Milliard Set For Hard Work At Nebraska

Texas Longhorns Offense In Saturday Game Depends Upon Him

AUSTIN—On the broad shoulders of Bobb Hilliard rests the burden of the University of Texas offense in Lincoln, Neb., Saturday when Clyde Littlefield's Longhorns tackle Dana Bible's championship Cornhuskers. The Bears are doped to lose by three touchdowns, but no indications of that knowledge are present in the Longhorn corral. The squad went through snappy workouts this week and showed no signs of nervousness or inferiority. The team, 27 strong, left Austin Thursday morning via the Katy. They will work out in Kansas City Friday morning and will arrive in Lincoln late Friday afternoon. Business Manager Ed Oile announced that the squad would stay at the Lincoln Hotel. If the team can strike a cooperative medium Bible's cohorts will be in for a four-point game. The Texas coaches are far from satisfied over the team's showing against the Miners Saturday, some improvement in the line was noted. The Orange and White backfield carries much potential offensive strength with Hilliard, Hadlock, Jurekka, Arnold, Johnson and Lawrence, and a slight defensive strength against running plays with Baebel, Preibach, and Lawrence. Littlefield will probably depend largely on the passing of the veteran quarterback Ronald Fagan if a running attack fails. Littlefield, a sophomore, is another passer with better than average ability. An ankle injury, sustained against Southwestern, has healed sufficiently for the brilliant youngster to play.

Figures Compiled To Estimate Possible Value Of Centennial Exposition For Texas In 1936

AUSTIN (UP)—An adequate Texas centennial exposition would bring to this state $72,000,000, according to estimates of the committee named by the forty-second legislature. It is reported by the forty-third legislature on advisability of such an exposition in 1936. "Any exposition patterned after the foredoomed to failure," said the report. "The public demands change. Rightly combined, exhibitions and anniversary celebrations marking outstanding periods have the greatest popular appeal." Past large scale centennials have differed so greatly in methods and financing that it is impossible to draw direct conclusions, the legislature was advised. There is the added warning that "1936 may laugh at old-fogy ideas of 1933." The committee's general conclusions gathered from a study of past American and European exhibitions follow: That exhibitions do not pay in dollars and cents at the gate for the expenditure, but they leave permanent buildings which more than offset the difference. That daily paid attendance averages nine and one-half per cent of the population of the centennial city and between five and six per cent of the population of the territory in a 50-mile radius. (Here the committee points out increasing automobile and airplane use and improved rail transportation is increasing attendance. Past exhibitions have had attendance 20 times the population of the exposition

$84,000 and spent $28,564,000 with $12,034,000 expenditure for permanent buildings. The Panama-Pacific Exposition (San Francisco, 1915) received $13,127,000 at the turnstiles and expended $28,690,770 of which $14,847,607 was for permanent buildings. Receipts of the Chicago Century of Progress exposition are estimated between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 by the officials. The "expenditure within the state" estimated by the committee on the basis of expenditures by the 1,290,000 tourists who visited Colorado in 1931. If a centennial exposition attracts only three times the number normally

For The Love of Eve by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XX

At 10 o'clock the next morning she slipped on her foot...

In a few moments Mona received a telephone call which she answered in a monosyllabic tone...

When they reached the street at noon they found the crowd dancing in the February sunshine...

Eve glanced about her and nodded to three girl acquaintances. Then she happened to catch the eye of Marie Barnes...

"Who's the lady friend Barnes has out to lunch?" asked Mona. "That," responded Eve...

"How much do you suppose he pays?" Mona persisted. "I'm sure I haven't the slightest idea," Eve told her...

"Think of all you could do on a salary like his!" Mona said dreamily. "Eve looked at the other girl curiously...

"Eve was surprised to see Dick enter the restaurant with three men. They took a table on the main floor...

"Eve smiled and bowed in a mocking manner. And still it took a while before Eve realized she had fallen into their trap...

"Pure Soap? That's all," he said authoritatively. "I've heard that Pure Soap is a popular brand."

men he was with were leaving. She slipped the strong, hot coffee slowly and ate her dessert without further comment...

"The first line on the new slacks," he murmured. "Eve was always to remember that Sunday. It gave her her first insight into the romance building...

Monday morning Eve returned to her work as though inspired. She thought of the actress seen to come to Lake City for the opening of the theater...

When the home edition of the evening newspaper was delivered to the office Eve turned to financial pages. Strange, she thought, how light-hearted she had been...

"Eve ignored Mona Allen for the rest of that day. She was so annoyed by the other girl's trickery that she felt she could not trust herself to speak to Mona...

"Eve was tempted to tell Dick about the luncheon with Theron Reece and explain how it had come about but she decided that to do so would be to attach importance to the incident...

For The Love of Eve

by Lucy Walling

that had just come in... "George Elias can tell you all about them," he assured her.

"That was before I was born but some of the most thrilling hours I've ever spent were when he told me about his trips to the Near East and China. To me those stories rivalled the Arabian Nights."

"I guess it's true that I dream about rugs. I used to dream of carpets and caravans when I was a child and made up my mind to be a rug buyer when I grew up."

CHAPTER XXVI It was Charles, the office boy, who had entered the room. He brought several copies of the home edition of the evening newspaper which he laid on Eve's desk.

"Why, what's wrong with it?" Eve asked. "What's wrong with it? Nothing except a mistake of $30 in the price! The price on the copy was $85.50 as plain as anything. Look at the carbon of Mr. Barnes' copy and you'll see. And here it's $39.50. It means a loss of $2,000 on 100 copies. Just wait until you hear of this! Why wasn't the proof sent to me for my O. K.?"

"Well, he didn't come to me. Look up the copy and you'll see I didn't O. K. it."

Mr. Bixby entered the office at that moment. He, too, carried a copy of the same newspaper, open at the offending advertisement. His face was grim. Eve clutched at her vanishing courage. No matter who was to blame for this error, she would be held responsible because Barnes was absent.

The store owner opened the door of Barnes' office. Eve and Miss Gordon obeyed. His unspoken command to enter. He followed, and closed the door for which Eve protested. "I sent it by Charles the office boy."

"Well, he didn't come to me. Look up the copy and you'll see I didn't O. K. it."

When Mr. Bixby asked for an explanation Eve gave the details briefly and frankly, making no effort to evade the responsibility. Charles was called in then and explained that he had been unable to find Miss Gordon though he had returned several times to the department. He had asked Miss Allen, he said, if she should take the investigation to Mr. Bixby for an O. K. and she had replied that she would attend to the matter herself as she had another errand on the fifth floor and it would be no trouble to take the proof.

Rehabilitation Commission's Representatives in Conference Here On Work Relief Projects

Representatives of the State Rehabilitation and Relief Commission met here today for a conference on plans for work relief projects in Howard county.

"Well, it was by fault," admitted Eve. "I should have hurried back from Mr. Bixby's office to attend to the proofs myself. Knowing Mona as I do, I might have realized she'd make some mistake if she thought it could possibly get me in no difficulties."

"Yes, but it's the home edition that the women read and the home edition that goes to all the country towns. You can imagine what would happen in the coat department tomorrow if Miss Gordon and her saleswomen tried to explain to the customers that those garments at the price published was a typographical error. No, Mr. Bixby told Miss Gordon to go ahead with the sale as advertised. And of course she feels dreadful! So does Mr. Bixby but he tried not to show it. He'll stand down there tomorrow and watch that $2000 disappear without the flicker of an eyelash."

"I'll go with you," offered Eve. "I never want to see another bargain sale as long as I live!"

"I'll be afraid to face Mr. Barnes Monday morning," Eve told Ariene. "I don't see how I can ever live this down!"

36 Bodies Recovered, Score Still In Canyon Following Fire In Hollywood Forest

LOS ANGELES (AP)—With 36 bodies recovered from the 1000-acre tract in Mineral Wells canyon swept by a brush fire Tuesday, county officials reported the canyon still holds 20 to 25 additional victims.

Police Wednesday booked Robert D. Barr, unemployed motion picture projectionist on suspicion of arson. When arrested Barr had several oil-soaked rags in his possession, police said.

Some 150 men, drawn from the ranks of unemployed and sent to a park area to work on relief projects, were trapped in a circle of flames which engulfed a small area between dam and mineral canyons, where they were employed.

Many of the dead fell directly in the path of the blaze, Fire Chief Ralph Scott said. Numerous instances were told of workmen rushing into the burning area and attempting to beat down the flames with shovels and sacks, only to find a few seconds later that they had been cut off from retreat to safety.

Court Battle Starts To Bar Women From Texas A. And M.

BRYAN, (UP)—Texas A. & M. traditionally a citadel of masculinity, manned its legal towers to prevent invasion by a group of embattled young women seeking co-educational affiliation with the school.

Background for the legal battle is provided by the 2,000 men students of the school, who in the past have relegated women to a spot in their lives which becomes available only on Saturday nights.

Originally there were 12 litigants in the mandamus action. One of them, however, found her ear more attuned to wedding than to school bells. Miss Evelyn Stanford, therefore, dropped from the fight and married R. M. Searcy of Bryan.

Remaining plaintiffs include Miss Aila Stanford, sister of Mrs. Searcy and the Misses Jola Barron, daughter of former State Legislator W. S. Barron; Frances Locke, Lucille Vick, Jane Bagley, and Pauline Davis, daughter of the trial judge, all of Bryan, and Misses Beverly Hostrasser and Elizabeth Bartlett of Hearne, and Mrs. O. A. Fox and Mrs. A. E. Jones of Bryan.

Advances! Not Retreat! A TRUE STORY J. T. Jordan A young man was happily married. He and his devoted wife lived on a farm and their crop was making a fine start. The happy husband and father of his first child, took some plow shares to the blacksmith shop for sharpening, and on the way he met a neighbor who offered him a drink of liquor. He took it, and went his way. He was drunk in appearance, but this drink whetted his appetite and softened his will power.

Returning home that night he became delirious; a neighbor was called in and another, and still another, for it took three strong men to hold the man steady as he walked. He is still living and I know that he loved his wife with unwavering devotion, but when the three men saw him dozing they left the room for a moment and while they were out he awoke. His wife approached him to know what he wanted, and he grabbed the gun from the pack, stuck it to her breast and as the gun fired she knocked the barrel upward, saving her life. If the house is still standing there is a hole as large as a goose egg in the ceiling where the load of shot went down at close range. In that loving woman he saw a demon. An angel of love and mercy became a dragon of the pit of hell. His physical strength seemed super-human. Three men were worn out trying to hold him in bed for he had to be kept in bed from further indulgence in drink. He fought them often until they were almost breathless. They were his friends, but they seemed to him the deputies of Satan, sent to bind him with chains to the dungeon of haze.

Byrd Attendant Is Son Of West Texas College President

AUSTIN—One of the younger members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition II, now on its way to Little America, is Joe Hill, 20 years old, and former student of the University of Texas. The young man is a son of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill of Canyon.

Dr. Hill is president of the West Texas State Teachers College. The adventurous youth sailed on the "Bear" from Boston, Mass., on September 25. On the long voyage it will be the special duty of young Hill to care for one-third of the 150 sled-dogs which form an important part of the transportation feature of the expedition.

He and the other members of the group of men who will assist Admiral Byrd in his exploration work in the far off Antarctic continent, have before them a two-year sojourn in the icy region which surrounds the South Pole.

On September 1, Joe Hill was given the physical examination by Dr. Shirey and was formerly accepted to participate in the great adventure. He was immediately temporarily assigned as Admiral Byrd's personal attendant on board the "Pacific Fir."

Dr. and Mrs. Hill and daughter, Marion, went to Boston to bid goodbye to Joe as he set sail for the long voyage to the Antarctic. Dr. Hill said that he was especially pleased over the selection of his son as a member of the expedition, because he got the place which any help from any one, Mrs. Hill said: "I have always wanted our children to carry out their life plans and I prayed that the results of Joe's trip to Boston would be what ever is best for him. I am proud and happy to have him go."

Joe Hill was born in Canyon and his entire college life, except for one year in the University of Texas, has been spent in the West Texas State Teachers College.

Thousands Of Dollars Forgotten In Houston Banks During Lean Years
 HOUSTON, (UP)—Despite three years of depression, Houston banks contain thousands of dollars belonging to hundreds of persons who apparently have forgotten the money. What's more startling, the banks are quite anxious for the owners to claim the treasure, which amounts to about $50,000.

Money that has forgotten in the vaults is a nuisance to the banker. The essence of his business is order, and it does not seem orderly—or natural, at any rate—for these dollars to be knocking about loose in the world with nobody to love them. Every bank in the city is a repository for a certain number of these orphan dollars—"dormant accounts" they are called—and the older the bank, the more it will have on hand. In some cases the owners have taken no visible interest in their money for more than 50 years and this is little less of a puzzle to the banker than it is to the man outside. Accounts are declared dormant in most banks if no deposits or withdrawals are made for 12 months. Most bankers say the average citizen's faulty arithmetic causes most dormant accounts.
