

Texas Must Help With Relief, Hopkins Warns

News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Hot Dog

A friend called on President Roosevelt at the White House recently. "Can you tell me, Mr. President," asked the caller facetiously, "where I can get one of those baloney dollars I've heard so much about?" The answer was forthcoming immediately. "Certainly. In the hot dog stand in the Empire State Building."

Drug

Charges appearing in Eugene Meyer's Washington Post and certain other Republican papers that the National Emergency Council was being fashioned into a political organization of the first water considerably slowed up selection of that agency's personnel.

A recent story in the Post declared state directors and other employees were being selected with particular consideration given for loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt and willingness to work for the party cause. It was stated that Senators and other politicians had been consulted as to whether certain of their constituents fitted into this mold.

Drink

If all the mutterings emanating from the vicinity of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration these days were piled one on the other they would outrear the Washington monument.

Most of the complaints are coming from gentlemen who have been relegated to a Class "C" rating. Mr. Roosevelt called for all the files. He is going over the qualifications of all key appointees personally. If any plain politics crops up you'll have to blame him.

There is an army of would-be importers. They have deserted the antique business, left the publicity game, given up shoeing horses, in the hope they can cut a slice from one of the liquor quotas.

Things have got to a point now where FACA officials have crawled into their dugouts, donned gas masks and refuse even to see these hopeful whisky entrepreneurs.

The result is, as few permits as possible are being issued outside of Classes "A" and "B". Appeals by mail and telegraph for consideration of claims are being ignored. It does no good for a Class "C" hopeful to get a personal audience or an attentive ear over the phone.

With Congress due back next week the lads at FACA prefer to wait for a guiding gesture from

Tom Davis Assumes Presidency, Succeeding Carl Blomshild

Carl S. Blomshild reviewed to members of the Kiwanis club the activities of the past year and turned the gavel over to his successor, Tom Davis, at Thursday's weekly luncheon at the Crawford hotel.

The past-president's insignia was presented Mr. Blomshild by Immediate Past-President George Gentry and Mr. Blomshild presented the president's insignia to Mr. Davis.

New Members

Visitors of the day included J. C. Loper and Ben R. Carter. Besides Rev. Martin others who recently have come into the club include Dr. T. B. Hoover, John Whitmore, Dr. W. B. Hardy, Dr. C. K. Bivings, and Rev. C. A. Bickley.

Others who have entered the club during 1933 are Rance King, Nat Shick, D. H. Reed, Vaaton Merrick, Houston Gowden.

The club opened the year with 35 members and is ending it with 36. It was reported by President Blomshild that the club had more than twice as much cash on hand then it had a year ago.

Mrs. Lula May Carlton with Miss Elsie Willis at the piano led several songs. The day's program was in charge of James Little. L. A. Subanks was announced as the January program chairman.

A telegram from Mrs. C. C. Usery, who served as club pianist most of the year, was read. She expressed appreciation for a gift sent by the club at Christmas. She now resides in Baton Rouge, La. Letters from Eliza Read on behalf of newboys who were given a Christmas party by the club last week and from W. B. Willbanks in charge of Herald newboys, were read.

Mr. Blomshild was accorded an ovation by fellow members in appreciation for his accomplishments as president. In reviewing the year's activities he mentioned the following:

Special meeting with Texas and Pacific employes as guests. Valentine party with ladies as guests.

Annual Ladies' Night banquet with District Governor Walter Morris as guest speaker. Boy Scout week participation. All-Kiwanis night program. Observance of Constitution Week.

Outdoor meeting and frolic with scouts of Kiwanis troop No. 3. Special Armistice Day program. Christmas party for newboys. Planting of at least one tree per member in City Park and other public places.

Two inter-club visits with the San Angelo club. Financing of operation which cured a little girl with a crippled leg.

Sponsoring of appearance here of the Early Bird troupe, which netted $150 for work with underprivileged children.

Purchasing of milk to 40 West Ward children for four months since the school session opened. Participation in dental clinic in which 2,000 children were examined.

Vocational guidance program in high school in which students fill out questionnaires giving their vocational preferences, with talks to each group by club members and various professions.

The Farmer Marches On—What Will The New Year Bring?

On and on marches the American farmer, out of 1933 into another year, hopeful that prices of his products will continue in 1934 the rising tendencies evident since the spring upturn. The diagram, prepared by Standard Statistics, shows the farm products price index, on the basis of 100 for the year 1926.

Huey Arrives For Session Of Senators

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Senator Huey Long said Friday he did not intend to take any part in the contest over seating of M. C. Bollivar Kemp as representative from the sixth Louisiana district and that he would support administration inures in congress. "I believe for the good of the people."

Unofficial Candidate Polls Larger Vote Than Official One

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—J. Y. Sanders Jr., unofficial candidate for congressman from the Sixth Louisiana district in a highly unofficial election, polled three times more votes than Mrs. Bollivar E. Kemp, the official candidate in the official election.

This and developments in other parts of the state were lumped together by many politicians as heralding the collapse of Senator Huey P. Long's political domination of the state. Long left for Washington Wednesday night, announcing that he would press for re-distribution of wealth at the coming session of congress and get the lawmakers to "whittle the rich down to frying pan size."

Recipe Book Being Issued By Imperial Sugar Co. For Users Of Sugar; Ask Herald

By O. E. F. One of the most interesting recipe booklets that has ever come the way of the cooking editor is the "sugar" booklet put out by Imperial Sugar Co. As every loyal Texas knows, this firm is a Texas firm, located down in South Texas in a town it named itself, Sugar Land. The booklet is a substantial 96-page booklet containing recipes for heaven only knows how many dishes. You never heard of such a variety. It seems as if there are as many uses for sugar as for salt. Even meats are listed, not to say breads, desserts, salads, soups, vegetables, etc. Extras are a page devoted to weights and measures, etc. to send-

CHAPTER 30

What did Sonya want with LeNoir? He was the Cosack's contact man. Was that fact the reason she wanted to see him?

"Why's she meeting LeNoir?"
"She's giving him a letter."
"A letter? To whom?"
Paul hesitated, shuddered; but there was no help for it and he took the step. "It's a letter to Karakhan."

Curt stiffened, like the granite he stood against. He shook Paul roughly by the arm.

"Does she know Karakhan?"
"She knows him very well. Forgive me, partner, but you had to know."

Curt turned slowly and stared down toward the tents as though trying to catch a glimpse of a girl's figure yonder in the darkness. After a time he turned to Paul again. His voice shook.

"Don't make a mistake about her sending a letter to Karakhan. Are you positive of it? Dead positive?"

"To the extent," Paul said quietly, "that I have a copy of the letter itself. Last night I saw her writing in the tent. She was so secret about it that I knew she was writing something important. I watched through one of the arrow holes and saw where she hid the note when she finished; and after she'd gone to sleep, I went in and got it. I sat here behind these rocks, and made a copy by your electric torch; and then I returned the letter."

"What does it say? What did she tell him?"

Paul reached into his jacket and brought out a paper, carefully wrapped in canvas. "You had best read it yourself. Then you'll know."

He gave Curt the pages and saw his partner stare at them with fascinated dread. Why didn't he snap on the flash and read them? Was he afraid?

In the southwestern sky Antares had sunk down till it hovered on the peakline, looking not like a star but some distant light on the mountain top. Time for her meeting with LeNoir, he thought.

"What are we going to do about this rendezvous?" he asked. "It's our chance to find out where Karakhan is. They're sure to drop a word about his hiding place."

"I suppose we ought to do something," Curt agreed dully. It seemed that locating Karakhan had become of no importance.

Across the channel Paul heard the fluttering call of an owl. It did not fool him.

"There's LeNoir signaling to her. That's the signal he was to use. Aren't we going to shadow them? We'll find out more in ten minutes than we could in a month otherwise."

Curt thrust the letter into his pocket unread. "We ought to follow her. I'll do it. I want to hear what they say. Paul, there's something to this that you didn't get the truth of. There's got to be."

The "owl" signaled again. Paul glanced down toward the tents, heard nothing of Sonya, saw nothing of her.

"We'll have to give her a clear road," he suggested, "before she'll cross that channel. Suppose I go down to the tents and make her believe I'm returning in? If she's there by the canoe, I'll drop the remark that you're tired and almost asleep. You can stay here, and when she starts you can follow. I'll bring you a canoe to cross with."

Curt shook his head. "LeNoir would see a canoe. No, I'll get across. Just leave me your blankets and the flash."

Paul vanished down the island, and Curt waited alone. A queer unnatural frame of mind had come over him. Sonya, meeting Teeste LeNoir, conniving with him against the two who had defended her.

It seemed only a little less preposterous than her knowing, intimately knowing, Igor Karakhan. He could no longer deny that she was acquainted with the Cosack and that her trip was somehow connected with the man. But her motive in this affair might be innocent, even commendable.

Footsteps came up the landwash presently. Through eyes narrowed to slits he saw Sonya's faint moonshad fall across his feet. She stood there a few seconds, looking at him; then, to make doubly sure, she bent down, so near that he shut his eyes to keep her from seeing that he was awake. He had the strength of will to sit motionless, feigning that he was oblivious of her when every nerve in him was trembling at her nearness.

She straightened up at last and went back down the landwash. When she was gone Curt took off his jacket and moccasins, laid his rifle, automatic and flash on top of them and crept to the water's edge. Taking care to make no moon ripples for the sharp eyes of LeNoir to catch, he struck out for the other island, and landed at its upper tip.

As he turned to look back, a long mottle left the opposite shore and came dancing across the fifty-yard channel. It merged with the shadows of the willow sand and was swallowed up.

In a kind of daze, as though he were an actor in some ugly dream, Curt worked his way down through the shouldered-high brush. When he heard cautious voices ahead he dropped to hands and knees and crept on, foot by foot, till he came up behind a thick clump within twelve feet of Sonya and LeNoir and could hear their words distinctly.

"I have never heard of this man you speak about," LeNoir was arguing. "There is no such man in these mountains. For the fifth time, non!"

Sonya stamped her small foot impatiently. "For the tenth time, out!" She dropped her imperious tones, became persuasive, coaxing. "I understand how carefully you must guard the secret of his hiding place from all strangers. Will you not believe that he and I are fellow-countrymen and intimate friends? Has he not mentioned me a dozen times to you?"

"He has not mentioned you once?" LeNoir came back too quickly.

Sonya caught him up. "You have made the admission of knowing him! Now perhaps we can talk!"

The detective in Curt admired the deft way she had led LeNoir into her trap. It was clear that Karak-

Rose Tourney 'Pirate'

Behind the screen of willows Curt rose on his elbow, and a cry choked in his throat. "And remaining—these two shameless words of hers stabbed him like a knife. She was joining Karakhan in his wilderness refuge!"
"I'll be waiting for your return" Sonya continued, to LeNoir. "Each night when the red star sets I'll listen for your signal. Now, set other things. These Indians are planning to attack my party. You have influence with them. You must keep them from doing that, Ralph is my friend. Mr. Ralston and his partner have been good to me, too. I'd be sorry if they met any harm."
"I have little influence," the "breed evaded. "But perhaps I can do something."
"You must," she insisted. "And now I'll go back to camp. Those two yonder may discover I am gone."
LeNoir detained her. "Will you say nothing," he stammered, "about—at Russian Lake, when I came over to the island? You will say nothing to M'sieu Karakhan about that little indiscretion?"
"Nothing at all," said Sonya. (To Be Continued)

han did not know she was coming to him. It meant that Karakhan had not sent for her at all. That there was something here which Paul hadn't found out.
LeNoir growled at being trapped into admitting that he knew Karakhan.
"What is it you want?" he demanded.
"For you to take him this letter. Only that. When he reads my note he will give you more money for bringing it than for all the help that you've been to him since last fall."
At the mention of money LeNoir pricked up his ears. But still he hung back warily.
"What more do you want of me?" "Nothing more. You see, I am not asking you where he is or endangering his security in any way. He will relieve you of all responsibility. Take your directions from him. He will send you back here, undoubtedly, to get me."
LeNoir jumped as the situation dawned on him. "Is it that you are going to join him there?"
"You are not entirely without understanding." Sonya answered. "Yes, I am joining him there—and

Dewey Hunt Dies Tonight

Only Executive Clemency Can Save Slayer Of Dallas Man

HUNTSVILLE, (UP)—Dewey Hunt, twice convicted for the slaying of Samuel Cole, Dallas street car motorman and who has been in jail three years while attorneys argued his fate is scheduled to die in the electric chair in the State Penitentiary at Huntsville, December 28.

Only executive clemency on the part of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson can save the 27-year-old murderer from electrocution a few minutes after midnight Saturday, W. W. Wald, warden of the prison, said.

Cole was shot down by a hijacker in November, 1928. Hunt later was arrested, identified as the killer, experienced a speedy trial and was found guilty. The jury imposed the death penalty.

Attorneys for the condemned man appealed the sentence to the Court of Criminal Appeals. The case was reversed because the indictment did not specify that the killing was done "with malice aforethought." The court ruled that no more than five years could be assessed under the statutes on such an indictment.

County attorneys called a grand jury and Hunt was re-indicted. He was convicted and again given the death penalty.

An attempt to have Hunt freed before Christmas last year failed when judges of six civil district courts announced their refusal to hold a hearing on writs of habeas corpus filed for Hunt by his attorneys. Previous attempts to have Hunt released also had failed.

In over-ruling applications to hear the writ, the judges said they believed they had no jurisdiction to pass on a criminal case.

Prior to the new trial obtained by Hunt's attorneys, attempts were made to get the prisoner released. They failed. The Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin refused to recognize bond pending a new trial.

The question of former jeopardy, raised in an application for another writ, was pigeon-holed when the court announced it could not hear the writ before date of the new trial.

Hunt vigorously denied he held any grudge against the man he killed. He said he shot and killed him when the motorman failed to respond quickly to the gunman's commands.

In the death row at Huntsville, the condemned man appeared little wry concerning his fate before Thanksgiving Day. Hunt told guards he was thankful he had only a few more weeks of this "life in the pen" ahead of him.

Besides Hunt, two negroes are scheduled to die in the electric chair the same date. They are Carl Stewart, Travis county, and Clarence Booker, Waller county. Both were convicted of murder.

Hunt, at his second trial last October, twisted nervously in his chair, while a ceremony was held in District Attorney William McGraw's office.

When the verdict of "death" was read, Hunt appeared puzzled. He turned to a newspaper reporter and said, "I'm tired—think I'll go to bed."

Seven ballots were required before the second jury could get a unanimous vote for the death penalty.

Mr. Ellwood moved to Lubbock in 1918 after making his home most of the time at the Spade headquarters west of town. He built a home about a mile and a half west of the city. It is now located on Nineteenth street and was formerly the Ellwood hospital. For many years, it was one of the show places of West Texas.

To Texas in 1887
 Mr. Ellwood came to Texas in 1887 with his father, Col. Isaac L. Ellwood from Illinois. His father, originator of barbed wire, desired to purchase ranch holdings and they made their first purchase near Colorado City. A tract of land comprising 200 sections was bought as the original Spade ranch.

Four years later, they moved north to the South Plains and purchased additional land from D. H. and J. W. Snyder in Lamb, Ellis, Lubbock and Hockley counties. This body of land was 22 miles long and eight miles wide and covered 128,000 acres.

In the next ten years their holdings were increased to 265,000 acres on the South Plains and the upper Spade ranch soon became the most famous of West Texas with its herds of thousands of cattle. At times, more than 10,000 head of cattle grazed on its vast ranges and together with the lower Spade holdings in Mitchell county, the Ellwoods had more than 25,000 head of cattle.

Col. Ellwood's time was occupied with his barb wire business in DeKalb, Ill., and he appointed his son to manage his Texas holdings. The task assigned Mr. Ellwood was the improving and stocking of his ranch.

Improvements Made
 Permanent improvements were made on the ranch, two headquarters being built. Material had to be hauled a great distance, yet the best that could be obtained was placed upon the ranch. The headquarters were made complete in every way; water was piped into the house—a rarity in this section in those days—bath tubs, carbide lighting systems and other conveniences were installed. One of the headquarters was located north of Anton and the other twenty miles west of Lubbock.

Col. Ellwood knew that he had found an ideal country, his son said his father told him. In speaking of his future to his son, the elder Ellwood said, "I may not live to see it, but you will. Some day this country will be solidly farmed and bringing from forty to fifty dollars per acre."

Added To Holdings
 With all this in mind, he decided to block up a body of this land while there was such a large expanse of territory from which to choose. Under the advice and direction of his father, Mr. Ellwood added first one choice tract of land and then another to its already large acreage.

The last purchase to the Ellwood holdings was made in 1906 when 12 leagues were brought from the Lake-Toom Cattle company comprising approximately 250,000 acres.

On Sept. 11, 1910, Col. Ellwood died at his home in DeKalb and ever since his son has been in complete charge of the ranch.

Following the prediction of his father that this section would some time be a rich farming area, Mr. Ellwood retreated from his vast ranges with his cattle and moved place for the man with the plow and hoe. In 1922, he began to open up his South Plains Spade ranch for colonization and a picture of the Spade ranch is now one of the most famous in West Texas. Several thousand head of cattle were sold at that time.

Was Widely Known
 Mr. Ellwood was known to practically every cattleman west of Fort Worth and had a large acquaintance throughout the middle west. He made purchases of cattle from many of the leading ranchers of West Texas.

Years ago, it was quite an occasion for Lubbock and surrounding territory when the Spade shipped its cattle to market. It required several days for the vast herds to make their way across the railroad.

The arrival of the "Spade gang" in town always caused a stir.

A pioneer at heart, Mr. Ellwood still cherished the memory of those early days on the Spade ranch and often recalled them with keen enjoyment to his friends and associates. It was with a great deal of satisfaction that he watched cattle round up over the broad expanse of grazing lands and it was deep regret that he realized the passing of the cowman.

The picturesque cowpuncher of other days has disappeared, yet the original ranch which he and his father purchased in Mitchell county, now named Randerbrook ranch still is stocked with thousands of head of Whiteface cattle.

Land Sold For Homes
 The farmer came quickly and the past ten years have seen a total of 140,000 acres of the Spade range cut up into farms of less than a section.

Colonization of the Spade range has been under the direction of Judge R. C. Mopping of Lubbock. Now only about 125,000 acres of the South Plains holdings remain open for farms. Mr. Ellwood's death is expected to bring about quick colonization of this land.

Mr. Ellwood became interested in colonization of his ranch properties and offered special inducements to farmers to settle on the land. Farms were sold in 20, 30, 60 and 80 acre tracts.

He took action as payments on the land and at one time sold nearly a trainload of the cotton to the Texas Cotton Co-operative association.

Mr. Ellwood has been interested in the Citizens National bank almost since its founding. He became an active member of its board in 1921 when he was named chairman of the board of directors. His time the past several years has been divided between re-establishment of his Mitchell county ranch and his South Plains holdings.

He had maintained an office at 1214 Broadway but has left most of his business dealings to a group of associates.

Victim Of Heart Attack Is Buried

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 4 p. m. at the graveside for Alfonso Scoville, 75, a native of Canada who died of a heart attack on Christmas eve while driving three miles east of Jatan on his way to Dallas to visit his son, Raleigh Scoville.

Surviving Mr. Scoville are his wife to whom he was married about nine months ago; two brothers, Steve of Grand Junction, Colo., and one whose whereabouts are unknown; two children, a son, Raleigh of Dallas, and a daughter, address unknown, and eight stepchildren, including J. H. H. E. and H. H. Merworth of Big Spring.

Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated at the services. Representatives from local CWA workers acted as pallbearers. Charles Eberly Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Plans Designed To Meet Debt, And Surplus

Foreclosure Stopped, Land Bank Loans Greatly Increased

By CARL C. CANNON

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Two problems of agriculture, debt and commodity surplus, have the brunt of government attack in 1933.

To solve the surplus problem, the agricultural adjustment act was passed, providing for crop control and marketing agreements.

To meet the debt situation, the farm credit administration was set up and lending agencies that had been scattered under the old federal farm board, treasury, Reconstruction Finance corporation, and department of agriculture, were grouped under one head and broadened.

Four Types of Credit
 Department of agriculture figures show that in 1932 farm mortgage indebtedness was about $9,500,000,000. For the year ending March approximately 38.5 farms out of every 1,000 were involved in transfers for debt.

Four types of credit are provided under the new act by the federal land banks, production credit corporations, intermediate credit banks and banks for cooperatives in each of 12 regions.

By issuing $2,000,000,000 in bonds with interest guaranteed, the federal land banks were permitted to assume farm mortgages held by private agencies in order to stop foreclosures.

Nearly half a million farmers applied for $1,700,000,000 in mortgage loans between May 12 and December 1.

Geared to grant loans which amounted to only $27,569,000 in 1932, the land banks, stepped up their lending from $3,985,000 in July to $25,332,000 in November, or a total of more than $110,000,000 in the five months.

Big Response In Borrowing
 By the end of November mortgage loans were being made at a rate of $3,000,000 a day, and outstanding loans total $1,206,000,000 compared with $1,118,000,000 on June 30. Other types of loans outstanding, including those to cooperatives and production credit associations, totaled $24,374,000.

Meanwhile, prices of nearly all farm products advanced and Secretary Wallace estimated the 1933 gross farm income at $4,450,000,000, compared with $3,142,000,000 last year.

Part of the increase, however, was cancelled by increases in prices of things the farmer buys. Thus, while the index of farm prices advanced from 50 in March (with prices of 1910-14 taken as 100) to 72 in November, the index of prices he paid also increased from 100 in March to 117.5 in November.

These Aids
 Benefits from processing taxes in the Adjustment administration's crop curtailment campaign will add $300,000,000 to this year's farm income, it is estimated.

Nearly 10,400,000 acres of cotton were plowed under and an almost record crop of 17,135,000 bales reduced to 13,177,000 slightly under normal. Growers received an estimated $50,000,000 from increased prices, plus $110,000,000 in benefits from the cotton curtailment campaign.

What growers signed agreements to cut next year's crop by about 8,000,000 acres, and checks for $102,000,000 in benefits began going out in November. A world wheat agreement respecting exports and production was negotiated.

Government Buys Feed
 The government bought 1,200,000 pigs and 220,000 sows at a cost of $31,000,000 to reduce this winter's market supply and then launched a campaign to reduce the 1934 corn crop by a fifth and the pig crop by a fourth. Maximum benefit payments will approach $350,000,000.

When a farm strike, led by the Farmers Holiday association flared in the midwest, a commitment was made to lend up to $100,000,000 on corn belt on the farm, and a similar trouble also threatened in the south when low tobacco prices caused the closing of markets. But the growers of flue-cured tobacco received $75,000,000 more this year than last. It is estimated when they agreed to cut acreage next year up to 30 per cent, and manufacturers agreed to pay a minimum price of 17 cents a pound. Benefits will total about $37,500,000.

Thirteen milked marketing agreements were negotiated. With 12 other marketing completion, these agreements are estimated to increase the returns to producers of Class I milk by $30,000,000 annually.

Several other marketing agreements including fruits and rice were put into effect.

Mellon—
 They just won't stop sticking pins into Andy Mellon's aluminum company.

No sooner did he win that $9,000,000 anti-trust suit brought by the Busch company up in Connecticut than the independents were right back snapping at our former Treasury Secretary's heels.

This time they're making a two-fold demand. First the little fellows (and they're really small comparatively) will insist that any aluminum code go to the Attorney General before submission to the President to determine whether it violates Senator Borah's anti-trust amendment to NIRA.

Secondly they are demanding action to break up what they call an absolute monopoly.

Minority interests are making much of the final argument of the Aluminum Co. lawyer in the Connecticut trial. The attorney called attention to the fact Cummings had been attorney for the Busch company before he took the Justice portfolio. After praising Mellon the inference was left in the jury address that the whole trial was political.

"This constitutes so defiant a challenge to the Department of Justice that Cummings can not ignore it," one of the independents said. "He must put an end to the im-community the Trust was able to win from his predecessors in office."

The small fry in the aluminum world are hoping to stir up such Senatorial progressives as Norris of Neb., Borah of Idaho, Nye of N. D., and Wheeler of Mont. against the Aluminum company.

Support is also being courted from the copper-mining regions which they figure must be sore. When the Tennessee Valley Authority asked for bids recently on 250 miles of electric cable the copper companies bid between $800,000 and $820,000. The Aluminum boys got the business with a $400,000 offer.

And this with copper selling in the open market at 8 cents a pound while aluminum fetches 23.3 cents. Copper interests say the aluminum people won't lower their general market price despite a surplus of several hundred million pounds but seek to work it off in this fashion.

Notes—
 Washington's largest haberdashery reports that best Christmas volume of business since 1928. . . So great and unexpected was the demand for goods at the end that a buyer was kept constantly in New York and special shipments were rushed here by airplane. Harry Kinners, chief clerk of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, had a merry Christmas until he discovered a thief had jimmied open his steel desk during the holidays and stolen $38 in petty cash. . . Now he's wondering if the powers that be will rule he personally responsible. . . Incidentally Harry Hopkins got more than two sacks of Christmas greetings from people who had laid a hand on their first dollars in months by acquiring a Civil Works job.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

Leaves—
 The leaves of a friendlier policy toward the administration is working in the lump of Wall Street discontent.

Powerful financial interests recently mentioned in this column have not yet decided whether to make a public statement of their attitude. But individuals identified with these interests are doing their part with private missionary work among friends and associates. The gist of their comment is that Roosevelt is stronger than ever and New York can serve itself best by lending a hand instead of sling mud. They also point out that successful fulfillment of the President's program is the only hope of averting a dangerous Congressional stampede. They say they would rather be ruled by FDR than RFD.

This shift of sentiment is having a marked effect in financial quarters and also in corporations with banking connections. It is especially evident in the case of certain utility groups which have recently become more conciliatory towards

Experts—

Wall Street got a laugh out of Professor Irving Fisher's list of the eighteen experts who understand money. They say that if Professors Warren, Pearson and Rogers (gold theorists) know what it's about and economists Kemmerer and Warren Persons (sound moneyites) likewise understand it they really ought to get together. The boys add that presumably no one was included from France, Holland or Switzerland because they are still on the gold standard.

And on the whole they think it was rather unkind of the Professor not to include the President. "It doesn't say much for Fisher's teaching ability if the man he has advised so freely isn't among the elect."

Man Says He Is Father Of Only One Of Twin Boys

CHICAGO (UP)—Medical scientists were skeptical of the claim of a Yankton, S. D., man that he was the father of only one of twin boys born to his wife.

While granting the phenomenon was scientifically possible, Chicago scientists said such a claim would be almost impossible to prove. The case attracted wide interest among geneticists.

Prof. H. H. Newman, Chicago University scientist and leading genetics expert, said he very much doubted the authenticity of the claim. Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, likewise was "skeptical."

Their views differed from that of medical testimony presented at the court hearing on a divorce petition by Ewald Petrie before Judge A. E. Tripp in Yankton yesterday.

Judge Tripp recognized the legal possibility of the claim when he granted Petrie a divorce on grounds of infidelity. Petrie claimed his wife had admitted she was unfaithful. The suit was not contested.

Petrie maintained he was the father of one of the twins born 10 years ago to his wife and that a neighbor was the father of the other. He asserted one of the twins resembled him while the other resembled the other man.

The opinion of a medical expert entered in the court records said: "In cases of fraternal twins, the children might develop from separate cells of the female, impregnated at two different times within the interval which might be as great as several hours."

Poss As President's Son?
ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y. (UP)—Washington authorities were expected to arrive within a few days to return Howard Lawless, 24, suspected of posing as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. to face an automobile theft charge. Lawless, state police believed, is the fashionable attired youth with an Harvard accent who recently cashed several worthless checks while representing himself as young Roosevelt and at various times as a son of Alfred E. Smith and of Booth Tarkington.

The George T. B. Davis stereopticon lectures on "Fulfilled Prophecies That Prove The Bible" will be given tonight at the Fundamentalist Baptist tabernacle, Fourth and Benton streets, by Rev. Joe MacNamee of Dallas. The public is invited.

These lantern slides will include a great number of ancient cities but are well-known places today. Public school students will be especially welcomed, said Pastor H. C. Goodman.

John Garner Reaches Capital For Meeting With The President

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Vice-President Garner returned to the capital Friday after spending the summer at his Texas home. He told newspapermen he would confer with the President on the legislative program to be submitted to Congress. He said he had been requested by the President to be here for a conference ahead of convening of Congress.

GRID FINALE— The football season will close New Year's Day with three college games of interest. Arkansas hosts Centenary in the Dixie classic at Dallas; the All-East team plays the All-West aggregation at San Francisco and Columbia clashes with Stanford at Pasadena in the annual Rose Bowl game.

Down here in our own state the Interscholastic League High school football marathon will come to a close Saturday at Fair Park Stadium in Dallas when Dallas Tech and the Greenville Lions clash for the state title. To Coach Franka and his Lions we give a slight edge, but they'll be up against a heavier team.

JOB AT STAKE— We learn via Bob Ingram, an El Paso sports writer, that the coaching job of Harry Taylor was about over at San Angelo along toward the first of the season. That's not a surprise, but the Concho mentor is a long way out of the "quick sand" now and won't have any trouble holding his post.

Athletically speaking, San Angelo has snapped in to it. The civic clubs and organizations have arranged to send all of the Bobcat gridsters including the coaches to see the final spasm at Dallas Saturday. Dallas Tech is treating the team to choice seats.

We notice that a number of scribes have been giving Coston, Tech center, the edge over Castello in the semi-final fray. In our opinion, the big Castello was undoubtedly the better performer. He should make the all-state eleven.

BEARDED BEAUTIES— True to promises, school officials have again booked the famed House of David basketball team of Benton Harbor, Michigan, for a scrap here the night of January 7 with Coach George Brown's Steers.

There isn't a more colorful athletic organization in the country than the Davidites. With their baffling pass attacks and clowning they have been a sensation all over the country.

A new one to the Bearded ranks is a center 6 feet 11 inches tall. He is only 21 years old and a wonder on the hardwood. The big Buck Buchanan who gave such a startling exhibition in handling the ball while here last year, is listed on the team again.

FOR CHARITY— Several have asked where the funds collected in the game with Midland Christmas Day were going. We have been advised that Big Spring's share, $142, will be used to feed high school athletes unable to support themselves. The gate amounted to $282 for both teams.

DAVID WILLIAMS HOME— David Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Williams, was taken to his home Friday to finish recuperating from the accident which punctured his intestines and threatened to end in peritonitis and death.

OZONA MAN NAMED— W. E. White, newspaper publisher of Ozona, was named to the executive board of the Palo Duro-Del Rio highway association in a recent meeting of the body held in Ozona.

De Luxe Members Enjoy Bridge Party

Reedie Winslow entertained the De Luxe Club Wednesday evening with a bridge party.

Elmer Guthrie won first prize and Barbara Freeman second. Mrs. Ollie Anderson and Miss Josephine Winslow were the guests of the evening.

A salad plate was served with coffee and cake to the guests and following members: Dorothy Mae Miller, Mary Louise Gilmour, Jessie Mae Couch, Helen Duley, Barbara Freeman, Elmore Guthrie, Florence Guthrie, Margaret McDonald, Nellou McRea, Mildred Herrig.

Jessie Mae Couch will be the next hostess.

Walter Arnold Gives Nice Holiday Dinner

Walter Arnold entertained some classmates with a dinner party this week at the home of his parents, Dr. Marie and Frank Weeg, on South Scurry street.

The young guests were served a turkey dinner with fruit salad, fruit cake and punch. The dining room was decorated with roses and Christmas holly. A large chocolate cake presented to the host by Mrs. William Fahrenkamp was a feature of the dining table decorations.

Present were: Winifred Piner, Doris Cunningham, Nancy Phillips, Oleta Slager, Mary Louise Inkman, Marie Arnold, Champe Phillips, Marvin Burleson, Howard Burleson, Roger White of Amarillo.

Mrs. G. H. Wood Tahlequah Hostess

Mrs. G. H. Wood entertained the Tahlequah Bridge Club at the Settles Hotel Thursday with a delightful luncheon followed by an afternoon of contract bridge.

Four visitors played with the club, Meses Lee Rogers, A. E. Service, J. B. Williams and Shine Phillips.

Mrs. Pistole scored highest and Miss Davis second. Members present were: Miss Portia Davis, Meses J. B. Young, E. O. Ellington, J. L.

Typographical Error Causes Second Marriage Ceremony At Cleburne

CLEBURNE, (UP)—It took two rapid fire ceremonies to perform the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Hogan C. Cain of Fort Worth when they came here to have the nuptials performed.

On the first occasion, Mrs. Cain was married through a typographical error to Dr. D. N. Matheson, who had given them the medical examination, prior to the marriage. At least on the marriage certificate, she was married to Dr. Matheson. Unaware of the facts, she and her supposed husband went to the county clerk's office to have the marriage recorded.

Learning of the error they secured another license and again marched to the justice of peace.

Probation Officer At El Paso Shaves Heads Of Delinquent Juveniles

EL PASO, (UP)—Probation officer Jack Gunn's practices of cutting the hair of delinquents arrested for charges resulted in protests from El Paso mothers and an order from County Judge Joseph McGill to stop the practice.

Gunn shaved the heads of four young shoplifters as an experiment. "I found that the boys hate to lose their hair worse than anything," he said. "They will spend their last nickel for hair oil."

"The punishment is the best I have found."

Mrs. M. L. Burleson, Parents and Teachers' council president, objected to the head shaves as a form of "branding" children.

CHRISTMAS GATHERING

A lovely turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Grimes Christmas Day. Present were: Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sherbon and daughters, Alberta and Rita Jean of Ponca City, Mr. and Mrs. Delmont Cook and children, June, Jean and De Wayne. The afternoon was spent in games and kidding. Mr. and Mrs. Sherbon

Rush, Robert Currie, A. E. Pistole and Victor Martin.

Mrs. Ray Simmons will be the next hostess.

Horse-Drawn, Rubber Tired Buses Carry Children To School

WEARTON, (UP)—Rubber-tired prairie schooners have replaced buses in the Plain View school district near here and now children no longer are late to classes when roads are muddy.

Trustees tried to modernize their transportation system in hauling children to and from school. The buses worked well in dry weather but when rains came the heavy machines bogged down and too frequently teachers scanned the country from classrooms doors for pupils late to school.

Horses were rushed from farms along the routes to pull the bogged trucks, to get the children started again on their way to classes.

Finally the trustees reasoned that horses might as well do all the transporting.

Now four of the horse-drawn, rubber-tired schooners make the route.

Clark Gable Visitor Here—This One Plays In U. Of Texas Band

Big Spring's effeminate theatre-going population will be interested in this! As a guest during the Christmas holidays the George H. Wilkes' had none other than Clark Gable.

Not, however, of Hollywood. This Clark Gable plays a trumpet in the University of Texas Longhorn band and hails from Dallas. He does not wear turtle-neck sweaters. He has never slapped Jenn Harlow in his life. Furthermore he doesn't intend to.

His full name is Elmer Clark Gable, but of course he gives the latter preference, as anyone would. Sometimes he becomes involved in amusing incidents because of the identical names. When he telephones a girl, for instance, he finds it almost impossible to convince her that he is not trying to pull a joke on her.

A little trouble, of course, but he shouldn't mind. Think of the recommendation it gives him!

COTTON CONSUMPTION

NEW YORK, (UP)—World consumption of American cotton in November totaled 1,306,000 bales, compared with 215,000 bales in October and 1,300,000 bales in the corresponding month last year, the New York Cotton Exchange service reported today.

Huge Tarpaulin Protects Fair Park Field From Damp Weather As Time Nears For Final Scrap

Twenty-Five Or Thirty Thousand Spectators Are Expected—Greenville To Run Special Train F or Event

By BILL PARKER Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS—When the Greenville Lions and Dallas Tech Wolves meet at 2:30 Saturday afternoon for the Texas Interscholastic League football championship the gridiron will be dry.

A huge tarpaulin covers the playing field. This water-proof canvas will protect the field until game time. Of course if it rains during the game the field will become heavy. Thursday's drizzling rain failed to dampen enthusiasm for the game. P. C. Cobb, director of athletics of Dallas schools, is confident that twenty-five or thirty thousand persons will see the championship tussle. Local fans are taking advantage of the opportunity to purchase tickets for 50 cents. After Friday night the tickets will sell for one dollar.

It was announced that a special train will bring hundreds of Greenville fans direct to the Fair Park stadium. Those aboard will not have to embark at the Union terminal and ride street cars to the stadium.

Except for Luke Cortemeglia's bad cold the Tech Wolves are ready for the referee's whistle. Captain Cortemeglia, one of the best backs on the team, is improving and will be ready to play. Coach Wallace Davis started tapering off his cohorts Thursday. Only a light practice is on Friday's schedule. Tech's mental and physical condition is perfect. Zeo Conlon, 190 pound candidate for all-state center, will be Tech's driving power in the line. "Red" Ewing, plunging, smashing halfback, will be the Wolves' backfield spark-plug.

Fights Cockiness

Nursing minor bruises but eager for action, the Greenville Lions are ready. Coach Henry Franka is fighting over-confidence among his boys. He saw Dallas Tech defeat San Angelo and realizes his team has a stiff battle against the Wolves. Emmett Hussey, 194 pound guard who is receiving many votes for the eventual Associated Press consensus team, is the foundation of the Greenville front wall. He has been outstanding in all of Greenville's combats this season. Bert Marshall, 125 pound quarterback and listed on the Greenville weight list as the smallest regular on the team, will be a "marked man" in Saturday's contest. It was Marshall's excellent all-around playing that paved the way for Greenville's impressive 32 to 14 victory last week over Fort Worth.

Greenville's probable starting lineup and weights:

Dallas Tech's probable starting lineup and weights:

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

"That Jimmie Fox was made ten less home runs in 1933 than he did in 1932 probably may be attributed to the fact that Cleveland Indians were playing in the huge municipal stadium and that the Detroit management erected a wire screen over the left field prior to the start of the '33 campaign", writes Henry P. Edwards, the well known expert.

"The Philadelphia manufacturer of four sackers made four home runs in the old park in Cleveland in '32 as compared with only one in the big stadium. He also made nine homers at Detroit in '32 but only two after the screen was placed over the wall. The Detroit club had Jimmie's ability to drive the ball over the barrier in mind when they put up that screen.

"Return of the Indians to League Park after a season in the stadium is likely to help Babe Ruth as well as Fox. Ruth gathered seven homers at the old park in '32 but only a four-sacker in the great plant on the shore of Lake Erie. Neither did Lou Gehrig, who also used to have the proper range at Cleveland.

"To offset his failure to make many homers in Cleveland and Detroit, however, Fox in 1933 made 31 circuit wallops at home as against 26 the preceding season. His other 17 were six at St. Louis, three at Chicago, two each in Boston, Washington and Detroit, and one each in Cleveland and New York. Ten were off left handers, 38 off right handers.

GOMEZ GENEROUS— "Lefty Gomez continued to be a 'cousin' to Fox as the latter made four homers off him, just as he did in '32. Jimmie made three each off Sorrell, Hudlin, Blaeholder and Crowder, two each off Harder, C. Brown, Allen, Wells, MacFayden, Hadley and Stewart.

"Although Fox made but one home run at the Yankee stadium he

Steer Cagers Play Tonight

Former Stars To Battle Bovines At Seven Thirty In Gym

Tonight at 7:30 in the high school gymnasium an array of former Steer cager stars will take the oak against the present Bovines team.

Army Armstrong, pilot for the "exes," announces such luminaries as Harris, Townsend, Hutto, Morgan, Hopper and Bill Flowers for his team. "Cy" Reid, star pivot man on the local team for several years, left for school in Colorado and will not get to play.

Jack Dean, a regular on the Bovines, will match wits with Armstrong as coach and will not suit out until the half. The probable starting line-up for the Bovines will be: center, Cordill; forwards, Neel and Driver; guards, Hare and B. Flowers.

J. Askeve Coffey and George Hudspeth, Gentry will officiate, which in itself is more than worth the ten cent price of admission.
