

Loan To City For Rebuilding Rising Star Sewer System Approved

$87,320 Project To Be Financed With Grant, Loan

A telegram from Sen. Ralph Yarborough to the Rising Star Record Wednesday morning announced that the Community Facilities Administration, Washington, D. C., had approved a loan of $61,500.00 to the City of Rising Star to help finance an $87,320.00 sewage treatment plant for the city.

Remainder of the cost in the form of a grant of federal funds to the city through the State Health Department is expected to be approved as a matter of course.

The National Engineering Co., an Austin firm of engineers, is handling the project for the city and will supervise the relocation and reconstruction of the disposal plant and renovation of the entire system.

Mayor Walter Smith said that it was indefinite as yet when work would start, pending letting of a contract and other preliminary steps which must be taken.

The City Wednesday was awaiting official notification of the approval.

State Dental Society Will Honor Dr. Carter Monday

Dr. William S. Carter, Rising Star dentist and cattleman, will be honored by the Texas State Dental Society for half a century of service in his profession when the Society convenes at San Antonio next week.

He will be awarded a gold medal in recognition of his fiftieth year in the profession. The award will take place Monday, April 29, at the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio.

Dr. Carter, son of a pioneer Rising Star couple, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Carter, has lived most of his life in Rising Star, and has maintained a dental office and practice in Rising Star for all the 50 years for which he will be honored.

But he is not a native of Rising Star. He was born in Weiser, Idaho, to which state his parents, along with others from the Rising Star section, immigrated in approved wagon train fashion in the late years of the nineteenth century.

They had first come to Rising Star, which was country as new and virgin as that of the Idaho mecca that called them, and shortly after young William S. Carter was born they returned to Rising Star to make it their home for the rest of their lives.

Dr. Carter graduated from Kentucky Dental College as an honor student in 1913 and established his office in his home town that same year.

He has twice gone elsewhere to set up dental practice—to Ft. Worth during the War years 1939 to 1943, and to Van Horn in 1950-53 during which time he also operated a large irrigation farm that he sold later. But each time he kept his office in Rising Star and returned regularly a part of each week to take care of his patients.

In 1945 he and the late Dr. W. L. Allen built the clinic building on West College Street where he still maintains his office.

Dr. Carter is recognized as one of the outstanding dentists in the state. His patients come from a wide area of West and Central Texas and from many parts of East Texas. It is a common sight to see cars from widely separated counties of the state parked before his office when he is at work, so much is his professional service in demand among patients whom he has treated in the past and who have influenced many others to

In this he is enthusiastically joined by his wife, the former Agnes Agnew—they were married in 1925—who is a most capable and energetic assistant in the management of their ranch interests.

Their daughter and only child, Mrs. L. C. Hounsell, is also a very efficient rancher. Mr. and Mrs. Hounsell have just returned to Rising Star with their four grandchildren from Fort Worth. During the week prizes will be awarded to residents whose residential premises reflect the most improvement in the opinion of a group of judges to be selected from other communities.

During the week, also the City will furnish trucks to haul away rubbish free of charge. The City asks only that the trash be placed at a point convenient for the truck crews to pick up. No charge will be made for the services.

Between 30 and 40 prizes to be given away during Saturday afternoon have been contributed by Rising Star business men. There is no charge for registering, and slips for the purpose have been made available at most business houses in town.

Several drawings will be held during the afternoon.

In certain tainted quarters there is a growing criticism of the American legislative process as being inefficient and out-moded. Congress, we are told, is a dodo, a survival of horse and buggy days, inadequate to the needs of a fast-moving nuclear age. It is, we are told, a ponderous political fraternity whose members spend the greater part of their time in senseless wrangling and the last week or so of a session in passing a mass of hastily considered legislation.

Let's hope it can be kept so!

The criticism betrays a fundamental ignorance of the democratic process. More tragically, it ignores the only element of that process which preserves it against those dictatorships and unilateral governments from which it escaped in the formative days of the American union. It is a criticism founded in impatience, even intolerance, and in a resentment against opposition. It cries for efficiency, when it means by efficiency nothing more than subservience to another branch of the government, and the swift and convenient passage of a directed program. The critics, one suspects, are more interested in the enactment of a program than the preservation of a system. The thesis is plausible, even eloquent, but like the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, the image has feet of clay.

The democratic process—particularly the legislative organizations of the system—are not intended to be efficient in terms of time and function. Its efficiency exists in the condition that it preserves the voice of the minority and gives effect to minority influence. When you consider that there is no such thing as a majority—that all so-called majorities are made up of conflicting minorities—this fact becomes a vital consideration in whatever assessment we may make of our democratic institutions.

There are plenty of things wrong with Congress, as with other branches of our government. But they are human faults which will not be eliminated no matter how we may attempt to reorganize or streamline our political institutions.

This nation as demonstrated that when the need arises it can take swift and effective action. In the Cuban crisis the administrative branch of the government at first moved with a speed and decision that won admiration and instant support throughout the free world. But it acted only after congressional disclosures and demands forced it to do so, and its handling of the issue since entitles it to no cheers. This bungling of the Cuban thing—the gravest threat to western world freedom that has ever happened outside of war-time—is part and parcel of a record of administrative functioning throughout American history which stands not too honorably compared with the slower, more deliberate functioning of the legislative agencies of the government.

An honored and able chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court, the late J. E. Hickman, once told an audience in which I sat, that the chief value of the U. S. Constitution lies in the fact that it enforces a "sober second thought." He called it a bulwark against hasty, ill-considered action—action which, in the heat of the moment, may appear wise and necessary but in the long range may become destructive of the very foundations of our government.

The so-called wrangling and tardy procedures of Congress are the inevitable result of the deliberative process. Legislation "hastily passed at the end of (MORE on Page Eight)

About Your Health

AUSTIN—Water conservation and pollution invariably rank high on any expert list of current problems of modern life.

More than 10 million people now call Texas home. This rapid growth and the trend toward concentrated city living has resulted in a tremendous increase in the volume of waste being released into streams and lakes. Thus, water pollution has become a serious public health problem.

To meet the overall needs of the average Texas community, the municipal water plant must supply 140 gallons per person per day. Approximately 50 gallons of this daily total is used in the home. An equal amount is used by industry for washing and cooling, special processing and air conditioning.

Public needs — fire fighting, street cleaning, recreation and public fountains — account for 10 gallons of the daily supply. Commercial establishments use an additional 20 gallons for cleaning and service operations. Unhappily, ten gallons are lost through leaks and breaks in underground pipelines.

No matter what use is made of it, it is essential that water be free of harmful bacteria and chemicals.

An adequate water supply is absolutely vital to public health. It makes personal and public cleanliness inexpensive and convenient. Water-borne diseases such as typhoid and cholera have been practically eliminated by hard-working engineers and city water plant operators intent on supplying safe water to the public at the mere turn of a tap.

State and local health department engineers make constant checks on community water supplies, and city water plant operators are rigorously tutored on good operational practices.

Water, from the dawn of time, has been the indispensable element in fire fighting. The better the water supply, the safer the community from damaging fires and the less it costs for fire insurance.

Too, water is the most elemental ingredient of some of Texas' favorite recreational pursuits—swimming, boating and fishing. They are impossible when the water is polluted by human or industrial wastes.

To be passive or indifferent to clean, adequate water is to be passive and indifferent to life and community growth, for one is part and parcel of the other. (A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

Oil Pooling Bill Necessary Measure To Protect Small Owners, Says Gibbens

NOTE: One of the most-discussed measures before the 58th Legislature is House Bill 510, an oil and gas pooling bill. Author is Wayne Gibbens, 26-year-old Representative from Breckenridge. In the following article Rep. Gibbens tells why he introduced this bill and what it does.

By WAYNE GIBBENS
Member of House, 63rd District

The sponsor of a controversial bill in the Legislature has, to say the least, some interesting experiences. As author of House Bill 510 I am receiving mail both for and against the bill. In general, the proponents seem to have more personal knowledge of what the bill attempts to do than the opponents.

This fact encourages me to think that much of the opposition to House Bill 510 is based on lack of information, or misinformation.

One reason for having a pooling law in Texas are fairly simple. I would phrase them as follows:

1. The Texas oil industry is sick; it needs help. Responsible oil operators say a pooling law would help. And what helps Texas oil is bound to help Texas, in the form of jobs, money and taxes.
2. Recent court decisions made it clear that there is a missing link in an otherwise strong oil and gas conservation code in Texas. The Railroad Commission does not have specific authority to deal with problems caused by small tracts of land in a common reservoir. Great inequities have resulted in the past when small-tract wells were allowed to over-produce. The courts have now invalidated that practice.

3. The legal and moral question remains of what to do about the small tract. Allowing it a well which would drain oil and gas from neighbors' tracts is wrong. Leaving it to be drained by neighboring wells is wrong. The only equitable answer is an arrangement for putting acreage together with the owners splitting costs and proceeds in proportion to their holdings. This is the method proposed in House Bill 510.

There is some opposition to a feature of this bill which would authorize the State (through the Railroad Commission) to form drilling blocks where the pooling cannot be accomplished by agreement. Some say that this is an invasion of property rights and a blow to free enterprise.

I doubt if any of these critics believe more strongly than I do in free enterprise and property rights. Remember, there are rights of many people involved in an oil field. The State has already set down a great many restrictions on drilling for, producing and transporting oil and gas. I think that individual and property rights are best served when all interests are required to play by the same rules. In the past there has been one rule for small tracts and another for regular tracts. No matter how they are applied, one side or the other is favored. I believe they should have equal treatment under the law. This can be accomplished only by the passage of a fair pooling law.

House Bill 510 represents a full year of work by an industry committee. We never know for sure how a law will work until it goes into effect; however, this type of law is working effectively now in 26 other oil-producing states.

In my opinion it is a good, fair bill, tailored to fit the Texas pattern. Following two long hearings at which the proponents and opponents testified for eight hours, one oil expert (Jim Clark in the Houston Post) wrote:

"... Proponent arguments that unnecessary wells are chasing investors in oil development to other states, that federal control has been promised by representatives of the interior department unless the states take care of their own unnecessary well problems, and the worst of all, that without proper legislation it will be legal for one man to confiscate another man's oil or gas, have all gone unanswered by the opponents.

"In summing up the Tuesday night hearing, Representative Gibbens said that all arguments to the contrary, no one had convinced him why a forced pooling law which has worked so successfully in 26 other states is bad for Texas."

Mrs. Erwin Hull returned recently from Kansas City where she went to be with her son, Kenneth Carter and family. Kenneth is recovering nicely from surgery.

Jerry and Lydia Wilson of Austin, Texas, spent the week-end visiting his parents in Cisco and his brothers and their wives in Rising Star.

TRUST ARRANGEMENTS EXPLAINED

When property is placed in trust it is turned over to a trustee who will see to it that it is properly managed for the benefit of a person or persons you name as beneficiaries. It is a method of disposing of your property and may be used in conjunction with a will.

Trusts have many advantages. A trust may be used to provide income for persons unable to support themselves, to provide funds for a child's education, as nuptial, or to provide a gift for a trust.

In these days of high taxes, a trust may be utilized to minimize the tax burden. If carefully planned, a trust may decrease income and inheritance taxes.

A trust arrangement works roughly in this manner. A person who desires to create a trust is called a grantor. The grantor chooses a trustee. The trustee may be a bank, an individual, or a trust company. The grantor through a trust instrument tells the trustee how to distribute the trust property or income. The trustee will then manage and distribute the trust proceeds or property in whatever manner the grantor desires.

A very common arrangement is to place the property in trust with directions to pay the income from the property to a wife for her lifetime, and upon her death the trust to end and the property to be distributed to the grantor's children.

An interesting type of trust is that which is sometimes called a spendthrift trust. This is an arrangement whereby one sets up a certain sum of money to be given out to another at a definite rate per month or per year, or under definite restrictions.

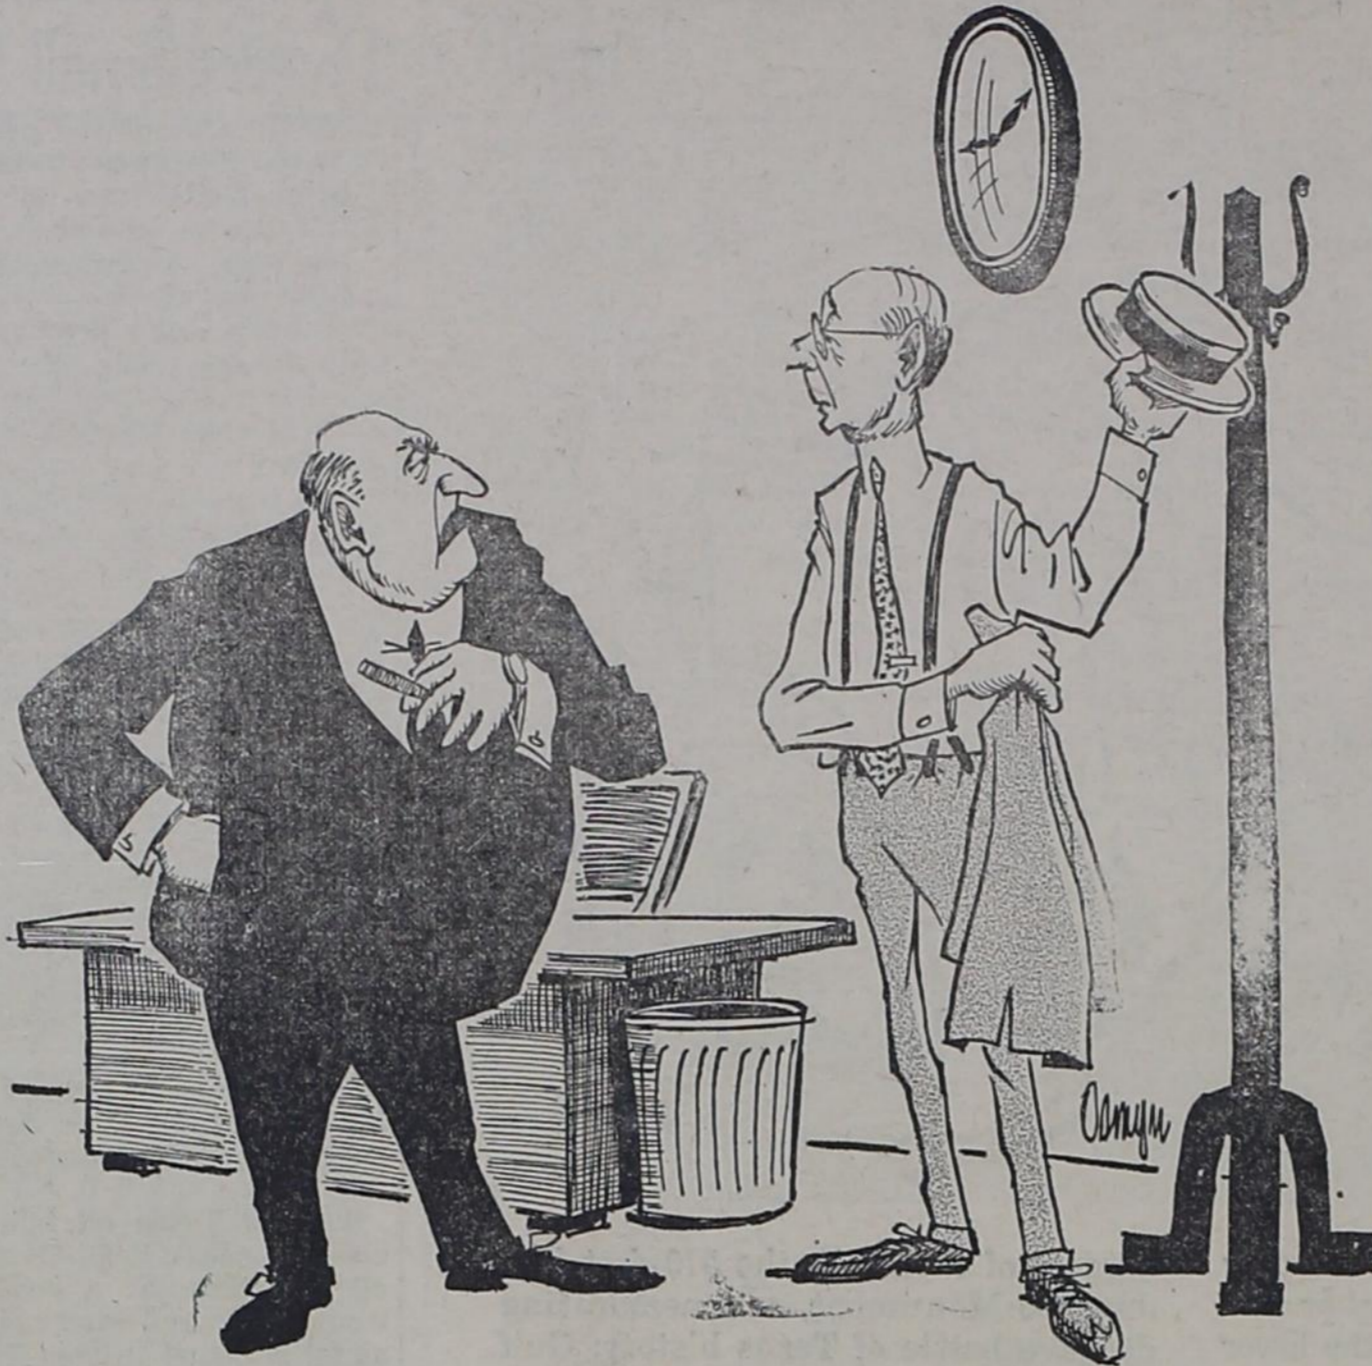

This type of trust is generally used in wills where a person desires to leave money to an individual, but feels that the individual is not capable of properly caring for the money and that if left to him in full that the person receiving the money will spend and waste the money and not receive the maximum benefit from it.

Trust property quite often consists of securities. The law regulates the type of property in which trust funds may be invested. However, the grantor may designate the type of investments the trustee may make.

The effectiveness of a trust is dependent largely on its proper creation. To avoid the pitfalls and dangers of lawsuits and ineffective trust operations, a trust instrument should be properly prepared. A poorly planned or carelessly drawn trust instrument can not only defeat the objectives of its creator, but may prove costly as well.

Your lawyer can advise you whether a trust arrangement will be advantageous in your particular situation, and is qualified by education and experience to prepare properly the

"SUCCESS AND VALUES"

These words are not synonyms, but they are related and they are linking; that is, success and values determine success. In school, examples of values determining success are quite apparent. If a student values learning and an education, he will probably achieve the success of good grades, an alert, open mind, and the ability to think and be curious and inquisitive. This student will achieve the success through study and attention.

Then there is another student with similar but really quite different values. He values not the education but the good grades. To achieve the success of good grades, he will not pursue the course of study, but of copying and cheating. Of course, grades are not what he values most. Having a good time, being irresponsible, living as if each day was his last to be with the gang, and fun, fun, fun are some of the more important things to him. These will mold his success in life into their own crude patterns.

There is also the student who cares nothing for good grades but just wants to "get by." The values will, of course, determine his success, but many times he is lucky if he does get by.

To illustrate determining values of success, there is the picture of the man who has built himself up and achieved wealth and fame and then deciding that he deserves a good long rest so he starts "living it up." His values are changed by his success from wanting a good job and prestige, to wanting a good time and superficial things.

Such radical change, however, is not common, for values are usually set long before any great amount of noticeable success is gained. This makes it very important for one to set high values and standards — and to stick with them once they are set. Before this school year is ended, each of us should examine our own values — not while others are present or while the radio is blaring, but alone and quietly. A few such hours may determine the success and achievement of your lifetime!

"NOT FINISHED, JUST BEGUN."

Hi there, The Easter holidays were spent in a variety of ways by the Seniors. For most, they were just another week-end, but a few did enjoy them in other ways.

Mary Alford spent the holidays with her father's family at Lake Brownwood, where she saw Covie and Darwin trying some ski equipment.

Carol says she just spent the week-end as a rest from books. Vendell says that was her object over the holidays, also.

Deana's holidays were spent in patching up a quarrel with her best beau. Cynthia spent her holidays improving her tennis game for the Regional Meet.

Next, a word of congratulations to our stage band, who placed first in District competition for Class B bands at Brownwood last week. A special congratulations to Mary Alford and Mike Fisher for their being chosen on the All-District Band. Other Seniors in the band are Don Donham, Kenneth Nunnally and Tommy Alford. Good work, Band!

The Seniors are all looking forward to the Junior-Senior Banquet tomorrow night. More details about that next week.

That seems to be it for this time. Bye for now, Katy

WITH THE SENIORS

Kenneth Ray Nunnally was born Aug. 11, 1945, at Brenham, Texas. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nunnally, Kenneth has attended all of his school years at Rising Star.

While in high school, Kenneth has been active in both sports and scholastic activities. He has been a member of the Wildcat football, basketball, and track teams all four years of high school. For his outstanding athletic ability, Kenneth was chosen by the student body as "Most Athletic" his Senior year. Kenneth has been a member of the Student Council for two years and was a member of both the Junior and Senior plays presented by his class; he is also a member of the Wildcat Band and Stage Band.

Kenneth's favorite food is seafood, and blue is his favorite color. "Empire" tops the list as his favorite TV show; for pastimes, Kenneth chooses music to fill his leisure hours.

Kenneth's plans for the future are, as of now, uncertain. Whatever your plans turn out to be, Kenneth, good luck to you in fulfilling them and preparing for your future.

"KNOWLEDGE COMES, BUT WISDOM LINGERS"

We are back again with only four more weeks of school as Sophomores. We hope to be back even better and stronger as Juniors next year.

Our classes are slipping by with the days, as we are learning new and interesting things each day. The speech class has been having debates on current events; we find these quite enjoyable and of great importance to us. The math classes are working with unknowns and arithmetic progressions. The science and biology classes are continuing their studies with a few tests now and then. Everyone seems to be excited and thrilled that we are now studying the last unit in English grammar on complex sentences.

Our girls have begun the physical tests again; there suregals around RSHS. Our boys are a lot of stiff and sore are still making excellent records in track and tennis. We are proud of the fine athletes we are privileged to have in such a small school.

We Sophomores are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the 1963 "La Ectrellita". This is one of the highlights of every year, this year being no exception.

We want to urge everyone to attend our talent show tonight; utter supporting the Sophomores we would like to see all of you there supporting the Sophomores.

Cheerleader try-outs are tomorrow, with the results to be announced tomorrow night at the Junior-Senior Banquet. Good luck to Anna Ezzell, Sandra Teague, Jimmy Clarke, Carolyn Stover, Judy Rutherford, and Linda Duggan, who are trying out. We wish you three Juniors the best of luck, too.

We are busy with many activities during the last few weeks of school; don't forget to read our news next week to see how many exciting things we Sophomores are doing.

"LIVE AND LEARN"

Wow! What a week we've had at R.S.H.S.! Cheerleader tryouts are today; the sophomores had a talent show, which was a great success.

The freshmen are studying very hard this week. The Algebra I students are finishing their study of quadratic equations; while the general math students are studying the basics of algebra. The people in Biology I are studying and reviewing biology of the past; general science students are ending the chapter about the eye. In English, we are taking up verbals. The Home Ec. I girls are back to studying, with the Ag. I boys working in the shop.

The latest fish event was a party given by Russell. We enjoyed it very much. Another fish has taken up the pleasure of dating as told to me by a bird. We hope you enjoy it, Ted!!

Last week some high school girls went to Dallas to take part in the State Homemaking meeting. Julie Watkins went from the freshmen class. She is a member of the State Homemakers' Choir. We are all very proud of Julie.

That's all for this week. Marcia

DO RE MI

GIRLS' SPORTS

The season for volleyball is gone, and tennis and cheerleading are underway.

The tennis team went to regional last week at Stephenville; Sharon Donham, Cynthia Brown, and Judy Lewis attended the meet with Eddie Joe Henry, their coach.

The cheerleaders for 1963-64 will be chosen before long and the girls who will be trying-out are working very hard at their yells. Those coming out for the '63 and '64 season are as follows: Anna Ezzell, Carolyn Stover, Sandra Teague, Virginia Clarke, Loretta Pittman, Linda Duggan, Judy Rutherford, Harriet Schmitt, and Sharon Donham. We wish you all the luck you can have, girls! The girls have to try-out with their yells and are voted on by the students. The girls are very good in their cheerleading, and it will be very hard to select the ones to fulfill the job.

This time of the year is hot and the girls are not doing very much in sports since volleyball and basketball are over. We would like to say that the season has been very rewarding and you have earned your rest. Until next week, Linda B.

County Receipts Of SS Payments $217,450 Monthly

Monthly old-age, survivors and disability insurance benefits in Eastland County now top $217,450, R. R. Tuley, Jr., District Manager of social security in Abilene, said today on releasing his annual county benefit data report.

The new monthly figure represents an increase of 12 percent in beneficiaries and 12 percent in dollar amount over the corresponding period last year. "This increase can be attributed to the recent changes in the law and to the growth of our aged population," Tuley said. "As most of it is spent for food, clothing, and shelter, there is no longer any doubt that social security benefits are helping to stabilize the income and spending power of many residents in Eastland County."

More people in Eastland County, he said, could draw social security benefits if they knew more about the law, and for that reason they are urged to visit or call the local social security office whenever they have a question concerning their benefits or responsibilities.

As of January 1963, in the nation at large, more than 18 million beneficiaries were receiving payments at the rate of $14.5 billion per month.

The session usually is the final expression of a will arrived at through long, tedious and often exasperating periods of argument and delay. As irritating as that process may be to those who wish Congress to pass quickly a legislative design tailored to their peculiar specifications, the process is an essential guarantee that all sides will be considered and all voices heard in the composition of the final act.
If Congress moves slowly, it is well that it does. Let us hope that it will continue to be independent and representative and deliberative.

News From May

The W.S.C.S. of the May Methodist Church met at the church on Monday afternoon. After a song and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Weldon Hanes, the hour was given over to Miss Frances Bowden of Sao Paulo, Brazil, who brought an interesting and inspirational message about her life and work as a missionary in Brazil. Miss Bowden and her father, Rev. J. J. Bowden, who has been a missionary to Brazil since 1920, are in May for a visit with relatives — the Dr. Bowden and the J. J. Prentice families. Rev. Bowden and Miss Bowden will visit in Abilene for a few days and then go to New York to spend several weeks with his brother and sister before returning to their work in Sao Paulo.
After Miss Bowden's message to the W.S.C.S. a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. O. C. Allen and Mrs. Lloyd Alexander served refreshments to the following: Mmes. Grace Glenn, Clyde Nesbitt, Marvin Chambers, Bill Wilson, B. U. Ross, Marion Wiggins, J. J. Prentice, and the pastor, Rev. Hanes.

Through this cable flows power for progress

A literal web of cables strung on highlines tie together all the communities we serve. Through these cables flow the electricity to light the darkness, to relieve housewives of home-making drudgery, to turn the wheels of industry, and to perform countless other tasks economically and continuously.

Because our service area is the center of one of the Nation's fastest growing regions, we are engaged in a long-range program of expansion. Generating and distribution facilities are being enlarged to serve more people, more businesses, more industry.

That is why our product — electricity — is not only the power FOR progress, it is a symbol OF progress here in the Center of the Southwest.
