seed, sesame, poppy and caraway seeds.

Among the "berry" spices are the peppercorns from which come both the black and white pepper without which a meal would seem incomplete. Since it is a familiar seasoning on many tables, you may find it interesting to learn how it grows.

Black pepper is the dried fruit or berries of the pepper vine, which is found in tropical climates. The berries are picked while still green and then dried in the sun.

White pepper is the ripened seed of the berry which is fermented, then washed to remove the skin and pulp and spread on mats to dry in the sun. Most of the pepper we use comes from the Far East. It is a well-liked and well-used spice and may be delicately added to all foods with the exception of sweet desserts.
