RISING STAR

From out of the sky,
there fell a bright star
Which landed on earth in Texas.
It stayed for a while,
before it rose to go far Straight into Heaven's Annexes

But in the place where it landed, people came to stay
And settled to work and to rest.
From a few lonely buildings, to the town of today Rising Star gave its settlers the best.

Now on route thirty - six, or one eighty - three Yes, both pass through our town in the west.
Some travel slowly,
and some drive at high speed
But the one's that do stop are the best.

For while they are stopping,
they visit our town
And perhaps want to live out their years.
To work a small farm or to just shop around But mostly to live a life without fears.

Oh there are a few stores,
I think about ten all around So you see, there's no need for more shops.
We have crystal clear skies,
and fair weather abounds
And crime here is no problem, with our faithful one cop.

So you town folks who read this,
and have settled to stay Perhaps came from cities and places afar.
Remember that your town where you work and you play Goes by the proud name of...
Rising Star.

THE FOLLOWING IS an article that we found in one of our neighboring town's papers and thought it worthwhile to reprint:

Walk a little plainer, Daddy,
Said a little boy so frail.
I'm following in your footsteps
And I don't want to fail.
Sometimes your steps are very plain.
Sometimes they are hard to see.
So walk a little plainer,
Daddy,
For you are leading me.
I know that once you walked this way
Many years ago.
And what you did along the way
I'd really like to know.
For sometimes I am tempted
I don't know what to do.
So walk a little plainer,
Daddy,
For I must follow you.
Some day when I'm grown up
You are like I want to be.
Then when I will have a little boy
Who will want to follow me.
And I would want to lead him right
And help him to be true.
So walk a little plainer,
Daddy
For we must follow you.

John was rather careless with the dynamite in the quarry and let a stick drop. The whole box went up, taking John with it. A short time later the foreman came by and asked,
"Where's John?" He's gone, answered a fellow worker.
"When will he be back?"
queried the foreman. "Well, sir," responded the other, "if he comes back as fast as he left, he'll be back day before yesterday."

County Residents To Make Decision On Anniversary

A large group of Eastland County residents met Thursday afternoon in County Judge Scott Bailey's court room to hear plans for an Eastland County Centennial celebration. The county will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 1973.

Pat Haggerty, representing the Rogers Company of Fostoria, Ohio, met with the mayors, city councilmen and other interested persons of the county and explained how the county could have a successful celebration with the help of his company.

The Rogers Company has had over 68 years of experience in celebration management and has served over 480 communities, large and small, in the United States and Canada.

A properly planned community celebration will produce benefits such as create new civic awareness among all citizens; uncover new civic leaders; stimulate local economy; honor our heritage; and focus attention on tomorrow.

A varied program of spectator events - something for everybody, was explained by

Mr. Haggerty. Examples he gave were to start the 100th celebration on a Saturday with a large parade followed by a celebration ball that night; he stressed a religious theme for the Sunday activities and begin Monday with a Merchants' Day, Ladies Day, Agriculture Day, Pioneer Day and possibly have a carnival and Mid-Way.

The financing of the centennial would come from various outdoor shows and from the sale of novelties and centennial mementoes.

The Rogers Company will supply the county with a consultant and experienced resident manager for all income projects; sample material for necessary printed matter; a professionally designed publicity campaign;

resident director to produce the Historical Spectacle; all script - writing for local authenticity; all costumes, scenic background, and lighting equipment and above all, experienced guidance in all phases.

A second meeting to make further plans for the gigantic celebration has been set for July 25 at 2:00 p.m. in the court room on third floor of the courthouse. Mayors, city councilmen, presidents of civic clubs and interested residents of Eastland County are urged to attend this meeting.

It is envisioned the celebration will involve every town, community and citizen of the county.

The company fee for helping stage the centennial activities will be included in a budget the company will make. A decision will be made July 25 as to whether the county citizens wish to have a celebration or not.

AVIATION CORNER

By Walter T. Le Blanc CFI

By now you have probably taken either your girl friend or your wife for their first ride. Their enjoyment of the flight was up to you. Did you take it easy and allow them to adjust to the flight? I hope so.

Just prior to writing this article, I have been flying for over two hours out of Brownwood Municipal Airport. Let me say that I really enjoyed it and came back refreshed. I can't begin to tell you how the city of Brownwood or Rising Star looks from the air. But it is a sight that I wish every man, woman and child could see.

As I've said, I was flying out of Brownwood with a Mr. Howard O. Wilson who is the weatherman at the airport and who is also the same Mr. Wilson you hear on Radio Station, KEAN in Brownwood. "H.O." as he prefers to be called had already soloed but has not been flying for the last five or six months. I got him interested again and have been giving him some instruction at the same time. He is now doing what we call touch and go landings, that is he makes a landing, but instead of stopping he adds power and takes off again. We have been also doing what is called power off landings. A power off landing is when you slow the engine down to idle, the same as when you take your foot off the accelerator pedal on your car and coast to a stop. The landing is made completely by gliding the airplane without using the engine down to a safe landing. I cut the power off about ten miles from the airport and we glided all the way down, landed on the proper runway and this without no help from the engine in any way. We started from only three thousand feet high, but from a higher altitude we could have gone much further. Like I said before, an airplane just does not fall out of the sky and any pilot using common sense can normally make a safe landing in any type of large field or roadway.

Brownwood Municipal Airport has three runways, of which only one is normally used because of prevailing wind conditions. Brownwood is operated by 'lefty' Gardner whom by the way is a Colonel in the Confederate Air Force. 'Lefty' operates a crop dusting service and spends many days away from his home field. H.O.'s son, Rodney operates the Unicom radio, refuels the airplanes, and parks them. The main runway at Brownwood is numbered 17 or 35. Runways are numbered in accordance to the direction of their travel. You may have wondered how pilots know in which direction. Say that you are in a plane and the tower advises you to use runway 17. You then know that on your final approach you will be heading on a compass direction of 170 degrees to the final landing. The runways are numbered in accordance with their compass direction. If you were to land on this same runway from the other end, the runway would be numbered 35 or on a heading of 350 degrees. Also notice that the bearings are 180 degrees apart. North is 360 degrees and South is 180 degrees which is also 180 degrees apart. Now you know how airplanes know which runway to land on no matter where they are. While I am still on airports, stop in and say hello to Bob Turner who operates the Cisco Municipal Airport just north of Cisco. The runway at Cisco is gravel and has no numbers painted on it but if Bob comes back to you on the radio and says runway 18 is favored, that means the wind is coming from the south and he advises you to land in a Southern direction. You probably noticed I've said, advises. An airport without a tower has what they call a 'Unicom' radio and are only allowed to transmit on a frequency of 122.8 Megahertz. The Unicom operator cannot tell you what runway to land on or when to land or take off. He is in an advisory capacity only, but he will tell you if other aircraft are about, the barometer setting and direction of wind. Other than that, you are on your own about landing and in which direction and on what runway. It is up to you to use safe and sane judgment. At an airport with a control tower, you have to follow the operator's instructions to a 'T'. The operator is there to protect you and to protect other aircraft near you. Remember too, that the operator is human also and can be prone to make errors or mistake your aircraft for another so again it is up to you, the pilot in command, to make the final judgment. He may be handling up to 10 to 12 other aircraft in the area besides yours and he has to make his instructions curt and short. If you call the tower, know in advance what you want to say, say it, and get off the air.

The pattern in most times is flown in a large rectangle, and has what they call legs. Normally you enter the pattern at a 45 degree angle until you are the proper distance from the runway. Then you will fly the downwind leg (this is in the same direction the wind is blowing), then you will turn to the crosswind leg, and last of all the final leg which at this time will put you in alignment with the final landing. You may be called upon to make a straight in approach or a base leg approach. Incidentally, the crosswind leg is also called the base leg. All of your approaches have to coincide with other traffic and you may have to follow other aircraft in for a landing. All this sound difficult? At first it is but after a few landings at tower operated fields you'll be an old pro. Another bit of knowledge. Control Towers are operated by the FAA and these operators have to go through a long period of training before they can even touch a radio microphone and then only under the watchful and alert eye of their Chief Operator. At an airport like Los Angeles International, they handle a take off or landing about once every 20 seconds, and this is all day, and most of the night. Despite the long hours and the hard duty, the job also has its rewards, especially in the lives they save to which most of these operators is routine.

You are low on fuel, haven't been paying too close to your navigation, in other words you are lost and are now feeling scared. Remembering your lessons, you tune your radio to the emergency frequency which is 121.5 Kilohertz and give out a call for help. He'll ask you on what heading you are flying, what your altitude is and the nature of your trouble. He then may ask you to call out landmarks as you see them. If you are unable to see them, he will probably ask you to count slowly up to five or to ten on the microphone so that he can give you a 'DF' (direction finding) steer. This is a form of radar unit near him set to your radio frequency. As you are counting, your airplane shows up on the radar screen as a 'Blip' or a large dot of light. Now he thinks he has you on the screen, but to make sure, he has you make a couple of turns to specific headings for identification just in case it may be another airplane he sees on the screen. The dot on the screen moves in the directions he has told you to turn, so now he knows for sure it is you. Now he'll tell you how far away from him you are and then he will give you a heading to fly. He may have you change your heading some because of wind drift or for other reasons. A short while later he may ask you to look under your left wing and you should see the runway below you. You make your safe landing and perhaps after you have gone into the terminal building, you go the phone, give the tower a call, identify yourself and then thank the operator for his service. This then, is one of the many services that the tower can provide you, but there is only one little 'catch'. You must not be afraid to call on your radio and ask for help. He does not have a Ouija board and does not know you need help unless you, the pilot asks for it. Don't wait until you run out of gas either. He can't do much for you then. Until next week then, here's to many hours of safe flying and may all our landings be Happy One's.

SARA BUTLER
"La Estrellita" Staff
Attends Workshop

BY JAMES STEEL

Ten tired members of 'La Estrellita '73' staff, the yearbook of Rising Star High School, returned Friday from the six - day 15th annual Summer Publications Workshop on the Texas Tech Campus in Lubbock. The workshop, held July 9 - 14, was sponsored by the Southwestern Council of Student Publications of the university and by Taylor Publishing Company.

Transportation was provided by Ricky Ware and Mrs. Bill Dennard. We all appreciated this very much.

The ten staffers, Peggy, and her son, Glen, left Rising Star promptly at 7 a.m. Sunday, July 9, stopping for breakfast at Merkel. We arrived in Lubbock about noon. Upon arrival, we first drove around the campus, with veteran staffers pointing out campus highlights to new members. After lunch we registered at University Center, and had our individual pictures taken for "Sine Nomine", a yearbook publishing by a selected staff at the workshop. We then went to our dorms and located our rooms. The girls stayed in Coleman Hall, and the boys in Weymouth Hall, both in the Wiggins Complex, a section of modern, high - rise dorms recently completed on the Tech Campus.

A total of 346 students registered for the workshop.

After an afternoon spent in unpacking, getting organized, and resting, the group went out to dinner and to a movie where we saw the Broadway musical, "Fiddler on the Roof".

A few ground rules were set up especially for workshopers - girls had an 11:30 p.m. curfew, with boys required in their rooms by 12:00.

On Monday morning, an opening assembly was held in the Business Administration Building. After some inspiring challenges in the field of school journalism, Editor Sara Butler, Debbie Nunnally, Sharon Clarke, Evonne Woody, Ruthie Wilson, Lorri Kelley, Mary Lee, and Ricky Ware went to the session centered on annual layout and design, while Gary Dennard and James Steel attended photography sessions, where the basics of camera operation and darkroom procedures were explained.

This was the set - up for the remainder of the week, with classes from 8:30 to 4 - 4:45 each day, with usually an hour and a half for lunch.

After supper on Monday evening, we went to another movie which everyone enjoyed a lot!

On Tuesday night, after a day full of classes, we attended the Miss Workshop Beauty Contest in the Ballroom of University Center. Rising Star High's entry was our editor - Sara Butler. Although Sara did not place in the semi - finals, she did an excellent job and we were all very proud of her. Karen Willis of Floydada was named Miss Workshop.

After the beauty contest, Peggy took a group of us (after changing clothes) out to MacKenzie Park, an amusement center, and to Prairie Dog Town. It was almost 10 p.m. and we were trying to feed bread to the prairie dogs in pitch dark. We finally decided that it was Peg's vivid imagination going out of control, as she was about the only one of us who could see the prairie dogs coming out of their holes to feed on the bread slices. We spent the rest of our evening at the amusement park on the rides. It was a lot of fun.

Our Wednesday classes went as usual, and we took in another movie that evening which some thought was the funniest we had seen all week! Thursday morning everyone tightened down, as Thursday noon was our deadline for submitting assignments. Yearbook session students were required to submit a "dummy", which in journalistic lingo is a rough plan of a school annual - complete with picture spaces drawn in and labeled, body copy added, and a countless list of other tedious details which go into the publication of a school yearbook. The photography students were given five assignments: outdoor pictures, different types of flash pictures, minimum and maximum depth of field shots, available light shots, and group shots. These pictures all had to be taken, the negatives, developed then finally the pictures printed, which altogether is quite a long process.

The awards banquet was held Thursday night in the Ballroom of University Center. After a delicious meal (by the way - nearly all of our meals were exceptionally good) the awards were given to best photographer, for the best newspaper work, and the best yearbook work. "Tech Tac Toe" was recognized as the best workshop newspaper, Gail Berry of Snyder was named best photographer, and Odessa Permian received the award of best over - all dummy.

The Rising Star group left the Texas Tech campus Friday morning about 11:00 and returned to Rising Star at approximately 4:30.

Although we came home without any trophies or awards, we came home with a wealth of yearbook knowledge and an abundance of new ideas with the aim of putting out a great "la Estrellita '73"!

FROM OUR CHURCHES

Church of Christ Rising Star

As I write this, almost half of our Vacation Bible School is over. To me our VBS has been a success every way. An attendance averaging 84 each day means that this many have been studying about Jesus each day. I believe each student has enjoyed the daily activities.

Enthusiasm has prevailed, but we have not had a serious discipline problem with anyone. I'm reminded of a story I read recently in a church bulletin about a small boy in Bible class. He had been especially wiggly, jumping and moving around in his chair, teasing the girls near him, tapping his feet on the floor, and totally unresponsive to everything the teacher used to hold his attention. The teacher finally whispered, "Jimmy, we would like you to sit still for a few minutes." Still bouncing, the little lad replied, "I am sitting still. . . as fast as I can go!"

Adrian Jenkins is in Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene, while his brother Laroe Jenkins is in Brownwood Community Hospital. Jeannine Bailey is taking tests in Eastland Hospital.

We are reminded, as we think of our VBS theme "Jesus Never Changes", that among those things of His that never change is His word. Jesus has told us, "If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free." (Jn. 8:31-32). The same word that made disciples and set them free 1900 years ago will do the same for us today. It never changes, but it will change us when we live by it.

First United Methodist Church Rising Star

Rev. Lloyd Coker held evening services at First Christian Church in Cisco Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Swift returned home with their son, Darnell of Andrews.

Guests in the Dorothy Shook home last week were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shuggs and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hull from Big Springs, who were here for the funeral of Mrs. Ada Hull.

Visiting in the parsonage last week were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith and children and friend Mr. Jimmy Ware of Corsicana, Mr. and Mrs. Albert McLaughlin and children from Blanket, and Mrs. Ethel Black of Dublin, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sheffield were surprised to have Rev. Reed and family from Madeline, N.M. stop by for a few minutes. The Reeds were on their way to Alabama.

Melba Coker visited Rev. and Mrs. Coker Tuesday.

Thought for the day: "Worry is interest paid on trouble before it falls due."

Mr. S. Lloyd Coker

Pioneer Church of Christ Pioneer, Texas

There were fewer visitors from distant places Sunday than usual with Midland being the most distant represented. Nevertheless, such gatherings make one cognizant of the value of tried and true friendships in the Christian fellowship. It is good to sing "with the spirit and the understanding, Blessed be the tie that binds".

"Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity", David, Psalms 133:1.

HOME AND FAMILY HINTS

Barbara Williams

From Higginbotham's

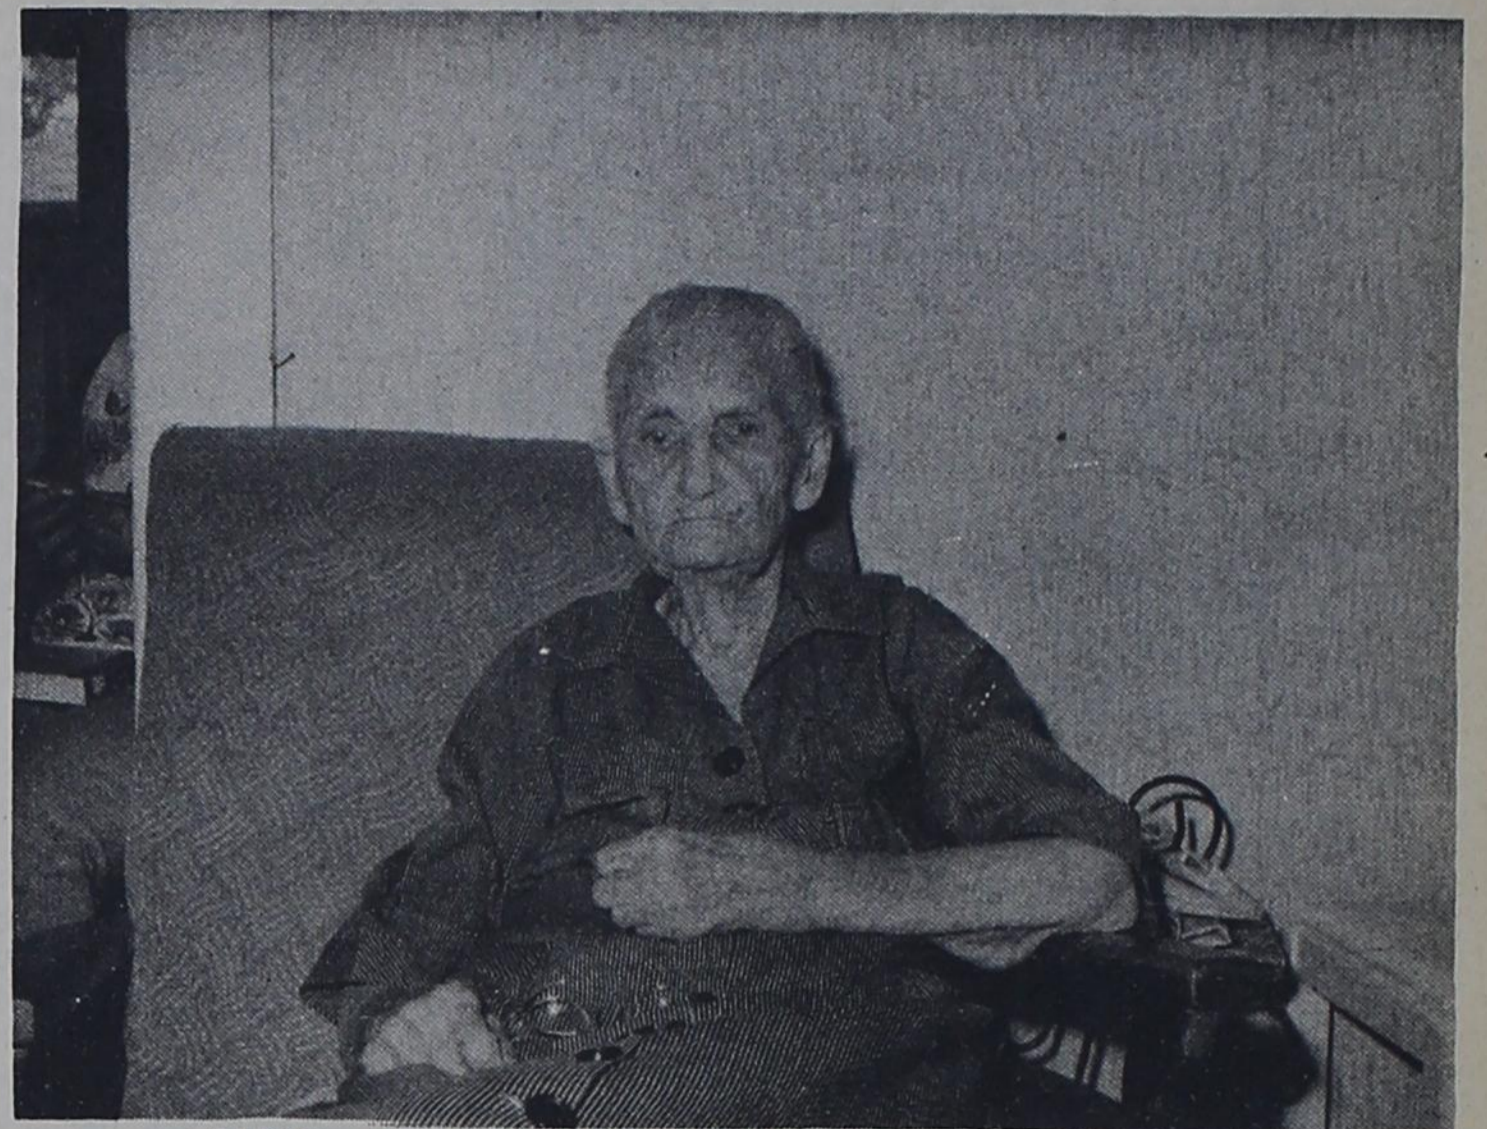

Higginbotham's is pleased to have Miss Annalynn Skipper working with us for two weeks. Annalynn is a student at Tarleton State College. Her assignment with Higginbotham's is a field study in professional awareness. The following is her contribution:

Yesterday morning Roy Rains, the clothing buyer, took me on a tour of the warehouse. I was surprised to see so much merchandise on hand to be sent to the branch stores. I didn't realize it, but Roy buys some things by the truckload and stores them in the warehouse as needed.

With the help of Doris Williams, Roy keeps detailed records of the items shipped to each store. It was fascinating to see the methods used to keep up with each store's inventory. If your local store doesn't have your size in a particular item, tell one of the clerks what you need. Chances are the clerk can notify the main office, and Doris can locate the item for you in your size.

It was exciting to see the hundreds of boxes of fall merchandise waiting to be checked, tagged, and sent to the seven ready-to-wear outlets. Roy opened some of the boxes and gave me a preview of the fall fashions. We saw pantsuits and slacks of polyester knit. There were some knit dresses striped in bright fall colors. We also unearthed some denim smocks which should be big on the fall fashion scene.

For back-to-school, there were some plaid cotton dresses for the girls, and bright striped sweaters for the boys. We also found some checked knit pants for back-to-school boys. The new fall fashions should begin arriving locally about the last of July. See you at Higginbotham's for back-to-school shopping.

'Tune' Tires First To Save Time For Summer Fun

Motorists' chances of truly enjoying the lyrical "lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer" are a lot better if they bone up on warm weather tire care.

These maintenance and safety tips to drivers preparing for summer vacation trips or, traditionally, just more time on the open road:

- Make sure you have enough tread on your tires to last on long trips. If you're near the minimum safe tread depth of 1/16 inch in two or more grooves you may want to make replacements before you take off for isolated areas.

- If you buy any new tires remember the law requires the seller to register them if they were made after May 22, 1971. In the unlikely event a recall is necessary because of possible safety defects the manufacturer will notify you directly.

- Check for proper inflation when tires are "cold", before starting out. Follow the car manufacturer's recommendations in your owner's manual, or posted in the glove compartment or affixed to a door pillar. Add up to four pounds of air per tire for long periods of highway driving at high speeds, but never exceed the maximum pounds per square inch (example: 32 p.s.i. max.) marked on the sidewalls.

- Use your own air pressure gauge if possible. Studies have shown station air towers are often inaccurate up to plus or minus four pounds per square inch.

- Vacation trips often mean heavy loads. Make sure the weight is distributed as evenly as possible, including weight in any towed vehicle. Check your owner's manual or a tire dealer for the maximum load limits of your tires.

- Driving on snow tires for any prolonged period in warm weather is poor economy. Abnormally high heat buildup in these thicker tires can wear down the tread faster than in regular tires. It may also cause sudden disabement.

- When the rain comes, beware of skidding on "summer ice". Water mixes with oil and gas films already on the road to form a slick surface. The risk of losing control is five to ten times more likely on wet pavement.

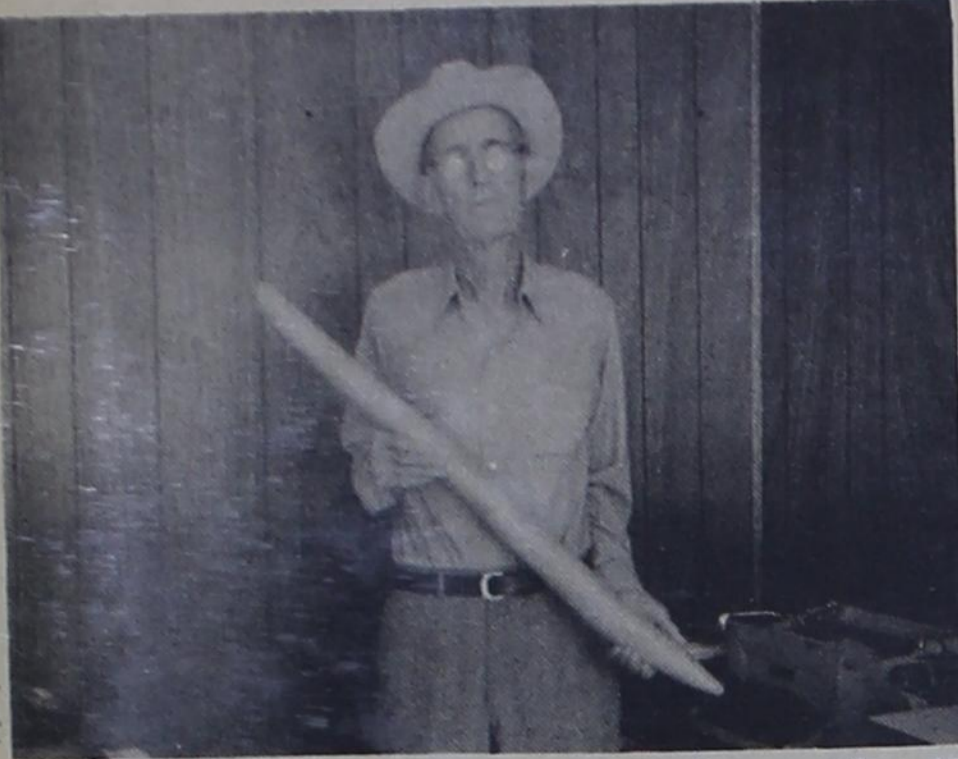

- Check front end alignment frequently, especially if you notice uneven tread wear or "pulling" to one side while driving. Back roads or a few solid bumps on any surface can throw alignment out, even if it was recently adjusted.

- Check for debris such as stones and glass embedded in the tread and in the grooves before starting out.

- Rotate your tires according to the recommendations in the owner's manual. If you notice abnormal tread wear or seem to be getting a bad ride, this is a good time to have your tires balanced.

- Let experts check your tires for proper inflation, cuts or other damage. You'll like the folks at
