"The best ride we ever saw!"

That was the verdict of most people at the Rising Star rodeo last Friday night when Bob Gholson of Cross Plains rode a dun mare in the Rising Star rodeo remuda which to local knowledge had never been ridden fair in a rodeo contest.

"She's a pitching sure thing," so the arena directors declared. Bob rode her to the limit and raked her good.

Her name?

She's never been christened by the rodeo officials. For one thing, it was unnecessary. She acquired one as naturally and spontaneously as you might expect from a crowd which admires a fighter and likes a hard clean, fair contest.

You smile when you say it, pardner.

Mrs. Cliffogene Witt, Rising Star postmistress, believes that there are a number of young men and women in Rising Star who are overlooking a good bet for permanent, pleasant and well-paying employment in not responding to an opportunity to become postal clerks or city carriers.

The local office is seeking applications from local residents for these positions.

If you are at all interested, I suggest you make further inquiry at the post office where Mrs. Witt will be glad to explain the opportunities and requirements in more detail.

American people have the happy faculty of transposing their troubles and irritations into humor, making them more bearable. Here is a bit of the like overhead at the coffee table:

President Kennedy on the telephone:

"Hello!"
"Yes, this is Kennedy."
"No Martin."
"Yes Martin."

Mrs. L. R. Smith has more than a casual interest in the Bryson to Breckenridge cattle drive. Henry S. Bryson, the man who organized and is directing this modern-day version of old-time trail drives over old-time drover territory, is a nephew-in-law. That means he married her niece. Mrs. Smith comes of Jacksboro, Tex., family, and Jacksboro was a frontier ranching community, famous in Indian raid history.

Trial's end of the present drive, which originated at Bryson—named for a grandfather of Henry Bryson—is the new Breckenridge cattle market.

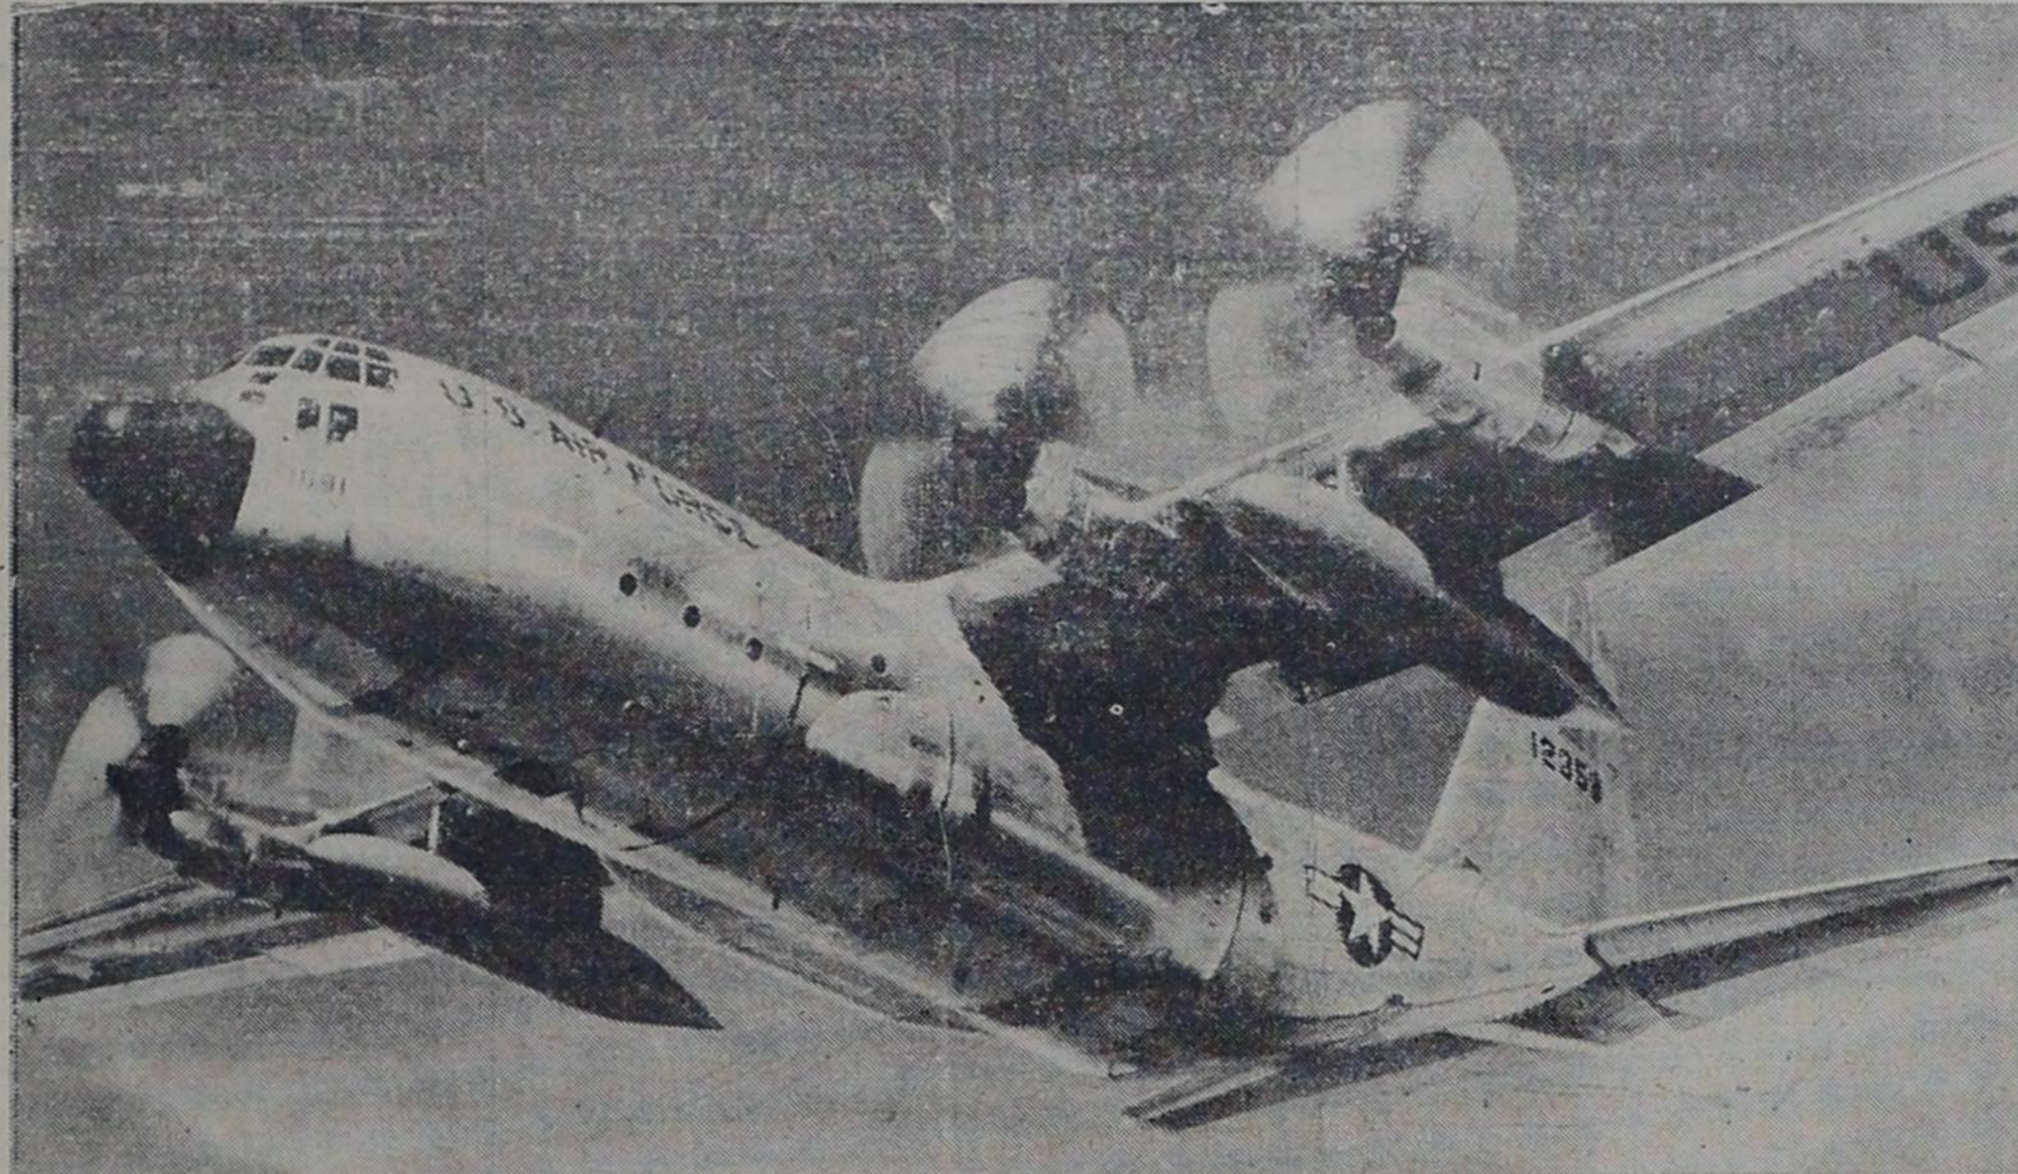

It is hardly a practical method of transportation under modern conditions, but publicity-wise, it gets the job done.

Most of us have wondered why those big U. S. Air Force planes, such as the giant Hercules C-130 pictured on the front page of the Record, occasionally fly at low altitudes singly or in groups of two, three, and five over the Rising Star area.

A news dispatch from Dyess Air Force Base at Abilene explains it. The big troop carriers are practicing paratroop transport tactics. The reason for the comparatively low flying is to make radar detection by an enemy as difficult as possible. An interesting interview with Col. Burl W. McLaughlin explains the practice missions. Safety is assured and there is no sonic boom, for which we are thankful.

The planes are low enough to give ground observers a first-hand view of the big ships. Perhaps some of these days we may see a practice parachute drop, and that would be something to see, I'll bet.

Big Planes Fly Low Over Rising Star - - For a Purpose

Giant Hercules Assault Aircraft used in Paratroop practise exercises over the Rising Star area.

Low-Flying Planes In Paratroop Tactic Work

Dyess AFB, Texas—You may be closer to the Air Force than you think. That was the word from Dyess Air Force Base, near Abilene, to residents of Rising Star area. Giant C-130 Hercules assault aircraft from the 516th Troop Carrier Wing at Dyess are now making frequent low-altitude practice runs that carry them over the plains of central Texas at regular intervals.

Col. Burl W. McLaughlin, commander of the 516th, told The Rising Star Record the following facts about the airlift operations at Dyess. The C-130 is the backbone of the assault airlift force for the TAC, USAF, is frequently used to carry and drop U. S. Army paratroopers in practice exercises, and if need be, during the limited brush-fire wars that may crop up anywhere in the world. In dropping paratroopers in or near enemy territory, the problem of detection by the enemy's radar network makes the job especially dangerous.

Now, TAC has developed a new method for overcoming this risk. C-130 crews fly into the battle zone at very low altitude—about 500 feet—flying under the radar scanning range. Just before the drop zone, the aircraft makes a maximum performance climb to 1000 feet, releases up to 65 fully-equipped men, then rapidly drops back to its low-level route.

A practice zone has been in operation at Dyess since last March, and it is now being used to qualify 516th crews in the new technique, dubbed "Close Look" by TAC. The flight pattern for Close Look takes in the area to 100 miles north, east and south of Abilene. Flights over this area started early in July, and are expected to continue until about August 1.

Colonel McLaughlin stressed that the low-level flights are perfectly safe for both crews and observers below. The main sign that Hercules is near is the low drone of four turboprop engines. C-130s fly well below the speed of sound, and thus cause no sonic boom.

Central and west Texans can clearly identify the Hercules as it passes over the area. The plane has four engines, each with a propeller 13 feet in diameter. The props always rotate at the same speed—3700 rpm—and speed and altitude of the plane are changed by rotating the prop blades so they "bite" more or less air as they spin.

The 516th troop carrier wing flies the newest version of the C-130, the E model, and this plane has a giant pylon tank under each wing. Each tank holds over 1500 gallons of JP4 fuel, and the total fuel capacity of the E is close to 10,000 gallons. Each plane also can be identified by the red, yellow and blue TAC emblem on the vertical tail stabilizer.

Soon, the 516th will make use of its new Close Look technique in exercise swift strike III, a massive military exercise in North and South Carolina. Blue and Red armies and air forces will conduct mock battles to test the effectiveness of new techniques such as close look. The exercise is under direction of Gen. Paul Adams, U. S. Army, and his joint Army-Air Force strike command.

Mrs. J. W. Murphy had as her guests Sunday her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Audrey Majors and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Murphy all of Fort Worth.

The home of Lemmie Bishop on South Main Street has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hicks.

SWPGA Meet Is Expected to Draw Large Attendance

Peanut growers from Texas and Oklahoma are expected to attend this year's annual meeting in Stephenville, Texas, August 16 in extremely large numbers. The Southern Peanut Grower's Association, founded in 1937, now consists of better than 10,000 active peanut grower members. Its principal office, located at Gorman, Texas, serves as headquarters for the organization and extends its operation into all peanut producing areas west of the Mississippi River. This includes the states of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas, Arizona, and California. The Association serves peanut growers in many ways including making available price support loans, keeping the growers abreast of marketing and production information, encouraging research on Southwest peanuts and representation of growers on the state and national levels with respect to administrative and legislative matters. The vast geographical area covered by the Association is divided into 7 districts. The growers in each district are represented by a member of the board of directors. These directors are Johnnie Rollins, Grandbury, Texas, president; Jesse Leach, Holdenville, Oklahoma, vice-president; D. B. Warren, Gorman, Texas, secretary-treasurer; Cecil Bynum, Pleasanton, Texas, Barton Scott, Binger, Oklahoma, Roy Gentry, Shawnee, Oklahoma; and Elvin Walker, De Leon, Texas. The administrative officers of the Association are Ross Wilson, Gorman, Texas, Manager and Bob Green, Gorman, Texas, Assistant Manager.

Since the Association was organized in 1937, its peanut grower members have received over $4,600,000 in cash dividends resulting from the marketing activities carried on by the Association. In recent years the Association has been delegated the additional responsibilities of handling the distribution of surplus peanuts and of handling all activities pertaining to the Cold Storage of shelled stocks held by Commodity Credit Corporation.

The meeting at Stephenville August 16 will begin at 10:00 a. m. in the Agricultural Auditorium of Tarleton State College. Educational data of much interest and of vital importance to growers will be presented by a panel of experts from Texas A and M University and Oklahoma State University. These meetings at Stephenville the past several years have been highly successful and this year's meeting is expected to be no exception. A complimentary lunch will be served at noon in the spacious college cafeteria. After lunch a report regarding Association activities will be presented and door prizes will be awarded to the holders of lucky numbers. Johnnie Rollins, Association President emphasizes that all peanut growers and persons interested in peanuts are cordially invited and urged to attend this important meeting.

A Community Eyesore

While we are waiting for a rain—and aren't we always at this time of the summer?—perhaps it would be profitable to review some of the prospects that confront our community.

There are a couple of projects within sight of consummation that would add quite a lot to community assets and, temporarily at least, to local wage income.

These are the sewer modernization program for which Rising Star voters recently approved an issue of revenue bonds, and the addition of eight units of housing for the elderly to the present low rent housing project on North Main Street.

These, along with a number of highway building jobs and a considerable number of private construction projects should add a substantial amount of wage income to the community.

But there is one vegetating development which rankles not a little in the community mind. It is the much ballyhooed rest home project for which a site was given out of the City Park area.

Organized by a Dallas, or Fort Worth, corporation long on talk, but short on performance, the structure began beautifully out of haydite tile, pink brick and somebody else's lumber.

The walls rose, and the floor joists were laid. But about the time it appeared that a roof would be placed over the structure, the work stopped and all concerned, including the company, faded away as quietly as the Arabs of Longfellow's poem.

Unfortunately, the "tents" weren't folded. They were left to vegetate among a crop of rank and now dying weeds and grass. A high wind added to the mess by toppling an unsupported wall. The construction rapidly became an unsightly ruin.

In giving the land for the home, the City wisely inserted a reversionary clause in the agreement. The time limit fixed for completion in that clause has expired. We understand that some legal difficulties have been interposed in the shape of a mechanics' and materialmen's lien executed at the beginning of the work.

But it does seem that it is time some steps were taken to seize and dispose of the property in a way more beneficial to the community. Certainly those to whom wages and bills for material are owed should not be dispossessed. They are entitled to their money.

But it is clear that they have little chance of any substantial recovery as matters now stand. What lien they have is rapidly deteriorating.

There is little doubt that the property has been abandoned in the legal sense. It has been suggested that the City could proceed on that premise. We think it a good idea.

We need a rest home, if it can be salvaged—not a ruin!

What Does It Do?

It is our opinion, for what it may be worth, that the limited nuclear test ban treaty now being failed around the western world, is not worth whatever paper it is written on.

It binds no party to the treaty any longer than that party wishes to be bound;

It will not reduce the stockpiles of nuclear weapons, nor the threat of nuclear war;

It will not prevent underground testing, nor the development of more powerful and "sophisticated" nuclear designs for testing when the developing power is ready to do so;

It will not prevent France, China or other nations now engaged in building their own nuclear arsenals, from conducting massive, all-out tests and polluting the atmosphere.

If anything it will assist these countries by diverting more technical know-how to their projects. In the case of China, it could give effective cover to a communist design for overt violation of its terms and purposes.

Despite all the emphasis now being placed on the ideological conflict between Russia and China, we prefer to keep our fingers crossed on this aspect of the world scene. We have gained a great deal of grudging respect for the strategic skill of Mr. K. and his gang and an equal fear of their utter lack of scruple. The same can be said for Mao and his crowd.

If the test ban accomplishes anything at all, it may be to lull us into a false sense of security while taking some of the pressure off Khrushchev.

And the one thing that needs to be done is to keep the screws on that wily operator. He understands it better that way.

As It Looks From Here

By Omar Burleson, M. C. 17th Texas District

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERS WASHINGTON, D. C.— SINCE ALMOST THE BEGINNING OF OUR Government, differences of opinion have been expressed as to what should be "Executive Agreement" and what should be a formal Treaty in the conduct of our foreign affairs.

ARTICLE II, SECTION 2 OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES, provides that the President shall have power, by and with the consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur. In addition to this expressed authority, Presidents, under authority to conduct foreign affairs, have entered into certain arrangements with other nations under Executive Agreements but not ratified by the United States Senate.

BY REASON OF A MORE COMPLICATED WORLD, our Nation enters into about 300 such agreements a year at the present time. These agreements are used where there already exists legal basis, and they include just about every imaginable subject of interest between nations. Many of them include trade agreements, fishing rights, communications, transportation, etc. Many of them meet day to day conditions which continuously arise. Internal Agreements fill enough volumes to line the shelves of a fair size library.

ON AUGUST 22, 1958, President Eisenhower and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, by public announcement suspended nuclear testing for one year from October 31, 1958. The statement included a suspension for additional one-year periods, provided the Soviet Union did the same. No formal treaty was entered into and, in fact, the cessation of nuclear arms testing was based only on this public statement.

THEREAFTER, IN GENERAL, ON October 31, 1958, the United States, Britain and Russia began formal talks on an atomic test ban. No agreement was reached. Russia was carrying on a series of tests at that very time, but completely them shortly thereafter.

ALTHOUGH ALL TESTS WERE NOT COMPLETELY STOPPED, the Soviet Union did not conduct any extensive tests until August of 1961, at which time they started a series of atmospheric and ground tests, announcing they were doing so by reason of the threat of the Nato alliance.

FOLLOWING RUSSIA'S, WE STARTED underground testing in November of 1961. On April 25, 1962, began our extensive atmospheric and under water testing in the Pacific.

ON APRIL 27, 1962, talks were broken off with the Sov-

IN APRIL AND JUNE OF THIS YEAR, after an exchange of letters between Khrushchev and President Kennedy, talks on cessation of nuclear testing were held, and on June 15, the President made a public statement that the United States would not conduct further atmospheric tests unless other countries did so first. The British followed with a similar statement on June 18. These, again, were Executive statements rather than any agreement of any kind.

NEGOTIATIONS LEADING TO THE TEST BAN TREATY soon to be placed before the United States Senate started July 15 and were initiated by the representatives of the United States, Britain and Russia on July 25. This agreement will be in the form of a treaty and will require a two-thirds majority of the United States Senate who are present and voting.

ON FEBRUARY 7, 1963, I introduced house concurrent resolution 83, which says in part: "Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that the American negotiating position in arms control or disarmament discussions include these safeguards:

- (1) Complete on-the-spot inspection of all areas involved in arms control or disarmament agreements, with Members of the Congress included as members of the inspection team.
 - (2) Reporting to the President of the United States to the appropriate committees of congress, of any and all steps taken by him which would tend to alter existing ratios of weapons and the effectiveness between this Nation and its allies, and the Soviet bloc of nations.
 - (3) All preliminary and final arms control or disarmament agreements be embodied in treaties subject to the advice and the consent of the Senate of the United States."
- THE PURPOSE OF THE FOREGOING is to assure as certain as possible that any agreement on disarmament, be submitted to the United States Senate, as provided for in the Constitution.

R. B. Forehand Named Successor To George Carter

Eastland—It may not be said that the new county jailer, George Carter, has such well known guests in his establishment as William Splawn and Mrs. Millie Jones, who are suspected of having robbed Worth Food Store in Ranger last March.

They recently were caught, escaped and were recaptured by authorities in Idaho.

Sheriff Lee Horn and Texas Ranger Stewart returned from Idaho Sunday with the suspect of the robbery.

Under Texas law, if they are found guilty they could be given the death sentence, it is reported. Mr. Carter, formerly of Rising Star, turned in his letter of resignation as constable of Precinct Seven, effective July 1. M. Carter said, "I like Eastland very much and its people."

He has been in the law enforcement business for about 1 year and was a resident of Eastland County for over 30 years.

Opportunity was the thing that inspired him to be deputy sheriff in Eastland, he said. The Eastland jail is very clean and has sleeping quarters for about 25 people. In time of fallout it will hold a maximum of 8 people.

In its security cells the walls are made from quarter inch steel with two inch square openings around it.

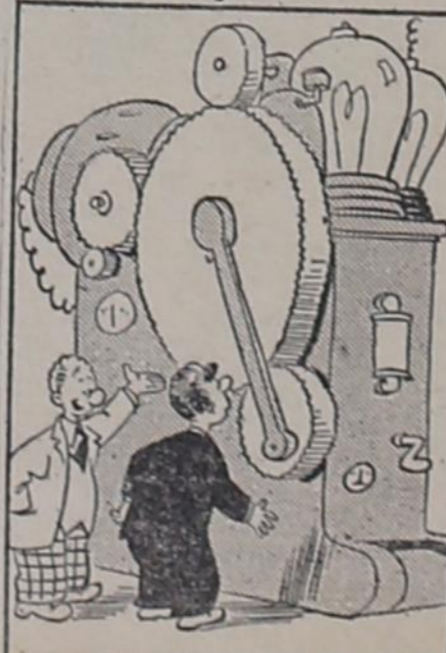

The jail has three wards: men's, women's and juvenile ward, and security. This jail was built in 1897, and renovated in 1927. Today you can still see the bullet hole left from the Santa Claus bank robber where a deputy was shot to death in 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. George Carter live in the north end of the jail in a neat 3-room apartment. They have three grandchildren.

Mr. Carter learned several things about law enforcement from his father, who was a Texas Ranger.

R. B. Forehand was named Thursday as constable of Precinct 7 at Rising Star by Eastland County Commissioners.

A slide into first base as the ball whizzes overhead, a riotous game of lawn tag, or even a quiet picnic on the grass. These things are lots of fun for youngsters—but often not for mom. Not if she has grass stains to remove after the fun is over. Prompt treatment and the right method are the answer to this problem.

Here's what to do to remove a stain, either from grass, flowers, or foliage:

Work from the wrong side of the fabric, forcing the stain instead of in. On washable fabrics, work a detergent into the stain, then rinse. If the stain is stubborn and remains after this treatment, use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach or hydrogen peroxide. Do not use chlorine bleaches on fabrics that contain silk, wool, or spandex fibers. Read the labels on wash-wear fabrics to see if it is safe to use a chlorine bleach.

Treat grass stains on nonwashable fabrics the same, but try alcohol first—if it is safe for the fabric. Use 1 part alcohol to 2 parts water for stains on acetate fabrics.

To preserve it is to brush the meat with vegetable oil before storing it in the refrigerator.

To avoid that unappealing "massed" effect when cooking macaroni, noodles, spaghetti or rice, add one tablespoon vegetable oil per quart of boiling salted water. The oil also prevents the water from boiling over.

We Like to Talk About Abstracts . . .

. . . because making abstracts has been our job for many years. And it is an interesting subject. Most every day people come to us with their title problems. Some cases are tragic. Take the example of the couples who have spent their all for a home to find out later they have no title. But most title problems are simple and the abstract helps to make the simple. So before buying real estate better talk to us about the title.
